Dole invades Southland

By DEAN REYNOLDS United Press International

Gerald Ford, accused by some of writing off the South to Jimmy Carter, is making a two-pronged attack against that charge in the calm immediately preceding the stormy election campaign.

First, Ford sent running mate Robert Dole to the Southland as a show of his concern that the criticism is unwarranted. Dole, with the help of his wife Liddy, a North Carolina native, stumped the Carolinas and Georgia this week promising that the GOP is seeking to broaden its base, even to the home country of the Democratic presidential nominee.

Second, Ford managed another show of party unity Thursday with the announcement he had enlisted Ronald Reagan's support in a telephone conversation. The President, mindful of Reagan's Southern support, said the former California governor and defeated rival for the GOP nomination agreed to do whatever he could for the campaign.

But even as the attempt to unify the wings of the party proceeded, a late Gallup Poll showed Ford had drifted farther behind Carter, 52 to 37 per cent nationwide. Ford, who met with liberal Republicans at the White House Thursday, was to announce today the time and place for his traditional campaign opener, and reports indicated it may involve a speech at his alma mater, the University of Michigan.

In a display of the GOP's Southern effort, North Carolina Gov. James Holshouser, after meeting with Dole, said the ticket will do well in the South despite Carter, adding "I don't think there's any question that come Nov. 2 you will see North Carolina in the Ford-Dole column."

Carter, like Ford, running a low key campaign over the last few days, plans to open his race next week at Warm Springs, Ga. He and running mate Walter Mondale dined together in Plains Thursday night and planned a strategy session for today.

In a speech Thursday at Salisbury, N.C., Dole acknowledged that the GOP had neglected certain areas and types of voters, but then said, "We are going to have to attract the blacks and the Spanish-speaking and others to the Republican Party to give people everywhere in all walks of life some reason to be attracted to the Republican Party." Mondale visited Kansas City, Mo., before his departure for Georgia and told an organization of state legislators that they "should be given a bigger role in the federal-state relationship."

In third party activity Thursday, an unlikely alliance emerged. Lester Maddox, the American Independent Party presidential nominee, and Peter Camejo, the Socialist Workers Party candidate both denounced the planned debates between Carter and the President.

"We want to see the Ford-Carter debate take place," Camejo said. "But we think the debate should be broadened to include all viewpoints."

Development Act referendum turned down by directors

By GREG PEARSON Herald Reporter

Concerned about taking decisions away from the voting public, the Board of Directors unanimously agreed Thursday night not to make the City and Town Development Act a referendum question in the Nov. 2 election.

Passed in August 1975, the act was developed to help Connecticut cities and towns attract industry. It grants broad borrowing powers to municipalities and allows communities to offer special tax abatements to help interest business.

Before it can be used in a community, the act must be approved by public referendum. Thursday night's 7-0 vote by the board (Paschal Prignano and Phyllis Jackson were absent) prevents such approval, at least for now.

"That's the biggest thing that worries me about this act," Zinsner said. "It takes the vote out of the hands of the people." Board member Vivian Ferguson said she was against putting an "if-ly" question to referendum.

"I feel there are good points in the act, but there are too many questions and too many problems," she said. Another concern of the board, and also of people who spoke at the hearing, was that there would not be enough time to inform and educate voters on the act before Nov. 2.

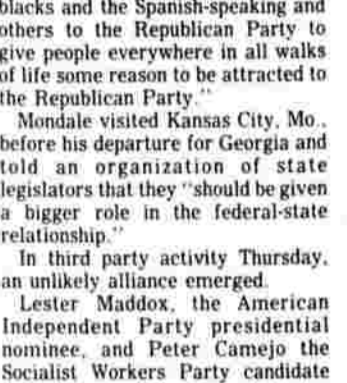

He pointed to one part of the act that allows a town's governing body (in Manchester, the Board of Directors) to establish revenue bonding issues for borrowing capital without approval by the voters.

Zinsner said that this conflicts with the town charter, which specifies that all bonding issues must be voted on by the public. He then asked Town Counsel Victor Moses if the City and Town Development Act would override the town charter. Moses said that it would.

Board member Jack Goldberg suggested that the board take a "wait-and-see" attitude about the act. "Manchester is in sound economic health. My position is we should wait and see how some of the larger cities use this tool. It's like a Yankee tradition - Wait and see how the

Report recommends 4% hike for town fire fighters pay

By DOUG BEVINS Herald Reporter

A fact-finding report by the state Board of Mediation and Arbitration has recommended that Town of Manchester fire fighters get a four per cent wage increase in each year of a two-year contract.

The report, submitted by William Post of New Haven, also recommends settlement in favor of the town on several other issues raised in a fact-finding session between the town and the local fire fighters union.

Town Manager Robert Weiss said he will refer the fact-finding report to town directors with the recommendation that it be accepted. Union President Harold Pohl said union leadership would meet this afternoon to discuss the report and suggest action.

It appeared likely that fire fighters might reject the fact-finder's recommendations. If that happens, the next step in contract negotiations is compulsory binding arbitration. Post's report recommends wage increases of four per cent retroactive to July 1, 1976, and another four per cent increase on July 1, 1977.

Police gear up for holiday

By United Press International

The closing of the work day today meant the beginning of summer's least busy time for police officers in the nation, a week of clam bakes, beach parties, picnics, backyard barbecues and billions of miles of driving.

Police departments across the country geared up today to handle the holiday throngs of motorists. National Safety Council President Vincent Tofany estimates motorists will travel about 13.1 billion miles during the long holiday weekend, which begins at 6 p.m. local time today and ends at midnight Monday night.

He also estimates that 360 to 460 people could be killed - a death toll of 4.2 per 100 million miles traveled - and another 15,000 to 18,000 disabled in traffic mishaps during the 78-hour holiday fling.

Tofany said 407 persons died in traffic accidents during the Labor Day holiday last year, when motorists traveled some 12.6 billion miles - a half billion miles less than expected for this weekend.

"This increased mileage for the holiday means increased exposure to danger for the country's motorists and to their passengers," Tofany warned. Police braced for the holiday onslaught and patrols were beefed up in many states.

New Jersey State Police expect to keep an eye on some 1.54 million vehicles on the New Jersey Turnpike during the weekend and officials asked troopers and toll collectors to watch out for "drinking, erratic and fatigued drivers."

Bob Holcz, deputy director of the Iowa Department of Public Safety, said six airplanes will be scanning the state's highways from "sunrise to sunset."

"There will be no crackdown (on motorists) as such, but we will try to be where the action is, we will be looking for drinking drivers because there seems to be a bit more out during holidays," Holcz said. The American Automobile Association says the travel also will cost only a little more this weekend than during the Fourth of July weekend. The Association says gasoline prices will average less than a cent above Fourth of July prices.

Bradley improvements vital to state's future

The customer may not always be right, but we think his views can be helpful to those who are responsible for the planning of public facilities. A case in point is Bradley International Airport. The recent retirement of Herbert Preissner, who managed the facility for ten years, brought to light his views on what the state should be considering to enhance and expand the facility which provides the major air-link for hundreds of thousands between the Boston and New York City metropolitan areas. Of particular concern to us, as an occasional user of the airport facilities, is that no major changes have been made in recent years and the establishment of additional shops still doesn't compensate for the sometimes frustrating process of getting our baggage. We are aware that the terminal was designed before the mandatory security checks were imposed to reduce the chances of airplane hijackings. We are aware that when the facility was designed and first put to use, it was probably more than adequate for the then traffic load it had to handle. But much as happened since then. We think high priority should be given to improving and speeding up the baggage handling process. We think serious consideration must be given to reducing the congestion that now exists at the entries of concourses especially when you have both incoming and outgoing flights overlapping in a time frame. There is something about overcrowding that has a bad psychological effect on all of us and thus adversely affects the desire to use air travel. After these things are taken care of we think passenger boarding facilities, improved passenger information services and other amenities that we get at other major airports should be considered. Bradley is an asset to the state and the region and it would be penny-wise and pound foolish to let it stagnate. The airlines do a fair job of keeping passengers happy once on board; the obligation of the Bradley International Airport management and owners (and that is all of us) is to make the pre-flight and post-flight portions of air travel as pleasant as possible. We hope customers will let the airport board know their wishes. This might be what is needed to convince the legislature and others that Bradley is one of the state's major travel assets and should be improved, not put on the back burner.

Unequal time

The "equal time" doctrine has caused endless dither among the FCC, politicians, and the public. Several years ago the New York radio interviewer Barry Farber was forced to share his microphone with a Trotskyite girl when he ran for Congress. During Governor Reagan's candidacy, television reruns of his old movies were blocked out by the FCC on the grounds that epics like "Dark Victory" and "Bedtime for Bonzo" would give him an unfair advantage over President Ford. But what about the proposed Ford-Carter debates?

Readers wants hospital visiting rules relaxed

To the editor: We are writing this letter to present an issue of significance for a segment of the public utilizing the services at the Manchester Memorial Hospital. The issue centers around the right of a child under 14 years of age to visit with his mother and her sibling during their stay in the maternity unit of the hospital. The old taboo of not allowing children into a hospital center has focused on the objection that they carry germs. This is nonsense as adult visitors are equally capable of carrying infections. Although children might carry some germs more dangerous to newborns, this danger can be dealt with by having young visitors checked beforehand. All that is required would be to alter the existing procedure slightly to eliminate whatever hazards exist, hazards emphasized to maintain the separation of mother and child for the convenience of the hospital staff. Being a family oriented experience in which all the members are dramatically affected by the addition of this new member, to rigidly exclude any member is totally insensitive and, in fact, can be a traumatic experience for the sibling. A child requires the chance to see that his mother is all right. Being left out is inhuman and might contribute markedly to feelings of fear and hostility and might indeed increase sibling rivalry. A reassurance of a visit would relieve the child's anxieties, self-distorted fears andangers due to a separation. He is an important person who needs to share in the emotions of this event. We have not as yet received any official response from Mr. Kenney, administrator at Manchester Memorial Hospital to our letter dated May 19, 1976. We learned through a nursing staff member that additional space might be available by the end of October when an adjacent medical official plans were not yet stated which might very well indicate further and continuing delay in such progress. We write to you in the hopes of making more people aware, concerned and supportive which in itself brings about more rapid change and progress. Very truly yours, David and Marjorie Schneider 17 Mountain Rd. Mansfield, Ct. 06250

Army field ration defender taken to task

Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON—Important things also are discussed in Washington these days. A letter to the Evening Star by one Don Wyckoff on the merits of prepackaged field rations forced on GIs during World War II is the subject of learned debate in assorted drawing rooms and booze joints. I am constrained to join the anti-Wyckoff forces. Wyckoff, apparently so enjoyed those rations that he has suggested the average journalist's diet and disposition would be improved by regular ingestion of the stuff. Army big shots insisted was food. Fugh! First, it is well known that these days, it is well known that good-natured and charming, never happier than when among their flowers. Their occasional bouts of indignation are produced by the blunders of politicians, not by what they eat and drink. Antigrowth hormone for federal budget?

Don Oakley

Once breathed into life, federal programs, like Topsy, just grow. And grow. In the past 10 years, federal spending has gone up 180 per cent, but revenues are up only 130 per cent. Annual deficits have risen from $3.6 billion in fiscal 1966 to nearly $70 billion in fiscal 1976. The national debt recently amounts to more than $900 billion for every household in the country. There are all kinds of reasons for this, not least of which is the public's demand for more and more government services (but not higher taxes to pay for them). But another, which has been receiving increasing attention, is the fact that in preparing the vastly complicated federal budget every year, the most Congress is usually able to do is to focus on the increases invariably requested by the departments and agencies. Rarely does it demand justification of a program itself, or inquire whether it is serving its intended purpose, or whether its results have been worth its costs, or whether it is overlapped or duplicated by some other program. Lately, however, a lot of people have been talking about administering an antigrowth hormone to our federal Topsy in the form of something called "zero-based budgeting." Under zero-based budgeting, Congress would be required to examine all aspects of a spending program from scratch, not merely requested increases. The idea is not a new one, having been pioneered in private industry and first proposed to Congress back in 1972 by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. But now it would be embodied in a law, known as the Government Economy and Spending Reform Act of 1976, being pushed by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Me., and co-sponsored by some 50 other members. In the House, more than 100 members are sponsoring similar legislation. Like the perennial subject of tax reform, zero-based budgeting may be a will of the wisp. Its supporters agree that a thorough-going review of federal spending would be a massive job, but say it could be done on a staggered basis over a period of several years, as has been proposed in the not-unrelated matter of reforming the government's regulatory agencies. Also, the process would be aided by a self-destruct mechanism built into the plan. That is, spending programs would automatically terminate at a given date unless Congress, after review, decided otherwise. Call it zero-based budgeting or a sunset law on federal spending, something has to be done lest Topsy eat us out of house and home.

Today's thought

The disciplined life Without physical disciplines, our spiritual life grows flabby and weak, useless in times of testing. There are many people on diets whose only weakness has been lack of discipline when eating their meals. These people soon realize that unless they get back into shape, their life may be shortened, and many of the things they want to do will be impossible to do because of the lack of physical tone. Our faith life, too, grows weak from lack of proper disciplines. The need of growth is needed in our spiritual life. So God speaks to us in various ways, often through the still small voice within. But God also speaks to us through the corporate worship experience, as we meet in fellowship with God's people. Here we can sense the warmth of His presence, the richness of the fellowship, and find the strength to know and to do His will. Therefore encourage one another and build one another up, just as you are doing." (I Thess. 5:11) Rev. Alex H. Ellsesser Community Baptist Church

Giles now less optimistic about public works funds

Manchester hospital notes

After attending a session on the Public Works Employment Act, Director of Public Works Jay A. Giles said he is a bit less optimistic than before about the amount of money Manchester will obtain through the act. The work session, held Tuesday in Boston, was attended by public works directors and town administrators from several eastern states, Giles said. At the meeting, he found out that Connecticut will receive about $42 million through the act, which provides federal funding for local public works projects. No state was to receive more than 12 per cent, or less than 5 per cent, of the $2 billion being made available nationally through the program. Connecticut's $42 million total represents slightly more than 2 per cent of the total amount available nationwide. But, Giles said, there is no provision preventing all the money for one state from going to just a few communities. Projects being considered for funding will be rated based on the amount of unemployment in the area, the number of jobs created by the project, the effect the work will have on the area, and other factors. Giles had said last week that a stipulation requiring a state's funds to be equitably distributed among interested towns can still be added to the act. He said it might be possible that a stipulation requiring a state's funds to be equitably distributed among interested towns can still be added to the act. He still feels some of the act's money will come to Manchester, but he is a bit more cautious. "Knowing Connecticut will get $42 million, I'm less optimistic than I was before about Manchester's chances," he said.

Discharged Wednesday: Rachel J. Crombolone, 22 Grove St., Rockville; Linda R. Dunn, Storrs; Joan B. Danner, 221 Lake Rd., Andover; Ann Crowley, 168 Woodbridge St., Francis Lacrosse, Broad Brook; James Y. Davis, Warehouse Point; Ivan N. Kessler, 374 Vernon St. Also, Evelyn M. Cooley, 8 Cottage St.; Patricia J. Berrill, 55A Hilliard St.; Sandra J. Knowles, Forge Rd., Coventry; Raymond Ryan, Windsorville; Cynthia J. Greenman, 27 Pine Knob Circle, South Windsor.

Barry urges review of criminal codes

State Sen. David M. Barry, who is seeking re-election in the Fourth Senatorial District, asked for a complete review of Connecticut's criminal laws with particular emphasis on penalties. In a letter to Sen. David Neiditz and Rep. James Healy, co-chairmen of the Judiciary Committee, Barry wrote, "I believe that penalties should be less flexible for repeat offenders if they are to serve as a deterrent. Barry suggested serious consideration be given to legislation mandating non-suspendable sentences for second offenders of all crimes involving physical violence and for repeat offenders of crimes against property. "Our citizens are entitled to feel safe in their homes and on the streets of Connecticut. I believe that nothing would reduce the incidence of violent crime as quickly as the certainty of incarceration once guilt is established," he said. Barry suggested serious consideration be given to legislation mandating non-suspendable sentences for second offenders of all crimes involving physical violence and for repeat offenders of crimes against property.

Town Hall closed for Labor Day

The Municipal Building will be closed Monday, Sept. 6 for Labor Day. The following emergency telephone numbers will be in service: Highway, 649-5070; Refuse, 649-1886; and Sanitary Sewer and Water, 649-8877. "It seems odd to me that a person convicted of a second offense of drunken driving must serve a mandatory sentence of sixty days and yet someone who has committed acts of physical violence more than once can still avoid jail," he said.

Tidewater has moved up from eighth (last) place to sixth in the standings with a chance to finish as high as third.

NEW YORK (UPI) - The Pittsburgh Pirates are playing it just as cool in their time of hope as are the Philadelphia Phillies in their time of troubles.

The Phillies, who have lost six straight games, are refusing to panic. And the Pirates, who have won seven in a row, are refusing to claim a Philadelphia collapse is imminent.

The Pirates could have begun to sound the bells of alarm Thursday night when they defeated the San Diego Padres, 5-0, to run their winning streak to seven straight games and cut the Phillies' lead to nine games. The Phillies held a 15-game lead only six games ago and are hobbled by a variety of injuries involving Greg Luzinski, Dick Allen and Dave Cash.

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) - Takashi Murakami says he is not the Jack Nicklaus of Japan.

Jack Nicklaus says, however, he wouldn't mind being the Takashi Murakami of the United States.

Murakami, a master among the greens and out of the sand, shot a three-under-par 67 Thursday on the Firestone Country Club South Course to share first place with Dave Hill in the $300,000 World Series of Golf.

He feels almost everything went right for him, said Kawata. "He feels no pressure right now, but maybe tomorrow or Saturday it may hit him."

Hill, who said he had "the unhealthy feeling I might go off when I started," instead "basically played my best."

31 games remaining '500 or bust' R Sox slogan

BOSTON (UPI) - If the Boston Red Sox were to make up a slogan to apply to the remainder of the 1976 season, it would read, "500 or bust."

Until the last few weeks the 1976 American League champions were more of a bust than a 500 team but they just completed an 8-5 homestand.

While the record was not that impressive, it brought Boston to 63-68 for the season, with 31 games remaining.

Had they played as well all season as they did on the homestand, the Red Sox would have recorded a 104-42 record, good enough to challenge the New York Yankees in the American League East. In 1975, the Red Sox won the pennant with a 95-65 mark.

They still have an outside chance to finish second, although they trail the Baltimore Orioles by 4 1/2 games. But Manager Don Zimmer's right arm is concerned with the standings.

"Right now, I'd give my right arm to finish at 500 and let whatever falls fall," said Zimmer about the race to 500.

To reach Zimmer's goal the Red Sox must win 18 more games this season, starting tonight in the opener of a four-game series at Cleveland. They have 16 games left on the road and 15 at Fenway Park, where they still could attract 2 million fans for the season with an average of 25,000 fans the rest of the way.

Luis Tiant, the lone pitching star on a disappointing staff, goes after his 17th win tonight against Jackie Brown, 8-9. Tiant, 37, has a chance for his third 20-game winning season in the past four years.

Defeat brings on tears

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) - Splish, splash, lie Nastase and Jimmy Connors were taking a bath, and the crowd loved it.

Way back on Court 36, far away from the stadium where feature matches are played, the clown princes of tennis staged a half-hour exhibition in the pouring rain Wednesday at the $48,000 U.S. Open.

There is some question whether Jenkins, 32, will be able to recuperate sufficiently to continue his major league career.

While Barlowe, another injured Boston player was to make the road trip with the team. The third-year player took the fun out of tennis for most of the other players and crowd.

Tournament officials, worried about giving out rain-checks, finally decided to delay the weather and, as play resumed, the depression set in thicker.

Nastase, who won by forfeit in the first round against injured Onny Parun, gets a chance to play his first serious tennis today when he takes on crafty West German veteran Hans-Jürgen Pohmann.

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) - The Portland Trail Blazers have traded two starters in three weeks in the hopes of abandoning the NBA Pacific cellar.

Portland Thursday sold Sidney Wicks, who has his option year coming up, for an undisclosed amount of cash to the New Orleans Jazz.

Four team members in third nationals

Packed and en route for the trip to Chattanooga, Tenn., for the Amateur Softball Association's Major Division National Tournament is Brown's Tires of Manchester.

For four members of the Slow pitch Connecticut champions, it will be their third trip to the Nationals as members of a local squad - Barbara Malcom, Jean McAdam, Marge Malone and Betsy Gilmartin were all wearing the colors of Brown's Tires.

Although sponsored locally, the bulk of the team was recruited from the Connecticut communities. Home talent is supplied by McAdam, Marianne Pemberton, Judy Lauder and Gail Shimaitis.

Employment for Shimaitis is as an optical apprentice. Persons works at a Dairy Queen and Lauder is on the local Rec Department summer staff.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) - First baseman Dick Allen, playing all season without a contract, has signed a one-year pact with the Philadelphia Phillies.

There had been reports Allen received $250,000 last year after his acquisition from the Atlanta Braves and was asked to take a cut earlier this year.

NEW YORK (UPI) - The New York Yankees Thursday traded reserve infielder Andy Seligridge to the Miami Dolphins for an undisclosed draft choice.

BOSTON (UPI) - Ferguson Jenkins of the Boston Red Sox was listed in satisfactory condition Thursday after undergoing surgery for repair of a torn Achilles tendon.

Board job part of parent career

East Hartford
By SHEILA TULLER

Mrs. Dorothy Carey and daughter Eileen consider the first dress she will wear to kindergarten this fall. (Herald photo by Tuller)

The first day of school has always been special for Dorothy Carey of East Hartford. This one, Sept. 8, 1976, will mark another new beginning in a long list of "first" school days for Mrs. Carey.

In recent years, the first day of school meant getting husband, Joseph, and children off to school. He is a guidance counselor at Fox Middle School in Hartford.

The Carey children, Martha and Maureen attend Penney High and Michael and John are students at O'Connell Middle School.

This year, the youngest member of the family, Eileen, will start kindergarten at Barnes School.

After getting ready for all those first school days, most mothers would take it easy for awhile — but not Dorothy Carey.

Mrs. Carey has followed board happenings for years because of her own children and her interest in education. She thinks the East Hartford school system has vastly improved in the past 10 years and will continue to improve because of constant evaluations. She said the board and administration are always looking for ways to improve and upgrade programs.

Retain goals

She hopes this philosophy will continue despite declining enrollments and talk of closing schools.

"We still have to retain our goals," she said. "With a family of five, the Careys are kept busy with sporting and scouting activities. Martha, the oldest of the children, is interested in horticulture and started the family on gardening."

After the kids harvest the vegetables, mother takes over in the kitchen canning and making relishes. Not having time for collections or crafts, Mrs. Carey claims cooking and baking as hobbies because she loves working with food.

She does find time to be a teacher once a week. She teaches the First Communion class at Our Lady of Peace Church. She has been teaching CCD class since she enrolled her children in the program six years ago when the parish was established.

Mrs. Carey is sincerely enthusiastic about all her undertakings. She feels being a parent and teacher will be an asset to her as a board member. Having been involved with schools for so many years, Mrs. Carey also feels her appointment to the board evolved naturally — just the next step in her career as a parent and educator.

Going their own ways

Getting the horsing around out of their systems before school starts Wednesday are the four sons of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Miner of South Rd., Bolton. Each will attend a different school. Steven will be a senior at Bolton High School. Chris will be a freshman at Rockville Vo-Ag. Doug will be a Grade 7 student at Bolton Center and Gregg will begin his first year of school at Bolton Elementary. (Herald photo by Holland)

Morgan starts campaign

Vernon

Chester Morgan, Democratic candidate for State Representative from the 56th District (Vernon), will kick off his campaign with visits Sunday to the picnics at the Kosciusko Club and the Polish American Citizens Club.

Morgan said today his campaign will be "punctuated by broad contact with Vernon voters." He plans to start his door-to-door campaign Sept. 7.

"Accessibility, which will be the bench mark of my service as state representative, will begin as I open my campaign. It is my sincere wish to be representative of the ideas of the town and to that end I seek to meet people at every opportunity," Morgan said.

During the coming weeks Morgan will also be speaking before several Vernon clubs and visiting local places of business and industry.

A series of coffee hours will be planned in all areas of town to allow people to meet Morgan in their own neighborhoods.

Morgan will be opposing Republican Morgan Campbell in the November elections. Campbell is a member of the Vernon Town Council. The seat both men seek is now held by Martin Burke, Democrat. Burke chose not to run again.

Esther Clarke charges nepotism

EAST HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Freedom of Information Commission plans a Sept. 24 hearing to determine whether Democratic Mayor Richard Blackstone and the town must make public information on the hiring of summer employees.

Town Council Minority Leader Esther Clarke asked for the hearing after failing her attempts to learn whether employees were related to town employees and political leaders.

"Nepotism, that's what I'm implying might be going on here," she said. Mrs. Clarke said she had recognized about 89 names out of 150 kids hired by the town this summer.

Mayor calls for funds for civil preparedness

Vernon

Responding to a suggestion of Gov. Ella Grasso, Mayor Thomas Benoit, this week, wrote Congressman Chris Dodd asking his help in restoring funding for the UConn Civil Preparedness Training Program.

In a letter to the chief executives and civil preparedness directors of state towns, Gov. Grasso said the UConn program will be terminated Sept. 30.

"The action is because of a cut in the national civil preparedness budget and a redirection of funding within that agency," the governor said.

"The agency believes that the work should be continued but at the expense of individual cities and towns," the governor said.

The program has helped prepare disaster emergency plans, conducted radiological instructor training, radiological defense officer training, civil defense management, and disaster exercises for municipal officials, she said.

She said the cities and towns cannot absorb the expense of the program. She said she has written to Connecticut congressmen and national civil preparedness officials urging that the program be continued by the Defense Civil Preparedness Agency.

"Action by the congressional delegation is vital to maintain this important program in the interest of the safety and security of all our citizens in time of disaster," the governor said.

Mayor Benoit, in his letter to Dodd, said, "It is difficult to understand why the monies were withdrawn, particularly at this time when our national defense system must be trained and ready for any emergency, whether it be enemy attack or a natural catastrophe such as a hurricane or tornado."

The House Hunters

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I signed a three-year lease for an apartment in a very expensive high-rise building, at which time the manager assured me that there would always be someone available to walk "Her Highness," my French poodle. I would not have rented the apartment without that stipulation, and it was my understanding that it was written into my lease.

Everything was fine for 14 months. The elevator man, the guard, the janitor or the manager himself would walk Her Highness regularly.

Well, the building changed ownership, and the new manager instructed all the help that they were not to walk any dogs on company time!

When I told the new manager that it had been written into my lease, he laughed and said I must be kidding. I then phoned my lawyer, who checked my lease, and he said it had not been written in!

What do I do now?

STUMPED IN CHICAGO

DEAR STUMPED: Make new arrangements to have Her Highness walked. Trying to hold the new management to an agreement you had with the old management will be a royal headache.

DEAR ABBY: I am 21 and Rick is 20. We've been going steady for three years and planned to marry last Christmas. I had the wedding invitations printed and started making plans when Rick said he wanted to wait a while. No reason. He just wanted to wait.

At Easter we set the wedding for June. I had some more wedding invitations printed and had my wedding gown put on layaway. My girlfriends even had some showers for me. Then Rick decided to wait until autumn. Again no reason. He says he still loves me, but I'm starting to wonder now. I am so embarrassed and hurt. I told him if he doesn't go through with it this time, we're finished. He says he still wants me to be his girlfriend, no matter what. Tell me what to do.

HUMILIATED

DEAR HUMILIATED: Face it, dear. Rick isn't ready for marriage, and you're lucky he had the sense and courage to admit it. Better a broken engagement than a broken marriage. Make a clean break, and don't be his "girlfriend." It won't work.

DEAR ABBY: I have lived steadily with a man (we are both over 21) for nearly two years. I kept thinking he would marry me, but whenever I mention it, he changes the subject.

Exactly how long do people have to live together before they have what is called a "common law marriage?" How does a woman prove she's lived with a man if there is nothing in writing? In this time, we're finished. He says he still wants to be his girlfriend, no matter what. Tell me what to do.

DEAR HITCH: The laws differ from state to state, so you will need a lawyer to answer your questions. Why don't you just ask him how much he thinks your wifely services are worth in dollars and cents? But prepare yourself for a big disappointment.

True, two of the three pairs who bid six clubs made it. The other pair lost to an inspired diamond lead by East. The bad diamond break beat the six diamond bidders, but the great majority of players stopped at the nine, safe trump contract.

We show the hand here because it is one of those hands that has a catch to bid right after the game is over. Even today we doubt if many pairs in the finale which of the world's championship would get to that fine trump slam.

We also doubt if Ted and Mike would get there if they gave them the hand to bid today. Somehow or other modern science would not allow for Mike's final jump to six notrump which certainly was the winning bid.

Dayton school desegregation carried out very smoothly

By TIM MILLER
United Press International
The first day of busing "giggling, vivacious" black and white children in Dayton, Ohio, went so smoothly that a woman whose husband leads an antibusing group says her son will attend school next week.

Officials in Louisville, Ky., are elated at the peaceful beginning of the school year in Jefferson County, racked last year by violence over a court imposed busing-desegregation plan.

Dayton's intergration program was Ohio's first.

Mrs. Dale Wilkins, whose husband led an informal group of about 60 antibusing parents, kept her 7-year-old son out of school Thursday because she feared for his safety.

But she said she would send her son to school Tuesday because the program apparently is working, though the antibusing group probably still will seek alternatives to busing.

School Supt. John B. Maxwell said buses made about 1,000 stops to pick up "a lot of giggling, vivacious youngsters — nothing new on opening day" and delivered them to 62 schools.

A random sample of six elementary and three high schools in the southwestern Ohio city of 250,000, however, showed an absentee rate of 23 per cent, up 18 per cent from last year's first day of classes in the same schools. This meant out of a projected 5,143 students, 3,942 showed up.

Maxwell said the absentee rate does not concern him because many children were taking part in 4-H activities at the county and state fairs.

In Louisville, Kentucky's largest system completes the first week of its second year under a federal court school desegregation order.

Antibusing leaders plan demonstrations tonight and another Sunday night, the latter to mark the anniversary of riots in Jefferson County, south of the city limits, last Sept. 5, one day after U.S. District Judge James F. Gordon's desegregation plan took effect.

"If anyone across the country, sitting home watching television, thinks the peaceful opening of schools here yesterday means this community has accepted court-ordered busing, they're dead wrong," Mrs. Jean Ruffa, the most outspoken opponent of busing on the Jefferson County Board of Education, said Thursday. Total enrollment reached nearly 90 per cent of the projected 117,000 Thursday, up about 8,000 from Wednesday's opening school day — and far higher than attendance figures for the first week of school last year.

Swine flu decisions due next Wednesday

Two towns that had originally planned to join with Manchester in the swine flu immunization program have decided to do the work on their own.

Dr. Alice J. Turek, director of health, said that both Glastonbury and South Windsor have opted for organizing immunization programs on their own.

This means that Manchester will now work with just Bolton in flu immunization organization.

Dr. Turek said that dates and times for flu immunization clinics will be finalized Wednesday, Sept. 8. Tentative dates and times have been set, and local health officials will meet with the state on Wednesday for final approval.

Also, Dr. Turek feels that there will be no problem concerning a shortage of swine flu vaccine in the state.

She said the state, with a population of 3 million, only has enough vaccine for 1 1/2 million inoculations.

But, she said, tests have shown the swine flu shots are not very effective for people under the age of 18. Tests also showed that the bivalent vaccine, which will be used for high-risk patients, is strong enough so that half of the previously required dose can be used and still be effective in preventing the flu.

"I feel that we will have enough vaccine for those who need it," she said.

Darrell Johnson named to manage Seattle club

SEATTLE (UPI) — Darrell Johnson, depoted as Boston manager earlier this season after guiding the Red Sox to the American League pennant a year ago, was named today to manage the new Seattle Mariners.

Speculation on who would manage major league baseball's Seattle expansion team had centered on Johnson and former Cleveland Indian pitching star Bob Lemon, until today's announcement by Lester Smith, managing general partner of the Mariners.

Johnson, 49, was named major league manager of the year in 1975 by The Sporting News for his performance in guiding the Red Sox to the AL pennant and extending the powerful Cincinnati Reds to seven games in the World Series.

Johnson, a former major league catcher with a career batting average of .234, managed seven years in the minors before going to Boston. He guided Elmira, N.Y., to the pennant in the Eastern League, and Louisville to a pennant in the International League during his minor-league managing stint.

Michael Kozak, 24, of 21 River St., Rockville, was charged Thursday with failure to grant the right of way at an intersection after a two-car accident at W. Main and Spring Streets.

The driver of the second car was Ethel Luce of Weigold Rd., Tolland. Kozak and a passenger in the Luce car, Elizabeth Janesen, 12, of Weigold Rd., were treated at Rockville General Hospital. Kozak is to appear in court in Rockville, Sept. 17.

State unions at odds; may delay elections

HARTFORD (UPI) — Representatives of a state employee's union charged today the state was giving preferential treatment to a competing union seeking to organize state workers.

Michael Ferrucci, executive director of Council 16, American Federation of State, County, and Municipal employees, said state officials would prefer to bargain with the Connecticut State Employee's Association.

The two unions are vying for the right to represent 40,000 state workers in collective bargaining. Ferrucci said the state wanted CSEA to represent state workers because it could make a "cheaper" settlement with the rival group.

CSEA had charged Thursday that AFSCME had threatened to file those charges and delay the union-election process if CSEA did not drop an unfair labor practice charge pending against AFSCME.

CSEA lawyer Barry Scheinberg said AFSCME had threatened to delay the union-selection process by filing the unfounded but time-consuming complaint unless CSEA withdrew its charges against AFSCME.

Scheinberg said the threat was made two weeks ago by two AFSCME organizers — Richard Massman and Donald Pogue — to CSEA Associate Executive Director John Thomson.

Massman and Pogue wanted the CSEA to drop its charges against AFSCME involving unfair labor practices during the state Corrections Department's election of bargaining unit two months ago, he said.

Scheinberg said if AFSCME succeeds in delaying the selection process, it could mean state employees will not be able to negotiate a contract with the state until well into next year.

The battle between the two groups began after 1975 legislature gave state employees the right to join unions and have them negotiate their salaries and working conditions.

CSEA covers 21,000 state employees and AFSCME has only 5,000 but bills itself as the most active of the two.

Seven groups of state employees already have chosen the unions they want to represent them, and nine more remain to select their unions.

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) - The first pictures of the Mars Utopia were transmitted to Earth early today from Viking 2 lander showing a surface stretching to the horizon. The photos were delayed for nine hours by communication problems.

They indicated the lander on a 10-degree slope down with a footpad on a mission control said.

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) - Allan Howe, D-Utah, charged, intends to file election charges despite repudiation by his own party and public opinion showing he has no chance of winning.

Howe, a freshman Democrat, was indicted for police decoy prostitutes. Friday he will stay in jail during the congressional race.

"I will stand by my record and my innocence in this case."
