At least 60 persons drown, 250 injured

Rescuers battle mud, debris to reach flash flood victims

LOVELAND, Colo. (UPI) — Rescue teams battled through mud and debris today to reach victims of a flash flood that roared through a twisting, narrow river canyon in the Colorado Rockies and swept away hundreds of fishermen and weekend campers.

At least 60 persons drowned and 250 were injured in the disaster Sunday along the Big Thompson River, authorities said. It would take months to recover all the bodies of the victims, they said.

Larimer County Sheriff Bob Watson said 56 bodies were recovered and taken to a makeshift morgue. He said rescuers knew of additional bodies tangled in tree roots and in debris strewn along the 35-mile flood path.

Heavy rains fell overnight but tapered at dawn, allowing Watson's deputies, state patrolmen and National Guardsmen to return to the devastated canyon 45 miles northwest of Denver. Watson said rescue teams hoped to reach by midday an estimated 200-300 persons stranded along the river overnight.

A 10-foot wall of water surged down the 10,000-foot high canyon early Sunday, ripping vacation homes from foundations and flipping them from one side of the canyon to the other. Cars, trucks and trailers were smashed and tossed about like toys. The sheriff said some victims were hurled against the 60-foot sides of the steep, rocky canyon and were dismembered. The dead, taken to the morgue by National Guardsmen, ranged in age from 3 to 65, and included a state patrolman who died trying to warn campers of the flash flood.

Among the survivors was a 5-month-old boy found by searchers on a rock in the middle of the river.

"They had no idea of how he got there," a deputy sheriff said. "He might have been washed onto the rock by the water or he might have been placed there by someone who then was swept away. It's just a miracle he was there at all." Watson feared the death toll would rise because "many more bodies certainly are buried in the debris."

In a briefing to rescue teams at dawn, Watson told them to "move the bodies to high ground but don't take them out until you get the okay from the coroner."

Watson said most bodies would be removed by horseback because renewed rains in the area were expected to keep helicopters grounded. He said, however, the river level had not risen significantly from the rains.

"It may be several months before all the bodies are identified," said Dr. Pat Allen at the McKee Medical Center. "Most of the people had their clothes torn off by the water."

The corpses were fingerprinted and tagged with a white ticket giving their approximate age and sex. Guards were placed at the morgue to screen sightseers from family members trying to identify the victims.

"When a body tumbles down a river," the sheriff said, "the clothing comes off. A man can be tumbled around, lose his socks and keep his shoes on."

The first casualty identified was State Patrol Sgt. Hugh Purdy, 58, caught by floodwaters while trying to warn campers of the rising water Saturday night. Purdy's car was "washed out from under him," said Patrol Chief Wayne Keith.

President Ford was asked by Gov. Richard Lamm, Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., and Rep. James Johnson, R-Colo., for quick federal help for the area where damage to Bureau of Reclamation equipment alone was $1 million.

The flood was the nation's worst since the Grand Teton Dam in Idaho collapsed in June and the death toll was the greatest since the Rapid City, S.D., flood of June 10, 1972, which killed 237 persons.

Peck circulating petitions for registrar primary vote

Frederick E. Peck began circulating petitions this morning in his attempt to force a primary with Marion Mercer for the Republican registrar of voters post.

He must obtain signatures from five per cent —413— of the town's registered Republicans by Friday, Aug. 13.

If he succeeds in getting the necessary number of signatures, a primary will be held Tuesday, Sept. 7 from noon until 8 p.m. All registered Republicans in Manchester will be eligible to vote.

Peck, who has been Republican registrar since 1960, lost in a bid for renomination Thursday night to Mrs. Mercer. The Republican Town Committee voted 44-18 for Mrs. Mercer, but Peck did receive more than the 20 per cent vote needed to force a primary.

This year was the first time Peck has faced a challenge for the job. A third candidate, Barry W. Botticello, withdrew.

Peck said he decided to petition for a primary on Saturday, "after careful thought and only after serious talks with many Manchester Republicans."

He said he respects Mrs. Mercer, but added, "I am convinced my 16 years as registrar of voters and my six years before that as deputy registrar give me the knowledge of our party's strengths and weaknesses and what to do about them."

"I am entering the primary with the confidence that Manchester's registered Republicans know I am an experienced registrar," he said.

Peck said there is "no question" he will be able to obtain the needed number of signatures. He also feels the outcome of the primary will be in his favor. "Certainly, I'll win all the way," he said.

Mrs. Mercer said she was not surprised by Peck's decision. She does not think it will change the outcome.

"I feel I have the support of the majority of the town committee and I think I will win," she said.

Mrs. Mercer, who had the unanimous backing of the Republican executive committee and would be the town's first woman registrar, said, "I feel it is a well-known fact that Fred has not done a good job for years, and the town committee has decided a change was needed. They have been very unsatisfied with his organization and performance to encourage voters to vote Republican."

Republican Town Chairman Thomas F. Ferguson was out of town today and not available for comment on the prospects of a primary race for the registrars post.

Bus workers ratify new contract

By United Press International
Thousands of commuters in New Haven, Hartford and Stamford today rode the bus to work for the first time in months without the threat of a strike hanging over their heads.

Bus drivers and mechanics at state-owned bus lines in New Haven and Hartford Sunday joined their counterparts in Stamford in ratifying a two-year contract.

The agreement, worked out last week with the help of State Labor Commissioner Frank Santaguida, was accepted by rank-in-file members "overwhelmingly," according to union officials.

The 520 drivers and mechanics have worked without a contract since March and voted in June to authorize a strike against the Connecticut Transit Co., which serves about 85,000 riders a day.

Union officials credited Santaguida's personal role in the negotiations as mediator during the last few weeks with bringing the two sides from the brink of a strike to settlement.

Under the agreement the drivers and mechanics will get a pay increase of $70 an hour during the two-year pact.

Union members will receive hourly raises of $10 in the first six months, with an additional $20 in the second six months, $15 in the third six months and $25 in the final six months.

The workers currently make $5.30 an hour.

The contract will be retroactive to March 26.

James Brown, business agent for Local 281 in New Haven said his men could accept the offer, although it was not all that they had wanted.

"It's far from what we sought, but we can live with it," he said.

Frank Partridge, business manager for Local 421 in Hartford, said "Considering the conditions of the times economically and the state being in the fiscal bind it is, we felt we were fairly treated."

The contract also calls for an increase in pensions, two more guaranteed holidays and a drop in the retirement age from 65 to 62.

"It's an improvement, not a great one, but a stepping stone," Brown said.

The firm was called the Connecticut Co. until it was bought by the state Department of Transportation this spring.

Reagan to release names of delegates

By IRA R. ALLEN
United Press International
Ronald Reagan's camp said names of pro-Reagan delegates would be released today to prove their man was not hurt by the naming of Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., as his running mate.

Campaign aide Lyn Nofziger said in a television interview (CBS Morning News) "we have found very, very little slide in this last week away from Governor Reagan" as a result of the move. Nofziger again declared Reagan will get the GOP presidential nomination.

He said campaign manager John Sears would begin naming delegates at a news conference scheduled for 1 p.m. EDT.

Nofziger said more names of Reagan delegates would be provided in the two weeks remaining before the Republican convention opens Aug. 16 in Kansas City. Both Sears and Schweiker said Sunday that southern delegations were holding firm for Reagan.

As a result of Reagan naming Schweiker last week, Sears said Sunday on ABC's Issues and Answers, "We haven't lost any delegates. Not a one. The South has held. I think there's a very good chance you will find out tomorrow we have more delegates than we have disclosed."

A few hours later, about 25 of Virginia's delegates for Reagan unanimously passed a resolution saying they will continue to support their candidate despite the selection of Schweiker.

Program provides 119 jobs for disadvantaged youths

A federally funded program has helped find part-time summer employment for 119 economically disadvantaged Manchester youths between the ages of 14 and 21.

The "Comprehensive Youth Work Experience Program" awards the town a certain number of jobs to fill based on population and welfare figures for the town. This is the fourth summer Manchester has participated in the program.

Two people, Chuck Lexius and Gale Cain, have been hired for the summer by the Youth Services department to help coordinate the program.

Lexius said federal funds are sent to the program's local sponsor, the Connecticut Region Education Council, which then sends the necessary money to the area communities involved in the program.

About 160 Manchester youths applied for the program's 140 jobs. Since the start of the summer, 21 of the participants have dropped out.

The program does not provide for refilling of a position once a youngster quits.

The 119 youths now working through the program are employed with non-profit businesses in Manchester. They work a maximum of 25 hours per week and receive $2.31 per hour.

"You name it, we've got kids all over town," Director of Youth Services Robert J. Digan said. He said 22 of the participating youths are employed at Manchester Memorial Hospital and another 20 are working at the town's elderly housing projects. Others are working at such places as the town schools, the police department, the Red Cross, and the Lutz Junior Museum.

Jennie Talbot, an assistant in Youth Services, mentioned that there are a few girls in the program working as office help in the Municipal Building. "They are learning filing and how to operate duplicating machines. This is training you really don't get in high school."

Lexius said, "I see the kids learning to interact with other kids in a work situation. They're learning the role of employee. They seem to be adjusting quite well to working."

Digan said, "We're looking to prepare kids for the work-a-day world. We're trying to develop skills that will help the kids in later life."

An example of such skills development is an auto mechanic program that is part of the Comprehensive Youth Work Experience Program. The ten youngsters involved spend eight hours of their workweek learning about car repairs. They work 17 hours per week and are also paid for their time spent in class.

The auto work takes place at the high school and is instructed by Adrian Groot.

Six other youngsters hired through the employment program are instructors for an arts-and-crafts class for children from Rachel Road.

HARTFORD —Connecticut is gaining many more jobs than it is losing, according to state Commerce Commissioner Edward J. Stockton. He said in the fiscal year which ended June 30, the state managed to create or keep more than 10 times as many jobs as were lost because of factory closings or businesses leaving the state. About 20,400 jobs were created or retained through economic growth programs while 1,980 jobs were lost, he said.

MERIDEN —State Police detective James Darby says it is almost impossible for his present staff to do a thorough job overseeing legalized gambling in the state. The four-man unit is responsible for watchdogging 12 off-track betting parlors, two jai alai frontons and a dog track, he said.

Body not identified HARTFORD (UPI) — Police said today they had not identified the decomposed body found Saturday near the Bulkeley Bridge. They said it appeared to be a middle-aged male who had no identification.

The first 13 American dependents left Peking this morning for Tokyo and Hong Kong and another 10 were scheduled to leave later today. The remaining seven will probably leave Tuesday, according to David Dean, deputy chief of the United States Liaison Office in Peking.

Dean told UPI by telephone the liaison office staff would be reduced during the earthquake alert, which may last the month of August, but the exact number was not certain.

Chinese officials said aftershocks from last Wednesday's quake were centering closer and closer to Peking and warned the area might be hit by a new tremor at any time. Dean said Chinese authorities told diplomats a total of 110 tremors registering at least a magnitude of 4 on the Richter scale and 15 with a magnitude of 5 had occurred during the weekend at Tangshan, 106 miles southeast of Peking. He said only a few of these were felt in the capital and they were very light.

Last week's quake, which was centered near Tangshan, measured 8.2 on the Richter scale and was the strongest recorded in the world since Alaska's 1964 Good Friday earthquake, which registered 8.5. Survivors said the city of nearly 1 million was virtually destroyed.

Does television pick presidents?

The authors of a new book on television and election campaigns have some interesting observations to make on the role television plays in influencing American voters on their choice of a president.

For one thing the writers, Thomas E. Patterson and Robert D. McClure, both professors of political science at Syracuse University, contend that television, in its preoccupation with pictures, concerns itself primarily with the outward aspects of a campaign, largely ignoring basic issues which do not lend themselves to graphic presentation.

Actually, we must confess, a similar criticism could be leveled at newspapers, though to a lesser degree.

For another thing, the authors of "The Unseeing Eye," insist that television is limited in time and "all the words spoken on a network evening newscast will fit, with

Could Carter be the Great Black Hope?

WASHINGTON — Abraham Lincoln gave black people freedom. Lyndon Johnson gave them opportunity, and now Jimmy Carter may be on the verge of offering them the ultimate American experience: power.

At this late date in history, with Negroes all but free of their miserable shackles, the election of any Democratic president would likely portend the final elevation of the black leader. But a Carter administration may offer particular assurances. He has said repeatedly he would name blacks to positions they have not before held in government, and taken at his word, which he forever reminds us to violate, his options are exciting — the cabinet, maybe even the vice presidency in 1980 or '84.

Surely Carter has reason to reward the black community with the influence it has been denied in America for more than 400 years. Without its support he might have risen no higher in life than a gutter dignitary in Georgia. Blacks helped him become a governor there in 1970. They gave him credence as a "man for all the people" during the critical early periods of the past presidential primaries, and they shamed the liberal members of his party into stepping aside for his recent nomination. Now again, if the November race is close, black energy may be the element that propels Carter into the White House.

Not that the black leadership has been all that helpful all this while. Until April of this year only two prominent Negroes actively supported the smiler: Martin Luther King Sr. and Georgia Rep. Andrew Young. But neither have the leaders room to spare, on the front page of a newspaper. When a large portion of that limited number of words is devoted to campaign hijinks, the networks in effect rule out the coverage of more relevant election information."

A third conclusion, the one that holds the key, is that the public's images can not be manipulated by shallow television theatrics. "The long and short of images," say the authors, "is that voters are not fools."

The writers insist that voters judge presidential candidates by assessing where they stand politically and by evaluating their accomplishments and failures.

This assessment runs counter to the popular idea that television plays a leading role in how people decide their vote for the presidency.

We like to think the authors are right and we hope the candidates think so too.

Polls sway voters more than candidates

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The other day at a community swimming pool each timekeeper was told to quietly write his reading on the record sheet — not to voice his results out loud. Experience had demonstrated other timekeepers could be unduly influenced and some would change their times.

Surveys by political scientists seem to suggest strongly that poll results do swing votes in political races. No one knows why.

It is usually argued, with apparent little foundation, that a percentage of the voters want to be certain of going with the winner, so that their votes aren't "wasted."

If polls were reasonably accurate, and unbiased, this might not matter — or not matter much.

But there is increasing evidence that polls — including most of the better known political surveys — are not only inaccurate, except on occasion, but are subtly biased as well.

Wouldn't it be nice to have another Twilight Baseball League, like the caliber of ball played at the West Side Oval in the late 1940s and early 1950s.

Some of the finest semi-pro baseball was played there, if you had to grade the league, it wasn't far behind the "A" minor leagues. In fact, the Hartford Chiefs once found out when they took a liking from the Twi-League All-Star team. The Chiefs were in the Eastern "A" League.

The announcer once stationed himself just south of Nick's stand on the roadway; he usually had a soda case to sit on and one to which to set the microphone. Later, wires were run from Nick's stand underground to a "press row" built behind the screen near the home plate.

Earl Yost did the announcing right after the war, and I was his successor when he decided to put on the spikes and become an umpire. The league raised money to buy a

MACC news

Education Division
Few tasks with church life are as important or as difficult as those in the area of education — whether transmitting our beliefs, traditions and history to our children or the continuing task of helping each other understand these things more fully and incorporate them into our personal lives.

As important as the task may be, it is not something we are particularly well trained to do. We can profit immensely from sharing, with real ecumenical spirit our concerns, our techniques and our resources.

This is the concept behind the Education Division of MACC. The division is developing into a real forum where discussing concerns and then discussing them as impractical or encouraging and implementing projects that further the goals of the conference is being shared by representatives from about 10 out of the 15 churches who make up MACC membership.

Some of the projects we've been supportive of or involved in are:

Making good movies available to children at prices meant only to cover costs. To date we have arranged five in different parts of town. The response has been terrific.

We offer heartfelt apologies for turning some people away at the last movie — Walt Disney's "Bedknobs and Broomsticks." Watch for publicity about one tentatively planned for August.

We are trying to develop a workable list of resources — member churches have used successfully in educational programs and feel it worthwhile to share with others.

Monthly luncheons for directors of religious education from member churches were sponsored for a time.

Music directors from town churches have also met a number of times to exchange ideas and materials.

Raising children is perhaps our most important life experience for which we receive little or no formal education. P.E.T. provides training that just might help improve parenting skills.

With the use of Dr. Thomas Gordon's book "Parent Effectiveness Training," last year, four discussion groups were formed with all but one very successful.

The groups met for eight weeks to review the book, share reactions and mutually develop specific skills. Karen Prewo, a

The Andrews Sister

Maxene still busy with her first love... show biz

By BETTY RYDER

Family Travel Editor
Sitting in her dressing room while her hairdresser hovered over her, curling iron in hand, Maxene Andrews, one of the famous Andrews Sisters of the late 30s fame, talked of their fabulous career, the death of her sister, Laverne, and her plans for the future.

Appearing in "Call Me Madam" at the Coachlight Dinner Theatre in East Windsor, Maxene, now 60, is currently completing chapters for a book entitled "The Andrews Sister." It has taken me five years; now I only have two more months' work to go," she said.

Born in Minneapolis, Minn., she lived in Los Angeles for many years, and the trio's singing success took them all over the world. "We began working when we were barely in our teens, doing variety shows, church benefits, etc.," she said. "Ever since then, my mind has always been on show biz. Relaxing in a white terrycloth robe, and shielding her eyes from hair spray, Maxene introduced her hairdresser, Linda Wells of Arkansas. "She's not only my hairdresser, she's also my manager. She selects all my clothes; she's just fantastic," she said fondly.

Maxene's favorite colors are blue and white; her favorite performers are The Carpenters, Captain and Tennille, Helen Reddy and John Denver. Speaking of the good old days, when the famous sisters were at the peak of their career, she said, "We recorded some 2,000 songs, sold 75 million records, and have 19 gold records." Among their parade of hits are such numbers as "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen," "Rum and Coca Cola," "Beer Barrel Polka," "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree." "I remember 10 of the many songs we recorded. I'm lucky. But the one we always liked the best was 'Apple Blossom Time.' An attractive woman with a bright smile, Maxene said, "When Laverne died in 1967, Patty and I worked for two years after that. Later we did a Broadway show, 'Over Here,' in 1974 which was very successful. "Right now, Patty is relaxing (she lives in L.A., too). We've had a couple of offers to do shows in London, but she isn't sure she wants to. You know, after you've been in the business most of your life, you are ready to stop. As for myself, I can't stop — my mind is always on show business," she said.

I have a son and a daughter and I do this day we have never really resented it when a performance took me away. It was a sibling thing, but to this day we have never really ironed it out. "Even children must realize that a person has to do what he chooses; one day they will do the same," she said. "I've been spoiled. I had a marvelous Hungarian housekeeper. She was a wonderful cook, could do my laundry like no one else, and even helped raise my children. She's retired now and she and her husband live near me. They were almost like grandparents to my children." During her non-performing days, Maxene has raised Cocker Spaniels, boxers and Doberman pinschers. She also taught English and basic drama. When it comes to raising dogs, she warns, "If you get involved in a business — you'd better be running it yourself!"

Not into health foods, Maxene, who realizes her weight is a problem, says she recently joined Weight Watchers. "My doctor suggested I join the program and I was surprised to see all you can eat and still lose weight. When my mother died I went from 126 to 178 lbs. In just six weeks, emotional shock, my doctor said, my mother was only 51. I've had a weight problem ever since." Maxene's dad who operated a Greek restaurant, died almost a year to the day that her mom passed on. He was 60. "He always used to say that at the restaurant he worked 48 hours a day. It seemed that long to him," she said wistfully. Her advice to young aspirants longing for a theatrical career is

"Don't get into show biz unless you know it's what you really want to do. It's a lot of hard work. "When I got involved in something — I have to do it all the way. Nowadays, youngsters go through their money very quickly. You can look down a list of 'stars' of five years ago and can't find them listed any place today. "Today it's too easy to become a star but the duration of that stardom is hard to hang on to." Of her role of Mrs. Sally Adams in "Call Me Madam" for which she is receiving standing ovations, Maxene says, "It's the first show in which I've appeared where I can really be ME." The show continues through Aug. 15 at the Coachlight. Since a fire at her California home a few years ago destroyed many of her treasured albums and other memorabilia, Maxene is searching for old original albums and sheet music of the songs she and her sisters made famous. Anyone having such items may contact the theatre box office. Oddy enough, her performance in a Greek restaurant, died almost a year to the day that her mom passed on. He was 60. "He always used to say that at the restaurant he worked 48 hours a day. It seemed that long to him," she said wistfully. Her advice to young aspirants longing for a theatrical career is

Lebanese Christians to allow evacuation

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Arab mediators said today ultrarightist Christians had signed a pledge to allow evacuation Tuesday of thousands of wounded from the Tal Zaatar refugee camp. But the evacuation of a Christian politician prompted fears of fierce reprisals.

In southern Lebanon, leftist reported heavy clashes with Syrian troops advancing on their port stronghold of Sidon, 30 miles south of Beirut.

Palestinian sources said, however, a surprise cabinet switch in Beirut was a "hopeful sign" the confrontation may ease between guerrilla forces and Syria's 15,000 troops in Lebanon.

Arab League mediator Hassan Sabry El-Kholly told reporters today he had made progress in breaking a stalemate on two crucial issues — the evacuation of 4,000 wounded from the Tal Zaatar Palestinian refugee camp and the start of a truce worked out last week between Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Kholy said rightist Interior Minister Camille Chamoun, who has been holding up an evacuation by refusing to commit his "tiger" militia to a truce, had signed a pledge to observe a temporary cease-fire at Tal Zaatar Tuesday morning.

The rescue mission at the Palestinian camp, under Christian siege for 43 days, "will be carried out in collaboration with the Arab League, Red Cross and all parties concerned," Kholy said.

Despite the optimism for a break in fighting, observers feared the kidnapping of Lebanon's finance ministry director might explode the peace plans. The bullet-riddled body of Khalil Salem was found today wrapped in a blanket inside the trunk of his car, three days after the Christian politician was abducted in a leftist-controlled area of Beirut.

'Silk Along Steel' out

The story of the South Manchester Railroad, titled "Silk Along Steel," has been written by Thomas R. Lewis Jr., assistant professor of geography at Manchester Community College (MCC), and published by Popart Press in Chester for the Manchester Community College Press.

Copies of the 64-page, soft cover book are available in Manchester at Harrison's Stationers, Reed's, Weston Pharmacy and The Train Exchange.

The book is illustrated with more than 25 pictures of locomotives, railroad-related buildings, timetables, the wreck of the Railroad, titled "Silk Along Steel," "Ballet" in North Manchester, members of the Cheney family, former employees of the line, and much more. Two maps show the extent of what once was the shortest privately owned railroad in the country, and of the railroad network in Connecticut.

Lewis has previously written for The Herald some of the story of the South Manchester Railroad. One story appeared in the Sequential edition in 1973 and another more recently in The Herald's Bicentennial edition, "Happy Birthday U.S.A., June 12.

Tax deadline today

Today is the deadline for payment of town taxes, and Collector of Revenue James Turek said this morning he has a "gut feeling" tax collection this year is "a little bit behind last year." Actual figures on the total collected for the 1975-76 fiscal year will not be compiled until the middle of the month, Turek said. Last year, the town collected just under $8 million in taxes on real estate, motor vehicles, and personal property. This year, through July 15, a little more than $1.5 million in taxes had been collected. Turek said it is not unusual for the mid-July figure to be so low. "A majority of tax money comes in the later part of the month," he said. Banks are perennial near-deadline payers, he noted. The revenue office has been extremely busy the past two weeks, but Turek said he feels this year's total amount of taxes collected will fall a little short of last year's.

Reds pin loss on Jones

NEW YORK (UPI)—Despite his phenomenal success this season, Randy Jones remains a 26-year-old pitcher who still is learning. The Cincinnati Reds taught the super southpaw a valuable lesson Sunday, one Jones isn't likely to forget.

George Foster's 23rd home run snapped a 2-2 tie in the fourth inning and Doug Flynn singled home two runs in the sixth to give the Reds a 5-4 victory over San Diego and hand Jones his 11th loss against 18 victories.

The loss was the first for Jones against a Western Division club after 11 straight victories. The Reds, the NL West division-leaders, had not beaten Jones prior to Sunday's game.

Wayne Twitchell picked up his first victory of the season with relief help from Ron Schueler and Mike Schmidt blasted his 27th homer to give the Phillies their sweep of New York. In the first game, Philadelphia edged the Mets when Jay Johnstone scored all the way from first base on Gary Maddox's two-out single. In the opener, Greg Luzinski belted a grand slam homer, his fifth home run and second grand slam this season.

P&WA move to cut home prices

HARTFORD (UPI)—A survey of real estate agents shows that the impending move of 600 highly-paid United Technologies Corp. employees will mean a bonanza for persons looking for expensive homes in the Hartford area.

The survey showed the impending departure of the workers to a Florida division of Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Group could also hurt the area's construction industry, the Hartford Courant said Sunday.

Most of the workers are engineers, financial specialists or salesmen whose homes will be for sale at an average of about $60,000.

Real estate brokers said if a number of homes in the same price range are placed on the market at the same time it will cause a drop in prices.

Henri M. David, president of the J. Watson Beach Real Estate Co., said depending on location some of the homes could sell for between $80,000 to $100,000.

Richard Davis, executive vice president of the Home Builders Association of Hartford County, said the transfers in the next 18 months will "saturate" the housing market in the area.

The areas expected to be most affected are those suburbs east of the Connecticut River, including East Hartford, Manchester, Glastonbury, Ellington, and South Windsor.

The Farmington Valley area and West Hartford will feel some impact, agents say, but not as much as the areas on the eastern side of the river.

The impact on the housing market and construction industry by the transfers would be minimized if a large number of departing workers were renting housing.

League seeks I-86 delay
The state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) will conduct a hearing in Vernon Wednesday on the proposed expansion of 146 the Vernon League of Women Voters will be calling for a delay in the issuance of permits.

The hearing will be at 7 p.m. in the Middle School, Rt. 30 regarding a request of the state Department of Transportation (DOT) for a permit to construct an indirect source of air pollutants' more highway lanes.

Granting of the request would allow changes to I-86 from 3/4 miles east of exit 95 in Vernon to the Willington-Ashford town line.

In a letter to DEP, Mrs. Marilyn McGinley, director of environmental quality for the league, asked for the delay in issuance of the permit. She also called for an oral hearing "to bring to light certain problems concerning design plan as it relates to indirect sources of air pollution."

She also said the Mile Hill community parking lot which may be expanded to accommodate 375 cars from 245 will hurt the Northeast School.
