DEAR ABBY: A lady wrote to ask what she should do while dining at someone's home if the food doesn't smell right, and I couldn't believe your answer. (You told her not right, and I couldn't believe your answer. (You told her not to mention let to the hostess—just "disguise" the food on the plate, and pretend to eat it.

Abby, how could you? Don't you know that if food smells bad (especially fish), it's spoiled and therefore poisonous?

As one who has seffered from seafood poisoning, I implore you to admit that your advice was wrong. Tell people to immediately inform the hostess that the food might be inedible. It would be a kindness to the guests and certainly to the hostess.

certainly to the hostess.

If I were a hostess, I'd rather be forewarned than be responsible for poisoning my dinner guests.

DISAPPOINTED IN YOU DEAR DISAPPOINTED: Back off! You didn't read that answer in MY column. I'd have said, "Tell your hostess at once. Speaking up beats throwing up!"

DEAR ABBY: Mike and I have been going steady for nine months, and one thing has been bothering me for a long.

30 Branches
41 Masculing

Yesterday we went to the beach, and on the way home we stopped for something to eat. Mike said he was broke and saked if I would mind paying for our lunches, so I did.

After lunch we stopped to gas up his car, and when Mike was paying for the gas, I saw two $10 bills and several singles in his wallet.

This isn't the first time this has happened. He has asked me to go to a movie and then asked me to pay for the tickets. He has only himself to support, so I can't understand it. I work hard for my money and Mike knows it. He also works, but he doesn't spend any money on me unless he has I don't want to break up with him because he's wonderful in many other ways, but this one fault bothers me. Any

DEAR FEELING: If you don't want to break up with him, you'd better establish some ground rules about who pays for what.

Frankly, a man who pleads poverty so his girifriend will pick up the tab sounds like a two-bit cheapskate to me. And oskates seldom change. DEAR ABBY: I am a bachelor girl and in love for the first time in my life. The man is 29 and he's everything I've ever wanted in a husband. We met four months ago and have been together nearly every night since. Now he's talking marriage.

My birthday is coming up, and that's where my problem comes in. He doesn't know which birthday it is, and I have purposely avoided the subject.

I'll be 35 years old, but I'm sure he thinks I'm either his age or younger. Should I tell him my age? I never actually lied about it -1just never mentioned it. TO TELL OR NOT TO TELL
