Muskie may be running mate

Democrats set to name Carter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tonight the Democrats nominate Jimmy Carter to lead them to the promised land of the presidency after eight years of political exile.

By the time delegates to the 37th Democratic National Convention in Madison Square Garden certify Carter as their presidential nominee on the first ballot ending about 11:30 p.m. EDT, his aides say, the 51-year-old former Georgia governor finally will have chosen a running mate.

Although Carter's people vehemently insisted he had not made the decision Tuesday, or even narrowed his list of six candidates, a growing number of delegates, political pundits and party professionals speculated — prospective House Speaker Thomas O'Neill called it his "gut instinct" — that Carter would tap Sen. Edmund Muskie, 62, of Maine.

One long-time Carter associate said he, too, would agree it looked like Muskie.

A 17-year veteran of the Senate and the lone Roman Catholic on the list, Muskie was Hubert Humphrey's running mate in 1968 when Richard M. Nixon narrowly beat the Democrats for his first White House term.

The remaining candidates were Sens. Walter Mondale of Minnesota, Henry Jackson of Washington, Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois, John Glenn of Ohio and Frank Church of Idaho.

The third session to nominate Carter for the presidency starts at 8 p.m. EDT today.

The Democrats gave a warm reception to George McGovern, who led them down to disaster in 1972. They were less charitable to Muskie.

But it was Minnesota's 65-year-old Humphrey, the "Happy Warrior" of 1968 and 1972 and the long-time darling of Democratic liberals, who brought the delegates to their feet with a mighty roar Tuesday night.

It was the biggest, noisiest floor demonstration of the two-day-old convention.

He ripped into the GOP with a lusty vengeance. While Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis smilingly looked down from a VIP box, Humphrey hurled 3,000 cheering, fist-shaking delegates the raw meat of partisan oratory in his familiar old high-pitched, staccato voice.

"In 1776 the American people proclaimed their independence and threw out the British Tories. In 1976 the American people will once again affirm our independence and vote out the Republican Tories!"

Hours earlier, however, in one of his few public appearances outside his Hotel Americana headquarters since the convention began, Carter warned fellow Democrats it would be a "serious mistake to underestimate the challenge of our opposition... a serious mistake to be overconfident."

MCC accredited with stipulation state funding must be increased

By GREG PEARSON
(Herald Reporter)
Three state community colleges, including Manchester Community College, have received a two-year accreditation, which will be revoked after the two years if more state funding is not provided for the three schools.

Dr. William J. MacLeod, Director of Evaluation for the Commission on Institutions of Higher Education, said the schools — Manchester Community College, Assunpink Community College, and Northwestern Community College — have been accredited through December, 1978. All three are now on accreditations which run out in December of this year.

MacLeod said if, after one year, state funding to the schools is not increased, the three institutions will be placed on a one-year probation. If, at the end of the second year, state funding has not increased, the three schools will lose their accreditation.

Manchester Community College was visited in April by an evaluation team from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, of which the Commission on Institutions of Higher Education is part.

The report by the team praised Manchester Community College for its attempts to provide quality education but criticized the amount of state funding provided for the school.

"The commission has noted a serious problem in the community colleges of Connecticut due to a lack of funding," MacLeod said. He mentioned lack of funds places constraints, including an inadequacy of programs and an undermanned staff and faculty, on MCC and the other 11 state community colleges.

MacLeod said the decision to give a two-year accreditation was a "tough one to make." Community colleges can receive accreditation from zero to ten years.

"When the commission evaluates an institution, it has to ask itself how it can guarantee a school will continue to provide a quality education," he said.

"We felt we couldn't express confidence beyond this time (the two-year period) for the schools, unless funding is increased."

Meadows must improve staff status by Friday

The Meadows Convalescent Home at 333 Bidwell St. has until Friday to improve its staffing status or it may be ordered to reduce its patient load.

According to Roland Simmons, executive director of the state Health Department's Division of Hospitals and Medical Care, an emergency inspection was made of the facility in response to an emergency call he received Saturday from the Meadows that the convalescent home was understaffed.

Because of a reduction in state funding, there have been layoffs in the staff which have triggered the resignations of about 40 licensed personnel including nurses and aides.

With an acute staffing situation, the eight-hour slots are being filled by temporary personnel supplied by a state pool.

Simmons said there is short staffing in violation of the Public Health Code in three of the facility's four units, including housekeeping.

Simmons will meet Friday with administrators of the Meadows in the hope of getting some definite names and license numbers of new employees who will replace those who have submitted their resignations.

Once the restaffing is assured, Simmons said the present patient-nurse ratio would remain. If these ratios are not met, Simmons said he would have to reduce the license capacity.

The required patient care is 2.2 nursing hours per patient per day according to Donald Corriveau, assistant vice-president of operations at Geri-Care Nursing Centers of America in Springfield, Mass.

Corriveau denies intention of closing any part of the convalescent home.

Hopefully, Corriveau said, they would not have to use pool personnel much longer.

After a seven-hour negotiation session Tuesday at the Meadows with union officials, Geri-Care made a final offer to reinstate the positions at the convalescent complex "to a level that we feel would more than adequately satisfy union and state officials. We are presently staffing above the state code," he said.

But the union would not agree to Geri-Care's proposals, Corriveau said. "We felt we negotiated in good faith and made every effort to meet their demands and still maintain our scheduling rights," he said.

The union wants all full-time slots filled with full-time employees, but Corriveau said the facility's offer was to include part-time complements. There is no contract at the present time with Local 1199, the National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees, said Corriveau.

GOP poll shows close Ford and Carter race

HARTFORD (UPI) — A poll of Connecticut voters shows President Ford losing to Jimmy Carter, 46 per cent to 41 per cent, state Republican Chairman Frederick K. Biebel said today.

Biebel said he was happy with the results, because Ford was close enough to catch Carter before November and Connecticut is considered a liberal Democratic stronghold.

Stiebel said he was releasing the results of the poll "to show my displeasure" with another poll being conducted among GOP delegates to the state convention, which will select 35 delegates to the national convention in Kansas City.

Those pollsters are working "under the guise of being sponsored by the Connecticut Republican party in some instances, and what appears to be fictitious names in others," he said in a news conference.

The real GOP poll, he said, was conducted between last June 25 and July 6 by Cambridge Opinion Studies.

United Press International has reported results of the survey relating to the Senate race.

Biebel said the GOP poll showed while Ford would lose by only 5 per cent, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan would lose to Carter by 37 per cent, 64 per cent to 27 per cent.

Connecticut Republicans favored Ford over Reagan 75 per cent to 15 per cent, he said, and independents favored Ford, 63 per cent to 22 per cent. Democrats also gave the edge to Ford, 61 per cent to 23 per cent.

"I am very pleased at the exceptionally strong showing of President Ford in a heavily Democratic state, where we are outnumbered by 165,000 voters," Biebel said.

"I am confident that when the President pins Gov. Carter down during the campaign, the people will respond to the Republican issues and Republican candidates," he said.

Regional training center work on schedule

Work on the Regional Occupational Training Center is continuing on schedule and the school for handicapped children should open on time, the Town Building Committee learned Tuesday night.

Richard Lawrence of Lawrence Associates told the committee that unless an unforeseen delay develops, the building, located at 235 Hilltown Rd., will be ready to be moved into by the end of July.

A strike by painters delayed some work on the center, but Lawrence said that strike was settled July 6 and the painters are "back to work and trying to catch up."

Another strike now in progress may mean the building will have to open without metal stall partitions in the bathroom, Lawrence said.

One man arrested for plane bombing

BOSTON (UPI) - Authorities are holding one man and hunting for two others suspected of planting a bomb that damaged an Eastern Airlines jetliner at Logan International Airport July 2, the Boston Globe reported today.

The newspaper said Joseph A. Aceto, 23, of Portland, Maine, has also told police and the FBI the names of two persons allegedly responsible for planting a bomb that injured 22 persons at the Suffolk County Courthouse in Boston April 22.

The Globe quoted law enforcement sources as saying Aceto has given authorities details "that only a participant would know" of the plane bombing and a firebombing the same day at a National Guard armory in Boston.

GOP leader calls surplus 'funny money' gimmickry

MILFORD (UPI) - House Minority Leader Gerald F. Stevens, R-Maine, says a recently announced $22 million state budget surplus was based on "funny money created through the use of fiscal gimmicks."

Stevens, who often leads the Democratic administration of Gov. Joseph Grasso, said Tuesday he didn't believe the $22 million surplus was more than the $80 million deficit announced last November.

The surplus - $11 million higher than the $11 million surplus forecast only a month ago - was unveiled by state Finance Commissioner Jay O. Tepper.

"I stopped believing commissioner Tepper quite a few months ago," Stevens said. "Any financial officer in the business world who manipulated figures the way Tepper has done would be out of a job."

AFDC changes to benefit 400 local families

A recently instituted decision to increase payments given by the Aid to Families With Dependent Children (AFDC) program will benefit about 400 Manchester families.

The Department of Social Services estimates an increase of $4.3 million in the amount spent on AFDC this year. Of the 40,000 families in the state affected by the program, 93 per cent will receive an increase in aid.

Mrs. Jean Seckinger, home management consultant for the Department of Social Services, said she felt the 93 per cent figure would be an accurate one for families in Manchester involved in the program.

Georgians dominate Carter's inner circle

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jimmy Carter's staff primarily is made up of Georgians who have been with him since he was governor. The inner circle is composed of Hamilton Jordan, Jody Powell, Charles Kirbo and Landon Butler, the men who in 1972 discussed with Carter strategy for his presidential bid this year. Here are thumbnail sketches of the principal members of his staff and advisers: Jody Powell, press secretary and political adviser — 32; believed to be Carter's alter ego and closest confidant; joined Carter during the 1970 gubernatorial campaign as a full-time driver and became press secretary after that election; attended Air Force Academy three years, received BA degree in political science from Georgia State and did graduate work in political science at Emory. Charles Kirbo, senior political adviser — Atlanta attorney who in 1962 handled Carter's successful legal efforts to overturn a close election loss for the state senate. Landon Butler, political director — 35; owner of a large-scale housing development in Atlanta, which rehabilitates subsidized inner-city housing; met Carter in 1970 and worked for the governor as a staff liaison. Dr. Peter Bourne, mid-Atlantic campaign co-ordinator — 35; psychiatrist; born in England but attended medical school at Emory in Atlanta; joined Carter in 1971 as special adviser for health affairs and directed the governor's antidrug program; served in Vietnam as an army neuro-psychiatrist and as a State Department consultant; assistant director of the White House special action office for drug abuse prevention 1972-1974; worked with the inner circle in planning Carter's presidential campaign, starting in 1972. Mary E. King, adviser on women — 35; worked on civil rights movements in Georgia and Mississippi in the 1960s and one of the organizers of the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party challenger in 1964; married to Bourne. Jerry Rabinson — handled all of Carter's advertisements in 1968 and was one of the original persons planning Carter's campaign starting in 1972. Robert J. Lipschutz, campaign treasurer — 54; Atlanta attorney; has worked on every Carter campaign since 1966. Study indicates schizophrenia increasing

By AL ROSSITER Jr., IPI Science Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI) — It is estimated that there are 1.2 million more people suffering from schizophrenia in the United States by 1985.

Hebron goal of Saturday bike trip

A bluegrass festival in Hebron is the destination of the SAM (Summer Activities in Manchester) bicycle trip Saturday.

Riders will gather in the Manchester High School front parking lot off E. Middle Tpk. Saturday morning and leave for the festival at 10, riding 10 miles to the music fest. SAM will provide free lunches for all riders on the trip, but those who go will have to pay $2.75 to get advance tickets to the festival. The bluegrass show, the first of its kind in Connecticut, will feature such groups as the Hop River Strings Band, the Still River Ramblers, and Sounds of Bluegrass. After the music, the cyclists will arrive back at the Manchester High lot at 9 p.m. Anyone interested in going on the trip should contact John Roach at 646-3126 as soon as possible.

Dr. Morton Kramer, director of epidemiology for the National Institute of Mental Health, estimates that there were 775,000 people suffering from the most common of serious mental illnesses in 1970. He calculates that figure will grow to 1,248,000 by 1985. Kramer reported his findings at a recent international conference on schizophrenia at the University of Rochester and emphasized his figures were hypothetical extensions of data from a unique psychiatric case register in Monroe County.

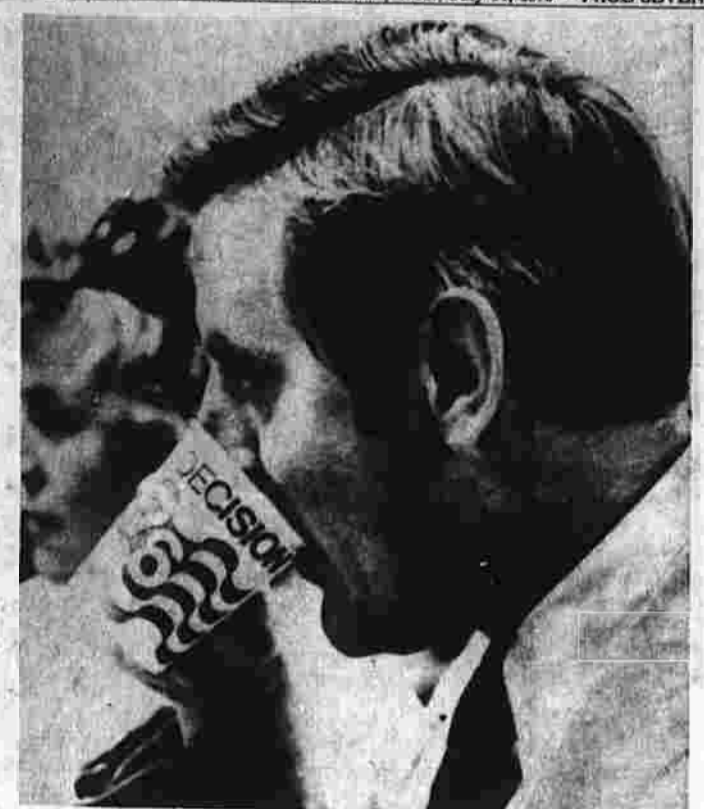

Kramer said the register is the only solid data collection operation of its kind and scope in the United States. It counts every case of treated mental illness in the county, records their diagnosis, age, sex, race, socioeconomic status, marital status and applies to a clearly defined population group.

Monroe County had a population of 711,820 in 1970. Forty-five per cent were white males, 48 per cent white females, 3 per cent nonwhite males and 4 per cent nonwhite females.

There were 3,319 cases of schizophrenia being treated in 1970 in the county, including 485 new cases of the illness diagnosed that year. The rate broke down to .74 case per 1,000 white males, .54 per 1,000 white females, 1.6 cases per 1,000 nonwhite males and 1.22 for nonwhite females. The Monroe figures show that there are very low rates of the disease among persons under 18 but that there is a sharp increase in schizophrenia among people between the ages of 20 and 24. There are low rates for people over 65. Kramer raised some questions about the higher statistical incidence of schizophrenia for blacks and said studies are needed to see if the disease was overdiagnosed in non-whites. But he took the Monroe figures as they are and then extended them to the overall U. S. population to come up with the estimates for the number of cases in the nation in 1970. The estimates considered such factors as sex, race and age differences. The 1965 estimates were reached by using government census figures projecting the nation's population to that year. "These hypothetical estimates have important implications for the planning of services to meet the needs of persons suffering from schizophrenia and the manpower that will be required to do this," Kramer said. Although the figures are just estimates, he said "it cannot be emphasized too strongly that the number of new cases of schizophrenia will continue to increase until research produces the knowledge needed to prevent their occurrence."

Today's thought

Can religion be modern? When you ask of life, "What's it all about?" — that's when religion begins. Religion started in fear and superstition and in ignorance but that is no rationale for discarding it in the modern day with the modern life and the modern intelligence. Music started when a sensitive ear heard the wind blowing through the rushes. It would not occur to anyone to discard Bach, Beethoven, Schubert and Brahms. The first artist was a crude man who scratched in the dirt but would you discard today Michelangelo, Raphael, or Rembrandt? Because the first temple of religion was a mud hut, would you pull down the cathedral of Sir Christopher Wren? Because religion was what it was, must you discard what it is? Because religion is what it is, will you disregard what it might be? Mary Haldeman St. Mary's Episcopal Church

Minnesota contender

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., takes a sip from a cup with an appropriate label as he prepared to appear on a television show Tuesday. Mondale is one of the several potential running mates for Jimmy Carter, the party's almost certain presidential nominee at its convention in New York City tonight.

Commuter trains collide

One killed, 31 others injured
Conrail officials investigating cause of commuter train collision

NEW CANAAN (UPI) — One woman was killed and at least 31 other commuters injured Tuesday night when a crowded commuter train struck an empty car backing onto a spur at the New Canaan station.

Conrail officials declined to discuss what might have caused the crash and the National Transportation Safety Board sent a team of inspectors to the wealthy New York city suburb to investigate.

Crews worked through the night to upright the two cars that tilted off the tracks in the crash and restore service at the single rail station. The first train allowed to pass through today was the 7:12 for New York City.

About 300 commuters were on the Conrail train from New York when the accident occurred at 6:35 p.m. Tuesday. Mrs. Nancy Siegel, 36, of New Canaan, a passenger in the first car of the rear train, was pronounced dead at the scene, police said.

A Conrail spokesman said the rear train had just rounded blind curve near the New Canaan station and was traveling at about 15 mph when it struck the empty cars from behind.

He said the lead train was "late and not supposed to be there." Both trains were operated by Conrail's New Haven line.

James Buckner, a UPI executive aboard the jam-packed "5:27" out of New York, said the empty "5:09" was apparently being backed off the tracks onto a siding when the two collided.

Another witness, Robert Paterson of Ridgefield, said normally the 5:08 is already on the siding by the time the 5:27 arrives. Only one track runs into New Canaan from Stamford, requiring rush-hour trains to back onto a siding while others enter the station.

Five persons were admitted to Norwalk Hospital in Norwalk. The others were treated and released there and at Stamford Hospital in Stamford, according to Conrail officials.

Elizabeth S. Hadden, 19, of New Canaan was reported in critical condition after being trapped for 2 1/2 hours before rescue workers could free her from the twisted wreckage.

The crash was the worst on the New Haven line since Aug. 20, 1969 when four persons were killed and 35 injured at Darien in a similar accident.

Salamites arrested on drug charge

NORTH WILDWOOD, N.J. (UPI) — A Connecticut man who crashed into President Ford's car in a freak accident last fall was arrested on drug charges Tuesday at this seashore resort.

James Salamites, 20, of Meriden, Conn., was held on $75 bail for a hearing next Tuesday on charges of possession of hashish.

A car driven by Salamites collided with Ford's car during a motorcade in Hartford, Conn. An investigation of the crash showed Salamites had the right-of-way because the motorcade was going through a red-light at an intersection that was left unguarded by the police.

Police investigating rape of 14-year-old girl

A 14-year-old girl was reportedly raped Monday evening in a parking lot off Main St., police said Wednesday.

The incident, which police were told occurred at 9 p.m. Monday, was not reported until 12:38 a.m. Wednesday.

She told police the assailant was walking to a store and was standing at Main and Russell Sts. when she was grabbed. She claims she was then taken to a nearby parking lot where the sexual assault took place.

She told police the assailant was a dark-haired, 15-year-old male who was wearing jeans. Police are investigating the incident.

Plant doctors

STORRS (UPI) — A clinic with six experts on hand to discuss the care of plants is planned at the UConn Agronomy Research Farm July 20 and 21 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Six University of Connecticut Extension Service specialists will be there to discuss plant and pest problems of ornamentals, vegetables, fruits, turf, shrubs and flowers.

Visitors may also tour the Plant Science division orchards on either day.

A break into a garage on E. Center St. resulted in the loss of $150 worth of items, police said. Taken were a lawn mower, trimming shears, gas can and funnel.

Also reported stolen to police were four bicycles. A bike owned by Rob Maltempo, 5, Park St., was taken while he was inside a Main St. pharmacy. Daniel Pelletier, 4, Rogers Pl., had his bike taken from Oakland St., where he was visiting a friend.

The other two bikes were stolen from the homes of the owners — Kevin Conlon, 66 Ridge St., and Kathleen LaGasse, 162C Homestead St.

Recent thefts of produce from Oakland Farms were reported to Manchester Police Wednesday. Police reports said 11 bushels of squash and 200 plastic plant carriers, total value of $144, have been taken from the farm.

Debate commando raid

Garden has a colorful history

NEW YORK (UPI) — Buffalo Bill shot bullfights in the first one. The architect of the second, Stanford White was murdered by a jealous husband in it. Marilyn Monroe rode an elephant in the third. Madison Square Garden IV will have to make do with Democrats. Recovering from a 52-year hangover caused by the 1924 Democratic National Convention, the party has consented to try for the second time to nominate a president in New York City inside a building named Madison Square Garden.

In 1924, the last time Democrats, the city and the Garden collided, the result was the longest nominating convention in the nation's history and a candidate, John W. Davis, who made a landslide winner out of Calvin Coolidge.

But Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss has a merry disdain for historical precedent. "Do I think the delegates will be put off by the Garden? — Hell no," said Strauss after a recent loss of the arena.

Four buildings have carried the name Madison Square Garden since railroad baron William K. Vanderbilt christened the first in 1876. None of them was square, two of them were nowhere near Madison Avenue and the only thing ever planted in any of them was a boxer's left foot.

The original site of Garden I was an 1836 memorial park for James Madison between East 23rd and 26th Streets along a cow path, which was to become Madison Avenue.

Show his came in 1874, when Phineas T. Barnum leased a 200-by-466-foot vacant railroad shed at the 26th Street corner of the lot, remodeled it for $35,000 and called it "Barnum's Hippodrome." The lease was picked up the following year by Frank Gilmore, a band leader, who called it "Gilmore's Gardens." He skirted the state's ban on boxing by offering "illustrated lectures on pugilism" given by flat-nosed "professors."

Vanderbilt took over in 1879 and named the shed "Madison Square Garden." It was the scene of William "Buffalo Bill" Cody's Wild West Show and on May 14, 1883, 11,000 students watched the arrest of John L. Sullivan, who knocked fellow "Professor" Charlie Mitchell out of the ring.

A syndicate bought the site for $400,000 in 1890 and paid $1.5 million to have Stanford White construct Garden II of yellow brick and white Pompeian terra cotta.

White was shot to death on the garden's roof on June 25, 1906, by millionaire Harry K. Thaw, husband of the architect's former girl friend, Evelyn Nesbit. New York Life foreclosed on the mortgage of Garden II shortly after the Democratic convention in 1924 to build an office building on the site.

The day before the wreckers moved in, announcer Joe Humphreys recited a poem of his own composition before a lightweight fight. It began "Farewell to thee, O temple of

Embsers tour with orchestra

Tour Switzerland
Donald Embser, 15, and Linda Embser, 16, leave today with the Greater Hartford Youth Orchestra for a three-week concert tour in Switzerland. (Herald photo by Barlow)

A brother and sister leave today with other members of the Greater Hartford Youth Orchestra to perform in a concert tour of Switzerland.

Linda Embser and Donald Embser of 39 Judith Dr. won by audition an invitation to play in the Festival of the Alps. They will stay at a school in Lucerne, Switzerland, and play approximately 12 concerts in and around the city.

The invitation for the orchestra to be the in-residence orchestra at the festival came from the Swiss government. There are about 80 music students from 32 Connecticut towns who are members of the orchestra.

The group has been chosen to represent United States' youth and their culture in Switzerland during this country's Bicentennial year. The Greater Hartford Youth Orchestra made a concert tour of Romania in 1973.

The youth orchestra's program will include mostly music by American composers. Orchestra members will also have the opportunity of studying with some of Europe's leading pedagogues while staying in Switzerland.

Linda who will combine her junior and senior year next year at Manchester High School plans to continue her study of music. She is a member of the Manchester Civic Orchestra. She was assistant concertmaster at Laurel Music Camp last month.

Linda also won by audition at the music camp a full year's scholarship at the Hartt School of Music, University of Hartford, for weekly one-hour violin lessons.

Donald will be a sophomore at MHS in September. He is also a member of the Manchester Civic Orchestra and was principal second violinist at Laurel Music Camp in June.

Official blames overwork for bid policy violations

HARTFORD (UPI) - The state Department of Education administrator in charge of contract bidding, being investigated by state police, said overwork caused him to violate department bidding policy.

John F. McKenna, chief property control officer of the department, said Tuesday, "There was an established procedure book which we may have deviated from on occasion."

He said a work overload caused him and his office to cut bureaucratic corners in awarding contracts, especially for emergency repairs at vocational-technical schools.

State police are investigating bidding procedures that sent almost half of such work in one year to companies owned by or connected with Jack DiMartino of Windsor.

Vandalism declines

HARTFORD (UPI) - Vandalism at schools is a growing problem nationally, but has apparently begun a decline in Connecticut, according to school officials in six area districts.

Officials in Southington, Windsor, Wethersfield, East Hartford, Windsor Locks, and West Hartford reported fewer incidents of broken windows and plumbing and less graffiti.

Increases in school vandalism were reported in Bristol, Glastonbury, Rocky Hill and Middletown. Hartford officials said vandalism seems to have stabilized.

More than 300 school officials in Alexandria, Va., Tuesday complained of increased vandalism - costing $600 million across the nation. They asked Congress for $300 million to help fight the problem.

Hartford spent about $100,000 to repair vandalism damage last year. Windsor Locks officials decided not to buy an anti-vandalism security system because the cost would be higher than the $3,000 annual cost of damage.

Republic of China stars will compete in Games

MONTREAL (UPI) — Athletes from the Republic of China, used as pawns in a political chess match that for a brief time threatened the mammoth gathering of the world's sporting nations, apparently will compete in the Olympics after all.

But if they do, they will take part as an anonymous group — representatives of a country with no name.

Following three days of active negotiating by United States Olympic Committee President Phil Killian, the Taiwanese were expected to announce today they would march in Saturday's opening ceremonies behind an Olympic flag and use the Olympic anthem should any of its 42 competitors win a gold medal.

Indications of a change in Taiwan's policy came Monday night in a news conference featuring International Olympic Committee President Lord Killian.

"The Canadians have agreed to allow a Taiwanese delegation to march behind an Olympic flag and use the Olympic anthem," said Killian after the first day of the 8th session of the annual IOC Congress. "The Taiwanese are now considering this." The IOC door was thought to have been slammed shut had been reopened.

"The door we thought had been slammed shut has been reopened," Killian said.

Canadian officials had refused to allow Taiwanese athletes compete under the name of "Republic of China," because of its diplomatic status as a state that IOC surrendered to and stand last Sunday.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said he hoped the Taiwanese would concede to take part.

"We'd love the Taiwanese to come," Trudeau said in Halifax, N.S., where he had gone to greet Queen Elizabeth on her arrival in the country. "I'm sure they'll be heartily welcomed. I'd wholeheartedly want to see them."

Another political controversy, the possible mass withdrawal of African countries from the games, still had to run its course. Vague, unorganized threats have been made by several African nations to go home because New Zealand is the target of black Africa's wrath because it recently sent a rugby team on a tour of South Africa.

In the eastern section of the town, the Olympic Village was nearing its capacity of 10,000.

Canada accused of politics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House accused Canada Tuesday of playing politics with the Olympics for refusing to let Nationalist China compete under its flag.

"The White House position is that politics has no place in the Olympic Games," presidential press secretary Ron Nessen said.

"The participants should be specified by the International Olympic Committee's executive committee," Nessen said. "The role of the host country is solely to provide facilities for the games. The host country should not stipulate political or other conditions for participating in the games."

Nessen said Ford had no reply to charges by Allan MacEachen, Canada's external affairs minister, that earlier White House comments on the matter amounted to U.S. political interference.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., issued a statement calling Canada's Federal building sought

Vernon
 In a further move to revitalize "downtown Rockville" Mayor Thomas Benoit has made a plea to Senators Abraham Ribicoff and Lowell Weicker and Congressman Christopher Dodd to promote using the Rockville Post Office building for a federal building.
 In a letter to the three men, Mayor Benoit said with the former A & P building on Union St. being renovated for use as the town's main post office, the present post office on Park St., Rockville, will be closing.
 He asked the government to retain ownership of the building and place it into service as a federal building for Tolland County.

 He noted that the county is one of the fastest growing in the state.
 "It would make for more efficient federal government service to residents in the 13 towns in the county if offices of the Internal Revenue Service, Secret Service, Social Security, Health, Education and Welfare...and such, were located there."
 The mayor has also asked postal officials to consider keeping a small postal outlet in the center of Rockville. They have not answered him yet.

Valley Falls re-opens

Vernon
 Valley Falls Park's swimming area was re-opened to the public Tuesday at 1 p.m. after state water tests showed the water well within acceptable bacteria count limits for swimming.
 Town Sanitarian Charles

Vassilopoulos learned of the state's test at noon. He had closed the swimming area Saturday due to an unsafe bacteria level although no illness had been reported.
 Routine tests will continue through the summer to insure safe water, he said.

Man pleads guilty to magic oversell

EAST HARTFORD (UPI) — A man whose organization used the names of the Newington Children's Hospital and Big Brothers of Greater Hartford, Inc. in telephone solicitation without permission has been fined $50.
 Common Pleas Court Judge E.H.L. Cramer also put Clement McCollough, 29, of East Hartford, on one year's probation Tuesday and gave him a 240-day suspended sentence.

McCollough, who once headed the Association for the Cultural Advancement of the Handicapped and Mentally Retarded, pleaded guilty to overselling a theatrical production, failing to turn over financial records and misrepresentation in soliciting funds.
 He sold 2,000 tickets to a magic show at the 1,100 seat East Hartford High School auditorium.
 The two organizations said they had no association with his effort and that none of their children attended the show, although McCollough's solicitors said the children were bused to the performance.

RGH plans expansion

Vernon
BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter
 William Henry, a fund-raising consultant, told a public hearing Monday he feels a minimum of $1.2 million can be raised in the Vernon area for a proposed $3.2 million expansion of Rockville General Hospital.
 Hospital officials told a hearing panel from the State Commission on Hospitals and Health Care the most immediate needs are the transfer of the pediatrics department from the original section of the hospital along with the hemodialysis unit and expansion of emergency room facilities.
 Counsel for the hospital, Robert Dubeau, introduced persons speaking on behalf of the expansion. The state panel was made up of Howard Rye, chairman, and Francis DellaFera, Don Wilkerson and John Powers.

RGH history
 Robert Boardman, hospital administrator, outlined some of the history of the facility, "which has been around many years but in terms of growth really got going in the early '60s."
 The original hospital was formally known as the Maxwell mansion and was a private home donated for use as a hospital by the Maxwell family. It was the only building until 1963 when a new wing was added. The next addition went on in 1969 and the most recent in 1973.

 The proposed expansion would add two floors to the newest wing and expand the emergency room area to the west of the original building.
Must move pediatrics
 Boardman cited as the facilities' most immediate need, the transfer of the pediatrics ward from the Maxwell building. He said this is a hospital and is a potential fire hazard.
 The emergency area expansion would include an ambulatory unit for "one-day" surgical patients.
 Dr. Neil Brooks, chief of staff of the hospital, agreed with Boardman on the immediate needs of the facility. He said the services for one-day surgical patients would be an advantage for the patient and a marked economical advantage for the hospital.

Need family doctors
 Dr. Brooks stressed the need for more "family" physicians in the area.
 Boardman said the town only has two gynecologists who do most of the deliveries. He said there is no question that the two men are so busy that people are going to out-town doctors. This was in answer to a panel question on the rate of use of the obstetrical department.

The panel called for some statistics on use of the emergency room facilities. Dr. Brooks said for life-threatening types of emergencies the use is low, about 25 to 30 percent. He added that the emergency room use is growing at the rate of about 15 percent a year.
 He also said the medical staff is growing. He said it used to be the attitude of the local community to tend to use out-of-town doctors and hospitals.
 More and more they are using the local hospital.
Jobs and care
 Boardman pointed out the existing rapid growth of the three-town area (Vernon-Tolland-Ellington) the hospital has been keeping pace by adding the three wings. He termed it a "definite asset to our community providing jobs and health care."
 The planned expansion will also provide more beds.
 Architect Roy Ferguson explained preliminary drawings of the expansion, pointed out the existing problem areas and explained how they can be corrected.
Financially feasible
 Dan Redfield, a management consultant, said his firm, after a study, determined the proposed plan would be financially feasible.
 About $1 million can be raised through capitol gifts and the remainder through long-term debt service.
 DellaFera said the panel will make a recommendation to the entire commission. The final answer of the commission will be made within 90 days.

Board joins with ACASE

Bolton
 The Board of Education signed an agreement with the Area Cooperative for Special Education (ACASE) for the 1976-77 school year.
 ACASE is a regional approach to special education. There are 12 towns in Bolton's area cooperative.

 By joining together, the towns can provide more and better programs for their students at less cost than if they were on their own.
 Bolton's cost is $1.67 per pupil or $1,452.90.
 The amount is two-thirds reimbursable by the state.

Insurance costs rise

Bolton
 The Board of Education was notified by the Phoenix Mutual Insurance Co. that there will be a 28% increase in insurance for the coming year.
 During the past year claims totaled $3,050.80. The premium paid by the school board was $2,802.75.

W. Averill Harriman looks backward and forward

By MIKE FEINSLBERG
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Elder statesman W. Averill Harriman, who twice during a crowded lifetime sought his party's presidential nomination, is a delegate to the Democratic National Convention and an enthusiastic Jimmy Carter man — for an uncommon reason.

Harriman, 84, a former New Dealer, ambassador, New York governor and aide to every Democratic president since Franklin D. Roosevelt, has met Carter only once — when Carter, already almost sure of his party's nomination, met the New York delegation to consolidate his strength. Harriman was neutral until then.

Now Harriman thinks Carter's experience aboard the Navy's nuclear submarines gives him an appreciation shared by few in public life of the atom's potential for the destruction of the human species. "It takes a nuclear expert to thoroughly understand the danger of nuclear disaster," Harriman said in an interview.

He received his visitor in a sunny room overlooking the formal garden of his home in Georgetown, a haven only a block from the hurly-burly of Wisconsin Avenue where the flower children have become entrepreneurs and are busy selling tin jewelry and leather belts to each other.

Harriman says arms control is the paramount issue of these times — even if nobody in politics is talking about it much.

"This is a time when the Russians want it," he said. He negotiated the limited nuclear test ban treaty signed by the Americans, the British and the Russians in 1963.

Like many politicians, Harriman sounds like he takes Carter's election for granted.

Is there a danger of overconfidence, of a smug Carter losing in 1976 like a smug Tom Dewey lost to Harry Truman in 1948? "No," says Harriman, "Carter is too smart for that — and Harry Truman is not running this year."

Harriman is on a panel of experts, which advises Carter on foreign policy. They meet occasionally and exchange comments on draft Carter speeches circulated among themselves in the mail.

Harriman looks like he behaves like men his age do — pacing himself, walking stiffly, and with great caution. He says he expects to campaign for candidate Carter.

His first campaigning occurred in 1944, when he came home from Moscow to buy 15 minutes on a nationwide radio network (for $5,000, he recalls) to ask the nation to elect Franklin D. Roosevelt to a fourth term.

Harriman says he is pleased Carter has plenty of time to deliberate about a vice presidential nominee. He would not alter the system, he says, to let the choice be made by anyone but the candidate.

Harriman was ambassador to Russia in 1944, but even there he was aware, he says, that — contrary to the current popular impression — the decision to dump Henry Wallace and nominate Truman was not casually made; months of consideration went into it.

Wallace had to go, Harriman says. "Wallace was a dreamer," he says, "a touch of impatience in his voice.

Harriman himself sought the presidency in 1952 and, more seriously, in 1956, when he was governor of New York.

In 1952 in Chicago, he was one of 11 men placed in nomination. Estes Kefauver led on the first ballot with 340 votes; Illinois Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, a reluctant candidate but the party leaders' choice, was second with 273; Sen. Richard Russell, D-Ga., the South's favorite, had 281 and Harriman had 123 1/2. After an indecisive second ballot, Harriman withdrew in favor of Stevenson and the stampede was on.

In 1956, Stevenson won on the first ballot with 906 1/2 votes to 210 for Harriman and 89 for Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, D-Tex.

Only a fraction of Harriman's public life has involved elective office. The son of a railroad tycoon, who exercised control over 60,000 miles of trackage at the time of his death in 1909, Harriman left business to work in FDR's National Recovery Administration in 1934.

Before World War II, he was Roosevelt's expeditor of lend-lease to Russia and Great Britain, and he served as ambassador to Moscow during the war and to London in 1946.

He was Truman's commerce secretary and later director of the Mutual Security Agency. In 1954 he was elected governor of New York but was defeated for re-election by Nelson A. Rockefeller in 1958.

He served as John F. Kennedy's arms negotiator, undersecretary of state and negotiator of a Laos cease-fire. For Lyndon Johnson (and Hubert Humphrey, hampered by the Vietnam albatross as he ran for president in 1968) he stayed in Paris from May, 1968 to January, 1969, trying but failing to negotiate a Vietnam peace.

Anatomy of a candidacy: Carter's road to the nomination

By RONALD E. COHEN (UPI)

Jimmy Carter won the Democratic presidential nomination with a fastidiously planned campaign that left far better-known opponents dazed and defeated.

The former governor of Georgia marched from obscurity in January to fame in June, clinching the nomination weeks before the Democrats gathered at Madison Square Garden.

He was in New Hampshire, where he proved he could beat George Wallace in the South; Pennsylvania, where he ended the presidential hopes of Sen. Henry Jackson; and Wisconsin, where he showed he could win head-to-head against a liberal — Morris Udall.

Here's a look at how he did it, week by week through the record 31 presidential primaries:

Jan. 19 — Carter showed unexpected strength in the Iowa precinct caucuses, winning 28 per cent among the almost dozen Democratic hopefuls testing the water for the first time.

March 2 — Carter won in state where grassroots organization is vital.

March 3 — Carter won in Vermont, all but unopposed. His unbuttoned string was ended in Massachusetts, where he finished fourth with 14 per cent of the vote behind Jackson, Udall and George Wallace. Carter did get 16 delegates, and at this point

Wallace 46-32. March 4 — Florida was a truly big win for Carter. He upset Wallace 35 to 32 per cent, and picked up 35 delegates. But more important than the numbers was the psychological boost.

March 17 — Carter crushed Wallace 48 to 28 per cent in Illinois, demolishing the Alabama governor's dreams of the presidency. He added 60 delegates for a total of 170, finishing second to favorite Sen. Adlai Stevenson III.

March 23 — Carter won yet another southern state, this time North Carolina. His numbers were 54 to 35 per cent over Wallace, and he harvested 95 delegates for a total of 167 — more than twice that of any other candidate.

April 6 — Carter came from far behind as the rural votes rolled in to nip Udall in liberal Wisconsin, 37 to 36 per cent, and added 33 delegates. In New York, Jackson was the winner — but the Washington senator was denied the clear majority he had wished and the stage was set for the crucial Pennsylvania primary.

April 27 — Carter scored perhaps his most important win, carrying Pennsylvania 37 to 26 per cent over Jackson, who had the backing of organized labor in a state where labor generally is boss. It showed Carter could win in the industrial North, showed he could beat the party leaders by appealing to the rank-and-file, and added 65 delegates for a total of 333. Jackson, the best-financed contender at the start of the primary season, withdrew shortly afterward as an active candidate.

May 1 — Carter rolled over favorite son Lloyd Bentsen to take 63 of the 98 convention delegates at stake in Texas. He broke about even in the race for 32 Louisiana delegates chosen on the first Saturday in May.

May 4 — Carter won a tripleheader, sweeping to victory in Indiana, Georgia and the District of Columbia. He lost only in Alabama to Wallace. Carter picked up 109 more delegates to give him 555 — moving him more than 350 ahead of Jackson.

May 11 — Carter won the Connecticut primary by a narrow margin over Udall, and was upset by 1 percentage point by newcomer Frank Church in Nebraska. Carter did not campaign in West Virginia — the primary he skipped — and left it to favorite son Sen. Robert Byrd. The two primaries left Carter with a total of 598 delegates.

May 18 — Carter won the Michigan primary by slightly more than 2,000 votes over Udall — with more than 700,000 votes cast. Carter won three by huge margins — Arkansas, Kentucky and Tennessee. He finished second to Brown in Nevada, second to Church in Idaho, and third to Church and Brown in Oregon. Carter also won 27 delegates in Missouri's Democratic caucuses to give him 136 for the day and 881 for the primary season — well over halfway home to the nomination.

June 1 — Carter won in South Dakota but was defeated by a coalition of liberals in Rhode Island and Montana. Church won Montana and Brown Rhode Island, but Carter now stood at 908 delegates.

June 8 — The end of the primary season. Carter lost to Brown in California, as expected, but grabbed 67 delegates. He easily won the popular voting in New Jersey, but a slate of delegates favorable to Brown and Humphrey won 75 to 25 in the Democratic race. But it was in Ohio that Carter for practical purposes clinched the nomination. He swamped Udall and other liberals with more than 90 per cent of the vote and added 126 convention delegates — giving him 1,204.

Shortly after the last votes of the longest primary season were counted, Carter solidified his claim to the nomination.

Wallace turned over his delegates; Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago offered his personal blessing that would carry with it the Illinois delegates pledged to Stevenson; Jackson urged his supporters to back Carter; Church did the same. Humphrey again declined to actively seek the nomination.

Carter — barring a calamity — had the nomination wrapped up.

Capital Shortage
The world is suffering from a shortage of capital, according to international business leaders representing 27 different countries surveyed by the Conference Board. Inflation and low profitability are cited as the major causes of the problem. Reduced capital investment is the most common effect. Hard-hit are the less developed countries and smaller firms, which find it difficult to ride out such periods of scarcity.

Stained glass art
 takes imagination

By BETTY RYDER
 Family/Travel Editor

Virginia applies solder over copper tape as she assembles a shepherd for a nativity scene. (Herald photos by Dunn)

"It's a fascinating hobby. You can be just as creative as you want to be. There is no end to what you can make," says Virginia Kelly of 121 Mountain Rd. when she talks about stained glass art.

Very enthusiastic about her two-year-old hobby, Virginia's attractive home attests to her talent in creating unique stained glass pieces.

On the window in her dining room are many items of stained glass ranging from tennis racquets she made for a neighbor to fisherman and a liberty bell. The colors are varied and the designs, for the most part, original.

"I started taking lessons at the Recreation Department two years ago from Ann Madsen. She's a great teacher and I plan to go back to her classes in the fall. She is so creative; she really motivates you to try something different," she said.

Some time ago, Virginia made a plaque which hangs near the baptismal font in St. Bartholomew's Church in Manchester.

"I had seen a similar pattern on a card I received. My daughter Mary drew the pattern for me and I made a few adjustments and added a few details," she said.

In her comfortable workshop in a corner of her recreation room Virginia works on a bench laden with colored pieces of glass, copper tape and spools of solder.

Never too far from sight are small bandages in a variety of sizes which she says is an absolute prerequisite for working with glass.

"That's one item that Ann said we should keep on hand," she said good-naturedly.

After selecting a pattern, Virginia explained that the glass must be cut carefully, edged with copper tape, and then each piece of tape must be covered with the solder.

Colors of the glass range from Delft blues to Chinese reds and sunset orange. Some is antique; other pieces are rippled, or plain.

"I usually go to East Lyme to purchase the glass," Virginia said. "The store there has a wonderful selection."

The odd-shaped pieces are purchased by the pound.

"A pound of glass is equal to about two-thirds of a foot," she said.

Virginia, whose husband Eugene is an attorney in Manchester, is the mother of six girls.

"The youngest, Sherry is 13, and will enter East Catholic High School in September. The others are Judy who is in South Carolina, Kathy in Manchester, N.H., Susan who lives in Bolton, Mary in Colorado, and Patricia, who's in Martha's Vineyard for the summer. We also have four grandchildren."

A short time ago, Virginia made a replica of the symbol of the 41st International Eucharist Congress and sent it as a gift to the Rev. Edmund Nadolny, director of the Office of Communication for the Catholic Archdiocese of Hartford.

Father Nadolny was so pleased with her artwork that he commissioned her to design and make a symbol for Easter which he hopes will be used on tables at fairs and dinners during Holy Week.

"I just sent it along to him last week and he is now hopeful of having it reproduced economically and perhaps used as a fund-raising item," she said.

Virginia and her family have lived on Mountain Rd. for the past 12 years. Before that, they lived just around the corner for about 8 years. Her husband is a Manchester native; she hails from Toledo, Ohio.

Virginia teaches religion to fifth graders at St. Bartholomew's and said she often makes gifts for some of the nuns there.

"One particular piece I made was a little symbol of Prince Edward Island. One of the sisters came from there and she was often talking about her island."

Her interest in stained glass art has rubbed off on her youngest daughter and Sherry had made a foot, an ice cream cone and a soda.

"You can see where her interests lie," her mom said.

When Virginia gets into her workshop, time flies.

"Sometimes I spend a much as five hours working. When I get onto a project it's just hard to leave it," she explained.

Her next project for which she has all the pieces of glass cut is a window beside her front door.

"I still can't figure out how to frame it, but I will," she said.

In the meanwhile, Virginia will continue making attractive items for her friends and relatives.

"You can individualize the gifts. It's personal and so much fun," she said.

Window in the dining room of the Kelly home displays some of Virginia's handicraft.

Colorful plaque hangs near the baptismal font at St. Bartholomew's Church.

Your neighbor's kitchen

Received a letter from the public relations officer (sorry I couldn't decipher his name) of the City of Manchester in England telling of a new booklet containing a collection of 20 dishes based on the traditional fare of the Manchester area and foods which are available locally...in England that is.

The letter read in part "The Public Relations Office of the City of Manchester has now published these recipes in the form of a booklet and these are available for the home business and for visitors to the city. In America's Bicentennial year when many people are thinking of their connections in the United Kingdom, it has occurred to us that citizens of your town may be interested in a copy of these recipes to see what food is like in Manchester, England."

The booklet entitled "Manchester Menu" contains recipes submitted by the chefs of some of the finest restaurants in England.

Such delicacies as Pot Roast of Figeon by Chef Andrew Nightingale (no pun intended) of the Garter Merchant Food Services, Inc., and Roast Carré of Pork (with braised red cabbage in beer) from Chef Rene Branet of the Grand Hotel are featured.

Chef Norman Daw of the Manchester Club offers a Mancunian Baked Custard and Chef C. Mowry of the Hotel Excelsior submitted his recipe for Cottage Cheese, Honey and Apple Meringue Plan.

Copies of the booklet are 20 cents and may be obtained by writing to the Public Relations Office, Town Clerk's Department, City of Manchester, PO Box 352, Town Hall, Manchester, M60 2LA, England.

To make some of the recipes, one would do well to familiarize himself with such ingredients as black pudding and cowheels. For the life of me I can't think of a substitute for the cowheels but maybe some of you English cooks can.

Here is a recipe for Ribble Trout by Chef Brian Hodgson of Hotel Piccadilly.

4 medium trout
 4 oz. black pudding
 8 oz. hazelnuts
 2 cooking apples
 parsley
 6 oz. butter
 apple juice
 pickled walnuts

Clean trout and stuff with black pudding. Pan fry the trout. Place glassy pickled walnuts on top, with a little apple juice. Add hazelnuts and diced apple to prepared nut brown butter. Sprinkle with chopped parsley.

He has another for Scallops Sinclare which sounds interesting.

1 1/2 lbs. scallops
 8 oz. mushrooms
 6 oz. cod
 4 oz. celery
 4 oz. carrots
 creamed potatoes
 2 oz. butter

2 oz. chopped onions
 4 oz. prawns
 tomato puree bread crumbs
 white wine

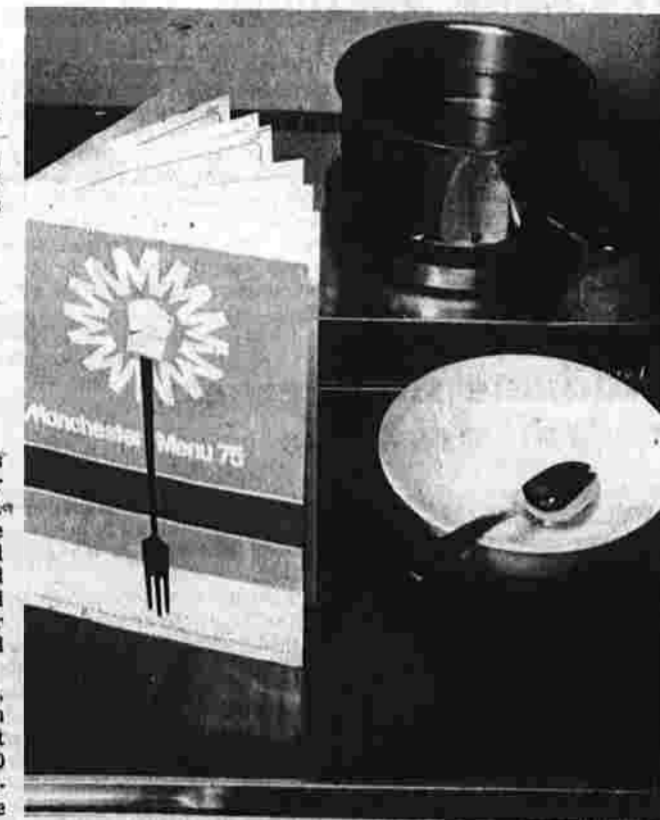

Add tomato puree to potatoes to colour and pipe around the scallop shell. Sweat the finely chopped mushrooms and chopped cod in a little butter until cooked. Season and place in bottom of scallop shell. Dice celery, carrot and onion finely. Sweat all off in a pan until nearly cooked. Add scallops and cook in cream, white wine and a little white Celcius (thermometer), for appauce. Reduce well. Place in shell, approximately 1 to 1 1/4 hour. Can be checked with the tip of a small knife.

Garnish with prawns, and if your taste buds yearn for Chicken Pie Lancastrian, Chef M. Lefevre of Midland Hotel offers this delicious sounding recipe.

One 3/4 to 4 lb. chicken
 8 slices of back bacon
 4 finely chopped shallots
 1/2 lb. white mushrooms
 1 pint chicken stock
 chopped parsley
 seasoning
 1/2 lb. puff pastry - egg wash

Cut the chicken into eight pieces and blanch them. Wrap the rasher of bacon round each piece of chicken. Place one piece of dark meat and one piece of white meat in an individual pie dish, add the finely chopped shallots and the quartered mushrooms, add seasoning, cover with chicken stock, sprinkle chopped parsley on the top.

Business

Burr Corners gets new life

These days, when waste is considered a cardinal sin, Richard D. (Skip) Bronson, the nationally known shopping center developer, has one of the most encouraging recycling stories ever told. Charles Schrier developed Burr Corners Shopping Plaza in Manchester in 1963. The center was anchored, originally, by Caldor and a Popular Supermarket. It was a compact, busy little center right off I-86 facing the much traveled Tolland Turnpike. It gave every indication of being a hit. But then, unforeseen events happened. The chain of Popular Supermarkets entered into bankruptcy, closing one of the anchor stores. It didn't stay vacant long enough. A firm in Waterbury with three markets in that town opted for the space and opened up their first supermarket in the greater Hartford area, which proved to be a logistic disaster. The new supermarket was soon vacant again. With a major vacant store, the center became seedy. The parking lot area paving began to develop pot holes and a number of disoriented satellite tenants moved out. Except for Caldor, the outlook was quite grim. And, how long could they be satisfied with a general, dismal trend? That's when Schrier and Bronson decided to make their move. Rather than see the center die slowly and let it off as a loss, they took positive action. "We know it was a great location and that with a bit of innovation we could revitalize it," Bronson said. The first step was to involve the mortgage bank — in this case, Hartford's giant Society for Savings. Working closely with Brett Mack, Society's mortgage officer, Bronson devised some bold strokes. Convincing Caldor of the commitment both the bank and the development company were making, Bronson was able to extend their lease, thus assuring the center of its most vital organ. As a show of faith, an all new facade was created for the big store. The next thing we did took guts," Bronson remembers. With a twice vacant store becoming an eyesore, Bronson and Mack decided to overhaul and add to its shape. To the tune of an additional 10,000 square feet! The rule book says you don't add to a loser. But the team of Bronson and Meck were in high gear now and the rule book was just getting in the way. The strategy paid off. With a much larger facility, Bronson lured A&P into taking the space for a new super store. "Now we really had something going," the young developer recalls. The next job was to make the satellite tenants strong, both in spirit and financially. The process went quicker than planned and a few of those were replaced with the immensely popular Evans Products Inside Outlet. Now things were really starting to move. A completely new facade, with exciting graphics was put across the entire satellite area. The parking area was completely repaved and the Van Noort was replaced with a new store. "The people are now doing new landscaping. Today, Burr Corners is 100 per cent leased and looks brand new. McDonald's is building a free standing facility in the parking area. And, as Bronson says, "If McDonald's is coming in, you know the location is good." Other tenants at Burr Corners are Friendly's, The Washing Well, So Fro Fabrics, Harvey's, The Davis Family Restaurant, Tech Stereo, Burr Corner Spirit Shop, Olan Mills Studio and Manchester Twin Cinema. Burr Corners is a good example of foresight, leadership and faith in the development business. What could have turned into a disaster is now a dynamic center with a brand new lease on life.

Clark I. Moseley, D.V.M., has joined the veterinary practice of Dr. Donald Aronson, 440 Main St., East Hartford.

Ramone N. Salcius of 35 North St. has been promoted to secretary-staff by Southern New England Telephone. She has her office in New Haven. Miss Salcius was a service analyst in Hartford at the time of her recent promotion. She attended Manchester Community College.

Sales up

Caldor Inc., the Norwalk-based discount department store chain, has reported increased consumer demand, and a strong Father's Day.

SNET earnings improve

Southern New England Telephone earnings per common share for the second quarter of 1976 are estimated at $1.14, compared to $1.06 in 1975, $1.02 in 1974 and 74 cents for the same period last year before new rates were authorized. "These figures," Alfred W. Van Sinderen, SNET president, said, "show a modest improvement over previous years. But earnings continue to be lower than both the authorized level and the level we really need to meet our long-term financial requirements. "Also, a cost-of-living wage increase," he said, "previously negotiated with the Connecticut Union of Telephone Workers, will begin to have an impact on our earnings later this year. Therefore, we are continuing to assess the need for higher rates as we prepare cost studies and data necessary for the possible filing of a rate application early next year. Telephone rates increased by 9,500 in the second quarter of 1976, compared to a gain of 6,000 during the depressed second quarter of 1975. Long distance calling was up six per cent a gain of 4 1/4 per cent for the same period last year.

Why pick New York?

ARNOLD SAWISLAK NEW YORK (UPI) — When the Democratic Party decided last year to come to New York for its 1976 national convention, politicians and pundits alike were ready with explanations. Some said the party wanted to help the loyal Democratic wheelhooves here to demonstrate their city was not dying. Some said the Democrats wanted to be where the media was concentrated and 41 electoral votes would be on the line in November. Others said the party simply got stuck with New York when Chicago did not get the convention. Los Angeles was eliminated by the rude behavior of California's governor and no one else had the facilities.

Whatever the fact is that the Democrats are here and a very good reason for holding a national political convention in this city is all around them. The place itself is the message to the 5,000 very special Americans who are here to nominate a candidate for President. This is the place where the incredible economic muscle of the United States can be seen in the mighty skyscrapers, the pulse of trade and finance and the glitter of culture and entertainment. This is the city that has gathered together many people, many money, more creativity and more power than any other on the continent. It sums up what American have accomplished in the last 200 years. It is also the place where the symptoms of two centuries of abuse to both people and objects can be most clearly seen in this country. In the streets below the breathtaking stone and glass buildings, the garbage lies uncollected. Below ground, garish graffiti-smearers train roar through grimy and peeling subway stations. On the plaza in front of the shining new structure where the convention is being held an old black woman, with her life's belongings stuffed in two shopping bags, sprawled last week — her home until the authorities sealed off the area to remove such rude signs of the pain that lives alongside the glass and glamour.

New York is not America, and as a people we have always distrusted, even hated, great cities. Some, reflecting this, said during the default crisis of last fall the country could live without it. But it would not be the same nation that registers 100 million automobiles for the world's greatest network of highways, that provides jobs for 80 million men and women and that spent more than $300 billion to govern itself and produced more than $4 trillion in goods and services last year. Without the great cities, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Atlanta and Los Angeles as well as the model for them all, New York, the United States would be a poorer place for everyone. No quiet and clean suburb can live without them. No small town or farm can prosper if they die. The Democrats are here to give their nomination to a country man — a native and still resident of a tiny town in a region that only now is beginning to realize the growth and trouble that technology and industrialization can bring to a people who have depended on the primarily on the land to sustain them.

Slowpoke Justice

"The law, though it creaks, works." So said an eminent English jurist a few years ago. But if the law creaks too much and works too little, then justice is not being done. It is this problem that the Constitution deals with by requiring a "speedy trial" in all criminal cases.

A man accused of burglary, unable to make bail, languished in jail for over four months waiting to be tried. During this period he sought again and again to have his case heard. But the state succeeded again and again in having it postponed—always on some flimsy pretext.

A court finally ruled that the man had been deprived of his constitutional rights and must be released. However, it also appeared that on three occasions, when his case was called, he fired his lawyer. The

'Do Good' groups fight over food crisis

DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Two of the nation's most respected "do good" organizations are publicly feuding over how the United States should respond to the world hunger crisis.

Involved are the Environmental Fund, one of the nation's leading ecology and population control organizations, and Bread for the World, a Christian citizens organization aimed at mobilizing public opinion toward ending hunger.

Who wins this feud, in terms of influencing the next administration, will have a major impact on the priorities and strategies of U.S. development and aid policies - an impact that will be felt by millions of the world's poor.

The feud began when the Environmental Fund published a statement, reprinted in several major newspapers, entitled "statement on the real crisis."

"The world as we know it will likely be ruined before the year 2000 and the reason for this will be its inhabitants' failure to comprehend two facts," the Fund statement said.

The facts it cited were that world food production cannot keep pace with "the galloping growth of population" and that family planning "cannot and will not, in the foreseeable future, check this runaway growth."

"We are being misled," the statement continued, "by those who say there is a serious food shortage. This is not true; world food production this decade is the greatest in history."

"The problem is too many people. The food shortage is simply evidence of the problem," it added.

Bread for the World, which is headed by Eugene Carson Blake, former general secretary of the World Council of Churches, has responded that the Fund's statement is not realistic and that it is immoral.

According to Bread for the World, the Environmental Fund's anti-population position reflects the views of those who promote the notions of "tragedy" and "lifeboat ethics" as a solution to the hunger problem.

"Tragedy" and "lifeboat ethics" suggest that humanitarian help should be given only to those peoples or nations where

Geneva, Switzerland (UPI) - Any nation causing massive pollution of the atmosphere and the seas is guilty of an international crime, the United Nations International Law Commission unanimously decided this week.

The Commission, comprising top legal experts from 25 countries, also agreed that it is an international crime for any country to practice slavery, genocide or apartheid.

Commission officials said they expect little opposition to the decision on slavery, genocide and apartheid as these have all been termed crimes by the U.N. General Assembly.

But the listing of pollution could lead to heated debate in the 8th (legal) Committee of the General Assembly because it could among other things involve atmospheric nuclear explosions, the officials said.

The Commission, after several years of discussion, reached agreement on an article on international crimes in the 10th week of a 12-week session which ends July 20.

The commission is mainly a drafting body. Any violations would be taken up primarily by the U.N. Security Council.

development to self-sufficiency is practical and nations who may need aid for an extended period of time should be regarded as "basket cases" and aid cut off.

What bothers Bread for the World, in particular, is the fact that the Environmental Fund's statement was signed by Zbigniew Brzezinski, a foreign policy adviser to Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter.

Brzezinski has been mentioned as a possible secretary of state if Carter is elected president.

Bread for the World said it was a "myth" that the real problem behind the world hunger is too many people.

"The statement is correct in recognizing the seriousness of rapid population growth as a factor contributing to hunger,"

Bread for the World said in its reply. "But its preoccupation with this factor in isolation from other factors encourages us to get at the problem backwards."

It said countries have lowered birth rates and reduced population expansion only after achieving adequate nutrition standards.

Bread for the World also took exception to the Environmental Fund's argument that the United States has done just about everything possible to assist the developing countries and that an increase in U.S. aid "is impossible from a practical standpoint."

"This position is simply not true," Bread for the World said.

Citing the Marshall Plan at the end of World War II, Bread for the World said "the United States can be generous, but the truth is that we have not yet committed ourselves to a serious global effort against hunger, either in our assistance or in other policies that might give the rural poor access to needed technology and other resources."

Q. When I retired in May at the age 65, I had no plan to work any more. My earnings through May were $2,500. Now I have a chance to earn $1,500 from August through December, at a rate of $50 per month. How will my Social Security benefits be affected?

Q. I've had a maid come in twice a week for the past few months while my wife has been sick. Do I have to report her wages?

Q. I got Supplemental Security Income payments, and I'm thinking of moving to another state in a month or so. Do I need to reapply for SSI when I get there?

Q. I'd like to take $1,000 I've saved and buy a car. Will this change the amount of my Supplemental Security Income check?

Q. No, you can own a car of reasonable value ($1,000) without affecting your SSI payments.

Q. I got Supplemental Security Income payments, and I'm thinking of moving to another state in a month or so. Do I need to reapply for SSI when I get there?

A. No. However, you must let Social Security know if you move so checks can be sent to your new address. Also, the amount of your SSI payment may change because some states add to the federal SSI payment and some don't.

Soviet-born wife denied exit papers

MOSCOW (UPI) - Irina McClellan, Soviet-born wife of an American professor, reports that authorities have again refused to grant her the documents she needs to join her husband in the West.

Mrs. McClellan, 36, told Western correspondents she had been informed by Vladimir Obedin, head of the Soviet visa office, that no travel papers would be issued to her.

"He gave no reason," Mrs. McClellan said. "He also told me my case would not be considered again before December. He said there would be no use in applying before then."

Officials cited security reasons for turning down Mrs. McClellan's previous applications to join her husband in Washington, D.C. McClellan, who was married here in 1974. He is a history professor at the University of Virginia.

Soviet officials alleged that she had learned state secrets while employed as a secretary at the Institute of World Economics, which she denies. She quit the job four years ago. McClellan, who was in Moscow as an exchange professor at the time of his marriage, left the Soviet Union in August 1974, three months after the wedding. Since then he has been denied permission to return.

"I spoke to my husband Sunday," Mrs. McClellan said. "Of course he was disappointed. But he still is optimistic. He says we must wait and see."

Delegates battle prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — The high cost of Democratic National Convention living caused Maine's delegation to come by bus and Rhode Island Gov. Philip Noel to urge delegates to take advantage of all the freebies they could find.

Most of Maine's 40 delegates and alternates arrived in the Big Apple on a chartered bus in order to save the plane fare.

Noel, at a meeting of his state's delegation, suggested taking advantage of the throng of parties being thrown by candidates, labor and the city.

"I don't know how you found the food and beverage prices," he told them, "but I hope you will want to take advantage of all the invitations we've gotten."

The New York Times said each delegate would spend an average of $1,000 during the week, said Mary Najarian of Portland, Maine, one of the delegates who also serves as the assistant majority leader of the state House of Representatives.

"But I suspect the Maine delegation will average about $150, I guess some of the others will have to spend more to offset us," she chuckled.

But it's likely even the lightest penny pincher will leave more than $150 behind, with an average of $125 for the least expensive double room hotel accommodations for the five-day minimum.

Meal prices, with dinners typically running more than $10 each, are also rough on pocketbooks.

The chartered bus cost the Maine delegates $30 round trip and the Democratic State Committee made roast beef sandwiches for those aboard, including former Gov. Kenneth Curtis and Secretary of State Mark Gortel.

"The ride was actually a lot of fun," said Mrs. Najarian. "We did some preliminary planning, switched seats frequently so we got to talk to each other, and about noon they started breaking out drinks from the cooler."

Dick Spencer, noting the high cost of almost everything, said he probably had made an error in passing up an opportunity to earn back some money.

"I got up at 6 a.m. the day we left for New York and picked 10 quarts of red raspberries, but I gave them away on the bus. It's too bad I didn't keep them; I found out I could have made $60," he said.

Waiting for the big moment

Bishops' views made clear

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The general secretary of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops told Jimmy Carter's top issue man he was "seriously misinformed" about the unanimity of Catholic bishops on the abortion issue.

In a telegram to Stuart Eisenstadt, the aide who coordinated the successful Carter campaign to shape the Democratic platform to their liking, Bishop James S. Rausch said Catholic bishops would continue to push for a constitutional amendment banning all abortions.

On June 24, Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, issued a strongly worded statement condemning the Democratic platform which he called "morally offensive" and "irresponsible." The platform plank says a constitutional amendment banning abortions would be "undesirable."

Eisenstadt was later reported as saying many Catholic bishops did not support Bernardin's view.

"Remarks attributed to you by the press," Rausch said in his telegram, "suggest you are seriously misinformed on this matter."

Rausch said Bernardin's views "have the unqualified support of the bishops of the United States as well as being shared by millions of other Americans," and that the Conference "deeply regrets" the Democrats' abortion plank "and will continue to urge a constitutional amendment to protect the unborn."

Earlier, Bernardin, in another statement, said he was "gratified" that Carter had personally expressed his disagreement with the platform plank and "publicly reaffirmed his personal abhorrence of abortion."

"At the same time," Bernardin said, "I hope he (Carter) will further clarify his position on the platform plank — a plank which in effect endorses permissive abortion — and on the measures to protect human life."

Like Rausch, Bernardin said a constitutional amendment "is necessary to provide authentic protection for unborn human life."

State saves $862,000 on energy

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state has saved about $862,000 in its $1 million, six-month energy conservation drive, according to Lynn Alan Brooks, state planning and energy policy commissioner.

Brooks reports the reduced fuel and electricity costs were for the period January-May, 1970 because final figures for the year ending June 30 were not yet available.

He reported to Gov. Ellis T. Grasso that fuel oil and natural gas use dropped 10.3 per cent and electricity use dropped 5.9 per cent compared to amounts used last year.

Snow and ice removal by the Department of Transportation raised gasoline usage 3.2 per cent, he said, but if that was subtracted, gasoline used by state agencies dropped 5.2 per cent compared to 1970.

Brooks said last month state gasoline use appeared to be steadily rising, but an aide said earlier figures were not accurate.

Crossroads at plant held conventions, delegates would feel at home in the Big Thicket of east Texas. Called a "biological crossroads of North America," the area is overlapped by Appalachian and southern forests, flora and fauna of the West and varieties indigenous to Mexico's subtropics.

MOORE'S
BUILDING MATERIALS

YES, YOU CAN

...MAKE YOUR HOME COOLER

Lay a minimum of 6" of insulation on your attic floor between the rafters; staple 3/4" insulation rolls between studs on outside walls and between joists under floors. Install a ventilating fan in your attic.

...PUT UP A FENCE

It's easy! Just dig your post hole; drop in your posts; connect the rails & fill in with rocks & soil or concrete. See our variety - Stockade for privacy, Split Rail and galvanized metal mesh!

...REPAINT YOUR HOME

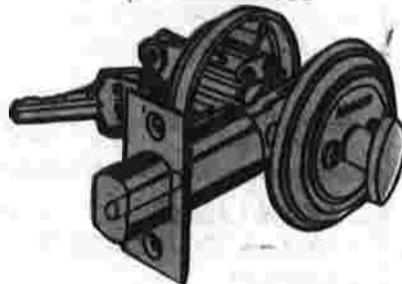

Prepare the surface with a good cleaning; caulk around window & door frames. Patch, sand, dust and spot prime all nicks & cracks. Degloss shiny surfaces with steel wool, then apply paint evenly in 2 directions.

... BUILD A PATIO COVER

Translucent shelter from the hot sun & rain - Just establish footings to support 4 X 4 posts at the desired distance from your house (12" less than the length of your plastic panels,) then add headers, rafters & braces!

...BURGLAR PROOF YOUR HOME!!

Install Moore's deadlocks on all your entrance doors. Locks are guarded against hack-sawing by a free-turning pin. Available with three locks keyed alike.

...INSTALL A NEW LIGHT FIXTURE

You can do it! Just turn off your power at the main switch, then disconnect your old fixture and connect the wires of your new fixture; tape and turn your power back on. Over 80 styles now sale priced at 15% off!
