State

NEWINGTON — Police said Sunday they acted on their own initiative, not on any complaint, when they closed the Two Guys store shortly after it opened at 10 a.m. and arrested manager Edward Graber of Agawam, Mass. The arrest appeared to be the first enforcement action taken under the state's new Sunday closing or "blue" law modifications which have been causing confusion among store operators, police and prosecutors since they went into effect June 9.

HARTFORD — Inventory records at the Greater Hartford Community College are so inadequate that equipment reported stolen is later found elsewhere on the campus, according to a state auditor report issued Sunday. The report cited 17 problems reflecting "sloppy business practices" which the school's president, Arthur C. Banks Jr. said will be corrected as soon as possible.

Regional

TRURO, Mass. — Three bodies which washed ashore here and a fourth found at sea Sunday are believed to be the occupants of a single-engine Canadian plane reported missing on a flight from Nantucket to Provincetown. Names are being withheld pending notification of relatives. The plane was reported missing at 6 p.m. Saturday and the bodies were found at 9 a.m. Sunday.

BOSTON — Negotiators for the state and a union coalition representing some 50,000 Massachusetts state workers were reported $300 to $400 apart on a wage increase package as marathon talks continued through Sunday night and into today. Eric Schmertz, mediator, was hopeful a settlement might be reached today.

National

PASADENA, Calif. — Scientists searched the surface of Mars today for an alternate landing site for Viking 1's life-hunting lander, canceling the July 4 Bicentennial touchdown because "Mars would not cooperate." The original landing site, they said, "appears to have too many unknowns and could be hazardous."

WASHINGTON — Most major conflicts accompanying court-ordered school busing are caused by people and forces outside the schools, according to a Justice Department report which says violence tends to decrease with time.

LOS ANGELES — Ronald Reagan, in an interview, has accused President Ford of "playing with fire" that could destroy the Republican party. He accused Ford of employing "divisive" and "arm-twisting tactics" at state party conventions which could make the nomination worthless to Ford if he wins it.

International

NEUFVILLE, Belgium — An Amsterdam-to-Paris express packed with holiday travelers derailed Sunday as it sped through the Belgian countryside, flinging five cars into electrical pylons and leaving a half-mile tangle of smashed coaches and dismembered bodies. Eleven passengers were killed and 29 injured. A heat wave which caused rails to buckle was blamed for the accident.

LISBON, Portugal — Army Chief Gen. Antonio Ramalho Eanes swept to a landslide victory today in Portugal's first free presidential elections on his reputation as a no-nonsense military leader promising to put the country back to work. Eanes polled just over 61 per cent of the vote compared with less than 17 per cent given his nearest rival, far-left Maj. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho.

BANGKOK, Thailand — The flag of the last active American servicemen in mainland Asia has been hauled down at a retreat ceremony at the U. S. Military Assistance Command in Thailand. American forces have been cut from 48,000 in 1973 to fewer than 500. By July 20, there will be only 270 advisors limited to overseeing U. S. military aid and offering advice to the Thai military.

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Christian forces moving in for the kill said today they were about to capture two encircled Palestinian camps that have been under siege for six days. They demanded unconditional surrender.

Leaders discuss measures to control global inflation

DORAÑO, Puerto Rico (UPI) — The heads of state of seven major industrial powers today began the final round of talks on ways to avert another surge of global inflation and unemployment brought by over ambitious welfare and other social programs.

President Ford and the leaders of Britain, France, Japan, Italy, Canada and West Germany agreed at their opening session Sunday that their biggest challenge was coordination to hold inflation in check.

President Ford asked the visiting heads of state to set more "realistic" goals and hold down government spending, especially wide swinging social programs.

Thousands of Puerto Ricans demonstrated under heavy guard outside the gates of the resort compound Sunday, and today there was a one-day strike by 5,500 telephone, bus and taxi drivers.

There was concern that the telephone strike could cut off communications at the summit site but otherwise the heads of state were not affected by the walkout.

Ford, rising early, took a swim in the Dorado Beach Hotel pool before meeting French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing for a private breakfast meeting.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and French Minister of Foreign Affairs Jean Sauvagnargues also attended the one-hour meeting. White House spokesmen would not disclose the subjects discussed, but one topic was believed to be relations with Third World nations.

That topic, along with others, was on the agenda for today's two formal summit sessions. The French want the Western powers to take a more accommodating position with developing nations. Kissinger and Ford want a tough, unified Western front.

Ford and the other leaders have held private bilateral talks on problems between their nations. The summit, the second held by the major non-Communist powers in eight months, was to conclude later today with joint and individual statements.

U.S. officials hosting the two-day conference on this tropical resort said the mood was one of "determination, confidence and joint responsibility."

The talks have been freewheeling and dealt from the outset with economic recovery and monetary issues.

Alan Greenspan, Ford's chief economic adviser, said the President told the other leaders recession and joblessness were caused by a decade of persistent inflation. Greenspan said Ford expressed his own long-held view that the United States and other governments had overextended themselves in the drive to right social wrongs.

The global inflationary climate came about in large part, Ford said, because "governments overcommitted themselves to ameliorate social inequities at home and abroad and to achieve rising standard of living." Greenspan told reporters.

"These commitments proved to be, in retrospect, in economic terms, too ambitious in what they actually achieved as well as in expectations they raised, and as a consequence, the major task of the next several years is both economic and political to restore the economy to a sustained growth pattern but also to accept realistic goals that are accepted by the public as a whole."

Buckland zoning changes upheld

By DOUG BEVINS

(Herald Reporter)
Rezoning of tobacco land in Buckland for a huge, mixed-use development has been upheld by the Hartford County Court of Common Pleas.

Judge Rodney Eielson, in a decision received by local attorneys today, dismissed an appeal brought by several Buckland area homeowners who opposed the zone changes.

Judge Eielson ruled that the appellants were not aggrieved and had no right to challenge two parts of the rezoning case: A change to Comprehensive Urban Development (CUD) Zone for 139 acres of the east side of Buckland St. and a change to Industrial Zone for 10 acres on the east side of Buckland St., south of I-86.

Two other parts of the rezoning — 28 acres of Industrial Zone on the east side of Buckland St., north of I-86, and 81 1/2 acres of Business 3 Zone east of Windsor St. — were also upheld by Judge Eielson, who rejected eight claims made by the appellants.

The rezoning was voted on March 4, 1974 by the Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission, after public hearings on an application by M.A.P. Associates, an investment partnership led by developer Arthur M. Fischer of New York City.

Appellants in the case, which was filed in the Hartford court more than a year ago, were William and Catherine Anderson, Larry and Minna Noone, David and Geraldine Thompson, Winfred and Shirley M. Pointer, Earl and Doris White, James and Julie McAuley, William and Elisabeth Case, Raymond and Elaine Smith, and Douglas and Celia Henderson.

Defendants in the case were the Planning and Zoning Commission; M.A.P. Associates; the Hartman Tobacco Co., which owns the Buckland acreage, and several other persons who have a financial interest in the development site.

Judge Eielson said there is no evidence showing a "specific, personal and legal interest" by any of the appellants in regards to the CUD Zone and the 10-acre Industrial Zone. "More generalizations and fears are not enough," the judge ruled, in dismissing the appeal on those two zone changes.

Judge Eielson did find legal agreement in regard to the other two changes, but the appeal on those matters was dismissed for other reasons.

The judge rejected appellants' claims that the zone changes caused irregular protrusions into Rural Residence Zones; that residential streets would be devoted to business and industrial use; that the changes constituted spot zoning; that the changes weren't in accordance with the town's Comprehensive Plan; that traffic hazards would result; that the Planning and Zoning Commission considered evidence illegally; that M.A.P. Associates was not a legal entity; and that there had been inadequate legal notice of public hearings conducted in November 1973.

"The court finds that the commission conducted public hearings, expert testimony was received both for and against the zone changes, that all interested parties were given opportunity to be heard, that the meetings were conducted in a fair and reasonable manner; and further, the appellants have now failed to prove any of their allegations," Judge Eielson said.

"The commission did not act illegally, arbitrarily or in abuse of its discretion," Judge Eielson said in the conclusion of the decision.

Atty. Jerome Walsh, who represented the appellants, said today he had not yet consulted his clients and had no comment on the decision. Walsh wasn't certain a further court appeal would be filed (the deadline is 20 days away).

Atty. Allen Duffy, counsel for M.A.P. Associates, said he and his clients were pleased by the decision. Duffy said there are approvals needed from many other regulatory agencies before development can begin.

Fischer's plan for the Buckland property, which includes about 300 acres in South Windsor as well as the Manchester land, envisions a long-range (15-year) development program, including a regional shopping center, a motel, an office-research park, and a total of 2,000 condominium housing units.

Ford 66 votes shy of GOP nomination

By ELIZABETH WHARTON

United Press International
President Ford is moving closer to the magic number of 1,130 delegates needed for the Republican nomination — but Ronald Reagan is moving closer to Ford.

According to UPI's tabulation, Ford's 17-1 victory in Minnesota Saturday brought him to within 66 votes of the number he needs to win. But Sunday, Reagan's sweep of 45 delegates in Idaho, Montana and New Mexico moved him to within 70 votes of Ford.

Reagan is accusing Ford of "playing with fire" that could destroy the Republican party, while Ford supporter Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., a member of the GOP platform committee, said Republican candidates would have a tough time if Reagan became the party's standard-bearer.

In the Democratic race, with only five Puerto Rican delegates still to be chosen, the UPI tabulation shows Jimmy Carter with at least 1,714 — well over the 1,505 needed for the nomination at the convention next month in New York.

The person-by-person count in the the Republican race shows 103 uncommitted and 98 still to be chosen, including entire delegations in Connecticut, North Dakota and Utah and a partial delegation in Colorado.

The UPI tabulation includes the following delegates "leaning" to one or the other candidate: three in Guam for Ford, 17 in Hawaii for Ford, five for Ford and one for Reagan in Illinois, two each in Minnesota, four for Ford in South Carolina, one for Ford in Vermont, one for Ford and four for Reagan in Virginia, four for Ford in the Virgin Islands, one for Ford and 14 for Reagan in Wyoming. The rest are committed.

Standing ovation greets Pops 'n Harmony concert

By June Tompkins
If the resounding applause and number of standing ovations were any indication of the success of Sunday night's Pops 'n Harmony concert in Bailey Auditorium, the combined barbershop chorus and Manchester Civic Orchestra should take the hint and plan for similar annual pops events.

It was a repeat of a performance which was presented in the afternoon. The orchestra proved that, as an amateur group, it has the professional ability to adapt itself to all forms of musical performance. It performed probably one of its most difficult programs Sunday in the medium of pop music, and more difficult yet, barbershop chorus accompaniment.

Barbershop style does not adhere to the strict beat of most other types of music, but is unique in that it takes liberties with phrasing and tempo which is unteachable to write in musical arrangement. But the orchestra Sunday, directed so well by Dr. Jack Heller, accomplished the almost impossible when it accompanied a 100-member barbershop chorus of members from central Connecticut and Massachusetts in a barbershop medley for chorus and orchestra at the program's end. For a grand finale, all stops were pulled in a combined performance of Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever."

at a great speed, too fast, really, to appreciate his fine technique. Many of the rapid passages became blurred in sound and were not as precise as they might have been had Charlambe taken a easier tempo. At times, it was difficult to hear the piano over the orchestra.

But the total performance was good to listen to and proved that there is local talent capable of doing good solo work with the orchestra. The orchestra also played classic pops favorites by Leroy Anderson, Leonard Bernstein and Morton Gould. In a medley arrangement from "West Side Story," and the Boston Common started in their rendition of "Till We Meet Again."

Proceeds from the concert benefited the orchestra and the barbershoppers' competition travel fund. In 1971, the use of public funds for parochial schools was ruled unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court. In 1972, President Nixon announced that no more draftees would be sent to Vietnam unless they volunteered.

NEW MILFORD (UPI) — A church school bus rolled out of a parking lot, down an embankment and into a tree stump but none of the 25 children on board were injured, police said. The accident occurred Sunday when the driver was backing out of the Faith Baptist Temple Parking Lot.

The Manchester Area Conference of Churches has four divisions, one of which is Social Action. People tend to think of "social action" in terms of being apart from the more spiritual aspects of the Christian life. When we study the scriptures and the life of our Lord, Jesus Christ, it becomes clear that "social action" in the context of Matthew 25:31-40 is the fruit of our spiritual union with Jesus.

Network Homes, elderly housing, juvenile problems, youth job bank, Operation Rice Bowl, Emergency Pantry, — all offer additional areas of involvement.

'Slow' nuclear haste preferred by voters

The recent referendum in California on the future of nuclear energy in that state may turn out to be a contest in which everybody wins.
By a two-to-one margin, Californians decisively rejected Proposition 13, which would have mandated impossible safety and performance standards for nuclear power plants and, according to opponents of the proposition, have stopped the development of nuclear energy in its tracks.
Both sides expended millions of dollars in promoting their arguments.

Contributing to the defeat of Proposition 13, however, was the action by the California legislature on the eve of the balloting in passing three measures relating to nuclear plant safety, and signed by Gov. Edmund Brown, which greatly counteracted the scary vision of atoms gone wild conjured up by the antinuclear forces.

Thus while Californians have signified that they want nuclear energy, the industry has been put on notice (if it were not already well aware) that the public is intensely concerned about this issue and will demand the closest monitoring of nuclear development from here on out. The industry still faces similar referenda in other states.

Actually, the questions of reactor safety, the disposal of radioactive wastes and the possibility of sabotage or theft of nuclear materials have been grossly distorted, not only in California but elsewhere in the country where nuclear plants have been built or are planned.
The real problem facing the industry in the immediate future may be a shortage of uranium and prohibitively high prices for the ore, which have already escalated from $8 a pound in January 1974 to around $35 or $30 today.

So much uranium will be needed soon just for currently operating reactors that some industry executives are convinced the U.S. won't get by without substantial imports, reported. "It is probably too late to avoid an important uranium export program," it

Acheson book recommended reading for Carter

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter sounds as if the November election will be a mere formality decreed by custom before his inevitable assumption of the Presidency.
"Be sure, Carter has to be today's odd-man favorite to climb to the top of what Diarelli called "the grassy pole" of political power-seeking. But I detect in the Georgian a tendency to play the role of lord of the manor.

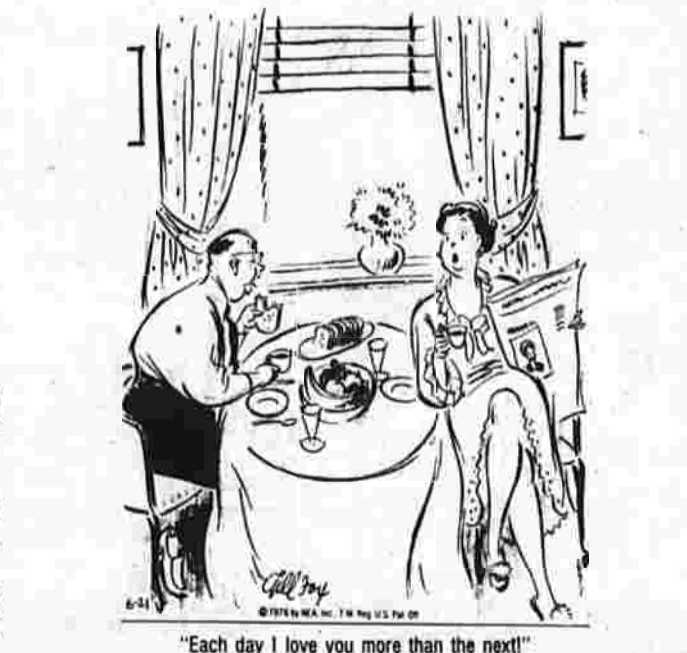

He just misses looking down his nose at journalists, and seems to feel it only his due, by divine right, that so many powerful Democrats have flocked to his banner.
I may be wronging this generally attractive man. Perhaps he is merely

Fireworks: Some do's and don'ts

Tanya Parker
Summer Intern
Herald Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — "Each July 4th, more fireworks are ignited in the United States than for any other national celebration in the world," according to the American Pyrotechnics Association (APA).
Imagine, then, what this Bicentennial year's celebration will be like. The June 21 issue of Business Week says speculators on July 4 will view a record $240 million worth of fireworks!

Ironically, the use of fireworks to celebrate American independence was an idea borrowed from the birthday celebrations of George III—the very kind from whom we won our independence. Regardless of the source, however, it has become a national tradition.
"Approximately 10 million Americans light fireworks themselves each year, and millions more attend public displays and watch fireworks ignited by others," says the APA, the official organization of licensed fireworks shooters in America.

Unfortunately, a significant number of fireworks-related injuries has also become traditional each Independence Day. Many put the blame entirely on the fireworks, but after numerous hearings, the Consumer Product Safety Commission concluded this year that "the most exulting in his first opportunity to relax since he started campaigning in January 1975. But my advice to him would be to take it easy, not royally. They still have to count the votes.

Perhaps my years are showing, but none of the current crop of Presidential candidates stirred me to throwing my hat in the air and giving three cheers. They are all okay as people, but none so far has revealed the qualities of the Uncommon Man that enable a candidate to succeed both success and trouble in stride and thus establish a commonality with what might be called the Common Man.
Eisenhower was one of my favorites because he seemed to regard his celebrity coolly, as something that just happened. Harry Truman took his job seriously, yet need more than anything else is a President who will give his respect, man-to-man, to those who work for him. Whoever wins in November will need all the help he can get, and he will forfeit much of that help if, like Roosevelt, he sits for advice both his subordinates and the people by whom he himself is employed.
Jimmy Carter has proclaimed himself a man of the people. I hope he is. Certainly, he has shown himself capable of being old-shoe. If, as it seems here, he now feels stirrings of immortality, he should read Acheson's book and discover the affection and esteem in which that wise aristocrat held the former hardbasher he served as Secretary of State.

CHARLESTON, S.C., June 28 — A British squadron under Adm. Samuel Parker tried to run the channel to Charleston by the American fortifications at Sullivan's Island. After a 10-hour fray, the British warships withdrew with several ships severely damaged and Adm. Parker's breeches blown off by an American shell. The British casualties were 261 wounded and killed, including fatally wounded South Carolina Gov. Campbell. American forces sustained 12 dead and 23 wounded.

common cause of fireworks-related injuries is misuse, principally by children under 14."
"Children misuse fireworks by constructing home-made devices, by pointing projectile types at others, by holding devices in their hands, by placing properly manufactured devices in glass or metal containers, or throwing them in inflammable liquids," listed Paul N. Pfeiffer, presiding judge at the hearings.
Pfeiffer added, however, that "to prohibit all fireworks nationally would frustrate patriotic, religious and cultural expression by a substantial percentage of American citizens."
So the APA has some basic celebrate American independence was an idea borrowed from the birthday celebrations of George III—the very kind from whom we won our independence. Regardless of the source, however, it has become a national tradition.

Look out for any fireworks that is exploding individually, a number of times. Color quality is also important. A beautiful deep blue, especially, is a true work of art, says experts.

How did we get to Globe Hollow for swimming 40 or more years ago? Hoofing it, for one; biking it for another.
Some took the trolley car to South Terminal and walked through the woods near Gould's Pond at Mt. Nebo Pl. to Mt. Nebo Field and across Spring St. to Globe.
But the Center Springs Gang had another mode of transportation — Timmy Holloran's bears.
The bears were loaded with kids every swimming day at 1 o'clock. It was housed in the big garage in back of the Chris McFalls home at 189 Center St., right next to Klein's Market. The funeral home was at 178 Center St.
All the kids in the neighborhood of Center, Valley, Winter, Knox and Edgerly Sts., and Rosemary Pl., were invited to get the free ride to Globe. If Timmy didn't drive us, then Max Kasulki did. Max was Timmy's assistant.
We sometimes got to Globe earlier because Timmy would have an early afternoon funeral.
Timmy took kids to Hilliard Pond, too.
The return trip from Globe was at 4 o'clock, and often it took a longer time to get home than it did to Globe. That's because Timmy would stop for that afternoon coffee ice cream milk shake at Collie Magnell's; sometimes he'd treat his passengers to an ice cream cone.

Dr. Kennedy will discuss school building programs

The status of a building grant application for the Bentley School and Washington School/West Side Rec construction program will be discussed by School Supt. James Kennedy at tonight's meeting of the Manchester Board of Education.
The school board's public meeting is scheduled for 8 at school administrative headquarters, 45 N. School St.

Art Kadish en route to first place. Pole vaulter won with leap of 15 feet, three inches.

McDaid, Duggan win distance runs

By EARL YOST Sports Editor. Almost left at the post, late arriving Danny McDaid of County Donegal, Ireland left a favorable impression on Manchester when he literally ran away from the field to win the featured 20 kilometer (12 mile) run Saturday afternoon in 87-degree temperature.

Talented Jayne Surdyka, a senior at the University of Florida, like McDaid and Duggan, was in a class by herself in the featured Three Mile for women, finishing nearly four minutes ahead of her nearest challenger, Mary Loan.

All told, 86 finished the three-mile race and 72 were checked off for the 12 miles. There were a number of dropouts and many no-shows.
