

Resistance to Carter persists among New England Dems

By STEWART POWELL
UPI New England
Political Writer

Resistance to nominee-in-waiting Jimmy Carter persists among New England Democrats bound for the national convention in New York. Opposition to Carter's likely nomination continues in a six-state region where party officeholders have complained for eight years Washington ignored the Northeast.

Carter won two of region's five primaries and ran fourth in its largest state of Massachusetts. Backers of the former Georgia governor insist eleven-hour opposition will cost the region nothing if Carter is elected president.

"We're not keeping an enemies list or anything like that," said Francis X. Meany, chairman of the six-year-old candidate's campaign in the Massachusetts primary.

Of the 3,000 delegates due at Madison Square Garden next week, 226 (about eight per cent) are from New England. Optimistic estimates by Carter supporters in the region indicate he has firm backing by 109 delegates.

Within days of final primary victories in early June, scores of delegates across the nation switched to Carter. But New England delegates across the nation switched patrician peanut farmer as he have in regions such as the South. "I feel like a bride heading to go to the altar," said Margaret Lucenti of Barre, Vt., now an uncommitted delegate after false starts behind ex-Sen. Fred Harris, D-Minn., and Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.

The largest mass movement to Carter occurred in Connecticut when Gov. Ella T. Grasso led a switch by delegates pledged to Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash. Her change of heart came after Carter held enough delegates to win the nomination.

When Mrs. Grasso joined Carter at a three-hour Boston fund-raising blitz, the Democratic candidate mentioned a variety of governors who had given him early support, but neglected to mention the Connecticut governor standing by his side.

In other New England states, movement has been less dramatic, in part because recruiting delegates has taken a back seat as Carter and his organization moved on to other things.

Carter has suspended personal telephone calls to delegates to raise money and build bridges to different segments of the party.

Some resentment exists. "He would do well to set aside 24 hours and make 400-500 calls to stroke some people," said one political figure who asked not to be identified. "People like to be asked."

Forty-seven delegates pledged to Arizona Rep. Morris Udall across the region remain unswayed.

Some Massachusetts backers of Jackson and Alabama Gov. George Wallace have avoided public pledges of support for Carter, awaiting "instructions" not just announcements that are released. "I know Udall has released his delegates on an individual basis," said New Hampshire state Rep. Katherine Hanna, D-Keene, 22, an aide to Sen. Thomas McIntyre, D-N.H.

"But he's going to stay a viable candidate until he gets to the convention so he can give some policy input on the platform," she said.

At least one public statement by Carter ended chances of winning over some Wallace delegates in Massachusetts who wanted action to end court-ordered school busing.

School integration was "one of the best things that ever happened in the South," Carter told a $250-a-couple fundraiser 90-minutes after arriving in Boston. He said as president he would enforce court-ordered desegregation.

Joyce London Alexander, co-chairman of Carter's 16-member Massachusetts delegation, has found other delegates reluctant to switch.

"I tend to feel delegates' general feeling is that they're not released," she said.

The attitude I'd-rather-fight-than-switch remains unusually strong in Rhode Island where a slate of uncommitted delegates pledged to California Gov. Edmund "Jerry" Brown Jr. outdistanced the frontrunner.

"Those of us on the uncommitted slate are firmly committed to vote for Gov. Brown," said Frank Caprio, a former city councilor in Providence. "The primary results were a mandate from the people. Until such time as he releases us—if he does—we will vote for Gov. Brown."

Reagan aims guns at Carter in appeal for delegates

By ELIZABETH WHARTON

Ronald Reagan took his bid for Republican convention delegates to the national television screens, and attacked probable Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter instead of his own GOP opponent, President Ford.

He said you don't fix bad policies by rearranging the bureaucracy, or "discipline an irresponsible and wasteful Congress by putting an indulgent friend in the White House."

In Hershey, Pa., some 30 Democratic governors, a few of whom had engaged in a last-ditch drive to stop Carter, Tuesday climbed aboard the former Georgia governor's handwagon and endorsed the man now assured of his party's nomination.

Carter had breakfast with the governors and said he was "very grateful" for the backing. "Many of them did not support me during the primaries, but that is a symbol, I think, of the strength of our party, the diversity of it," he told reporters.

Carter said he would meet Thursday with Minnesota Sen. Walter Mondale to discuss the party's second spot. The Plains, Ga., meeting will be the second of several being conducted.

In Washington, a spokesman for Mondale said "obviously he is interested" in the vice presidency and "seriously considers" joining the ticket if asked. To say more would be "presumptuous," the spokesman said.

The first Carter interview of potential running mates was with Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, who said Tuesday that Carter, as president, would give his vice president some of the duties now being performed by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

He told reporters that Carter does not like Kissinger's "Lone Ranger" style, and added: "In that context, Governor Carter would give his vice president to take a foreign diplomacy role so that the president would not have to put himself on the firing line in every crisis."

When he reached home from the governor's conference, Carter got spruced up a bit for his big week at the convention, which begins Monday in New York's Madison Square Garden. He got his hair cut and his famous teeth cleaned and checked over.

Nevada Sen. Paul Laxalt, Reagan's campaign chief, gave a good indication of the tightness of the GOP race by telling reporters some delegations pledged to Ford might abstain on the first convention ballot if they could legally vote for his preference, Reagan, on subsequent roll calls.

In Washington, Ford was playing host to Queen Elizabeth on her Bicentennial visit to the capital.

His spokesman, Ron Nessen, told reporters the President would be host to Queen Elizabeth on her Democratic convention, and plans further political trips until he flies to Hartford, Conn., July 17 in a bid for delegates to that state's GOP convention.

B.D. Pearl, 649 Main St., said, "Affirmative action, with all the strings attached, is not good for us." He called many projects funded by federal and state grants "worthless," saying, "We're throwing money away."

And Vincent Kelly, 34 Adams St. South, said, "When HUD starts demanding things of us, I say it's time we drop them. If it means I

President to entertain Queen at Bicentennial garden party

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford unrolled the biggest red carpet of his administration today to host a Bicentennial visit from Queen Elizabeth II in the White House, which the British once put to the torch.

Ford ordered a huge British Union Jack hung from the next-door Executive Office Building and had an air-conditioned banquet tent erected over the entire White House rose garden.

First Lady Betty Ford wanted the effect for tonight's state dinner to be a "garden party" featuring the color pink for the Queen.

The Fords flew in flowers from Hawaii and decorators from New York to replant the rose garden for the feast. Decorators James Goslee of the Fernery and Betty Sherill of McMillen, Inc., said the torrid Fourth of July weather had made the garden's regular blooms unfit for a queen.

All the President's men laid on all their pomp and circumstance for the monarch of the country, from which America fought a war to win independence.

It was in 1814 — while King George III, Elizabeth's great-great-great grandfather, was still on the throne — that British troops burned the White House and sent President James Madison and his family fleeing with what few possessions they could gather.

Today, the White House mustered for the Queen and her husband, Prince Philip, a roster of celebrities for the Bicentennial dinner.

They included Lady Bird Johnson, Alice Roosevelt Longworth, British-born journalist Alistair Cooke, actresses Helen Hayes, Julie Harris and Merle Oberon, actor Cary Grant, and retired baseball player Willie Mays.

The White House was besieged by persons around the country, who wanted to attend the "dinner" during the limited to 200.

An after-dinner performance was set for the East Room featuring Constand Bob Hope and a prize-winning pop group called "Captain and Tennille."

Rubber workers union rejects Firestone offer

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Firestone's "take it or leave it" proposal to a 78-day-old nationwide rubber strike was rejected by United Rubber Workers Tuesday night and the company broke off negotiations, the URW said.

Peter Bonmarito, international president of the URW, said his union's policy committee for Firestone got the contract offer Tuesday night and "unanimously" rejected it. He charged the company with "bad faith bargaining" and "irresponsibility" in releasing an "unofficial" rejection earlier in the day.

"What Firestone did, which was very unethical, was release statements which were made unofficially (Monday night). It did not make the offer to the duly elected policy committee."

Labor Secretary William J. Usery left the talks following "unofficial" rejection, but both he and Bonmarito said progress had been made during negotiations that lasted through the holiday weekend.

The offer turned down by the union called for 15 cents per hour more than had been offered in the first year of a three-year pact. The package would have given some 70,000 rubber workers at 47 plants a 10 percent raise and a 10 percent increase of $1.30 per hour over the life of the contract.

Town's directors adopt affirmative action plan

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

The Board of Directors voted unanimously last night to accept an affirmative action plan for the town of Manchester.

The plan maps out steps to be taken to increase the number of women and minority group members hired by the town.

About 50 people attended last night's meeting, and, while the board vote on affirmative action was 8-0, the speakers from the audience were far from all approving.

Most who spoke against affirmative action were concerned with federal intervention into local government. The federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), in giving a $300,000 community development block grant to the town on June 25, asked for an adopted affirmative action plan to be submitted to the HUD office in Hartford within 90 days.

"How many of the autonomous rights of the town can we give up before we lose control?" James E. Chace of 579 Center St. asked. "Let us have our local government and stop this nonsense."

Mrs. Betty Sadloski, 48 Hollister St., said, "The community development grant is something we can live without. We have to start standing on our own two feet."

B.D. Pearl, 649 Main St., said, "Affirmative action, with all the strings attached, is not good for us." He called many projects funded by federal and state grants "worthless," saying, "We're throwing money away."

And Vincent Kelly, 34 Adams St. South, said, "When HUD starts demanding things of us, I say it's time we drop them. If it means I

Schaffer and Irwin make bids for local Democrat support

By DOUG BEVINS
Herald Reporter

Democrats Gloria Schaffer and Donald Irwin brought their Senate campaigns to Manchester Tuesday night, each of them spending more time attacking the incumbent Republican than discussing any issues.

Mrs. Schaffer, secretary of the state since 1970, and Irwin, former Fourth District congressman and former Norwalk mayor, each voiced lengthy criticism of Republican Sen. Lowell Weicker during a Democratic Town Committee meeting at Hilling Junior High School.

Irwin's assault on Weicker was more violent and his rhetoric more lively than that of Mrs. Schaffer, but Mrs. Schaffer's comments appeared to be welcomed more than Irwin's.

The local Democrats have already endorsed Mrs. Schaffer for the Senate nomination, and although the committee endorsement isn't binding on delegates to the July 18 state convention, it appears the local votes will be for her.

Mrs. Schaffer criticized Weicker's record over the last six years, claiming he has done nothing to advance legislation on the economy, energy, the war on crime and other matters.

Mrs. Schaffer, calling attention to Weicker's votes on energy bills, said the senator has voted against Connecticut and the region.

"Maybe he has a constituency we don't know about, in Houston or in Tulsa," Mrs. Schaffer said, alleging

Weicker connections to major oil companies. Irwin's attack on Weicker concentrated on the senator's role in Watergate and allegations that Weicker accepted campaign contributions from oil companies.

Claims for unemployment compensation filed in Manchester declined by 2.3 per cent to a weekly average of 3,854 for the two-week period ending June 26, the state Labor Department reported.

The total consisted of 221 initial claims and 3,637 continued claims. Included in the totals were 720 claims for extended benefits and 709 claims for emergency compensation. In Manchester, 38.4 of the persons filing claims were women.

In the comparable period of 1975, the Labor Department reported a total of 3,978 claims in Manchester. Statewide claims increased by 1.6 per cent in the latest reporting period to a weekly average of 118,304. A year ago, the comparable figure was 130,879.

IRS reports tax refunds

The Internal Revenue Service has refunded $48,246,237 to Connecticut taxpayers since January, District Director Pete J. Medina reported.

The money has been paid 1,087 taxpayers and the average refund was $421, Medina said.

He said Connecticut taxpayers designated 701,616 for the Presidential Campaign Fund when filing their forms 1040 or 1041.

Medina also reported that the Internal Revenue Service received overpayments from 72,927 Connecticut taxpayers valued at $5,286,188, during the recent filing period.

Those who overcharged themselves $1 or more were sent computer notices from the IRS Service Center in Andover, Mass., advising them their errors had been corrected in their behalf.

Medina said about 30,000 failed to take the $50 personal exemption credit when preparing their federal tax return.

H&R Block has advice

It appears that up to 2.7 million low-income families are missing the chance to claim their "earned income credit" and get a federal government check for as much as $400, according to Barbara Gagnon, manager of the Manchester office of H & R Block Inc.

Mrs. Gagnon said it's happening because those eligible for the windfall never learned about it and because most of those eligible didn't file tax returns because they didn't have enough income.

The "earned income credit" gives those who qualify a 10 per cent refund or credit against taxes owed on the first $4,000 of earned income (salaries, wages, tips and net self-employment income). When earned income is more than $4,000, the credit is reduced by 10 per cent of any excess. The largest amount that can be paid is $400 and there can be no credit when earned income exceeds $8,000.

Mrs. Gagnon said it's not too late to file a tax return; there's no penalty for filing after April 15 if no taxes are due.

Bernard Johnson, FIC, of Redwood Rd., Manchester, was among approximately 170 Lutheran Brotherhood district representatives who attended a regional sales conference June 18 to 22 at Sahara Tahoe, Lake Tahoe, Nev.

Professionals learn blue collar blues

This may elicit few tears from the average working stiff, but corporation executives have been harder hit by inflation than blue collar workers. The latter actually experienced a slight gain in purchasing power between 1964 and 1974 and the gap between executive pay and blue collar pay substantially narrowed.

For top executives during this 10-year period, gross cash compensation rose by 30 per cent, or 2.7 per cent a year, says the current issue of Harvard Business Review. For middle executives, total cash compensation rose by 35 per cent, or 3.1 per cent a year. But for factory workers, there was a 70 per cent increase, or an average annual gain of 5.5 per cent.

Viewed another way, the typical chief executive of a corporation doing $200-million worth of business a year earned 18.5 times as much as a factory worker in 1964. By 1974, he was earning 14.1 times as much.

When inflation and changes in the tax structure are taken into account, the purchasing power of chief executives dropped by almost 20 per cent during the 10-year period, whereas wages paid to factory workers rose faster than inflation.

One disturbing implication of these figures, says the review, is that there is less incentive for an individual to strive to reach the top of the business pay scale, since the marginal increase in pay may not be worth the increase in work and responsibility.

Maybe executives ought to start a union.

The idea is not as outlandish as it may seem. Elsewhere in the same issue the magazine reports that more and more professional workers are joining labor unions. "White collar" unions are, in fact, one of the fastest growing segments of the labor movements, writes Dennis Chamot, an official of the Council of AFL-CIO Unions for Professional Employees.

There are currently nearly three million members of unions and employee associations who are classified as professional and technical — teachers, professors, actors, journalists, engineers, doctors and nurses, among others.

In many cases, frustrations of a "professional" nature rather than salary or work week — the traditional concerns of blue collar workers — motivate professionals to join unions. But economic and other factors are also strong.

For example, professional employees are exempt from the maximum hours provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

"In other words," says Chamot, "they are entitled to work overtime for free."

Similarly, many professional employees are without means to air grievances.

Another reason for joining a union that growing numbers of professionals find compelling is fear of layoffs, Chamot notes.

"It has come as a shock to them to realize that they are no longer sheltered from the effects of general economic declines as they once were."

Owlsh editor's notebook

By FLOYD LARSON

More and more these days we read about some new product being such a boon to mankind only to find out later there is an "aftereffect" that is not always pleasant.

The classic, of course, is the automobile which put America on wheels but sure killed off the lively stable business.

This is why you hear every so often someone, usually a vote hustler, suggesting some grand scheme he held in abeyance until after an economic impact statement has been made.

This week's treatise is intended to be an economic impact statement for a yet-to-be named drug which is supposedly 80 per cent effective against acne. This new drug, actually a combination of two drugs, was announced last week by Dr. Sidney Hurwitz of New Haven at the 125th annual convention of the American Medical Association in Dallas.

Obviously this new wonder drug will have an economic impact on the patent medicine industry which some estimate at least 25 per cent acrelated.

Untold numbers of less effective remedies on the market now are obsolete, leaving vast voids in every pharmacy in America. Now you may not believe this but new diseases are hard to come by as everyone prefers good old American standbys like gout, the common cold and the nagging heartbreak of psoriasis.

But even the millions needed to remodel the nation's drug stores to fill this void with herbal hair rinses in small potatoes compared to the layoffs faced by the advertising industry which has been depending on good old incurable acne as a major source of revenues since Lydia Pinkham first went public in the pulps.

Estimates are that at least 30,000 copywriters, illustrators (a good one can include a tear drop in a gem) and demographic statisticians who pinpoint every acne case on the big map in the board room; will be out of work when the new acne drug takes over the market.

We suggest the picture need not be as black as it might seem for in the news recently was the suit filed by the American Bar Association alleging the group with restraint of trade because its code of ethics bans advertising.

Now assuming the lawyers are forced to spread the word, so to speak, beyond the yellow pages, they will need copywriters, illustrators (tears shouldn't be wasted on juries only) and demographic statisticians who can pinpoint high divorce areas, etc. on the big map in the board room.

Thus all that is needed is some retraining to shift from acne advertising to attorney advertising.

For example, the teen-ager who is a "teen black" because of self-consciousness over acne is susceptible to the sales pitch that promises to make him or her the social lion or belle of the ball by clearing up, covering up or otherwise "curing" the acne problem.

This same basic appeal can be used by many attorneys.

"Are you becoming withdrawn because you and your spouse no longer hit it off? Is your marriage going sour inhibiting your social life? Let E. Snidley Snodgrass, attorney-at-law, solve your problem with a divorce," or:

"No need to suffer any longer. Snodgrass has a divorce to fit every pocketbook from the Hometown Special for $99 (if there is no contest) to the San Juan Vacation to Freedom Safari for $1,099, based on double occupancy, local taxes not inc.," or:

"Divorces need not be messy nor traumatic if you let Reno Kid Snodgrass handle the paperwork," or:

"Has your husband abandoned you? No problem. The Reno Kid belongs to a nationwide network of husband tracers and papers can be served within 48 hours."

"Call us today. Our toll free number is 1-800-555-1234."

"P.S. — All major credit cards accepted."

Another approach might be the testimonial:

"Dear Mr. Snodgrass, "It has been several years since you saved me from the chair but I still think of you often and wish you were here so that I could thank you in person."

Sincerely yours,
 M. Lifer
 Birmingham Jail

"P.S. — I'll be eligible for parole when I am 85, can you recommend a lawyer who can get me Social Security?"

Mr. Lifer probably will not get an attorney to plead his case. The major economic impact of the new acne cure undoubtedly will be a multitude of malpractice suits against the old remedies and no unemployment among lawyers is forecast until 2,020 when the no-fault millennium will be in full flower.

Oh, yes, what about the 20 per cent good doctor from New Haven can't cure with his new combination drug?

"They'll have to go to China. What? Acne-puncture, of course."

Reagan supporters no bunch of kooks

By Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON — President Ford has not enjoyed having to scramble for enough delegates to nominate him at Kansas City next month. He is basically a good-natured man, but aides admit he has been impatient and even snappish as he battled Ronald Reagan's surprisingly strong challenge.

But the ultimate responsibility for this state of affairs is Ford's. Early on, and even up to the North Carolina primary, he swallowed assurances that Reagan's supporters were a bunch of kooks whose numbers were too insubstantial to matter.

Former Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird tried his best to convince Ford that Reagan was a real threat. "He didn't get anywhere," says a Laird aide. "Too many others (including former White House manager Don Rumsfeld) who wrote off Reagan's chances were getting Ford's ear."

Says one of those others, "We goofed, but it was an honest goof. We just couldn't see Reagan getting anywhere."

In fact, of course, Reagan's adherents were never kooks except for the fringe that attaches itself to any candidate. They are deeply concerned citizens who are flustered by the directions Washington has seemed to be taking on a number of policies and issues. They are what politicians call "respectable," that is, people who take the trouble to think about things before making up their minds.

For example, the Reaganites' position on the Panama Canal is not only respectable, it has considerable validity. They are right to be concerned about the possibility of handing the canal over to an upper case bum like Panama's bossman, Gen. Omar Torrijos. Torrijos is one of the world's more noxious dictators; some of his highest officials have even been linked with the illicit narcotics traffic.

Moreover, Torrijos is playing footsie with Fidel Castro. The idea of the U.S. yielding even some jurisdiction over the canal to a Castro intimate is not comforting. Perhaps the Reaganites are wrong to oppose any negotiations at all. After all, to negotiate is not to fly a surrender flag. But it is good that Reagan already has caused the Ford ad-

On the road without Teddy

By Tom Tiede

WINDER, Ga. — The man said his name was Ana Ellis, age 61, race Caucasian, status vagabond. He was hitchhiking along Route 29, going south for crop work. He had a pack on his back and a sack under his arm. He was dirty. His nose ran. His whiskers were stained a deep yellow. I picked him up on the edge of Greenville.

He wasn't a bum, he said. He worked when he could get work, and moved on when he couldn't. It had been his way for 30 years. He spoke rapidly, almost gratefully, as a man does who is alone much of the time. "I'm not married and don't want to be. I got no bank account and don't want one." He said he ate very little, slept in the fields, made coffee out of various grains and spent his money on wine.

He looked out the window. "Teddy liked wine," he said. "Teddy?"

"My dog. He's dead now. Poor bugger."

The man sat quietly. Rightly. His hands in his lap. "Teddy would drink right from the bottle, but you had to get careful or he'd spill it." He tore a cigarette in half, put one side in his pocket and lit the other.

"He was a smart old bugger. He could sit, he could jump over a stick, he could count by barking. I had this thing I did when there were other people around; I'd play I was asleep and Teddy would come over and tap me with his nose, then tap me with his paw, and then like he was mad he'd grab my pants and growl like hell. It was a regular show. He was a smart old bugger."

The man said he had found the dog years before. He had gotten up one morning and the animal, then a pup, was sleeping by the dead fire coals. He reasoned that it was out of a litter that had been let loose and so was free for the taking. "I didn't know about him at first. When you move around you don't want nothin' slowing you down. But I liked him right off. He had a big feet and he smelled good. I named him Teddy, after Roosevelt." His kind of looked like Roosevelt.

"We drove through a small community where the man remembered working once. He said he had picked peaches for a farmer west of town. He remembered because he had fallen off a ladder and broken a wrist. He said he was laid up for three months and nearly starved. He

Supreme Court to review Florida death sentence case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Tuesday accepted a death sentence case from Florida in which the defendant challenged the failure of the prosecution to disclose a confidential presentence investigation report.

The appeal was brought by Daniel Wilbur Gardner, sentenced in Citrus County in 1974 for the beating murder of his wife, Bertha Mae, in their trailer home.

Gardner contended the action in a capital case constitutes a denial of the constitutional right to effective assistance of a lawyer and the right to a fair hearing where the trial judge declines to accept a jury recommendation of life sentence and instead imposes the death sentence partly on the basis of the report.

The court last Friday upheld the constitutionality of Florida's death sentence statute against the claim that it violates the ban against "cruel and unusual punishment."

But various subsidiary claims are expected to be made on appeal of Florida's death row inmates and those in the 16 other states where convicted persons are awaiting execution.

The laws of Louisiana and North Carolina were struck down but those in Florida, Georgia and Texas were upheld.

In another action Tuesday, the court struck down Oklahoma's capital punishment law, vacated the death sentences imposed in six cases and sent them back to state court for further proceedings. Oklahoma's law corresponds to those of North Carolina and Louisiana, invalidated on grounds they provide for mandatory imposition of the death sentence without appropriate appeal procedure or low way for judges and juries to exercise mercy.

In its brief order the court said Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Byron R. White and William H. Rehnquist would not have found the Oklahoma law a violation of the 8th Amendment's ban on cruel and unusual punishment but would simply have returned the case to the Court of Criminal Appeals of Oklahoma for further proceedings.

Hijacker surrenders

PALMA DE MALLORCA, Spain (UPI) — A 29-year-old Libyan man hijacked a Libyan domestic airliner, but surrendered to Spanish authorities in Palma de Mallorca.

Police said 86 persons aboard the airliner escaped unharmed and the plane returned to Libya about four hours after it landed.

The national news agency Cifra identified the hijacker as Mustafa Hasdumugid, 20.

There was no indication as to Hasdumugid's motive. The news agency Europa Press said it appeared he was mentally deranged.

Birthdays almost overlooked

Oakdale trip openings

Lutz Junior Museum, 126 Cedar St., still has openings for its trip to Oakdale Theater in Wallingford. The group will view a special children's theater performance of "The Emperor's New Clothes." The museum has chartered buses for these popular Oakdale performances for the past two years.

The bus will leave the museum at 9:30 a.m. and return at about 2 p.m. Participants can either bring a bag lunch or purchase a snack at the theater.

Performances especially appeal to children in Grade 3 and below, although older youngsters enjoy them also.

Anyone 12 years old or younger must be accompanied by an adult. Prices, including transportation are $2.50 for members and $3.25 for non-members.

Registration must be made by calling the museum on or before July 14.

George was there

George Washington showed last week to do some teaching at the University of Connecticut School of Dental Medicine.

He was resplendent in a red, white and blue colonial uniform but without his powdered wig — and with natural rather than wooden teeth.

Washington was actually Dr. Salvatore J. Squatrito Jr., of Glastonbury, a dentist with offices in Manchester who teaches part-time at the dental school as an assistant clinical professor in periodontics.

Dairy Queen wins first in Little League tourney

First blood in the annual Manchester Little League baseball double elimination tournament on championship entries was drawn last night by the Hartford Road Dairy Queen entry.

The Queens upended Moriarty Brothers, 5-1, with a fine comeback at Waddell Field.

Playing before a large crowd, Moriarty's, National League winners, started off fast by scoring all three runs in their first at bats.

Two bases on balls and an error, followed by three passed balls, and Bob Filloramo's single enabled the MB's to shoot into a 3-0 margin.

The Queens got on the scoreboard with a run in the third inning without benefit of a base hit.

Three runs in the fourth inning by the Queens wiped out the deficit and a run in the third inning crossed the plate was the game-winning hit.

Moriarty's loaded the bases in the fifth stanza but could not score. East Hartford ran its Zone Eight, led by center fielder and first baseman Rick Longo and a subsequent run-down play.

Brian Galligan was the only player with two hits and Carone was a defensive standout at shortstop for the winners.

R Sox score runs and Jenkins wins

BOSTON (UPI) — It was one of those nights when even the unexpected turned out right for the Boston Red Sox.

Ferguson Jenkins tossed a four-hit shutout and won his seventh game Tuesday as Boston defeated the Chicago White Sox, 4-0.

Jenkins had spent all Monday afternoon charting the Chicago lineup in preparation for the game, but the White Sox foiled his plans by revamping the lineup.

"It was completely different," said Jenkins afterward. "But they took two power hitters out of the lineup so I figured I'd just have to stay close and not give up too many runs. I was all set to pitch one way against the lineup I saw Monday and then everything changed."

Moreover, the Red Sox got him some runs. Jenkins said he had pitched well enough to win his last five decisions, but he hadn't been getting the runs with which to work.

"I had a couple of no decisions, pitched about seven innings last Saturday in Milwaukee and ran out of gas," Jenkins said. "Then, I had a 3-2 loss in there somewhere. I've pitched well."

He got all the runs he needed in the fourth inning. Carlton Fisk, fighting a slump in his batting average has dropped almost 30 points, led off with a single and was moved to second by Boston's base hit.

Fisk scored on a single to right by Doug Griffin, with both baserunners moving up on the ground home, and as the Sox won their third straight to go over the 500 mark for the first time in nearly two months. The win was the first since June 6 for Blue, now 7-7. Tenace singled home Don Baylor in the fourth and had a 3-2 bases-loaded walk in the eighth from

"I had good control," he said. "And I didn't have to tax myself in a couple of innings. They went out fast. That's always a help when you're pitching."

Manager Darrell Johnson said it had to be one of Jenkins' better games.

"Anytime only one runner goes beyond first base, I'd say that's an excellent ballgame," he said. "This one was good, but Fergie pitched a better game out in Milwaukee. We count on him to be the pitcher of the week before he got tired."

Johnson mentioned he felt the Red Sox were slowly gaining some momentum in their pursuit of the New York Yankees for first place in the American League Eastern Division.

"The consistency is starting to show up again," he said. "You can see it in the little things. Fundamentally, this club is starting to play ball. I'm sure we can keep it up."

Yanks to welcome break

NEW YORK (UPI) — With a little bit of rest and relaxation Billy Martin feels the New York Yankees will be as good as new.

The Yankees, admittedly tired after their recent road trip, split a doubleheader with the Kansas City Royals Tuesday night, winning the nightcap 7-4 after losing the opener 3-1 to the combined three-hit pitching of Doug Bird and Steve Mingori.

New York dropped the first two games of the series, billed by many as a preview of the American League playoffs, before rebounding to beat Kansas City in the nightcap.

"What we really need is some time off," said Martin. "The All-Star break couldn't come at a better time for us."

"We're still pretty tired from playing a night game in Cleveland Sunday, a day game here Monday and a doubleheader tonight," said Chris Chambliss, who belted a three-run homer to key a five-run, eighth-inning rally in the second game.

"I get our concentration and some rest here there is no reason we won't keep up our winning ways."

After Sandy Alomar and Jim Mason walked to start the eighth inning of the second game, Tom Hall replaced Kansas City starter Steve Busby and allowed a bunt single to sixth with Charlie Moore aboard. Jim Slaton went 5 2/3 innings for his ninth win.

A's 2, Orioles 0

Vida Blue, back to early-season form, fired a six-hitter while Gene Tenace drove in both Oakland runs, as the A's won their third straight to go over the 500 mark for the first time in nearly two months. The win was the first since June 6 for Blue, now 7-7. Tenace singled home Don Baylor in the fourth and had a 3-2 bases-loaded walk in the eighth from hard-luck loser Jim Palmer, 10-8. Indians 9, Angels 3

Player-manager Frank Robinson homered and singled for two early runs that helped Dennis Eckersley win for the first time in six weeks. Robinson slammed his third homer of the year, No. 588 of his career, in the first inning and singled in another run when Cleveland added two runs in the second. Eckersley, now 47, departed in the sixth after yielding a two-run homer to Tommy Davis.

Anderson picked Randy Jones of the San Diego Padres, who has won 15 games already, Tom Seaver and Jon Matlack of the New York Mets, Andy Messersmith of the Atlanta Braves, Rick Rhoden of the Los Angeles Dodgers, John Montefusco of the San Francisco Giants, Woody Fryman of the Montreal Expos and Ken Forsch of the Houston Astros as his pitchers.

Naturally, how those pitchers are used during this weekend will determine who will start and see the most action on Tuesday.

The betting, of course, is Anderson will reward Jones with the starting role inasmuch as Randy is the league's top winner for the first half of the season with his 15-3 record and a 2.51 earned run average. It will be Jones' second All-Star Game.

The team among the pitchers is Seaver, a two-time Cy Young Award winner, who will be making his ninth All-Star appearance. But Seaver has been struggling, at least for him, run average, and a 2.92 earned run average.

Anderson said he was pleased with the eight men he picked.

"I know I had to be guided by the fact that where no player was picked by the fans I had to select someone from each club to make the team representative," said Anderson. "In this case, though, I think I picked the best eight pitchers I could."

For Rhoden, Montefusco and Forsch it will be their first All-Star Game. Fryman was named once before and Messersmith was picked three times previously.

A.S.A. play

Coming up July 10-11 and July 17, two state-wide Women's A.S.A. slow pitch softball tournaments will be held simultaneously at Fitzgerald Field and Mt. Nebo.

The tournaments are the Women's Major A.S.A. Tournament and Women's Class "A" A.S.A. Tournament.

The teams that will be competing, nine in the major tourney and nine in Class "A", are the top women's softball teams in Connecticut.

The winner of the "A" tourney will compete in the National Tournament in York, Pa., over the Labor Day weekend. The winner and runner-up in the major tourney advance to regional competition in Pittsfield, Mass., and then on to the National Tournament in Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 3-6.

Teams competing in the tournaments will be representing Westport, Milford, Fairfield, New Haven, Naugatuck, Manchester, Vernon, Willimantic, Plainville, Bridgeport and Meriden.

Manchester will have a representative in each tournament. David's will compete in the Major Tournament and Crispino's in Class "A".

NEW YORK (UPI) — Remember the Seabees' famous World War II motto: "The difficult we do immediately; the impossible takes a little longer?"

Well, Steve Garvey feels pretty much the same after the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Philadelphia Phillies, 5-1, Tuesday night for their second straight victory over the National League's runaway leaders in the Eastern Division.

The Dodgers still trail the first-place Cincinnati Reds by 5 1/2 games in the West when you add their record to 9-6 for Atlanta. Run-scoring hits by Jim Wynn and Tom Facione sent Messersmith off to a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Jim Rooker, who yielded four four Braves' runs, was the loser.

Cardinals 13, Giants 7

Steve Stone and Bruce Sutter combined on a three-hitter for Chicago, which scored its second straight shutout. Bill Madlock drove in two runs for the Cubs with a single in the first inning and a double in the third to help hand Alan Foster his fifth setback.

Two-run singles by Ted Simmons and Hector Cruz were the big blows of a seven-run, first inning, which routed Ed Halicki and sent St. Louis on its way to victory over San Francisco.

ASTORIA 1, Mets 0

Reliever Skip Lockwood's three-base error on Wilbur Howard's lead leading off the 10th inning and Jerry Devanor's single provided the Astros with the only run in the game with New York, who left 15 runners stranded. J.R. Richard allowed eight hits, walked 10 batters and twice pitched out of jams after filling the bases on walks enroute to his eighth win for Houston. Jon Matlack pitched nine scoreless innings for the Dodgers scoring five runs off Larry Christenson in the third inning and went on to win behind the six-hit pitching of Doug Rau. Mike Schmidt hit his 22nd homer in the first inning for the Phillies' only run off Rau.

The Reds defeated Montreal, 10-7, Atlanta beat Pittsburgh, 4-2, Houston scored a 1-0 victory over New York, who Chicago whipped San Diego, 4-0, and St. Louis outlasted San Francisco, 13-7, in the other NL games.

Reds 10, Expos 7

Ken Griffey, George Foster and Dan Briesland led a 14-hit attack by driving in two runs each for Cincinnati, which dealt former teammate Clay Kirby his sixth loss against one victory. The Reds, who took advantage of five Montreal errors to score four unearned runs, broke open the game with a five-run burst in the seventh inning. Raulo Eskinich, second of three Cincinnati pitchers, was the winner.

Play begins Saturday morning at 9 at Mt. Nebo and 10:30 at Fitzgerald Field with a game slated every 90 minutes with seven games being played at each field Saturday and Sunday. Saturday, July 17, both tournaments will play at Fitzgerald with the champs being crowned Saturday night.

Road crew firemen to get pay

Bolton
The Board of Selectmen Tuesday voted 2-1 to pay members of the road crew who respond to fires in town during the regular work day.
David Dressely, first selectman, and Leon Rivers, selectman, were in favor of paying the volunteers.
Norman Preuss, selectman, opposed the decision.
At this time the road crew includes two men who are also members of the volunteer fire department, Danny Rattazzi and Lance Dimock.
They will not be allowed to respond to plant-by-calls, must have permission from the road foreman, Rattazzi, and must report directly back to work.
The volunteers do not have to accept the pay.
The Board of Fire Commissioners said they supported the volunteers getting paid but felt it was a personnel problem and the decision should be made by the selectmen.

Town's directors adopt

Also speaking for the plan was Mrs. Lee Ann Gundersen, who is chairperson of the Human Relations Commission.
"We just celebrated a Bicentennial. It seemed a lot of what was said about our country talked about equal opportunity and justice for all," she said.
Joseph Sweeney, an attorney and member of the Human Relations Commission, said that the affirmative action plan does not set up a quota system.
"The plan stands for a policy of fair play. It says the town will repair its hiring practices to make sure there is no built-in bias. The plan simply says minority and non-minority members will have an equal opportunity to apply for a job," Sweeney said.
"The best qualified person will still get it," he said.

Development act labeled 'deceiving'

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter
Calling the City and Town Development Act "deceiving," Rep. Russell L. Post Jr. of the 2nd District told the Manchester Board of Directors last night why he is opposed to the act.
"I don't oppose the act for its purposes. I oppose it because people believe it is a panacea. I think it's going to create bigger problems than it solves," the Republican representative said.
The board, which is considering presenting the act in formal referendum, had heard Peter Kelly, a Hartford attorney who supports the act, at an earlier session.
Post said four towns — Hartford, New Britain, New Haven and Bridgeport — have passed the act in referendum, but only Hartford has made use of it.
He said the act has "gimmicks" which may end up hurting the town and helping the industries the town would be trying to attract through use of the act.
"One such 'gimmick,' he said, was the proposed tax abatement the act permits. The town could abate taxes for an industry for up to 20 years, thus making it more attractive for a business to locate in the community.
"Tax abatement is a deal. The community goes to a business and says, 'You'll pay less taxes for giving the community something,' Post said. "The people who will make up the difference are the people who always pay 100% of their taxes — the homeowners."
The act also allows developers to come directly to the community rather than first going to a state development agency, Post said.
"I foresee major developers getting into agreements which help them but may get the community into trouble," he said.
He is also opposed to a revenue bond concept proposed in the act. He said when private industry doesn't find a concept to the community attractive, revenue bonds may be used as a "sweetener" to create even a better deal for the industry. He noted revenue bonds were used in New York City projects which went "sour."
"This is part of the cause of New York's fiscal problems, he said. "The whole act constitutes further involvement of government with what should be private industry. It provides for a way of manipulation in back rooms where government and private enterprise can make deals," Post said.

Public works bill vetoed

Ford and Congress face new showdown

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and the Democratic majority in Congress are engaged in a new veto fight over public works jobs.
Ford won the last battle on that issue. But the Democrats believe this time they have the edge. Both sides accuse each other of playing election-year politics over America's seven million unemployed.
The President Tuesday cast his 52nd veto, against a $3.95 billion bill, which Democrats claim would create or preserve up to 350,000 jobs.
It would provide $2 billion for public works projects ready to start within 90 days, designed to create jobs mainly in the construction industry.
It would give $1.25 billion in budget aid to local governments hard hit by recession to keep them from having to reduce services and lay off employees.
And it would provide $700 million for water treatment plants in 33 states, which feel they were shortchanged in an earlier allocation of anti-pollution money.
Ford vetoed a $6 billion version of the same bill in February. The reasons he gave Tuesday were the same as then: The bill would create at most about half the number of jobs claimed; the average cost per job would be $25,000 and they would be lasting jobs; the peak impact would not come for 18 months, when it would overstimulate an already recovering economy and cause inflation.
"The signs are unmistakable," Ford said. "Four months before a national election, Congress is moving full speed ahead down the road to bigger and bigger giveaway programs."
Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., called Ford's veto "bad economic policy, callous social policy and an apparent attempt to woo conservative delegates to the Republican National Convention."
The House voted to override the February veto, but the Senate fell three votes short of the necessary two-thirds.
A vote on the new bill cannot come before the Congress reconvenes July 19 after a two-week recess, but there were several indications that the outcome could be different this time.
Both houses passed the sealed-down bill by more than two-thirds majorities, 70-25 in the Senate and 328 to 83 in the House.
Supporters of the bill have smoothed over a jurisdictional dispute which cost them several votes in February.
The budget aid to localities would be distributed more widely than in the previous version, perhaps giving it more appeal.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 7 — A local authority reported that the town militia were having difficulty in coping with British prisoners of war sent to the community because so many Americans had gone to New Jersey because of the invasion threat that the prisoners were outnumbering their guards.

Amateur gymnastics in Martin Park

Bridgette Hickey, 7, of East Hartford lets her hair fly as she does a quick spin on a bar in Martin Park off Burnside Ave. over the July 4 weekend. Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, you stated that Anna Jarvis, the originator of Mother's Day, was from Philadelphia. Please retract your statement. She was from Grafton, W. Va.

DEAR PROUD: I've had an avalanche of protest from proud and brave West Virginians since the column appeared, and I offer the following: Miss Anna M. Jarvis established Mother's Day to honor the memory of her mother, Mrs. Anna Reeves Jarvis, of Grafton, W. Va.

DEAR ABBY: Whom did the absurd practice of tipping waiters begin? It is ridiculous to be expected to add between 15 and 20 per cent to the bill just to have the food brought from the kitchen to the table.

DEAR ABBY: I have an alcoholic sister who lives in the same city with my elderly mother. My mother lives alone, and she has been well for the last few years, but she is very frail and needs a lot of attention.

DEAR SON: If there is, I'm not able to come up with it. Readers?

Audrey Durey

Just keeps rollin' along

By BETTY RYDER

Family/Travel Editor.
When Audrey Durey of 138 Lyness St. says she has "scoot" — she means it.
Audrey, who will be 82 in October, drives a 1963 Harley Davidson "Topper" motorscooter and has been for 18 years.
"It all began when my oldest son, John, had an old Cushman motor scooter. I tried it out and had more fun than I could describe," she said.

"In 1960 I bought a Harley Davidson, then this one in 1963," she said, pointing to her blue and white "Topper."
Audrey and her husband, Roy, have been avid riders for some time.
"My husband and I drove to Montpelier, Vt., crossed Lake Champlain on the ferry, went through the Catskills and came back home. It was a 600-mile trip and we enjoyed every minute of it."
"We used to go to the Catskills just for the day, have lunch there, then drive back. It was about 99 miles and we'd take the scenic route. It was lovely."

A personable woman with gray hair and sparkling eyes, Audrey says of herself, "I know I look funny to some people driving around town. Sometimes when I'd go by Benet Junior High School, the kids would whistle and yell 'get a horse.' I'd yell right back, 'I've got one in the backyard.'"
It's not an unusual sight to see Audrey whiz along to the Senior Citizens Center where she enjoys playing bridge.

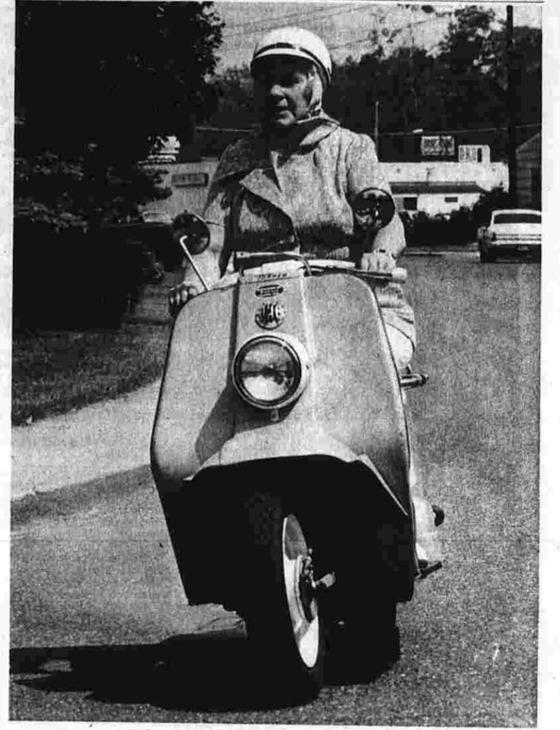

"The first time I drove to the Center, some of my friends there couldn't believe it," she said.
"Staying active must run in the family because Audrey's mother, Ivy Siddell of 6 Gostee Dr., still goes to the Center most every week to play bridge."
"Mother doesn't go on a scooter. I usually pick her in the car."

The Dureys are natives of Iowa. "Ironically enough, I was born in Manchester, Iowa, and my family later moved to Clinton," Audrey said.

The couple has three children, John of Middletown, Larry of Manchester, and Mrs. Betty Erismann of Rockville. They also have two grandchildren.
Incidentally, being interviewed by The Herald is not new to Audrey. It happened 24 years ago on Nov. 21, 1952.

"I was a preliminary winner for this region in the fourth nationwide Pillsbury recipe contest, and the photographer came to take my picture. John, who was only five then, came bouncing in from school, so the photographer included him in the photo," she said.

Roy Durey, who was a general foreman at Pratt & Whitney Division of United Technologies Corp., retired three years ago.
"He doesn't ride anymore. He gave his cycle to my son," Audrey said.

Audrey zooms down Lyness St. heading for home.

"We keep busy. Last year we bought a mobile home in Tarpon Springs, Fla., near Clearwater and spent about four of the winter months there. We both work on handcrafts," she said pointing to a pair of plaques hanging on her living room wall.

The Dureys have been married for 42 years. Audrey has a brother and sister also residing in Manchester.

Roy of Mountain Rd., and Nadine Malcom who lives in the Teresa Rd. apartments. "Nadine is also a member of the Senior Citizens Center," she said.
As for cycling today, Audrey feels it is a lot more dangerous than it was when she started riding.
"The traffic is worse now. You have to be very alert. I always wear my crash helmet," she said.

During the winter, the motor scooter is stored in the basement of her home but when the good old summer rolls around, out it comes and off she goes.
A good natured woman, Audrey doesn't mind the kidding she gets and the curious looks she draws as she rides around town.
"People are always asking me aren't you afraid? I always answer back, 'If I were afraid, I wouldn't be riding.'"
"Now isn't that a silly question?" she said.

Your neighbor's kitchen

By Betty Ryder

Its outdoor cooking time again and the good supply of fresh fish. If you haven't caught any recently and your favorite supermarket doesn't have fresh seafood, the frozen product works just as well.

This smoke-cooked meal-in-one is tasty when cooked on the backyard grill.
Smoke cooking is a slower process than ordinary grill cooking, but the results are worth the added effort. Cooking with smoke adds additional flavor and is especially good for cooking fish and shellfish. Any outdoor barbecue equipment with a hood may be used.

With the hood, the heat is above as well as below the food; it should be kept moderate to low, depending on the food and the recipe. Wet hardwood chips over the heated ceramic tiles (electric or gas grill), or over the glowing charcoal lower the temperature and produce the smoke. (Use an oven thermometer with a charcoal grill.)
To begin your smoke-cooking adventure, try Fish-Vegetable Medley.

A foil package is the container for the food, going from grill to serving plate and keeping the food smoky hot while cutting down on clean-up chores.

Choose your favorite fish fillets and accent their delicate flavor with deviled ham, a new taste combination. Canned whole potatoes, onions, and mixed garden vegetables make this entree a complete meal-in-one. The sauce that enhances the medley is condensed tomato soup.

2 pounds fish fillets, fresh or frozen
2 tps. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
2 cans (4 1/2 ounces each) deviled ham
1 can (1 pound) whole potatoes, drained
1 can (1 pound) whole onions, drained
1 box (8 ounces) frozen mixed garden vegetables
2 tps. lemon juice
1 can (10 1/4 ounces) condensed tomato soup
Thaw frozen fish. Cut into serving size portions. Cut six pieces heavy-duty aluminum foil, 12 by 12 inches each. Grease lightly. Place fish on each piece of foil. Season with salt and pepper. Spread deviled ham on top of each piece of fish. Divide remaining ingredients equally among the packages of fish, using the soup last. Bring the foil up over the fish and seal the edges, making double folds in the foil to confine the juices. Place the packages on the grill inside the smoke oven. Cook in a slow oven, 300 degrees, for 15 minutes; open packages by cutting a crisscross in the top of each package and fold the foil back. Continue cooking for 10 to 15 minutes longer or until the fish flakes easily when tested with a fork, and the ingredients have a smoke flavor. Makes 6 servings.

If you're looking for a new and different recipe for those crabs you're going to catch this summer, try "Crab Fritters" made with beer.
1/2 pound (8 ounces) cooked

crabmeat (canned may be used)
1 egg
1/4 cup beer
1 cup all purpose biscuit mix
juice of 1 lemon
1/4 tsp. garlic salt
1/4 tsp. parsley flakes
4 drops Worcestershire sauce
Fat or oil for frying

Remove all cartilage from crabmeat. In a bowl, beat egg; add beer; stir in biscuit mix. Add seasonings and crabmeat and mix gently.

In heavy skillet, heat 2 to 3 inches fat or oil to 375 degrees. Drop batter into hot oil by 2 tablespoons and try until golden brown. Make approximately 12 fritters.

Fish-Vegetable Medley

Audrey looks over a copy of The Herald dated Nov. 21, 1952, which includes an account of her being named a preliminary winner for this region in a recipe contest.

There she goes.

On second thought

By Jan Warren

My Matterhorn

Editor's Note: During the month of July while Jan Warren is getting settled in her new home in Mississippi, The Herald will rerun some of her old columns. Jan will begin writing again on the first Wednesday in August.

Mountain climbing is something I would be perfectly content to just read about in the National Geographic. My fulfillment in life doesn't depend on reaching the top of anything, particularly a craggy mountain peak.

But, family life is made up of compromises, so when my family decided to climb Mount Washington, I did the sporting thing and agreed to go with them. As my son said to encourage me, "It's no big deal. Mom, only 6,288 feet."

The morning of our climb dawned bright and sunny and the kids' enthusiasm was contagious. I started out with vigor in my step, swinging my arms at my sides.

About 500 yards up the trail we came face to face with a sign that announced in startling red letters,

"WARNING." The kids pulled me by the sign very fast, but not before I saw the words, "experienced climbers only."

Within half hour, the one vigorous thing about me was my protests and they came with every breath.

How did I let you talk me into this? I ache all over! I'll never make it!"

"You're doing fine," encouraged my husband. "Just hold on there till you get your second wind."

Now my second wind was no hurricane, but it did come and gave me strength to pull one leg ahead of the other. I moved like a robot, walking to the count of 20 and resting to the count of 20. Once I rested against a pile of rocks that had a wooden cross on the top.

There, about 300 feet straight up was the top of Mount Washington. The American flag was flying on the roof of the hostel building. It was a glorious sight. However, between us and the top lay a field of huge rocks that stretched as far as you could see. There was no escaping them.

"Look," I said to my family. "I'm going to make it, but at my own pace. I don't want your comments. I don't want your help. So leave me. All of you!"

An hour later I slowly pulled myself over the last rock, took a brief look at the view and collapsed on my back. I moved like a robot, walking to the count of 20 and resting to the count of 20. Once I rested against a pile of rocks that had a wooden cross on the top.

"That cross means someone died on this very spot," explained John. "Finally there came a point when I knew that unless a third wind was coming, I'd had it. I simply couldn't go any farther. At that precise moment, the kids pointed up the mountain and shouted with awe in their voices, 'That's it. The top!'"

Farm tours planned

BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter "City folk" who think milk, eggs, vegetables and fruit appear by some magic in the supermarkets, will have the opportunity to tour some area farms to actually see where most of their food products do come from.

Niemann dairy farm on Jobs Hill, Ellington, will open its doors to the public. Coordinators for this tour will be Henry Lanz and Edward Luginbuhl, both of Ellington.

In Hartford County, the farms to visit will be: Hastings Farm, Hill St., Suffield, dairy; Mott's Farms, Graham Rd., Windsorville, nursery and tobacco; Accornero Farm, Clark Hill Rd., South Glastonbury, orchard; and Yankee Milk, Milk Lane, Newington. At the latter farm visitors will see the processing of milk, the churning of butter and such.

The bureau also revealed that Connecticut farmers have invested about $900 million in capital items such as land, buildings, equipment and livestock. Manchester area residents interested in further information concerning the tours should call the Tolland County Agriculture Center, Vernon, 875-3331.

Each host farm will provide tour guides to insure that guests get a full view of what it takes to produce their food and to answer questions of both children and adults. The bureau said the 50,000 acres devoted to agriculture produce 40 per cent of the state's milk needs, 100 per cent of the requirement of New England-grown fruit, 30 per cent of the vegetables in season, and 90 per cent of the eggs and poultry meats.

Banavige-Daley

Barbara Lynn Daley and Glenn Bernard Banavige, both of Manchester, were married June 26 at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor J. Daley of 305 Charter Oak St. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Banavige of 287 Burnham St.

The Rev. Newell Curtis of Center Congregational Church performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white satrapeau A-line gown trimmed with venetian lace and designed with Empire bodice, Bishop sleeves and ruffled train. Her veil of bridal illusion, which was made and designed by a maid of honor, was attached to a matching lace headpiece. She carried a bouquet of miniature carnations, yellow puff pompons, baby's breath and purple asters.

Miss Janet Wilson of Manchester was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Laurie Banavige and Miss Kathy Banavige, both of Manchester and sisters of the bridegroom.

One booth will be in front of Bernie's Plaza, 699 Main St., and will be manned by people from the registrar of voters office. The second booth, at 923 Main St. in front of the Savings Bank of Manchester, will be run by members of the League of Women Voters.

Both of the booths will be registering voters from 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Ten members of the League of Women Voters were recently sworn in as assistant Registrars of voters so they could legally register people.

Town checks swim pools for safety

Twenty to thirty swimming pools built without permits have been discovered so far this swim season, according to estimates made by Chief Building Inspector Francis J. Conti and Zoning Enforcement Officer Ernest R. Machell Jr.

Pools built without permits, as well as those that do not conform to safety regulations, continue to be a major problem for the town Building Department. Last year, 50 pools that had been built without permits were found, and in 1974, the first spring after Machell was hired, 200 such pools were uncovered.

Conti said the 1974 figure is so high because before that time the department had never had the manpower or time to search for non-permitted pools. Shortly after Machell was hired, a house-by-house survey was undertaken. But, even now, the department is not able to adequately search for such pools, Conti said.

Although the number of pools discovered without permits has fallen, Conti and Machell are still concerned about the problem.

"There has been a big influx of pools in the last three years, Conti said. Since 1973, there have been 421 pools built in Manchester.

"These are only pools with permits. How many were put in without permits, only the Good Lord and the neighbors know," Conti said.

When a non-permitted pool is found, Machell writes to the people and tells them the proper steps for registering the pool. Then, the building department inspects the pool to make sure safety regulations have been met.

Conti feels part of the blame lies with the pool salesman. "The sellers are afraid if they tell people a building permit is required, a competent electrician is needed to do the wiring and a fence must be put up, they will back off," he said.

"The buyer figures if the salesman or the neighbors don't tell them about it, it's OK."

Buyers of pools must obtain an electrical permit for the wiring necessary for the pool's pump. The electrical cable must be buried at least 18 inches below ground and the outlet has to be ten feet or more from the pool.

Also required by state law is a fence around the pool. Fencing must be at least four feet high and must have a self-closing, self-latching gate. An above-ground pool that is at least four feet above the ground does not require fencing, but the entrance to the pool must have a self-closing, self-latching gate.

If a pool does not meet safety standards, the building department informs the owner of what changes have to be made. If the problem is not corrected, the building department tells the owner the pool cannot be used.

"We're very determined to make sure pools are safe," Conti said. "In the past 20 years, we've had five pool-related deaths in Manchester. I'll be damned if there'll be a sixth."

Secret Ballot

In the year 1795 a court in South Carolina was handed a political hot potato. A local candidate, defeated for the town council, claimed that some of the voters against him had been miscounted. His proposal was simple: Call the voters to the witness stand, put them under oath, and make them tell how they voted.

But after due deliberation the court said no. Forcing such a disclosure, said the court, would involve "a kind of inequitable power unknown to the principles of our government." Ever since the nation's beginnings, the secrecy of the ballot has been recognized as our ultimate political safeguard. And, with minor exceptions, how a citizen marks his ballot continues to be in the eyes of the law—no one's business but his own.

Secrecy applies not only to testimony in the courtroom but also to procedure in the voting booth. In another case, voters marked their ballots while standing shoulder to shoulder along an open wall. Anyone could peek.

But a court ruled later that this procedure was so vulnerable to tampering that the voters could not be counted. Voting machines have reduced the possibility of connecting a specific ballot to a specific voter. But problems may still arise in absentee balloting.

One election official, upon receiving some absentee ballots, transferred them from the black-lined envelopes to the original outer envelopes—containing the voter's name and return address. Although no ulterior motive was proven, the ballots were rejected. "Absent voting would be largely useless," said the court, "if secrecy is not maintained. If outsiders may see how the individual voted, many voters will refrain from voting rather than run the risk of such a possibility."

Mexico's ancient treasures looted

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Looters are making off with archaeological treasures from thousands of pre-Columbian Indian ruins in Mexico and the money-short government is unable to hire enough security guards to put a stop to the thefts.

Officials of the National Institute of Anthropology and History say most of the artifacts end up in the hands of U.S. citizens.

Joe Lopez Portillo, the handpicked successor of President Luis Echeverria Alvarez, recently called the looting "a crime against culture" and said more funds will have to be spent to safeguard the Indian ruins.

Right now, one man sometimes has to watch over an archeological site spread out over several acres.

Enrique Valencia of the National Institute of Anthropology and History said 50 stone columns covered with Mayan script have been taken out and used in home construction and even road-building, he said. But mainly they're sold. In some cases the thieves transport the stone pieces away in helicopters and small airplanes.

Of Consumer Concern

MACAP facts

Not many consumers are aware of the assistance offered by the Major Appliance Consumer Action Panel (MACAP) in helping solve consumer complaints.

MACAP is sponsored by the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers, Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association and National Retail Merchants Association.

Three individuals from Southern New England are included on the panel of 10 members. They are: Dr. Elsie F. Feltman, professor of Family Economics, Cooperative Extension Service, University of Connecticut, Storrs; Edwin P. Palumbo, executive director, Rhode Island Consumer's Council, Providence; Rhode Island, and John Rose Jr., attorney, Hartford.

MACAP accepts complaints and receives comments from appliance owners. The panel reviewed a total of 1,077 files during 1975.

Major appliances with which the panel is concerned are dehumidifiers, dishwashers, disposers, room air conditioners, trash compactors and water heaters.

To register a complaint with MACAP first contact, in this order, the dealer service agency and the company headquarters office. If unsatisfied, write to MACAP at 20 North Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60606, or phone collect 312-281-2115.

Include the name and brand of appliance, address of dealer and service agency, date of purchase, model and serial numbers, factual description of the problem and efforts to resolve it. Copies of receipts are helpful.

Answers to questions of general interest will appear in this column. Address questions to: "Of Consumer Concern" Dept. of Consumer Protection, State Office Building, Hartford, Conn. 06115.

What will the symbols mean?

LAURIE HORN NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI)—Newport Harbor looked naked Monday, stripped of the enchantment of masts and rigging that for a week sliced the sky into lacework, attracting more than a half million people.

Why did they come, the hordes—with their cameras and binoculars, their babies, their ragamuffin children, their Tall Ships beer and T-shirts and glossy Tall Ships souvenir programs?

What did they hope to see as they waited on line for hours to board a single sailing vessel or pay $10 an hour for a launch to thread through waters so packed with pleasure boats they were unrecognizable?

What did they see from Poland, from Russia, from Chile, from Antigua—about the person who is an American, the person who Sunday celebrates a birthday, who takes stock of him or herself and presents the self, the crowd, the country, as a statement to the world?

Publicists billed the Tall Ships festival as a preview of New York Harbor's Operation Sail.

Tall Ships '76 was the first glimpse of a bicentennial gala that saw the great windjammers parade past narrow narrows named for Italian explorer Giovanni da Verazzano—up a river once the Algonquians called Shallemuck—the river that flows both ways—and the British named after Henry Hudson.

They passed by a Statue of Liberty sculpted by Frenchman Frederic Auguste Bartholdi to a bridge named for American-born George Washington.

The names are symbols—links to the past.

Newport too is an old symbol of a city founded in 1639 by a band of religious outcasts from Massachusetts and settled by waves of persecuted Quakers from England and Jews from Portugal.

Answer Man finds the action in the Big Apple

ARNOLD SAWISLAK WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Campaign Answer Man, festooned with badges and buttons and luging a briefcase bulging with platform planks and credentials challenges, dropped by on his way to the Democratic convention to give us a preview of next week's festivities.

Alabama will turn up in the drunk tank and charged by three friendly young women while taking his regular after dinner stroll through Times Square. He will say that they took him to a quiet little cafe on a side street for iced tea, and that someone must have slipped something into his drink.

Kong by scaling the wall of the Empire State Building. They will say that the officer who cajoled the man down at great risk to himself reported that the delegate obviously had something in his tea besides ice cubes.

Question: But what about the convention itself? Won't there be any suspense about the nomination? Answer Man: You can count on it. Sometime Tuesday morning, a rumor will sweep the convention hotels that a draft movement is being formed for Teddy Kennedy, Hubert Humphrey, Eugene McCarthy or Milton Spang.

Question: What about the platform? Any excitement there? Answer Man: Of course. On Monday, the Tennessee or Utah delegation will announce that its members will insist that the platform be opened for amendment in order to consider a plank denouncing the spread of Kudzu.

The Carter headquarters will announce that the governor is sympathetic with the demand, but will ask the delegates to withhold action until he can issue a position paper on the problem.

Question: Well, what about the vice presidential nomination? Isn't that something that will get people steamed up? Answer Man: That will be the big show. By Wednesday morning, the list of the top five contenders will grow to 67. This will be reduced when one of the lists is found to have the names of several qualified but deceased Democrats on it. The suspense will rise Thursday morning when someone in the Carter suite sends out for a coin. However, by lunchtime, the candidate will call a news conference and make his announcement. I am not sure what he will say, but I can predict what the reporters will respond when he has disclosed his choice.

Question: What will they say? Answer Man: "WHO?"

The delegation chairman will demand meetings with the national chairman, the mayor and Jimmy Carter. He will be offering national stitute quarters in Jersey City, which they will reject, vowing never to come to another national convention in New York and anywhere else east of the Platte River.

Social Security

Q. I've had a maid come in twice a week for the past few months while my wife had been sick. Do I have to report her wages? A. If you pay her $50 or more in cash in any three-month calendar quarter, you must send a report of the wages, along with your share and her share of the Social Security contributions, to the Internal Revenue Service within a month after the quarter ends. Thus, the report for the quarter ending June 30 is due July 31 (Aug. 2 this year because July 31 falls on a Saturday). Call your IRS office to get a copy of the reporting form.
