Mrs. Zeta Ford, a retired senior volunteer, stuffs envelopes in the community services division at Manchester Community College. (Herald photo by Dunn)

She's important in her retirement

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter

For Mrs. Zeta Ford of Manchester, stuffing and addressing envelopes is a small part of the total enjoyment she receives as a member of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP).

Although her job varies, she considers it a privilege to "rub shoulders" with the professional staff where she works at Manchester Community College in the community services division.

She first learned of the volunteer program through a neighbor, and together they contacted RSVP and were interviewed.

RSVP interviews those who are interested with special consideration for their background and experience, and tries to place them in appropriate jobs.

And so it was not unique that Mrs. Ford was placed where she is. She isn't there just to stuff envelopes.

Her background in education and teaching has qualified her for summarizing MCC students' written reactions to their courses. She has prepared a brochure to be distributed among senior citizens searching out their interests in possible courses that might be offered to them at the college, and also searching out retired persons who might be interested in teaching, or assisting with teaching. Mrs. Ford will tabulate the responses.

Before her retirement three years ago as a reading teacher in the Manchester school system, Mrs.

Ford was a member of the state Department of Education and a state elementary education supervisor, both in Maine, and a city supervisor of elementary education in Warwick, R.I.

She has also taught summer school on a college level at the University of Maine, the University of South Carolina, and the Rhode Island College of Education.

She is a charter member of Lutz Junior Museum where she served many years as a volunteer.

Since her retirement, and since her husband died last fall, Mrs. Ford has found her volunteer appointment a new field of interest with people she likes.

"The RSVP is sort of high class type of thing," she said. "It makes us feel important." She said she would like to get out and shout positive things about RSVP and the community college.

RSVP keeps tabs on its volunteers and their employees from monthly evaluation sheets received from them.

Retired persons who would like to do volunteer work at something their background might fit them for may contact Nancy Peters, field representative of RSVP, by calling 649-5281, extension 285. RSVP has an office in the human services department in the Hall of Records opposite the Municipal Building.

The volunteer jobs for people over 60 years old are varied. Expenses are reimbursed and transportation can be arranged.

Ford to consult delegates on VP

United Press International
President Ford says he will seek the advice of all 2,259 Republican convention delegates before selecting a vice presidential running mate — if he wins the GOP nomination in Kansas City.

The announcement was seen as an attempt to counter Ronald Reagan's declaration of Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., as his running mate. It could help win conservative Republicans disgruntled over Reagan's selection of a liberal.

Ford revealed his strategy in a three-hour meeting with the uncommitted Mississippi delegation in Jackson. The 30 members had been heavily pro-Reagan prior to the Schweiker announcement, but even the Californian's chairman in the state now says Mississippi is "up for grabs."

There was no head count taken at the meeting in Mississippi. The delegation meets with Reagan next Wednesday.

Ford said he would choose someone with a record similar to his — middle of the road on social issues, conservative on fiscal issues, and favoring a strong national defense — an indication that he would not pick a liberal.

Ford said he had enough delegates to clinch the nomination on the first ballot, but White House press secretary Ron Nesson said: "He doesn't want to win the nomination with 1,135 votes (five more than needed). He wants to win with a lot of votes."

UPI's latest nationwide survey gives Ford 1,121 votes — nine short of the number needed for the nomination. Reagan had 1,028 and there were 110 uncommitted — including all 30 in Mississippi.

In Plains, Ga., Jimmy Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, said Friday it would make little difference to Carter's advertising campaign whether Ford or Reagan is the GOP nominee.

The theme of the ad campaign, Carter's ad director Jerry Rafashoon said, would be one of "leadership, confidence, trust, integrity."

In Washington, Schweiker told a news conference the number of delegates he would convert in the 103-member Pennsylvania delegation will be more than the six he already claims.

Schweiker said he will reverse long-held pro-labor positions if they conflict with the Republican platform, specifically support legislation repealing right to work laws and common situs picketing.

"I'm basically changing jobs," Schweiker said. "And I'm basically changing constituencies. As the nominee I will no longer be representing just a northern, urbanized, industrial state, but a national constituency."

Gov. James B. Edwards of South Carolina, said in Columbia that Ford will pick up Reagan delegates in his state if he picked a conservative vice presidential candidate. Edwards said he was still supporting Reagan, but added: "I'm not saying I'm going to vote for Schweiker at this point."

Rescue of Lebanon wounded again postponed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The Red Cross postponed its sixth attempt to evacuate wounded from the Tal Zaatar Palestinian refugee camp today, saying Christian militiamen besieging the camp refuse to accept the terms necessary to ensure a safe operation.

One of three Swedish medical personnel trapped inside the camp, Dr. Lars Smedsmall, told reporters over a two-way radio Friday night there were about 30,000 persons in the camp and that they "will all be dead in three days' time unless something is done."

"Soon, in three days, people will be dying of dehydration. If you don't come, we will all die in three days," he said, repeating the phrase five times.

"They are dying, they are dying," he said of the hundreds of wounded. Smedsmall said 1,400 persons have died in the camp over the past month and that another 4,000 have been wounded.

The Red Cross said it did not know if Smedsmall's figures were accurate. The estimate of 30,000 persons in the camp was believed exaggerated. Palestinian sources said the camp had held some 14,000 persons and that many were evacuated after the Christian siege began 41 days ago.

The Red Cross said it postponed the evacuation because it had not received signatures from Christian leaders confirming a cease-fire at the camp and "secondly, because conditions are being imposed upon us which add too much risk to the operation."

A Red Cross spokesman said the Christians demanded the medical team not go beyond a "certain point" into the camp, but did specify the location of the point.

Interior Minister Camille Chamoun, ultra-rightist leader of one of the militias besieging the camp, said he did not object to the evacuation and that his troops were observing a cease-fire.

The Red Cross spokesman said Chamoun had not signed the cease-fire agreement along with the Palestine Liberation Organization and leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt.

Judge hits utility for delay

HARTFORD (UPI) — A Common Pleas Court judge says Northeast Utilities deliberately delayed filing for a $47.7 million rate hike in 1974 to "reap a windfall" of $3 million in extra revenues.

Judge William C. Bieleuch, in findings submitted this week to the state Supreme Court, said Northeast's action caused "great harm, loss and detriment" to consumers. The utility denied the judge's charge.

Northeast, which serves nearly one million electric and gas customers in Connecticut, was granted the hike by the former Public Utilities Commission in October 1974.

The city of Hartford and consumer groups appealed the rate hike, and Judge Maurice J. Sponzo issued a stay, preventing the utility from implementing the rate increase.

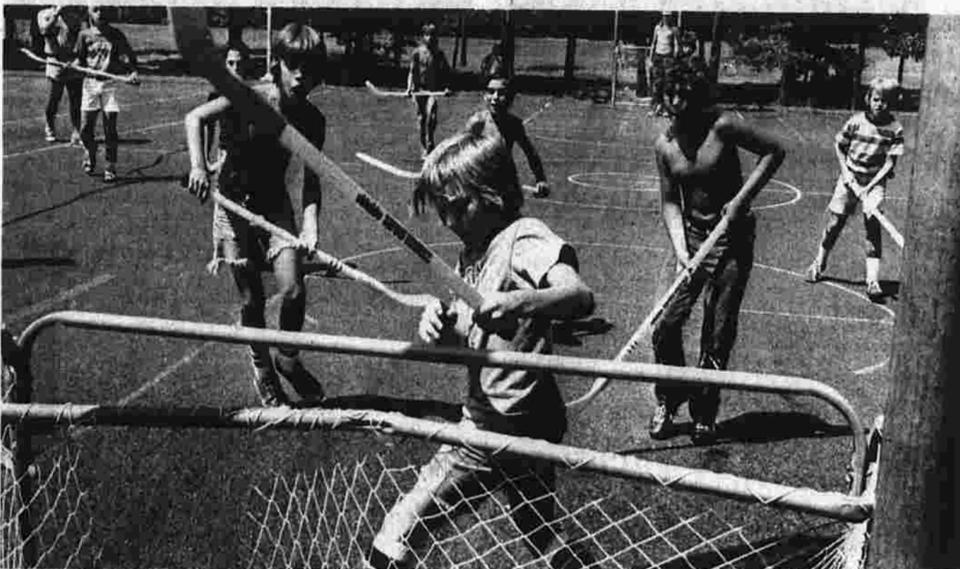

The judge, however, allowed the utility to continue collecting revenues under interim rates the PUC approved in May 1974.

Bieleuch said the stay issued by Sponzo actually benefitted Northeast. Knowing this, the utility delayed filing of new rate schedules for six weeks to keep the stay in effect, Bieleuch said.

The issue is being considered by the state Supreme Court.

David Silverstone, state consumer counsel for the utilities, said if the Supreme Court decides against Northeast in the rate hike dispute, the utility will have to refund $11 million to Hartford Electric Light Co. customers and $3 million to Connecticut Light and Power Co. customers.

HARTFORD (UPI) — State Transportation Commissioner James Shugrue said Safety improvements recommended after a fatal train crash in New Canaan will be installed as soon as possible.

Shugrue Friday ordered ConRail, the federally-sponsored corporation operating the trains, to install equipment that will prevent a recurrence of the July 13 crash which killed two commuters and injured 30.

HARTFORD (UPI) — A projected $13,000 loss will become a $200,429 profit at six nursing homes operated by a Hartford corporation when rate hikes for private patients become effective, according to company officials. The state Commission on Hospitals and Health Care granted the homes nine to 22 per cent increases. The homes said a drop in payments for state welfare patients would cause the losses. The homes are Abbey Manor, Crosson Convalescent, Liberty Hall, Milford Heights, Silver Lane Pavilion and Wolcott Hall.

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — Dead fish washed ashore in the Bridgeport area contained abnormal levels of various metals, although the metal was not the major factor in the kill, according to state Department of Environmental Protection officials. They said fish washed up in Black Rock and Bridgeport Harbors contained copper, zinc, chromium and phenol, an industrial solvent. Fish kills occur regularly in Long Island Sound. One theory is small fish are driven toward shore by predators, where warm shallow water is deficient in oxygen.

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — The

city's nine per cent drop in crime last year — the only decrease reported by a major city in the state — is partially attributable to "D-Run" computer-aided patrols, according to Police Chief Biagio DeLieto. D-Run, officially known as "Direct Deterrence Patrol," is based on crime information analyzed by a computer and studied by analysts. The analysts then decide where to place special foot patrols. Federal funds were used in the $310,000 three-year development of the program, DeLieto said.

HARTFORD (UPI) — State police say the driver of a pickup truck involved in a head-on collision in Lebanon that left five persons dead July 22 had been drinking and was driving on the wrong side of the road.

Among those killed in the crash were Mrs. Charlene Howell and two of her children: Melissa, 6, and Roger, 7.

A state police spokesman said Friday Edward Clark, 45, who also died in the accident, was under the influence of alcohol and was in the wrong lane when his truck hit the Howell car on an S-curve on Rt. 16.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission says it still is looking for 38,000 pacifiers which may be dangerous to babies.

Known as "chupetes" and sold for about 45 cents, the pacifiers are about two inches long with a one-inch soft rubber nipple and plastic saucer-shaped shield at the base of the nipple. The shield is flexible, and the pacifier could be swallowed, the CPSC said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has voted to lop hundreds of millions of dollars off the tax bills of railroads, airlines and the biggest insurance companies.

The votes Friday were on portions of the Tax Reform Act, which has been debated by the Senate for weeks. The Senate quit Friday evening until Monday and may resume tax considerations then.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has passed a $466.4 million, three-year program to make American Indians' and Eskimos' health care as good as it already is for the rest of U.S. society. The House passed the measure Friday by a 310-9 vote and sent it to the Senate which passed a similar bill a year ago. The programs would begin Oct. 1, 1977.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has invited the Yale Law School graduating classes of 1940, 1941 and 1942 to a luncheon at the White House today and about 55 of his former classmates have accepted, according to press secretary Ron Nesson.

International

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (UPI) — Honduras today ordered its forces along the border with El Salvador to observe an "absolute cease-fire" effective immediately.

The order, which took effect at midnight Friday night, apparently lessens the danger of a renewal of the 1969 five-day war between the two Central American neighbors.

Green and orange: Fear and trembling

(Editor's Note: The Rev. Stephen K. Jacobson, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, has returned from Northern Ireland where he visited for two weeks. While there, he met with Archbishop George Simms of the Church of Ireland (Anglican), William Cardinal Conway, Roman Catholic primate of Ireland, and representatives of the Presbyterian and Methodist Churches. He spent time with the Corrymela Community, an ecumenical community for reconciliation in Ireland, to learn more about its work, and with the Brothers of the Society of St. Francis in Belfast. He attended a reunion of the teenagers from Northern Ireland who spent last summer as guests of St. Mary's and St. James Churches. This was the rector's third trip to Ireland, and his second to Northern Ireland. This is his account of troubled Ireland.)

Rev. Stephen K. Jacobson "Ecumenical" is a dirty word in Northern Ireland. The stark evidence is daily violence which destroys property, life and hope.

For Americans, who have seen their own share of racial strife and religious bigotry, the situation in Ulster remains all but incomprehensible. "How can people, who call themselves Christians, hate and kill each other in the name of the Prince of Peace?" Simplistic answers are offered and propaganda is produced by both sides, but still there is a mindnumbing irrationality about the whole affair.

Perhaps the wisest observation about the troubles in Northern Ireland comes from a local in a Belfast pub who says, "We remember too much, too long. It is a land of long and bitter memories. It is like an aging and lonely resident of a home for the indigent poor, whose remembered aches and present pains become the focus of today's reality. Hope has faded and only a grim and bitter future catches the mind's eye. It has been said that this is not a religious conflict, that the churches have all expressed their opposition to the violence and that the church leaders have worked closely together for peace. It is pointed out that very few of the terrorists have any real church affiliation and they are simply using religious slogans to justify their unconscionable acts. All this is essentially true. But on a deeper level the killings and the bombings are the bitter fruits of religious bigotry and sectarian self-righteousness.

As a visitor to Ireland with personal relationships on both sides of the barricades, I have sensed the underlying alienation and seen the results. What follows are some personal observations and some growing convictions about what is happening there.

One first and lasting impression of Ireland, North and South, is that these are indeed two separate countries. Each has an identity of its own. Propagandists for a United Ireland ignore these distinct identities and turn a blind eye to historical realities. They would have believed that the Partition of 1921 divided an otherwise united land.

This simply is not true. For more than 300 years, with the settlement of Scotch and English immigrants, the six counties of Ulster have developed a distinct identity from the rest of Ireland. The Partition in 1921 was political recognition of an historical fact as real as the fact the native American Indians were displaced on the North American continent by successive waves of immigrant settlers during the 19th century. The displacement of the native population lacked moral virtue in many instances, but much of history lacks the moral neatness one might hope for in a more perfect world.

Today there are indeed two Irelands, each with a distinct identity. The possibility of a united Ireland is an option for the future, but if it happens it will occur out of a sense of mutual need and opportunity rather than out of a desire to return to a more natural and idyllic union of the past. Such a pre-existent union may have existed in the mists of primordial time, but only a violent destruction of history makes a case for the existence of a united Ireland in the past 500 years.

As misfortune would have it, there are also two separate communities within Ulster itself. These two communities divide along "Protestant and "Catholic" lines. Although "Protestant" and "Catholic" are convenient identification tags, a more accurate distinction would be class consciousness. Catholics have traditionally been seen as members of a subordinate class, while Protestants have made up the dominant establishment class. Such class distinctions are still deeply felt and perpetuated.

The unhealthy results of class distinction are to be seen in the segregated institutions of modern Ulster. I believe that this segregation lies at the root of Northern Ireland's troubles. A few examples will suffice:

1. Segregated schooling is the norm. Most Protestant children attend schools from kindergarten through high school, completely segregated from Catholic children. Such segregation is almost universal and is supported by both the government and the church. Tax money pays the operating costs of this segregated system, and church authorities insist on its maintenance. In my judgment, it is questionable if the merits of parochial education outweigh the social costs of such religious segregation.
2. Segregated neighborhoods have become the norm once again. Some progress was made toward integrated housing prior to 1969, but this has all been swept away by the violence and intimidation which has driven people to seek the relative security of segregated neighborhoods. The British Army map of Belfast, which is color coded, dramatically makes this clear. Orange identifies Protestant areas, green identifies Catholic areas, and yellow represents those areas that are mixed. Today there is very little yellow on the map.
3. Political segregation is a reflection of the community structure. In a most integrated community, politics might pursue the art of compromise, but in this divided community "compromise" has become a dirty word and a fortress mentality has set in. Recent elections saw the crushing defeat of the Alliance party, the only major political party which seeks to attract support from moderates on both sides.

The consequences of such thorough-going segregation are manifold. Familiar myths, upon which religious bigotry feeds, go unchallenged. Personal piety, be it the Rotary or the witnessing to a conversion experience, is mocked and denigrated on both sides.

Social contact between young people from different religions is virtually taboo. "Some of my best friends are Catholics" is a phrase which has the same hollow ring as similar racial pronouncements in America.

Politics, instead of being the arena of the possible, has become the bastion of the impossible. It has often been said that the religious leaders of Northern Ireland have failed to lead their people into the way of peace. History will judge the accuracy of this indictment, but my own impression is that the clergy feel genuinely thwarted; thwarted by their hierarchies, by the mood of their congregations, and by the widespread violence which places every leader in jeopardy.

The desire for peace is present, but what is not yet present is a widespread spirit of forgiveness, reconciliation, and reconciliation. Protestants and Catholics say they want peace, but both seem chained and hindered by sins of the past: self-interest, self-righteousness, and self-deception.

Cardinal Conway has been accused of rigid inflexibility in the administration of his office. Ian Paisley is spoken of as "that Protestant devil, who had he never been born, not a shot would have been fired." So long as fear prevails, hopes will continue to die. So long as fears remain unexamined, they will prevail. I believe that people are at their worst when they are motivated by fear. The same applies to religious and political institutions. What Ulster needs, and what we all need to some degree, is a way to examine the things that make us afraid and the courage to give them up in favor of a future based on trust and hope. Such a way has been the traditional message of the Christian Gospel.

I am convinced that Protestants in general do not appreciate how deep the feelings run in their Catholic counterparts. These feelings are etched in memories from childhood, of being called ugly names. They are etched in adolescent memories of being snubbed by shopkeepers and abused by policemen. They are the memories of job discrimination and bureaucratic run-arounds. If the Catholics have built emotional walls of self-defense, it must be remembered that somebody threw the stones with which the walls were built.

On the other hand I do not believe that Catholics generally understand or feel the depth of fear which pervades the Protestant community. There is a deep and genuine fear that Papal influence would someday try to stamp out their cherished Reformation heritage. They look to the South, in the Republic of Ireland, and see an unhealthy degree of ecclesiastical influence in the government there, and they shudder. They feel very much alone in a sea of Roman Catholicism and their sense of isolation makes them determined to resist at all costs.

As an outsider, it would be presumptuous of me to think I had an answer for the Northern Irish problems, but at the very least an attack on fear is demanded. The deep fears on both sides are real fears, but neither side has shown the capacity to appreciate the depth of feeling which lives in the heart of the other. So long as fear prevails, hopes will continue to die. So long as fears remain unexamined, they will prevail. I believe that people are at their worst when they are motivated by fear. The same applies to religious and political institutions. What Ulster needs, and what we all need to some degree, is a way to examine the things that make us afraid and the courage to give them up in favor of a future based on trust and hope. Such a way has been the traditional message of the Christian Gospel.

Today, more than ever, this gospel of hope needs to be rediscovered. Northern Ireland may in fact be a dramatic illustration of what can happen when the spirit of hope, rooted in forgiveness, is allowed to wither and die.

Please God, for Ireland and for all of us, there will be a rebirth of hope.

DUBLIN — (LENS) — The murder of the British ambassador in Dublin drew expressions of horror not only from the Irish government but also from the leader of the Flannery opposition, and even from the "Provisional" IRA's "official" rivals.

"Say a word for Jesus Christ"
Once when a preacher in Scotland walked into another minister's pulpit and was confronted with the slogan printed on a card in the middle of the open Bible. Too often that advice is ignored by clergymen who present humanistic causes without emphasis on the basic Christian motivation. Sometimes the liberal preacher will give a sociological analysis of a problem which he thinks more appropriate to his congregation than the message of the Gospel. For two thousand years, however, the essential core of our Christianity has been our Lord and Christ, as attested in Hebrews 12:1-2:

"Therefore, since we are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses, let us alone by aspire every weight, and sin which clings so closely, and let us run with perseverance the race that is set before us, looking to Jesus the pioneer and perfecter of our faith who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is seated at the right hand of the throne of God."

Occasionally we overlook this keystone in the arch of our faith and proceed in our own strength. I remember when this happened to me.

Pastoral counseling
One of the demanding aspects of a minister's job is trying to help parishioners with their problems. It is an advantage to know the background and character of the of- fice visitor but it is difficult when a stranger comes in off the street. A young man did this once to me.

IRA's other actions, which have long ceased to be in any way compatible with its proclaimed purposes of helping the Catholics and subjugating the Protestants of Northern Ireland.

Ewart-Biggs' death was only one out of 180 violent deaths caused by the terrorists of both persuasions in Ireland since the new year.

But it is yet another reminder of the dangers of the diplomat's life in a disturbed world. It is a merit of long time since any other British ambassador has been murdered, and only one, Geoffrey Jackson in Treguay, whose staff had since then become insured to a prebendary of life.

The attack on his car might have had something to do with the fact that one of his fellow passengers and fellow victims was a visitor from Belfast, the official head of the Northern Ireland administration at Stormont Castle, but it seemed more likely that the new ambassador himself was the chief intended victim.

It was only at the beginning of this month that Ewart-Biggs arrived in Dublin to take charge of an embassy which had been burned down by an angry mob in 1972 and

"O that," he replied, "those were the quotation marks."

In a similar vein is the account of a rather poor preacher who amazed his congregation one Sunday with a brilliant sermon. As he sat down, a voice from the congregation was heard to remark, "Author! Author!"

What is your boast? Frequently I hear individuals trying to impress their listeners, as well as themselves, by exaggerated accounts of their accomplishments, by name dropping, or by extravagant claims about their possessions. Most of us take such "ego trips" from time to time.

How do Christians boast of their achievements? I have heard more than one say smugly, "I don't smoke, swear, or cheat my neighbor, and I go to church every Sunday." Isn't there a danger in trying to boast about anything? "Pride" is listed among the most dangerous of sins. St. Paul wrote:

Thought for day

And they continued steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers. Acts 2:42

All this week we have turned our thoughts to the importance of finding time to pray each day. As this week comes to a close we must consider the importance of joining with others to offer our prayer and praise to God.

The early disciples of Christ counted it privileged as well as an obligation to join on Sunday to offer the Eucharist and praise God for the gift of His salvation to the world. In fact, throughout the history of mankind, man has always set aside a special day to acknowledge the gracious blessing of God.

It is so easy to get out of the habit of observing Sunday as the Lord's Day. Sunday is the day to sleep in late, mow the lawn or go to the beach. But for nearly two thousand years there have been those who have kept this day for worship. Surely this week all of us have been blessed — all of us have good reason to make the sacrifice and join together to offer thanksgiving.

You can make tomorrow a very special day for your and your family. Why not begin the new week by worshipping together and praising the Lord of your days and of your life?

Lord, we offer the coming day to you and acknowledge that you are the Lord of our lives. Amen.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We have three grown children, all raised in a good Christian home with good examples to follow. But there's not one we can brag about. They're all college graduates, but they might just as well have been high school dropouts for all the good their education has done them.

The oldest, a son, 30, plays guitar with a rock group. He dresses like a bum, his eyes are always bloodshot, he's a vegetarian, skinny as a bantelope, and he's always dead tired. He has no plans for the future, and the only good thing we can say for him is he never asks us for money.

The 24-year-old is living with a group of people who are into some far-out religious cult. They meditate a lot, don't believe in working for money, but always asking for "donations" to feed herself and her "brothers and sisters" who seem to have her hypnotized.

When did we go wrong? And what do we tell people who ask about our children?

DEAR EMBARRASSED: You didn't necessarily go "wrong," your children may have. And when people ask about them, tell them the truth, or if that's too painful, then (truthfully) you would rather not talk about them.

DEAR ABBY: I named a 14-year-old girl who has a crush on a 16-year-old guy I don't know who Billy comes over here to see because I have a twin brother and an older brother who is 16, and when Billy comes over he is friendly with all of them.

One he came over and spent the whole time talking to my mother while she did the ironing. I was in my room and he didn't even ask where I was.

I really like this guy, but I don't want him to know it. How can I find out for sure who Billy comes here so much to see?

DEAR LIKES: If Billy is 15, I'd say the one he pays the least attention to is the one he comes to see.

DEAR ABBY: I recently told my 10-year-old daughter the facts of life, and I gave it to her straight. She took it all with the attitude we have about sex—it is sacred in marriage, never dirty, but easily chaperoned. I was a little nervous, but I was in when it was time to talk to her two younger sisters.

I hope she will always be able to talk freely to me about everything I thought of an idea you might want to pass on to your readers.

We bought a folder and labeled it "Teen References." Into this folder will go every letter you print about premarital sex, drugs, liquor, early marriage, overprotective or absent or uncaring parents, etc. For every letter from a teen who advocates sex or drugs will be a letter from a teen who learned the hard way.

She thinks this is a great idea. What do you think?

DEAR MRS. J.B.: You are some wise mama. I'll pass your flattering suggestion on.

For Sunday, August 1, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Have fun with those you put around with today, but don't try to do any business deals today. They won't work out.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're so sure of yourself today there's a possibility you'll overlook the big picture. Keep things in perspective.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll be fortunate today so long as you evaluate situations as they are, not as you'd like them to be. Realize it's a must.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Material conditions are favorable for you today, but guard against wastefulness or your dimming ambitions.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 23) Set your ambitions aside for today. Just go back to the old grind tomorrow.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 22) Conditions for gain today are very promising for you today. Be alert for opportunities through intimate friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Matters you handle early in the day should turn out to your satisfaction. If you wait till late evening, your luck lessens.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Although you won't have as much direct contact with people of situations today as you'd like, they will still work out very advantageously.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Seek activities today that will give you more around both mentally and physically. Get away from the TV.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Pursue ambitions with vigor today, but let them continue to favor you. You know what you want — go get it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) This is a good day to start to plan ahead, but don't look far in advance. Success comes in a flash.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You'll get exactly what you work for today. Indiscriminate and haphazard investments are probable.

Your Birthday August 1, 1976

This year you'll find you will have more time to pursue your dreams, creative endeavors. Put your art, business and imagination to work for both fun and profit.

Viking camera to watch soil testing

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — A photography sequence was scheduled beginning Monday, starting with a picture of the instrument that indicated it was not filled properly the first time.

Two other instruments in the typewriter-sized biology package signaled they were working, but one that measures gases given off by any feeding micro-organisms was not functioning.

Scientists also said the first results from an inorganic chemistry investigation showed a tiny soil sample contained several elements including the iron-oxide that gives the planet its rusty red color.

Some data also will be sent back indicating the progress in the two active biology chambers. Also scheduled today were transmission spectroscopy and soil analysis.

Soil samples, meanwhile, are incubating in two other biology chambers, one that exposes soil to simulated Martian sunlight to see if it will assimilate carbon and another that uses radioactive carbon to test for signs of life.

Russia threatens; Jenner sets record

MONTREAL (UPI) — As it began, so it ends.

At the beginning, some 30 nations walked out on these troubled Olympic Games, and now, on the final weekend, the Russians are threatening to pull out their huge team.

The Soviet Union announced late Friday night that it "reserves the right to withdraw" unless Canada returns a 17-year-old diver, Sergei Nentsanov, who defected to the Canadian government immediately repudiated that it wouldn't return him.

Vitali Smirnov, vice chairman of the Russian Olympic Committee, has expressed serious concern about this young man. They demanded answers and we couldn't get them.

"If we do not get a satisfactory answer, we are considering withdrawing from the final competition, both on Saturday and at the closing ceremonies."

gotten the stadium ready in six years.

"The grass is so bad I almost sprained my ankle, and I've been getting shin splints from running on the hard surface."

In addition to the long jump, there are seven other track and field finals this afternoon on the last day of competition, including the glamorous 1-500 meters, in which New Zealander John Walker is favored over Rick Wohlhueter of Chicago, and the marathon, where American Frank Shorter will be defending his title against Flying Finn Lasse Viren, seeking a third gold medal in these games at 26-29-77.

Also on today's windup schedule in track is the 400 and 1,600 meter relays for both men and women and the women's shot put.

The Olympics conclude Sunday with the traditional Team Grand Prix jumping in equestrian, with the closing ceremonies starting at 9 p.m. EDT.

Going into today's events, the United States remained third in both gold and total medals behind the Soviet Union and East Germany.

Russia had 39 gold, 37 silver and 31 bronze for 107 medals, East Germany had 34-21-24-79 and the U.S. was at 29-29-77.

One American who doesn't have a personality problem today is Bruce Jenner. The only problem he may have will be how to market his personality.

James Butts, the 1972 NCAA champion and a writer to tell the story, Jenner needed only the decathlon gold medal to set his future in motion that came Friday when he won the two-day event, breaking his own world record with 8,618 points.

"What won it for me was 12 years of training," said the tall, blond Californian, who now lives in recognition as being the world's greatest athlete.

Jenner makes no secret of the fact he would like to cash in on his success as an amateur.

"This will be my last decathlon, so I would be foolish for me not to capitalize on an Olympic victory," he explained.

Russians won the only other final events on Friday's track and field program. Victor Saneyev, 20, took his third successive Olympic triple jump gold medal with a leap of 56 feet, 8 1/2 inches and Tilianna Kazankina won the women's 1,500 meters in 4:05.49 to complete a double. She won the 800 in world record time earlier this week.

NEW YORK (UPI) —

Diego, 13-8 and 4-2, New York edged Philadelphia, 3-2, Chicago beat St. Louis, 7-6, Pittsburgh edged Montreal, 4-3, in 13 innings, and San Francisco downed Los Angeles, 5-3.

Reids 13-4, Padres 8-2, Johnny Bench and Cesar Geronimo combined to drive in seven runs as Cincinnati battled around twice in two of the operas.

Messersmith allowed only two hits after the fourth inning on route to his 10th win against nine losses.

Foster's two-run homer, plus two RBIs in the first game, boosted his major league-leading RBI total to 90.

Mets 3, Phillies 2, Jerry Kosman, who highlighted weathering two rain delays, allowed Philadelphia only four hits in completing his seventh game.

Kosman, who hit his first home run in the eighth.

In other games, Cincinnati swept a pair from San Diego, 7-1.

Behind an 18-hit attack, Tommy's Pizza downed Cincinnati 4-1, last night at Mt. Nebo. Rita Lemke and Karen Turek each had three hits and Doreen Anderson, Debbie Sarni, Teri Clapp, Brenda Whittemore and Sandy Irish two each for Pizza.

Caroly Jankowski and Fran Muszynski each had two for Cut.

Scoring in all but one frame. Highland Park Market topped Tierney's.

James Butts, the 1972 NCAA champion and a writer to tell the story, Jenner needed only the decathlon gold medal to set his future in motion that came Friday when he won the two-day event, breaking his own world record with 8,618 points.

"What won it for me was 12 years of training," said the tall, blond Californian, who now lives in recognition as being the world's greatest athlete.

Jenner makes no secret of the fact he would like to cash in on his success as an amateur.

"This will be my last decathlon, so I would be foolish for me not to capitalize on an Olympic victory," he explained.

Editor's son crash victim

MIAMI (UPI) —

The son of one of the Hartford Courant's editors was killed in a head-on automobile crash Friday.

Robert S. Shea, formerly of West Hartford, Conn., died at Hialeah, Fla., Sunday after a collision with another car near Miami International Airport.

The driver of the other car was injured and reported in fair condition.

Shea, whose age was unavailable, was the son of Daniel Shea of West Hartford, formerly of Manchester.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Data process results reviewed by committee

The results of the first phase of the town's data processing analysis was reviewed Thursday night by the data processing committee and Richard Levitt, analyst, who was hired for the job.

There are three objectives of the analysis, said Walter Doll, vice-chairman of the committee, and Levitt has completed the first job task which was the review and document in detail the existing town data processing systems.

When the report of the first objective is approved by the committee, Levitt will be paid. He will be paid accordingly after the completion of each job task. Doll said the committee would pass judgment on the report at the next meeting on Aug. 17.

Nine submit bids for work pants

Nine bids were opened Friday for 125 pairs of work pants for the Town Fire Department.

Mauroice Pass, director of general services, said the price bid on the pants ranged from $5.94 to $19.90 per pair. Bids varied depending on three different quantities of pants.

Pass said samples of the pants were sent in by the nine companies. The samples and prices will be evaluated before a final decision on which pants the town will buy is made, Pass said.

The low bid of $5.94 per pair was entered by the Security Uniform Division of Goldberg's from New Britain.

About town

Members of Campbell Council, KofC, will meet Sunday at 7:15 p.m. at the Council Home and proceed to the John F. Tierney Funeral Home, 219 W. Center St., to pay respects to the late Frank C. Devoto, a member of the Council.

BEST BUYS BY BELFIORE

offers a big aluminum sided six-room Colonial with breezeway, patio, and oversized garage. Features include new roof, aluminum storm, screens, and doors, and a nicely treed lot in a convenient Manchester location. We believe that a home like this in the thirties represents excellent value. Please call now.

JIM PINNEGAN

believes this stately Dutch Colonial on a tree-shaded Manchester street gives a style of quiet, elegant living not available in the much higher priced start moderns. An unusual winding staircase and an absolutely lovely formal and private rear garden add to the distinctive atmosphere. Completely automatic kitchen with appliances. Bright, attractive finished walk-out family room in basement. The very best, at barely over fifty. Come see!

ALEX MATTHEW

has just listed a stunning stone English Tudor that simply must be seen! Along with the elegant motif, extra value features include a sparkling new kitchen with built-in cleaning oven, two door refrigerator with ice maker, dishwasher, disposal, and an almost unbelievable covered patio! Quiet, executive area. Affordable in the fifties.

JOE LOMBARDO

just listed an almost finished eight room, 4 bedroom Colonial with 2 1/2 baths and 2-car garage. This is a bank sale and represents an unusually priced start modern. Can you believe a home this big on a 150'x200' lot, with stone and frame construction, in the low fifties? Believe it! Call Joe now.

Tri-Town Players

The Tri-Town Players will present two comedy hits for their fifth anniversary season.

The drama group will perform "Cactus Flower" on Nov. 5 and 6, 12 and 13, and "Harvey" on March 18 and 19, 25 and 26, 1977.

Anyone interested in becoming a patron or a subscriber may call Andrea Hansen, 647-9697.

Lee Hay was elected president recently of the drama group for the 1976-77 season.

Other officers of the Players are Solange Quick, vice-president, business; Nancy Rice, vice-president, technical; Esther Chardis, recording secretary; Harriet Dewey, corresponding secretary; Joy Bale, treasurer.

The following committee chairmen were appointed: Andrea Hansen, patrons; Mariella Luginbuhl, ad book; Karen Carlberg, public relations, and Sue Swanson, hostess.

Rock concerts

Doobie Brothers, Marshall Tucker Band and Firefall will combine for a rock concert Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at Colt Park in Hartford. Tickets are available at Harvest Silver in Manchester.

Tonight at 9 at the Hartford Civic Center, Mr. Marvin Gaye is presented in concert. For information, call 566-6000.

Dance events

The Guthrie-Rotante Company will perform Sunday at 4:30 p.m. in Palmer Auditorium at Connecticut College in New London.

Monday at 8 p.m., the film "Top Hat" with Fred Astaire will be shown in Dana Hall at the college.

Friday, the Murray Louis Dance Company will be featured and Saturday the Nancy Meehan Dance Company will perform. Both performances are 8 p.m. in Palmer Auditorium.

For reservations and information, call 442-9131.

At Jacob's Pillow in Lee, Mass., Tuesday begins the sixth week of the summer dance festival with the Milwaukee Ballet Company featuring Ted Kivitt, principal dancer with the American Ballet Theatre. For information and reservations, call 413-243-0745.

Blue Grass

Blue Grass fans from all over the Northeast are congregating for the Berkshire Mountains Blue Grass Festival in the Ancram/Hillsdale area of New York State, just at the Massachusetts/New York State border today and Sunday.

Blue Grass music is rooted in the mountains of the rural Southeast and is an acoustic, string-band style which utilizes the five-string banjo, the fiddle and mandolin, guitar and bass, and occasionally a mouth-harp, and vocals.

A family affair, groups bring their blankets, picnic baskets, and enjoy. Camping is available.

For information, call Nancy Talbot, 617-492-0415.

Free events

Sunday, the U.S. Coast Guard Band will feature the "1812 Overture" by Tchaikowsky at 8:30 p.m. in a concert under the stars on the academy's Cadet Memorial Field. This concert will mark the Coast Guard Academy's 100th birthday.

The Overture is a tradition at the USCG summer concerts. The academy's 40mm deck guns will be fired in conjunction with the Overture.

The program will include marches and contemporary American music. In the event of rain, the concert will be held in Leamy Auditorium.

The final summer concert will be Aug. 15.

Monday, Ronald Thomas, cellist, will be featured in a solo recital in Von der Mehden Recital Hall at University of Connecticut in Storrs. The program begins at 8:15 p.m.

Musicals at Hartt

Two musical Broadway classics are being presented in repertory at Millard Auditorium, University of Hartford, West Hartford, by the Hartt-Opera Theatre Guild.

"Fiddler on the Roof" plays tonight, Thursday and Friday. "Sound of Music" plays Aug. 7 and 8. For reservations, call 243-4441. All seats reserved.

Also, Renato Bonacini will be featured with a string ensemble concert Sunday at 8 p.m. in Millard Auditorium as the final program in a summer chamber music series at the UoH. For reservations, call 243-4459.

At Tanglewood

Tonight at 8:30, Klaus Tennstedt conducts the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood in Lee, Mass., in a concert of music by Haydn and Mahler. Sunday, Colin Davis conducts an all-Sibelius program featuring Miriam Fried in Sibelius' "Violin Concerto."

Friday, Malcolm Frager, pianist, will perform works of Beethoven in a 7 p.m. prelude to the 9 p.m. concert with Colin Davis conducting an all-Beethoven program.

Saturday at 10:30 a.m., there is an open rehearsal for the weekend program which schedules Beethoven's "Missa Solemnis" and "Piano Concerto No. 3." For reservations, call 413-837-1600.

At Goodspeed

The farcical "Going Up" continues at the Goodspeed Opera House in East Haddam through Aug. 8.

A new musical and the world premier of "Annie," the story of the cartoon character Little Orphan Annie, opens Aug. 10 and plays through Sept. 26. For reservations, call 873-8668.

Eileen Atkins plays Rosalind in "As You Like It" in repertory at the American Shakespeare Theatre in Stratford with "The Crucible" and "The Winter's Tale."

Weekend

Weekend, an entertainment and television supplement, is published each Saturday by The Manchester Evening Herald, Herald Square, Manchester, Conn. 06040. Deadline for Forum of the Arts: Eight days before publication. Advertising deadline: Five days before publication.

Gene Kelly rediscovered through old movie clips

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The world has rediscovered Gene Kelly thanks to a pair of movies consisting of clips from ancient film musicals.

The older generation had forgotten how good he was. Youngsters had never seen him do his stuff on the big screen before.

But "That's Entertainment" and "That's Entertainment, Part 2" have revived the dancing man's career, bringing him legions of new fans.

Kelly's broad Irish grin reflects his feelings about his new found popularity. "A thousand letters a week have been coming in," he said.

"A lot of the mail is from kids who seem to think we made those musicals only a couple of years ago. And I'm surprised at the romantic notes I'm getting from girls who weren't even born when I made those pictures.

"The interesting thing about 'Entertainment 2' is that Fred Astaire and I did some new things as hosts of the picture. Audiences can see us then and now.

"I directed those sequences. Fred was wary about dancing again. I told him we wouldn't compete with ourselves of 20 years ago. We'd just make a few moves.

"I restricted our routines to simple steps and Fred trusted my judgment. "The acceptance of the picture has convinced me that Fred and I are a fraternity of two. We keep in close touch with one another.

"But dancing is a young man's game. You have to be an athlete and train as hard as a boxer. So I've tried to do less and less work."

Kelly's inactivity over the past four years has been voluntary.

His wife, Jeanne, died of leukemia four years ago. The tragedy overwhelmed the star who devoted himself to providing all the love and security possible for their two children, Bridget, now 12, and Tim, now 14.

He chose to sacrifice his career rather than leave his children to make movies away from home. Kelly even refused the lead role opposite Liza Minnelli in "Cabaret." He couldn't bring himself to wrench Bridget and Tim from their surroundings and pack them off to Europe with him.

"It's easier to work now because the kids are recovering from their mother's death," he said. "I went to Europe for 10 days earlier this year to promote 'Entertainment 2.' They were secure enough for me to leave them."

The youngsters, in fact, are responsible for Kelly's return to movies with a costarring role with Evel Knievel in "Viva Knievel."

"I turned the part down when my agent called and asked if I was interested," Kelly said. "I'd planned to go to Europe to do another movie.

"I told him to ask for a Steve McQueen-type salary to discourage any further offer. Then the kids heard about it.

"Tim has his own trail bike. He pleaded with me to take the picture. He said Knievel is a folk hero. Babe Ruth and Lindbergh were my heroes but I learned Knievel is the man of the hour these days.

"Bridget gasped when I told her I'd refused the part. So I changed my attitude. I sent for the script and liked it.

"I play a grease monkey pal of Knievel. Until now I've never played a real character role. I'm like the child star with a gap in his career. I don't have enough age in my face to play characters my own age. At the same time I'm too old to get the young girl in a movie.

"This picture is a lark. I don't dance. I don't shave. I don't wear makeup. And I can't get the girl. I'm having so much fun I can hardly wait to go to work in the morning."

There is a chance Kelly will star in a musical television special this year.

It will give him the opportunity to don his famed dancing clothes once again — the gray flannels, moccasins, white socks and sweater.

Medal notes Queen's Bicentennial visit

By RUSS MacKENDRICK

The Albemarle-Charlottesville Bicentennial Commission scored a real beat in getting out this medallic portrait of George Washington's second cousin seven times removed in time for the royal visit.

Stamps and coins

(To tiara-watchers: No, it seems not to be the one worn at the state dinner as covered by Time magazine).

Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II (who really is GW's second cousin, etc.) reportedly did everything better than right, such as speaking from Boston's Old State House and remarking how surprised Samuel Adams would be to see her there. She even put up with the lights going out at the dinner in Washington. (Like the time Emery Barlett tripped over the extension wire at the "Congo" Church supper, Ridlonville, Maine, some years ago. I've never forgotten).

The piece commemorates the queen's visit to Jefferson's Monticello. Note the little building at the bottom of the reverse between the dates. The contemporary heraldic design shows a striding eagle and a clawing lion separated by a branch calling for peace. On the ribbons beneath the fauna you can just make out the names of the cities on the royal tour: Washington, Boston, New York, and Philadelphia.

These medals were struck in silver and gold — all in proof. Size — one and half inches across. The sculptor — again Frank Gasparro, with one of his best.

Colorado people made a good pitch for a 100th state anniversary stamp this year but lost out to the barrage of Bicentennials which we well know. Some of the more irrepressible Coloradians contrived and produced a fairly good-looking no-value non-stamp to make their point. (Pic in Linn's, July 26, p 22). This adhesive had first-day ceremonies on the steps of the State Capitol at Denver on July 8 and a batch of a thousand covers were sold out by 5 p.m.

Actually they are ending up with more recognition than any other state because the USPS is throwing them a super-sop in the way of a souvenir card. It is the only such card ever put out by the Service as a commemorative. It goes on sale tomorrow for $1.25 at the various philatelic centers ("postiques") across the land — also can be had by mail from Washington, D.C.

A numismatic crony has been complaining that, after joining the ANA and getting his address in their journal, he has been blitzkrieged with coin lists and catalogs.

Obverse of official Queen Elizabeth II Bicentennial visit medal features contemporary portrait of Her Majesty wearing a diamond tiara, a wedding gift from her grandmother, Queen Mary. The reverse design of the Albemarle-Charlottesville Bicentennial Commission medal depicts a striding American eagle and rearing British lion. The limited edition medals, created by Frank Gasparro, chief sculptor and engraver, U.S. Mint, are being struck in gold and silver proof editions by the Medallic Art Company, Danbury, Conn.

"Well, aren't there some good deals you could pick up?"

"I wouldn't buy a coin by mail from my mother!"

A real grump, a casualty of some grading arguments.

We will soon have all three of our town's coin dealers along the main stem. Benny Gozzo is moving his Connecticut Coin and Stamp facility (and the pet shop) to the corner of Brainard and Main in a week or two.

So from the top of the streets you can stroll and browse and see what you are getting at the Conn. Valley Coin (Ed and Charlotte Blow); then Gozzo's place; and finally the Su-Deb Coin Co., next to the old State Theater (Sheldon Adler, who also has stamps).

The next Manchester Philatelic Society meeting will be at Mott's on the 10th of August. The CCCoin Club is buttoned up until Sept. 6.

Something a little different down at Clinton on Aug. 8 — the Connecticut Metal Detector Club will have a show at the Morgan High School.
