

Rockville High graduates 371 in indoor ceremony

BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

While the skies were bright and clear at 7 p.m. when Rockville High School graduates marched to the strains of Pomp and Circumstances, they had been ominous at mid-day and the decision was made to have ceremonies inside.

The 371 graduates in their blue and gold caps and gowns switched their tassels at 8:15 p.m. and then threw caps and confetti high in the air as they were pronounced graduates of Rockville High's bicentennial class.

The invocation and the benediction were given by Rabbi Marshall Press of Beth Israel Synagogue, Rockville. The school band played the national anthem and the choir sang "No Man is an Island," and "Halls of Ivy."

Many people who had planned to attend the exercises if they were outside were at least allowed to watch them on closed circuit television in the auditorium.

Dr. Raymond Ramsdell, superintendent of schools, spoke with pride of the class and listed some of its statistics.

He said 34 per cent will go on to four-year colleges; 23 per cent to two-year colleges; 4 per cent to other schools; 28 will go to work; 1 per cent will enter one of the branches of military service and 1 per cent will marry.

He said the number going into the military is up this year from a year ago while the number planning to marry is down. Another 2 per cent plan to travel and 5 per cent are undecided.

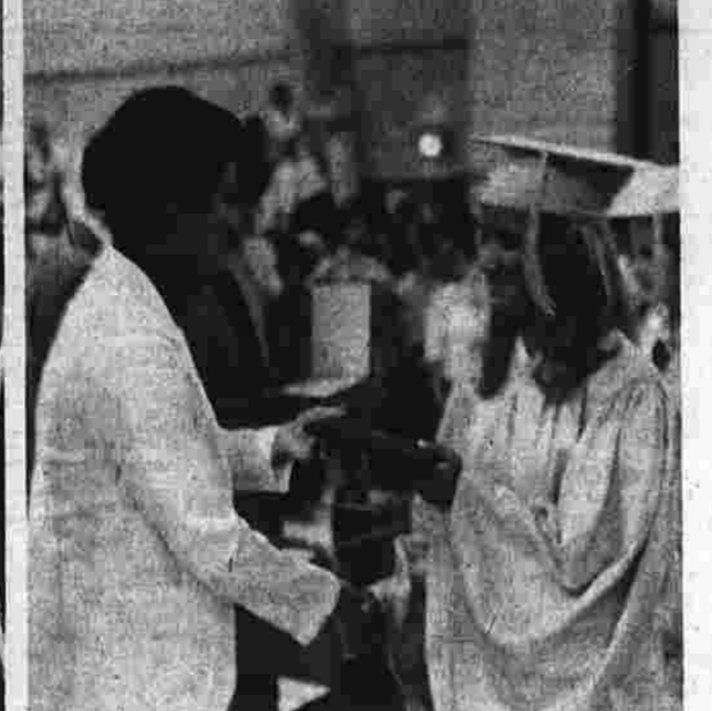

Twenty members of the class were named Connecticut Scholars and one was awarded a National Merit Scholarship while 10 received commendations.

Scholarships, from various sources, will amount to $83,604 next year, double the amount of last year, Dr. Ramsdell said. For the coming four-year period the monetary value of the scholarships will total $207,724.

Mrs. Devra N. Baum and Mrs. Joann L. Worthen, members of the Board of Education, and James Boeticher, a former member, conferred the diplomas on the graduates. Each had a son in the graduating class. They were assisted by Dr. Robert Linstone and Albert Kerkin, assistant superintendents.

James E. Hahn, president of the senior class, presented the school with a set of bicycle racks to help alleviate the "parking" problem at the school.

Other class officers were: Jennifer J. Johnson, vice president; Joanne Ramonetta, secretary; Randall W. Gilford, treasurer; and Denise Finnerty, assistant treasurer.

Speakers disagree on conformity

"Individuality is one of the most important elements in a person's life," said Catherine Menard, valedictorian and Jeffrey Glehdill, salutatorian, of Rockville High School's graduating class Monday night.

Miss Menard cautioned the audience and fellow classmates that the absolute necessity of conformity for the existence of society...for basic survival.

These were the differing thoughts voiced by Catherine Menard, valedictorian and Jeffrey Glehdill, salutatorian, of Rockville High School's graduating class Monday night.

Miss Menard termed individuality as a quality which separates and distinguishes one man from another. "An individual must use his total self — his character, his intelligence, his abilities, and his ambitions," she said.

She quoted Ralph Waldo Emerson "who spoke out strongly against conformity in society." He said, "Whoso would be a man must be a nonconformist."

word conformity you automatically tune out the subject being talked about. To most of us conformity is a dirty word with only negative implications.

"Maybe the reason we consider conformity as something to avoid is that we associate it with a loss of our individuality and personal freedom," Glehdill said.

He explained there is a difference between beneficial conformity and the conformity which ignores persons as individuals.

In other matters, sewer commission officials have announced the construction of the Avery St., Benedict Dr. and Pine Tree Lane force main replacement.

Construction is being done by the A&M Construction Co., and is expected to take about 90 days.

The force main at Benedict Dr. has been the subject of controversy due to the numerous breaks in the line. The town of Windsor is suing Roncar Construction for the breaks in the plastic piping, while Roncar is suing the town for uncollected payments for repairs to the pipe.

Roncar claims the fault for the breaks lies with the consulting engineers, not the construction company.

South School closes for last time. Youngsters leave Manchester's South School for the last time as local public schools closed for the summer Tuesday afternoon. The four-room, 57-student school, which housed kindergarden through Grade 3 students, will be closed to regular classes this fall in a school board cost-cutting effort. The school, however, will house the local Head Start program this fall. Public school students are on vacation until Sept. 8, a Wednesday, when 1976-1977 classes are scheduled to begin. 8th District rests Town presenting its case in Buckland fire dispute

By DOUG BEVINS
Herald Reporter

Former Town Fire Chief W. Clifford Mason will continue his defense with the testimony by Mason.

The trial started Tuesday morning before Judge Edward Hamill, and District Counsel John LaBelle rested his case after presenting 28 exhibits and calling five witnesses.

The Eight Utilities District — which brought the lawsuit against the town to determine who has jurisdiction for fire protection in the Buckland area — rested its case Tuesday. The town started its defense with the testimony by Mason.

The annual meeting is at 7:30 p.m. The trial started Tuesday morning before Judge Edward Hamill, and District Counsel John LaBelle rested his case after presenting 28 exhibits and calling five witnesses.

The morning session was taken up by offering of the many plaintiff's exhibits, one of which prompted a court dispute over admissibility of evidence.

LaBelle offered as evidence a total of 18 petitions, circulated in the Buckland area last September, which led to an Eighth District referendum.

Strike in third day

Bay State workers defy court orders

BOSTON (UPI) — Striking state workers remained off their jobs for a third day today in open defiance of court orders.

Leaders of the striking union have been ordered to appear in court today to explain why they ignored the back-to-work orders.

Union head Howard Doyle said early today he would not order striking workers to return to work.

Picketers carrying donuts and sipping coffee arrived outside state buildings and agencies at dawn.

"We sure have got pickets outside," said a volunteer employee at Danvers State Hospital. "I've been here since Sunday and wish I could go home," she said.

"I'm just sitting here looking out the window at the strikers," said Sgt. James Callahan of Lemuel Shattuck Hospital.

"We are not in an emergency situation, but a lot of us are tired," said a State House striker said.

"As the strike continues and tensions mount we tread on the edge of anarchy and that must not happen," Morse said.

Union leaders Doyle and Paul Quirk were ordered into court at noon to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court.

Morse said "a good faith effort" by union leaders to end the strike would mitigate any sanctions he might impose.

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, who took a headline approach to the strike at its outset Monday, said Tuesday "if the court orders mediation, we will mediate."

Suffolk Superior Judge Thomas B. Morse Jr. Tuesday night also ordered the labor leaders to notify union members immediately to cease picketing all bridges, water treatment facilities, public and mental health institutions and prisons during the strike. "The very least we can expect is that essential services be provided," he said.

Grasso to campaign for Carter ticket

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso said today she has agreed to campaign outside of Connecticut in behalf of Democratic presidential front runner Jimmy Carter.

Mrs. Grasso met Carter Tuesday night for the first time in Boston and said she could understand the former Georgia governor's "tremendous appeal."

The two discussed the campaign in general, the party's platform and Mrs. Grasso said Carter plans to participate in the final drawing of the platform. He also intends to incorporate the platform in his presidential nomination or cabinet-level positions. Mrs. Grasso, the nation's only woman governor, has said previously she would not be interested in seeking the vice presidential nomination.

8th District to elect directors tonight

Residents of the 8th District tonight will fill three vacancies on its board of directors.

The annual meeting is at 7:30 p.m. at the Bentley School on Hollister St.

Vacancies on the board are for three-year terms of Paul Cervino and Patrick Brown, neither seeks reelection. There is a two-year term, an unexpired term brought about because William Sheridan has moved from the district.

Announced candidates for those vacancies are Lawrence Noonan, Samuel Longest, George Bingham and Mrs. Evelyn Gregan.

Seeking reelection to their one-year terms are Michael Massaro, president; Howard Keeney, treasurer; Edward Fitzgerald, clerk; and Mary Larraia, tax collector.

The district will be asked to approve a $254,181 budget and a four-mill tax rate; two mills are for fire protection and two for sewer service.

"Connecticut is a state where Ford has a lot of natural support," conceded Black shortly after arriving in Hartford Tuesday night.

"I don't think it's unrealistic to suspect Reagan may not get any delegates in Connecticut," he said.

But I do think from what I know so far there is some prospect of our getting some delegates and not getting shut out of the nomination."

Connecticut and Utah are the last states to select national delegates, picking them the weekend of July 16.

The announcement coincided with the initial effort by Reagan forces in the state, an organizational visit by assistant national campaign Charles Black.

The President is the overwhelming favorite of the state party leadership and top elected officials, with most predicting Ford will capture the entire Connecticut delegation.

Connecticut's GOP has a moderate tilt and many party leaders have said privately they fear a Reagan candidacy because it could hurt Republican candidates for other offices.

Ford briefs GOP leaders on antibusing proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and two cabinet officials briefed Republican congressional leaders today on the administration's antibusing proposal, which may be introduced Thursday.

"It's a good bill," said House Republican Leader John Rhodes on leaving the White House. "But it doesn't solve all the problems" of school busing and desegregation.

Rhodes said the congressional legislation to limit federal court jurisdiction in busing cases will "fill in some of the blanks" resulting from Supreme Court rulings. But he said he wanted to study it carefully before introducing it.

Attorney General Edward H. Levi and HEW Secretary David Matthews briefed the lawmakers on the legislation, which Ford has been discussing with civic and educational leaders on both sides of the busing issue for weeks.

Rhodes said he expected Ford, who Tuesday accused some federal courts of "practically running our local school boards," to also bring Democratic leaders on the legislation.

"Hopefully tomorrow," said Deputy White House Press Secretary John Carlson when asked when the bill will go to Capitol Hill.

As roughly outlined by Levi earlier this week, the measure includes a provision that federal courts could order busing for three years and that the order could be continued for another two years. If the orders of the court are carried out in good faith, however, busing would no longer be required except in extraordinary circumstances.

Rochambeau's Army in Manchester. Rochambeau's Army marched through Manchester this morning on the way from Bolton to East Hartford where ceremonies will be conducted tonight. The men participating are from Waterbury, Watertown, Middlebury, Woodbury, Southbury, East Hartford, Unionville, Wolcott, and New Milford. The army will travel 200 miles in all.

MISSION, Kan. — Former White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman says in a newly syndicated article today that the CIA may have been involved in the Watergate scandal to destroy Richard Nixon.

WASHINGTON — Senate investigators are critical of the roles the FBI and CIA played in the investigation of John Kennedy's assassination but won't dispute the finding that Lee Harvey Oswald was the lone assassin.

Sewer complaints discussion topic

South Windsor
By Judy Kuehnel

The South Windsor Sewer Commission will meet tonight at 8 at the Robert Rd. Treatment Plant.

One of the items to be discussed is recent complaints of foul odors emerging from the plant due to slow sludge disposal.

The complaints were voiced at a recent council meeting by a group of Main St. residents who said they were unable to sit outside due to the "disgusting odors from poor sludge disposal."

Officials said parts designed to eliminate odors from the plant were not yet ordered.

South Windsor residents threatened to go to the state officials with their complaint if such immediate action was not taken by town officials.

The complaints were voiced at a recent council meeting by a group of Main St. residents who said they were unable to sit outside due to the "disgusting odors from poor sludge disposal."

Goldbaum to leave school position

East Hartford
Dr. Jesse Goldbaum, supervisor of special education and a member of the East Hartford School Department staff for over 20 years, officially resigned his position Monday night.

Dr. Eugene Diggs, superintendent of schools, read Dr. Goldbaum's letter to the assembled board members. His resignation becomes effective June 30. He has accepted a position at the University of Hartford.

After reading Goldbaum's letter, Dr. Diggs read a report on the status of certified personnel. He said a reduction in staff within the East Hartford public schools is almost completed without any actual layoffs of individual employees.

At present eight teachers have not been given assignments for the coming school year. Dr. Diggs feels through normal attrition during the summer, positions will open up and the eight will be assigned.

Diggs also said, "At this time, we do not believe that it will become necessary to actually lay off any individuals employees. We have been working carefully to eliminate positions where we can feel relatively comfortable that the educational program which children are receiving will not be impaired."

The school administration is also reducing its non-teaching staff through elimination of a supervisory position, a foreman's position and two secretarial positions.

Last week, the school administration sent out a letter to all parents illustrating the decline of student enrollments and explaining the related staff reductions.

The superintendent assured the parents that the reductions in staff does not mean the quality of education which East Hartford has enjoyed in the past should be impaired.

Police report

The driver of the third car involved was Richard Laviole, 19, of East Hartford. Two passengers in the Laviole car, Ralph Laviole, 28, of Hartford and Allen Laviole, 43, of Windsor.

Locks and the driver were admitted to the hospital and the passenger in his car, Jeff King, 16, of Center Rd., was treated. No court date was given.

Washington window: Jimmy Carter's religion

By STEVE GERSTEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The issue was never raised during 23 primaries but somehow Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut discovered the existence of a double bias against Jimmy Carter because he is a Baptist and comes from the South. Morally outraged, Ribicoff issued a statement: "All my life, I have insisted that no man should be denied high public office because of his race, color or creed. If a Catholic, or a Jew, or a black should have this right, why should not a Southern Baptist have this right as well," Ribicoff asked. "Who among us who insists on tolerance and objectivity based on character and ability would deny this right to a man who comes from Georgia and is a Baptist?"

According to an aide who asked him, Ribicoff senses the bias and said it did not come from any particular group. Ribicoff described it, according to the aide, as a "kind of whispering thing, cocktail talk that becomes insidious. In his statement, Ribicoff said he was "deeply disturbed by those who would deny a man the presidency solely because he is a Southerner." Well, if an anti-southern bias exists it did not show up in places like New Hampshire, Iowa, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio or even Connecticut. Carter won all those primaries. And regional pride gave the Georgian a clean sweep in the southern primaries. Ribicoff noted that no one from the South has been elected president since 1848, which is correct if one forgets that Lyndon Johnson's Texas was part of the old Confederacy or that Woodrow Wilson was born and educated in the South. And Democrats have not hesitated to put a Southerner on the ticket as the vice presidential candidate — a heartbreak for the president-elect, Texas Gov. John Nance Garner served two terms as vice president and the Democrats nominated Alabama's John J. Sparkman and Tennessee's Estes Kefauver in the 1950s. Whatever prejudice may have worked against a Southerner was rooted in racial policies which have been eliminated and which do not apply to Carter. So much for sectional bias. How about religion? Well, Harry Truman was a Baptist and it never hurt him. To be sure, as some critics charge, Carter "wears his religion on his sleeve," but so do some Catholics, some Jews and even some agnostics. Carter is a deeply religious man in the fundamentalist tradition but there is no evidence it has hurt him politically. Sure, there are people who don't want a southern Baptist in the White House and they aren't all on Ribicoff's cocktail circuit. Southerners have been presidents before and will be again. Baptists have been presidents and will again. But the Democratic party has never had a Jew, a black, or a woman on the national ticket. Perhaps Ribicoff, a highly-respected elder statesman in the party, should turn his energies to these political prejudices instead of worrying about whispered cocktail circuit chitchat.

Donating gown
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Betty Ford will present her favorite mint green princess-style chiffon gown to the First Lady Collection at the Smithsonian Institution Thursday. Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld, the First Lady's press secretary, said Mrs. Ford has worn the gown on five state occasions and it is one of Mrs. Ford's favorites "because it is timeless."

Swim classes start Monday

The first session swim registration will be held Thursday and Friday from 9 a.m. to noon, at Globe Hollow, Salter's, Swanson and Waddell Pools. Verplanck Pool is closed for repairs. Instruction will be given beginners, advanced beginners, intermediates, swimmers and advanced swimmers. All classes begin Monday. Registration is first come, first served basis; there is a small fee.

Historical seedling

A seedling from Connecticut's famed Charter Oak has been obtained by the Manchester Bicentennial Committee and planted at the Cheney Homestead. Wells C. Dennison, president of the Manchester Historical Society, holds a framed certificate authenticating the origin of the seedling, which was presented to him by Francis Mahoney, left, and Nathan Agostinelli, co-chairman of the Bicentennial Committee, at the tree planting ceremony. Washington window: Jimmy Carter's religion

By STEVE GERSTEL
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The issue was never raised during 32 primaries but somehow Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut discovered the existence of a double bias against Jimmy Carter because he is a Baptist and comes from the South.

Morally outraged, Ribicoff issued a statement:

"All my life, I have insisted that no man should be denied high public office because of his race, color or creed."

"If a Catholic, or a Jew, or a black should have this right, why should not a Southern Baptist have this right as well," Ribicoff asked. "Who among us who insists on tolerance and objectivity based on character and ability would deny this right to a man who comes from Georgia and is a Baptist?"

If a religious or a regional bias against Carter actually exists, Ribicoff senses the bias and said it did not come from any particular group.

Ribicoff described it, according to the side, as a "kind of whispering thing, cocktail talk that becomes insidious..."

In his statement, Ribicoff said he was "deeply disturbed by those who would deny a man the presidency solely because he was a Southerner."

Well, if an anti-southern bias exists it did not show up in places like New Hampshire, Iowa, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio or even Connecticut. Carter won all those primaries. And regional pride gave the Georgian a clean sweep in the southern primaries.

Ribicoff noted that no one from the South has been elected president since 1848, which is correct if one forgets that Lyndon Johnson's Texas was part of the old Confederacy or that Woodrow Wilson was born and educated in the South.

And Democrats have not hesitated to put a Southerner on the ticket as the vice presidential candidate — a heartbeat from the presidency. Texas John Nance Garner served two terms as vice president and the Democrats nominated Alabama's John J. Sparkman and Tennessee's Estes Kefauver in the 1950s.

Whatever prejudice may have worked against a Southerner was rooted in racial policies which have been eliminated and which do not apply to Carter.

So much for sectional bias. How about religious?

Well, Harry Truman was a Baptist and it never hurt him.

To be sure, as some critics charge, Carter "wears his religion on his sleeve," but so do some Catholics, some Jews and even some agnostics.

Stella Babo Weidenfeld, the First Lady's press secretary, said Mrs. Ford has worn the gown on five state occasions and it is one of Mrs. Ford's favorites "because it is timeless."

there is no evidence it has hurt him politically.

Sure, there are people who don't want a southern Baptist in the White House and they aren't all on Ribicoff's cocktail circuit.

Southerners have been presidents before and will be again. Baptists have been presidents and will again.

But the Democratic party has never had a Jew, a black, or a woman on the national ticket. Perhaps Ribicoff, a highly-respected elder statesman in the party, should turn his energies to these political prejudices instead of worrying about whispered cocktail circuit chitchat.

Opinion

TV's heavy viewers have distorted picture

Instead of worrying that violence on television stimulates people to commit violent or aggressive acts, we should be more concerned about how it distorts our view of the real world.

This is the contention of two University of Pennsylvania researchers, who have conducted surveys over the past four years to find out how people are affected by watching television.

Heavy TV viewers "see the real world as more dangerous and frightening than those who watch very little," write George Gerbner and Larry Gross in an article entitled "The Scary World of TV's Heavy Viewer," in Psychology Today magazine.

They define heavy viewers as those who watch television four or more hours a day. About a third of all adult Americans fall into this category, they say. Nearly half the children 12 years of age watch six or more hours of television daily on the average.

When asked to estimate their own chances of being involved in some type of violence during any given week, heavy TV viewers were 33 per cent more likely than light viewers (those who watch two hours or less a day) to pick such fearful odds as 50-50 or one in 10, rather than the more accurate estimate of one in 100.

Heavy TV viewers also overestimated the percentage of Americans who hold professional or managerial jobs such as doctors, lawyers and executives, groups that are found twice as commonly on TV as in U.S. society at large.

Heavy viewers were also more likely than light viewers to overestimate the number of males employed in law enforcement, apparently due to the fact that about 20 per cent of those pictured on television are engaged in law enforcement compared to less than one per cent in the real world.

As an example of how we tend to look on television characters as representatives of the real world, the researchers cite a stunning 250,000 letters that poured in requesting medical advice of "Marcus Welby, M.D." during the first five years of his practice on TV.

Television, say Gerbner and Gross, offers "a universal curriculum that everyone can learn" — and therein lies its peril. The fact that most TV "action-adventure" dramas take place in urban settings may be contributing to the current flight of the middle class from our cities, they believe, and may also bring increasing demands for police protection and election of law and order politicians.

"Instead of threatening the social order," they conclude, "television may become our chief instrument of social control."

Heavy TV viewers also overestimated the percentage

Aid for ailing sewers

That commercial engineering housewives to empty a box of bicarbonate of soda down the kitchen drain, after using it to combat odors in the refrigerator, may be more than an adman's brainchild.

Chemists have discovered that the stuff is good for a lot of the things that all sewage systems. Because of its ability to absorb either excess acidity or excess alkalinity it's a natural PH control buffer, and also acts like a "vitamin" for busy little crud-digesting bacteria.

A dose of bicarb — 196 pounds a day, to be exact — saved the life of a 37-year-old sewage treatment plant in Hightstown, N.J., as well as millions of dollars of taxpayers money that would have been necessary to bring the plant into compliance with Environmental Protection Agency standards.

That commercial engineering housewives to empty a box of bicarbonate of soda down the kitchen drain, after using it to combat odors in the refrigerator, may be more than an adman's brainchild.

Crowd conduction moving right along

The upswing in gasoline consumption by Americans has sparked renewed interest in the development of low-cost, efficient mass transit systems. But even without the prospect of another oil embargo-energy crisis, the continuing fight against pollution and the need to revitalize the nation's cities should give mass transit top priority, experts in government and business agree.

To encourage imaginative engineering in this area, the Urban Mass Transportation Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Transportation, has announced it will pay up to 80 per cent of the cost of three demonstration transit projects in three cities. Each could cost an estimated $20 million to $50 million as of last May. 44 cities had submitted letters of interest in the agency's "Downtown People Mover Project."

"People mover" may be a misnomer, since it suggests something like a moving sidewalk. The goal, rather, is that of innovative mass transit systems that do not involve the high construction and operating costs of traditional transportation and which would be attractive and convenient enough to wean people away from their automobiles. Subways, for example, receive serious consideration only for the largest cities, and these have not always demonstrated unqualified success. Buses and minibuses are more practical for smaller cities, but their service leaves much to be desired in cost, quality and environmental impact.

Of particular interest is a system being constructed for Duke University by Otis Elevator Co. Minicars, riding on a thin film of air rather than wheels and carrying up to 30 passengers per car, will provide automatic, computer-directed service for passengers between two buildings at the university's medical center — something like horizontal elevators.

With variations, the system could be adapted to congested areas in big cities, say company engineers, and be extended as far as 10 miles from city centers to perimeter parking lots, where inbound commuters could leave their automobiles.

Installation costs of such a system, which the company calls Automated Guideway Transit, would be on the order of one-tenth those for subways. Energy use per passenger trip in built-up areas is estimated at one-

One of my favorites

This is it, folks! I've paid my dues and with this column I'm now a retiree.

I won't bore you with my feelings. It's a personal thing and I'm sure others have said it better and still others will say it even better.

Instead, I'll leave you with a repeat of a column that's one of my favorites. This is the way I wrote it.

The only way I could get it home was to lay it flat on its side in the trunk of my car.

When I got home, I took it out of the trunk gingerly, stood it upright and carried it onto the porch of our house.

That's the last contact I had with it and that's the last contact I expect ever to have with it.

To me it's a monster — a man-eating monster. My wife loves it. She had her eye on it for some time.

When she first saw it, several weeks ago, it was nothing but a baby. It needed special food and special care. So, she left it there to grow up.

To say it was grown up the next time she saw it was the understatement of the year.

If you ever want to see a man-eating rubber plant, just stop by our porch. It's standing next to our old rubber plant — the one with more trunk showing than leaves, the puny one. This new one of ours is so luxuriant we can't even see its trunk.

Remember the old saying, "He couldn't see the trees for the forest?" Well, with this rubber plant, we can't see the tree for the leaves.

When I told my wife what I thought of her new plant, she wanted to know,

"Why didn't you tell me before we bought it?"

Get a load of that "we" bit. The only thing even resembling "we" is that she bought it with my money.

"Look," she had said "when we stopped by the garden center to buy a couple of 88 cent plants, 'the rubber plant I was so crazy about is still here, and look how it's grown.'"

How could I help looking? The plant obscured everything within a 500-square-yard area. People would approach it, do a double take and retreat their steps. They say that one hardy explorer actually went around it and was never seen again.

When my wife found out that the lush, full-grown plant was only $2 more than it cost as a sapling, there was no stopping her.

She asked me for the money, paid for it and had me wheel it out to the car.

I laid it flat on its side in the trunk of my car and drove home. I know now I had the subconscious hope something would happen to it by the time I got home.

Something happened to it, alright. It grew in the trunk — that's what happened to it.

Since this article was written, something else happened to it. The trunk withered, the leaves fell off and it died.

However, our other rubber plant — the one with more trunk showing than leaves, the puny one — it began to flourish and now is even bigger, even more luxuriant than the one I wrote about.

I think it was jealous.

"Hell hath no fury like a rubber plant scorned."

Pessimistic report

Appearing this week before a Senate subcommittee, retired Ambassador L. Dean Brown said Lebanon's institutions have been "probably destroyed forever" by civil war and its only hope lies in a general Middle East peace treaty.

Brown failed recently in an attempt as President Ford's personal envoy to mediate a settlement between warring factions of Christians and Moslems in Lebanon.

Col. Beckwith bows to Gov. Ella Grasso on free meal issue

ROCKY HILL (UPI) — The head of the Veterans Home and Hospital has agreed to follow Gov. Ella T. Grasso's orders to stop giving free meals to employees, asking them to "grin and bear it."

Col. Robert J. Beckwith since last January had backed Mrs. Grasso's attempts to end the fringe benefits, but Monday sent a memorandum to hospital employees announcing the change.

"He's a good soldier," the governor said of Beckwith shortly before meeting with him Tuesday.

Beckwith's memo said he was "compelled" to end the free meals as of Wednesday because of a "clarification" of the program issued last June 17 by the state Personnel Policy Board.

Mrs. Grasso ordered the program ended last Jan. 1 as part of the abolishment of the "Griffenhagen Plan" — free meals and low-cost housing for institutional workers began in the 1930s to make up for low wages.

Last December, Beckwith sent a memo to his employees saying, "no employee here at the Veterans Home and Hospital will be charged for their meals after Jan. 1, 1971, unless we are absolutely compelled to by higher authorities."

His Monday memo announcing the end of free meals said only employees who could not leave their stations to eat would get free meals, such as telephone operators and boiler room attendants. All others will be charged 75 cents per meal, he said.

"It is very tough to continue to fight city hall, newspapers and certain union heads," he said. "I am compelled to take the following action," he said, detailing the new meal plan. Beckwith usually ends his memos to workers with the phrase "Keep Smiling," but the Monday memo ended with: "I don't know whether 'Keep Smiling' is as appropriate now as 'Grin and Bear It.'"

Immunizations given inner city children

HARTFORD (UPI) — Almost 550 inner city pre-school children have been immunized the past two weeks against so-called conquered diseases, sponsors of the program announced.

The results of the pilot health information and action campaign, backed by more than 20 community institutions, was carried out at school, clinics and from a roving van, according to Sanford Chod Jr., co-chairman of the Hartford Task Force.

Cloud said the program was aimed at the so-called conquered diseases including polio, diphtheria, measles and tetanus, that might affect unprotected inner city children.

Cloud said "that among non-white inner city pre-schoolers in this country, only 47 per cent had been fully immunized" against major childhood diseases.

He said the program evolved from a concept developed by Children's Television Workshop, creators of "Sesame Street," through a series of television and radio public service announcements, posters, badges and certificates.

The Hartford project received major financial support from Aetna Life and Casualty, Blue Cross of Connecticut, the city's public school system and the Community Renewal Trust of Greater Hartford.

Treaty with Spain ratified

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has overwhelmingly ratified a $1.2 billion military aid and friendship treaty with Spain in the hopes it will spur democracy after the decades-long dictatorship of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

The Senate acted by a vote of 84 to 11, or 31 votes more than the required two-thirds majority.

Immediately preceding passage of the treaty, the Senate also adopted a resolution, 91-4, expressing the Senate's hope the new Spanish monarchy of King Juan Carlos would seek to liberate Spain's political life.

Tedesco denied dismissal

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — Superior Court Judge Samuel J. Tedesco's attorney continued his defense today because the judge in the false notarization case refused to dismiss the final charge.

Tedesco, 51, once faced four charges of falsely notarizing documents. Two were dismissed before the trial and another was dismissed during the hearing. Judge Thomas J. O'Sullivan turned down two dismissal motions by Salvatore DePiano, who said the state had not proved criminal intent and that the law was vague and therefore unconstitutional. "I don't believe all your arguments. I think there is enough to venture forward with the trial," O'Sullivan said.

He is accused of notarizing a forged signature on the liquor license renewal application of the Candlewood Valley Country Club in New Milford, in which his family had $150,000 invested.

His mother, Jane testified Tuesday the investments were made independently of the judge.

Bridgeport Superior Court Clerk Arthur Gerst testified Tedesco was very busy at the time the license was notarized. Gerst said the judge was often at court before he arrived and after he left between April and June of last year.

The Rev. Stephen Jacobson, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, will leave Friday for Northern Ireland, where he is planning to have a reunion with the teenagers who spent last summer as guests of St. James and St. Mary's Churches.

Before the reunion, which is scheduled for July 6 in Portadown, he will meet with a group of 28 youngsters from Northern Ireland to the Greater Hartford area in 1977, the Rev. Mr. Jacobson said. While in Northern Ireland, he will meet with Catholic and Protestant clergy to discuss the selection of the children for this project.

On July 4, he has been invited to preach in Belfast at St. Finian's Parish Church in the morning. That evening, he will preach at the Presbyterian Church of Armagh at the invitation of Temple Landry, moderator of the Presbyterian Church of Ireland.

The Rev. Mr. Jacobson will be accompanied on the trip by his daughter, Ingrid, a recent graduate of Bennett Junior High School. She is planning to learn about the Northern Ireland conflict firsthand so she can write about it, he said.

Carter urges international partnerships

NEW YORK (UPI) — Declaring "we seek not a condominium of the powerful but a community of the free," Jimmy Carter said today the United States must do away with its "Lone Ranger" foreign policy and pursue cooperation with other democratic nations. In what he billed as "a major address," the apparent Democratic presidential nominee called for reduced U.S. ground forces in Korea. He did not use the term "detente" or refer to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger by name, but it was clear they were in his mind.

"The time has come for us to seek a partnership between North America, Western Europe and Japan," Carter said in the speech prepared for the Foreign Policy Association.

"We need to recognize that in recent years our Western European allies have been deeply concerned, and justly so, by our unilateral dealings with the Soviet Union," he said.

"To the maximum extent possible, our dealings with the Communist powers should reflect the combined views of the democracies, and thereby avoid suspicions by our allies that we may be disregarding their interests," he said.

"Under the Nixon-Ford administration, there has evolved a kind of secretive moment of Sage's collapse everyone was paralyzed, and although many of the country's most prominent rabbis were present it was Betty Ford who calmly led the group in a touching prayer.

"Everyone rose and applauded when she concluded," she said, "but Betty responded by saying that it was not appropriate. She then said we shouldn't go on with any more of the program and the guests gradually left."

Later Mrs. Ford announced that Sage had been taken by ambulance to French Polyclinic Hospital. Doctors worked for more than an hour on Sage before he was pronounced dead of a heart attack.

Mrs. Ford and Sage were attending a gathering of some 3,200 persons, including many of the top Jewish leaders of various organizations at the Jewish National Fund of America dinner when he collapsed.

Dr. Sage, JNF president, dies

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Maurice Sage, president of Jewish National Fund, collapsed on stage Tuesday night as he was about to present a Bible to Betty Ford at a Bicentennial dinner in the New York Hilton Hotel. He died shortly afterwards.

Doctors in the audience rushed to the stage to give assistance to Sage, 58. The First Lady calmly took over the microphone and led the audience in prayer.

"We must all pray in our way," she said as Sage was administered oxygen supplied by the hotel, at about 10 p.m. "It is up to God what will happen, we should all have faith."

"It is rather ironic," said one witness who asked not to be identified, "that in

Health advice: Take it easy getting in shape for vacation

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Middle-aged, wind up and ready to spend your vacation getting in shape?

A doctor who advises executives on vacation exercise styles says you should approach a shape-up summer program the same way healthwise bosses do.

That is — be consistent about what you do. And whatever you do, approach the exercise gradually.

Dr. John P. McCann, head of Life Extension Institute, made those points in an interview about vacation or summer shape-up rituals for the middle-aged.

Dr. McCann's organization examines over 60,000 executives yearly and recommends improvements in lifestyles that are hazardous to one's health.

His plan for success in a summer shape-up includes a physical examination first for those who spend a lot of their time in an armchair or pushing typewriter keys.

Such sedentary jobs leaves one with the physical blast at the end of a workday and in middle age, vulnerable to heart attacks. By vacation or summer time, unless they're following a regular exercise program, the sedentary types are in poor condition for running around a tennis court.

Dr. McCann said that is why he recommends approaching exercise gradually and being consistent about what you do.

The basic formula in exercise for the middle-aged: adopt anything that uses your arms or legs and upper body dynamically. This could include brisk walking, jogging, swimming, cycling, tennis, hiking.

Dr. McCann said golf, in general, is less effective. However, playing 18 holes without a cart on a par-70 course does mean five miles of walking — plus swinging a club about 100 times.

A tennis player will burn up a couple of hundred calories more running and walking five miles in three sets. Swimming uses up 400 to 500 calories an hour.

"The main thing about exercise for the middle-aged," Dr. McCann said, "is to engage in it to the point of putting a modest and continuous strain on the cardiovascular system."

"This helps heart and lungs." Doctors call that working to the threshold level.

You can determine the threshold level by measuring your pulse immediately upon stopping strenuous summer exercise.

Count your wrist pulse for five seconds and multiply by 12. If you are 40 to 49, your threshold pulse rate range should be between 126 and 138 beats per minute, for example.

If you are between 50 and 59 it should be 114 to 126 beats per minute.

"Don't race the clock in any exercise program," Dr. McCann said. "It's not time that is important at the middle stage of life. So take your time."

"If you can jog you can function comfortably at a rate that stimulates your heart and lung function to about 60 per cent of your maximum capacity and do an adequate job of improving heart and lung function."

"The people who push the clock excessively when they are not in good physical condition are the ones who get into trouble."

Dr. McCann also had a word for those who have not yet reached middle age.

"Blood pressure should be checked and stress tests taken before getting back into sports."

"Anyone who has had a layoff from sports for even two or three years should be very careful when resuming an activity after age 30 or 35."

The best way to restore flexibility and build endurance: walking at a rapid rate or jogging. Or you can do it by bike riding. "Anything that gets your heart beat up to about 110 or 120 beats a minute is good," Dr. McCann said.

To restore balance needed for summer sports, warm up by walking on tiptoes, jumping rope or dancing — but in all things "go slow."

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The Antarctic was found to be a continent by Charles Wilkes who led the first American exploring expedition there in January and February 1840. The World Almanac says Antarctica has an area of 5.5 million square miles (9.6 per cent of the earth's land surface) which makes it the fifth largest of the seven continents.

Spindle Side
Female in Anglo-Saxon times were called the "spindle side" of the family as they did all the spinning of flax into cloth. Women were not fit to marry until they had spun their dowry of linen. In 1660, the colony of Massachusetts passed a decree requiring every family to weave three pounds of cloth a week, and set up quotas based on the number of women in a household. Unmarried women were appointed as "spinsters" to meet the quotas.

Durkin seeks ban on withholding of lottery taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H., and Thomas McIntyre, D-N.H., said today they have introduced legislation preventing the federal government from requiring states to withhold 20 per cent of lottery winnings over $1,000.

The Senate Finance Committee has approved a provision in a tax reform measure which forces states to withhold 20 per cent of advertised winnings over $1,000 for payment of federal income taxes. Durkin and McIntyre's legislation would exclude state-run lotteries from the provision.

Almost $6 billion is collected annually from the New Hampshire Sweepstakes program for education and 12 other states have adopted lotteries. Durkin and McIntyre said the withholding requirement would cost thousands of dollars in administrative costs while diminishing federal income taxes. Durkin and McIntyre will vote on the amendment either late this week or early next week.

Mrs. Varney gets state VFW post

Mrs. Theresa Varney of 100 Summer St. was elected and installed as Junior vice-president of the state Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary at its recent convention in Hartford.

Mrs. Varney is treasurer and past president of the Manchester VFW Auxiliary.

The local unit received several awards and citations during the convention. Mrs. Margaret Chermeka placed second for the state VIP president's award.

Merit citations were awarded for cancer aid and research. Voice of Democracy and youth activities, rehabilitation and the unit's historian's book.

The Auxiliary received a plaque for 20 years of continuous service to Fairfield Hospital, citations from several hospitals, and a certificate of merit for its general over-all hospital program. Esther Alberti, hospital chairman, also received a personal award.

The unit took fifth place and received a citation for its community activities book, and a cash award for membership.

The Junior Girls Unit took first place for its hospital activities and received a citation for its cancer aid and research program.

Citations were awarded the local VFW Post for its community activities and Buddy Poppy drive. It also placed third for its hospital program. Eugene Freeman, service officer, received a "Meritorious Achievement" citation.

Edward Dupre, a past post commander, was appointed Department service officer and was also presented a Loyalty Day award.

New 200-mile fishing limit termed selfish, bad politics

KINGSTON, R.I. (UPI) — Legal experts at a law of the sea conference have criticized the United States' new 200-mile fishing limit which takes effect next year.

Two Canadians, Gordon Munro of the University of British Columbia and Douglas Johnston of Dalhousie University, said the new law may further strain U.S.-Canada relations.

"It would be a tragedy and a disgrace if Canada and the U.S. are incapable of effective management of their joint fisheries," Munro said.

The 200 international participants in this week's University of Rhode Island conference do not have any legal voice. Their meeting is a preliminary to resumption of talks at the United Nations in August.

The new law, signed by President Ford to take effect next spring, gives preference to U.S. fishermen within 200 miles of the coast. But Munro said he was concerned the new law will be stretched to mean total and exclusive rights for American fishermen — in effect, barring Canadian fishermen from the American coast.

Gordon Eddy, a spokesman for the United Nations' Food and Agriculture Organization in Rome, said the United States had one of the largest underexploited fish stocks in the world and didn't need to be greedy. The fishing limit law, he said, was totally unnecessary.

The U.N. has been meeting for over three years to try and resolve the problem of territorial limits. Some of the countries are beginning to think the negotiators are taking too long," said Dr. John Gamble.

CHA official says nurses seek an expanded role

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — Herbert Anderson, president of the Connecticut Hospital Association says nurses striking in Willimantic are trying to gain powers rightfully belonging to hospital administrators.

He said Tuesday the attempt to expand the role of nurses through collective bargaining is inappropriate. Anderson's comment came in a letter to Gov. Ella T. Grasso and Commissioners Douglas Lloyd of the health department and Frank Santoro of labor.

Nurses at the Windham Community Memorial Hospital in Willimantic have been on strike for 62 days, since April 21.

Anderson said the impasse should be resolved reasonably at the bargaining table and not through "shows of strength" such as a mass rally planned by the striking nurses.

The Connecticut Nurses Association has organized a Friday rally in Willimantic's Recreation Park to support the nurses. CNA negotiator Mary Lou Millar said she expected 1,000 to 2,000 persons to attend the rally.

CHA official says nurses seek an expanded role

Anderson said the nurses' attempts to negotiate for more responsibilities would "compromise the ability of a physician to properly guarantee the medical care of his or her patient, undermine the legal responsibilities of the board of trustees of the hospitals, and distort working relationships which are necessary to properly discharge the hospital's function."

Bicentennial tapestry

Class representatives of Highland Park School with Mrs. Marie Addabbo display the Bicentennial tapestry made by the school children and staff. From left are Jeffrey Cappello, kindergarten; Gregory Wood, Grade 1; Daniel Addabbo, Grade 2; Emil Addabbo, Grade 3; Thomas Miller, Grade 4; John Spillman, Grade 5; Vito Addabbo, Grade 6; Linda Pereira, special education. Sponsored by the school PTA, Mrs. Addabbo supervised the project which began eight months ago. Class members and administrative staff hand stitched the historic symbols on 18 burlap squares. The tapestry, which was displayed on the school's float in the Bicentennial parade, will hang in the school corridor.

Ford antibusing plan criticized

By LEWIS LORID

United Press International

Jimmy Carter attacked President Ford's antibusing plan Tuesday night and said the nation needs a president who will encourage school desegregation.

The prospective Democratic presidential nominee told a fund-raising dinner in Boston that public school integration was "one of the best things that ever happened in the South."

Carter spoke hours after Ford told the national Jaycees convention in Indianapolis he will send Congress a bill in the next few days that would strictly limit the jurisdiction of federal courts in school busing cases.

Ford complained that some federal courts "are practically running our local school boards." His plan would limit the federal court busing orders to five years.

Carter said Ford's proposal "would require a constitutional amendment and I don't think that's feasible."

"I see a real need in this country for strong leadership from the president, the governors, the mayors, to encourage free integration of schools," the former Georgia governor said.

Carter held two fund-raising functions in Boston and scheduled five more in New York today at $1,000 a person. He has said he expects to have his $1.2 million debt paid before opening his general election campaign, which will be financed by federal funds.

Ronald Reagan has been working and relaxing this week at his 600-acre ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif., and leaves Thursday for a round of campaign appearances in Mississippi, Minnesota, Wyoming and Montana — states where 83 delegates are at stake.

The First Lady, Betty Ford, will fill in for her husband at that weekend's Minnesota GOP convention, while Ford attends an economic summit conference with leaders of other Western nations in Puerto Rico.

Meanwhile, former Texas Gov. John Connally said in San Antonio that Carter "looks tough to beat."

But, Connally said, "as time goes on a great many flaws will begin to develop in Mr. Carter's facade." He said Carter will have to defend Democratic programs and "where it's all said and done I think you're going to have difficulty in distinguishing between the McGovern platform and the Carter platform."

Two need treatment for elevated lead levels

Two Manchester school pupils will require medical treatment for elevated lead levels in their blood.

That's the report coming from the voluntary screening program of last winter.

Early reports showed about 15 children in the first round of tests needed medical treatment, but samples by pin-pricking state Department of Health officials said there was a flaw in the testing procedures.

The screening program was funded through the Community Renewal Team of Hartford.

Technicians took blood samples by pin-pricking children's fingers.

Panelsurge flu shots for adults

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Public Health Service advisory panels agree that adults should be urged to get swine flu vaccinations next fall and winter but they aren't sure whether children should get them.

Dr. David Sencer, director of the government's Center for Disease Control, was asked Tuesday to summarize what scientists will advise mothers on whether their children should be vaccinated.

"As scientists we don't know what to tell them," Sencer said. Recommendations on whether to vaccinate children are at least two months away.

The panels agreed to make no special provisions for pregnant women but to recommend their vaccination routinely along with other adults.

Mrs. Dennis Santoro of 297 Spring St. has joined the staff of the South United Methodist Church Day Nursery for next year.

A member of the Sacred Dance Choir of Center Congregational Church, Mrs. Santoro has taught creative dance and rhythms in several area nursery schools.

There are limited openings for the 1978-79 school year at the SUNC day nursery for four-year-olds. Registration will be taken at the church office at 1226 Main St., or by calling 647-9141 and requesting a registration form.

The fall term will open Sept. 13.

Kuhn not consistent in decisions

By MILT RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the biggest weaknesses that can be shown by any leader of a nation, movement, industry or sport is inconsistency in making decisions because that only invites chaos. Right there is where Bowie Kuhn may have let himself get picked off first base by Charlie Finley.

Kuhn claimed he was acting in baseball's "best interest" last Friday when he canceled Finley's sales of Joe Rudi and Rollie Fingers to the San Francisco Giants, and he said he was acting in the "best interest" of the Yankees for $3.5 million.

There is great doubt whether Kuhn can do that legally, and that thought certainly must have occurred to him, so he chose to do it under the authority vested in him as baseball commissioner. Even in that capacity his ruling is open to question since it is utterly inconsistent with the fact he never has seen fit to void any other baseball deal on the same grounds before.

If he acted purely because the money involved seemed to him to be getting out of hand, how can he justify the fact he stood by and did absolutely nothing when Catfish Hunter went to the Yankees for $3 million? Technically, that was a sale, too. Hunter sold himself to the Yankees. Did Kuhn see that as being in the "best interest" of baseball? What about Andy Messersmith going to the Braves for $1 million? The commissioner didn't knock that one out, either.

His action now emerges all the more unilateral because he never moved a millimeter to interfere when Finley was paying out his money for players to other clubs, when the cash flow was the other way around.

"He says I'm hurting my ball club by selling my players, but how come there wasn't a peep out of him when I gave Bob Short of the Washington Senators $300,000 in 1971 for Mike Epstein and Darold Knowles?" Finley wants to know. "Does he have some kind of double standard where it's all right for me to pay someone else for his ball players but where I'm not allowed to get paid for mine?"

Tom Yawkey, the Red Sox owner, makes a good point.

"I fail to see the difference between buying a player for the $25,000 waiver price and buying one for $1 million," he says.

Finley has taken a lot of criticism for being money-hungry but there is evidence the other way around as well. There have been days when the weather was so bad in Oakland and the crowd so small, it would've been to postpone the game, but if he felt the chances of winning outweighed the possibility of losing, he always went right ahead and played the game.

I asked Finley why he felt compelled to sell Rudi, Fingers and Blue when he did, knowing he has had good offers for all three long before this but had always turned them down.

"It's simple," he said. "You have to remember I have never been interested in selling ball players. At the beginning of the season if you recall I made a deal with Baltimore. I gave up (Reggie) Jackson and (Ken) Holtzman for three players. Had I wanted to sell players simply for the sake of selling them, I could've easily sold them."

That's absolutely true. The Mets made Finley an enormous money order for Jackson and were turned down.

"I wasn't interested in selling my players," he repeated. "When they tried to make trades for them, which I felt would help my ball club, I tried right up to the trading deadline and when I couldn't make those trades, I had no alternative."

Now Finley is suing Kuhn and baseball for $10 million, charging restraint of trade.

He's anxious to see what happens at the end of the season when those players of his who haven't signed become free agents.

"Do you think our great Commissioner Kuhn can be consistent?" Finley posed the question. "Do you think he will say to these players 'You can't jump to the other club, you gotta stay with Finley?'"

Finley asks the question and laughs.

Jones' walkless innings all over

NEW YORK (UPI) — It should never be said that Randy Jones is "walking off" with the National League's Cy Young Award. It's better to say "running off" because walks and Randy Jones just don't mix.

The 27-year-old left-hander of the San Diego Padres posted his 13th win of the season Tuesday night by stopping the San Francisco Giants, 4-2, on four hits and in the process equaled a 63-year-old National League record for most consecutive innings without walking a batter.

Jones tied the legendary Christy Mathewson's NL record of 68 consecutive innings without issuing a base on balls, then saw that string broken in the seventh inning when he walked the leadoff batter, Marc Hill. Jones walked another batter later in the game but didn't give up a hit after the second inning as he went the distance for the 12th time this year.

Jones even had a hand in the winning rally as he singled in the seventh inning and scored ahead of Tito Fuentes' first homer of the season.

The victory enabled the Padres to move into second place in the NL West, five games behind first place Cincinnati and a half-game ahead of Los Angeles.

"It was harder tonight," said Jones, referring to his winning performance. "I fought myself from the eighth inning on. I wasn't really sleeping the last few days."

In other NL action, Cincinnati blanked Los Angeles, 6-0. Montreal downed Philadelphia, 6-3. St. Louis blanked New York, 3-0. Houston outslug Atlanta, 9-2, and Pittsburgh beat Chicago, 10-7.

Reds 6, Dodgers 4.

Fred Norman tossed a four-hitter and reserve Doug Flynn drove in three runs to lead the Reds over the Dodgers. Norman, boosting his record to 5-1, struck out six and walked only one in beating Don Sutton, who suffered his seventh loss against six victories. The defeat dropped the Dodgers 3½ games

Protest upheld

The Executive Committee members present at the meeting on the protest in question were Dave Doonan, Dave Turkington, Bob Parizeau, and Carl Sibore.

After reviewing the written protest submitted by Allied Printing and Fogarty Brothers, and after discussing the situation in question, the committee agreed that the protest should be upheld.

Rule 4, Section 2 states: "A team must have nine (fast) pitch" or 10 (slow pitch) players to start or to continue a game."

Rule 11, Section 3 states: "The notification of intent to protest must be made immediately before the next pitch."

The umpiring report submitted by Brezinski clearly stated that the manager of Allied, Duke Hutchinson, did protest the game before the next pitch. Brezinski himself accepting the protest.

The committee unanimously agreed that, under the above mentioned conditions, the game should be a 7-0 forfeit win for Allied.

Respectfully submitted, David R. Turkington Executive Committee Rules Interpreter Manchester ASA Umpires Assoc.

Charlie O. may have help in suit against baseball

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charlie Finley may have some help in his planned $10 million suit against baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, but the local point of the furor are three guys who feel as they are limbo.

Attorney Neil Pappano, who represents Oakland A's owner Finley, said Tuesday that he is talking to "other interested parties" about the suit against Kuhn, who vetoed Finley's $3.5 million sale of three of the club's top stars—Vida Blue, Rollie Fingers and Joe Rudi.

"We are talking with other interested parties and getting some of their input, and we want to have a discussion again before we file," said Pappano.

In New York, meanwhile, Players Association director Marvin Miller said his group is concerned about how to get Rudi, Fingers and Blue back in uniform and on the playing field.

"Our immediate consideration is to rectify the completely unfair situation of the three players involved, who, through no fault of their own, find themselves really placed into inactivity, which represents damages and jeopardy to their careers."

On-ice violence trial under way

DETROIT (UPI) — Detroit Red Wing Dan Maloney goes on trial for assault today in only the third case of on-ice violence to be brought before the courts in the 58-year history of the NHL.

The 25-year-old left wing from Barrie, Ont., was charged with assault and causing bodily harm to Toronto's Brian Glennie in an NHL game at Maple Leaf Gardens last Nov. 5. He has elected trial by judge and jury in Ontario Provincial Court.

His attorney, George Finlayson, said Tuesday that Maloney's defense would be based on the "consent" of all NHL players to accept violence as part of professional hockey.

"The defense is basically consent," Finlayson said. "This is the way the game is played. So far as Brian Glennie is concerned, he was consenting to be assaulted by playing in the National Hockey League."

Finlayson said despite the controversy over violence in hockey with the NHL and other leagues moving to limit fighting, the case here would be judged on the rules as they applied when the incident occurred.

"It's no doubt going to come out that some people feel the game ought to be changed," he said. "But we're only concerned here with the rules as they were when the incident took place—and the rules contain fighting."

During Malney's preliminary hearing last Feb. 23, the prosecution charged that Glennie was criminally assaulted by Maloney. Crown Prosecutor Robert McGee presented the game film and replays of the incident as evidence and submitted medical testimony that showed Glennie suffered a concussion. Glennie was hospitalized overnight but rejoined the Maple Leafs the next day.

Evert after equal $$$ for women

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Top-seeded Chris Evert quickly dispatched American Linda Thomas in straight sets before getting down to business Tuesday at the $200,000 Wimbledon tennis championships.

After beating Thomas, Evert started collecting signatures on a petition to have the women players receive the same slice of Wimbledon's monetary pie as the men. Evert, the even-money betting favorite, will present the petition to the management committee Friday. Currently, the men's champion receives $2,125 to $17,700 for the women's winner.

Arthur Ashe, the men's top seed and defending champion, ran into trouble for the second straight day with an unheralded opponent. Ashe was taken to four sets by Alison Stone, who is ranked only ninth in his native Australia. Before winning, 4-5, 6-9, 9-7, 7-5.

With Ashe way off form, third-seeded Ilie Nastase replaced him as second betting favorite at $1. The volatile Romanian met Zejko Franulovic of Yugoslavia and it was an easy victory for Nastase.

Fifth-seeded Adriano Panatta, the French and Italian Open champion, said after his five-set victory over Australia's Dale Collings: "I shouldn't have been seeded so low. Eight, nine or ten is a better place for me."

Sweden's fifth-seeded Bjorn Borg, the blonde darling of thousands of schoolgirls living in a country hideout to avoid their attentions, buried Marty Riessen, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4.

Borrowed pole aided Roberts

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — To a pole vaulting the most prized possession in the world is his pole.

He'll guard it the same way other people protect a loved one. Lay a hand on his pole without asking and it's the same as inviting a punch in the mouth. Ask a vaulter about his jump and he'll tell you how much a part his pole played in it.

After Dave Roberts took the pole vault record to 18-8 1/4 Tuesday at the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials you'd have to say all the talk about poles is so much hogwash.

That's because Roberts broke his favorite pole and didn't even shed a tear. He simply asked Earl Bell, whose record he took away, if he could use his and Bell said okay.

On the third try with Bell's pole, which is about two pounds lighter and slower than his, Roberts cleared the record height. Of course, he said it was due to Bell's pole.

"You helped more than you know," Roberts said to Bell, whose world record of 18-7 3/4 was set about month ago at the Federation Games in Wichita, Kan.

Bell lost his record setting pole, someone apparently stealing it from him, and he competed here Tuesday with a new pole—the one he eventually loaned to Roberts.

"It's not like my old pole," Bell said, "but it isn't that bad."

Bell cleared 18-1 1/4, as did Terry Porter, and they joined Roberts on the team that will represent America at the Montreal Games next month. "Probably because he wasn't using his favorite shaft," Bell said he didn't think the pole made that much difference in Roberts' record leap.

"It's the vaulter who breaks the record and not the pole," he said. "If that's so then why is offering a reward for the return of his record setting pole—the one that was stolen. So much for poles."

Joe Morrone Jr., Randall Klitz and Tim Masley each scored one goal and Scott Brine tallied the three-goal hat trick for Mansfield. Manchester goalie Mark Copeland and Bob Nurm were best in defeat.

'Forum' smashing

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter

Theatre 3 will have a tough act to follow after its smashing successful season opener, "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum," which opened last weekend. Fortunately, the riotous musical comedy plays again Thursday through Sunday in the auditorium on the Manchester Community College campus at Bidwell St.

Once again, the little boy theater has lent itself to an ingenious production of a show which demands rather extensive stage setting and an active cast that at times uses all possible space for humorous cavorting.

The combination of James Quinn's directing and the actors' near-professional performance creates an inimitable production that is pure entertainment from the beginning.

A comedy of errors, the setting is 80 years before the Christian era, a day in spring in a street in Rome.

In true ancient dramatic style, an actor, John Spalla, introduces the play and its characters in a prologue. Spalla also plays Pseudotes, a Roman slave to Hero.

Spalla is that rare mixture of perpetual vitality and personality that continually generates the best in the rest of the cast in the play. He's the sly fox in the play who always schemes up the impossible plots, and then convives to fulfill them.

There are romances galore, a bevy of benevolently bestowed courtesans (court mistresses), and some interesting contemporary music by Stephen Sondheim arranged for this production by Spalla, who is as talented a musician as he is an actor.

Ray Gardner is Senex, an old man, who is unfortunately (he thinks) married to Domina played by Jayne Newirth. He is infatuated with Phillia, a young virgin, portrayed by Julie Futner, who is in love with Terence M. Cragg as Hero. But Phillia has been bought by Miles Gloriosa, a wealthy Roman who is pompously and magnificently described by Lud Baldwin.

Paul Norton is Hysterium, a slave to Senex and Domina, and is hysterically funny at the same time.

Bob Gemano is Lycus, a buyer and seller of courtesans, who gets caught in the net of ridiculous maneuvering of affairs of arranged romance.

Lester Hartnett, shines in his small role as an old man who is looking for his lost daughter. He is sent on a long walk (seven times around the seven hills of Rome) by Spalla who, as a temporary scotchboy, promises Erronius he will find his daughter at the end of his walk. His appearance walking across the stage at intervals in the play telling the audience it's the second time around, the third time, with fatigue showing, makes you feel that the walk around backstage has really been all around Rome.

Before the story ends, Domina and Hysterium dress in the disguise of Phillia in white robes and blonde wig, and a grand game of tag begins as the plans of deception develop.

Disguised as Phillia, Domina hopes to re-secure her husband. Also disguised as Phillia, Hysterium hopes to distract the warrior so that the real Phillia may run away with Hero, handsomely played by Cragg.

The hijinks are crazy. The lines are precise and never lags. A chorale sung during the funeral scene in the second act is a bit of excellent music and rendition by the voices.

The play, full of delightful utter nonsense, is sandwiched in between the opening and closing song which says there'll be comedy tonight; sorrows and morals are for tomorrow, but there's comedy tonight.

Called the street players, the small orchestra behind the play action is furnished by a piano, flute, French horn, trumpet and percussion, who provide a stimulating combo.

If you miss this belly-tickler, you'll miss one of the best shows of the summer. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

Last day of school!

The last day at Waddell School on Tuesday was a "dive-in," first in the pool and then into the pizzas as the students celebrated their last day at school for the year with a splash and pizza party. The event was given by the PTA and the sixth grade room mothers. (Herald photo by Pinto)

'Some progress' reported in teaching aide talks

"Some progress" was made at this week's state mediation session with Manchester school paraprofessionals (teacher aides), Asst. School Supt. Wilson E. Deakin Jr. said Tuesday.

Deakin, negotiator for the Board of Education, and Antoinette Head, president of the Manchester Federation of Paraprofessionals, said the employee group had submitted a new proposal for salaries and contract language changes.

Details of the proposal weren't released. If the school board doesn't accept the plan by paraprofessionals, the contract negotiations are likely to go to an arbitration panel.

Deakin said negotiations with school administrators, which broke down last month, will go to mediation June 30.

Storrs woman convicted of aiding insurgents

BURLINGTON, Vt. — Delia A. San Juan, 38, of Storrs, Conn., has been convicted in U.S. District Court of bringing $77,500 from Canada to the United States, allegedly to support Philippine insurgents.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Jerome O'Neill, who prosecuted the case, said Tuesday there was testimony "that she was bringing it (the money) over for people repressed in the Philippines."

Samuel Gruber of Stamford, Conn., her attorney, said he has filed a notice he will appeal the case to the Second U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Mrs. San Juan, a University of Connecticut educational assistant from the Philippines, would not comment Tuesday on the case.

She was sentenced Monday to one year in prison, with 11 months suspended, and two years probation for violation of the 1950 federal bank secrecy act, which requires persons bringing $5,000 or more into the United States to file a form.

Gruber said the law was unconstitutional and violated Mrs. San Juan's rights of privacy, due process, and free association. He also said it raised questions of illegal search and seizure.

The three-day court trial ruled the act was legal.

The Toronto Mail reported the money came from Kuo Ching-An, a Communist in Canada, who was expelled from the country for behavior unbecoming a diplomat.

Communist insurgents have been waging guerrilla warfare in the Philippines since the close of World War II.

GE contract negotiations under way

NEW YORK (UPI) — Negotiators for the General Electric Co. and two electrical unions, faced with a mid-night Sunday contract expiration, are holding national contract talks on a daily basis.

Representatives of GE, the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers and the United Electrical Workers have been meeting at the Essex House since April 20.

A GE spokesman said Tuesday both sides have agreed not to issue any statements about the substance of the talks.

He said expiration of the contracts without a new agreement would not necessarily mean an immediate work stoppage for the approximately 114,000 workers affected.

The spokesman said U.E.W. officials were required to give at least 10 days notice of a strike, but the United Electrical Workers could call their men off the job at midnight Sunday if no agreement were reached.

Teachers honored

Two of Manchester's retiring teachers were honored recently at the Manchester Education Association retirement dinner at Willie's Steak House.

Mrs. Cecilia Moore and Mrs. Patricia Trevitich were presented with engraved bowls filled with flowers as a token of appreciation by their fellow teachers.

Mrs. Moore taught for 19 years at Verplanck School and Mrs. Trevitich taught for 12 years at Bentley School.

The highlight presentation of the evening was the Manchester Education Association Friend of Education Award to Dr. Walter Schardt for his contribution to education in Manchester as a member of the Board of Education for 10 years. It was the second time in its history the MEA made this award.

Honored guests at the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Robert (Parmy) Pratt and Mrs. Valerie Boland. Mrs. Pratt is retiring after

Quincy school closing doors

BOSTON (UPI) — The doors shut Tuesday at the 129-year-old, red-brick Quincy school, ending the life of the nation's oldest public elementary school with more than one classroom.

The nailed-down wooden desks of the three-story structure in Boston's South End may have had their charm, but school administrators decided the school's limited facilities hampered modern and innovative approaches to teaching.

Most of the school's 200 students and their teachers have been reassigned to the new, multimillion dollar Quincy school two blocks away from the old Tyler Street structure.

In 1837, Horace Mann set up the nation's first statewide education commission in Massachusetts. Ten years later, the construction of the Quincy school began.

MHS grads have party in Marlborough park

Manchester High School graduates took their "after-graduating" party outside of town Monday night; they went to Marlborough.

More than 1,000 youths, many of them MHS graduates in the class that night, converged on Blish Memorial Park at the town beach. Neighbors complained, and state police wearing riot helmets and carrying billy clubs and canisters were called to disperse the crowd.

There were no arrests made.

Robert Nielson, resident state trooper, said youths were drinking, smoking, shooting off fireworks, and creating a lot of noise.

The crowd made a slow but orderly exit when troopers were called.

Norman Cavali, Marlborough area and recreation commission chairman, said the youths were passing around yearbooks for signatures and having a good time when he arrived at 10:30 because of a complaint. He said the group "was a good bunch of kids."

MHS Principal George Zimmerman, expressing his disappointment about the celebration, said it "was one of the best kept secrets."

He said Manchester officials have tried to discourage these parties.

Parties were held at the Nike Site for many years, but police and school officials took extra pains to see that none was held there last year.

Some youths stayed at the Marlborough beach to clean up the area once the crowd disbanded.

Burial of dinosaur tracks considered for protection

HARTFORD (UPI) — The prehistoric dinosaur footprints in Rocky Hill's Dinosaur Park might have to be buried under several feet of earth to preserve them.

State Department of Environmental Protection officials said the tracks might be buried under five feet or more of earth, and left covered for years.

They said the burial plan is only one of several for preserving the 200 million year old prints.

Administrative mixups left a large set of tracks, about 1,500 footprints, without an insulating cover last winter. They were damaged extensively.

Another set of 500 prints were exposed in January after a plastic bubble building was blown down. Drastic variations in New England air temperatures caused the damage to both sets.

A new bubble building for the smaller set of tracks may be completed by fall, officials said, while a previous plan to cover the large set of tracks with easily removable urethane foam appears likely to be replaced with deep burial.

Two top officials of the department said no decision has been made on which preservation method to use.

William Miller, director of Parks and Recreation, wrote Gov. Ella T. Grasso a memorandum stating construction of a new bubble building would be "short-sighted, self-defeating and expensive," because of air pressure, heating and illumination problems.

Hose Company taps Pickral

Clyde Pickral of 124 W. Center St. has been elected captain of the volunteer fire fighters of Hose Co. 2, Town Fire Department. He succeeds Roland Schuller.

Other elected officers are George Trueman, first lieutenant; James Trueman, second lieutenant; Joseph Ortielli, secretary; Cary Crane, treasurer.

Also, Shiller, Milton Stavitsky, Edward Fisher and Robert Adams, previous plan to cover the large set of tracks with easily removable urethane foam appears likely to be replaced with deep burial.

Arnold was unit's first commander

JUAN TAMAYO
NEW HAVEN (UPI) — England's Queen Elizabeth II will be greeted by a military unit whose first commander was Benedict Arnold, the Revolutionary War hero.

"It is kind of ironic, isn't it?" said William Gargano of New Haven, commander of the unit, known as the 2nd Company of the Governor's Foot Guard.

The full Governor's Foot Guard and Horse Guard units, dressed in Colonial style regalia, will provide the ceremonial spit and polish when the royal couple is met at deckside by Gov. Ella T. Grasso.

The matter of the 2nd Company's past might be quite delicate for some, but Gargano said "it really was never mentioned in any discussions about the visit and I just think it's an honor for us to be there."

Maj. Gen. John F. Freund, head of the Connecticut National Guard and in charge of the state's ceremonial units, said the 2nd Company's history will not keep it from greeting the queen.

"We're very proud of the 2nd and we'll put it out in front 'someplace,'" said Freund.

"Benedict Arnold had a great record with us for a while, until he decided to go to the British side," Freund said. "He looked like a real comer in military circles of that day."

The queen and Prince Philip will arrive in New Haven aboard the royal yacht Britannia for a 20-minute visit as part of their Bicentennial tour of the U.S., sometime around July 10.

Arnold was a promising Continental army officer who turned coat and fought for the British after he was passed over for promotion and was rebuffed for allegedly mishandling public funds.

He was the first commander of a New Haven militia unit mustered in 1775 which has been renamed the Governor's Foot Guard, 2nd Company, and takes part in ceremonies, lending them their name.

Gargano said his 225-member unit is trying to decide on a memento for Queen Elizabeth, "but it certainly won't be anything relating to its first commander."

Arnold, born in Norwich in 1741, moved to New Haven when he was 21 to open a drug and bookstore. Twelve years later he was elected captain of the local militia unit, distinguishing himself in several battles.

But he was passed over for promotion in 1777 and was named commander of Philadelphia, where he married Margaret Shipper, the daughter of a Loyalist family.

Embittered by charges he mismanaged public funds, Arnold plotted to surrender West Point, N.Y., in exchange for a British army commission and a pension, but he was unmasked. He became a man without a country, ostracized in the colonies. He died in England in 1801.

All Mayfair residents are invited to a potluck Friday at 6 p.m. in Croton Hall. Those planning to attend are asked to bring place settings.

Manchester Composite Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol will meet tonight from 7 to 9:30 at the Manchester State Armory, 330 Main St. The meeting is open to all young people from Grade 7 through high school.

The United Pentecostal Church will have a Bible study tonight at 7:30 at the church, 187 Woodbridge St.

Youth Fellowship of South United Methodist Church will meet Friday at 7 p.m. in the youth lounge of the church.

Other members of the band are Bill "Bubba" Mathews, Charles "Bones" Armentano (Mike's brother), Brian "Buggie" Beggs, and Mitch "Yankee" Dul.

Last year the band played in concert for the SAM program at Mt. Nebo and has played for several local school dances.

This summer they charmed Manchester Community College students and their friends when they performed aboard the "Yankee Clipper" as it sailed down the Connecticut River one evening.

Engagement of the Rusty Nail in Glastonbury, The Scenes Inn in Bolton, Willie's Steak House in Manchester, and the Italian-American Club in East Hartford, have kept the band moving right along. Even if you've never been a devotee of the music of the 50s, you can't help but enjoy the boys in action.

With all the charisma usually associated with veteran musicians, the band members, while through "Jailhouse Rock," "The Hop," "The Twist," and many other numbers bound to stir up a few memories.

They are good and very aptly named. The "Nifty Fifties" are really nifty.

When members of the "Nifty Fifties" band get together, their particular brand of music has listeners tapping their fingers and dancers tapping their toes.

From a rocking rendition of "Hound Dog" to a more docile "Kansas City," the youthful musicians give out with melodies in a style to put Elvis or Chubby Checkers to shame.

No newcomers to the entertainment field, the nine-man band has been putting it all together since November 1975.

Performing with slicked-back hair reminiscent of the 50s and T-shirts and jeans, their casual air belies the serious efforts they put into their work.

In other performances, depending on the occasion, some wear formal white jackets while the others wear plaid. They are all from Manchester. Some are Manchester High School graduates, the others students there. Eric "Rocko" Mann of Summit St. said a few of the members had thought about doing something for Talent Night at Manchester High School.

"We talked about it a lot but never got around to doing it. Finally we decided to give it a try — and it was a success," he said.

"The last day of the tryouts we decided we needed a couple more guys so we asked John "Vaseline" Adams and Neil "Squaw" Snuffer. Mike "The Spike" Armentano, another member said, "We were scared stiff when we walked onto the stage. We played 'Come Go With Me' and the reaction was very good."

"Martha White, our high school music teacher, dubbed us the 'Nifty Fifties' and we stuck with the name," Eric said.

With a few appearances to their credit, the talented group, now much more courageous, participated in a second talent show to benefit the Round Table Singers who were planning a trip to Hawaii.

"We needed more rhythm so got a few more fellows to join the band," Mike said.

While not all of the band members want to make it their life's work, several are hoping to keep at it and see just how far they can go.

"We practice twice a week for about four hours," Eric said.

"When we make appearances we try to get people to participate. We go down into the audience and ask customers to dance. Some are shy, but usually they don't mind and all seem to have a good time," he said.

Moore-Leahy

Eileen M. Leahy of Glastonbury and George C. Moore of Cordova, Md., were married June 5 at St. Paul's Church in Glastonbury.

Mrs. George C. Moore

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Leahy of Glastonbury. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Moore of Cordova.

The Rev. Edward Stoops of Crossville, Md., celebrated the Mass and performed the double-ring ceremony. The church was decorated with spring floral bouquets. Mrs. Philomena Puzo was organist and Ron Morin was soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white silk organza gown designed with Queen Anne neckline, long full sleeves and train embroidered with daisies. Her fingertip veil was attached to a Juliet cap trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a mother of pearl bride's prayer book with white roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Maureen Morin of Glastonbury was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Laura Leahy of Oceanside, Calif., the bride's sister-in-law; Miss Maryanne Butera and Miss Jeanne Schoebel, both of Glastonbury.

Lynn Moore of Salisbury, Md., served as best man. Ushers were William Moore and Bruce Moore, both of Cordova and brothers of the bridegroom; and Chris McCoy of Baltimore, Md.

Plaster-Morton

Nancy Jeanne Morton and Robert Francis Plaster, both of Manchester, were married June 19 at St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Manchester.

Mrs. Robert F. Plaster

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Morton of 109 N. Elm St. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Plaster of Swamp Rd., Coventry.

The Rev. Stephen Jacobson of St. Mary's Episcopal Church celebrated the Holy Communion service and double-ring ceremony. The altar was decorated with white gladioli and white fugi. Ronald Rothermel of Manchester was organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white organza gown designed with high neckline, modified Empire bodice, long Bishop sleeves cuffed at wrists, full skirt accented with vented lace and a full chapel-length train. Her well of imported illusion was edged with lace and attached to a lace headpiece. She carried a cascade bouquet of orchids, white sweetheart roses and ivy.

Miss Maureen Shirley of Portland was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Donna Aseltine of Aston, Pa.; Mrs. Joanne Morton of Manchester, the bride's sister-in-law; and Miss Benetta Morgan of Ellington, the bridegroom's sister. Miss Melissa Morgan of Ellington the bridegroom's niece, was flower girl.

John L. Plaster Jr. of Coventry was his brother's best man. Ushers were Wayne Schnell of Manchester; William Morgan of Ellington, the bridegroom's brother-in-law; and David Morton of Manchester, the bride's brother.

A reception was held at Willie's Steak house in Manchester, after which the couple left for Florida. For traveling, Mrs. Plaster wore a short-sleeved polyester dress with matching scarf. The couple will reside in Manchester.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Plaster are employed by the Town of Coventry. She is a second grade teacher and he is a physical education teacher. He is currently attending the University of Connecticut for his M.S. degree.

Sara Emerson Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Young, Notch Rd., Bolton, received an A.A. degree in creative writing and literature, and social and political science from Franconia College on June 5.

She was a 1972 graduate of Williston-Norhampton School in East Hampton, Mass.

Linda Colbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Colbert of 268 Scott Dr., was graduated magna cum laude from Bryant College in Smithfield, R.I. She received an A.S. degree and majored in the legal secretarial program.

At Bryant, she participated in softball, baseball and volleyball. Miss Colbert was graduated from East Catholic High School in 1974.

Ship Prototype Perhaps the first vessel powered by twin-screw propellers similar to those that drive modern ships was the "Little Juliana," a steamboat invented by Col. John Stevens that chugged from New York to Hoboken in May, 1804.

The owner pays!

You owners of the 3,600 Manchester dogs that still don't have their new tags, be thankful you're not living in Arvada, Colo. A drafting error in the city's animal control ordinance has just been noticed and it's being corrected. It provides that if a stray pet picked up by the city (a suburb of Denver) isn't claimed by its owner within 24 hours, the owner (that's right, the owner) will be destroyed. In Manchester, June 30 is the deadline date for obtaining 1978 dog tags. After that date, there will be a penalty and the possibility of arrest.

The fees are $3.50 for male dogs and spayed female dogs and $7.70 for unspayed female dogs.

The town clerk's office (in the Municipal Building) is open daily from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Bing marks 50th year

LONDON (UPI) — Bing Crosby strolled casually Monday night through what he called the most important engagement of his life—his first appearance on London stage. It was a milestone in another way—Crosby's 50th anniversary in show business. He brought his family along to sing and dance with him to a packed London Palladium.

"It's not of celebrating my demicentennial," Crosby said. He first sang in public 50 years ago this month.

He tipped a hat to nostalgia at the beginning and the end—a wartime memory of Bing opening London's Stage Door Canteen, then a long medley of old favorite songs.

But the rest of the three-hour show was new all the way. Bing's family helped with much of it.

He waltzed a little with wife Kathryn, showed off son Harry III's classical guitar, sang to a dance by daughter Mary Frances and sang a roundelay with golfing son Nathaniel.

The 72-year-old crooner joked that he "decided to get off the golf course and back to work when somebody in a Hollywood parking lot looked at me and said, 'Didn't you used to be Bing Crosby?'" He spent the evening proving he still was. At the end, the audience rose cheering to their feet in appreciation.

Hand Salute Hand-raising as a formal greeting originated among cave-men to prove they carried no weapons. In feudal times, an armored knight raised his right arm to lift his helmet visor and to show friendship by keeping his sword hand away from the weapons. The gesture developed into the military salute. Before the 19th century, British soldiers saluted by tipping their hats.

Social Security

Q. Both my wife and I get Supplemental Social Security Income (SSI) payments. We're thinking of moving in with our son. If we do, will our payments be affected?

A. A change in the amount of SSI is generally necessary when people go to live in another person's household. If you do move, you should report this change to the Social Security office right away.

Q. I just got a letter from Social Security telling me it's time for my redetermination. I've been eligible for SSI payments for a year. Why do I have to have a redetermination?

A. Under the SSI program, a yearly redetermination is made for each recipient. The purpose of the redetermination is simply to make sure that your payment amount is correct, and that there have been no changes in your income, resources, or living arrangements.

Q. The information that I received in answer to my request for a statement of earnings from Social Security shows lower wages than I thought should be in the record. At least two years of wages seem to be missing. What should I do?

A. If your records or recollection do not agree with the statement you get from Social Security, you should get in touch with any Social Security office which will first check to see if any missing reports of earnings can be located. If none is found, the office will contact the employers you had during the questionable two years to get a statement of your earnings. The Social Security office will not disclose your name to the employer. In connection with the correction of your record unless you give them your permission.

Q. The courthouse in my town burned down years ago along with my birth records. What can I use as a substitute to prove my age for Social Security?

A. A baptismal record or religious record of birth established before age five is sufficient. If this is not available, other evidence used together to establish your age may include school records, census record, Bible or other family record, religious record of confirmation or baptism in youth or early adult life, insurance policy, marriage record, employment record, fraternal organization record, military record, voting certificate, birth certificate of child showing age of parent, physician or midwife's record of birth, or passport.

Q. I have been married three times. My husband and I are both 65 and plan to retire soon. Will my previous marriages affect my benefits as his wife?

A. No. Just be sure to bring your marriage certificate for your present marriage, and information on your previous marriages.

What is Affirmative Action?

Concerned that most people know little about Affirmative Action, the Human Relations Commission is planning to define the plan in a simplified form. The commission also believes that there is a widespread misconception that Affirmative Action takes jobs and opportunities away from people who do not qualify as a minority, giving to those who do qualify. Joseph Sweeney, newly appointed to the commission, said that if a sam-

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Abigail Adams met George Washington for the first time on July 15, 1775, soon after he took command of the Continental Army at Cambridge. She was very impressed by him. "The one half was not told me," she wrote her husband, John, of his "Dignity with ease... Modesty marks every line and feature of his face." The World Almanac recalls.

OTB being checked

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso Tuesday said her legal counsel is looking into a dispute over the validity of a state contract with the firm that operates Connecticut's off-track-betting system.

State Attorney General Carl Ajello has said the contract with American Totalizer Inc. and a controversial amendment are binding, but state auditors have said they're not so sure.

Mrs. Grasso, a staunch opponent of OTB, said attorney Aaron Monti of Bridgeport is reviewing the pact and will discuss his findings with Ajello and the auditors and then report back to her.

"We need to have all the facts of judgment so we can make a decision," she said, declining to specify what steps she would take if the contract was found not binding.

Mrs. Grasso has criticized the contract for giving AmTote too large a share of the OTB revenues. A recent state report predicted Connecticut would earn $2.2 million from OTB next year while AmTote would get more than $4 million.

"All projections are always subject to change," she told reporters at her morning news conference. "It would be better if we had a better return on this than others."

In other matters, Mrs. Grasso said part of an $8.1 million surplus projected for the end of this month would be used to reclassify and upgrade the salaries of state employees.

But she rejected a state employee union proposal to use the money for an across-the-board pay hike for state workers, saying her own plan "is a step we can take at this time and that's where we are going."

Mrs. Grasso also said she talked with Hartford Democratic Town Chairman Peter Kelly, and although his candidacy for state chairman was discussed, he did not ask her for her support and she did not commit herself to him.

She acknowledged Kelly had close ties with former Hartford Town Chairman Nicholas Carbone, who has been feuding with the governor, but said that did not bother her.

"Peter Kelly is a person who makes his own judgments and it would be grossly unfair to judge him under his other relations," she said.

Manchester

Hi folks. Well, I just want to say on behalf of all our members who rode on our float in the parade that we sincerely thank everyone for the tremendous response we got all along the route. Calling, cheering and hand-clapping started right as we rounded N. Main St. onto Main St., and continued every bit of the way. I'm telling you it really shook us up and made us feel real good, so good that we were afraid to stop singing. By the time we reached the Center I felt we were all sung out, but the cheering kept us going. The most popular song, and one that sounded like a broken record, was, "When the Seniors Come Marching In." We couldn't keep the float around for the ceremonies because, after all, the vehicle was a loan to us, and we felt so happy to be able to have the float that it was only proper to get it all undressed and back into its normal shape as soon as possible. We weren't looking for any prizes because we knew there were many beautiful floats in the parade. We felt great just being a part of the celebration and having you folks behind us. Great trip.

News for senior citizens and hopefully in a couple of weeks when all is back in order we will get another one. Meanwhile, I'm sorry to announce that we will not be able to pick people up for any reason whatsoever. For the time being you will have to bear with us, and get to the center or other places the best way you can. Our lunch program will be starting on next Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and we will be able to pick people up from the fairways in East Hartford and the results follow: Ernie Segerberg, 41; Russell Nettleton, 45; Jack DuPont, John Gibson, and Vince Porter, 46; Edward Lithwin, Leon Parmakian, and Charles Romanowski, 47; Al Bolla, 48; Merrill Dickinson, and Hector Provost, 49; and Agnes Green, 56. In the afternoon we had 44 persons playing pinocle, and these were the lucky winners: Ernestine Donnelly, 701; Esther Anderson, 694; Leon Falot, 687; Betty Jesania, 678; Helena Gavello, 676; Emma Russell, 662; Violet Dion, 654; Cecile Benson, 647; Lee Steiner, 643; Bess Moonan, 641; and Clara Hemingway, 628.

Seelye assigned to Lebanon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said Tuesday he is sending a senior representative to Lebanon. Secretary of State Talcott Seelye is to take charge temporarily of the U.S. Embassy in Beirut following the murder of Ambassador Francis E. Meloy Jr. The White House said Seelye will go to Beirut "at the earliest possible date" because, "in view of the present situation in Lebanon," Ford and Secretary of State Henry

Vacation tours

Problems arising from vacation tours offered by travel agents are the subject of a special inquiry by a federal agency.

As a result of consumer complaints nationwide, the Federal Trade Commission recently authorized its Boston regional office to conduct an investigation of travel businesses to determine whether they are violating the FTC Act.

This investigation, reputed to be the most comprehensive government investigation of the travel business ever undertaken, will involve looking into complaints from independent travelers as well as group travel participants.

Misleading advertising, schedule changes and hotel overbooking are among the complaints to be investigated.

Connecticut consumers can be of help in the investigation. Much of the FTC work will be conducted with analyzing consumer complaints concerning the travel industry.

Rodney E. Gould, assistant FTC regional director and head of the investigation, is urging the public to send complaints to this address: Federal Trade Commission, Room 1301, 150 Causeway St., Boston, Mass. 02114.

One possible outcome of the investigation could be a recommendation that the FTC promulgate a new Trade Regulation Rule. For example, a new rule could require tour operators to inform their clients of itinerary or schedule changes as soon as they occur.

Right To Quit

"I've had it," Hazel announced to her employer after less than a month on the job. "It isn't the work that's getting me down. It's the lack of work. I get bored just sitting around."

Later, Hazel put in a claim for unemployment insurance on the ground that she had a "right to quit." But her claim was rejected in court. The court said she was out of work by her own choice, hence was not covered by the law.

Actually, Hazel did have a point. Although unemployment insurance is primarily intended for those who have been forced out of their jobs, it also extends to those who have quit for some compelling reason.

But the court decided mere boredom was not compelling. Neither is a moderate change of working conditions. A cab driver had for years been driving a car with a stick shift. When the company wanted him to drive a car with an automatic shift, he decided the change was too much for him and he walked out.

But again a court found that his reason for quitting was less than overwhelming and denied his claim for unemployment insurance.

On the other hand, working conditions may be so onerous that the employee does indeed have a right to quit without losing his eligibility. Consider this case:

When business turned sluggish at a downtown furniture store, the owner ordered one of his salesmen to work at a paint booth in the basement.

But the salesman happened to be allergic to paint. Unable to change the owner's mind, he finally gave up the job.

Under these circumstances, the salesman was held entitled to unemployment insurance. The court said he was "justified in refusing as unsuitable, work which he had reasonable apprehension to believe he could not perform without serious injury to himself."
