Independents to seek equal time

Presidential debates clear first obstacle

By LEWIS J. LORD

The Federal Election Commission has authorized the League of Women Voters to sponsor the proposed presidential campaign debates, which Jimmy Carter predicts will start about the third week in September.

The six-member FEC unanimously agreed Monday that the League's Voter Education Fund may sponsor and raise money for the nationally televised debates, which are expected to cost $150,000 each. Carter said his aides have reached a tentative agreement with Ford's camp to hold three 75-minute debates starting shortly after mid-September. The White House would only say that progress was being made.

One remaining question is the role of independent candidates like conservative Lester Maddox and liberal Eugene McCarthy. Both have indicated they will go to court if necessary to force the networks to give them equal time with Carter and Ford.

Ford spent "his first full day in Washington Monday since winning the GOP nomination, while Carter wooed Jewish and black audiences in Atlanta. Carter beaded north today to see labor and Catholic groups in Washington and an Italian-American audience in New York. Carter's voice broke with emotion in Atlanta Monday night when he told a $100-a-plate dinner raising money for the Voter Education Project that he will push for automatic voter registration.

"Whether I'm elected or not, I'm going to work hard to see that we have a bill passed in Washington—a very simple bill—that says when somebody is 18 years old and a citizen of the United States and they're registered to vote," Carter said.

This was a dream of the late Martin Luther King Jr., whose widow and father attended the banquet.

Carter told a conference of Jewish leaders in Atlanta he is committed to keeping Israel strong.

"This is not just a political statement," Carter said. "As a Christian myself, I think the formation of Israel, the founding of that nation, is a fulfillment of a Biblical prophecy."

"He would insist, he said, that Arab nations recognize Israel's "right to exist in peace" and acknowledge that "the Israelis didn't cause the Palestinians' problems."

Ford is sending to Congress his proposal to double the national park system. Congressional sources indicated it had virtually no chance of passage before the November election, but Ford is expected to make it a campaign issue.

Interior Secretary Thomas Kleppe challenged a claim by Carter's camp that Ford's parks proposal is a "grandstand proposal."

Kleppe termed the Ford proposal "one of the most important conservation and recreation initiatives since the national park concept was devised 104 years ago."

Atomic plant explosion contaminates 10 workers

RICHLAND, Wash. (UPI) — Two of 10 workers contaminated by a radioactive substance in a Hanford Atomic Reactor explosion were held in a decontamination area today for continued cleansing and internal examination.

The other eight were cleaned Monday immediately after the explosion blew out a protective Plexiglas panel used to separate radioactive americium from spent reactor fuel. They were sent home.

The two held overnight had minute particles of americium lodged in their pores. Hal Lindberg of the Atlantic Richfield Hanford Co., operator of the plant, said they needed more scrubbing with abrasive material or chemicals.

All external contamination must be removed before the two can be measured for internal radioactivity. Exposure to americium is hazardous only if significant amounts are inhaled into the body, as through breathing.

Lindberg also said the only radioactive substance which may have left the plant would be minute amounts of americium on the clothing of the workers. The plant itself will remain closed until it can be decontaminated. The nearest reactor was 12 miles away.

David R. Allen, assistant professor of pharmaceutical sciences and radiology at the University of Washington, said danger to the workers would depend on whether they breathed in any significant amount of americium.

Gene L. Woodruff, director of the University of Washington's nuclear reactor, said, "I would be surprised under the circumstances if they (the workers) were exposed to much or ingested significant quantities of americium."

Volcano blast may signal beginning of eruption

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (UPI) — Volcano experts say the latest explosion of La Soufriere could signal the beginning of its long-awaited major eruption. Scientists injured by the blast (by rocks and debris say they were lucky to be alive.

The explosion Monday — the third in two months — sprayed white-hot rocks and volcanic ash 300 feet into the air, trapping five scientists on the slopes of the mountain in a rain of mud and debris.

"We were right up close to the crater when suddenly we saw a spot of ash and rocks ripping up through the ground," volcanologist Haroun Tazieff told reporters. "I thought I was going to die. It's a miracle we're still alive."

Tazieff and four other members of his 12-man team of scientists were hit in the legs and back by flying rocks. Three other scientists trapped in mudslides near the summit were rescued by helicopter.

"I've been bombarded by volcanoes before, but never like that," Tazieff said. "If it weren't for the helicopter, I'd be a dead man."

Tazieff said he planned to return to the summit today.

The explosion, accompanied by 22 minutes of earth tremors, ripped open a new crevasse on the upper slopes of La Soufriere at mid-morning and sent a shock registering 4.5 on the open-ended Richter scale rumbling across the island.

Some scientists disagreed over whether the blast was a prelude to a major eruption, although French experts said it could be the last preliminary blast.

School lunch prices to stay the same

By DOUG BEVINS
 Herald Reporter

The cafeteria program in Manchester schools ended the last school year in the black, and there's no need to increase lunch prices for students, School Supt. James Kennedy said Monday night.

Kennedy said the 1975-1976 cafeteria operation showed a profit of about $5,800, depending on receipt of a federal reimbursement for certain commodities. The final profit could change as much as $1,000.

Although no price increase is needed for the regular lunch program, Kennedy said administrators will make minor adjustments in the cost of a la carte lunches at the high school and the cost of lunches for staff members.

Kennedy said increases in the minimum wage laws will mean increased cafeteria operating costs this year — about $8,000 more — but he said officials think the old lunch prices will be enough.

"If we raise the prices there would be a decrease in sales," Kennedy said, "and we want to maintain the volume."

He is hopeful that we'll scrape by at the skin of our teeth," Kennedy said, recommending that the school board consider a price change for 1977-1978.

An increase might be needed by then, he said, to cover costs of replacing major kitchen equipment. The school lunch price has been steady for about two years, and increased operating costs have made it impossible to buy new equipment.

The Manchester school cafeteria program, a half-million-dollar-a-year operation, serves about 3,300 students daily. The program is nearly self-sustaining, except for administrative salaries.

In cafeteria-related business Monday night, the Board of Education authorized administrators to participate in state lunch reimbursement programs.

The board also adopted a standard policy statement of free and reduced price lunches, available to children whose families are within income limits set by state and federal agencies. Details of the income limits will be published by The Herald Wednesday.

act, they both feel the board will approve placing the matter on the Nov. 2 ballot.

One board member who is not so sure the board will take such action is Jack Goldberg.

"I don't see any rush to put it on the ballot," he said.

Directors have mixed feelings on development act proposal

By GREG PEARSON

Herald Reporter

Members of the town's Board of Directors have mixed feelings about the City and Town Development Act, which will be discussed at Thursday's public hearing in the Municipal Building's Hearing Room at 8 p.m.

The act, passed Aug. 8, 1975 during a special session of the state legislature, was developed to help Connecticut cities and towns attract industry. The act, which must be passed by a town referendum before it takes effect, grants broad borrowing powers to municipalities and allows those communities to offer special tax abatements to help interest business.

The board will vote Thursday on whether to question about adoption of the act should be placed on the Nov. 2 ballot.

Such a vote must occur 60 days before the referendum occurs. Thursday, Sept. 2, the night of the hearing, is exactly 60 days before Election Day.

"I have mixed emotions about the act," Vivian Ferguson, board member, said. "You can get awfully tied up in red tape and can lose the autonomy of your town by getting too involved in the City and Town Development Act."

After Peter Kelly, a Hartford attorney, spoke in favor of the act at a January board meeting, Ferguson requested that State Rep. Russell Post, one of the leading critics of the act, also speak to the directors. Post spoke to the board before their regularly scheduled July meeting.

"I think you have to hear the other side," she said in explaining her reason for asking that Post appear.

Board member Carl Zinsser said he has "some misgivings" about the act. While he feels it would have some benefits for Manchester, he also said, "In the act, there is just too much control taken out of the hands of the people and given to the so-called experts."

He said that people would not yet be able to vote on the act, but that redevelopment took place under the act.

School integration great in Milwaukee

By JOHN LESAR
United Press International

Milwaukee officials proclaimed a "great day" Monday — the first voluntary integration of schools.

Officials in Dayton, Ohio, and Louisville helped for peace in court-ordered busing programs later this week.

"It was a great day," Milwaukee School Board President Evelyn Pfeiffer said Monday as voluntary transfers put the city's schools in compliance with a federal judge's order. "We are the first in the nation to have a voluntary integration program."

None of the schools had opened, but since the transfers were all voluntary, no objections were anticipated when schools open next week.

A federal judge ordered at least one-third of the schools be desegregated by the opening of this year. Officials noted that transfers as of Monday showed one more school than required had been integrated and hoped even more would be in compliance before schools officially open Sept. 7.

All Milwaukee schools must be desegregated in two years.

Assisted by parent groups and community leaders, school officials drafted the court-ordered voluntary integration plan that permitted voluntary transfers of students to achieve racial balance. The state legislature authorized funds to transport students.

Officials noted that most of the transfers involved blacks moving from central city schools to outlying and suburban schools.

In Dayton and Louisville, the integration programs are not voluntary but antibusing violence could be avoided.

Some 13,200 of Dayton's 41,000 students will be bused as the new school year opens

Staggered school opening times most drastic change this year

The most drastic change in Manchester public school operation this year will be shifts in school opening times, School Supt. James Kennedy told the Board of Education Monday night.

Reporting on back-to-school preparations, Kennedy said the staggering of school hours will mean later starting times for junior high schools and some changes for most elementary schools. The exact schedule will be determined this week, schools open Sept. 8.

For Manchester school buses published by The Herald last Thursday, and he said school administrators are receiving the usual number of inquiries and requests for changes from parents.

Other change which may affect local schools, Kennedy said, was the summer's relocation of many United Technologies Corp. employees after the East Hartford-based firm reorganized its corporate structure.

"We'll be watching enrollment closely to determine the impact of the relocations," Kennedy said. The UTC shifts could mean a further drop in public school enrollment, which had been forecast as 9,690 for 1976-1977. Enrollment in 1975-1976 totaled 9,827.

In other business Monday night, the Board of Education:

- Accepted, with regret, the resignation of school board member Elinor Hashim, who has moved to Gastonbury.
- Voted approval for several personal actions: Five teacher resignations, two leaves of absence and six appointments.

There will be five fewer school buses running this year, and the remaining 46 vehicles will make more trips per vehicle than in the past.

Tentative plans for school opening times call for opening the junior high schools about 20 minutes later than in the past, and shifts in elementary school opening times by as much as 15 minutes, Kennedy said. No school will open later than 9 a. m., he said.

Inspection firm grows

Building Inspection Services Inc. of Manchester has added several building inspectors throughout Connecticut to its staff to allow the firm to inspect homes anywhere in the state, Ernest McNeill, company president, announced.

McNeill, formerly employed by the Town of Manchester Building Department, said his firm's expansion and a move to 24-hour service was prompted by demands of home buyers. Many sales agreements require inspections within a few days, he said.

All of the firm's inspectors are certified building officials by the state Public Works Department, McNeill said.

McNeill also announced that the firm now has facilities for testing well water in rural communities.

Quality control course

New England businessmen and industrialists can learn the fundamentals of quality control in a course which will be offered at West Hartford this fall at the University of Connecticut.

"Quality Control Management" is a 10-session course emphasizing various aspects of the management of quality, from marketing considerations through the "life cycle" of the product.

The course is intended to provide students with some of the "tools" of quality control and to define the function of quality control as it relates to the entire business or industrial organization.

Classes will meet Tuesdays from 7 to 9:15 p. m., starting Sept. 21, at the UConn Greater Hartford Campus, 1800 Asylum Ave., West Hartford.

Registration and fee information may be obtained by contacting the Office of Non-Credit Extension, Box U-560, University of Connecticut, Storrs, Conn. 06268.

Opens office

Leonard Jacobs has opened an office for the general practice of law at the Vernon Professional Building, Rt. 30, Vernon.

Jacobs, who is a partner in the law firm of Sitt, Jacobs, Sullivan & Jacobs, P.C., is a graduate of the University of Connecticut Law School and received a masters of law degree from Boston University.

He is a member of the Connecticut Bar Association and the American Bar Association.

Business

Mancheater Junior Women's Club will have an informal strawberry shortcake social Wednesday at 7:30 a. m. for prospective members at the home of Mrs. Laura Bottiller, 34 Lewis St.

Women interested in attending the social should call Mrs. Bottiller, 649-4274.

Mancheater Junior Women's Club is a civic-minded club with both service and social aspects. During each year, members contribute time and effort to projects such as the Red Cross baby-sitting course, assisting at local health clinics, working with the adult retarded, conducting tours of the library, presenting puppet shows for local nursery schools and raising funds for scholarships and local charities.

Social events include bridge groups, a gourmet dinner group, dances and a New York theater trip.

Police Officer Roy DeLong was on routine patrol Monday about 5:30 p. m. when he spotted a car reported to be have been stolen earlier in Hartford.

He stopped the car and arrested its four occupants. They were a girl, 14, from Hartford, and two boys, both 14, from Hartford.

All were charged with fourth-degree larceny and referred to Juvenile Court. The girls were released to their parents and the boys were sent to the state detention home in Hartford.

UFO sightings reported

DANBURY (UPI) — Residents and police reported seeing unexplained objects in the sky Monday night.

Local police said they received many calls about the lighted objects beginning at 7 p. m. Most of the calls were phoned in between 10 p. m. and 11 p. m. they said.

New York State Police in Brewster, N.Y., and Connecticut State Police at Southbury said they also received phone calls regarding the sightings.

Several Danbury policemen said they saw three or four objects that looked like objects in the sky Monday night.

One policeman used a camera with telescopic lens to take pictures of the objects that flickering stars in different colors. One policeman said they disappeared very slowly pace before they disappeared.

Police said they were checking with various federal and state agencies to determine if an explanation of the lighted objects was possible.

Gunther gunning for Weicker

HARTFORD (UPI) — A Connecticut state lawmaker has asked Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., to explain the leasing arrangement of a 26-foot motorhome used by the senator in his re-election campaign.

Sen. George L. Gunther, R-Stratford, said the vehicle was purchased from a Connecticut dealer for about $24,000 by a Delaware corporation formed by Weicker's campaign treasurer Leroy Frantz Jr.

Gunther, a long time adversary of Weicker, Monday released a letter he said he sent to Weicker over the weekend asking if the senator was aware of the purchase of the vehicle by Frantz corporation, Aero Trans Holding Ltd.

Frantz said the corporation submitted the lowest of two bids to lease the vehicle to Weicker and he denied a suggestion by Gunther the corporation was formed in Delaware to avoid paying Connecticut's seven per cent sales tax.

Weicker, who is leasing the 1975 GMC vehicle for $2,850, defended the leasing arrangements without going into details earlier this month while campaigning in Hartford.

His press secretary, Fred Mann, also said the matter had already been "aired fully" in published stories and "we have no desire to respond to Mr. Gunther."

Gunther said there were "very significant questions arising out of this transaction" and he asked Weicker for "a complete disclosure of the affairs of Aero Trans Holdings Ltd., including the names of its officers, directors and shareholders."

Tarr wins third at Rodeo

A Mancheater truck driver, Rodney M. Tarr of 277 Highland St., has won third place in the finals of the National Truck Rodeo at Fort Worth, Tex.

Tarr drove his large rig through six different skill courses on which inches make the difference between winning and losing.

One of the problems involves parallel parking in a space only 48 inches longer than the truck. Another requires driving through a lane of rubber balls with only an inch leeway on each side of the tire.

Tarr, who drives for Schuster's Express make in Colchester, qualified to compete by winning a state rodeo.

Bomber in hands of next president

In passing the $104 billion defense appropriations bill the other day, the U.S. Senate also approved an amendment postponing a decision on mass producing the controversial B-1 bomber until after the next presidential inauguration.

Fate of the B-1 remains uncertain, however. The House is on record in two recent votes for going ahead with production in November, as originally scheduled.

To say that the B-1 is controversial is to put it mildly. Since the initial contract was signed in 1969-70 with Rockwell International, the plane's designer, cost of the bomber has soared from around $32 million a copy to an estimated $88 million, reports Barron's financial weekly. Total cost of the program, including research and development, has jumped from about $10 billion six years ago to $23 billion today, and some critics say it could eventually cost $100 billion.

Not only that, but the plane as now blueprinted is less than the aircraft proposed in the late 1960s to replace the nation's aging fleet of B-52s. It is slower (1.6 times the speed of sound versus twice the speed of sound in the original specifications), heavier by 30,000 pounds and thus more expensive to operate and with a shorter range, and operationally deficient.

In the three prototypes that have been built so far, at a cost of $1 billion each, it has been discovered that the plane's secondary power system for faster takeoffs is faulty, it suffers excessive buffeting and vibration at high speeds, its wing flaps and slats have failed to extend properly in all tests, its engine blades have cracked under high heat and access doors have occasionally popped off, among other problems.

These difficulties are not "mere kinks" that need to be ironed out but are faults in the integral features of the aircraft's design, says Barron's. All this, plus doubts about the need for a new manned bomber in an age of strategic missiles, has led some critics to urge that the B-1 be dropped forthwith so that the nation can cut its costs.

But even if the B-1 program were to be scrapped today, it would cost taxpayers an additional $100 million in cancellation fees to Rockwell International.

No wonder Congress is thinking about dropping this hot potato in the lap of the next president.

Teeth into their studies

How well a child just starting school can get his teeth into his studies may depend, quite literally, on his teeth.

The American Dental Association News reports that conclusion from a study being conducted by John Silvestro, professor of education at State University College at Fredonia, N.Y.

In his study of 84 first and second grade students in Dunkirk, N.Y., Dr. Silvestro found that the more permanent teeth first grade boys have, the better they perform on tests that predict future reading success. (The correlation for girls included in the study was inconclusive.)

"It appears that when the permanent teeth come in, 95 per cent of the head development is completed," says Silvestro, who was assisted in the study by Dr. Anthony R. Leone, a Fredonia dentist.

Permanent teeth apparently serve as a biologic "signal" that the brain is more mature and can process more information than it previously could.

His research, says Silvestro, supports the maturation theorists, who believe that teaching efforts can speed up the process.

Pushing a child into school before he is ready may lead to social and emotional adjustment problems, he says. Silvestro says, "School, after all, can be a stressful situation where youngsters have to share the co-operative with their peers. They also have to learn to work with an unfamiliar adult — the teacher."

Not to mention the stress of all those new teeth coming in.

Speed trap

GOP's biggest problem: United Democrats

WASHINGTON — Around the White House these days, the feeling of most Ford people can best be expressed in a remark attributed to former Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird: "Our biggest problem is that Jimmy Carter may have united the Democratic Party."

In fact, as of now, the party is united behind the former Georgia governor with the warm smile and the cold blue eyes. Indeed, the latest Harris Poll found that by 62 to 7 per cent a cross section of voters credits Carter with having done "a good job of uniting the Democratic Party for the first time in years."

That's today's bad news for Gerald Ford, because most surveys put Democratic strength at some 46 per cent of the electorate. If Carter gets anywhere near that support from his own party, he's a shoe-in on November 2. After all, his chances of winning a majority of the independent — estimated at 32 per cent of the total — are today as good as Ford's and probably better.

But the picture could change during the next two months. Even folks in the Carter camp concede that some of his support is soft. This is especially true in the ranks of Big Labor and among those Democratic voters whose support is subject to negative pressure from the big city machines. Carter people claim he has made his peace with labor and machine bosses. What happened is that labor and machine leaders made their peace with him.

In doing so, neither bloc has expressed undying affection for the Georgian. It must be remembered that in such circles Carter is still seen as a maverick — a loner who does not guarantee he'll cooperate. When George McGovern, another maverick, headed the Democratic ticket in 1972, hordes of rank and file Democratic and independent voters cast their ballots for Richard Nixon. That means Ford would be foolish to run a 110 per cent, red-blooded conservative campaign. He must, as Ford has a hot issue in forced school busing. He wants "constitutional restrictions" on court-ordered busing, and notes that a Democratic Congress has refused to act on his bill to assure those restrictions. Every survey shows that most Americans oppose forced busing. Ford can score points in challenging the Democratic Party's — and Jimmy Carter's — bland position that busing should be a "last resort."

For the rest, Ford can run on his economic record. Carter can't deny that inflation has been out in half of the 12 per cent rate two years ago. He can't deny that the recession has ended, that plants have reopened, that payrolls are up and that more people have jobs than at any time in history.

These are the bread-and-butter issues Ford may not have done enough to solve our economic problems, but he has done quite a bit. The country is better off than it was when he became President, and that points up Carter's weakness in appealing to the country's Main Streets. As the "old," he can only promise to do better.

A campaign strategy for President Ford

WASHINGTON — "This is going to be a presidential election featuring not a brass ensemble, but rather a political orchestra of violins and flutes. To win it, Mr. Ford will need to use delicate exploitation."

The Republican concertmaster who forecasts that kind of campaign for the President is F. Clifton White, a strategist widely regarded as one of the country's shrewdest political advisors. White, who lives in Greenwich, Conn., when he isn't dashing around the country getting high-level Republicans elected, spoke with Scripps League Newspapers following his latest triumph: playing a key role in winning the nomination for Ford in Kansas City.

White's credentials as a tactician are impeccable. More than any other man, he is credited with winning the GOP presidential nomination for underdog Barry Goldwater in 1964. He also advised conservative James Buckley of New York and Jesse Helms of North Carolina in their upset victories that landed each of them in the Senate.

Today's thought

Our calling and caring
 God frequently calls us to a concern for the hurting people, leaving the world's wounded to be cared for by us.

We are getting used to the idea of America assuming the role of the world's good Samaritan. We think of ourselves as finding persons in dire need and arranging help for them. More frequently, however, God places us in situations where we must be more personally involved. We must be the caring agent, and not simply one who arranges for the help needed.

Involvement! Personal involvement is what is needed to heal the hurts of people on the firing line, where troubles multiply and whose discouragements destroy hope. This means being with a person no matter how inconvenient, to provide support, even at personal expense. Establish an Old Testament prophet assures us such a response will assure that "Then shall your light break forth like the dawn, and your healing shall spring up speedily." (Is. 60:1)

At Kansas City, White set up a communications command post in a trailer outside Kemper Arena — as he did outside San Francisco's Cow Palace for Goldwater in 1964. A long bank of telephones in the trailer allowed White to maintain continuous contact with the Ford campaign's "regional whips," decked out in yellow suits for quick identification, who roamed the floor to make sure that the President's delegates didn't stray into Ronald Reagan's camp. (Reagan used a similar system coordinated from another trailer.)

"This election is going to be a very tough one for Mr. Ford, there's no doubt about that," said White. He added that Jimmy Carter's South will be hard to crack but that Texas and Florida are "possibilities." "There are three factors that could win it for Mr. Ford," White, wearing his low tie trademark, continued. "First is the fact that the old Democratic coalition has been breaking down over the past 10 years and is especially fragile in Carter's case." That coalition traditionally has included the South, organized labor, and liberals.

"Although Carter came in first in most of the Democratic primaries," reasoned White, "it was often with only about 30 per cent of the vote. The fact of the matter is that liberals don't trust Jimmy Carter. It comes down to the fact that he has a southern drawl." White noted that Lyndon Johnson likewise had a southern drawl and even though his domestic programs were more liberal than those of his predecessor, John F. Kennedy, liberals "never really trusted him."

southern drawl and even though his domestic programs were more liberal than those of his predecessor, John F. Kennedy, liberals "never really trusted him."

"In short, Carter's support really is thin," said White. "It can be cracked and broken up with the right kind of delicate exploitation." Asked if it is realistic to believe that liberals instead will vote for the Ford-Dole ticket, he said "No — they'll just stay home on election day."

A second factor in Ford's favor, said the GOP strategist, is former Democratic Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota who is running as an independent candidate for President. "He'll be on the ballot in perhaps 40 states," said White, "and even though he won't be significant nationally, he may well take seven per cent of the vote away from Carter in a few key states. And that may be enough to put us in the ballpark for winning those states." White mentioned Illinois and Wisconsin as such possibilities.

The third part of the Ford strategy as envisioned by White will come on about Oct. 1 when, he says "this

Betty's notebook

By Betty Ryder

Well, the young lady of the house has arrived home and so has my small hand mirror, a tube of mascara and an extra little jar of pink blusher.

Actually, it's all in the family, but it took me a while of hunting till I finally figured out just what had happened to them.

The stories of a two-week vacation in Maine kept us gabbing into the night. When we finally settled down in front of the television, her reading some mail that had arrived in her absence and my peering over the top of a book, she said grinning, "Mom, why do you keep looking at me?" to which I nonchalantly answered "It's just good to see you."

What I didn't tell her was that little girls grow up considerably in just two weeks away from home. Must be that Maine air.

Well, I heard that grandma still bakes a few loaves of bread and a pan of rolls every Saturday, and that her gruffened vacationing with her thinks she has some handsome male cousins.

I also found out that things really haven't changed too much since I was a kid. You still meet the cutest boy the night before you have to go home.

Oh, well, life is just full of crises.

Wanted — four-year-old

One of the boys complained of a headache over the weekend, so naturally, I reached for the bottle of aspirin.

I read the directions on just how to open it.

It wouldn't open. Oh, I read them. "Press and turn" instructions. Well, I found out that it was very difficult to press and turn at the same time.

The young lady then had a go at it, to no avail. Meanwhile, the one with the aching head, kept saying, "How're we coming with those aspirins?" I assured him that help was on its way, still pressing and turning.

On the bottle label I noticed a warning: "Keep out of the reach of children."

My daughter continued the struggle and as I gazed out the back door I saw this four-year-old boy who lives on the street. I have to confess for one fleeting moment I said to myself, "No that's one of those children to which the warning refers. I bet he could open it."

Luckily, my persistent daughter popped the lid of the bottle, aspirins spilled all over the kitchen table, and another rushed a glass of cold water and two tablets to her aching son.

When a 39-year-old mother (?) and her 14-year-old daughter go through such gratings to open a bottle of aspirin — children of America you are safe.

Child hit by automobile; suffers fractured arm, leg

Nine-year-old Lisa Gauthier of 549 E. Center St. was in satisfactory condition today at Manchester Memorial Hospital, suffering a fractured arm and leg from a Monday afternoon traffic accident at E. Middle Tpk. and Ludlow Rd.

Manchester Police said the girl, a pedestrian, was struck on E. Middle Tpk. by a westbound car driven by Sarah Stephens, 66, of 26 Lynnwood Dr. Bolton Mrs. Stephens was charged with reckless driving; court date is Sept. 21.

Police are investigating the Monday morning crash of a stolen car on Spring St. in which the driver, apparently not hurt seriously, abandoned the vehicle.

CB effort works

A Manchester Police program aimed at reducing the number of Citizen Band radio thefts has already proven successful, Police Chief Robert Lannan said.

The program, run by Detectives Robert Hennequin and Russell Hoyfield and Community Relations Officer James McCooe, involved the inscribing of CB radio units with the owner's name, address and driver's license number.

One of the 52 CB unit owners who had their sets inscribed at the police station Saturday reported the theft of his radio from his automobile later the same day.

On Monday, the victim found the radio unit undamaged, in his mailbox.

Police attribute the return of the radio to the inscribed information, which would make the unit difficult to "fence."

New elementary student registration Thursday

Elementary school students new to Manchester and students entering kindergarten should be registered at their schools Thursday if they have not already registered.

The newcomers should register at their neighborhood school between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Parents who do not know in which school district their child belongs should phone the nearest school or the Board of Education office.

Two indicted for murder

HARTFORD (UPI) — Two men have been indicted for the holdup slaying April 8 of a Rocky Hill motorist.

The indictments were returned Monday in Hartford County Superior Court against Richard Barnes, 30, of Hartford, and Anthony S. Derrico, 40, of West Hartford.

Sabino is the nation's last remaining coal-fired passenger steamboat and retains her original engine.

Mrs. Moore was found shot to death behind the counter of the Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge on the Silas Deane Highway, adjacent to Interstate 91. Police said $100 was taken during the holdup.

About town

The American party, Tom Anderson of Gattinburg, Tenn., and Rufus Shackelford of Wauchula, Fla., are president and vice president.

Former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., has filed petitions under no party designation for his presidential candidacy along with running mate William Morris of Old Greenwich.

The George Wallace party is entered on the ballot by virtue of its entry in the 1972 presidential elections. However, it has not filed the names of its candidates because the secretary of state's office has refused the party's request to change its name to the Conservative Party.

The U.S. Labor party claims to have enough signatures to place Lyndon H. LaRouche Jr. of New York City on the ballot for president, along with his running mate Ronald Wayne Evans of Beaverton, Mich.

Other petitions returned to town clerks included: —The Libertarian party, with Roger Lea MacBride of Zennett, Va., for president and David Bergland of Huntington Beach, Calif., for vice president.

—The Communist party, Gus Hall of New York City, president, Jarvis Tyner, vice president.

State voters may have up to eight choices

HARTFORD (UPI) — Voters in Connecticut may have as many as six presidential candidates in minor parties to choose from in addition to Jimmy Carter and President Ford. Monday was the deadline for candidates to submit petitions to town clerks.

The petitions are forwarded to the secretary of state's office which will determine the validity of the petitions in the next few days. Each candidate must submit 14,000 valid signatures.

Episcopalians to vote soon on women in priesthood

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A vote next month on whether women will be ordained in the Episcopal priesthood is bound to be painful to some, but the denomination must remain unified, church officials said Monday.

Both sides met in Greenwich, Conn. earlier this month to discuss ways to keep the denomination together. Church officials said the mid-August meeting was called by the Rt. Rev. John M. Allin, presiding bishop of the three-million member Episcopal Church.

Participants at the meeting at Seabury House discussed the probable impact of the ordination vote, expected at the Sept. 11-23 General Convention in Minneapolis, officials said.

They said the group "tried to confront the fact that the convention vote — whichever way it goes — is going to be painful to a number of attending the sessions."

In a related development, Dr. Charles V. Willie, who resigned as vice president of the House of Deputies in the wake of the furor, made public over the weekend his reasons for stepping down.

Willie, who preached the sermon at the irregular ordinations, said in a 17-page statement dated July 29, the second anniversary of the Philadelphia service, he resigned because "I could no longer enforce procedures which I knew were evil and sinful."

Noting that as vice president of the House of Deputies — one of two legislative bodies of the church and made up of clerical and lay members — he was an officer of the church, Willie said "Either I had to enforce sexist laws, or get the church to change them, or resign as vice president of the House of Deputies."

"I could not act like Pilate. I could not segregate, alienate and discriminate against women because it was legal to do this and claim to be acting in love," he added.

U of Bridgeport faces possible faculty strike

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — Faculty members of the University of Bridgeport meet Wednesday to discuss whether to go on strike when school begins next week.

Members of the American Association of University Professors will hear from negotiation representatives on contract talks that will possibly decide on setting up a final strike vote on Labor Day, Sept. 6, one day before classes start.

AUP members voted 88-6 in May to strike if the start of school if the dispute was not settled.

Emergency exit argument made

Vernon

The site plan for the proposed new police facility was approved by the Board of Education Monday night with some stipulations.

The board's approval was necessary because some of the stipulations next to the Center Road School and the Center Kindergarten building will be used for an emergency exit from the police station.

Police Chief Herman Fritz assured the board that the road will be used for emergency exits only.

He defined emergency as an immediate and serious need for emergency medical assistance.

In his order issued to all police personnel, Chief Fritz said one of the other two drives will be used for all personnel reporting for work or leaving work and the other will be used for patrols going to and returning from their districts.

He said the emergency exits will be one-way, out only, and he cautioned the personnel that there may be young children walking to or from school and not to use high speed on any of the exits.

The emergency exit is needed to allow police to get out of the station should traffic be backed up at the light at the intersection of Rt. 30 and Bolton and Center Roads.

Coventry: where the beefalo roam

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Question No. 1: What has four legs is less susceptible to disease than ordinary cattle, and provides meat that is lower in cholesterol than the beef you're eating now?

Answer: The "beefalo."
Question No. 2: What's a beefalo? This is probably best answered by Bill Menzel who has 12 of the animals on his 40-acre farm on Dunn Rd. in Coventry.

A beefalo is the product of a cross breed between buffalo and American cattle. It took 15 years of research and $1.5 million before the right cross between the two was developed in 1973, Menzel said.

But, it didn't take long for him to get into the beefalo business. He saw the first of his herd this fall. He has tasted the meat before, however. Menzel said another 15 injections of semen cost him $12 each, including the price of air freight to get them.

All of the breeding is by artificial insemination.

"The idea appealed to me," he said. "At first, I was interested in the meat for myself. Then, I figured, I might as well go even further and sell some of the meat," he said.

15 injections of semen cost him $12 each, including the price of air freight to get them.

beefalo farmer once served him a dinner that included beefalo burgers and steaks.

"The meat is not as fat as regular beef, but it has a beef taste to it," he said.

Because of the lack of fat in beefalo, the meat they provide is lower in cholesterol than regular meat, Menzel said, who also has ten head of cattle, said.

Beefalo are a bit stronger and less likely to get sick than regular cattle, he said. This trait is common of most cross-bred animals.

"They're also a quiet animal. They're easy on the fences," he said.

Beefalo weigh from 50-65 pounds at birth. Because of their lack of fat, they appear to be lighter in weight than cows, but they weigh about the same. They can be slaughtered for meat after 12 months.

Another advantage to raising beefalo, Menzel said, is that their diet is largely grass.

"You can take them right off the pasture and put them on the dinner table," he said. "You don't have to feed them any special grain."

He pointed to his grassy meadow and said, "Look at what I've got here, and they're not starving to death."

One oddity about the beefalo is the range of color. Menzel's dozen range from white to black.

"It's crazy. You don't ever know what color you'll get," he said. "One mother, for instance, gave birth to two beefalo, both of whom also had the same father. One was all white, the other was mostly brown with some white spots."

All of Menzel's beefalo were born on his farm. He talks highly of the animals and plans to increase the number he has.

"Eventually, I'll have nothing but beefalo," he said.

Board challenges state

Vernon
BARBARA RICHMOND

Following a lengthy executive session, state officials Monday night, the Board of Education, also in executive session, agreed to stand by its policy limiting the amount the school district can spend for other than educational reasons into private schools.

In setting its policy earlier this year, the board said it would pay up to the equivalent of special education costs for similar programs in the Vernon school system.

The state Department of Children and Youth Services (DCYS) challenged the board's policy which at the present involves about 10 students. With the board voting Monday night to uphold its policy, the DCYS now could take its case to the state Board of Education.

The Vernon board has also questioned who controls the decision as to outside placement of local students. Most board members feel the state placements have been unilateral, "almost dictatorial," and yet the local school boards are, in DCYS's interpretation of the law, obligated to pay the entire cost of this special placement.

School officials said at times they did not even know children had been placed in private schools but nevertheless they were saddled with the large bills for their education.

HUD funds go for sidewalks

Vernon
for a $20,000 Block Grant from the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has been approved by that department.

The money will be used for the town's sidewalk improvement program.

Earlier this month HUD notified the town the $20,000 was approved for use for renovating a privately owned building for use as a Day Care Center did not comply with the HUD regulations.

HUD said the building was not publicly owned and the Day Care Center is not neighborhood oriented.

In directing the town planner to prepare an amendment to the application, Mayor Thomas Benoit expressed disappointment.

The meeting is open to the public. A business meeting of the church women will be held.

Blue honored

NEW YORK (UPI) — Vida Blue of the Oakland A's has been selected as the American League Player of the Week. A.L. President Lee MacPhail announced Monday.

Blue, who batted a one-hitter against Detroit and allowed one earned run in 13 innings of action while recording six and a half strikeouts in five innings, pitched a no-hitter and struck out 13 batters.

Blue has five shutouts, which ties him for the American League lead with Bert Blyleven of Texas and Baltimore's Jim Palmer.

White appointed
NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard White has been named public relations assistant of the American League. It was announced by Robert Fishel, assistant to the league president.

The 24-year-old White from La Mirada, Calif., holds a master's degree in industrial relations from Purdue University, and was a three-year letterman as a catcher for the nationally ranked Chapman College Baseball Team.

Mets recall four
NEW YORK (UPI) — John Stearns, a catcher who asked to be demoted to the minors earlier this year, was recalled to the major league roster by the New York Mets from their Tidewater farm club in the International League.

The 23-year-old Stearns batted .316 with 10 homers and 43 RBIs in 100 games at Tidewater.

Three other players, outfielders Billy Baldwin and Jim Dwyer and relief pitcher Rick Baldwin, will join the Mets when Tidewater completes its season Sept. 3.

Rodriguez out
DETROIT (UPI) — Third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez, who suffered hip damage to his right ankle Sunday, has been placed on the 15-day disabled list by the Detroit Tigers and replaced on the roster by rookie Phil Markovskki.

Rodriguez was to be flown to Detroit from Oakland, where he was injured sliding into second base, for further examination and a decision on surgery. A club spokesman said the 28-year-old veteran's season has ended.

Double play
EAST PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Texas Rangers slugger Jeff Burroughs is planning a double play next winter that will last five days and stretch from coast to coast.

Burroughs and Deborah Gorman of East Providence plan to wed in February in two ceremonies. They are scheduled to wed Feb. 19 in Long Beach, Calif., and Feb. 24 in Newport. Miss Gorman, a Northeastern University graduate, said the ceremony in Newport's elegant Marble House, will be the official one. The California wedding will be for the benefit of Burroughs' friends and relatives on the West Coast.

Comfortable night
BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Red Sox shortstop Dick Carlson spent a comfortable night in the hospital for a mild concussion and contusion near his left ear caused when he was beaned by a pitch Monday night.

"I was really scared," Red Sox manager Don Zimmer said after Texas Ranger pitcher Bert Blyleven leveled Burleson in the second inning, hustling the Fenway Park crowd of 17,000.

Hartford site
HARTFORD (UPI) — Hartford will be the site of the 1977 United States Figure Skating Championships, Feb. 25, the Skating Club of Hartford announced Monday.

Paul Bourdeau, chairman of the club's National Championships Planning Committee, said Hartford was chosen over New York City and Philadelphia as the destination for about 140 of the nation's top amateur figure skaters.

Lottery to continue
WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — Delaware's professional football lottery, which is facing legal opposition from the National Football League, will be allowed to continue until well into the football season because of an NFL legal action.

UConn coach excited

In 10 years of coaching, I'm more excited than ever," Larry Naviaux explained at the annual University of Connecticut pre-season football press luncheon yesterday on the Storrs campus.

"I don't know how good we are," the head coach said, "but we'll know Sept. 11 at Hamilton (against Colgate). It's a critical game for us. We're ready."

Naviaux said, "It's mixed for offense. We'll probably use seven or eight. It's a wide open style offense with two wide receivers. It's based on running plays. It should give more opportunity for Gioiardo and Mason."

"We figure we have to run 90 offensive plays a game to win."

Discarded is the Wing T offense which sputtered all last season. It was over the winter that the coaches met and decided to change and make use of the known personnel on hand.

The new Indiana mentor has four assistants. Bill Dwyer and Harry Bertelmeier will work with the backs, Mike Masse will aid Holk with the linemen and Tom Conran will work with the quarterbacks.

Manchester opens the campaign Sept. 25 at Memorial Field against Penn. East Hartford.

Fourth-year East Catholic grad coach John Whidden had 46 sacks up bright and early Monday morning and expects to work with 55 over-all.

He too found his team in excellent physical condition and noted all completed the one mile run in six or seven minutes. "A lot of them must be working out on their own. That tells you something about their attitude," LaFontaine noted with a smile.

He had a lot of rocky moments en route to fulfilling his dream, but in every way Figueroa is a big league pitcher today.

In fact, only Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles with 18 has more American League victories than the New York Yankee right-hander.

Figueroa didn't have his best control Monday night but thanks to a gutsy performance and fine catches in the outfield by Mickey Rivers and Roy White, he hung on to beat the Oakland A's 5-2 for his 16th victory compared to seven losses.

"I also dreamed I would win 20 games one year," Figueroa said after finishing the Yankees to stay 11-2 games ahead of Baltimore in the East. "Now, I think I have a chance to win 20 if I am lucky."

Figueroa, who won 16 for the light-bitting California Angels last year and then had the good fortune to be traded to the Yankees, said winning 20 is his big goal now.

"I've been in Puerto Rico over has won 20 games in the big leagues," he said. "And I would like to be the first one."

San Pizarro once won 19 for the White Sox but never 20. If he won 20 it would mean a lot to me in 1980 home at the end of the season. I will be a big hero in Puerto Rico," he said.

Figueroa said it's a lot easier to pitch for the Yankees than the Angels.

Junior golf champ

Paul Peracchio of Manchester, copped the Ellington Ridge Country Club's Junior Division golf championship in the 27-hole tie in a sudden death playoff with Steve Tantiello. Peracchio scored 39-39-41-119 and Tantiello turned in scores of 40-40-39-119 in the 15-17-year-old bracket. Earlier this season Peracchio scored a hole-in-one at Ellington.

Joan Joyce here Wednesday

Winning 20 games is the goal of every pitcher in major league baseball but in women's professional softball, Joan Joyce may win twice that figure. Joyce, the world's greatest fast pitch softball hurler, has already won 37 games for the Connecticut Falcons, winners of the Women's Professional Softball League's Eastern Division. She has lost twice. Wednesday night, Joyce and her Falcon teammates will be at Fitzgerald Field in an exhibition game against a squad of ASA umpires. Play starts at 7 p.m. All proceeds will enter a fund to help send Brown's Tires of Manchester, Connecticut, fast pitch champions to the National

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Ever since my wife got pregnant, she's been craving Argo laundry starch. She's been eating an awful lot of it and says it calms her nerves. I'm afraid that all that laundry starch might hurt my wife or her unborn baby, but my wife insists it's harmless! How would you feel, Abby, if someone you loved ate laundry starch by the box?

DEAR HARVEY: I'll be worried stiff. In fact, that she tell her doctor about this craving.

DEAR ABBY: After I had my seventh baby I asked by doctor to tie my tubes so I wouldn't have any more children. Well, that was three years ago and yesterday my doctor announced that he'd made an appointment with a urologist to have a vasectomy. It sure sounds to me like he has another woman in his life! Maybe I'm just dumb, but I can't understand why HE has to have a vasectomy when there's no danger of getting like I do. Do you think he's off his rocker, or he just plain can't take kids?

DEAR OVER: No matter what your husband's faults may be, "gambling" isn't one of them.

DEAR ABBY: VIRGINIA BEACH Reader asked how one should introduce someone with whom he or she is shaking up, and you suggested "friend." I object. I have many close friends, female and male, with whom I have never slept, and I would like to keep thinking of them as friends, thank you. I see no reason why I should change my vocabulary to cover my friendships just because social mores are changing. I agree that "mistress," with its connotations of being "kept," has become outdated since today many mistresses keep themselves. And I certainly agree we need a conventional word to cover situations when a man and woman live and travel together but are not married. I submit that it would be better to change the connotation of "mistress" and use "mistress" (an ordinary, useless word) as the male counterpart, than warp the meaning of "friend."

DEAR TOM: Objection noted.

ASTRO-GRAPH By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Wednesday, Sept. 1, 1976
ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're busy today in the things you desire long, and you're busy today in the things you desire long. Do as much as you can today. Leave the leadership roles to others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your material prospects look rather dull today, although what you are likely to gain will probably come through the actions of associates.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21) You have important assets today in matters relating to the family.

CANCER (June 22-July 22) Perform to the best of your ability today. There are research that would make others proud with any if they only had a chance to obtain them.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) If had to pick a companion to associate with today, you'd be my choice. You should be able to enjoy yourself with any group, under any circumstances.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23) Entertain important people or business contacts in your home today. Much more can be accomplished within those friendly walls.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Those for whom you do nice things will be anxious to do the same for you today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Here is a tough question: What do you do now? Here is a tough question: What do you do now? Here is a tough question: What do you do now?

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have the ability to manage persons whose cooperation is necessary to your success. They sense they're being used.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It may require a generous amount of your energy today, especially those you're meeting for the first time. Lay on some of that Aquarian charm!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You make a good impression today, especially those you're meeting for the first time. Lay on some of that Aquarian charm!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Perform to the best of your ability today. There are research that would make others proud with any if they only had a chance to obtain them.

YOUR BIRTHDAY Sept. 1, 1976 Don't let away from making important changes this coming year. If you thought them through completely they should only serve to enhance your opportunities.

Obituaries

Paul Wupperfeld
Paul Wupperfeld, 71, formerly of 91 Grandview St., died Monday at Manchester Memorial Hospital. He was the husband of Mrs. Margaret Post Wupperfeld.
Mr. Wupperfeld had been employed as a dyer at Cheney Bros. and was a foreman in the firm's dying department before his retirement in 1970. He was born Aug. 16, 1905 in Norwalk and had lived in Manchester for 45 years. He had attended Columbia University in New York City.

Other survivors are three daughters, Mrs. Joseph (Paula) O'Hare of Manchester, Mrs. Robert (Marilyn) Kudra of Ellington and Mrs. Richard (Patricia) Morrison of New Haven; a sister, Mrs. Marcel Christian of Norwalk; nine grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

The funeral is Thursday with a Mass at St. James Church at a time to be announced. Burial will be in St. James Cemetery.

Friends may call at Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., Wednesday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

The family suggests that any memorial gifts may be made to St. James Church.

Melissa Ann Howard
ELLINGTON — Melissa Ann Howard, infant daughter of George E. and Karen Charter Howard of 71 Sudds Mill Rd., died Sunday at John Dempsey Hospital, Farmington. She was born Saturday at Rockville General Hospital.

She is also survived by her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Ann Hatheway Howard of Lake Worth, Fla., and her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Willis of East Hartford.

The private funeral is Wednesday. Burial will be in Ellington Center Cemetery.

The Burke-Fortin Funeral Home, 76 Prospect St., Rockville, is in charge of arrangements.

There are no calling hours.

Mrs. Earl K. Hudson
EAST HARTFORD — Mrs. Rose V. Alex Hudson, 56, of 39 Orchard St. died Monday at Manchester Memorial Hospital. She was the wife of Earl K. Hudson.

Mrs. Hudson was born in Shenandoah, Pa., and lived in East Hartford for 37 years. She had been employed for 17 years at the Connecticut Cleaners of East Hartford. She was a member of the East Hartford Congregational Church.

Other survivors are a son, Earl R. Hudson of East Hartford; three brothers, Tony Alex, Walter Alex and Edward Alex, all of Shenandoah; and two sisters, Mrs. Sophie Karas and Mrs. Mary Batasavage, both of Shenandoah.

The funeral is Wednesday at 11 a.m. at Rose Hill Funeral Home, 580 Elm St., Rocky Hill. Burial will be in Rose Hill Memorial Park, Rocky Hill.

Friends may call at the funeral home tonight from 7 to 9 p.m.

Empson H. Aborn
ELLINGTON — Empson H. Aborn, 72, of 78 Maple St. died this morning at his home after a long illness. He was the husband of Mrs. Ruth Humphrey Aborn.

Mr. Aborn was born July 11, 1904 in Ellington and had lived here all his life. For many years, he was a farmer, later, he conducted a grinding and sharpening service at his home. He was a member of the Ellington Congregational Church, Ellington Ridge Country Club and the Ellington Historical Society. He was a former member of the Ellington Volunteer Fire Department.

Other survivors are 2 sons, Duane E. Aborn of Ellington and Dale H. Aborn of Treasure Island, Fla.; 2 daughters, Mrs. Jean A. Garrell of Rockville and Mrs. Janet A. Thompson of Ellington; his stepmother, Mrs. Harry O. Aborn of Ellington; 10 grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

The private funeral is Thursday at the Ladd Funeral Home, 19 Ellington Ave., Rockville. The Rev. Sheldon T. Smith, pastor of Ellington Congregational Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Ellington Center Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m. The family suggests that any memorial gifts may be made to a charity of the donor's choice.

Mrs. Anna L. Krieski
Mrs. Anna Lukas Krieski, 86, of 43 Marble St. died Monday night at Manchester Memorial Hospital. She was the widow of Frank Krieski Sr.

Mrs. Krieski was born Dec. 20, 1889 in Nove Budy, Poland, and lived in Manchester for more than 70 years. She was a communicant of St. Bridget Church and a member of the Polish National Alliance.

Survivors are two sons, John E. Krieski and Frank J. Krieski Jr., both of Manchester; a daughter, Mrs. William J. Killel of Manchester; three grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

The funeral is Friday at 9:15 a.m. from Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., with a Mass at St. Bridget Church at 10. Burial will be in St. Bridget Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m. and Thursday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

William B. Williams
BOLTON — William B. Williams, 88, of Tolland Rd. died early this morning at Manchester Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Williams was born June 28, 1888 in Bolton and had lived here all his life. He was a self-employed carpenter before his retirement many years ago.

There are no immediate survivors. The Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., Manchester, is in charge of arrangements, which are incomplete.

Hashim school board vacancy may be filled by Mrs. Hublard

Verna Hublard of 68 Adelaide Rd., elected to the Manchester Board of Education for a 1976-1979 term, will probably be appointed soon to serve the unexpired portion of a 1973-1976 school board term formerly held by Elinor Hashim.

Miss Hashim, whose term expires in November, was to be succeeded by Mrs. Hublard. Both are Republicans. Miss Hashim cited career reasons in her resignation from the school board, which was accepted with regret Monday night. She has moved to Glastonbury to accept a position as head librarian of that town's Wells Turner Library.

Mrs. Hublard was elected in the November 1975 town election to the 1976-1979 term; Miss Hashim didn't seek re-election at that time.

Appointments to a vacant school board position are made by remaining members of the board, upon the recommendation of either the Democratic or Republican town committee, depending on which party held the vacancy.

Republican Town Chairman Thomas Ferguson said today that Mrs. Hublard would be recommended for the position.

Nether the interim appointment nor the start of three new three-year terms in November will alter the school board's political makeup, dominated 6-3 by Democrats.

Starting new terms in November, besides Mrs. Hublard, will be incumbent Democrats Carolyn Becker and Paul Greenberg.

About town

The Senior Citizens Center will be open Wednesday through Friday. The bus will be running on its regular schedule Wednesday and Friday for the activities planned for those days.

Medicaid fund misuse alleged in GAO report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some nursing homes are misusing monthly spending allowances to which patients are entitled under the Medicaid program, the General Accounting Office reported today.

The report, completed in March but not released until now, was made public by Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, chairman of a Senate Subcommittee on Problems of the Aging, which has been investigating Medicaid abuses.

The federal-state Medicaid program of health care for the poor, allows nursing homes patients $25 a month personal expense money.

GAO, an investigative agency of Congress, checked 30 nursing homes in New York, California, Missouri, Michigan and Florida, and found "deficiencies" in handling of the personal expense funds in all of them.

It said there were shortages in the patients' funds; medical expenses were being charged to them although they were supposed to be paid separately; funds of patients who were dead or transferred were being kept by the homes; interests on the patients' funds were being kept by some homes; some of the patients' funds were being mixed with general operating funds.

At a hearing today, Moss said, "The misappropriation of these funds is almost like the final indignity. We are to the point of robbing patients of their dignity."

Baldwin honored

HARTFORD (UPI) — Democratic Gov. Ella T. Grasso today was to host a reception for one of her Republican predecessors, Raymond E. Baldwin, who also was a U.S. senator and chief justice of the State Supreme Court.

Dangerous chemical no hazard in MMH clinical laboratories

By DOUG BEVINS
Herald Reporter

Sodium azide, the laboratory chemical blamed for explosions in hospital plumbing in several U.S. and Canada institutions, presents no danger at Manchester Memorial Hospital, officials said today.

The National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health has issued a warning that the compound, used as a preservative in many clinical laboratories, is highly explosive when it combines with copper, zinc, lead or brass plumbing.

At Manchester Memorial Hospital, Laboratory Director Dr. Frederick Becker said his lab no longer uses much sodium azide, and the hospital plumbing is safe because it is not one of the metals which creates a hazard.

Federal health officials said sodium azide is a common substance in automatic blood cell counters, and the waste chemical is flushed down the drain after the counting operations are completed.

Over a period of time, the azide could react with copper, zinc, lead or brass to create a concentration of lead or copper azide, which officials say is a more sensitive primary explosive than nitroglycerine.

Sodium azide was used in blood cell counters at Manchester Memorial Hospital until about six months ago, Dr. Becker said, when it was replaced by a safer substance.

There was never much danger of an explosion at the local lab anyway, officials said, because pipes at the hospital are made of "Duriron" and don't contain copper, zinc, lead or brass.

MMH Biochemist Franklin Bevins said a small amount of diluted sodium azide is still used in some, in-requent blood chemistry tests, but there is little danger.

Another local clinical lab, the private Haynes Medical Laboratory, doesn't use concentrated sodium azide and there is no danger there, according to Dr. Douglas Dix, the lab's director.

Carter to visit Groton Tuesday

HARTFORD (UPI) — Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter will visit Connecticut next week, his state campaign coordinator spokesman said today.

Michael Cardozo said Carter will speak next Tuesday at a noon rally at the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics in Groton.

Carter's visit to Groton will be his only stop in Connecticut that day during a campaign swing through the Northeast, Cardozo said.

Carter, the former Georgia governor who came from obscurity to win his party's nomination, once served in the Navy at New London, a few miles from Groton.

Carter won the May 11 Democratic presidential primary in Connecticut, narrowly edging Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona.

Levester sworn in HARTFORD (UPI) — Judge Robert L. Levister, sworn in today as Connecticut's first black Superior Court judge, said he had been looking forward to the promotion for 11 years.

Levester, 57, of Stamford, was sworn in by Gov. Ella T. Grasso at her Capitol office in the presence of his wife, Lorraine, and a group of about 20 friends and fellow judges.

"I guess every judge wants to serve on the Superior Court. I've been looking forward to this for 11 years and I finally got it," he told reporters after the brief ceremony.

Eight inmates confirmed

CHESHIRE (UPI) — The first confirmation mass at a Connecticut correctional institution was held at the Cheshire reformatory Monday night with Archbishop John Whealon presiding.

Eight inmates, wearing navy blue uniforms, were confirmed in the hour-long ceremony in a classroom that had been converted into a chapel. Other inmates acted as choirboys, singing to the guitar accompaniment of Sister Maryanne Cantillon.

Women's Center proponents meet tonight

Supporters of the Manchester Community College Women's Center have called another strategy meeting for tonight at 7:30 to decide a course of action to protest the college administration's actions regarding the center.

Donna Freeman, an MCC student helping to coordinate center activities, said the interim director appointed by the administration began work Monday despite a protest by center supporters.

Gail Patrick, a college counselor, was named to the interim post until administrators find a replacement for former director Bettina Borders, who was not rehired.

The Women's Center supporters, objecting to the method of the interim appointment, met Ms. Patrick with a prepared statement Monday afternoon.

The statement said the supporters don't accept the administration's decision to use an interim director in lieu of a permanent, full-time director. The supporters emphasized they had nothing against Ms. Patrick, but only against the administration's actions.

An ad-hoc committee of supporters has appointed Ms. Freeman and Dottie Schumo to coordinate center activities.

The Women went to MCC President Ronald Denison last week with a list of 10 demands, including a full-time director and reinstatement of funding, but Denison hasn't responded. He told The Herald that the demands were "fantastic" and he lacked the ability, authority and money to meet the demands.

Do-it-yourself clinics

The W.G. Glenney Co. will be hosting a series of do-it-yourself clinics to instruct and answer questions for the do-it-yourselfer. They will consist of a film presentation, an actual demonstration, a discussion of any problems that the do-it-yourselfer might run into and a question and answer period. The clinics will run about 1 1/2 hours to 2 1/2 hours with a coffee break in the middle. Some will be held in the evening and others will be held on Saturdays.

Glastonbury will host a seminar and clinic on the application of wallboard. The Gold Bond factory representative will demonstrate and discuss wallboard application between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 11 at the W.G. Glenney Co., 63 Hebron Ave. There will also be a weekend special on wallboard.

Manchester will host a paneling clinic and truckload sale on paneling Friday, Sept. 17, and Saturday, Sept. 18. The U.S. Plywood representative will run a clinic on Friday from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on how to put up paneling. The same clinic will run Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The truckload sale on paneling will run both Friday and Saturday, with all paneling at special prices. Intertwined with the paneling clinic will be a power tool demonstration by Rockwell. They will especially emphasize the tools you need for paneling and how to use them in relation to the paneling application.

On that same weekend Glastonbury will be the scene of an insulation truckload sale and clinic. The factory representative from Zonolite will instruct consumers on the use of vermiculite insulation. He will answer any questions any one may have and be able to tell the consumer how much insulation will be needed for his home.

Manchester will sponsor an Armstrong Ceiling Clinic on Tuesday evening, Sept. 21 from 7 to 9:30 p.m. The Armstrong people will conduct a seminar and demonstration on how to put up a ceiling, if the consumer brings his room measurements, they can also tell the consumer exactly how much material he needs. This clinic is free, as are all the other with no obligation to buy a single thing. Those attending the clinic will receive a special discount towards the purchase of a ceiling should they decide to buy one.

On Sept. 25, Manchester will host a wallboard seminar conducted by the Gold Bond factory representative. He will discuss and demonstrate the application of wallboard between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. They will also be running a special on wallboard for the weekend.

You may preregister for any of the clinics by calling the respective stores. Manchester, 336 N. Main St., 649-5253 and Glastonbury, 63 Hebron Ave., 633-4675. You may also fill out a registration form at any of our four locations or you may register at the door on the day of the clinic.

Fire hazards

Are there many fire hazards in your house? "Nearly every house is beset by at least some of the many conditions that cause fire," says the head of the National Fire Protection Association, "although families seldom take time to think about this."

Topping the list of major causes of home fires, according to studies made by NFPA, is carelessness in the use and disposal of smoking materials.

Adults are the major offenders — including those who persist in smoking in bed — but children, too, are responsible for starting tens of thousands of dwelling fires each year by playing with cigarettes, matches and lighters.

Energy saving guide

The National Home Improvement Council has reprinted the Department of Housing and Urban Development publication, "In The Bank... Or Up The Chimney?", a dollars and cents guide to energy-saving home improvements. Prepared for the Office of Policy Development and Research, Division of Energy, Building Technology, and Standards of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, the 69 page publication details the homeowner's benefit savings to be realized by improved insulation, installation of storm windows and doors, increased efficiency of appliances and many other energy-saving tips.

Copies of "In The Bank... Or Up The Chimney" are obtainable by writing the National Home Improvement Council, 11 East 44th Street, New York, New York 10017. There is a charge of $1.25 for each copy.

The National Home Improvement Council is the coordinated voice of the $26 billion home improvement industry. Its members are professional home improvement contractors, manufacturers and distributors of building materials, lenders, utilities, publications and others with interests in the home improvement field.

Remodelers make most of space when covering attic, cellar

Faced with the need for more room, the average family can move or add to their existing space. The latter course of action is recommended by the National Home Improvement Council.

It recommends converting existing space, such as an attic or a basement, or adding to your present house with a room addition.

Converting an attic or basement into living space can be a highly satisfactory experience and it can save the homeowner money, since he will be utilizing existing space and structures.

An attic project can be approached in a number of ways. The homeowner can simply insulate the roof and then finish off the existing area with flooring and wall partitions.

This will probably involve window dormers which will suggest ventilating louvers in the peak of the roof prior to insulating.

A need for greater space with less sloping ceilings will recommend shed-type dormers at the rear or front of the roof. Another technique is to literally raise the roof. When you decide to add a room, plan the addition so that it adds to, rather than detracts from, the usable space in the present house.

Remember storage space. Plan it carefully to accommodate the room's purpose, or you may wind up with your existing closets crowding you out of your pleasure in the new addition.

And make the most of your existing water and heat sources. This will save money—and time!

A final thought on room additions: think about the addition in relationship to other homes in your neighborhood.

A beginner can do it

Add On Attic Insulation is designed specifically for the hundreds of thousands of homes which with only 1" to 2" of ceiling insulation, are underinsulated. It is 5" thick and will bring the typically underinsulated ceiling up to the more practical 6" minimum. It has no foil or kraft paper backing to act as a vapor barrier (when it is added to existing insulation a vapor barrier will most likely already be in place. It comes in 32-foot rolls, in both 15" and 23" widths — the most common spacing found between attic floor joists. Easy to install, it can be applied without special tools or technical knowledge.

Heat, cold and money leak through windows

With storm windows, homeowners can save as much as 15 per cent, even 24 per cent, on their heating and cooling bills.

According to a study by the National Bureau of Standards, for example, storm windows saved a homeowner 24 per cent of the fuel bills in a test home in just one year.

The most important benefit of a storm window is that it provides a second layer of glass. That second layer alone will theoretically cut conduction loss through single glass — the biggest energy waster by far — by about 50 per cent.

And if a homeowner already has double-glazed prime windows, a third layer of glass in the form of a storm window will add another 15 per cent or so to that 50 per cent conduction savings.

A storm window also helps reduce conduction losses through the frame of the prime window. Besides saving energy, it will save maintenance by protecting the prime from bad weather.

And aluminum storm windows are all but maintenance free, standing up to the toughest weather conditions with virtually no care needed.

Storm windows are available in a wide range of styles and in practically any size. They can be made to fit any kind of window at all.

Double- or triple-track storm windows are self-storing; in other words, they can hold both the glass and the screen inserts the year around. The bothersome chore of putting them up and taking them down is eliminated, because changing from glass to screens is as simple as sliding one up and the other down.

If a homeowner has air conditioning, he can save between 20 and 30 per cent on cooling energy in the summer by keeping the storm windows closed. This provides a second layer of glass to reduce the amount of outside heat that can be conducted in through the glass.

Storm windows can cost as little as $20 or less each, installed, and in about four or five years they'll have paid for themselves in fuel savings alone.

The exact savings on heating and cooling bills will depend on numerous factors, however. Whether it's 15 per cent or 24 per cent can't be determined until a homeowner has had the storm windows in for a year or so and has the chance to figure the savings for his windows in his home.

For a free brochure about saving money with storm windows, write to Mr. Fred M. Schmidt, Sen-son-all Industries, Inc., Indiana, Pa. 15701.

Cut fuel costs

Because under-insulated water heaters are among the biggest fuel wasters in most homes, fiber glass insulation is critical for containing precious heat. It's simply wrapped around the water heater in minutes, and installation requires no special tools or expertise. The insulation quickly pays for itself in fuel savings.

Improved methods save on fuel bills

Changing American lifestyles to meet the energy crunch is a desirable goal. But since it's difficult to suddenly sacrifice our free-wheeling fuel consumption, the Energy Research and Development Administration (E.R.D.A.) is seeking another alternative. The target of their conservation program is the increase of technology to improve the efficiency of the things Americans use. Homeowners can play an important role in this program by better utilizing something found in almost every basement—the water heater.

If 20 million homes install water heater insulation, E.R.D.A. estimates that 44 million barrels of fuel can be saved by 1985. The insulation is available in a kit from Johns-Manville, a leading manufacturer of thermal insulations. Since under-insulated water heaters rank only behind uninsulated attics as the biggest fuel waster in most homes, much is at stake if this precious fuel continues to escape. When the water heater is wrapped with the special Johns-Manville fiber glass insulation, heat is contained. This promising new concept in energy conservation quickly pays for itself in fuel savings. Simply and quickly installed by measuring the water heater dimensions, cutting the insulation and taping the tabs, the Water Heater Insulation Kit includes all necessary materials in one box. No special tools or expertise are required. And the J-M insulation is U.L. listed for fire safety. To find out more about the Water Heater Insulation Kit, write to Johns-Manville, Box 5705RP, Greenwood Plaza, Denver, Colo. 80217.

Homeowners urged to select energy-savers

The homeowner in the market for a new refrigerator will discover some surprising innovations, particularly power-saving features and improved insulation, according to the National Home Improvement Council.

One energy-saving model uses about a third less electricity than other models not equipped with its special thermostatically controlled motor.

While it is true that the amount of electricity consumed by a refrigerator each operating hour is a modest amount, it's also true that it is operated 24 hours around the clock for 365 days a year.

Even though frost-free refrigerators do use more kilowatts of energy annually than non frost-free models, they avoid the extra energy drain resulting from frost accumulation.

Today's power-saving refrigerators also preserve food longer during power failures, which become alarmingly more common each year.

As is to be expected, there's a higher price tag on these models, but operating savings in the long run more than repay the initial purchase price.

The self-cleaning oven, certainly a time and labor saver, uses minimal energy for a year's normal use.

Presuming monthly cleaning, only 20 to 30 kilowatt hours of electricity are consumed yearly. Some gas ranges even clean while the oven is cooking. With thermostats on cooking tops as well as in the ovens, total automatic cooking is possible today. A "keep warm" setting permits preparation of meals hours in advance, freeing host and hostess to entertain guests.

The lower temperature settings on the keep-warm oven are safe even for the finest china.

Floors and walls offer challenges to decorators

Both solid vinyl and the less costly but no less attractive vinyl asbestos flooring are available in a variety of colors and textures never seen before, says the National Home Improvement Council.

These include simulated brick, slate and marble as well as many other unique designs. And self-adherent tiles that offer real ease of installation are also available.

Wood flooring comes in random-length strips and in parquet blocks in the same sizes as resilient floor tiles (9" x 9" and 12" x 12").

Only a few short years ago, the remodeling homeowner contemplating a change of walls had an easy decision: plaster or plaster board.

Now, in addition to the new colorful lightweight plywood panels, he can choose from a variety of other new products—metal and hardboard and even plastic and glass fiber panels.

Prefinished hardwood, plywood, cement board, stained lumber, ornamental tiles, marble, glass and masonry!

In addition, supported and unsupported vinyl coverings for unfinished walls, peel-and-stick plastics and pre-pasted papers are available.

For a colonial touch for windows, ornamental shutters have all the authentic charm of early-day designs with none of the inconvenience of installation and maintenance.

In a choice of vinyl or aluminum, they come ready to hang, and can be installed in a short time.

Solve your problems with heat-cool units

Adding a room to fit your family's changed living or recreational needs?

Many homeowners are—and most find themselves faced with the problem of such additional space overtaking their present heating and/or cooling systems.

The solution is relatively simple: plan the room addition to include a built-in air conditioner which can both heat and cool, so you can be assured year-round comfort in the new room without affecting the rest of the home.

One manufacturer, Hot-point, offers four heat/cool models with capacities ranging from 8,200 to 18,000-BTUH for cooling and from 3,700 to 13,200-BTUH for heating.

These heating/cooling capacities are adequate for rooms ranging from approximately 360 to 1,100-square feet, depending on extremes in exposure.

shading, insulation, and building construction. (Metric equivalents: approximately 33.4 to 102.2-square meters.)

The smallest unit, the Deluxe Heat/Cool, operates on 115 volts, so no special wiring is required. It can be plugged into any properly grounded electrical outlets you'll install in the new room.

This two-speed model has a 10-position thermostat and four-way adjustable air direction.

The three Heritage II Heat/Cool models operate on either 230 or 208 volts and feature fine furniture styling with a hinged front panel concealing the controls.

They are two-speed models with eight thermostat positions, and four-way adjustable air direction.

All four models are designed to fit standard window sizes, and are also suitable for through-the-wall installation.

Homeowners urged to select energy-savers

According to the National Home Improvement Council, security systems for the home continue to enjoy popularity among the nation's homeowners.

Some excellent crime and fire deterrent security systems have been developed and are currently doing a brisk business on the market.

Generally smaller than the average stereo component, these units include provision for both fire and burglar alarms tied in with a local central station.

When the system detects an intrusion or smoke, it immediately relays a signal to the station from which security personnel notify police or fire departments.

The system is prevented from disrupting normal family activity by a personal code tapped out on a series of keys.

Solid vinyl siding is super tough protection for a home

Almost impervious to weather and aging, immune to termites and vermin, incapable of attracting lightning or interfering with television and radio reception, pigmented throughout and not just on the surface so that its color is locked-in and always fresh-looking, solid vinyl is obviously a superior siding material.

The result of modern scientific research, vinyl siding was developed specifically to overcome the defects inherent in conventional sidings.

Take wood, for example. A traditionally acceptable material, it is still used in the form of shakes, shingles, clapboard and battens.

The inherent defect of this material is its inability to resist the effects of weather and aging without costly periodic painting and maintenance.

Heroic measures are often needed to protect it from rot and deterioration. Termites destroy it. Water causes it to swell and lose strength, with deformation and ultimate collapse as the final result.

GAF Vanguard vinyl siding is designed to overcome these defects. It has the appearance of traditional clapboard in 8" or 4" horizontal form, or 8" vertical form.

Pre-formed with high accuracy, with nailing slots at one edge and a locking flange at the other, easily sawed and cut, it may be attached to the side of the house as easily as wood.

THE CHEERFUL LOOK OF VINYL SIDING — An occasional wiping with detergent and water keeps this GAF vinyl siding fresh and bright as the day it's installed.

Since the flange edge overlaps and covers the nailed edge, the nailheads never show, a neat craftsmanlike appearance.

Since the color is part of the vinyl itself, it never needs painting. A simple scrubbing with detergent and water will remove streaks, stains, dust and dirt marks and restore the like-new appearance of the vinyl.

How does vinyl siding compare with aluminum siding? Unlike aluminum, which is a metal and a conductor of electricity, vinyl is a non-conductor and is actually used for insulation in the electrical industry. It doesn't need grounding and cannot cause interference with television or radio signals.

Sidings made of aluminum can be dented. Vinyl siding bends and flexes under impact and then returns to its original shape.

The paint on aluminum siding is only skin-deep. A scratch easily penetrates to the bare metal. Corrosion may take place. Not so with vinyl. Scratches are practically invisible as the color of the vinyl is the same throughout.

Corrosion does not occur since vinyl is basically inert and does not react chemically. It is so inert, in fact, that it is used in the form of plastic pipe resistant to the most corrosive liquids!

Vinyl is elastic and will not echo the sounds of rain and hail as will metallic sidings.

Wood and aluminum siding may cost a bit less at first. But, over a period

Hammers out . . .

It's time to fix up for saving's

As the fall season sets in, homeowners will be getting out the hammer and nails, taking advantage of the last of the good weather for home repairs and improvements.

Though the recession may be easing off, the cost of building or buying a new home is still beyond the reach of most families. So, the continuing trend is to make the most of the old house rather than move.

Winter planning
Remodelers are thinking ahead toward winter, and planning for the increased time spent indoors. They'll be converting basements, porches, attics and other "spare rooms" into extra living space. And, fixing up existing rooms — a fresh coat of paint, new paneling — raises the spirits when it's chilly outside.

The rising cost of fuel for home heating will be another major factor motivating homeowners to make improvements this season.

Many Americans are conserving energy out of concern for the growing worldwide environmental crisis. But many more will be acting just to help make ends meet.

Fuel saving

With utility companies all over the nation asking for price hikes, and no letup in sight, homeowners are apparently deciding it's worth the investment now to save fuel — sometimes in sizeable amounts — later.

These fuel-saving improvements run the gamut from the minor to radical.

Proper insulation will reduce fuel bills by half — and at the same time help conserve the nation's energy supply, according to the National Home Improvement Council.

If a home is more than 15 years old, it is most likely inadequately insulated. As a consequence the homeowner may be paying almost twice as much as he should to keep his house comfortable, since poor insulation can result in the waste of 45% of all the fuel consumed.

Common sense

Many a home-improvement job can be safely done without a contractor (depending on local building codes). Often enough, all that's required is reading the instructions, common sense, care and patience.

Some dollars and sense ways to creative improvements

If the idea of taking on a hefty home improvement loan gives you the willies, it's time you learn what today's great wall-coverings can do.

Starting small
Admittedly, a wall-covering cannot stand in for a new roof. But it'll no doubt surprise you how much else it can do.

So before you raise the roof, knock down walls, put in more windows, or whatever, check these ideas from the Wallcovering Industry Bureau. They can save you a pretty penny.

You can turn most any architectural minus into a plus with the pattern power of wallcoverings.

Creative cover-up

Be it dormer walls, structural beams, or uneven and oddly placed windows that irritate you, they can be handled with a small, all-over design. And if you use matching fabric for curtains, those funny-looking windows will blend right into the wall.

Got too many doors? Make them less conspicuous by covering them to match the walls.

Room too dark? Then bring in the sun with a really bright wallcovering. Perhaps a daisy-sprinkled pattern. Or a buttercup-yellow shiny vinyl.

Atmosphere

Use dark colors, prominent patterns on all walls if your problem is a too large room. This will "close in" the room. Good design choices: ornate tree-of-life and tapestry designs.

To cool a southern exposure room, consider the icy gleam of silver foil. And bring coziness of a northern exposure room with calico or gingham patterns in dark browns, yellows, orange. Or choose a damask or flopped design in some rich color. If you want something more formal.

Down to earth

Too high ceilings won't look as lofty if you treat them to a dark color or dramatic design. Or try a border at ceiling level, to break the height.

If the ceilings are too low, use a wall design that leads the eye upward. Such as a vertical stripe.

Give an all-white, outdated bath a new lease on life with a fabulous vinyl wallcovering. Go all out with color and pattern in this room where you spend relatively little time.

Vinyl wallcoverings are also a must in an outdated kitchen. They can really banish the kitchen blues. Also consider masking scarred or dull cabinet fronts with a terrific vinyl pattern.

Cover ugly pipes and ducts to match the walls. They'll "vanish" into the walls right before your eyes. Small patterns are easiest to work with for this purpose.

Dress it up
A chair rail with coordinated wallcoverings above and below will add architectural interest to a plain room.

A mural is super for a windowless room. You can treat yourself to a "view" of Cannes, a mountain lake, wild woods . . . whatever strikes your fancy. And DO try to hang those wallcoverings yourself. It's easy, it's fun, and you'll save important dollars.

More ideas
Booklets on how to decorate with wallcoverings and how to hang them are available from the Wallcovering Industry Bureau, 1099 Wall Street West, Lyndhurst, N.J. 07071. Send 50 cents for postage and handling.
