State

WINSTED — Rep. John G. Groppo, D-Winsted, says colleagues have asked him to run for speakers of the House of Representatives and he is receptive to the idea. James Kennedy, D-Hartford, is the incumbent speaker.

GLASTONBURY — Former state gaming commission chairman Paul Silvergield says he hasn't received a firm offer, but wouldn't be surprised if his career in legalized gambling continues.

HARTFORD — Connecticut lawmakers are considering a definition of death that will open the way toward more organ transplants but not cause other problems.

Regional

BOSTON — The Massachusetts Senate today was to debate a bill aimed at blocking Arab boycotts of companies that are owned by Jews or that do business with Israel. The bill proposed would make it illegal for any Massachusetts company to refuse to do business with another company on the basis of race, creed, religion or national origin of product.

BOSTON — The ties between John Connally and President Nixon should be considered by President Ford before choosing the former Secretary of Treasury as running mate, according to Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson.

CRANSTON, R.I. — A Saturday night fight among inmates in the South State Wing of the Adult Correctional Institutions here started when a group of prisoners "tried to throw their weight around," according to Bradford Southworth, director. It was the second weekend of disturbances at the facility.

National

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Scientists continue to search for the first solid clue in their frustrating attempt to identify the source of the American Legion mystery illness. The total rose to 27 over the weekend.

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has acknowledged heavy water supplies by the United States probably was used for India's 1974 nuclear explosion. In a letter to Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., Kissinger said state department officials were wrong in reporting no U.S. nuclear materials were used by India for the test. Ribicoff said U.S. failure to control India's use of nuclear fuel "sets a very dangerous precedent."

STRATTON, Neb. — A Burlington Northern freight train rammed a Church of Christ bus in this southwest Nebraska community Sunday, killing nine persons, seven of them children headed for Sunday school classes. The bus failed to stop for a crossing despite its warning bells and lights, a state patrolman said.

International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Lebanese Christian forces and the Syrian government have accused Iraq of smuggling its soldiers into Lebanon in disguise to fight for the Palestinians. A Palestinian spokesman denied the charges. Sporadic mortar fire ripped through suburban Beirut Sunday.

LAHORE, Pakistan — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger concluded talks with Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto today and announced that the United States would send wheat to flood-ravaged Pakistan. The United States will provide 200,000 tons of wheat under Public Law 480 to assist Pakistan's recovery from floods affecting more than 1.7 million persons.

Region braces for hurricane

By United Press International
Hurricane Belle is blowing her way up the Atlantic coast and New Englanders were preparing today for the worst.

A hurricane warning for southeastern New England was issued today by the National Weather Service's Boston office and residents were advised to be prepared to evacuate their homes at a moments notice.

"We have hurricane warnings in effect for the whole of the southern New England area, and flash flood warnings, too," said meteorologist Harry Terbin of the National Weather Service.

"I would say right now the worst of it would be after midnight up to 7 a.m. tomorrow. It all depends on what track she takes. The highest winds are 110 miles per hour and potentially the winds could be that high when she reaches us," he said.

Heavy rains continued to drench the area as Belle accelerated up the coast from North Carolina.

New Englanders from Block Island, R.I., to the Maine coast were prepared for the storm. The weather service said people living in coastal or low-lying areas are particularly vulnerable to the storm.

"All's quiet now. There's just a little breeze. The sky is overcast, but the rain stopped just a little while ago," said Henry Hutchinson, president of the Block Island Power Co.

"We've had hurricanes before," Hutchinson said. "The only way we can prepare for hurricanes is to do our job from year to year. Some of the lines will probably come down in a high wind. We'll just put them back

"We have 90 mile an hour winds every winter. We think nothing of it. A hurricane is hardly more than that."

A spokeswoman at the Interstate Navigation Co., in New London, Conn., said the Block Island Ferry, the only daily ferry to the island will run today.

In Connecticut, Bill Huebner, director of communications for the Connecticut Construction Industries Association said workmen were already preparing for the cleanup after the storm.

"As of 7 a.m., the Connecticut Construction Industries placed on alert their equipment for use by the Office of Civil Defense Preparedness. By noon we'll have 50 bulldozers mounted on flatbed trailers for use in any area and an unknown number of cranes and such. This is our normal plan for any possible natural disaster," Huebner said. New England hasn't had a hurricane since September 1960 when hurricane Donna whipped the area. Hurricane Diane in August 1955 caused severe flooding throughout the Northeast. In August and September of 1954 Hurricanes Carol and Edna struck the area causing extensive flooding and damage.

Meteorologist Tom DeGregorio of the weather service's Boston office said earlier today that Belle poses a "serious threat."

He said while it wasn't known if the full force of the storm would hit southern New England, people "shouldn't be apathetic" about the possibility.

"They should take it very seriously," DeGregorio said. "Right now, I would say the chances are very good that parts of southern New England are going to be affected by this storm."

"It is almost certain we will get quite a lot of rain," he said.

Belle moving northward

This UPI newsmap spots Hurricane Belle off Cape Hatteras, N.C., where its high winds swept past the outer banks vacation strip off North Carolina today. Hurricane warnings were ordered for the Eastern Seaboard, including New York City. The hurricane was advancing mid morning at a rate of 20 miles per hour and is expected to turn to the north northeast by tonight.

Weather service lists hurricane precautions

BOSTON (UPI) — Because of the possible impact of Hurricane Belle on southern New England, the National Weather Service Sunday recommended persons living along coastal areas take the following special precautions:

— If your home, camp or cottage is in a low-lying area that can be swept by high tides or storm waves, make preparations now so that you will be able to leave on a moments notice to seek shelter in a safer location.

— Mobile home residents should immediately make plans to seek shelter elsewhere as these homes are vulnerable to high winds and storm tides.

— If your home is on higher ground and is reasonably sturdy, it is probably safe to remain right there. However, you should at least be considering the following precautions now while there is still time to act safely:

(A) Check your battery-powered equipment. Your transistor radio may become your only link with the world outside. Emergency cooking facilities, candles, and flashlights will be needed if utilities are interrupted.

(B) Check your supply of non-perishable food.

(C) Secure outdoor objects that might be blown away or uprooted. Porch furniture, garden tools, toys, signs and any number of harmless items become missiles of destruction in hurricane winds.

(D) Make plans to board up or otherwise protect windows with tape or shutters. Large windows may be broken by wind pressure. Wind driven debris poses the greatest threat to small windows.

(E) Plan to store fresh water in temporary containers such as jugs, cooking utensils or even a clean bathtub. The public water supply may "become" contaminated or damaged by hurricane floods.

(F) Keep your car's fuel tank as full as possible. After a hurricane, service stations are sometimes out of operation for several days due to power failure or flooding.

— If a hurricane hits, remain indoors and listen to your radio for public safety bulletins and the National Weather Service advisories.

Belle skirting the Carolinas

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (UPI) — Hurricane Belle swept past North Carolina's Outer Banks today, lashing the coast with gale force winds before heading up the eastern seaboard toward New York and New England.

At 10:45 a.m. EDT, the National Weather Service reported Belle was abreast of Cape Hatteras about 45 miles offshore. Winds were peaking at 60 miles per hour although there were estimated gusts reaching hurricane force of 74 miles per hour.

Trees and power lines were reported down, and electricity was off along much of the Outer Banks.

The Dare County sheriff's office also reported receiving a distress call via citizen's band radio from a boat in Croatan Sound between the Outer Banks and the mainland.

Radio contact was lost before deputies could determine additional information about the vessel, including its name, the number of persons on board and its condition. The Coast Guard dispatched a cutter to the scene.

Water was three feet deep over the southern tip of the Outer Banks, making North Carolina Highway 12 impassable. In Manteo on Roanoke Island near the northern tip, the streets were covered with five to seven inches of water.

The National Weather Service warned that winds and rain would maintain their strength over the Outer Banks until about 1 p.m. EDT and then gradually subside during the afternoon.

"We may even get a glimpse of blue sky before dark," said forecasters at Cape Hatteras.

But the hurricane still posed a threat to points farther north along the eastern seaboard. A hurricane warning is in effect from Cape Henlopen, Del., to the Merrimack River in Massachusetts, including Long Island Sound and New York City.

An estimated 40,000 summer campers and tourists, visiting the scenic 70-mile stretch of sand dunes at the peak of the vacation season, fled during the night, but an estimated 2,500 persons, mostly area residents, stayed behind.

Many of those who lingered were like 59-year-old Elma Wood, a waitress at a restaurant in Manteo on Roanoke Island, located between the North Carolina mainland and the Outer Banks.

"The old cowhands, they're not afraid," she said. "As far as the island is concerned, I think we're safe."

Town agency prepares for expected storm

A slow "bleeding of water" from the Risley Reservoir and a checking of sand supplies were among the steps being taken this morning by the Public Works Department in preparation for tonight's expected storm.

Frank T. Jodaitis, water and sewer administrator, said a small valve leading from the Risley Reservoir has been opened to allow a "bleeding of water" from the body. Jodaitis said National Guard troops had to be called in a few years ago to re-enforce a dam at the reservoir during a storm.

Water at the site is about five feet below the spillway level, but Jodaitis said the bleeding step will insure that no problems develop.

He also said the town is checking on available power generators should a power outage occur.

Public Works Director Jay J. Giles said the town has also checked to make sure chain saws and tree chippers are in working order. These will be needed in case tree branches and limbs are knocked down by winds.

The department is also making sure there are enough sand and bags, Giles said. These will be needed in case there are any flooding problems.

Giles said the last available report expected the storm to hit Norwich at 11:15, meaning it would be in Manchester soon after. Public works employees will either be told to report at a certain time this evening or to be on standby at home, Giles said.

He said it is hard to make too many preparations beforehand, because it is impossible to know where and how hard the storm will hit.

"Manchester's been hit by a tornado and an ice storm in the last three years," Giles said. "We felt we handled those situations adequately, and we hope we do the same this time."

Crash injuries fatal to South Windsor man

A South Windsor motorist was killed Saturday when his car went off S. Main St. and hit guard rails, trees and a utility pole.

Manchester Police said Simon J. Bosse, 18, of 186 Pine Tree Lane was dead on arrival at Manchester Memorial Hospital after the accident, which occurred a few minutes after 4 a.m.

Police said Bosse was driving south on S. Main St. and failed to negotiate a curve just south of the Manchester Country Club. He was alone in the car, police said.

Investigating is continuing. Obituary is on Page 8.

Bosse was one of four persons killed in weekend traffic accidents in Connecticut.

David G. Lenhard, 25, of Newtown was killed Sunday in a motorcycle accident on a bad curve in Newtown, authorities said.

Gregory Hartz, 18, of Trumbull was killed Saturday when the car he was driving went off a Monroe road and struck a tree, police said.

Matthew Natalie, 27, of Middletown was fatally injured in a Saturday morning three-car crash on the Silas Deane Highway in Wethersfield. Two other drivers were seriously injured and police are seeking witnesses to the accident.

Network seeks to help Manchester's runaways

An average of two Manchester teenagers a month, who either run away or are forced to leave home by their parents, find temporary homes in Network, a local emergency shelter program.

Network was formed four years ago by a Manchester Community Services Council task force to provide temporary homes for youths who have no place to go when such a situation arises.

Those under the age of 16 must have parental permission to enter a Network home. Even the state doesn't have the right to take a child away from home without parental consent except in the case of drug abuse, Jennie Talbot of the Manchester Department of Youth Services said.

Most of the young people leave home because of lack of communication or the feeling that their parents don't want them, and many times the parents have the same feeling, Mrs. Talbot said.

"We see more and more of children being forced to leave home. Sometimes a mother will say, 'Take my kid away, I can't stand it anymore.' Then sometimes there are stepparents who don't seem to understand or want to accept responsibility," she said.

A youth can only stay in a Network home for two weeks, then will have to go somewhere else, perhaps to return home or enter a foster home, if one is available. If the youth returns home, an attempt is made to continue family guidance, Mrs. Talbot said.

"Most of the kids work in so beautifully in Network homes that the Network family wonders what the problem was with the youth and his own family. Network families have discovered that their young guests are most fantastic with small children. Usually the Network parents are happy to see how well their child and the guest get along," she said.

Not every youth is accepted into the Network, and those accepted must want to be in the emergency shelter program, Mrs. Talbot said.

There is a vast need for a waiting list of families in the Network, she said. Presently, there are nine homes available and 20 are needed, "so that we don't have to call the same home over and over again. Network families may designate whether they want boy or girl guests, she said.

The Network has set up guest and host guidelines. To enter a Network home, the guest is expected to cooperate fully with the host family and the rules of the house and "any violation of house rules may result in termination of the placement."

The guest guidelines also prohibit the holding or use of drugs while in the host home, and if the host family is planning to leave the house, the guest is also expected to leave. Curfew regulations, bedtime hours and visitors' privileges will be determined by the host family. All information regarding the placement will be kept in the strictest confidence, say the guidelines.

According to the host guidelines, the host family will be expected to provide regular meals for their guest but are not responsible for providing the guest's financial needs. Hosts are also not responsible for entertaining their guests unless they desire to do so.

The greatest need for Network homes is among the 15- to 18-year-olds. From January to May, there were 10 boys and 11 girls in that age bracket who needed homes in the Network, and 7 boys and 10 girls among the 12- to 15-year-olds, Mrs. Talbot said.

"The school system is our largest source of referrals. Kids who want to run away from home have a high rate of absenteeism," she said. (The Department of Youth Services handles all truancy problems in the school system.)

"The second source is the police, and very often, parents come in and ask for help for themselves and their children. Some young people come wandering in to our office looking for help, perhaps sent by a friend," she said.

There is a great need for a family-type situation for these young people, and Mrs. Talbot said that any family interested in the Network may call her at 646-6500, and she will make an appointment to come to their home to answer any questions.

Walsh new lab technician

Kevin Walsh, a Manchester resident, is the town's new laboratory technician.

Walsh, who lives at 3 Preston Dr., began work this morning at the sewage treatment plant on Olcott St. He will work at both the sewage plant's laboratory and the town's water laboratory on Cooper Hill St. His responsibilities will include the testing of water and sludge samples.

He is a 1975 graduate from Southern Connecticut State College, where he majored in environmental biology. While in school, he worked as a volunteer with the aquaculture division of the Department of Agriculture in Milford.

Walsh is 23 years old and single. He was one of 50 applicants for the job. Laboratory Director Mary O'Geen said one of Walsh's major assets was his educational background. He has taken eight hours of courses in both microbiology and chemistry.

These totals of classroom hours meet state requirements, which are more demanding than those set by the town for the technician's job.

With this educational background, Walsh will qualify as a laboratory director after one year of on-the-job experience, Ms. O'Geen said. This means the state certification, which was given the water laboratory on July 16, will not be lost should she leave.

"That's very important to us at this point," she said.

The hiring of Walsh, the town's second lab technician, means that both the sewer and water laboratories will not have seven-day coverage. Up until now, the sewage plant had no coverage on Sundays, and the water plant had none on Saturday and Sunday.

GOP fight brews over running mate

By IRA R. ALLEN
United Press International

The Republican presidential donnybrook shifts today to Kansas City, Mo., the site of next week's convention, and now encompasses an equally contentious fight for the vice presidential nomination.

Although President Ford said last week he would ask potential running mates to keep secret the fact they were being considered, names started slipping out Sunday.

The Platform Committee gathered in Kansas City to begin deliberations, and its chairman, Gov. Robert Ray of Iowa, turned out to be one of the recipients of Ford's vice presidential questionnaire.

But he said his duties on the potentially explosive platform problem have left him no time to answer the President's inquiries. Ford also would not rule out debating Jimmy Carter, who was to spend most of today consulting with congressional and other party leaders in Washington. A Gallup poll Sunday showed 58 per cent of respondents favor televised debates. Carter and Ronald Reagan already have said they are willing to debate.

The Rules Committee also was beginning work today and faced a delicate issue over whether to force committed delegates to vote in the way they are supposed to, on the first ballot.

The UPI delegate count showed Ford with 1,120 of the 1,130 needed for the nomination and Reagan with 1,038. Another 101 were uncommitted.

Ford said in a UPI and Associated Press interview he will select a middle-of-the-roader as his running mate and is considering about 15 names.

Without saying so directly, he indicated the list includes Reagan, Rockefeller, John Connally, Ambassador Anne Armstrong, and Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee and Edward Brooke, a black, of Massachusetts.

Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson said Sunday he is on the list and "would be willing to be considered."

But it was Connally, Nixon's treasury secretary and former Democratic governor of Texas, who was at the center of the most controversy.

Camp volunteers awarded jackets

Several volunteers at Camp Kennedy were awarded T-shirts and jackets last Friday.

These receiving T-shirts were Elsie Segal, Laura Bangasser, Tami Almeida and Thomas Duff, all of Manchester, and Denise DeMartino of Bolton.

Jackets were awarded to Robert Ferguson, Barbara Slaby, Carole Schreiber, Donna Seise and Timothy Kargl, all of Manchester.

Patch Fund donations were received from the following:

Mr. and Mrs. John Ambrose Jr. of 28 Scott Dr., Vernon, $15; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Weibust of 78 Bowers St., $20; anonymous in memory of Pete and Gladys Server, $10; Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Allen of 42 Lenox St., $20; anonymous, $10.

Ice cream was donated to Camp Kennedy members by George DeCormier of 379 Porter St. and Mrs. Lillian Harvey of 23 Phillip Rd.

CATV 'Profile' features Early Learning Center

This week's "Manchester Profile" show will feature a look at the town's Early Learning Center, which will open in December.

Also included on the show will be a segment on health care in Manchester with Manchester's Ambulance Service in action, a day of patrol with Officer Phil Robertson of the Manchester Police Department, tips on tennis from area pro Steve Hodge and Laura Dunfield of the Manchester Recreation Department, and a feature on an area job bank for youth.

The show will be broadcast Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights from 6-7 p.m. on Greater Hartford CATV Channels 13 and 21.

Superb All-Star performance

Bruce Ballard, ace of the Manchester Legion, received a standing ovation when he walked off the mound after nine near-perfect three innings of work.

Two Cinderella pitchers big winners for Padres

NEW YORK (UPI) — Usually a team is fortunate to have one star emerge at a time, but the San Diego Padres are leading the National League in luck this season with two Cinderella pitchers.

Overlooked by the tremendous publicity accorded 18-6 teammate Randy Jones, rookie reliever Clarence "Buck" Metzger has been unobtrusively hovering all year among the league leaders in earned run average while going undefeated with 11 saves.

National League

Acquired by the Padres after the 1974 season along with second baseman Tito Fuentes from San Francisco for second baseman Derrel Thomas, Metzger is touted by many as a likely candidate for rookie of the year honors.

Catfish hit hard again

NEW YORK (UPI) — After Sunday's 8-5 win over the Yankees, in which his two-run homer off Catfish Hunter started the Orioles off to a four-run first inning, Reggie Jackson said: "Hunter is the most valuable pitcher in baseball. No one could trade him, he has too much ability."

Lynn's new contract highest for Red Sox

BOSTON (UPI) — Fred Lynn, Most Valuable Player in the American League last year but the target of boos this season, has signed a multiyear contract with the Boston Red Sox.

The 24-year-old outfielder ended eight months of negotiations, the longest holdout in Red Sox history, when he signed a contract at his Framingham home Sunday.

Although details of the pact were not released officially, it was said to be for five years with an escalating salary starting at $150,000 this year, $175,000 the second year, $190,000 the third year, $225,000 the fourth year and $250,000 in the last year.

Those figures would make Lynn — who played for $20,000 last year — the highest paid player in Boston Red Sox history.

Lynn was unavailable for comment but Red Sox General Manager Dick O'Connell said, "I think both sides should be satisfied. The thing to remember is that the new players' agreement (under which a player is a free agent after six seasons with a club) goes into effect at 12:01 a.m. Monday. We signed him before the deadline."

Roberts, Lemon in Hall of Fame

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — Robin Roberts, the fourth highest living pitcher of the post-1920 lively-ball era, and Bob Lemon, a seven-time 20-game winner, will be inducted into baseball's Hall of Fame today with four other stars of the past.

Roberts, who spent most of his career with the Philadelphia Phillies, and Lemon, the ace of a Cleveland Indian staff generally rated as the best of the modern era, will be enshrined along with two stars of the distant past, an umpire and a fielder for the New York Giants in the 1920s, Roger Connor, whose 131 homers from 1880 to 1897 made him the game's first "home run king," former American League umpire Cal Hubbard and Oscar Charleston, one of the legends of Negro League days of misty legend.

Being inducted along with Roberts and Lemon will be Fred Lindstrom, a fielder for the New York Yankees in the 1920s, Roger Connor, whose 131 homers from 1880 to 1897 made him the game's first "home run king," former American League umpire Cal Hubbard and Oscar Charleston, one of the legends of Negro League days of misty legend.

Bob Kuhn, the commissioner, heads the baseball royalty which will assemble on the lawn adjoining the Hall of Fame and Baseball Museum.

Roberts won 286 games during his career — a total which ranks him behind only Warren Spahn (353) and Lefty Grove and Early Wynn (each 300) in the "modern era."

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Two former American Basketball Association stars with the Kentucky Colonels have agreed to contract terms with the Buffalo Braves. John Brown, new part-owner of the Buffalo Braves, has disclosed that veterans Johnny Neumann and William (Bird) Averitt have agreed to terms with the team.

Connors plays Raul Ramirez

NORTH CONWAY, N.H. (UPI) — And now it's Jimmy Connors and his "110 per cent effort" to beat him and his record proves it. Some, including Raul Ramirez who plays him today in the finals of the $100,000 Volvo International Tennis tournament, don't quite buy the theory.

"I can't believe everyone has to play 110 per cent to beat him," Ramirez scoffed Sunday, a rest day for him thanks to the rain which followed his semifinal win Saturday over American Cliff Richey. Ramirez of Mexico said, for instance, he wasn't playing 110 per cent last December when he beat Connors in the fifth and deciding match of the North American zone finals of the Davis Cup at Mexico City.

"In 1974, nobody seemed able to beat him. But now I don't think players have to play over their heads," Ramirez suggested. But Connors, who has lost but 17 matches in 2½ years, still thinks Ramirez will need more than 100 per cent to beat him out for the $16,000 prize and $10,000 new car which goes to the Volvo winner. "If he doesn't have to play 100 per cent to beat somebody, he mustn't be that good," retorted the 23-year-old pro from Belleville, Ill. "Or if I beat him and don't have to give 100 per cent, that's not showing him much. He's better off choosing a better choice of words or learning to play better," Connors said.

Aleria wins street bid

Weather permitting, the project to widen Union St. at Rockville General Hospital is expected to start this week. Bids were opened Thursday with S. Aleria & Sons of East Hartford low bidder at $7,200, lower than the $10,000 town officials expected the project would cost.

Pound pups find good homes

South Windsor JUDY KUEHNEL South Windsor dog pound is a heck of a place to be born. But the two puppies born at the pound and reported missing last week have found a happy ending. The two four-week-old pups were discovered at the pound by Carol Kirvic, 29, who took pity on the "trembling and sick" animals. Miss Kirvic took the two puppies home. "They were really sick," said Miss Kirvic. "They were coughing and needed the care of a vet."

ZBA hears two appeals

The Zoning Board of Appeals acted on two applications last week. Despite the cold and rainy days they would like to use the rear of their property as a builder lot. However, the ZBA denied the variance because of insufficient specifications and no map of boundaries was presented.

Bicentennial parade set

Coventry Coventry will hold a town parade Oct. 9 on the 200th anniversary of the Nathan Hale Homestead, announced the Coventry Bicentennial Commission. All town groups have been asked to take part in the parade with a marching unit and/or a float. Over 100 groups were contacted. Up to last week, 32 had said they planned to take part. The parade will begin at 1 p.m. from Robertson School on Cross St. It will proceed to the homestead. Gov. Elias Grisso, a guest that day of the Bicentennial parade, will be in the parade. The parade will meet again Thursday, Aug. 19 at 8 p.m. at the 1876 building. All residents are welcome. At the last meeting, Jack Myles made a motion to thank all people who worked on the fireworks display July 2 and the artifacts display at the high school. It passed unanimously.

New law to exempt town from local zoning

Bolton An ordinance to exempt municipal property from the town zoning regulations has been drafted by Jerome Walsh, town counsel, at the request of David Dreselly, first selectman. Dreselly said a zoning problem came to light when there was a possibility the town would use the area near the school and town garage for a solid waste disposal transfer station. The ordinance will simply read all municipal property is exempt from local zoning regulations. Copies of the proposed ordinance are being sent to the Planning Commission and Zoning Commission. Dreselly hopes to present it to the town at a future date.

Area people win bonuses

East Hartford Local residents scored often in last week's state lottery. Among the 40 runner-up winners of $1,035 Aug. 5 were: Vernon Johnson of 39 Hebie Dr.; Virginia Savoy of 1282 Silver Lane; Charles Shages of 21 Leichter Dr.; and Edward Wnek of 434 Park Ave. Another $1,035 winner was Raymond Negro of 232 Hebron Rd., Bolton. These winners took part in the lottery's Miles of Money drawings. If their ticket matched the week's lucky color, they could enter this bonus lottery by filling out matching stubs and leaving them in canisters where tickets are sold.

Wynn after first win

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (UPI) — Maybe this will be Bob Wynn's week. The 36-year-old California pro has never won in six years on the Professional Golf Association tour, but has earned the best finishes of his career over the past two weeks. Today he stands tied for the lead with rookie Bob Gilder at 12-under-par when they and nine other players return to the soggy En Jo Golf Club at 9:30 a.m. to finish their rain abbreviated final rounds in the B.C. Open.

Wynn had just birdied the 16th hole to match Gilder's 13-under total and halted play. George Knapp, at 11-under, is playing in a group ahead of Wynn and Gilder, while Ed Sneed, another 11-under contender, is in the only group behind them. Jerry McGee, who stands at 10-under, is playing with Sneed and 2nd-round leader Buddy Allen. Rain had washed out Saturday's round, forcing a 36-hole wind-up on Sunday. Allen held a four-stroke lead entering the day, but Wynn took the lead when he shot a five-under-par 66, while Allen struggled to a 74 in the morning round.

Swimming class graduates

Hebron Despite the rain on Friday, 117 children graduated from Gay City's swimming program. It was sponsored by the Hebron Recreation Commission and the Red Cross. Each child received a Red Cross certificate or a certificate of achievement and progress towards passing the Red Cross beginner course. This year they also had a four-day water safety course for adults in which a 64-year-old grandmother attended. And the Hebron Ambulance crew demonstrated the back board and resuscitators and other equipment. The instructor was Barbara Schreier of Amston. Her aide was Michelle Mecteau of Hebron.

Racing license limits predicted

WETHERSFIELD (UPI) — It is doubtful there will be any more licenses issued for racing facilities with the possible exception of another track, according to the new chairman of the state gaming commission.

Batrice Kowalski also said she thought it would be doubtful Connecticut would have more than one horse racing track despite the existence of two such licenses to promoters for tracks in Middletown and Wolcott.

Mrs. Kowalski, the wife of a Wainwright police officer, was named chairman of the Commission on Special Revenue last week after having served on the nine-member panel since 1971.

She is a long-time Republican worker and member of the state's delegation to next week's Republican National Convention.

She replaced Paul Silvergeld of Glastonbury who headed the panel since its inception.

Mrs. Kowalski said she would be unable to begin construction of her track.

She said it was doubtful two tracks in the state would be financially successful.

Mrs. Kowalski said before joining the commission she had known nothing about pari-mutuel betting.

"You would have to know something about gambling, but you really don't. It's really just like any other kind of business," she said.

Mrs. Kowalski said she considered being able to work with Gov. Ella T. Grasso, who opposes most forms of legalized gambling.

Silvergeld feuded bitterly with Mrs. Grasso. "I don't gamble myself, but I feel if someone else wants to, it is better that they do it legally rather than illegally," she said.

Strict rules for concerts to be tried

HARTFORD (UPI) — City officials are hopeful their strict new rules will prevent more problems at the troublesome rock concerts, which resume tonight at Colt Park.

The rules, which take effect with tonight's Aerosmith concert, mostly seek to keep persons without tickets outside the concert area.

The concerts have been marred by violence, robberies, sexual assaults, and women's rights.

The new rules include use of undercover policemen to make drug arrests, police control of sound equipment to prevent neighborhood complaints, banning admission until two hours before showtime and sweeping arrest authority.

MCC offers two speaker series

The Summer Speakers Series sponsored by the Manchester Community College Women's Center is offering its third and fourth discussion program this week.

Tuesday, Aug. 10 at noon, the discussion will be "Women and Madness" with Ms. Sandra Stanlake. Ms. Stanlake is an assistant professor of psychology at Manchester Community College. She is also the author of "Psychology: Insights and Incentives," her second reader that will be published in August.

On Wednesday, Aug. 11, at 7:30 p.m., the discussion will be "Witches" led by Ms. Mary Ann Roy. Ms. Roy, also an MCC faculty member, is an assistant professor of history. She has led many discussion programs on Witches throughout Connecticut for historical societies and women's groups.

The MCC Women's Center Speakers Series is held in the Women's Center Trailer on the main campus. Discussion will follow each presentation and refreshments will be served. Admission is free.

For further information please call the Women's Center — 646-4900 ext. 286.
