Reagan pledges full support

Ford taps Dole for second spot

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — President Ford today selected Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., to be his vice presidential running mate.

Connecticut State Chairman Frederick K. Biebel said Ford had chosen Dole, ending days of speculation in which the name of the former Republican national chairman rarely had been mentioned among the leading candidates.

Ford made a public announcement soon after.

Earlier, he met with Ronald Reagan to discuss the vice presidency, but did not offer the defeated Californian the job.

Most prominently mentioned as Ford's choice was Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, a 50-year-old moderate and key figure in the Senate Watergate hearings, which ultimately led to Ford's succeeding Richard Nixon on Aug. 9, 1974.

In a long-promised show of unity immediately after his victory, Ford traveled to Reagan's hotel for a brief private conference and the two men then met with reporters in the former California governor's headquarters.

Reagan reaffirmed his refusal to accept the vice presidential spot on a Ford ticket, but hedged when asked if he would accept a convention draft. Tonight, on the final evening of one of the stormiest GOP conventions in years, the more than 4,500 delegates and alternates ratify his final choice and Ford, 63, accepts the nomination for election as president in his own right.

The President was nominated on a roll call vote of 1,187 to 1,070. West Virginia put Ford over the top at 1:29 a.m. EDT, after 46 minutes of balloting.

Once the roll call was completed, the weary delegates shouted their approval of a motion to give him the nomination by acclamation. The convention then adjourned until 7:30 p.m. EDT today.

"It's been long and tough, but it was great!" Ford exclaimed, accepting the congratulations of political advisers and White House staffers crowding his $350-a-day, rooftop suite at the Crown Center Hotel.

Witnessing his moment of victory on television after eight tortuous months of campaigning, the President leaned back, smiled and said: "I hope nobody demands a recount."

Reagan saw his 19-month campaign go down the drain in seclusion in his Alameda Plaza Hotel headquarters 25 blocks away.

The Reaganites' zany, colorful show of support delayed the scheduled mid-evening start of the nomination roll call for more than three hours. It was well past midnight and the end of prime television time before Ford could savor victory at last.

In Plains, Ga., before Ford's nomination, Democratic nominee Carter predicted the President will make a "formidable opponent" and that the GOP will become reunited "very quickly" after Kansas City.

But Carter expressed confidence he could sweep the South even if Ford had Baker for a running mate.

Ford's big breakthrough came when the convention Tuesday night rejected, 1,100 to 1,069 with 10 abstentions, a high-stakes Reagan bid to force the President to disclose his vice presidential preference in advance of the nomination balloting.

Gloom was evident in Southern delegations, where Reagan was especially popular, over prospects for Ford's campaign this fall.

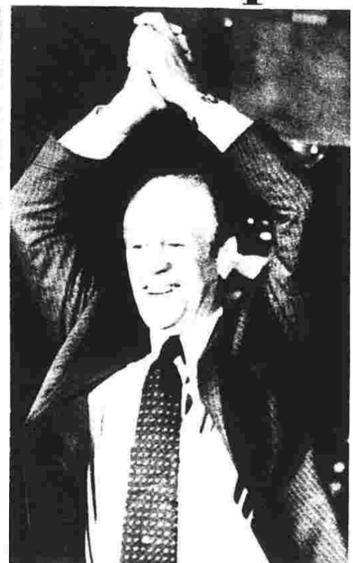

There were vague, scattered rumblings that hard-core conservatives both within and outside the Reagan camp might start a third-party movement.

But Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., their unofficial leader, said he might consider a third party alternative in the future, but that such a move at this time would only weaken the GOP and help Carter.

"I'm only interested in the two-party system," Helms said. "Having participated in the system, I think it would smack of immorality for me to pick up my marbles and go home just because I didn't get my own way."

But Richard Viguerie, a powerful fund-raiser for conservative causes and publisher of Conservative Digest in the Washington, D.C., suburbs, wasn't waiting. He and other activists were planning a meeting of conservatives in Chicago next week to create a political coalition, get on the ballots of about 40 states and kill Ford's chances of victory in November.

Viguerie, who said the Republican party "stands for nothing," was considered a likely candidate for the third party's vice presidential nomination. The party's potential presidential candidate was rumored to be former Gov. Lester Maddox of Georgia.

Connecticut goes for Ford

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Connecticut Republicans gave all 35 of their delegate votes to President Ford and along with the rest of the party today turned their attention to his selection of a running mate.

Ford, despite a seemingly never ending demonstration of enthusiasm by Reagan supporters, was nominated early today ending the tightest struggle for a major party nomination in 24 years.

Among the 19 persons seconding the Ford nomination was Rep. Ronald Sarasin of Connecticut.

Near the Connecticut delegation hung a sign urging Ford to name Sarasin as his running mate.

Connecticut state GOP chairman Frederick K. Biebel, one of Ford's floor managers, said the long demonstration for Reagan was a tactic to keep Ford's nomination off prime television time.

"It was their last hurrah, they were just venting their frustrations. The whole purpose was to keep us off prime time. They were instructed by the Reagan people, they broke the agreement," he said.

While the Reagan forces blared horns, waved signs, shook hands and hugged each other for more than an hour following the placing of his name in nomination, the Connecticut delegates look bored.

But when the Ford forces began their demonstration the state's delegates joined the singing, dancing, waving of signs and batting of beachballs in the air.

A poll of the delegation earlier in the week showed that Tennessee Sen. Howard Baker, considered the leading choice as Ford's running mate, was the top selection of the Connecticut representatives.

Also rating highly with the Connecticut delegates and though still in contention for the position were Treasury Secretary William Simon and Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson.

Biebel, who originally suggested Ford consider Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut, said he had no favorites among Ford's vice-presidential possibilities.

"Whatever the President decides is fine with me," said Biebel.

State Senate Minority Leader Lewis B. Rome of Bloomfield said he would also happily abide by Ford's choice, although he said Baker and Simon were his favorites.

"I think both of them would be excellent. I would think Simon would help the ticket in Connecticut, while Baker certainly wouldn't hurt," he said.

He said he didn't think the selection of Richardson would help the Connecticut GOP very much.

"I don't think Richardson is a very strong campaigner," he said. "His New England appeal would not dramatically help in Connecticut. It would help more than some unknown, but not dramatically."

Street project start hinges on moving of utility poles

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Some 50-70 utility poles will be a key factor in the starting date for the planned reconstruction work of W. Middle Tpk., near Matt's, and one on Hilliard St. — were delayed because of difficulties that arose during moving of poles.

The movement of the poles has to be completed before the contractor for the W. Middle Tpk.-Adams St. work, Delta Construction Co. of Fairfield, can begin the actual road work.

Some of the poles in the area will only have to be moved a few feet. Giles said this can be done by digging a trench and "pushing" the pole to the new location. Other poles will have to be moved a greater distance.

This means a new pole will be placed in the ground and lines will have to be switched from the old to the new.

Giles explained that the area poses some difficulties for both companies. The lines in the area are 23,000 volts and cannot be handled by men with gloves as some of the less-powerful ones can. The company crews will have to move the lines from the old poles to the new ones using a special tool which resembles a long stick.

To help ensure that the movement of the utility lines and poles goes smoothly, town officials will meet with representatives of the HELCO and SNET about once a week, beginning this Monday at 10 a.m.

Highway Superintendent Timothy O'Sullivan said, "It's just a matter of communication and coordination. As long as we can all communicate, we don't anticipate any problems that can't be solved within 45 minutes."

O'Sullivan and Giles said there are also some fire department alarm lines on the poles that will have to be removed. There may also be some cable TV lines that will be affected.

Reconstruction of W. Middle Tpk. will extend from New State Rd. east about 5,100 feet to a point near Bigelow Brook. On Adams St. the work will be from Center St. north for about 1,200 feet to the Backus Brook. Delta's bid for the work was $1,359,586.65, about 85 per cent of which will be paid by state and federal funding.

New Crossroads director impressed with town-drug group relationship

Stephen O'Donnell, the new director of Crossroads, the drug counseling center in Manchester, is impressed with the close relationship between the town and its drug advisory group.

O'Donnell was selected from three finalists Wednesday by the Drug Advisory Council, Judge William Fitzgerald, council chairman, said. O'Donnell succeeds James Breitenfeld who has accepted a position as director of a training program for drug counselors at Manchester Community College.

O'Donnell has several ideas he said he wants to try. He mentioned doing more work with adults in drug education. Formation of a men's group is high on his list, a group that would help men to realize "they don't have to carry the whole family burden—they can share it with their wives and their family." He cited a television commercial which shows the father doing the dishes, a teenager doing the laundry, and the mother coming home after college classes. "This is the way it really is," he said as he added that he despises the role the midday soap opera falsely portrays of women today.

He sees his role as a social worker coming into the community and helping a family system which is a necessary component to successful family life.

Brook cleaning, new drains, luck helped the town escape floods

Although no town waterways overflowed during last week's hurricane, street flooding in Manchester is not a problem of the past.

According to Public Works Director Jay J. Giles and Highway Superintendent Timothy O'Sullivan, Manchester escaped flooding problems during the storm for three reasons—a brook cleaning program, continued storm drainage installation projects, and plain old good luck.

"We were lucky with that storm," Giles said, pointing out that the 1.68 inches of rain that fell was far below the predicted 5.4 inches.

He also said the rain that did come was spread over many hours.

"If all that rain came down in a short period, we would have had problems," he said.

Thus, the town does not plan to rely on just good luck for flood prevention during future stormy periods.

A brook cleaning program was started about four months ago and finished earlier this month. Highway crews cleaned debris that had gathered underneath bridges and alongside ponds, lakes, and brooks in town.

"We did get the program completed before the storm, and it paid dividends," O'Sullivan said.

The continuing installation of storm drainage systems is probably the major factor in preventing future flooding in Manchester.

Manchester residents approved a Nov. 1974 referendum question that requested a $2 million bonding proposal to pay for 28 storm drainage projects. Six of the smaller approved projects have been completed, Giles said. These include work on Keeney, Hills, Woodland, Hilliard, Durant, and Little Six.

Both Giles and O'Sullivan agreed that these completed jobs helped prevent floods that might have occurred when the rains and winds from Hurricane Belle II hit.

Ground breaking was held Tuesday for one of the larger approved drainage projects, the $269,000 Thompson Rd. job. Work will include installation of about 2,300 feet of reinforced concrete pipe from the end of Thompson Rd. to Preston Dr. and on S. Adams St. between Thompson Rd. and Center St.

Giles expects work on Thompson Rd., which is being done by the Glenn Construction Co. of Manchester, should be completed within three or four months.

He also hopes to take bids by the end of the summer on the White Brook Phase I project, a drainage job that will be about twice the size and cost of the Thompson Rd. work.

The White Brook work will include installation of a storm drainage system starting at Union Pond and ending at the intersection of Green and Phelps Rds. Some of the installed piping will be as large as nine feet in diameter, Giles said. The estimated cost of the work is $4 million.

O'Sullivan said regular cleaning of catch basins and town streets is another step taken to help prevent flooding.

"We have cleaned every catch basin at least once, and most have been done twice, over the past six months," he said.

The town has also been notifying the state of state-owned drainage systems that are undersized or need cleaning, O'Sullivan said.

Opinion

Why not a primary?

The forthcoming primary within the Republican party for the office of registrar of voters represents, on the surface, an uncomfortable division of the party which is bound to damage it. But is it really that?

Normally the registrar is a party functionary accepted by everyone within the party and pretty much taken for granted. He is renominated more or less automatically and if there is ever a contest, it is resolved quietly and without public fanfare.

The prospect, therefore, of a primary election to decide on a party registrar strikes us, at first impression, as an awkward business from which no profit can emerge.

That may not be a true assessment, however. Why, after all, should not some of those who devote their time and energy to party affairs not question an incumbent, and why should not some others who are equally concerned about the party's welfare rise to protect the incumbent from what they regard as an unwarranted challenge?

Why, to carry the argument further, should the party members not make the choice at the polls when called on to do so?

Granted there is an expense involved, but if democracy is expensive, the alternative is more so. Granted, too, that it is "nicer" when a political party puts on the face of unanimity, but differences within American political parties as well as between them is one of the healthy facts of American political life.

Let the Republican voters go to the polls, armed with the best information they can get, and vote for whichever candidate they think is best suited to carry on the job. It is an important position, vital to the two-party system.

Packed jails now schools for felons

America's juvenile correction facilities are clogged with "status offenders" — kinds whose conduct would not be considered a crime if committed by an adult, such as skipping school, breaking curfew or running away from home.

This is the salient finding of a study of 1,837 youths in correctional programs sampled by the National Assessment of Juvenile Correction (NAJC). More than a third of the youths were status offenders, yet many of them were confined side-by-side with youths who had committed arson, assault or armed robbery.

The NAJC project, begun in 1971 under a grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration and conducted by researchers from the University of Michigan, is the first comprehensive collection of national data on juvenile correctional programs.

"The typical NAJC youth is likely to be male, nonwhite, about 16 years of age and lower class," said the report. "He is no angel — he readily admits to drinking, using drugs and skipping school, but neither is he a hardened criminal. He has probably committed a minor property crime (although if female, it was likely to status offense). Male or female, the typical youth in the study has had considered prior contact with the juvenile justice system."

Along with broad inconsistencies between and within the states in the definition and handling of juvenile offenders, the study found striking comparisons between "newcomers," who had entered a correctional program within the previous four months, and "veterans," who had been confined a year or more. Only 20 per cent of the newcomers, but 46 per cent of the veterans, said the since their arrival they had learned "many ways" to break the law.

The NAJC calls for removal of status offenders from juvenile institutions, along with major cutbacks in the numbers and sizes of closed institutions in almost every state.

"Institutions are appropriate only for those delinquents who display serious offense patterns and who appear to pose an unequivocal threat to the community," the report concludes.

"Jamming these facilities with minor offenders and problem children inevitably reduces their ability to handle the more serious offenders."

The big issue: Penny-pinching or a free lunch

KANSAS CITY — Even in this topsy-turvy year, the incongruity is extraordinary. Although the Republican Party holds the White House, Gerald Ford for the most part will campaign not on the Presidential record, but against the Democrats' record and ambitions. Oh, Ford and his stable of speakers will extol the virtues of the administration, but the emphasis will be on the past sins of Democratic

"Let's see now... the toebone's connected to the footbone..."

Compassion not GOP's strong suit

Tom Tiede

KANSAS CITY — According to Republican moderates, party fortunes began to decline with the death of Teddy Roosevelt. It slid from being the party of Lincoln, T. R. and progressivism to being the party of Calvin Coolidge, Herbert Hoover, Alf Landon, Tom Dewey, Barry Goldwater, and Richard Nixon.

One thus wonders what everyone is cheering about at this GOP convention. The slide has become an avalanche. Republicans are on the endangered species list. Four out of five Americans polled refuse to identify with the Grand Old Party. Thirty seven of the 50 states have anti-Republican administrations. The wags here believe that if something isn't done to reverse the party's decline, the next convention may easily be held in the foyer of the Ripon Society clubhouse.

In one important sense the party deserves its troubles. In its haste to become the party of responsibility and respectability it has forgotten that politics is people. Ideology has replaced human concern in the leadership, a balanced budget in Washington has become more important to the cause than a balanced diet in Appalachia. Has Jerry Ford been to Bedford Stuyvesant? Does Ronald Reagan give a thought for the millions who would die if he pushed his feud with communism to its local end? Fair or not, the party's image is one of aloof arrogance, and millions of Americans resent it.

Ironically, many of these millions are philosophically, if not formally, Republican. The nation has for 200 years been conservative and contractionist. But as New York University Prof. Irving Kristol notes, "When people are not simply assumed, 'it has to be welded together out of disparate congresses and the high price the taxpayers will pay if Jimmy Carter is elected.

Consider the preamble in the Democratic platform. It says in part, "The Democrats' platform repeats the same thing on every page — more government, more spending, more inflation. This Republican platform says exactly the opposite — less government, less spending, less inflation."

In short, Ford's job will be to scare the voters, not to care them with promises. He will denounce massive federally funded public employment programs such as the Humphrey-Hawkins bill would create. He will reject compulsory national health insurance. He will talk rather vaguely of overhauling the welfare system while opposing its federalization.

Ford has all the frightening figures to trot out. For a starter, he can warn that if all the programs on the Democratic platform were enacted, government spending would increase by $200-billion a year. He can remind the electorate that a study by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) says that the tax increases needed to support the 60 Democratic programs would require a whopping $1,000 annual increase in the average American's federal income tax.

He can and he will do all this, because the "peril" posed by the election of a Democratic President is inherent in the GOP's united and rigid stand against big government, big spending, and a swollen uncaring bureaucracy. It is a position supported almost unanimously by the party's rank and file.

Besides the Humphrey-Hawkins bill, the OMB analyzed five other major Democratic proposals: National health insurance, child development, antirecession aids and federal aid to education. It claimed that if all six were implemented, they would add about $100 billion more to the federal budget in 1978.

Today's thought

Who ever battled 1,000? Bill Boyle, as business manager of a minor league baseball club, often observed well-known baseball scouts looking for big league prospects. Watching those eagle-eyed experts separate sheep from goats made him realize he didn't know as much about baseball as he thought. A young player who seemed pretty good had weaknesses he had overlooked. The scouts knew what to look for. One boy was a fair hitter, but was too slow. Another couldn't field. Another couldn't hit. One might do all things well, but was too old. The truth became more and more apparent — there simply was no such thing as the perfect baseball player. Or even one who is nearly perfect. The best batter often struck out, and never hit safely even half the time. The best pitcher lost now and then. The history of humanity reveals a striking spiritual resemblance. Some have a greater height than others. But all have fallen short of the requirements of God. The Bible teaches that man was created in the image of God, but fell into sin. The Bible states: "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Jesus said, "To as many as received Him to them gave he the authority to become the sons of God." God in His love has spanned the chasm between Himself and man and we now have a wonderful relationship, bringing relevance and meaning to our lives. It is a calling, a dynamic force in our life that brings peace, completeness and unity. It's like the beautiful symphonic orchestra in which there are many instruments, playing different notes, but because of the maestro-directing, holding that orchestra together — it makes magnificent music. There is commitment to the maestro in discipline, and we are playing beautiful music together in every area of our lives. Rev. Milton Nilson (associate minister) Trinity Covenant Church

Police report

Harold D. Lee, 36, of 12 Roy Rd., South Windsor, and John H. Palmer III, 25, of Hartford were arrested by Manchester Police Wednesday and charged with second-degree larceny, authorities said. Police said the charges stem from the theft of a Bolton woman's automobile from the Meadows Convalescent Home. The two suspects were apprehended in Bolton by State Police and turned over to local officers. Each was held overnight in lieu of bond and was to be presented today in Common Pleas Court 12, East Hartford. A break into the Manchester Country Club's Ninth Hole Refreshment Stand off Line St. It appeared that nothing was missing. Theft of a garbage bag containing eight cartons of cigarettes from a Bolton St. address early Wednesday morning. The complainant told police he quit smoking and threw out the cigarettes but when he looked for them later, the bag was gone. No other garbage on the street was disturbed, police said. A report by The Manchester Evening Herald that about $175 in cash had been stolen from newspaper racks in several Manchester locations. The Herald reported 18 racks had been broken and 5 were missing.

Area police

BOLTON Larry K. Landrie, 20, of 2 West Middle Tpk., Manchester, was charged early this morning with exceeding the posted speed limit after a one-car accident on Rt. 85. Police said Landrie said he observed headlights coming toward him in his lane and when he moved to avoid hitting the other car he lost control, went off the road, spun around, rolled over and then struck a utility pole. Police said no injuries were reported. No court date was given. YERKON Robert Smith, 36, of 48 Grove St., Rockville, was charged Wednesday on a warrant charging him with two counts of issuing a bad check on complainants made by Wejo House of Flowers and the Casa Nova Restaurant, both of Vernon. He was released on a $150 non-surety bond for appearance in court in Rockville Sept. 15.

No progress reported in talks to settle Meadows dispute

No progress was made Wednesday afternoon during a three-hour meeting of nursing home officials, the union and a federal mediator in an effort to end a two-month contract dispute and avoid a strike at The Meadows. Spokesmen for both sides agreed there has been no progress and both said there will be another meeting of the same group in two or three weeks. Don Corriveau, assistant vice-president in charge of operations at Geri-Care, the nursing home chain of which The Meadows is a member, said that although the union maintains will agree to binding arbitration, Geri-Care will not accept it. "We cannot put the future of our patients and our business in the hands of a third party," Corriveau said. He said if the state would grant more money to the nursing homes, The Meadows and other facilities like it would not be in the financial difficulty they are in. He said he hoped there might be some change in the state's attitude toward improving financing of nursing homes before the next meeting with the federal mediator and the union. Wednesday's meeting was the first negotiating meeting since July 30 when the convalescent home and the union reached a deadlock in contract talks and a federal mediator was requested to aid in the negotiations. The union has said repeatedly that it wants to avoid a strike. About 250 nurses aides, dietary workers, laundry and maintenance employees are affected by the dispute at the 518-bed nursing home. Union officials could not be reached this morning for comment.

Bankers Trust reported experiencing difficulties

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Reserve Board said today Bankers Trust New York Corp., the nation's seventh largest banking organization, "has been experiencing financial difficulties." (Bankers Trust's) resources should be directed toward developing and maintaining strong and efficient operations within its existing structure," the board said. The Federal Reserve Board is one of three federal agencies that regulate the banking industry. The board expressed the view in denying the holding company's application to take control of the troubled First National Bank of Mexico, a small institution in suburban Syracuse, N.Y. The board said "information on the record indicates that (Bankers Trust) has been experiencing financial difficulties that have detracted from its overall financial condition and lessened its ability to serve as a source of strength for its subsidiaries." First National with assets of $9.8 million is only the 11th largest bank in the Syracuse area. Acquisition by Bankers Trust would have increased the holding company's share of total commercial bank deposits by less than one-one hundredth of one per cent. Under normal circumstances, approval of the takeover is routine. But the board said the

Tass critical of GOP platform

By United Press International The Soviet Union said Thursday President Ford's nomination marks a rejection of an "ultra-reactionary course" by the Republican Party. The official Tass news agency, however, also criticized Ford's supporters for allowing concessions to Ronald Reagan in the Republican Party platform. In London, a Foreign Office spokesman said the British government would have no immediate comment since it considers Ford's nomination at the Republican convention an internal U.S. affair. The results of the voting are assessed here as rejection of the ultra-reactionary course in domestic and foreign policy which was upheld by the former governor of California," Tass said in a report from Kansas City. "Reagan and his supporters attacked the policy of the relaxation of tensions in relations with the Soviet Union and called for an unrestrained arms race."

Reagan and his supporters attacked the policy of the relaxation of tensions in relations with the Soviet Union and called for an unrestrained arms race. Tass said Ford's supporters, in the interests of party unity, made concessions to Reagan forces, especially in the amendment hampering Soviet-American relations that was adopted on the insistence of Reagan's supporters. The agency quoted Secretary of State Henry

Csonka out
PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y. (UPI) — Fullback Larry Csonka of the New York Giants, who sprained his neck in a preseason game with Houston last week, jammed it again in a workout Wednesday and is not expected to play against the defending champion Pittsburgh Steelers this weekend.

Doug Kotar, the Giants' other starting running back, also is listed as doubtful for the Steelers' game because of a groin injury.

Gordon Bell, a rookie running back, probably will start in Kotar's spot. Running back Steve Crosby also is expected to see action against Pittsburgh.

Undecided
FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) — Head Coach John Hubston says he has not yet decided who will quarterback the Denver Broncos in Saturday's preseason game with the Seattle Seahawks in Denver.

All four Denver quarterbacks — Steve Ramsey, John Huftagel, Norris Weese and Craig Penrose — shared the duties in practice Wednesday before the Broncos left Fort Collins for their Denver headquarters.

Penn State's Joe Paterno different kind of grid coach

By MILT RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — On Sunday, Joe Paterno will gather his Penn State players around him in the locker room and talk to them for maybe an hour.

It won't be one of those rah-rah speeches. That isn't Joe Paterno's style.

More likely he'll start by saying the next few weeks won't be easy. He'll be rough, but that he and his assistant coaches will try to judge everyone fairly and underestimate no one. Joe Paterno will tell his players they must have people's respect not only as athletes but as human beings, and that two of the most important elements it takes for a good football team are camaraderie and love.

That's right, Joe. The same thing the late Vince Lombardi talked about whenever you'd ask him what was it that made his Green Bay teams so special.

Where Paterno differs from Lombardi is in his approach to winning. It isn't the last word with Paterno, although he wants to win, too. Some doubt exists as to whether Lombardi originated the phrase "winning is everything," but there's no doubt he firmly believed in it. Paterno does not. At least not to that degree.

him, he says not very much, and the way he says you know he's not trying to be blasé or anything like that, he's only saying what he feels.

Wouldn't he care to surpass Knute Rockne's record some day, leave the game when he's all finished with the best record of any college coach who has ever been in it?

"That would be something," agrees Paterno. "but it isn't the most important thing. I have five children, all under 13 and God has been good to us. They are all fine, healthy children. If I can come out of all this a good father and a decent coach, that will mean more to me than anything else."

One of the things about Joe Paterno that takes him out of the common mold of most coaches is his readiness to acknowledge there is another world outside college football. And Joe Paterno even can laugh at himself more easily than most coaches.

He likes to tell a story of an episode a few years ago involving two of his players, Bruce Bannon, a senior and All-American defensive end, and Greg Murphy, a sophomore from Brooklyn playing behind Bannon. The New England Patriots of the National Football League were after Paterno at the time, dangling a six-figure offer and hoping to sweet talk him into coming with them.

"Someone asked Murph whether he thought I'd leave," Joe Paterno says, laughing. "and he said, 'I don't care what Coach Paterno does, I'm in the mood of most coaches is his readiness to acknowledge there is another world outside college football. And Joe Paterno even can laugh at himself more easily than most coaches.'

Two share lead into final round

ELLINGTON (UPI) — Leslie Shannon and Lida Kinnicut are co-leaders today entering the third round of the 11th annual Connecticut State Women's Amateur Golf Championship.

Kinnicut of the Hartford Golf Club and Shannon of New Haven Country Club each had scores of 155 Wednesday, outpacing Marcia Dolan of Ridgefield Country Club, Danbury, who scored 156.

Defending champion Gail Appel from Avon Country Club scored 186.

In third place at 181 was Rita Comstock from Blackhall Country Club in Old Lyme, followed by Barbara Young from Aspetuck Valley Country Club in Weston with 184 and Jan Vanmunching of Sterling Farms, Stamford, at 186.

Nancy Narkon, club champ at Manchester, was at 187 while Ellington Ridge Country Club champion Wendy Ehrlich was two strokes

Moriarty's eliminated

David's with a 4-0 victory over Crispino's last night at Nike Field remained the only unbeaten club in the double elimination Feline Football League.

In the other tilt, Scrusse Faint came up with a ninth-inning run to eliminate Moriarty Bros., 6-5. Scrusse will oppose Crispino's tonight at 7:30 at Nike with the loser sent to the sideline and the other moving on against David's.

Kate Graham hurled a five-hitter to lead David's to its victory. She was supported by fine defensive work by American League: Fidyeh, Det 1.97; Travers, Mil 2.35; Garland, Balt 2.56; Blue, Oak 2.70; Palmer, Balt 2.73.

David's did its scoring in the first three innings.

Cathy Keegan's two-out single in the ninth plated the winning run for Scrusse. Joan Halloran had three hits and Patty Maneggia and Roxanne Scrusse two apiece for the winners.

Tracy Culbertson had three safeties and Kathy McCormell and Linda Chapman two each for Moriarty's. Scrusse scored two runs in the first and three in the sixth before getting the winner while Moriarty's got one run in the second inning and two in each of the fifth and sixth frames.

Gardening

By Frank Atwood

Mrs. Anthony (Alice) Evans thought I might like to see her lipstick plant, and I have never seen a nicer one. The vines drop four feet from a hanging basket and it has many clusters of the bright red tubular flowers that give the plant its name.

It is a Gesneriad, which some people have found difficult to grow, but Mrs. Evans says all one needs to do for the plant is "watch it and take care of it." Her plant was started from a slip cut from a plant in Pennsylvania and given to her by a friend several years ago.

It stays in the house but gets sunlight from a living room window and this summer it has had more blooms than ever before. They grow in clusters up and down the vines. Woodland Gardens helped me find the botanical name for it, Aeschynanthus. By comparison with pictures in a book of exotic plants, I believe the species name is Jobbianus. It is called in the book the "lipstick vine."

Most of the Gesneriads come from tropical areas and this one originated somewhere in Asia. African violets are members of the same plant family and all these plants do well at temperatures which people find comfortable in the house, 68 to 72 degrees.

Mrs. Evans has a Christmas cactus, now set outdoors, which she says will start to bloom in September.

Another plant which she calls an Easter cactus, bloomed off schedule also. It had 47 blossoms in July.

Husband retired
Mrs. Evans has been retired three years after leaving a tractor trailer truck for 28 years and then pumping gas at a filling station another 18 years. He thought she retired that he would find little to do but he has kept busy.

This year he has built a small greenhouse of window sash which he expects to use in early spring for starting seeds. He'll count on the warmth of the spring sunshine to give his seedlings a quick start.

One reason, he says, for the weedless garden that I noted is the lawn clippings which he has put between the rows of vegetables. They prevent the weeds from growing and provide dampness for the roots of the vegetables.

He has trained his cucumbers to grow on four-foot wire fence and they have borne an excellent crop. The cucumbers, he points out, are green "all around" instead of white on one side which would lie on the ground if the vines were not trained up. Mrs. Evans has made 43 quarts of cucumber pickles.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans have a married daughter with two children in Bridgeport and a married son with three children in California. They will visit the California family this coming winter.

Otherwise, in winter weather, Mr. Evans finds uses for carpenter tools and a paintbrush. In the summer he has all he wants to do outdoors. His garden has produced onions, carrots, green and yellow summer squash, cabbages and peppers are maturing. In July they had a splendid crop of red raspberries, of a kind that produces fine large berries.

Celery is being blanched between beds, set on edge and held by stakes, to exclude the light and turn the green stalks to white.

CPEC says economic downturn could wipe out state surplus

HARTFORD (UPI) — A government watchdog group warned Wednesday a projected $25 million state surplus could vanish swiftly with a downturn of the economy.

The Connecticut Public Expenditure Control Act also charged a series of bookkeeping changes meant to generate $50 million in one-time revenues this fiscal year "merely postpone the evil day."

The CPEC, which is primarily business-funded, said because sure state is now spending at the rate of $5 million a day, financial stability should be achieved only through reduced government spending.

The group said hopes he state can hang on to the $25 million surplus achieved last fiscal year rested on a perhaps unrealistically high forecast of revenues this year, which started July 1.

"If the present economic upturn should falter in the months ahead, tax collections will lag behind budget estimates and the anticipated surplus may never occur," the group said.

Although the $25 million was left over from the fiscal year ending last June 30, under state law it cannot be officially counted as a surplus until July 1, 1977.

The CPEC said the bookkeeping changes used to generate extra revenues when the state was in financial straits earlier this year were improper, and the correct solution should have been reduced spending or higher taxes.

"The questionable accounting procedures merely postpone the evil day and create a potential budget gap of some $30 million to $70 million between revenues and expenditures for the 1978 budget," it said.

Gov. Grasso to seek aid for Mansfield workers

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso says he will sponsor a bill to provide special salary and sick leave benefits to five state employees stricken by hepatitis at the Mansfield Training School.

Mrs. Grasso said Wednesday she will submit the bill to the 1977 session of the legislature to give the staffers benefits for which they do not qualify under existing workmen's compensation regulations.

An outbreak two months ago of the infectious disease at the Mansfield school for mentally handicapped persons affected 45 persons, including five staffers and 40 trainees.

Mrs. Grasso has been trying for weeks to find ways of repaying the staffers for the salaries they lost, but the state attorney general's office has ruled there was no legal way that could be done.

Mrs. Grasso's proposal was expected to be in the form of a "special act," a bill which affects only a specific number of persons in a special case, and can not be applied to any other cases.

The outbreak two months ago of the infectious disease at the Mansfield school for mentally handicapped persons affected 45 persons, including five staffers and 40 trainees.

Dear Abby - DEAR ABBY: I'm married to a very intelligent, informed and well-read man.

Dear Abby - DEAR ABBY: You probably can't. A lively political debate can be stimulating, informative and fun.

Dear Abby - DEAR ABBY: My son-in-law thinks it's great fun to trip his little 3-year-old son when the child walks past him.

Dear Abby - DEAR ABBY: I've been asked for my advice, so I won't offer any. But if you want to know whose side I'm on, it's yours.

Dear Abby - DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are going to celebrate our 25th wedding anniversary soon.

Dear Abby - DEAR ABBY: We haven't heard from the bride yet, but the bride wasn't able to get into her wedding gown.

Dear Abby - DEAR ABBY: What the gown and veil for the first dance, then remove the veil and wear the gown for the rest of the evening?

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Guard against impulsive decisions today. They could be your undoing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Jumping to conclusions in commercial matters could be disastrous today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you apply yourself today you could transform situations of small promise into something personally advantageous.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) When confronted by change today, you'll find it will be the best you can think of.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22) Even though you will play the major role in something today, take the time to look better if you can.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Put your clever mind to work today. Develop new procedures instead of adhering to worn-out routines.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Lady Luck may take a hand today if she sees you're putting forth your best efforts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You can extract yourself from something that's been bothering you if you've the situation from a fresh angle.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) A profitable opportunity may suddenly present itself today. It will be the type that calls for a last decision.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll reach those who really mean something to you by being generous today. Be a giver, not a taker.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Now will be an excellent time to make a new start. You should be able to catch up on many small, neglected chores.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Don't wait for friends to call you. Be the one who calls. Make the initiative. Make plans that include them.

YOUR BIRTHDAY Aug. 20, 1976

Some unusual, rewarding changes are in store for you this year. Conditions will change swiftly to be ready to move when opportunity beckons.

MHA meeting rescheduled

Lacking a quorum at its regularly scheduled meeting Wednesday night, the Manchester Housing Authority rescheduled its session for Friday.

Aug. 27
MHA Chairman Pascal Mastrangelo, one of two members attending Wednesday night's meeting, said the special meeting will be conducted at 7:30 p.m. at 24 Bluefield Dr.
The other member attending Wednesday night was Vice Chairman Joseph Daniviu. The other three MHA members were unable to attend.

Atty. Hillary J. Gallagher has been named campaign manager for Walter H. Joyner, Republican candidate for the 12th Assembly District seat.
Gallagher was a member of the town's Board of Directors from 1973-1975. He ran for state assembly in 1972 and lost a close race to Francis J. Mahoney, present representative from the 12th District.
He is a partner in the law firm of Man charged with murder

NORWALK (UPI) — A Norwalk man was arrested and charged with murder in the shotgun slaying of Howard Veals, 28, Wednesday night. Police said Veals was shot on Grove Street in South Norwalk about 9 p.m. He was pronounced dead at Norwalk Hospital.

A short time later police arrested Hazel Bookhard, 31, and confiscated a shotgun found in his car. He was held in $100,000 bond. Police said the shooting stemmed from an argument between the two men.

Fewer mosquitos

HARTFORD (UPI) — Dry weather this spring and summer is credited with helping to reduce the number of mosquitos around Connecticut this year, a state health official says.
Julius Elston, head of the mosquito control section, said "a low ground level" means mosquitos had fewer opportunities to breed this year.
