A car stops in front of the house and, if Mrs. McKay is in sight, someone asks, "Do you mind? We just wanted to see your garden."

They call the garden "old-fashioned" to go with their small red-painted house which isn't really old but was planned and built to look old.

Syrians expand control of Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian troops seized control of northern and eastern Lebanon today and struck to within a few miles of the leftist-held southern part of Sidon. Rightist sources said they were expected to attack Sidon within hours in a prelude to an assault on Beirut.

In the eastern Bekaa valley, advance columns of a 4,000-man Syrian force that crossed the frontier supported by 200 tanks Tuesday moved four miles west from Chitaura to the eastern range of Mount Lebanon about a mile west of the ski resort of Dahir el Baider, reports from the region said.

Music shell model shown

The Women's Club of Manchester has donated $661 for the proposed community music shell. The gift was the profit from its "Tasting Treats" cookbook.

Witnesses from the area reported that the Jewish state reserves the right "to take the necessary measures to protect our interests if and when they are endangered."

The Syrian invasion came only hours before Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin arrived in Damascus. The Soviets have opposed Syrian intervention in Lebanon and Western diplomats said Damascus apparently decided it would be easier to send in troops before rather than during Kosygin's visit.

Leftist chief Kamal Jumblatt charged that "Syria could not undertake such a move without getting a green light from America."

In Washington, State Department spokesman Robert Fuschel said Tuesday the United States "remains opposed to outside intervention" in Lebanon.

However, he later told reporters the important thing was to end the civil war "however that may be brought about."

Rumors swept Beirut that the Syrians' next move would be a march through leftist-held territory to the capital.

One left-wing source said Syrian troops were reported moving across the southern end of the Bekaa toward the strategic port of Sidon, 28 miles south of the capital, but the report could not be confirmed.

Military observers noted that although the Syrians were only 30 miles from Beirut, concentrations of leftist and Palestinian troops in mountain strongholds might make a direct thrust to the west difficult.

Reagan wins West; Carter loses two

By CLAY P. RICHARDS United Press International

Ronald Reagan scored two more primary victories in Montana and South Dakota Tuesday but lost to President Ford by a landslide in Rhode Island. Democratic front-runner Jimmy Carter won in South Dakota but lost the other two states to the incumbent.

Everyone except Morris Udall won a little bit in the three small primaries that served as a warmup for next week's "super Tuesday" delegate outcome was unclear when California, Ohio and New Jersey elect one-third of the delegates needed to win the nomination in both parties.

Reagan broke about even. The President won easily in Rhode Island and picked up all 19 delegates there, split the South Dakota delegates 5-11 with Reagan and lost heavily in Montana where no delegates were elected.

The three primaries had little effect on the delegate battle. Ford led Reagan by a count of 822 to 651. Among the Democrats, Carter still held a big lead on the Democratic side, adding 20 delegates for a total of 965. Udall was a distant second with 308.

"The President, I believe, did a little better than expected," said Ford's campaign chairman Rogers Morton. He said the Ford campaign had not expected to win nine delegates in South Dakota.

Here's how the three primaries came out: Rhode Island — Ford got two-thirds of the vote and all 19 delegates, overwhelming Reagan by a vote of 9-341 to 4419. In a close three-way race, the incumbent, Carter, received 31 per cent of 18,002 votes, to 30 per cent or 18,141 for Carter and 28 per cent or 16,698 for Ford.

Terrorists hit Air Force station

WIESBADEN, West Germany (UPI) — Terrorists striking against an American installation for the second time in less than 24 hours penetrated a U.S. Air Force station early today and set fire to two trucks.

An Air Force spokesman said the arsonists struck at the Lindsey Air Base in Wiesbaden, 50 miles from Frankfurt where terrorists Tuesday bombed a U.S. Army headquarters.

No injuries were reported at the air station. Sixteen persons were injured — 15 of them Americans — Tuesday in the bombing attack on the army's V Corps headquarters in Frankfurt.

Authorities suspected left-wing urban guerrillas were behind both attacks. An organization calling itself the "Ulrike Meinhof Brigade" today took responsibility for Tuesday's bombing attack. It said in a letter sent to the United Press International in Frankfurt that it struck at the "center of the U.S. imperialist occupation army."

Bombings have taken place throughout Western Europe since the suicide of Mrs. Meinhof, a leader of West Germany's left-wing urban guerrillas, in her Stuttgart prison cell May 9.

The station, situated in a residential area, has no aircraft. It is the headquarters of the 1st Combat Communications Squadron.

German authorities offered a $20,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of the bombers of 5th Corp headquarters.

The injured were treated for puncture wounds, abrasions, burns and shock. Doctors operated on two victims but their condition was described today as not serious.

U.S. armed forces tightened security at all of their 350 military bases in West Germany today to guard against further bombings. Sentries made close identity checks of persons entering American bases and searched autos.

The first bomb exploded in a wastebasket in the headquarters' main building and the other went off three minutes later in an officers' club 200 yards away.

Police arrested three suspects, but said they believed other urban guerrillas also were involved in the explosions.

Several persons arrested in drug traffic crackdown

Police have made seven arrests and expect to make five more in the biggest-ever crackdown on illegal drug trafficking in Manchester.

The arrests came near the end of a two-month investigation which involved lengthy surveillance of several local addresses and undercover purchases of marijuana, hashish, amphetamines and hallucinogenics, Detective Capt. Joseph Sartor said.

The roundup of suspects, in the planning stage for weeks, was touched off Tuesday afternoon by a fight involving three men. Four persons were arrested Tuesday, three more were arrested Tuesday morning, and the other five were being taken into custody today, police said.

Shrinking state of Republican core

The contest for control of Congress is always a sideshow to the main event in a presidential year. If post-World War II history runs true to form, it will also be a foregone conclusion:

Whatever the outcome of the presidential race, the Democrats will emerge as the majority party in Congress, as they have in every election since 1954. The only real question is how large their majority will be.

A poll by the Harris organization finds that by a lopsided 52 per cent to 27 per cent, voters prefer the Democrats over the Republicans in the races for Congress this November. (All 345 seats in the House will be up for grabs in 1976 and 34 of the 100 seats in the Senate.)

A substantial 47 per cent of Americans now consider themselves to be Democrats, while no more than 20 per cent answer to the name Republican. The remaining 33 per cent identify themselves as "independents."

That is one reason the Democrats are likely to retain control of Congress, a control that has been broken only twice since 1932. Another, say the pollsters, is that for some time the public has felt it is better to have a divided government in Washington so that the legislative and executive branch could be a rein on each other.

If so, Americans have added a new form of check-and-balance to their system of government not envisioned by the framers of the Constitution.

A more fundamental reason, however, seems to lie in the way Americans perceive the two major parties. For all the regional and ideological divisions among the Democrats, which not infrequently have enabled a Republican minority in Congress to thwart or modify the programs of a Democratic president, the Democrats have been viewed since Franklin D. Roosevelt as the party with answers to the nation's problems, or at least, a guiding philosophy adaptable to the changing challenges of the times.

The Republicans have been viewed as the party of reaction, if not reactionism — a kind of clean-up crew sent to "straighten out the mess in Washington" whenever the Democrats seemed to have gone too far. Republican successes have been due to Democratic excesses. The Democrats lead, the Republicans try to tidy up behind.

As one observer recently commented, if Republican philosophy, stripped to its essentials, stands for the maximum of individual freedom and the minimum of government interference in people's lives, the party is bereft of any grand design for the nation embodying programs that will both serve that philosophy and at the same time provide practical solutions to the needs and desires of Americans.

All the great domestic legislation since New Deal days, from social security to civil rights to the "war on poverty," have been of Democratic inspiration, or have been so perceived by the public.

Whenever progressivism has reared its head in Republican ranks, it has been met with cries of "me-tooism," as if the only legitimate Republican alternatives to the Democratic programs had to be 180 degrees in the opposite direction. And despite Republican faith that there is a bedrock strain of conservatism in Americans waiting for the call of the right candidate, the one time in the modern era that they offered a thorough-going conservative for president, he was overwhelmingly rejected at the polls.

Yet even with the 1964 Goldwater debacle so fresh in mind, the conservative challenge mounted by Ronald Reagan has been forcing President Ford further and further to the right in order to ensure his party's nomination, even before he can begin to appeal to the broad center of the electorate (represented by that 33 per cent of independents), which any presidential candidate must capture if he hopes to be elected.

Thus the likelihood is not only that the Democrats will control the 95th Congress but that no matter who wins the presidency, the hard core of Americans calling themselves Republicans will continue to shrink.

Today's thought

Did you know? — That God wants you to have joy!
"The joy of the Lord is your strength," said the prophet Nehemiah. And if the joy of the Lord is our strength, then it obviously is not something that comes last in a long line of attainments, sort of like the whipped topping on the cake. It is something we need right now, something to sustain us and strengthen us daily, even hourly.
Joy is something we are meant to feel, but it does not depend on feeling. We are not to rejoice because we feel joyful, rather we can expect to eventually feel joyful as a result of our rejoicing. Many times we mistakenly think that joy is something we experience when we are satisfied and things are happy around us. Instead, joy is triggered by our wills and is part and parcel of the life of praise.

David, the psalmist, knew the secret of rejoicing, as did Saint Paul many centuries later. You, too, can know and experience that "secret."
Why not try it? Thank God for every detail of your life. Right now, God will hear you and will send you His joy.

Judge puts on one-man show

With the spotlight pointed more and more these days at public officials, some of the news items about them make interesting reading. Here are some that didn't seem to make the newspapers.
In Houston one day last week, a district judge astonished a courtroom of onlookers by his unorthodox rulings.

He cited himself for contempt because he was late to court, entered a plea of guilty, agreed with the plea and found himself guilty and then fined himself $40.
Then, explaining he was late because of a doctor's appointment, he took into consideration his previous record for punctuality and his good character and suspended sentence and the fine.

"Promptness," he said, "is a two-way street. If the attorneys and principals are expected to be here on time, then the judge should be, too."
In Topeka, Kansas about the same time, the state attorney general got two tickets for speeding. He didn't complain about the tickets but explained he was trying to speed up justice.
The first time he was caught speeding, he was hurrying to assist in a murder prosecution. The second time, he was returning from a drug raid.
The same highway patrolman caught him both times — one Jack Blow.

Jimmy Carter has joined the establishment

WASHINGTON — As a personality, Jimmy Carter is refreshing. It would be good for the country's brotherhood if, after these years, a Southerner were elected President. Yet my admiration for the man is tinged with unease.
The same, of course, could be said in varying measure of most of the candidates. But Carter rode onto the scene as the man who would "never tell a lie." He is running on his credibility, and he will succeed or fail on his capacity to sell honesty to the electorate.
That is why one is besieged by gnawing doubt when Carter attempts to explain his position vis-a-vis the Vietnam War. The question here is not whether the war was wrong, or immoral; it was supported by too many decent Americans — Hubert Humphrey for example — to get involved in that argument.

But Carter, exalting the pragmatic opportunism of the old-line politicians he daily derides, seems to want in both ways. I say seems, because the language he uses in discussing the war is at least fuzzy and tinged with contradiction.
Speaking to a black audience in an Indianapolis church recently, Carter characterized the war as "racist" and said that because the Vietnamese have yellow skins "we did not regret their deaths as much" as if they had been white. Now that is perhaps permissible demagoguery, given the urgencies and exigencies of a presidential campaign. But Carter can't escape his record. As governor of Georgia, he was a prolonged and persistent supporter of the war. As late as 1974 he favored administration requests for additional appropriations for that war.

In Las Vegas, Carter was confronted with a signed editorial in the Sun by its editor, Hank Greenspan, which said Carter had "organized a day in honor of Lt. William Calley."
Carter denied it. But within a few days after Calley's conviction by a military court for the murder of 22

Vietnamese civilians, Carter proclaimed "American Fighting Men's Day." He asked citizens of the state to display the American flag and show their "complete support for our heroes and our country and our country and rededication to the principles which have made our country great."
All right, I'll buy that. Every serviceman was not named Calley, and Carter has said recently that Calley "was guilty of murder" and thus not representative of our troops in Vietnam: "I never felt any attitude toward Calley except abhorrence."
But after Calley's conviction in 1971, Carter called Calley a "scapegoat," and said his superiors also should have been punished. I'll buy that, too.
Now, however, we have Carter in Indianapolis recalling the "daily spectacle" on American television of American bombers flying out to "firebomb villages" to kill "every man, woman and child in the village to save it." Yes, this is the same Jimmy Carter who tried to dissuade fellow governors from condemning American involvement in the conflict, even as our planes were firebombing Vietnam villages.
In short, Carter was a hawk almost to the very eye of the cease-fire. Again, that was no crime. The troublesome question is how Carter today can denounce as racist a war he so vigorously supported, even if only out of deference to the sentiments of his Georgia constituency.
The answer is he did one of the presidential candidate who strives to tell a special-interest audience things it likes to hear. In so doing, the candidate doesn't have to tell a lie; he merely chooses not to go into the specifics of the truth. Jimmy Carter has joined the establishment.

Impersonal dealings hurt everyone

WASHINGTON — If research on the aging has validity for the rest of us, changes taking place in our society do not bode well for our future emotional sanity.
A study on elderly relocates from state hospitals cited at the Anglo-American Conference on Care of the Elderly held at the National Academy of Sciences found that aged men and women moved from state hospitals did very well — or "fell apart" — depending on specific characteristics of their new environment.
Those oldersters who continued to improve emotionally after leaving the hospital, it may be noted, had gone to environments which gave privacy, encouraged them to do more for themselves, gave them a feeling their lives were under their own control and gave them a feeling of personal self respect.
"Under opposite conditions, the same type of people withdrew and deteriorated," reported Elaine M. Brody, Director of the department of Human Services of the Philadelphia Geriatric Center.
What is frightening is that recent surveys among American voters in connection with the presidential contests indicate that more and more Americans believe their privacy is being seriously gnawed at a multiplicity of computer files, the dividing of income tax returns, bank transactions and credit agency records to one investigator or another and the increasing amount of oneselves or the file number listed in boxes of records in federal, state and local government agencies, military service, civic and community group, business and credit agency and other assorted files.

Our environment is increasingly like that described as contributing to the mental and emotional collapse of the oldersters studied.
There are suggestions in other research that those elderly living in neighborhoods where they feel imprisoned in their homes by fear of robbery and attack, suffer emotionally as a result. As for the rest of us, though not imprisoned, we do worry indeed even in our middle class tree-lined suburban neighborhoods when our children are out after dark.
The effects on the elderly are said to be especially severe if they want to move from such an environment.
And as for personal self respect, we wander at times if we are PHILADELPHIA, June 2 — Virginia Richard Henry Lee wrote to a conservative friend, "It is not a choice then, but necessity that calls for independence as the only means by which foreign alliances can be obtained and a proper confederation by which internal peace and union may be secured." He was to offer the final resolution for independence later in the month.

Car fee planned for Wickham Park

The management of Wickham Park announced today that beginning June 18 admission will be charged for each motor vehicle entering the park. The charge will be 50 cents.
According to officials of Hartford National Bank and Trust Co., which owns and manages the park as trustee of the estate of Clarence H. Wickham, the decision to charge admission was made after a recent review of the park's operating procedures and after consultation with Judge William E. Fitzgerald of Manchester Probate Court, who supervises the administration of the Wickham Trust.
Robert O. Johnston, trust officer in charge of Hartford National's Real Estate Department, said that rates for the use of park facilities have also been revised. A permit to hold a wedding service in the Oriental Garden or at the Italian Shrine is now $25. No charge is made, however, for wedding parties going into the park to take photographs, except the new admission for automobiles.
The charge for use of the group picnic area is now $25, and for the shelter area it is $50, with reduced rates for both areas available to groups and organizations that qualify.
The charge of $2 for the use of individual picnic tables and fireplace grills has been discontinued. These facilities are now open to use without advance reservations.
The tennis courts will also continue to be available for an hour's play without charge.
Johnston also said that in order to reduce the cost of cleaning the grounds and removing refuse, the park management has adopted the policy of restricting the consumption of food and beverages to the picnic areas and the cabin restaurant.

Speaking of Sacramento, there's a move on in the California state legislature to sell the vacant $1.3 million governor's mansion.
Started when Ronald Reagan was governor, it was completed about a year ago. The present governor — Jerry Brown — refuses to live there. One has to wonder how he'd feel about living in the White House.
In San Diego, Calif., one Robert Van Bergen complained to a credit company his new card misspelled his name as Vanbergen. "There should be a space between Van and Bergen," he wrote.
Back came a new card, issued to Robert Vanspace Bergen.
Gov. Ella Grasso has been told of one of the unexpected fringe benefits of her job, granted this year to all Democratic governors.
All governors attending the Democratic National Convention (July 12 in New York City) will be permitted one gun-carrying guard each.
The convention manager said no weapons will be permitted lieutenant governors or senators. It will be the responsibility of the governors to see to it that the guns are registered with the New York Police Department.
"Gun City?"
In Wheaton, Ill. last week, a thief stole the battery from a man's car, then threw it away nearby.
A note on top on the battery read, "Dear Sir, I stole your battery because mine is shot. However, yours is worse. Good luck with it. Thanks anyway."
Speaking of governors, this story is about one who made an inspection visit to a state prison. Talking to as many inmates as he could, he heard almost every one of them insist he was innocent.
When he returned to the State Capitol, he held a meeting with prison officials and disclosed plans to build two new state penitentiaries — "One for the guilty, the other for the innocent."
There's an old folk saying that goes something like this: "A man is not honest simply because he never had a chance to steal."

Reilly given three weeks to file motions in retrial

LITCHFIELD (UPI) — Peter A. Reilly's lawyer has won three weeks to file motions in his client's retrial and said one of the first will be to stop prosecution of Reilly.
T.F. Gilroy Tuesday declined to elaborate on the motions he plans to file in the case in Litchfield County Superior Court, except to say he plans to file one to stop Reilly's further prosecution on a charge he killed his mother.

Judge John F. Bracken gave Daly until June 22 to file motions.
Reilly's case is on the court's jury list. Daly said if attempts to halt the trial fail, "indications are he will be tried in the fall."

Jews to mark Shavuot

The Jewish holiday of Shavuot, or Feast of Weeks, will be observed beginning Thursday evening and continuing through Friday and Saturday.
Services at Temple Beth Shalom will be held Thursday evening at 7:30, Friday at 10 a.m. and 8:15 p.m., and Saturday at 10 a.m.

At the evening service on Friday, 21 students of the Temple School will be confirmed. At the Saturday Morning Service, Viktor (Memorial Prayers) will be recited.
Shavuot follows seven weeks after the first day of Passover. This is based upon the Biblical Commandment to count 50 days after the first day of Passover and to celebrate the 50th day as a holiday. This is why this holiday is also known as Pentecost, a Greek word derived from the word penta, meaning fifty.
Shavuot is observed both as a historic holiday and as a natural festival. Historically, it marks the anniversary of the giving of the Ten Commandments to the Israelites at Mt. Sinai. As a natural holiday, it recalls the early grain harvest in ancient Palestine and the bringing of the first fruits to the temple in Jerusalem. The holiday thus symbolizes both the spiritual and material aspects of life which together make for human fulfillment.

The connection of Shavuot with Sinai has made it a natural time to confirm the young people in the faith of their fathers.
Scholars place the giving of the Ten Commandments in the 13th century BC. For the Jewish people, this was the beginning of a religious tradition which has grown in the course of the millennia and has continued to the present day.

Music opens Masonic anniversary

Music filled the lodge room of the Masonic Temple Tuesday night, the opening event in a series of a 150th anniversary observance.
More than 200 people heard a program of vocal music by the combined Beethoven Glee Club and the Masonic Choir, the Round Table Singers of Manchester High School, solos and duet by Everett MacCluggage and Ronald J. Erickson, and violin and viola solos by James W. Scott.

Accompaniment was furnished by James W. McKay, organist of Manchester Lodge and chairman of the program, and by Melvin Lumpkin, organist at Emanuel Lutheran Church.
Alexander N. Chapman of Stafford,

Most Worshipful Grand Master of Masons in Connecticut, was a visitor. He was presented with medallions of the 150th anniversary of the lodge.
Music ranged from secular to classic to popular, and included such numbers as "Visions," "Onward Ye Peoples," "Serenade" from "The Student Prince" and "Till There Was You" from "Music Man."

Scott played "Elves' Dance," "Salut d'Amour" and "In a Monastery Garden." Tonight the lodge will open at 7:30 at the Old State House in Hartford followed by a guided tour.
An anniversary dinner is next Tuesday at the Masonic Temple at 6:30; for reservations, phone Robert Silva, 643-9098.

News for senior citizens

By WALLY FORTIN

Hi there. Like I said Saturday, our Big Week to Remember is now history, and it all ended with a super setback-military whist card games at the Community Y Friday evening. Our sincere thanks to Ed and Mary McKeever for their usual superb job in running the games.

Our thanks also go to Mary Lucas, Tessie Reister and Mary Hayes who volunteered to help the McKeever. Along with these ladies we had the following senior members who volunteered to serve the goodies: Theresa Negro, Tony Pouch, Ann Thompson, Helen Martino, Jane Fortin, Bernadette Noel, Violet Dion, Bob Doggart, Ann Rouhan and Carl Reuther.

Baseball game
Just a couple of notes of interest to announce. First, come next Monday, we will register for the New York Yankee-athletics game on July 22. We will only have 44 tickets so signing up will be on a first come basis and will cost $10. This pays for the bus and ticket to the game. We will stop on the way home to eat, but this will be on your own.

Tomorrow for our Funday our entertainment committee of Helen Flavell and Eve Warner have come up with a super finale with entertainment by our own members.

Wednesday evening starting at 7 o'clock we will hold an important meeting of the float committee as it is getting down to the nitty-gritty. The parade is just a little more than a week away.

We also want to thank all our hot meal volunteers for doing such a very good job; Irene Poisy, Virginia Dumaine, Dorothy Dahm, Joan Tarca, Geraldine Thompson, Edwin Osgood, Barbara Minnick, Linda Haberman, Isabel Fitzgibbon, Constance Botticelli, Eleanor Beyer, Rachel Belanger, Stella Babaloukas, Judith Adams, Alice Choquette.

I would like to take a minute more to mention a few more names of persons who have been doing the sort of silent volunteering, but a very important and effective job. In the hustle and bustle of big week, and having our fifty persons names to remember to honor, this special group of names deserve a word of praise and a hearty thank you.

Joseph DuPont who has been very instrumental in helping with both golf and bowling and also with the float for the Bicentennial parade; Russell Nettleton, for his help in bowling; Elizabeth Cone, who does a neat job in filling in to answer the phone occasionally; Ida Cormier, who handles our professional and talented entertaining group; the popular "Sunshiners" who represent our center wherever they perform. We have, in goli, the president of the league, James Gleeson, and the secretary-treasurer, Albert Petke, who do a super job every Monday morning.

Wildwood trip
Here is a reminder. Everyone who is going on the Wildwood trip should have their final payment by Friday. That is the balance of their trip whatever that may be. There will be two buses leaving for Wildwood on the first week, and only one bus for the second week. All those who are on the other buses we kept at a waiting list for any cancellations.

American soldiers during the Revolution were lucky to get any clothing at all. Aside from militiamen, uniforms were non-existent. Washington, recognizing the practical attire of the riflemen, tried to have the hunting shirt adopted as uniform, but Congress took no action. It was not until October, 1779, The World Almanac recalls, that blue was adopted as the official Army uniform.

The annual presentation of the Manchester Scholarship Foundation Awards will be Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Manchester High School cafeteria. ### One room schooling preferred

Hebron
Hebron Elementary School revived the one room school this spring in order to show the difference between education in colonial times and today.

The students dressed as students did 200 years ago. They attended the two renovated schools in groups roughly equal to a typical set of students of the times.

Several students of each grade level went in "families" with names common to the times. They carried lunch pails and older "brothers" and "sisters" kept their eye on the younger ones.

A 1976 yellow school bus would pick up a set of students and drop them off at the one room school. After that, there was little semblance of modern schooling.

Warnings on brown paper pinned to the walls told the students, "Look ahead or you will find yourself behind," and "Sing not, hum not, wiggle not, speak not," and "Now is the time for improvement."

Almost all the signs were meant to aid good behavior, not learning, said one of the teachers Mrs. Gay Farmer.

The students attended the Burrows Hill School on Burrows Hill Rd. renovated by Ernest Brink (now deceased) and his wife Helen Brink. They also attended the Gull School on Rt. 85 (Church St.) renovated by Mrs. Henrietta Green.

Paul White, principal, and the teachers and parents running the program dressed as close as possible like school masters and mistresses.

All the groups of students were well behaved despite the long day each spent in school. Many said at the end of their day they preferred the one room school over the modern Hebron Elementary School.

Town debates appeal

VERNON
BARBARA RICHMOND
John Loranger, town planner, is working with the state Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities in drafting a revised Affirmative Action Plan for Vernon.

The commission recently cited the town as being in violation of the civil rights provisions of the federal revenue sharing program.

It told the town it should develop methods to recruit minorities and women for employment to reflect the composition of the Hartford labor market area which is 39.5 per cent minority and 10.6 per cent female.

Other recommendations included: The police and fire departments should actively recruit minorities and women; all criteria in hiring by the police department should be eliminated; and municipal employee contracts should include provisions for maternity/pregnancy leave.

At its meeting Tuesday the council discussed appealing the commission's finding but decided against action now.

Mayor Thomas Benoit said the town has always tried to be fair.

"I think they've gone overboard in the way they've approached us," he said.

Councilman Thomas Dooley questioned what the town would be appealing. He said the commission passed a finding and recommendation on to the revenue sharing people but no action has been taken.

"In what form do we appeal from a unilateral investigation and comment?" Dooley asked.

Loranger said some other towns have been told they have 60 days to comply with the suggestions or they will lose their revenue sharing funds.

Town Attorney Martin Burke said it would be federal action before an appeal. If the federal revenue sharing office upholds the commission, then the town would have 60 days to comply.

Councilman Glen Roberts reminded the council there are two sides to the question.

"We have had 100 years of un-benign neglect and have to pay our debt," he said.

He said he would think of a program that would take care of all minorities such as Indians, migrant workers and homosexuals. He said discriminating against homosexuals is like having a law against those born left-handed.

"I think they've gone overboard in the way they've approached us," he said.

Councilman Thomas Dooley

SOFY set to start

Vernon
The Summer Opportunity for Youth Program (SOFY) will begin June 6, provided the town's request is approved by the state Department of Community Affairs.

The program will span an eight-week period providing 20 hours per week at $2.31 per hour.

Applicants for the program must be aged 14-21 and the family income must be within federal guidelines such as a family of six may not earn more than $6,600 per year.

Applicants are encouraged to apply as soon as possible at the Guidance Office, Rockville High School or Middle School or at the Memorial Building.

TAC and town at odds over land

Vernon
Action was again tabled Tuesday night by the Town Council on a request of the Tolland County Agricultural Center to turn over a parcel of land it feels rightfully belongs to the center.

The parcel is to the rear of the TAC property. TAC officials feel it was intended to be included when the original deed was signed in 1897 following a town meeting.

The matter has been mullied over for three years. The parcel consists of about eight acres and about 2.9 acres will be acquired by the state.

The Planning Commission had been asked to make a recommendation concerning the property. In a letter to Mayor Thomas Benoit, commission chairman William Satryb said the commission does not view this tract of land to the rear of the TAC property to be of great value to the town. It recommended the land be disposed of in the town's best interest.

She said the opposition was stated then because it was used as an access road to other property and she said it was also the intention to keep it for conservation purposes.

Bus driver sober, McElroy

BOLTON (UPI)-An official from a bus company said Mystic Oral School students may have thought the air pressure gauge was the speedometer when they stated their driver was going 100 miles an hour.

The parents of 11 students signed a complaint sent last week to state Education Commissioner Mark Shedd about the alleged incident.

Also, 23 students on the bus signed a statement detailing the alleged incident. "There's one big dial on the instrument panel that registers between 90 and 120. It's the air pressure gauge to the braking system," said Terence McElroy, general manager of the Eastern Bus Co. of Bolton.

McElroy said Sunday 40 students from the state school for the deaf may have been mistaken when they concluded the bus was traveling at about 100 miles an hour on a trip May 14 from Mystic to Bolton.

Mrs. Alice LaRock of Bradford said her son, Angelo Affinito 19, the oldest boy on the bus, told her the driver smelled of alcohol. She said the children were so afraid they were crying.

McElroy said the driver told him he was not speeding, he had not been drinking and he doesn't drink anyway.

"He said he had one problem at a rest area when he refused to let the children run in to buy candy out of the machines. He was extremely tough with them to make them mind," McElroy said.

McElroy said he asked the driver's dispatcher whether the driver, whose name has not been released, smelled of alcohol.

"The dispatcher observed him before the trip - they were both washing the bus just a couple of miles from the Mystic school - and the dispatcher told me in no way did he smell of or had he been near any alcoholic beverages," McElroy said.

McElroy said he considered asking for an adult monitor to ride the bus after he himself drove the deaf students, but he decided not to because it would have cost the parents more money.

Now, he said, "we are going to discuss having an adult monitor."

"Parents are sometimes not aware of the way their children act away from home. I drove that bus last fall and if it hadn't been for the older students, it would have been bedlam," McElroy said.

"I spoke to some older teen-agers who are pretty good and asked them to help out, but drivers have told me even those kids can't always control the others," he said.

He said it is difficult to find drivers willing to accept responsibility for the weekly charter trip.

"I always warn drivers they have to lay the law down because these kids are unmanageable. For some reason they're extremely hyperactive. They scream from one end

Amston Lake is classified

Hebron
The Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) has accepted the Amston Lake Classification Study Committee's (ALCSC) report.

The verbal report was given at a recent meeting by Commission and ALCSC Chairman Salvatore Mastrorrea.

The ALCSC is a subcommittee of the PZC and has completed the first phase of the study requested by Richard A. Keefe, building official.

A survey of the Amston Lake District was made by the committee to determine which properties were year-round and which were seasonal. A certified letter will be sent to each property owner in the Amston Lake District notifying them of their class.

Hearings will be conducted by the PZC and committee Sept. 17 and Oct. 1 for those who do not agree.

Sachem Hills
Richard Mihok, engineer for the proposed Sachem Hills subdivision, presented a wetlands application for the proposed 60-acre, 15-parcel site.

John Hibbard, Conservation Commission chairman, said there did not appear to be any impact on the wetlands.

The plans will be received at the PZC's June 8 meeting.

Mastrorrea said the PZC, which is also the Inland Wetlands Commission, could make a ruling on it at its next meeting.

Anderson resigns
Russell Anderson resigned from the PZC effective June 30. The resignation was accepted with the commission's gratitude to Anderson for his years of service on the board.

Petition sparks board argument

Hebron
Board of Education members Patricia Mulligan and Charles Barraso have taken issue with a decision by board Chairman David Albee to poll the signers of a petition that was presented to the board at its May 15 meeting.

The petition, signed by 368 persons, asks the school board to withdraw from the Central Office Committee (COC) and to hire a superintendent of schools for the local elementary schools.

No action was taken by the board.

Albee said he has contacted all members of the board. All except Mrs. Mulligan and Barraso are trying to ascertain the reasons for people signing the petition.

Mrs. Mulligan said she will not support the board's attempt to gather information relative to reasons for signing the petition. She said the board can learn about it at a public forum rather than invade an individual's privacy and question his or her decision.

Albee said it is not an invasion of privacy in his mind to call the signers to determine the main reasons for the petition to withdraw. The answers can best be obtained directly from the people involved, Albee said.

Barraso said he did not consider the poll of petition signers to be a function of the board. Barraso said he feels the petition represents a large percentage of the voters and the board should vote on it.

He said, "It is highly rumored that board meetings are conducted in the superintendent's office, behind the superintendent, the board chairman and some members of the board prior to regular board meetings."

Barraso questioned the legality of contacting the persons signing the petition. He said a similar situation in another town resulted in a decision that it was a violation of civil liberties.

Mrs. Mulligan said she felt the action was stirring illegality under the broad provisions of the state Freedom of Information (Sunshine) Law. She said a special meeting should have been called to take official action on the proposal to contact the petition signers.

Albee disagreed.

All persons involved with the petition are urged by both Mrs. Mulligan and Albee to attend the June 10 school board meeting at the Gilead Hill School at 8 p.m. to present their views.

It is quite possible the input from the public will be extensive enough to warrant calling a public forum for discussion of the matter, said Albee.

Elderly housing costs jump to $901,000

The Manchester Housing Authority's 40-unit elderly housing project, estimated to cost $640,000, when an equivalent state grant was awarded in 1973, is now expected to cost about $901,000. MHA Counsel Dominic Squatrito, explaining the cost estimates to Town Manager Robert Weiss and the Board of Directors, said the Town of Manchester's share of the cost could be as little as $28,000, depending on availability of federal money.

Although the alarm system designed by architect Richard Lawrence met with the state fire marshal's approval, Manchester town fire department Chief John Rivosa would not accept it because the sound alarm system was not suitable to occupants throughout the building.

Buckland fire protection suit set for trial

A June 21 trial date has been set for the Buckland fire protection suit brought by the Eighth Utilities District against the Town of Manchester. Entered in January, the suit seeks a determination of who has jurisdiction in the Buckland area for fire protection. The town court tends the boundaries can't be expanded without Town of Manchester permission.

Both predict that the losing side will appeal the verdict. The district claims a Nov. 17, 1975 district referendum gave it the authority to expand its jurisdiction into the Buckland area for fire protection. The town court tends the boundaries can't be expanded without Town of Manchester permission. A new Town of Manchester Firehouse at N. Main St. and Tolland Rd. is nearing completion. Last October, Superior Court Judge Harold Malvey rejected a request for a temporary injunction to stop the construction. In April, the town filed a $500,000 counter damage suit against the district. A decision on it also must be reached.

Well-pitched game all Braves needed

NEW YORK (UPI) — It turned out that the Atlanta Braves didn't need any promotional giveaways to snap their losing streak—just an old-fashioned well-pitched game. Roger Morel, the shifty right hander acquired during the winter from the Boston Red Sox, pitched a six-inning 9-1 triumph over the San Diego Padres Tuesday night. The Braves had gone into the game with four straight losses and to keep throwing his hard curve," explained Starrette. "He's been reluctant to throw the hard curve because he thought he couldn't control it."

Mets' manager in hot water after racial slur

By MILTON RICHMAN NEW YORK (UPI) — "You can have my uniform ... I pulled a boner." Joe Frazier, the New York Mets' freshman manager, was offering to resign. He meant it and General Manager Joe McDonald, his immediate boss, knew he did. "Let's sit down and talk," McDonald said. This was in Frazier's Shea Stadium office before Monday's doubleheader with Pittsburgh, one day after the Mets' manager got into hot water by blurting out a remark, angrily, impulsively and without thinking, about Art Williams, the only black umpire in the National League.

Smoke and fire on Angels' staff

NEW YORK (UPI) — The California Angels are finally getting a little smoke to go with their abundance of fire. Nolan Ryan, baseball's most celebrated smoke-thrower since Sandy Koufax, gave the Angels their first indication that he has returned to help firebreathing lefty Frank Tanana burn a few opponents. Ryan ended a month's drought and a personal five-game losing streak Tuesday night with a 6-4 victory over the Minnesota Twins, striking out six batters along the way. It marked the first time since April 19 and 20 that Ryan and Tanana have been able to post back-to-back victories after Tanana clipped the Twins 3-2 Monday night.

Smoke and fire on Angels' staff

Ryan underwent surgery on his right elbow for bone chips at the end of last season and responded with three victories in his first four outings this year before falling apart. "Everybody who has watched me lately has a different theory on what I'm doing wrong," Ryan explained. "I'd like to think that I am capable of working it out myself. I know one thing—it's taken a lot longer than I ever thought it would."

Blazers pick Jack Ramsay
PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Portland Trail Blazers of the National Basketball Association Tuesday tabbed veteran Coach Jack Ramsay to succeed Lenny Wilkens and lead the Blazers out of the NBA wilderness. The first ingredient in turning Portland from a six-year also-ran in its short NBA history to a winner, is Ramsay's own formula, is "a healthy Bill Walton." Ramsay, fired by Buffalo, where he was a winner but couldn't get past the Boston Celtics in the NBA championship series, took his first Portland news conference, "I came here because Portland has great potential and great talent. It is the best coaching opportunity in pro basketball. I have great regard for the talent on this team. It is like an iceberg. What you see is the tip. The rest is there. Sure, Bill Walton has to be healthy and play almost a full season if we are to achieve great success." Ramsay said his contract with Portland is for two or three years, depending on how one reads it. Wilkens was fired with two years to go on a four-year agreement. Ramsay is the club's fourth coach in six years. Wilkens, fired as player-coach at Seattle, then traded to Cleveland before he came to Portland, said, "I think it is possible I will want to get back into coaching in the future. Right now, I just don't know. It's something my family and I will have to think about."

Phoenix anxious to square series
PHOENIX (UPI) — The Phoenix Suns, who finally found the key to beating Boston Sunday, try to even the NBA championship series in game four tonight. "It's a physical series, then you have to be physical. If you allow yourself to be pushed and pushed, there's no sense in showing up," Phoenix Coach John MacLeod said after the Suns came out fighting and took a 106-98 win Sunday in a game marked by 65 fouls. It was the first Phoenix victory in seven meetings between the teams this season. Gar Heard, the Suns' top rebounder, observed, "Boston got away with the distance for the 2-4 Bears striking out nine, walking three and allowing just three hits. He aided his own cause with a pair of hits as did Joe Fanaro. Dave Parks and Mike Caye starred defensively."

Freshmen hold key to Cheney future

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sportswriter
Freshmen abounded in the Cheney Tech baseball lineup in 1976 and despite a 4-14 win-loss record in the Charter Oak Conference, Coach Jim Krone can't be totally displeased. At times the Soxers, who wound up ninth in the 10-team league, had over 50 per cent of ninth graders on the field. "We have six freshmen who will be good. They definitely have a lot of promise and they have a real good attitude," Krone noted.

Among Cheney's four was third in batting at .283 on 15 hits in 53 at bats. Junior third baseman Mark Ouellette followed at .250. Cheney's team average was .221, a considerable improvement over the previous year.

Leading sticker was senior Glenn Cooke with a .393 average (11 for 28). He came on strong late in the season and led in home runs and totalled seven RBIs. Senior Chris Skoczylas had a torrid streak in mid-season and compiled a .340 average (18 for 53) and was high in the runs batted in column with 10.

Senior Pete Ostashev was the ace of the mound brigade getting credit for the four wins. He lost six in total and led in home runs and totalled seven RBIs. Senior Chris Skoczylas had a torrid streak in mid-season and compiled a .340 average (18 for 53) and was high in the runs batted in column with 10.

Freshmen Gary Marineau, Dave Gustamachio, Ed Lackard, Doug Landry and Mike Pinkin gained valuable experience which should carry over in 1977. There is a solid nucleus to build from. Only experience and another pitcher is lacking.

Soviet Union reorganizing agriculture

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet leadership Tuesday ordered new measures to streamline agriculture and put it on a more efficient and profitable basis. The ramshackle structure of Soviet agriculture periodically is a target of criticism here. Although the country has the biggest land area of any nation, it suffers from recurring shortages of grain, meat, fruit and vegetables.

Last year's grain harvest, at 140 million tons, was the lowest in a decade and although a prolonged drought was largely responsible, Western economists say inefficiency, lack of coordination and storage and supply deficiencies frequently compound climatic problems.

A lengthy decree from the central committee of the Communist party set out provisions for increased cooperation between, more intensive specialization and close links between farming and industry.

"The central committee considers realization of these measures... will have great political, economic and social significance," said the decree, which was carried by the Tass news agency.

The decree said the growth and production rates of agriculture "still do not satisfy our increasing demands for meeting the potential provided by modern science."

"The main aim must be to achieve intensification and increased efficiency," it said. "One of the prime ways to do this is specialization and concentration of agricultural production and placing it on a modern industrial basis."

The decree called for formation of farm conglomerates "organically linking" agricultural production with industry.

Stephen A. Armstrong of 16 Lydall St. was presented with the Degree of Chevalier by the corps of officers of John Mather Chapter, Order of DeMolay, in semi-public ceremonies Saturday night at the Manchester Masonic Temple. The Chevalier ceremony was part of the annual awards night of the chapter.

The Degree of Chevalier is a special honor given to only one member of the chapter. He is now a member of the Order of DeMolay. It is given for outstanding service beyond the call of duty to DeMolay. Only 14 members in the history of John Mather Chapter have received the award since its inception nearly 40 years ago.

Armstrong is a member of the advisory board of John Mather Chapter, where he serves as athletics advisor. In addition, he serves as assistant to the athletics deputy for the State of Connecticut.

Armstrong joined John Mather Chapter in 1966. He is a holder of the Leadership Correspondence Course and is a past editor of the "Critique," the chapter newspaper. In 1973, he received the Representative DeMolay Award and was the 1973 recipient of the "William 'Dad' Walsh award for being the outstanding member of the chapter for the year. He is now a member of the Order of DeMolay.

Armstrong is a member of the advisory board of John Mather Chapter, where he serves as athletics advisor. In addition, he serves as representative and former member of the Board of Education.

Others who appeared at Tuesday's comment session were three men and a woman. "Do the Affirmative Action and Fair Housing Programs discriminate against unemployed residents in Manchester?"

"Is it fair for cities such as Hartford and Bridgeport to favor local residents on layoffs and hiring, while asking the opposite from towns like Manchester?"

"Does the Affirmative Action Plan increase the taxes of unsubsidized taxpayers?" Is it helping to change the City of Village Charm into an unpleasant, overtaxed place to live and work?"

"Does this plan discourage promotion from within the ranks?" A spokesman for the committee is N. Charles Boggini, Spencer St. businessman, former state representative and former member of the Board of Education.

The committee is concerned also with a proposal to hire a person to work on the Affirmative Action and Fair Housing Plans. It is asking the directors to conduct a public hearing on the proposal.

Here also the committee wants answers, as follows: "Do the Affirmative Action and Fair Housing Programs discriminate against unemployed residents in Manchester?"

"Is it fair for cities such as Hartford and Bridgeport to favor local residents on layoffs and hiring, while asking the opposite from towns like Manchester?"

"Does the Affirmative Action Plan increase the taxes of unsubsidized taxpayers?" Is it helping to change the City of Village Charm into an unpleasant, overtaxed place to live and work?"

Oil companies indicted on price fixing charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal grand jury indicted seven oil companies, a trade association and four company officials for fixing retail gasoline prices on sales totaling $4 billion in the Middle Atlantic states for seven years.

The indictment, returned Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Baltimore, Md., charged that from 1967 to 1974, the trade association was used as a clearing house for pricing information in order to coordinate price increases, eliminate discounts and settle pricing disputes.

The companies named were: Amerada Hess Corp., New York City; Ashland Oil Inc., Ashland, Ky.; Continental Oil Co., Stamford, Conn.; Kayo Oil Co., Chattanooga, Tenn. (a Continental subsidiary); Crown Central Petroleum Corp.,

Baltimore; The Meadville Corp., Ardmore, Pa.; and Petroleum Marketing Corp., McLean, Va.

The trade association was the Society of Independent Gasoline Marketers of America, with headquarters in St. Louis.

Individuals indicted were: Norman Goldberg, Amerada Hess senior vice president; Charles J. Luellen, group vice president of Ashland Oil; W.H. Burnap, executive vice president of Petroleum Marketing; and Robert R. Calvin, executive director of the Society of Independent Marketers.

During the seven year period, the companies sold 17 billion gallons of gasoline in the Middle Atlantic States, the indictment said.

Hess markets under the "Hess" brand, Ashland as "Red Head," "Payless," "Bi-Lo," "Hi-Fly" and "Rotary"; Continental and Kayo as "Kayo"; Crown as "Crown"; Meadville as "Merit," "Save Way" and "Martin," and PMC as "Scott."

The department filed a companion civil suit asking the court to enjoin continuation of the violations.

Blue Cross officials lauded for cutting costs

HARTFORD (UPI) — Blue Cross officials have cooperated in an effort to cut the medical insurance plan's administrative expenses in the state, according to Jay W. Jackson, insurance commissioner.

He said the firm has gone a long way toward correcting fiscal and administrative problems he criticized a month ago.

"I'm satisfied they are making a good faith effort to cut administrative expenses to the bone," said Jackson.

He warned the company to comply voluntarily with his recommendations by June 1 or face orders to comply. In two meetings since, Jackson said he was "impressed" by Blue Cross cooperation.

Jackson said out-of-state travel by company executives has dropped and a hiring freeze has been imposed while staff levels are examined.

Golden appointed

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — Albertus Magnus College has named a new trustee, Alice Golden, secretary and treasurer of Golden, O'Neill and Gebhardt Inc.

A licensed insurance agent in Connecticut, Mrs. Golden has been a member of the board of directors of St. Raphael's Hospital Auxiliary and was involved with its fund raising efforts.

The appointment will become effective in September with the first meeting of the academic year.

to pay some directors for performance of non-director services, but Jackson said, "For the time being, I'm accepting what they've been doing."

He said the Blue Cross executive committee has been expanded to include consumer group representatives, that some forms have been simplified, and that the board now has an auditor reporting to them, not Blue Cross management.

Sidemen with the symphony jazz group

Bennet Junior High School students get with the beat with their assorted percussion instruments during a recent jazz session with the visiting jazz sextet from the Hartford Symphony Society. Alexander Lepak, principle percussionist with the symphony, directs the youngsters while they accompany the sextet in an impromptu session. Merrill Doucette is at the piano. Bennet students are Paul Tanguay, left, Barbara Mott, Steven Albert, Hector Concepcion, Barbara Silver and Rhys Jacobs. The musicians discussed syncopation and improvisation during an examination of jazz and jazz styles. The program was made available by a grant from the Manchester Fine Arts Council. The Panama Canal: A surprise election issue

JOHN VIRTUE
PANAMA CITY
 Panama (UPI) — Every couple of months 20 men gather around a conference table on a two-square-mile resort island in the Pacific to discuss the subject which has become the surprise issue of the U.S. primary elections: the Panama Canal.

By late this year or next at the latest, the men expect to finish work on a new treaty spelling out the date when Panama will take over the operation and defense of the 51-mile-long canal from the United States.

It then will be up to the U.S. Congress to approve the treaty.

The U.S.-Panamanian negotiations on Contadora Island, just 17 minutes by plane from Panama City, are the culmination of talks that began back in 1964, following the Panamanian riots which killed 22 persons.

Little public attention has been paid to the canal issue until earlier this year when Republican presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan began to criticize the negotiations.

"We bought it. We paid for it. And they can't have it," Reagan said of the canal, which opened for business in 1914. Reagan has called Panamanian head of state Gen. Omar Torrijos a "tin-horn dictator" and been called in turn a washed-up actor and a "jolly cowboy," ignorant of the facts by Panamanian Foreign Minister Aquilino Boyd.

But the Panamanians apparently are having second thoughts about answering Reagan in kind and the rebuffals have stopped.

Torrijos, who seized power in a military coup in 1968, has not commented on the U.S. primary election and the canal issue, but he was recently quoted as saying, "We are going to decolonize ourselves whether negotiating or fighting."

Panamanians dismiss such tough talk as rhetoric the 47-year-old military man must employ in a delicate balancing act between the vociferous far left and Panama's mainly conservative financial community.

Although an admirer of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, Torrijos has expelled Communists as well as rightists from Panama.

"We want to take over the canal tomorrow, but we know we have to negotiate in a practical way," says Torrijos' first foreign minister, Carlos Lopez Guevara, now a member of the Panamanian negotiating team.

"We're not trying to kick the Americans out tomorrow," Lopez Guevara said in a recent interview that the United States was willing to turnover administration of the canal to Panama by the year 2000, but wanted to retain its military Contadora island in July.

"We're getting close to a solution," said Lopez Guevara, looking forward to resumption of talks on to retain its military Contadora island in July.

Nursery school ends year

The last day of school for the children of YWCA Nursery School was celebrated at Center Park, with parents and friends attending. A "fun day" of various races and games highlighted the occasion for the children, and festivities culminated in the presentation of diplomas to each child by Mrs. Glenn Cornish, director, and Mrs. Bruce Stauffer, assistant.

The children sang a song for the audience which was particularly written for them, and refreshments were served by Mrs. Richard Boyle and Mrs. William Coleman, room mothers. The group will have one more get-together in the fall when they hold an alumni party to see how much they have grown during the summer.

The YWCA Nursery School offers a five-day program planned for one group for four-year-olds. It offers individualized learning preparatory for kindergarten without duplication. Several openings for the 1978-79 year have been made available due to people moving out-of-town. Interested persons may call the YWCA office 649-1437 or Mrs. Cornish 649-6946.

GOP invites Ford to speak at state convention

HARTFORD (UPI) — President Ford has been invited to speak at the Republican state convention July 16 and 17 at the Bushnell Memorial, according to Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn.

Weicker said he issued the invitation two weeks ago and that it is "being given very serious consideration."

Weicker said the state's 35 GOP delegates could be "very important" in a recent presidential contest. Connecticut's convention is one of the last prior to the Republican national convention.

"It could help his (Ford's) cause to get a solid Connecticut delegation. President Ford and Ronald Reagan could be within 150 votes of each other at the national convention," Weicker said.

"That's pretty tight quarters. Connecticut's 35 delegates are very heavy stuff. The President needs every delegate from Connecticut," he said.

Graduation planned

Students in the special education program in the Manchester Public Schools will graduate on Thursday, June 10 in ceremonies at the Coronado Apartment Recreation Room on Prospect St.

Dr. James P. Kennedy, superintendent of schools, will present certificates to the graduates.

There will be a buffet dinner at 6 p.m. followed by the graduation exercise at 7:30.

Dinner reservations can be made through Friday by calling 643-7766 or 646-5864, ext. 391.

Parents' night set at Bennet Thursday

An orientation program for parents of students entering Grade 7 this fall will be conducted Thursday at Bennet Junior High School.

The meeting, scheduled for 7:30 p.m., will be at the Franklin Building cafeteria.

The school's guidance department will describe the school program and course offerings, then parents will meet in small groups with faculty members to discuss individual questions about the junior high school.

Present Grade 6 students are invited to accompany their parents to the program.

Pupils in all of Manchester's elementary schools participated in a junior high orientation program which ended with a visit to Bennet last week.

Court rules in favor of mother on welfare

HARTFORD (UPI) — A welfare mother cannot be jailed or refused welfare if she won't name a child's father unless the state shows such a move is in the child's best interest, according to a federal court ruling.

A three-judge panel issued the ruling Tuesday on a 1973 law which previously found unconstitutional. The U.S. Supreme Court sent the case back to the panel for further explanation.

They said proper hearings under the U.S. Social Security act must take place before the state can enforce the law, intended to aid the state in locating fathers who are not supporting their children.

Grassos accept invitation from unemployed teacher

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella Grasso and her husband have accepted Paul S. Gadrowski's invitation to dinner. They accept a lot of invitations, but seldom dine with an unemployed teacher working part time in a grocery store.

A spokesman for the governor said Tuesday the date for the meal has not been set, but said it will take place as soon as the governor and her husband can find time in their schedule.

Gadrowski, 33, a graduate of Eastern Connecticut State College, worked in the East Windsor school system until he was let go last year. He said he prefers working part time in a West Hartford supermarket to collecting unemployment. His wife works as a temporary secretary. He said the two manage to make ends meet.

Gadrowski first wrote the governor in April and said he was surprised when she wrote back to accept.

Center has dual function

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Fans of World War II strategy movies and science-fiction flicks would feel right at home walking past the thick steel doors and down two flights of stairs to the city's surrealistic Hurricane Operations Center. A food bell rings in the distance as a visitor nears the bottom step. The smell of filtered, conditioned air is immediately apparent. Pale institutional green is the dominant color and the overwhelming impression is one of a government installation. Signs saying "FBI — A Theft From Your Government Is a Theft From You" cover many doors. The center was designed during the so-called Cold War as a seat of government during a nuclear attack. Today it serves another purpose: A control center for city operations when a hurricane — a child of nature that can release energy the equivalent of several atomic bombs — zeroes in on the area. "This was to be a showcase for the nation to copy," city Civil Defense Director Charles Erdman says, stepping into the map and briefing room — a circular area about 30 feet in diameter, not unlike the war strategy rooms with their boards and charts so popular in war movies. "You can call it the war games room or the map and radar room, but whatever you call it, this is where the heads of government will battle your disaster, whether natural or manmade," Erdman says. Erdman and his assistants, John Cowart, are proud of the frequently visited center. They explain its operations carefully, standing in front of 12-by-12-foot maps, which still plot the hour-by-hour courses of last year's tropical storms and hurricanes. "The minute we have the first signs of a tropical storm in the ocean this season," Erdman says, pointing to the red, orange and green circles and lines, "all this will come down and we'll start fresh." The center, officially named the Brig. Gen. Robert Y. Marast Civil Defense Control Center, is buried under New Orleans' only hill, about a mile from the Lake Pontchartrain shoreline and eight miles from downtown. At the slightest threat of a hurricane, operations intensify. By the time a storm warning is issued, the center of city operations has shifted to the fortresslike bunker under two-foot-thick concrete walls. Police and fire units for much of southeast Louisiana can be dispatched from the center on rescue shelters and disaster aid units are kept in the control room. With empty chairs and desks neatly marked "Military Liaison," "Director," "Parkways," "Mayor" and so forth, the center is a model of order. "Even so, every year we have problems with people who are caught off guard," Erdman says, "or try to beat the storm."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My beautiful 18-year-old daughter is engaged to a 22-year-old, conceited fellow with good looks and no character. She and Bud planned to be married in August.

"Tonight, my daughter tells me that Bud wants to get married next week! He says a girl he saw only a few times in August will be the support of a child she claims is his. He says it's not his."

I told my daughter to forget Bud as there is nothing but trouble ahead. He tells her that if she marries him right off, he will take care of her. My husband has been laid off, it will fix things. What do you think?

WORRIED MOTHER

DEAR ABBY: I think if your daughter marries this fellow hastily to supposedly "fix things," the "thing" that could need fixing later will be HER marriage. Bud needs the services of a lawyer for more than he needs those of a preacher.

DEAR ABBY: This morning I took a test for a job in a local school district. I was one of about 30 women. They really didn't mind, I heard several women saying that something to do while their children were in school. One even said "I don't need the money."

Well, I DO need the money. My husband has been laid off, it will fix things. What do you think?

WORRIED MOTHER

DEAR ABBY: I couldn't have said it better than you. DEAR NEEDS: In response to your decision to sign the Living Will, Dr. Peale asserted that there is a variety of opinions on this issue, but that the prevailing Protestant view would be that "God alone should determine life and death." The individual should be in the hands of God, who gave life and whose function it is to take it.

Human beings are not puppets. God has endowed us with minds that He expects us to use wisely and responsibly. We decide when to consult a doctor and whether or not to have surgery performed.

The decision to keep patients alive by artificial means is not made by God, but by doctors. They assume they are carrying out God's will and have been supported by the courts. They become artists in life and death.

To declare that "God alone should determine life and death" is simplistic and naive. We must accept responsibility for our actions and be guided by what we believe is right and just.

The Psalmist did not ask that God keep him alive forever on earth, but said: "The days of our years are threescore years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away."

Interfaith Day Camp to open on July 12

The Manchester Interfaith Day Camp, sponsored by Manchester Area Conference of Churches, will open for its ninth year on July 12. Concordia Lutheran Church has again volunteered its facilities for this free two-week day camp.

The number of campers has been expanded to include 70 second, third and fourth graders from Manchester and the San Juan Center in Hartford. The children are accepted upon recommendation from school and social workers, and all are in need of a day camp experience.

The daily schedule will include a snack, arts and crafts, music, hot lunch, sports, swimming and another snack. There will also be all-day trips to Gay City and Rocky Neck State Park and a carnival day complete with prizes.

Since there is no fee to the camper, operation of the day camp is dependent upon the generosity of area churches, organizations and individuals. Those wishing to sponsor a child may send their donations to the Rev. David Rinas at Concordia Lutheran Church, Homestead desserts are a special treat to the youngsters and many churches and groups have already agreed to bake, but more are needed.

Members of the staff are the Rev. Mr. Rinas, camp director; Sister Dorothy Collins, coordinator; Nancy Von Hollen, finance manager; Sister Coraly Kinemore, director of counselors; Sister Ellen Murphy, program director; Irene Goss, camp manager; Vicki Jennings and Sister Durien Mayo, arts and crafts; Sister Geraldine Radke, sports director; Anna Mae Potocki and Linda Haberman, camp nurses; Dr. David Wickersham, camp physician. Volunteers are needed as counselors to work with the campers on a one to one basis. Anyone wishing to donate part of their summer to work with the children during the week of July 12 and July 19 may contact Mrs. Goss, Sister Dorothy at St. Bartholomew Convent, or Mrs. Nancy Carr.

Ban on jobs invalidated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court on a 5-4 vote Tuesday struck down a U.S. Civil Service regulation barring all resident aliens from federal employment.

The ruling was written by the court's newest justice, John Paul Stevens, and was his first major opinion for the court.

Although striking down the regulation, which has been in effect since 1953, Stevens said only that the commission exceeded its powers, and left open the possibility for Congress or the president to specifically exclude aliens from federal employment.

In addition, Stevens said the commission could establish rules against alien employment for specific, especially sensitive positions such as intelligence work. In another opinion by Stevens involving aliens, the court upheld a provision in the Medicare law requiring resident aliens to have lived in the United States five years before becoming eligible for benefits.

Stevens said Congress has broad policy-making power over immigration and naturalization which enables it to make rules regarding aliens. But the broad civil service ban on alien employment, Stevens said, exceeded the powers of the commission, which, at least in the absence of specific directions from the President or Congress, has no interest in immigration and naturalization.

Stevens said that due process requires that aliens not be barred from federal employment without a showing that the commission specifically considered whether the ban was rationally necessary. Joining Stevens were Justices William J. Brennan Jr., Thurgood Marshall, Potter Stewart and Lewis Powell Jr. Justice William H. Rehnquist dissented, joined by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Harry A. Blackmun and Byron S. White.

The employment case was brought by five San Francisco residents of Chinese ancestry. The Medicare case was brought by Cuban refugees in Florida.

In other action Tuesday, the justices:
• Ruled unanimously that the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and not the Environmental Protection Agency is empowered to regulate discharge of nuclear waste into the nation's waterways.
• Agreed to decide next

Bicentennial dog tags on sale at Town Hall

Manchester dog-owners are being urged to dress up their dogs with the souvenir gold Bicentennial bell-shaped license tags in time for the big parade June 12.

The tags, certain to be popular items, are imprinted "Bicentennial" and "1776-1976."

They may be obtained in the town clerk's office in the Municipal Building at $3.50 for male and spayed female dogs and $7.00 for unspayed female dogs.

By state law, they must be obtained by July 1, or the dog owner (not the dog) will be subject to fine and arrest.

Former prison inmate hopes to serve God and handicapped

By BETTY RYDER
Family/Travel Editor

When Fred Collins talks about children, their need to feel secure, and how the environment in which they are reared can have a marked effect on their adulthood, he knows what he's talking about.

Fred, now 43, has spent 23 of those 43 years in prison.

A tall, heavyset man with lively brown eyes and a ready smile, Fred has come a long way. Today, he is employed by the Manchester Board of Education as a tutorial aide. He is fond of children and they respond to his teaching readily.

There was a time when Fred had no goals, little ambition, and his future looked dim.

Now, he has set his sights on working with the handicapped bettering his station in life, and spending his life working for God.

"I grew up in Old Saybrook, went to Old Saybrook High School then on to Vinal Regional Technical School in Meriden," Fred said.

"I was raised by foster parents. My real mother was a prostitute and left me when I was just a few months old."

"Following technical school, I went into the service and, after a year of service, received a general discharge."

This, Fred explained, was because he appeared on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

"After three months out of the service (he was 18 then) he was arrested for breaking and entering and larceny and sent to Cheshire Reform School for five years and one day," he said.

During the five years he was confined, he lost three fingers on his left hand when his sleeve got caught in a press on which he was making license plates.

"I was sent to Middletown State Hospital for 45 days after the accident. I had to learn to use my hand again."

After his release, he found it difficult to get a job.

"I didn't have a good education, not much of a trade, and I did have a record. I started robbing again and was returned to jail for five to seven years."

After three-and-one-half years in Wethersfield State Prison I was released in 1961.

"I lived in Bridgeport where I worked as a janitor at Fairfield University. A short time later, I was again arrested for breaking and entering. This time I was sentenced to five 3 to 11 years in Wethersfield; later I was transferred to Somers. After five years there, I was released in 1967," Fred said.

Fred took a job with a nationwide moving company and things were beginning to look a little better. But fate intervened and an innocent incident sent him back to prison.

"I was driving on Albany Ave. when I saw this car go through a red light and there was a child right in his path. I knew he was going to hit the child. He did and tossed her about 35 feet. The car just kept on going so I followed it. Finally, it stopped and I said to the driver, 'You just hit a kid back there.' He said, 'I know, but I'm on my way to work.'"

"Well, I told him he couldn't move the car until the police came. An argument ensued, he shoved me, I shoved him and we soon were exchanging punches. Well, to make a long story short, I was arrested for aggravated assault, breach of the peace, and given 90 days in jail."

Finally, Fred said, he was released on parole and began working on construction.

"I drove a taxi, had a car, some money in the bank, and had met a woman I hoped to marry."

"That didn't work out, and I began drinking pretty heavy."

"A year later, I was again arrested for armed robbery and given an 8-10 year sentence. At the time of my arrest I attempted to escape and broke my right leg in three places and smashed my ankle," he said.

A well-spoken, intent man, Fred relates his fallings in life in the manner of a man who has learned his lesson.

"I was told that my leg might have to be amputated. After seven operations, the doctors said I would never walk without a crutch or a brace. I was 37 years old then."

"During my convalescence, I reviewed my life. I wasn't too pleased with the picture. I had long days to reflect; to think of what it was I really wanted out of life."

"Perhaps what really hit me the hardest was the fear that one day I might die in prison. All of a sudden I was scared — I just didn't want that to happen."

"I decided to go back to school and in 1972 I received the high school equivalency diploma from Enfield High School. In September that same year, I went to Manchester Community College which at that time was the first college to accept inmates from Somers."

"I got a B in English, a B plus in English composition, and a C in social sciences," Fred said proudly.

In 1973, Fred was transferred to Osborne (Enfield) Correctional Institute. There he joined the Jaycees and was named the outstanding Jaycee of the year. He later became a member of the Gavel Club, the Toastmasters Club, and served as chairman of the Jaycees' crime prevention committee.

He received the president's award of honor from the Jaycees.

"The Jaycees made a lot of changes in my life," Fred said.

"I got involved in work at the VIP House in Hartford and the Civitan Club. I spoke under the title 'Operation Get Smart' at Bennet Junior High School, Manchester High School, Tilling Junior High School, the Universalist Society, Parents Without Partners, Rotary, Central Connecticut State College and Suffield High School."

Fred, who has spent most of his life in foster homes, has his eyes on a goal and is working in that direction.

"I hope to receive an A.A. degree from Manchester Community College in occupational therapy and would like to work at the Regional Occupational Training Center as an occupational therapy assistant with the handicapped."

Just what made Fred Collins lead a life of crime and when the turning point in his life occurred is difficult to say, but it has happened.

"Perhaps it was my early life. I was raised in foster homes. I just couldn't identify. At one time I was called Fred Turner, later it was Fred Sharp, then Fred Whitford. In the Army they had me listed as Fred Jones. I finally went to the Department of Vital Statistics and they told me no one by the name of Fred Collins existed."

"In 1956 I was asking around, and a lady who knew I had been adopted when I was three months old had known my mother."

To Fred, his mother is the foster mother who reared him and who died a few years ago.

"She's the one who cried for me, stayed up nights till she tucked me in. That was my mother," he said wistfully.

"My foster father was killed in an automobile accident in 1957. When I was in prison I earned 50 cents a day and I used to send it to my mother."

Last year, Fred said he had the opportunity to leave the state and go to Maine under the "Downeast Program" with Jay Staiger from MCC.

"I wanted to climb Mt. Katahdin; somehow it seemed very important to me. I just felt I had to do it."

"A lot of the kids in the group didn't want me to because of my leg."

"Jay Staiger said to me, 'Fred, to reach that summit is very hard. It's two miles as the crow flies, and five miles as the trail goes.'"

Then Staiger said something that Fred has retained to this day.

"If you really are going to try — go. Rest, but don't turn back 'cause somebody will always meet you along the way.'"

"I went. It was rough, but I finally reached the top of the mountain. When I did I suddenly realized that I didn't have to climb any more mountains," Fred said.

As for his future, Fred says "Somebody gave me a chance to get back, now I want to spend my life helping people and serving God."

To young people unhappy with their lot in life Fred urges them to "get involved" helping others.

"The life you save may be your own," he said.

In his spare time, Fred works repairing bicycles at the Manchester Sheltered Workshop at Lincoln Center or helps plan their tag sales.

Your neighbor's kitchen

By Betty Ryder

For the summer scene or just looking ahead to Father's Day (June 20) you can get into practice with a menu to delight dad and all.

There is something about cooking out-of-doors that adds a certain spark to the party and flavor to the food. Cook up some spareribs, succulently glazed with whole berry cranberry sauce, right on the grill. While the charcoals sizzle, dad can sip a Cranberry Freeze, icy fresh with cranberry-apple drink, as is, or complemented with 2 ounces of vodka, rum or soda.

Perhaps a present of a chef's apron or a mug inscribed affectionately "DAD" will add to the decor. If it rains, don't despair, most times you can still cook outside even if the elements require you to eat inside.

This recipe for Cranberry Barbecued Spareribs serves six. It may be doubled for a larger gathering.

6 pounds of spareribs
Salt, pepper, garlic powder
1 cup whole berry cranberry sauce
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon ginger

Trim all excess fat from ribs. Sprinkle ribs on both sides with salt, pepper and garlic powder. Place ribs on grill 8 inches above gray coals and cook slowly for 40 minutes, turning every 5 minutes to permit even cooking. (This might be a task you can assign to one of the teen-agers in the family.)

Combine remaining ingredients in a saucepan on top of grill and cook until hot. Brush mixture on top of ribs, turn and brush on other side. Cook 10 minutes on each side brushing with glaze occasionally until ribs are brown and crusty.

For a real summer cooler, sip a Cranberry Freeze.

This recipe serves 6.
1 quart cranberry-apple drink
1 can (8 ounces) frozen concentrated lemonade
2 egg whites, unbeaten
Chilled vodka, rum, ginger ale, lemon soda or club soda.

Combine cranberry-apple drink, lemonade and egg whites. Beat slightly to blend. Pour into freezer container and freeze to a mush. Pour in a bowl and beat until light and fluffy. Replace in freezer and freeze until firm. When ready to serve, scrape sherbet and pile into 8-ounce glasses.

Fill each glass with 2 ounces vodka, rum or soda. Serve with straw.

That old adage "Apple pie without some cheese is like a kiss with a squeeze" is true, but if you prefer, top your pie with vanilla ice cream.

The perfect ingredients for a real dad-pleasing picnic.

On second thought

By Jan Warren

Guess Who's Having A Birthday?

I don't have any sympathy for a woman who lets her husband forget her birthday!

Despite all the current talk about the equality of the sexes, men just don't have as good memories as women. At least, about birthdays and anniversaries. They don't mean to forget. They feel terrible when they forget. But, the male mind simply cannot retain this specialized kind of information.

Last year, my sister received a beautiful turquoise necklace from her husband on her mother-in-law's birthday. The poor man knew it was someone's birthday, he just couldn't remember who's.

The calendar straight. To prepare my husband I start hinting a good two weeks before the event. I begin with subtle remarks like: "Wouldn't it be fun to go out to dinner on my birthday?" or "Gee, I certainly don't feel a year older." Usually that's all it takes. My husband will eye me with amazement and say: "How can it be your birthday again? You just had a birthday!"

This year, however, on the day before the big event, my husband had still not tuned into the situation. I was forced to resort to a hard sell line.

"Guess who's having a birthday," I chirped merrily as I worked around the kitchen. "Guess who wants to smell interesting and oriental? Guess whose coffee pot is so old it sputters?" All this was delivered in a bright melodic voice in what I hoped was a moderately subtle manner.

"It's very simple, dad," said Kate, with a tolerant glance in my direction. "What mother is trying to say, is that tomorrow is her birthday. You'll feel like a heel if you forget it. She would like a bottle of sexy perfume and a new coffee percolator."

Let me tell you, this younger generation may not be subtle...but they certainly know how to communicate!

High costs keeping many young people out of college

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK UPI Education Editor

More high school students are graduating these days but fewer of them are going on to college.

The American Association of State Colleges and Universities says rates of college-going and full-time attendance are falling precipitously among youngsters from families with incomes under $15,000.

"The most important single reason for this decline in higher education opportunity since about 1968 is student charges," the association said in a new report — "Low Tuition Fact Books."

"Hard-pressed governors and state legislators have raised tuition and other charges as a way of balancing state budgets — sometimes with the mistaken belief that there is enough student aid or that fewer people want to go, anyway."

This is a break with a 150-year principle that tuition should be kept as low as possible at public colleges — giving the poor access to a degree that opens doors and lifts them from the bootstrap way.

The U.S. Census Bureau reports that between 1969 and 1973 there has been about a 20 per cent drop in the percentage of 18-to-24 year old dependents from families earning less than $15,000 going to college full time.

There has been an eight per cent drop in the percentage of students from families over $15,000 in the same period. Median American family income is about $13,000 a year. Half of all families make less. Half, more.

A Bureau of Labor Statistics study shows "median" families have only a few hundred dollars a year left over after meeting living costs. The state lowered tuition sharply at two of the two-year centers of the Wisconsin system. From $429 to $80 a year. Tuition was held constant at other two-year centers, colleges and universities.

The result: an enrollment increase of 47 per cent at one center and 23 per cent at the other. For every one per cent decrease in tuition there was a 1.3 per cent rise in enrollment.

The lighter side

Carter's perma-pressed nonfading smile

DICK WEST WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anyone who expects to remember the start of the 1976 presidential campaign undoubtedly will recall the puzzle that arose over Jimmy Carter's entry.

"Who is this man and why is he smiling?" was the question on the voters' lips. By now, of course, everyone knows who Carter is. But the smile remains an enigma.

radiance lingers after the motivating force is terminated. "I said, 'Is that the same thing as a frozen smile?'" "No, indeed. A frozen, or fixed, smile occurs when the facial muscles become locked while in the smiling position. In mild cases, the victim usually is able to wipe the smile off his face.

But sometimes surgery is required to remove it. It was Phizbeum who established some years ago that sickly smiles were caused by vitamin deficiencies and that stiff smiles were caused by starched diets.

Asked what kind of food produced healthy smiles, he recommended peanuts. The conference, which will open at 9 a.m., will be sponsored by a coalition of government, business and consumer groups. It will cover such topics as banking, insurance, consumer education, auto repairs, public utilities and advertising. Carol Tucker Foreman, executive director of Consumer Federation of America, an organization composed of more than 225 national, state and local nonprofit groups, will be keynote speaker. Other main speakers will be announced an extensive list of workshop presenters. They include: Deputy Domestic Commerce, U.S. Department of Commerce, Benjamin, banking department; Atty. Norman

Trainer convinced dogs have ESP

STAUNTON, Va. (UPI) — Sitting in her kitchen, without making a movement or sound, Sylvia Fisher commands her sleeping dog to come to her. Trooper, a Labrador Retriever, gets up from his bathtub bed, walks into the room and sits at her side.

"I do it through extrasensory perception — ESP," says Mrs. Fisher, a dog breeder and trainer who for two years has studied "amplified" ESP trials in animals. "I'm convinced dogs have ESP," said Mrs. Fisher, who recently began receiving national attention for hundreds of tests she has conducted on Trooper and other dogs. "There's no doubt in my mind."

Many researchers were convinced by tests made in the early 1930s that her studies have not been humans have ESP, the conclusion. "She has ability to perceive things gathered some empirical explanation for everything," responds

THE FAMILY LAWYER by Will Bennett

Ethics of Bankruptcy "All bankrupts," wrote Charles Lamb in 1829, "ought to be hung."

Modern American law, however, does not cast bankruptcy in this punitive role. Instead, it has these two basic purposes: 1) to give the overburdened debtor a fresh start; and 2) to divide his assets equitably among his creditors.

When he later went bankrupt, the company insisted that his debt was not wiped out because he had lied on the application form. But the court sided with the debtor. The court said if his statement was less than the whole truth, the company had only itself to blame.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Census Bureau estimates 150 million Americans will be old enough to vote in the November election — 10 million more than in 1972.

Eligible voters increased 11 percent in western states and 10.2 percent in southern states since 1972, it said. This compared with 4.7 percent for north-central states and 3.2 percent for northeastern states.

The South was the only region in which those of voting age accounted for less than half of the population. This indicates greater voting strength for southern states in the future.

Eligible voters declined slightly in Rhode Island and the District of Columbia. All other states will have increases, led by Florida with 20.7 percent more voters and Arizona, 20.1 percent.

Census estimated that blacks will total about 15.4 million of the voting age population, an increase of 10 percent since the last presidential election compared to a 7 percent increase for the overall voting age population.

Social Security

Q. I'm a member of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps (ROTC). Do I get social security credit for weekend drills and summer camp?

A. Pay you get for weekend ROTC activities does not count, but pay for annual training duty of 14 days or more (including travel) does count. You will receive social security credit not only for your summer camp pay but also an additional free $300 earnings credit will be recorded to your social security record for the calendar quarter you were at camp. Since benefit amounts are based on average earnings, the extra credit can mean higher social security checks for you later on.

Q. I was in a bad accident nine months ago and still must use a cane. The doctor said it'll be several more months before I can work and suggested I apply for disability benefits. But since I'm only 20 and worked just two years, could I qualify?

A. At your age, you need only one year of social security work credits during the three-year period before you became disabled. You should apply for disability benefits at any social security office. A decision will then be made as to whether your disability is severe enough to qualify you for benefits.

Q. My sister's vision has gradually gotten worse because of advanced diabetes. She worked steadily under social security until about a year ago. Can she qualify for disability benefits?

A. People whose vision is no better than 20/200 even with glasses, or whose visual field is limited to 20 degrees or less, are considered disabled under the social security law. Your sister should apply for benefits at any social security office. To get benefits, she must be severely disabled and not expected to be able to work for a year or more.

Q. I've been getting disability checks several years and now have a chance for a part-time job with light duties. How would the earnings affect my benefits?

A. If you're still severely disabled, your benefits may continue during a trial work period of up to 9 months while you test your ability to work. If after 9 months it is decided you are able to do substantial gainful work, your benefits will be paid for an adjustment period of 3 additional months.

Q. I lost my Medicare card. How can I get another one?

A. Ask the people in the social security office right away to get you a new one. You will need this card whenever you receive medical services.

Q. Is it true that I'll be paying more for the medical insurance part of Medicare soon?

A. Yes, the basic premium for medical insurance will increase from $6.70 to $7.20 a month for the 12-month period starting in July. The premium actually would be $10.70 to fully meet rising medical costs. But the law limits your increase to 8 per cent — the percentage by which social security benefits were raised in 1975. Because of this, the federal government pays more than half the cost of your protection from general revenues.

Q. My father is 65 and doesn't have enough social security work credits to get Medicare hospital insurance. Is there any other way he can qualify for this protection?

A. He can get hospital insurance by paying a monthly premium of $45 (effective for 12 months starting July 1976). He also must sign up for medical insurance and pay the additional premium of $7.20 a month. Your father should call, write, or visit any social security office for more information if he's interested.

Science today: Hopelessness and suicide

AL ROSSITER JR.

UPI Science Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

Three Philadelphia researchers believe hopelessness is the missing link between depression and suicidal behavior.

It has been estimated that four out of five people who commit suicide were clearly depressed in the last months of their lives. But millions of Americans suffer from depression during a year's time and only a small percentage attempt to take their own lives.

Furthermore, the emphasis on the relationship between depression and suicide often has left workers at a loss to explain why people who are not depressed try to kill themselves.

Dr. Aaron T. Beck, professor of psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania, and two coworkers believe suicide is the result of depression, plus a desire to escape from what the victim considers an insoluble problem.

They reached that conclusion on the basis of a study of 384 suicide attempts admitted at two large metropolitan hospitals.

"The implications of this finding for therapy of suicidal individuals are important," the researchers wrote in a report in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

By focusing on the patient's hopelessness and trying to reduce its sources, the researchers said doctors may be able to deal with suicidal crises more effectively than they have in the past.

Beck and coauthors Maria Kovacs and Arlene Weissman said the link between hopelessness and suicide is an old one, going back to the ancient Greeks and Romans. But more recently, they said a popular theory has been that suicide is the result of hostility turned against one's self. Another is that suicide represents a cry for help.

"This conception of suicidal behavior has been dramatized by the growth of suicide prevention centers, crisis intervention centers and emergency telephone hot lines," Beck and colleagues wrote.

"These fresh theoretical and practical approaches to the problem of suicide, however, have not been supported by any empirical evidence. In fact, recent studies have questioned whether or not these newer agencies have perceptibly affected the suicide rate."

Beck suggested earlier that suicidal inclination seemed related to the patient's idea that his situation was hopeless — he could not tolerate continuation of his suffering and he could see no solution to the problem.
