NEW YORK (UPI) - With a seemingly impenetrable security net ringing Madison Square Garden, bombers chose instead nearby department stores Monday to plant 10 small incendiary devices in a protest apparently aimed at the The Puerto Rican nationalist group

FALN - the Spanish acronym for Armed Forces for the Liberation of Puerto Rico - claimed responsibility for the explosions in Macy's, Ohrbach's, Lord and Taylor's, Korvettes and Altman's.

Police said two devices planted in Gimbel's did not go off. A police spokesman said there was 'very small' damage and no injuries, although the Herald Square area stores were crowded with lunch-

The first explosion went off on Macy's seventh floor in a fabrics department. Lt. Henry Torres of the police bomb and arson squad said a carpet was scorched and material amaged. Macy's was not evacuated A communique with the FALN letterhead was found in a telephone booth after an anonymous call to the New York Post directed reporters

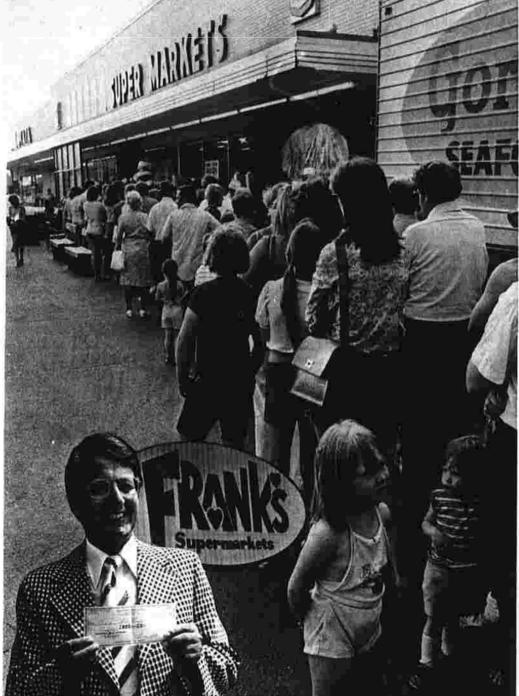

The communique said the bornbings were carried out by its "armed ommando unit Andre Figueron Cordero...in protest of the presence of 22 colonial leeches attending the national convention of one of the ruling parties of the United States" a reference to the Democrats'

Puerto Rican delegation. Inside the Garden, Puerto Rico Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon labeled the bombings "deplorable" and said the FALN "is no more representative of the people of Puerto Rico than the Symbionese Liberation Army is representative of the people of the United States"

The FALN has taken responsibility for a number of more serious bombings in the past two years, including a Jan. 24, 1975, blast at historic Fraunces Tavern in which four persons were killed and a number of bombings at corporate offices and government buildings in New York, Chicago and Washington.

Police said the department store devices - placed in cigarette packs and set off by wristwatch timers were similar to five explosive devices set off in Manhattan in 1974. The FALN also claimed responsibiliy for those explosions.

5. The Democrats: 1968

"I shall not seek, and I will not accept, the nomination of my party for another term as your President."

With these stunning words, delivered at the end of a nationwide television address March 31, Lyndon B. Johnson threw wide open the 1968 Democratic presidential nomination. The announcement came two weeks after the President had won a narrow 48-to-42 per cent victory over Minnesota's Sen. Eugene ("Clean Gene") McCarthy in the New Hampshire primary March 12.

While the 35th Democratic convention was one of the most turbulent the party had ever staged, with a record number of delegate challenges and platform disputes, it was on events outside the International Amphitheater that the nation's attention was riveted. Some 10,000 antiwar demonstrators began a march on the Amphitheater. When they were stopped by Mayor Richard Daley's Chicago police, a violent, bloody melee erupted.

Popular disgust with the excesses of the antiwar movement

Popular disgust with the excesses of the antiwar movement, plus Humphrey's unwillingness to disavow Johnson's discredited Vietnam policies, helped ensure the election of the Republican challengers, Richard M. Sprinkler dampens merchandise at Marlow's

George Marlow, owner of Marlow's Department Store, 867 Main St., looks over the first floor of his store, which was a bit wet Monday afternoon. A sprinkler on the second floor of the building was accidentally set off shortly after 4:15 p.m. and water dripped down through the ceiling. Marlow said there was a "very modest amount of damage to merchandise" and praised the fire department for doing a "magnificent job." (Herald photo by Lar-

Paul Greenberg, chairman of the building and sites committee of the Board of Education, told about 14 parents and PTA members of the two schools Monday night that the status of the applications was largely due to getting them in early.

Democratic State Rep. Theodore
Cummings agreed that "We are in pretty good shape, almost at the head

Board members met with concerned parents of the two schools to discuss the status of the school projects and to discuss the need for establishing priorities.

The two local projects were approved in a referendum last November with a spending limit set at $1.4. The difference between the Kennedy told the group he plans to appoint two citizens task forces, one to work on short-range plans concerning the two school projects, and one to study long-range plans within the next 10 to 15 years.

The task force to study the shortrange plans will be chosen from representatives from both political parties, real estate, recreation department, medical profession, both school parent groups, and other the next board meeting. Kennedy also suggested that the two school groups caucus among themselves so that they would have a firm list of priorities to present to the board when the board makes its presentation to the task force.

Greenberg reminded the group that architects' plans for renovations to the schools were available for them to study.

The school enrollment trend will affect the state's decision on school building applications. Kennedy said there are new schools in the state which have not yet been paid for which are either closed or converted to other uses because of pupil enrollment decline.

A demographer has been hired by the board to study the enrollment trends beyond the five-year estimates made by local educators. Board member Earl Odom assured those present that the board is concerned with the actual needs of the two schools although it might have appeared at times that the board was more concerned with the effect of enrollment trends on the schools. This was in reply to a parent's accusation that the school administra-tion had givens an impression through the press that it was not supporting the long-existing needs of the two schools.

Kennedy, speaking for the board, said that no one wants the standards of Bentley and Washington Schools brought up to that of other schools more than we do.

Kennedy described plans for guidelines being developed by the state by which the school applications will be considered. The first draft should be ready by Sept. 1, he said, and will become effective by

The population projections for the next five years will not necessarily affect these projects, Kennedy said, but the future long-term trends probably will.

Cummings assured the group he will do what he can to get information on the applications and assist in the fight to make sure they are at the top of the list for the state's consideration.

PZC clarifies regulation on liquor sales permits amendment that clarifies liquor regulations for Manchester

Two persons, Thomas Wall of the Sportsman's Cafe and Mike Massaro of the West Side Italian Kitchen, were present for the hearing on the amendment. Both requested an State asks nursing home explanation of the amendment, but neither expressed strong opposition Commission Vice Chairman John J. Hutchinson Sr. told the two men. "This amendment makes the regulation a little easier to understand and interpret. It will not change any present regulations.' Chairman Alfred Sieffert said the amendment was written to clear up misinterpretations that have occurred in the past. Both the Sportsman's Cafe and the West Side Italian Kitchen have recently expanded from beer and wine permits to liquor permits, meaning they can sell hard liquor as well as beer and wine.

Such expansion occurred because of a misinterpretation of the regulation as it stood before the amendment was added Monday night. 'We're trying to make it clearer for zoning enforcement officers, Sieffert said.

The Planning and Zoning Commisshall be interpreted as allowing a nonconforming use to intensify the sale of alcoholic liquors or to qualify for a liquor permit different from the class of liquor permit existing at the time of adoption of these regulations."

Zoning Enforcement Officer Ernest R. Machell Jr. said this amendment simply "locks in" establishments serving liquor to their present permit.

In other action, the commission canceled its scheduled July 26 business meeting.
