Q. The one thing about Medicare that's always confused me is the benefit period under hospital insurance. Just exactly what is a benefit period?

A. A benefit period begins when you are admitted to a hospital. It ends when you have been out of a hospital (or other facility primarily providing skilled nursing or rehabilitation services) for 60 days in a row. For example, suppose you have to go into a hospital. The day you are discharged you go home. The benefit period ends 60 days after the day of your discharge from the hospital. Or, if you had to go into a skilled nursing facility after your hospital stay, the benefit period would end 90 days after the day of your discharge from the skilled nursing facility.

Q. My father just had an operation, and his doctor is transferring him to a skilled nursing facility. I've heard that Medicare pays for skilled nursing facility care only under certain conditions. Is that true?

A. Yes, Medicare's hospital insurance can help pay for care in a skilled nursing facility only if these conditions are met: (1) The patient has been in a hospital at least three days in a row before his transfer to the skilled nursing facility; (2) He is transferred to the facility because he requires care for a condition which was treated in the hospital; (3) He is admitted to the facility within a short time (generally 14 days) after he leaves the hospital; (4) A doctor certified that he needs, and he actually receives, skilled nursing or rehabilitation services on a daily basis; (5) The patient's Utilization Review Committee does not disapprove his stay.

Q. My mother was very ill recently, and the doctor had to come to the house to treat her. Will her Medicare pay for his visit, or does it only cover office visits to the doctor?

A. Medicare's medical insurance helps pay for covered services of your mother receives from her doctor no matter where she receives them — in her home, in his office, in a hospital or skilled nursing facility or in any other location in the United States. Your Medicare Handbook explains what doctor's services are covered, and how medical insurance helps pay for them. If your mother doesn't have a copy of the handbook, she can get one at any Social Security office.

Q. My wife died six months ago. My daughter already gets Social Security checks on my late wife's work record, and I'm going to apply for father's benefits next week. If I'm eligible, how will my earnings affect our payments?

A. If you earn more than $2,760 in a year, $1 in benefits is withheld for every $2 in earnings above that amount. You can get your benefit, however, for any month in which you neither earn more than $230 in wages nor perform substantial services in self-employment. Your earnings will affect only your benefit. They will not affect your daughter's.

Q. I've just sold my house and will be moving into an apartment on the first of next month. Should I notify Social Security now, or wait until I'm living at my new address?

A. You should notify Social Security now. Prompt notice helps assure delivery of your check to your new address without delay or interruption. You can report your move on

Syrians anticipate Lebanese cease-fire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian troops anticipating a Lebanese truce halted their advance towards Beirut today, but opposition from Palestinians and Christians threatened to snag the latest peace initiative. Although Syria agreed to accept a cease-fire arranged through Libyan, Algerian and Arab League mediation, truce talks between Libyan Premier Muji, Abdel Salam Jalloud and Palestinian guerrilla leaders broke down in heated arguments.

Moynihn to seek Senate

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former U.N. Ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan today announced his candidacy for the U.S. Senate seat now held by James L. Buckley, R-N.Y. Moynihan said he decided to seek the nomination because friends in the party and the labor movement have "asked me to run representing a kind of enter position in the Democratic party with the first principle being that that's the position that can be elected."

Girls help out on Bicentennial parade float

Roses by any other name are four young lasses in sunbonnets who are hardly any bigger than the big red, white and blue cabbage roses they are working on to be used as decorations for the Highland Park School float in Saturday's Bicentennial parade. Several Democratic leaders give endorsements to Carter

By LEWIS LORD United Press International Jimmy Carter, unknown to most Americans a few months ago, today looks like a first-ballot winner of the Democratic presidential nomination, while President Ford still faces a tough battle with Ronald Reagan on the Republican side. Several Democratic leaders, including Chicago Mayor Richard Daley and Alabama Gov. George Wallace, endorsed Carter Wednesday after a primary season that saw the former Georgia governor win 19 of 32 contests. Sen. Hubert Humphrey's hopes of winning the nomination in a second convention faded and the 1968 nominee, saying Carter is "virtually certain to be our party's nominee," disavowed any effort to have himself nominated. As a result, 28 GOP primaries — 16 won by the President and 12 by Reagan — the two Republicans remained nearly deadlocked in delegate strength. It might be August before the nation knows whether Ford will be the first president to be denied a nomination since the Republican Chester Alan Arthur fell short in 1884. However, Ford expressed confidence he will have the required 1,130 delegates by the start of the Kansas City convention. He emerged from the primaries with 911 delegates to Reagan's 860. Sen. Henry Jackson, knocked out after the April 27 Pennsylvania primary, urged fellow Democrats to "get behind Governor Carter, who now has enough votes to win the nomination," and indicated he will formally release his delegates next week. Wallace and Jackson had 418 delegates and Daley commanded 86. Those delegates plus the 1,122 Carter won in the primaries would push the Georgian's total to 1,624. The nomination requires 1,505. "The ball game is over," said Daley, who suggested that Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, who ran at the head of the Carter ticket, be chosen as the Northeast. Carter, clad in denim work clothes on his Georgia peanut farm, said the nomination could be denied him only "through some catastrophe." He said he is considering a score of vice presidential possibilities but will disclose his choice only after being nominated in New York next month. Wallace, who once termed Carter "a warmed-over McGovern," was the first candidate to endorse the leader. Wallace said he sought no deals with Carter and asked only that he be "one of the finest presidents we've ever had." California Gov. Jerry Brown, who entered the race late and won 213 delegates, vowed to keep campaigning "as long as it makes sense." Fresh from a lopsided win in his home state, Brown planned to meet with Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards at Baton Rouge in hopes of picking up uncommitted delegates. Sen. Frank Church said he apparently had entered the Democratic race too late but would spend a few days trout-fishing before conceding defeat. Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, who has backed Jackson, said he will support Carter as soon as Jackson releases his delegates.

HARTFORD — Gov. Ella T. Grasso says she will remain neutral on a congressional proposal to ban interstate wagering, even though it could cripple Connecticut's month-old off-track betting system.

HARTFORD — Secretary of the State Gloria Schaffer, a candidate for the Democratic U. S. Senate nomination, said Wednesday she favors decriminalization but not legalization of marijuana.

BRIDGEPORT — Courtroom testimony for the prosecution has detailed Superior Court Judge Samuel J. Tedesco's control of the country club whose liquor license application he is accused of falsely notarizing. Tedesco was said to be in on most of the major decisions concerning the Candlewood Valley Country Club.

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union is alarming members of Congress and constituents who have Jewish relatives in Russia by drastically increasing duties on gifts, effective June 15. The packages were called vital to the survival of Soviet Jews who have been dismissed from their jobs because they have applied to emigrate to Israel.

PROVIDENCE, R. I. — A federal court ruling leaves the Rhode Island Bicentennial Commission no choice in allowing a Congress of Gay Concerns this month in historic Old State House.

MONTPELLIER, Vt. — Gov. Thomas Salmon, a candidate for the U. S. Senate, has called upon the United States to gradually give up all rights to the Panama Canal Zone.

Matthew Moriarty Sr. honored by MCC group

Matthew M. Moriarty Sr. was honored recently by his colleagues on the Regional Advisory Council of Manchester Community College. At the annual meeting of the council held at the home of MCC President Ronald H. Demison, the council members presented a certificate to Moriarty in honor of his many contributions to the college and bestowing upon him the title of Regional Council Chairman Emeritus. Moriarty is the first to receive that title He has been associated closely with the college from its beginning. He gave his active support to the concept of a town college when the founding of such an institution was being discussed in the late 1950s. When Manchester Community College opened in 1963 under the control of the Manchester Board of Education, Moriarty became the first chairman of the college's Citizens' Advisory Council, a post which he held for two years. In December of 1965, the college joined the state-controlled community college system and the Citizens' Advisory Council was renamed the Regional Advisory Council. Moriarty has been a member of the Regional Council since its organization. He has also served on the scholarship and curriculum committees of the council.

169th's 1st Battalion to be parade honor unit

By ALICE EVANS Herald Reporter The 339-year-old 1st Battalion of the 169th Infantry, Connecticut Army National Guard, with headquarters in Manchester, will be the honor unit at Manchester's June 12 Bicentennial Parade. The battalion can trace its heritage of continuous service to Connecticut and the nation back to 1637 and has been officially designated a Revolutionary War unit by the Bicentennial Parade Committee thought that the town would be remiss if it didn't honor the battalion and so selected it to be the honor unit of the parade. Lt. Col. Thomas E. Buck, battalion commander, will be the commander of the military division of the parade. Serving on his staff will be Maj. Mark C. Walsh, Maj. John P. Carragher, Capt. Daniel A. DiGiulio, Capt. William J. Pinette and Capt. Leigh H. Lovinger. Heading this division will be the battalion's Headquarters Co., with Capt. Stephen R. Fenton, commanding. The average worker at the tube division earns $11.72 hourly, including wages and fringe benefits, while competitors pay workers about $8 hourly, the company said.

and Indian War in August 1757, and was involved in the campaign of New York and three battles in Connecticut. While the regiment is credited with various service during the period from 1776 to 1779, the greatest aid which it gave was during the Saratoga campaign. The regiment was ordered to reinforce Col. Gates at Saratoga in the autumn of 1777 and was assigned to the Continental Brigade in Gen. Benedict Arnold's division. The unit took a severe beating because Arnold had compromised all intelligence and the location of all units. The battalion still has a letter in its files, in which Gen. Gates referred to the regiment as "that excellent Militia Regiment from Connecticut."

Between the Revolutionary and Civil Wars, the unit was organized into a state militia or national guard. During the Civil War it saw Federal service in Georgia, South Carolina, the Battle of Bull Run, Gettysburg, Atlanta, Virginia, Florida, Tennessee and North Carolina. It next saw service in the Mexican Border Campaign.

The battalion has served in every war with the exception of Vietnam. It was in all major campaigns of World War I and World War II, when it was

Who will the Democrats pick for vice president?

By STEVE GERSTEL
WASHINGTON (UPI) — With Jimmy Carter almost assured of the Democratic presidential nomination, speculation has begun on a vice presidential running mate for the former Georgia governor.

Carter said Wednesday he was considering about two dozen for the No. 2 spot on the Democratic ticket but would not disclose his choice until after he is nominated.

At his home in Plains, Ga., Carter said, "No one is authorized to speak for me — no one."

"Neither my campaign chairman nor my wife nor anyone is authorized to speak for me," he continued, "and I do not intend to indicate to any of my staff members or to any of my family, anytime soon, who I will recommend if I am the nominee."

At the same time, Carter acknowledged that "there is going to be a lot of speculation, obviously, about the vice presidency."

Although he has run an anti-establishment campaign, Carter is very much a hard, pragmatic politician and will choose a running mate who, besides being personally and philosophically compatible, can help him win.

The primary trail, littered with his fallen opponents, offers some potential candidates for Carter. They have the advantage of national exposure gained in the long series of primary elections.

Among them are three westerners — California's Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., Idaho's Sen. Frank Church and Washington's Sen. Henry Jackson. Another possibility is Indiana's Sen. Birch Bayh.

Brown, who proved himself a highly effective campaigner in the late primaries, could provide major help in California and other parts of the West, and with liberals and young voters.

Church, Bayh and Jackson are all veteran, issue-oriented senators who could dispel lingering doubts about Carter in the party establishment.

Other senators mentioned include John Glenn of Ohio, Walter Mondale of Minnesota and Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois — who released his 82 favorite son delegates to Carter Wednesday.

Some House members were pushing Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey, who, as chairman of the Judiciary Committee, won high marks in his role of presiding over the Nixon impeachment hearings.

Others were talking up Rep. Thomas Foley of Washington, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

In addition to Brown, possibilities in the ranks of governors are Hugh Carey of New York, who leads the country's second largest state and who has hinted he will endorse Carter shortly, and perhaps Minnesota's popular Wendell Anderson, chairman of the Democratic convention platform committee.

The vice presidential candidate who could help Carter most may be Sen. Edward Kennedy. But there is no indication Carter is interested in Kennedy — or Kennedy in Carter.

'Manchester Profile' makes CATV debut

A Manchester news show will be a weekly feature beginning tonight at 6 on cable television.

Called "Manchester Profile," it is the first in a series of Manchester newsmagazine shows produced by the town's newly formed video production department to be shown on Channel 21 of Greater Hartford CATV.

The weekly show will feature news stories and reports of area interest ranging from entertainment to controversial issues.

Tonight's show includes such items as burglary prevention, Board of Education activities, the impending garbage crisis, and an area Job Bank for Youth.

Each program will be re-cablecast several times throughout the week. The program schedule will be telecast on Channel 21.

The video production department is funded through the Summer Activities in Manchester (SAM) program. Marc Hirschfeld is 81 Mountain Rd. is supervisor of the department and will direct the shows. Hirschfeld is a television-film major in his junior year at Syracuse University.

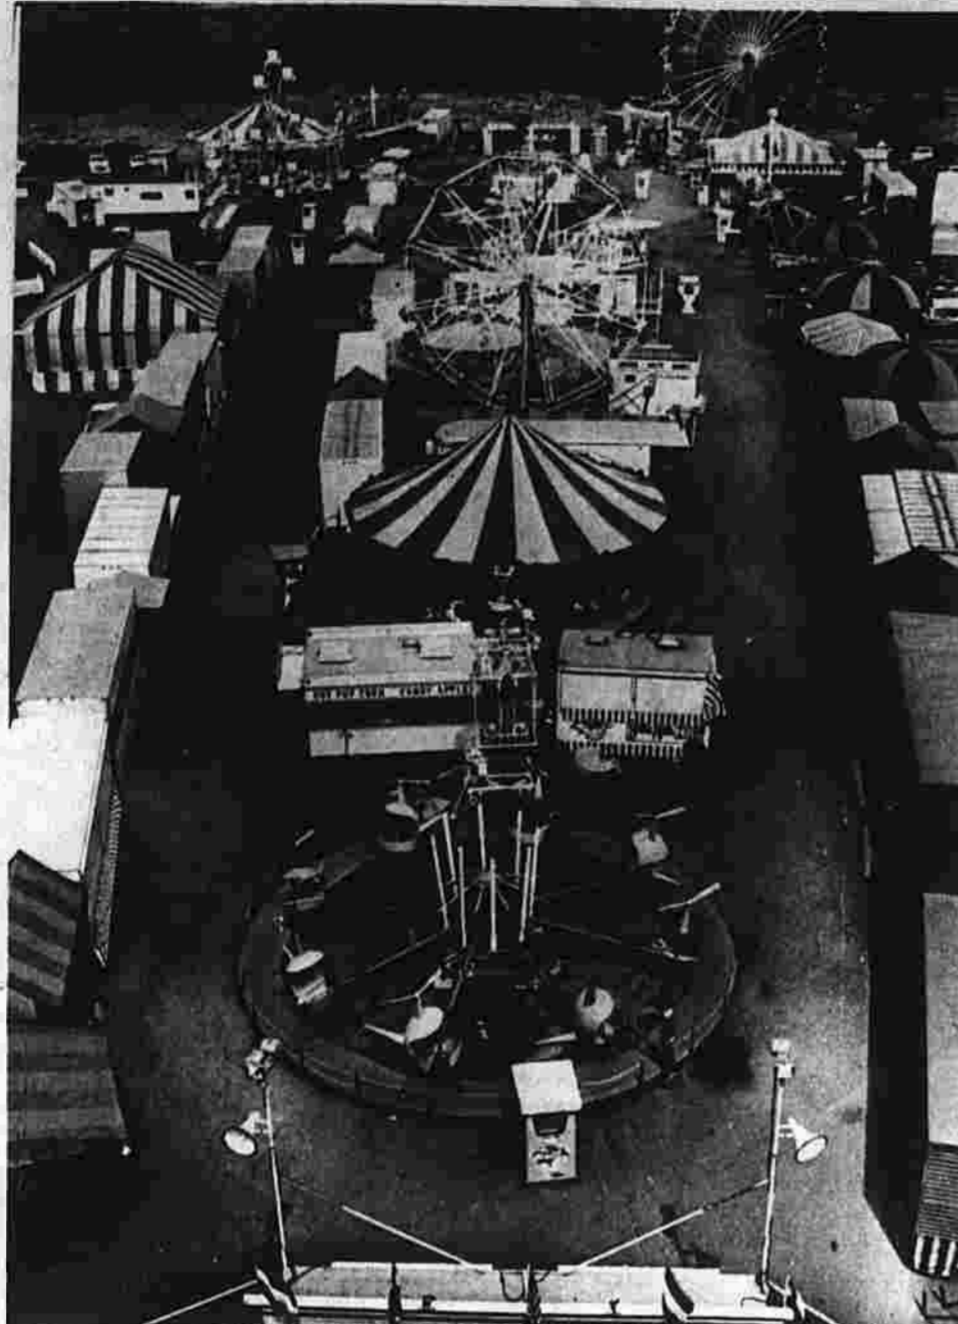

He will be assisted by three part-time video production aides. They are Mark Zarbo of 165 Brent Rd., Chris Spacone of 164 Edridge St. and Rick Carlton of 125 Bolton St. Zarbo attends University of Connecticut, Spacone and Carlton are active in Manchester High School's audio visual department.

Quake funds nearing $7,000

Contributions to the drive to help victims of the recent earthquake in Northern Italy are nearing the $7,000 mark, Manchester directors of the relief fund report.

Sam J. Filloramo, Raymond F. Damato and Nathan G. Agostinelli said today they're gratified at the support being given in Manchester. They said contributions may be sent to Venetian Earthquake Relief Fund, P.O. Box 803, Manchester, Conn. 06040.

Dr. John Basile, state coordinator of the effort, returned today from Italy, where he learned firsthand of the devastation. He will give his report Sunday at a giant rally at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge, Rt. 91, Windsor Locks. The public is invited to the 7 p.m. rally. Directors of the drive will meet at 5 p.m.

Fun and entertainment
Bright lights, calliope music and breathtaking rides are all part of the Coleman Bros. Shows that returns to the Manchester Parkade Monday through Saturday. The big show is sponsored by the Manchester Parkade Merchants Association. The fun and entertainment will begin at 4 p.m. weekdays and noon on Saturday.

Coleman Bros. comes to Parkade

The Coleman Bros. Shows comes to the Manchester Parkade for a six-day-long appearance with an enlarged midway and a circus-type sideshow.

The show, sponsored by the Manchester Parkade Merchants Association, will be open Monday through Saturday, beginning at 4 p.m. weekdays and at noon on Saturday.

There will be a total of 30 amusement rides and custom-sized kiddie favorites such as cotton candy, popcorn stands, and skid games.

Other rides include the 85-foot-tall "Sky Diver" and the new "Zipper."

There will be the midway favorites such as cotton candy, popcorn stands, and skid games.

Oil-rich Arab countries investing money at home

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Arabs and Iranians, who it was feared might gobble up major western industries with their oil riches, instead seem to be putting most of their money to work at home.

They have invested substantial sums in the West but the total is a drop in the bucket compared to the $40,000 billion they have poured into their own countries to industrialize and raise a standard of living depressed for centuries.

They also have bought armaments both from the Soviet Union and some western nations because of their continuing bitter dispute of Israel and rivalries among themselves.

But the published armament purchases of 17 Arab countries and Iran (which is an oil-rich Moslem country whose people are not Arabs) amount to only 12 per cent of known investments in their own countries.

These figures, compiled by various statistical sources and published in Aramco World, a magazine put out by Arabian American Oil Co., cover the period from December 1973 to January 1975. They total $28 billion and the editors of the magazine say that for the past two and a half years up to June, 1976, the total could be $62 billion.

Surprisingly, the study showed France, the colonial ruler ousted since World War II by so many of the Arab states, still enjoys cordial trade relations with the Moslem world and landed the biggest share of the 1974 contracts — $10 billion. The United States got $6.07 billion and West Germany, Italy, Japan and Britain each $2 billion to $4 billion. The Soviet bloc got less than $2 billion.

Naturally, the petrochemical industry is of prime importance to the Moslem world because they want to invest in the Arab steel industry worth mentioning in the Arab benefit from it as possible.

Opinion
State courts take on activist role

An interesting turnaround seems to be under way in the nation's legal life.
Where once champions of civil liberties looked to the U.S. Supreme Court, especially during the days of the activist "Warren Court," to lead the fight for the enlargement of individual rights, since the advent of the conservative "Burger Court," they are more and more turning to the state courts.

One of those who not only perceives such a movement but who encourages it is himself a member of the Supreme Court. With the court "pulling back" from the enforcement of constitution rights, state courts should "thrust themselves into the struggle," says Associate Justice William J. Brennan Jr., who in 20 years on the high bench has served under both Chief Justice Warren and Chief Justice Burger.

Today's thought

A real saint
How often one hears these words. "The church is full of hypocrites." It is not too dangerous just to say them, but fatal to let them affect you. God is neither fooled nor affected by mere "performing Christians." Neither is He deceived by those with only the "right words."

Federal judge serves up a helping of sanity

WASHINGTON - Some people with official authority still are capable of demanding that our social structure make sense. One of them is a federal judge in Richmond, Va., who has served up a helping of sanity in a landmark ruling on so-called "affirmative action."

Wayne Hays: Does anybody really care?

WASHINGTON - Now that Rep. Wayne Hays has publicly confessed to at least some of the charges leveled against him by his former mistress, Elizabeth Ray, a question yet to be answered is how damaging politically will be the web he has spun around himself?

Oriental religions actually a protest?

America is no stranger to offbeat and sometimes weird religious cults, from end-of-the-worlders to snake-handlers. Historically, however, they have been home-grown movements, offshoots of Judeo-Christian tradition.

Using his head instead of his glands, Warriner properly held that his qualifications were "equal or better than" those of the women considered.

Warriner, bless him, went further and thus revealed himself as the thinking man's civil rights. The only effective solution, he said, is recruiting, educating and selecting women who can compete for jobs without a competitive advantage.

Trial by ignorance

The law's idea of what makes for a fair trial has degenerated to the point where only those who are telling ignorant of what is going on in the world are considered qualified to serve as jurors.

Hoffman-Carlo

Mary Elizabeth Carlo of Vernon and Steven David Hoffman of Holbrook, Mass. were married June 8 at the home of the bride's parents. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas M. Carlo of 11 Box Mountain Dr., Vernon. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hoffman of Holbrook, Mass.

The Rev. Michael Donohue of Sacred Heart Church in Vernon and Rabbi Elliot Hurvitz of Holbrook, Mass., performed the double-ring ceremony. Soloists were Jennifer Foss and Jean McGowen, both of Vernon.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin with Nottingham and Venice lace panels from ruffled lace collar to hemline, long Bishop sleeves with lace trim, and ruffled hemline extending to a chapel train. Her shoulder-length veil of silk illusion was attached to a lace cap. She carried a basket of white carnations, stephanotis, baby's breath and daisy pompons.

Mrs. Kathy Joppa of Vernon was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Elissa Hoffman of Holbrook, Mass., the bridegroom's sister; Miss Marlon Shea, Miss Amy Kaiser and Miss Deborah Tessier, all of Vernon; and Mrs. Jessica Hanson of Rockville.

James Hoffman of Holbrook, Mass. served as his brother's best man. Ushers were Robert Shea and Robert Feldman, both of Brookline, Mass., Mark Hanson of Rockville, Ronnie Joppa of Vernon, brother-in-law of the bride, and Michael Carlo of Vernon, the bride's brother.

A reception was held at The Colony in Vernon, after which the couple left for Hawaii. For traveling, Mrs. Hoffman wore a three-piece ensemble in

Turbo train engine burns

STONINGTON (UPI) — An engine on Amtrak's Boston-to-New York turbo passenger train burst into flames at Lord's Point on Long Island Sound early today, authorities said. No injuries were reported. Passengers were evacuated as volunteer firemen arrived to fight the blaze.

An Amtrak spokesman in New York said the breakdown happened about 8:30 a.m. as the train, which left Boston at 6:45 a.m. with about 125 passengers, was preparing to stop at the Mytic, Conn. station. The cause of the breakdown was not immediately known.

Soviet conventional war capability increasing according to NATO report

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — The Soviet Union has improved its ability to sustain lengthy conventional warfare in Europe and disrupt the West's supply lines for oil and raw materials, a Western intelligence report said today.

Viking I course corrected

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Scientists trying to meet the July 4th target for putting a life-seeking capsule on Mars made a delayed course correction today, solving a dust problem in deep space. "All indications are at the moment that everything is okay," project manager Jim Martin said early today. "All indications are that the spacecraft performed nominally."

Shackling incident being probed

GROTON (UPI) — Naval officials say they are investigating alleged use of wrist and ankle restraints on a seaman after his return from an unauthorized absence. Their comments followed a published report Wednesday in the Viking I newspaper The Day, of New London, which quoted three sources as stating a young seaman apprentice on an experimental nuclear submarine was shackled. The Day said two of the sources believed the man was shackled for three days after returning from an unauthorized absence and could not sit down for most of the three days. The alleged incident took place on the submarine Glenard P. Lipscomb, designed primarily for a short war. It is assessed now that it is designed for any kind of war. "At any time of their choosing," Hill-Norton said, "they could effectively disrupt the essential supplies of oil and raw materials, on which not only our lighting capacity but our economy and indeed our very lives depend."

Black guerrilla leaders not interested in talks

ERIK VAN EES SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Unless Premier Ian Smith moves quickly to reopen peace talks with black nationalists, he may have only Communist-backed guerrillas to deal with — and they are not interested in negotiations. At the same time, the latest successes of an 18-man guerrilla high command — set up with the support of neighboring Mozambique — to lead insurgents infiltrating into Rhodesia, has added new urgency to the need to settle the country's political future. Rhodesia's nationalist movement, the African National Council, tried in March to reach agreement with Smith but he rejected their demands for black rule within two years. Smith said he would not have rule by the 6.1 million black majority imposed on Rhodesia's 2.5 million whites but was willing to discuss increased black participation in government over a period of 10 to 15 years. The collapse of peace talks prompted a spurt in guerrilla activity. The May casualty toll — 19 security force soldiers and 104 guerrillas killed — made it the bloodiest month since the war began in earnest in December 1972. Black leaders predicted a "bloodbath" in the central African nation and said only violence could give Rhodesia a black government. Britain and America support a negotiated settlement. The four presidents whose countries surround Rhodesia — Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, Samora Machel of Mozambique, Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia and Sir Seretse Khama of Botswana — have become increasingly impatient at the slow pace of developments. Last month, President Kaunda said "the light is on and there is no way out as far as this (Rhodesian) regime is concerned — instead of peaceful change there is war."

He said Rhodesian guerrilla forces are planning to open a new northwestern front into white-ruled Rhodesia. In an effort to hasten the downfall of the Smith government, Mozambique's Frelimo leaders helped set up the 18-man guerrilla high command, packing it with men unwilling to negotiate with Smith. Bishop Abel Muzorewa, a leader of the Mozambique-based militant wing of the African National Council, protested to Nyerere, charging that Mozambican soldiers were killing or jailing guerrillas loyal to the Council for failing to accept the hardline high command. Muzorewa said the command effectively was isolating the Council's political leadership from its military arm. Rhodesian security sources said they have evidence of further disension among the guerrillas' political leaders. Several guerrilla leaders have defected to the Rhodesian side and told of tribal and personality clashes. These differences and the escalated guerrilla campaign — which shortens the time in training — play into Rhodesia's hands, security sources say. This also gives security forces the chance to iron out problems caused by the call-up of an estimated 40,000 men, mostly part-time white soldiers.

Jumbo jets can see military action

CHICAGO (UPI) — If the United States takes military action again to meet a crisis abroad, the jumbo jets of commercial airlines may be airlifted in the "civil reserve air fleet" is one of the plans for upgrading and modernizing the U.S. military air transportation service. Another plan calls for a fleet of jumbo jets to be used as aerial tankers to eliminate the problems the United States encountered in its operation in 1973 to transport Israel. Thomas C. Reed, 42, described the civil reserve fleet program as "10 service hoped to buy and politically feasible several dozen wide-bodied tankers — tentatively DC10s or 747s to serve as aerial tankers which would eliminate the need for land-based refueling. "In that resupply of the East Coast of the United States they had to land and refuel in the Azores. We could have been independent of ever landing in the Azores. We could have landed at Lod airport, disused as aerial tankers without taking any petroleum."

Gardening

By Frank Alwood

When I visited the plant sale held by the Manchester Garden Club, I was told, "some plants have just come in from Mary Pohlman."

What makes that a newsworthy statement is that Mrs. Pohlman, at 97, is the oldest member of the club and that she is a regular contributor of plants for the annual sale. Mrs. Pohlman's son, Fred, had brought the plants and they included some kinds that no one else contributed. There was salycanthus, or sweetshrub, with aromatic fragrance in the reddish flowers. Another shrub dug from the garden was thermopsis, with yellow pea-like flowers, but no common name. The Pohlmans have had these in their garden for many years.

There were potted clumps of more-common chives, perhaps the most popular of all garden herbs for seasoning, and no fewer than 10 spider plants. These came from the sun room that serves as a greenhouse and Fred said he took these because the plants in the house produce so many little ones that he and his mother really didn't know what to do with them.

That's how it is with spider plant. It lives in a roomy in a hanging basket and sends out long stalks, each of which bears a series of plantlets supplied with roots as well as leaves. Anyone who has spider plant is likely to have too many, but the sale was a good place for them. They went well and since they are easy to grow they are fine plants for beginners.

Name is German
The Pohlmans are a family of German origin. Fred and his father and grandfather before him were cigar makers. They had a cigar store in Depot Square until it was modernized and the cigar store disappeared with numerous other small business houses. Loss of his store forced Fred's retirement.

Mrs. Pohlman regrets the loss of Depot Square, where she could walk from her home to shop and where she knew almost everybody she met. She thinks the modern look of Manchester's North End is no improvement.

Mrs. Pohlman's maiden name was Zuehlke, also German, and she grew up in Rockville. She has lived in Manchester since her marriage and when I asked if she had ever gone to Germany? I've never been any farther than Hartford.

Her son reminded her that once, with other members of the garden club, she had gone by bus on a one-day trip to the New York Flower Show, competitive showing was at the and she admitted she had overlooked that trip although it was a great occasion for her at the time.

Not quite a charter member, Mrs. Pohlman joined the club a few years after it was organized in 1928. The club met, as it does now, at Center Church, and somebody gave her a ride to the meeting and back home. Some meetings were held in the Whiton Library, then new, to which she could walk.

Being a member of the club has been a great joy to Mrs. Pohlman. It was at first a small group of 10 or 15, including a few men, and with two or three people besides herself attending from the North End. When there was no scheduled speaker, members exchanged experiences, learning from one another what plants did well and under what conditions.

The members were given demonstrations on arranging flowers but Mrs. Pohlman says that whenever she offered "an arrangement" was told that it was, instead, "a bouquet."

The garden club did not have flower shows in the early years and Mrs. Pohlman believes the club's first entry in competitive showing was at the old Hartford Flower Shows.

Ferns cover lawn
Mrs. Pohlman wanted me to see her red clematis and Fred took me to the garden area behind the house. The vine grows tall against the side of a shed and is covered with blossoms.

A large tulip bed had been filled with blossoms earlier. Now the tops were drooping and yellowed while the bulbs store up nutrients for another year. They are tulips of an earlier day that Mrs. Pohlman said have been there for 30 years.

Fred's vegetable garden had a row of tall peas growing on wire and nicely blossomed. Since he planted the peas in February, he should have some to be picked.

Fred's father used to do the outdoor gardening. When he died, Mrs.

Police report

Manchester

The Shell Self Service Station on Tolland Tpk. was held up today at 4:28 a.m. and $600 in cash taken. Two men wearing green face masks forced the attendant at gun point to lie on the floor of the station's office while they tied him with a belt, the attendant told police. The men pulled the phone wires out. They took the attendant's keys, opened the safe, and removed the cash.

John A. Iavarone, 27, of 2 Pearl St. was arrested today at 2 a.m. at Renaissance Foods at 109 Center St. and charged with third-degree burglary.

Patrolman James Taylor said he saw Iavarone coming out of the store at 2 a.m. He chased him on Center St. and stopped him in front of the Central Firehouse. He told Taylor he had just fallen into the store and was walking out.

Police said about $50 in cash, some food stamps, some cheese, checks, and a pocket calculator were missing from the store.

He was being held this morning in lieu of $2,500 surety bond for appearance in Common Pleas Court

12 in East Hartford today.

Eric W. Manner, 20, of West Hartford was arrested Wednesday at 4:08 p.m. on Green Rd. and charged with disregarding a stop sign and operating a motor vehicle while license under suspension. Court is June 22.

George A. Tijemela, 28, of East Hartford was arrested Wednesday at 10 p.m. on Center St. at Winder St. and charged with breach of peace, assault of a police officer, and resisting arrest. He was being held this morning in lieu of $1,000 surety bond for court today.

Brian McKee, 16, of 23 Richmond Rd. was arrested Wednesday at 10:40 p.m. on Center St. at W. Middle Tpk. and charged with carrying a weapon in a motor vehicle and threatening.

Terrio allegedly brandished a club weighted on one end with metal during a confrontation with another motorist over driving habits. Court is June 28.

Richard K. Fickett, 25, of Broad Brook was arrested today at 12:27 a.m. on Tolland Tpk. and charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of drugs or alcohol and illegal possession of a controlled substance (barbiturates). Court is June 21.

Eileen M. Enrico, 56, and Rita M. McCann, 52, both of 52 Pearl St. were arrested today at 1:30 a.m. at their home and charged with breach of peace. Court is June 22.

Robert O. Jobin, 37, of 603 Center St. was arrested today at 2:15 a.m. at Bess Eaton Donuts on Center St. and charged with breach of peace.

John allegedly caused a disturbance in the shop, a customer fought him, and Jobin allegedly bit the customer causing a bleeding wound, police said.

Maurice G. Corbell, 48, of East Hartford was arrested today at 3 a.m. at the rear of the K-Mart store on Spencer St. and charged with fourth-degree larceny.

He allegedly loaded grass turf valued at $40 in a pickup truck and was leaving the area when stopped by Patrolman Charles R. Morneau. Court is June 28.

The office of Dr. Y.T. Tse at 341 Broad St. was broken into sometime Tuesday night.

Grasso signs daily lottery bill

HARTFORD (UPI) — A new daily state lottery and a ban on the sale of a dangerous pollutant have become state law.

The bill establishing a daily state lottery and setting aside the first $1 million of its revenues for an emergency food program was among the 46 measures signed into law Wednesday by Gov. Ella T. Grasso.

The daily lottery, expected to raise $8 million to $10 million a year, is aimed at cutting into the illegal numbers racket, believed to have been untouched by the state's entry into the legalized gambling market.

The state Special Revenue Commission has said it will take nine months to set up the lottery, in which bettors will have to match a three-digit combination selected daily.

Mrs. Grasso asked for the daily lottery late in the 1976 legislative session to counterbalance a $10 million deficit she claimed was built into the $1.8 billion budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Another bill banned the manufacture in Connecticut of polychlorinated biphenyls — a dangerous pollutant chemical known as PCBs — after July 1, 1978. The bill bans the sale of PCBs in the state after July 1, 1977.

PCBs are very toxic and not easily neutralized once they get into water or soil, backers of the bill have said.

Mount Athos to remain male bastion

JOHN RIGOS ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — For 900 years the monastic peninsula state of Mount Athos has barred women and even female animals from its environs. And so it shall remain.

Supporters of women's liberation failed Tuesday to get the ban abolished. Parliament turned down by a show of hands a bill that called for "equality of men and women in Mount Athos, in accordance with the constitution."

"It will not kill them (women) if they are not allowed to go to Mount Athos," Center Union deputy Christos Grammatides said. "After all, we are not allowed into women's saunas and beauty parlors."

Deputy Dimitrios Zakythinos, speaking for the government, urged rejection of the bill because it would violate long tradition and rules of agreement between Greece and the monastic state, situated on one of the fingers of a three-pronged peninsula in the north of the country.

"There was a scandal in the 10th century when some nomadic shepherds took their women along with their flocks into Athos. As a result, not only women but even animals of the female sex were banned from the peninsula in 1070," Zakythinos said.

Today the 20-mile-long state is still autonomous, run by a board of representatives from each of 21 monasteries and their annexes.

At its height after Greek independence in 1827, Athos had more than 20,000 monks, including Russians, Serbs and Bulgarians. But now the population has dropped to about 1,000 elderly monks because of a lack of interest in monasticism.

The bill was presented to Parliament by Socialist Movement deputy Ioannis Koutoufras.

"Women's Year passed and Greek women are still deprived of their equality on that point, despite the dictates of our constitution and internationally accepted norms," he said.

But Grammatides replied that "those who went to Mount Athos did so to get away from and get close to God."

"Let us leave them as they want to be."

Longjohn legacy

A century ago, Robinson gave a sealed box and a wrapped package to the Essex Institute of Salem with instructions to be opened June 8, 1976. Robinson, it was explained, attended the nation's centennial exhibition in Philadelphia 100 years ago and returned to Salem with the idea that he ought to leave for posterity a time capsule to be opened during the bicentennial.

President Richard S. West of the historical institute opened the "capsule" Tuesday before an audience which "oohed" and "aahed" appreciatively. Robinson left behind the suit of clothes he wore to Philadelphia, including his longjohns.

The clothing will be put on a mannequin and displayed at the institute. The institute staff, following Robinson's lead, filled a pine box with 1976 articles to be opened in the future. Among items they included were a calculator and a pair of pantyhoes.

Glacial Origin
Any large mass of snow and ice on the land which has many years is a glacier. Glaciers are formed over a number of years where more snow falls than melts. As this snow accumulates and becomes thicker, it is compressed and changed into dense, solid ice. Also, the mass of snow and ice tends to flow due to its own weight.

James A. Farley dies; was 'Mr. Democrat'

NEW YORK (UPI) — James A. Farley, who helped engineer Franklin D. Roosevelt's rise to the White House four decades ago and emerged as a party patriarch in later years, died Wednesday night in his Waldorf Towers apartment. He was 88.

JAMES A. FARLEY

Farley, known as "Mr. Democrat" and "Gentle Jim," was found dead by a maid. A house physician called to the suite pronounced him dead of cardiac arrest.

Farley is survived by a son and two daughters. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

one of the few units in the federal sector that fought in both the European and South Pacific Theaters. At that time the unit was expanded to three battalions.

When the Army, Navy and Marine Corps lowered its standards for enlistment, Col. Nathan Agostinelli, who was commander of the 169th at that time, refused to lower the standards of the battalion.

Last year, the battalion was at such a state of readiness, it was the only reserve unit asked to participate along with the 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions in Operation Solid Shield, one of the largest mutual efforts of the Army, Navy and Air Force, which took place in North Carolina.

The 169th is the only infantry type battalion in the country that is manned at more than 100 per cent of authorized strength. It has a total of 745 men, which is nine over the authorized strength of the battalion. The 169th also includes the combat support Company of Rockville and units in West Hartford, New Britain and Middletown.

It is a state organized militia and commanded by Gov. Ella Grasso as captain general. It is also a National Guard force, and can be called either by the state or nation in the event of civil disaster.

The 169th was called out by Gov. John Dempsey to prevent looting and rioting in what has been called the "Battle of New Haven. For that, the unit was given a State Emergency ribbon.

What Manchester residents probably remember best is the efforts of the 169th during the 1973 Ice Storm. When the battalion fed and housed many Manchester residents in the Main St. Armory.

Members of the unit also worked many hours to save the Lyall dam after the ice storm.

HSA directors named for area

Four area representatives were elected Wednesday night to the board of directors of the North Central Area of the Health Systems Agency in Connecticut at the board's first annual meeting held in the Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. in Bloomfield.

The 30-member board includes Mrs. Odessa Terry, an elected public official from East Hartford; Gordon Sawyer, an at-large member as a labor representative, of East Hartford; Dr. James Walker, provider, of Glastonbury; and Alan Ober, a consumer, of South Windsor.

There were about 2,000 signed applications for the HSA in this region," he said. "No other agency in the country even came close to this."

He reminded the audience and the board members that the HSA was the authority to review and approve all federally funded projects.

The HSA reviewing committee will meet Wednesday at 11 a.m. at HSA headquarters 999 Asylum Ave., Hartford, and the board of directors will meet at noon on Wednesday at the same place. There will be another board meeting July 8 at noon at HSA headquarters.

There will be a public hearing June 30 at 7:30 p.m. at HSA headquarters for all HSA headquarters review committee.

Several people in the audience protested the election saying they had not been properly informed of previous caucuses and sub-area meetings.

Red Sox flexed home run muscles

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox flexed their muscles and shook the cobwebs out of their bats. Conking four homers and two other extra base hits Wednesday night, the Red Sox defeated the Oakland A's 6-4.

Baylor connected for the A's. "We hit the ball hard all night," said Boston manager Darrell Johnson. "It wasn't just the hits, but everything. Our hitters were smacking line drives all over the place."

Cooper's bat was the hottest. Although the designated hitter was only two-for-four, his two outs were hit harder than his single and homer. Rice went three-for-four, including a shot that cleared the left field net.

Boston got two runs in the second courtesy of Yastrzemski and Fisk. Oakland got one back in the fourth on Dilard's sacrifice fly made it 3-1 in the bottom of the fourth, but Oakland tied the score in the seventh. Baylor reached the net for his seventh homer of the year and Bando knocked home pinch runner Matt Alexander, who took over for Joe Rudi.

Burlson singled and Cooper drove in the runner to make the score 5-3. "Things are getting pretty good for me now," Cooper said. "I don't see why I can't be a 300 hitter every year. I've done it all throughout my career."

"All I need is a chance to prove I can do it," Cooper said. "The slender infielder is the team's left-handed designated hitter because Yastrzemski is the regular first baseman. Rice feels he will get up to the plate more regularly now."

"I figured once June or July rolled around, I'd be getting a lot of at bats," he said. "As long as Yaz can play, the DH is about the best I can do." Rice said. "As long as I'm in there swinging, I don't mind."

Trend reversed in baseball draft

NEW YORK (UPI) — Major league baseball teams reversed the trend established in the regular phase of the free agent draft when they selected 10 pitchers, all right-handed, in the first round of Wednesday's secondary phase.

Where four of the first five selections in Tuesday's regular phase were left-handed pitchers, the first two selections Wednesday were an infielder and an outfielder and five of the first six choices were players other than pitchers.

Gerald Price, 18, a left-handed hitting second baseman from Oakland, Calif., was chosen by the Atlanta Braves as the top choice in the secondary phase for players previously drafted and who did not sign. Price had been picked by the Detroit Tigers in January.

A spokesman for the Braves said they were confident Price was ready to sign now and a team representative would be out to see him in a day or two.

David Stegman, a 22-year-old outfielder who attends the University of Arizona, then was drafted by Detroit, with the Cincinnati Reds following with right-handed pitcher Bruce Bereny of Sherwood, Ohio.

Following the secondary phase, the teams resumed the regular phase drafting, which began Tuesday when 360 players were chosen in 15 rounds. Several relatives of former and

Relief pitching Yankees' asset

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim Hunter, the New York Yankees' $2.8-million pitcher, believes the big difference between the New York Yankees of 1975 and 1976 is relief pitching.

Berra, former manager of both the Yankees and the New York Mets, said the decision to take out Hunter was made by all the coaches. "We all decided to take Hunter out," he explained. "Going to the mound to take out a pitcher is still one of the hardest things about managing. I don't like to make those decisions but we've got one of the best relievers in baseball and I thought Hunter lost something after the seventh."

Johnson hedging

BOSTON (UPI) — Is Darrell Johnson hedging? Tuesday night, the Boston manager said the Red Sox would catch the New York Yankees, who are in first place in the American League East, in six weeks.

"We're playing better and better and our pitching is getting up there. Soon we'll start catching up," said Johnson. "I'll give you something to write in six weeks, we'll take seven, we'll catch the Yankees."

"You want to know what I really said?" asked Johnson. "Some writer came up to me and asked me if I thought we could catch the Yankees. I said 'sure, we'll catch them, if we play the way I know we can.' He wanted me to narrow it down and give him a time when we'd catch the Yankees. I told him that would be hard to do, but then I said we could do it in maybe six or seven weeks. The guy wrote it like I made a prediction. It wasn't."

But Johnson said he wasn't changing the original statement. "Sure, we'll catch the Yankees eventually," he said. "They're going to have to go through a bad stretch like we went through. The kind Baltimore's going through now where they've lost like 10 of 12. And don't count out the Orioles. They'll be in there. We're going to have lots of fun before the year's over."

Jones wins 11th, outhurls Seaver

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Randy Jones has confidence but Tom Seaver, who beat him out in the Cy Young voting last year, still has faith.

Jones, the hottest pitcher in the majors this season, said he was not discouraged by his pitching. "I'm not concerned about the numbers right now," he explained. "If I pitch like this, the numbers will fall into place. This kind of effort will win me some games. I've got to work at being consistent."

Seaver gave up the winning run in the fifth inning on singles by Fred Stanfield and the New York Mets. Fentes, the Padres got another run off the three-time Cy Young winner in the sixth on singles by Dave Winfield. Gene Locklear and Kendall Willie McCovey added the final score in the eighth with a homer, the 60th of his career.

The Padres scored their fifth straight victory before a home crowd of 42,972. The win left them four games behind Cincinnati in the National League West and just a game behind second-place Los Angeles.

Confidence factor for Messersmith

NEW YORK (UPI) — Andy Messersmith says he's "got everything together now" and it's no coincidence that the Atlanta Braves are beginning to think the same thing about themselves.

Messersmith has now pitched two straight shutouts and may be the pitcher who can make the Braves a factor in the National League's Western Division race.

Messersmith fired a three-hitter Wednesday, giving the Braves a 2-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs. It was the sixth straight triumph for the Braves and the sixth consecutive loss for the Cubs.

"I've got my confidence now and the rest of the team has got confidence in me, too," said Messersmith, who has a 4-5 record after losing his first four decisions. He walked one batter, struck out six and allowed two hits by Steve Swisher and one by Rick Monday as he beat former Detroit Joe Coleman in his NL debut.

Rowland Office singled home the first Atlanta run in the sixth inning and Rod Gilbreath knocked in the first run with a sacrifice fly in the eighth.

San Diego edged New York, 3-0. Cincinnati defeated Pittsburgh, 6-1. Houston beat St. Louis, 5-2. San Francisco topped Montreal, 6-2, and Los Angeles shaded Philadelphia, 3-2, in other NL games.

Tony Perez drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a single in the eighth inning, and a single in the ninth, reducing his record to 8-2.

Ump claims Martin kicked him in shins

NEW YORK (UPI) — That old devil temper got hold of New York Yankee Manager Billy Martin again Wednesday night.

Martin, who said umpire Larry McCoy kicked him in the shins twice, said McCoy lied after McCoy accused him of kicking him in the shins twice, for the Indians 4, Twins 1. Buddy Bell's pinch-hit, two-run effort in the third inning, for the Houston Astros, was the only home run in the game. Despite Martin's four-game losing streak with the Yankees over the Twins, Pat Dobson defeated the California Angels, 4-3, in the eighth inning.

Publicist quip: NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Basketball Association announced the resignation Wednesday of Nick Curran, director of public relations since 1969.

Garros or Forest Hills, took him into the semifinals Wednesday when he beat Mats Wilander 6-4, 6-3, 6-3. Today stood within two matches of winning his first major tennis title.

Both sport 2-1 records with the winner moving into a share for the top rung in the American Division with East Hartford.

Two overtimes couldn't decide a winner as the Cosmos and Royals played to a 2-2 stalemate last night at Liling. Brian Feshler scored both goals for the Royals while Carlos Skoog and Dave Riosan tallied for the Cosmos.

The Alumni Junior League program this spring found 143 boys registering and of this number 120 were placed on teams. The 23 not selected, Silver said, were placed on the reserve list and, as in the past, when for any reason a team player cannot continue a boy from the reserve list is given his place. This is also true for the Colt teams.

"We had to drop the Alumni League after we had 18 forfeits in one season four years ago. We had all kinds of problems trying to get enough boys (15 to 17) to play on four teams. The forfeits were the climax to our efforts to continue the league," Silver said.

Last year there were 50 candidates for the 20 spots in the league, since rechristened the Colt League.

Troyouts were held over a two-week period before the two current Colt squads were selected by the coaches, Silver said, adding that each boy was given an equal opportunity to make the squads.

Underclassmen key to MHS track success

By LEN AUSTER Herald Sports Writer

Manchester High's track team finished the 1976 season with a 6-7 record but bigger and better turn of events are expected next year.

There is a long list of returnees who'll be back which makes Williams "expect an excellent team next year." Sophomore Bill Moran is expected to fill the void the hurdler events and he'll be given a shot in the pole vault.

Junior Steve Dawson, who missed the last part of the year with a pulled hamstring, is the leading sprinter along with top 440 man John Wilson and Bob Walsh from Bennett are expected to add strength in the sprint events. Dawson, junior Rich

Dibbs within two wins of first major crown

PARIS (UPI) — Eddie Dibbs, whose scuttling, almost boggled style has made him one of America's most underrated but successful players, today stood within two matches of winning his first major tennis title.

"I don't want to brag about how good the NHL is, but we don't have that World Hockey Association sports," said the NHL president Clarence Campbell told reporters at the end of the three-day meeting Wednesday.

"You can see for yourselves there are about 80 free agents in the NHL and so far none has been grabbed by the WHA."

"Over-all the strength of our league has improved. We have some soft spots in California and Kansas City, but I think we are better off than we were a year ago..."

Silver disputes lack of baseball

By EARL YOST Sports Editor

Voicing a sharp objection to reports that many youngsters in the 15 to 17 age bracket have no baseball in town was Carl Silver, program director for the Recreation Department.

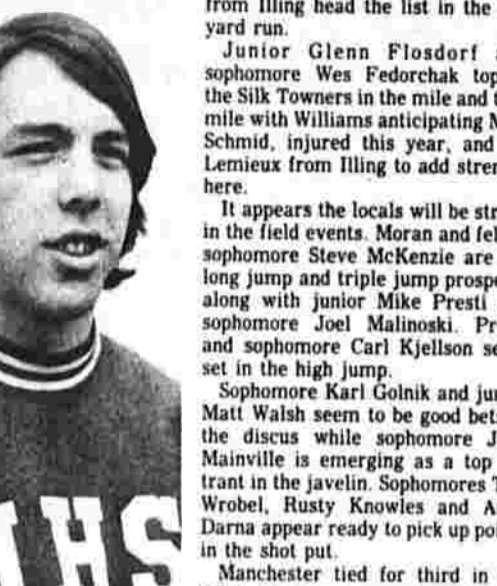

"The door is not closed to boys in Manchester in the 15 to 17 age bracket who want to play baseball," Silver said.

"We had 51 boys sign up for Colt League tryouts and 30 boys were selected, 15 on each of two teams. That leaves just 21 not picked," he added. Neither is 51 boys enough for a league.

The Colt League has taken over for the once popular Alumni League which has disbanded due to lack of interest on the part of youngsters.

"We had to drop the Alumni League after we had 18 forfeits in one season four years ago. We had all kinds of problems trying to get enough boys (15 to 17) to play on four teams. The forfeits were the climax to our efforts to continue the league," Silver said.

NBA all-stars paced by Barry

New twist

SCARBOROUGH, Canada (UPI) — Pro golfer JoAnne Carner is seriously considering an unprecedented challenge against the best men in her sport in next year's United States Open.

Carner, at the Cedar Brae Country Club here for the Canadian LPGA tournament beginning Friday, said Wednesday that, after six years as a golf pro, she realized only last week she was eligible to try to qualify for the men's Open.

"The eligibility section of the entry form states the tournament is open to 'professional and amateur golfers with handicaps not over two strokes under the United States Golf Association's men's golf handicap system.'"

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rick Barry received the most votes for the National Basketball Association All-Star team for the second straight year.

Joining the Golden State Warriors forward on the All-Star team was Washington Caps and the New York Nets.

Bolton athletes of the year

Paul Groves holds the Knights of Columbus trophy for 1976 outstanding male athlete while Laura Edwards holds the Bolton Women's Club trophy for outstanding female athlete. They received the trophies Wednesday night at the KofC Sports Night held at St. Maurice Church. Groves played soccer, basketball, and baseball for Bolton High School. He made the all state team in the school's divisions in all three sports. He holds the BHS records for highest points scored in basketball and highest batting average in baseball. Miss Edwards was captain of the BHS girls softball team. (Herald photo by Dunn)

Eastern driver cleared

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state Education Department has cleared a school bus driver of charges he was drunk and speeding when he transported deaf students from the Mystic Oral School.

The department plans no further investigation into the charges after receiving a state police report clearing the driver. Dr. Peter Horoschak, deputy commissioner of education, said Wednesday.

Andrew Vorra of Waterford was the subject of complaints by parents of several students who rode the bus May 14 from Mystic to Branford on a trip home for the weekend.

Twenty-three students signed a separate form stating Vorra had been "operating the bus in a reckless manner and speeding while under the influence of alcohol."

Area police

Vernon

Two juveniles, a boy and a girl from Branford, both face second-degree larceny charges in connection with the theft of a car June 2 from the parking lot at Tri-City Plaza.

Police said the pair took the car to East Windsor where they abandoned it. They stole another car there and drove it eventually to Scranton, Pa. where police arrested them.

Vernon police referred them to Juvenile Court.

Floyd E. Chase, 26, and Cynthia V. Chase, 18, of 3 Progress Ave., Rockville were arrested Wednesday following a police search of their apartment and charged with illegal possession of a controlled substance.

Manager choice narrowed to three

Three candidates out of 98 applicants are now vying for the position of town manager in South Windsor.

Expecting to select from the three by next week, councilmen say a new manager may be in office by Aug. 1. Of the 98 applicants, including one woman, 14 were selected by councilmen. Of the 14, the field has been narrowed to three; and of the three, one will be selected.

Firehouse site purchase hits snag

South Windsor

An unexpected snag in deliberations over property for a new firehouse in South Windsor has caused a delay in the town council's acquisition of property.

Expecting to approve a $23,000 purchase of five acres of land, the council this week discovered it's easements did not jive with the expectation of the Chain Branch Corp., owners of the Ellington Rd. property.

Norwich man admits murders

BAY ST. LOUIS, Miss. (UPI) — Hancock County authorities have agreed to let Florida prosecutors handle kidnap and murder charges against a Norwich, Conn. man who earlier this week led lawmen to the graves of two of the four youngsters he said he killed.

Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan Ladner said Dade County, Fla., authorities planned to take Robert Frederick Carr III, 32, to St. Tammany Parish in Louisiana in the search for a third body. A fourth victim is reportedly buried in Connecticut.

The body of the boy buried in Louisiana was believed to be that of 11-year-old Todd Payton of Miami, who disappeared from his home Nov. 13, 1972, with another 11-year-old, Mark Wilson. The Wilson boy's body was found near here Tuesday.

The first body unearthed Monday is believed to be that of 16-year-old Tammy Ruth Huntley, also of the Miami area, who has been missing since last April. Police said the identifications would be positive until autopsies and checks of dental records could be completed.

All three were hitchhiking when they were picked up, police in Miami said.

Ladner said Carr would be prosecuted under a Florida statute giving that state jurisdiction in a crime committed in one state and completed in another.

Ladner said Carr admitted killing a Florida youth in St. Tammany Parish about four days before he killed an 11-year-old boy in Hancock County. Both incidents allegedly occurred in November, 1972, after Carr picked the boys up while they were hitchhiking along a Florida highway.

Carr also admitted killing a 15-year-old Florida girl in the Hancock County woods about two months ago, according to Ladner. Her body was found Monday and Ladner said indications were that she had been buried alive after she was sexually assaulted by Carr.

"This guy is a sex fiend but, boy, he has a fantastic memory," Ladner said.

"He told us just where to turn and how far to go. He showed us where he had thrown the girl's clothing and personal belongings and then where he had buried her."

"The next day he took us about three miles west of where the girl was buried and said that was where he had buried the boy," Ladner said. "We dug down but didn't find anything and then he said he thought it was about 30 feet west of where we were digging."

"We got a back-hoe and dug over there and found the body."

Carr reportedly told authorities he had lived in the woods with the girl for about 10 days. At one point he said she became dependent and he drove her to New Orleans with the intention of sending her home.

Ladner said a pathologist who examined the girl's body earlier this week said she was apparently buried alive.

"Her hands and feet were bound and her knees pulled up to her chest. There were rope burns across her back where she had apparently tried to free herself from the grave," Ladner said.

Assigned risk coverage doubles in numbers

HARTFORD (UPI) — The number of drivers insured under the assigned risk method has doubled since 1974, primarily because some insurance companies have stopped writing new policies, according to state insurance officials.

They said Wednesday the pool, originally created to cover drivers with poor accident records, rose from 10,321 drivers in 1974 at this time to 21,124 drivers this year.

"An awful lot of people are now going there who are good risks, who deserve to have coverage on the open market," said Joseph Mike, deputy state insurance commissioner.

He said the decision by some companies to stop issuing new policies added to the pool size.

A member of the board which runs the pool said insurers pulled back on auto insurance underwriting because of soaring claims costs. He said every auto insurance company in the state lost money last year.

State wagering sets a record

WETHERSFIELD (UPI) — A record $1.68 million was wagered in Connecticut last Saturday, according to the state Special Revenue Commission, and the "Instant Lottery" has raised another $10 million.

The $1.68 million was bet at the Plainfield dog track, the Hartford and Bridgeport jai alai arenas and the 11 off track betting parlors in the state, the commission announced at its weekly meeting Wednesday.

The panel, in charge of legalized gambling, said betting was particularly heavy Saturday because of matinee performances at the two jai alai and the running of the Belmont Stakes horse race in New York.

The OTB system accepted wagers on the race.

The commission said $4.3 million has been wagered at the Hartford jai alai arena since it opened May 20, and $1.3 million has been bet at Bridgeport in its eight days of operations.

Connecticut's share of the money bet at the jai alai arenas was $276,179, according to the panel. The dog track, which opened Jan. 1, has raised $4.7 million for the state.

The $10 million was the first income counted from the second Instant Lottery game that ended May 4. The first game last year raised $7.4 million, the commission said.

About $7 million of the funds generated by the Instant Lottery have been earmarked for state grants to local school systems, and the rest will go for general state expenditures.

Langone challenging Kennedy

BOSTON (UPI) — "I don't expect any liberal votes," Boston City Councilman Frederick Langone said Wednesday he would challenge Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., in the September primary.

Langone said he was "a friend of the little guy" and an "enemy of big-time liberals."

"They have ruined the party by the liberal reform movement that began four years ago," Langone said.

Langone said Kennedy was "too busy with his national image to care about the people of Massachusetts."

Langone, 54, is serving his sixth term on the City Council. Boston attorney Robert F. Dimunore announced for Democratic candidacy last week.

A Colonial feast at Buckley School

Carrying the turkey is a man's job as Michael Byam, left, and Jack Moreau bring in the bird for carving at a Colonial feast during a Bicentennial day observance in Room 5 at Buckley School on Wednesday. Putting out the pies are Debbie Conboy, left, and Julianne Bosshardt. Parents provided most of the food. Stuffing and corn were cooked in school. The fifth grade class provided Colonial decor and some were appropriate dress for the occasion. There was even a stool in the corner with a dunce cap for anyone who deserved it. Children were addressed by their full names in the Colonial school days, and boys were called "master." (Herald photo by Pinto)

New law requires vehicle owners to pay taxes before registration

HARTFORD (UPI) — A bill requiring car owners to pay local taxes before they can register their autos and regulating teacher contract negotiations have been signed by Gov. Ella T. Grasso, her office said today.

Union joins suit against MCC

HARTFORD (UPI) — Council 16 of the American Federation of State County and Municipal Employees says it has joined in a court suit against Manchester Community College on behalf of James W. Gardner Jr. Gardner was dismissed from his teaching position April 16, 1975.

He said the college never gave him a reason for his ouster, but college officials have said he was dismissed as part of an economy move.

The suit, Gardner said Wednesday at a news conference with Council 16 officials, was filed in U.S. District Court June 7.

Gardner said other educational institutions were wary of giving him a job when he tells them he does not know why he was terminated.

He said college officials had refused to meet with him on the matter.

The suit, which contends he has been denied due process, seeks his reinstatement.

California Gov. Jerry Brown has canceled his visit to Connecticut and his state coordinator doesn't know why. Dominic Squatrito of Manchester received word from Brown's California headquarters the visit is off. No explanations were given.

Squatrito said all activities are at a standstill in Connecticut on Brown's behalf and said also they'll remain so pending other directives.

Gov. Brown, a late entry for the Democratic nomination for president, appears to have lost the momentum he had in the Maryland primary. Conversely, the momentum for former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter keeps building and, if he gets a little help from uncommitted delegates, it appears he might win the nomination on the first ballot.

The Democratic National Convention will begin July 12 in Madison Square Garden, New York City. Conventions will be held Saturday in all six of the state's Congressional districts, for choosing 51 delegates to the national convention.

The First Congressional District convention will be at 2 p.m. in

Heralding politics

Glastonbury. The district is allocated 10 of the state's 51 delegates — on the basis of 4 for Carter, 3 for Arizona Congressman Morris Udall and 3 uncommitted.

Stanley Weinberg Jr. of Manchester, state coordinator for Carter, has withdrawn his name for consideration as one of the 4 Carter delegates. He said he thinks it better if another Carter delegate is named — thus broadening Carter's backing.

Delegates to the Democratic State Convention (July 18 at the Bushnell Auditorium, Hartford) from the eight towns of the 4th Senatorial District met Wednesday night at Willie's Restaurant, Manchester.

They re-elected John Sullivan of Manchester as state central committee man, by a unanimous vote without opposition.

However, by a 22 to 17 vote, they elected Audrey Wasik of South Windsor as committeewoman. She defeated Estelle Flanagan of Glastonbury, who had the post for the past two years.

Chairman of Wednesday night's meeting was State Rep. Ted Cummings, Manchester Democratic chairman.

Mrs. Flanagan was chosen to be an honorary vice-president at the Democratic state convention. Others chosen for honorary posts are Barbara Coleman of Manchester, secretary; George Hornish, South Windsor Democratic chairman, rules and regulations; and State Rep. Robert Walsh of Coventry, platform committee.

Manchester's Democratic Town Committee is meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building Hearing Room to review dates and plans for upcoming conventions — national, state, Congressional, senatorial and General Assembly.

Gov. Ella Grasso, as required by the state constitution, has called a special session of the General Assembly to consider the bills she has vetoed.

It will be June 21 at 10 a.m. and may last any period not to exceed three days. The sole purpose of the session is for considering the vetoed bills. The General Assembly adjourned May 5.

Nazarene minister will be in parade

The Rev. Thomas Schofield of Manchester, England, superintendent of the British Isles South District of the Church of the Nazarene, will participate Saturday in the local Bicentennial Parade.

The Rev. Mr. Schofield will also bring official greeting to Manchester from his sister city in England.

Sunday, he will speak at the 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. services at the Church of the Nazarene on Main St. He was official host for a "Walk with England" tour through in England in which the Rev. Neale McLain, pastor of the local church, was a participant.

The Rev. Mr. Schofield is visiting Manchester on his way to Dallas, Tex., where he will serve as a delegate to the International Quadrennial Assembly of the Church of the Nazarene from June 20 to 24. He is a member of the books and publications committee of the General Church of the Nazarene and a member of the European Council of the church.

A hospitality time has been planned for Sunday after the evening services at the Church of the Nazarene so that Manchester residents may become better acquainted with the guest from Manchester, England.

Police said they asked radio stations to broadcast a warning about the bag's occupant.

board negotiations abhors "ex parte" injunctions against teacher strikes and sets a time frame for the various stages of negotiation.

The act, effective July 1, requires judges to notify striking teachers they are considering school board requests for injunctions against the strikes. Existing laws permit judges to issue such injunctions without first hearing the teachers' side of the disputes.

The act also sets the following schedule for contract talks: negotiations must begin 180 days before school budgets for the following fiscal year are submitted to municipal officials; mediation must begin 90 days later if no agreement has been reached; and arbitration must begin 30 days later.

Mrs. Grasso has until Friday afternoon to act on three other bills approved by the 1976 legislature, including a controversial merger of the state Common Pleas and Juvenile Courts into the Superior Courts.

Supreme Court denies review of press ban ruling

DENVER (UPI) — The Colorado Supreme Court Wednesday refused to reverse a judge's ruling barring the press from Thursday's preliminary hearing for actress Claudine Longet, accused of slaying her husband.

The court voted 4-2 not to intervene in the court proceedings at this time, although an attorney representing 14 news agencies argued the secret

What is a good teacher?

PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Education Editor

Teachers get mixed points for talking too much — or not enough. The same for displaying toughness not tempered by a little leniency.

A good teacher gets plus points for knowing when to close and when to frown. Specifications for a good teacher came up the other day in Washington, D.C. During a seminar in the office of Dr. Virginia Trotter, assistant secretary for education, experts tried to answer the question, "What Makes a Good Teacher?" All the qualities above were cited — and many more.

education, also told Dr. Bell a teacher had to show a certain toughness or else "the kids would sort of walk all over her."

The commissioner asked the boys what they meant by that.

"Their kind of toughness, it came out in the discussion, was one that stood by standards," Dr. Bell said.

"You say what you mean and you mean what you say but you don't say too much by laying on the standards. But you know that they are there and you know that students have to scramble to reach them."

The boys told Dr. Bell the teacher who is "a strong disciplinarian leads more than 'drives' students."

Dr. Bell said he brought up the matter of a teacher's knowledge of subject matter.

"To even get considered as a great teacher," he said, "a teacher's got to have all these qualities of personality, demeanor, charisma and style and all of that — first, according to the boys."

Also present at the seminar were representatives of the sponsors of the Teacher of the Year Awards — John Benton, chairman of Encyclopedia Britannica, Educational Corp.; Lenore Hershey, Editor, Ladies Home Journal; Mrs. Sue Hoford, the Council of Chief State School Officers.

Highlights included: Hershey, "A teacher should be committed to her or his profession. Unlike other things which one may go into because the money is good or because you have a chance to rise to heights or because you meet important people, or whatever, teaching here must be as personal commitment."

When you spend less for paint, you pay for it in time.

So, you saved $3.00 a gallon on housepaint. Terrific. But, when they cut the price of their paint, they short-cut the quality with inferior ingredients.

And now, your house looks drab. The paint is chipping and peeling. So, you have to paint again.

We use only 100% acrylic binders [the finest emulsion there is] in our Touraine Tru-Flex Exterior Latex Paints. And Touraine oil-base paints are made with titanium for covering power and plenty of rich linseed oil to resist chipping.

You get a finish that lasts up to 50% longer. Then you can spend the time admiring your house, instead of constantly painting it.
