State

HARTFORD — Sen. Robert D. Hooley, D-Vernon, wants the state's daily lottery program to get under way so the state can collect an expected $10 million already included in this fiscal year's budget. The lottery, based on the three-digit number used in the illegal numbers racket, was to have started in July.

WETHERSFIELD — Stanley A. Macbeth, a Simsbury Republican, has been sworn in as the newest member of the Commission on Special Revenue, which supervises legalized gambling in Connecticut. He was appointed to the part-time post by Senate Minority Leader Lewis B. Rome.

HARTFORD — Gloria Schaffer, looking to revive labor support for her Senate candidacy, is counting on a 12-hour flying visit to the area by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Min., who will attend a get-together tonight with labor leaders. Mrs. Schaffer trails Sen. Lowell P. Weicker in the polls and has failed to get the wholehearted support of labor traditionally given a Democratic candidate for the Senate.

Regional

BOSTON — A call for a citywide strike of Boston's 14,000 cab drivers has apparently gained little momentum. The strike call is in response to Logan International Airport increases in limousine services and fees charged cabbies serving the facility.

BOSTON — Boston schools won't be normal for years, but the start of classes this year offers a glimmer of hope that the racial turmoil that erupted in 1974 when court-ordered desegregation began may someday subside.

EXETER, N. H. — Eleven anti-nuclear demonstrators were sentenced to six months in jail Wednesday for their part in the first known mass occupation in the United States of a nuclear power plant construction site.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Gov. George Wallace announces his 37-year-old wife bugged his bedroom telephone, but refuses to explain what he says is a "domestic matter."

DETROIT — Henry Ford II, whose decision to accept or reject union contract demands may trigger a strike against his company next Tuesday, says he's opposed in principle to giving auto workers more paid days off the job.

WASHINGTON — In a move that delighted "Star Trek" fans, President Ford has decided to name the orbiting laboratory for the space shuttle program the "Enterprise" — the name of the spaceship in the popular 1960's television series. The orbiter is to be unveiled Sept. 17 at Rockwell International's plant in Palmdale, Calif.

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Heavy fighting flares across Beirut after rightist leader Camille Chamoun announces Syria and Lebanon's Christians have agreed on how to end the 17-month civil war.

TOKYO — The Soviet pilot who defected to Japan in a top secret jet leaves today for the United States to seek political asylum. The highly sophisticated MiG25 fighter he used to flee Russia, is expected to be returned to the Soviets in about a month — presumably after American defense experts have completed examining the plane.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — Stone-throwing rioters looted stores in white area near Cape Town early today, despite warnings by Prime Minister John Vorster of tough new measures to curb the antigovernment violence.

Mao and President Ford

Delage pleads guilty to Weatherley murder

VERNON (UPI) — Richard T. Delage, 31, pleaded guilty today to manslaughter in the death of Paget A. Weatherley, a University of Connecticut coed found shot to death Nov. 16, 1969 in a Bolton court. Sentencing was scheduled for Oct. 5 in Tolland County Superior Court where Delage, a former mechanical engineer, entered the guilty plea to the manslaughter charge.

Delage was apprehended in October 1975, when another woman hitchhiker said Delage allegedly picked her up and threatened her with a pistol. She escaped and furnished police with a description of Delage and his car.

Questioning of Delage, a UConn graduate living in Thompson, turned to the unsolved Weatherley case and Delage made a statement, police said.

He was later charged with the 1969 killing of Carol Segotta, a young school teacher, who was found shot dead in a parked car on the Taconic Parkway near Yorktown, N.Y.

Governor says state aid

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso said today 27 per cent of the state's $1.7 billion budget last year went to Connecticut's cities and towns.

Mrs. Grasso said the state paid $466,296,384 to cities and towns for the fiscal year ending June 30. Municipal officials have said Connecticut's financial problems have hit them hardest because they haven't gotten as much state help as they would like.

Most of that, $398,384,285 went for items such as tax abatement, aid to town welfare programs, health, criminal justice and education programs.

More than $60 million of the total was from bond funds for various capital projects.

Mrs. Grasso said the payments represented about the same proportion of the budget as in previous years, although the total increased because the budget did.

She said the figures did not reflect the more than $55 million in state payments into the teachers' retirement fund.

Judge Tedesco removed from bench, fined $250

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — Samuel J. Tedesco, the first sitting Superior Court judge convicted of a felony in Connecticut history, was removed from the bench and fined $250 today by Superior Court Judge Thomas J. O'Sullivan.

The former lieutenant governor and three-term mayor of Bridgeport faced a maximum penalty of removal, three years in prison and a $1,000 fine for notarizing a forged signature on a liquor permit application.

His sentencing on the June 29 conviction was postponed from Tuesday because of a death in the family of the prosecutor, Chief State Attorney Joseph T. Gormley Jr.

Tedesco, 60, a Democrat, was charged with breaking a state law that requires notaries public to witness the signing of documents they notarize. Violations are Class D felonies, the lowest category of felony.

Tedesco acknowledged during his trial that he notarized the 1975 liquor permit application of the Candlewood Valley Country Club in New Milford, partly owned by his family, although it was not signed in his presence.

But he said Michael Altieri, the country club's bartender, had consented to having someone else sign his name on the application. A country club investor has been charged with forging Altieri's name on the document.

Mao Tse-tung dies

HONG KONG (UPI) — Chinese Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung died today at the age of 82, ending a lifetime of turmoil and revolution that made him the ruler of more than 800 million Chinese — a quarter of all mankind.

Mao was the most powerful man in modern Chinese history and his death appeared certain to ignite another titanic struggle for power in the nation that has known no other leader in its 27-year history.

The Chinese, in spite of their choruses of "may Chairman Mao live 10,000 years," had been expecting his death for a long time. He had suffered several strokes and was reported to have Parkinson's disease. The streets of Peking were quiet but some reports from Peking said people were in tears.

In the mid-1960s Mao told foreigners he "was preparing to see God soon."

The official announcement of his death, broadcast by the New China News Agency, said his body will lie in state in the Great Hall of the People for a week beginning Saturday.

The announcement said that on Sept. 18 there will be a mass memorial service in Gate of Heavenly Peace square—an unprecedented ceremony that is to be televised live so that all Chinese can see it. Foreign dignitaries were told they would not be invited to China.

Then the people of China were told to stand in attention for three minutes beginning at 2 p.m. sharp on Sept. 18 while "all places and units with sirens, such as trains, ships, military vessels and factories, should sound their sirens for three minutes of mourning."

The announcement did not mention a successor, but Hua Kuo-feng, who emerged from obscurity last April to become premier and first vice chairman of the party as result of a new Cultural Revolution, is the ranking man. He faced a gigantic struggle to hold that position.

Mao died of a lingering, undisclosed illness at 10 minutes past midnight Peking time (11:10 a.m. EDT Wednesday) — the 15th day of the 8th moon, one of China's oldest and most traditional holidays.

Moscow reported Mao's death without comment although it has vilified him in the past as a traitor to revolutionary principles. Western rulers acknowledged that Mao was one of the world's great leaders.

There was rejoicing in Taipei where the cabinet held an emergency session to consider life after Mao. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who had met Mao many times, declined to predict precisely what "mysterious course" China's leadership will take now.

"I don't think even the Chinese know what the impact of the death of such a tremendous figure will be for them," he said in Washington. "And I don't think any of us know what the new Chinese leaders will do precisely."

Administrators willing to accept salary increase recommendation

By DOUG BEVINS
Herald Reporter
The Manchester School Administrators Association, which represents about 30 principals and supervisors, says it's willing to accept the majority recommendation by arbitrators in the association's contract dispute with the Manchester Board of Education.

An association statement on the arbitration award, released today by association leader Allan Cone, said the administrators will go along with the majority award despite some recommendations administrator's don't like.

The main issue in the arbitration was salary, although arbitrators also dealt with disputes over unused sick leave, layoff provisions and insurance.

The three-member arbitration panel voted 2-1 to recommend salary increases of 4 per cent in 1976-1977 and 3 per cent in 1977-1978. The dissenting arbitrator, Russell Post of Canton, recommended smaller increases.

Post was the arbitrator appointed by the school board. The majority arbitrators were Donald J. Deneen of Windsor, appointed by the administrators, and University of Connecticut Professor William Rowe, selected by agreement of both sides.

The administrators' statement said the association "has undertaken all the avenues available under the law to reach an agreement. The last step, that of arbitration, has produced an award in which the arbitrators themselves could not agree on all the issues."

Aside from the split decision on the arbitration award, the arbitrators agreed on a two-year contract, recommended no change in the unused sick leave clause, specified working for layoff provisions with Deneen dissenting, and recommended an increase in life insurance with Post dissenting.

The MSAA is willing to abide by the majority of the arbitration panel, the association said, "whether or not they are to its liking. We believe that the facts to arrive at a decision, then that decision should be accepted by both parties."

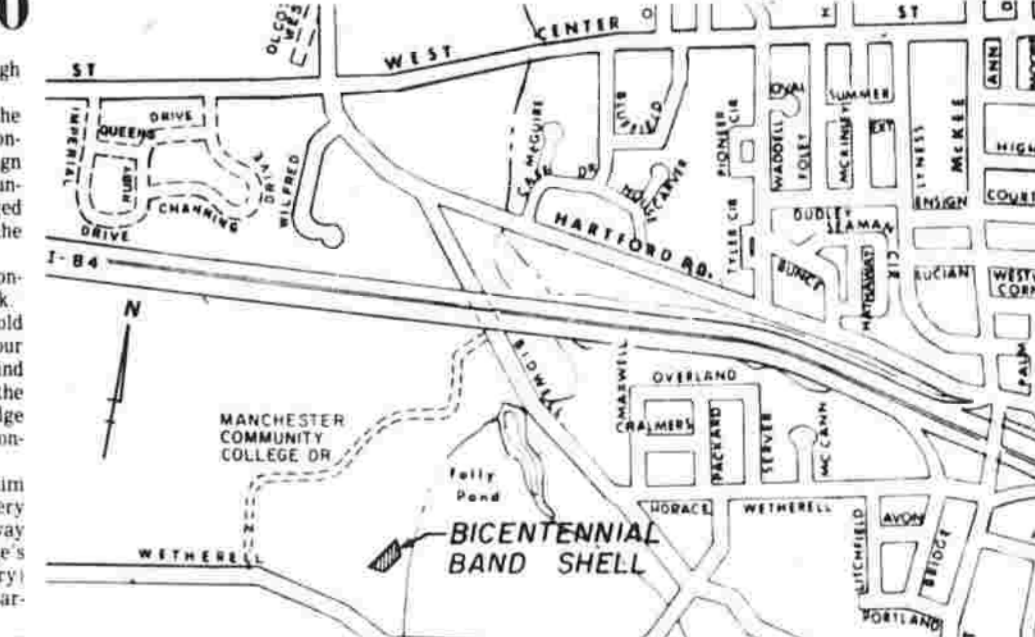

The arbitration report goes to the Board of Education Monday night and is expected to be discussed in a closed session. School board officials haven't commented on the award, but one official said a split arbitration decision cannot carry as much weight as a unanimous decision.

If either side rejects the award, negotiations will have to begin again.

Bicentennial band shell show to have a variety of offerings

The Sphinx Temple Highlanders Pipe Band will open a variety program Sunday at 2 p.m. at the site of the proposed Bicentennial Band Shell on the Manchester Community College campus, near the Wetherell Bridgeport plant. FDA okays 10 more cold relief drugs for over-counter sale

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Food and Drug Administration Wednesday offered victims of the common cold direct access to 10 sources of temporary relief from runny noses and nagging coughs previously restricted to prescription drugs.

The FDA said it will allow, at least for now, over-the-counter sale to the public of 10 of 14 prescription ingredients that were recommended for direct sale to consumers by an agency advisory panel. It rejected three of the other ingredients and deferred a decision on one.

The marketing is conditional while FDA reviews the panel's report. The panel for three and a half years reviewed 120 ingredients in nonprescription cold remedies representing a $75 million professor of medicine at Harvard Medical School. However, nonprescription drugs are only capable of relieving the symptoms of a cold, for which there is still no generally accepted preventive or treatment, he said.

The panel recommended that all nonprescription cough and cold remedies contain explanations that the products offer only temporary relief from the symptoms of a cold, Lowell said.

'Well, professor, when is it going to blow up?'

By GUY GUGLIOTTA

The government evacuated 72,000 persons from the death zone two weeks ago after one scientist predicted the volcano would erupt "within 12 hours" with the force of several Hiroshima-sized atomic bombs.

It didn't, but since it could, no one has been allowed to move back into the zone. Thus the scientists carry out their probings, testings and samplings in perfect solitude, while the refugees, thousands of them camped out in vacant schoolhouses, make do as best they can.

But all of the secrecy is an illusion.

They shuttle in and out of Guadeloupe's Le Raizet Airport every couple of days, traveling singly or in small bunches and bringing with them exotic equipment capable of measuring all sorts of volcanic estera.

All it seems very hush-hush.

Some of the scientists stay in a hotel on the Isle Des Saintes, an islet lying off the coast of Guadeloupe near La Soufriere, but most of the big names overnight in tourist hotels near Point-a-Pitre. However, no one seems to know how to get in touch with them.

Every day at 7:30 a.m. the Point-a-Pitre scientists go out to the airport where a helicopter picks them up and airlifts them to what has been variously described as the "danger zone" or the "death zone," a triangular-shaped piece of land lying at the base of La Soufriere.

And if you want to talk to a scientist, go ahead. They love to talk.

The torrent of words that pours from the lips of these volcanologists, geologists, geophysicists and "otherologists" studying La Soufriere enlightens and mystifies. They can tantalize you or bore you to death.

What emerges is a picture of a group of dedicated men who are not quite sure what's going to happen, are doing their utmost to find out and are having a wonderful time practicing their trade on a real, live specimen.

But after you have listened to far more than you ever wanted to know about "intrusions," "layers of magma," and "energy levels," it turns out that none of the 20 or so experts here at any one time can tell you what you

At first Tazieff, visibly shaken by the experience, called the blast "as bad as 1940," when he got caught in the German blitz. However, one day later, he debunked it and promised that a real eruption would be "spectacular." Fiske, like Brousse, left Guadeloupe.

Suit seeks to halt debates

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The American Party announced Wednesday that it has filed suit in U.S. District Court to prevent televised debates between President Ford and Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter.

Washington attorney David M. Basker told a news conference he filed the action asking the court to enjoin Ford, Carter, the Federal Election Commission and the League of Women Voters from participating in the scheduled debates.

Basker said the matter was now pending before Judge Aubrey Robinson and that he would ask for a hearing on a preliminary injunction request.

With Basker at the news conference were American Party presidential candidate Tom Anderson and vice presidential candidate Rufus Shackelford.

Anderson emphasized that the American Party was not connected with the American Independent Party, which has former Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox as the standard bearer.

The American Party claims it is the party that garnered over one million votes in the last presidential election and that the AIP group is only a splinter group from it.

"The AIP is very racist oriented," Anderson told reporters. "We don't agree with that."

The suit says that the debates which the League of Women Voters has scheduled are really only panel discussions and should not be exempt from equal time requirements of the Federal Communications Commission.

An ominous trend

Will more than 50 per cent of the nation's eligible voters exercise their franchise by staying at home on Nov. 2? If we are to believe the results of a recent poll, 70 million Americans will not vote, and this comes to about half of the estimated 140 million of us over 18 eligible to have a voice in selection of our leaders on local, state and national levels. Americans have been noted for relatively high ballot box truancy and we have more or less tacitly accepted the right not to vote as being as valid as the right to vote. But the major political parties want a big voter turnout, each believing in its innate optimism that the bigger the turnout the better the chance it has of winning. On a negative side, we think both parties like a large turnout because, as humiliating as it is to lose an election, it is even more traumatic when you can see that a mere one or two per cent better turnout of your party's partisans might have turned the tide in your favor. Now we are not entirely convinced the poll is one that will hold up.

A matter of figures

It can be a mad, mad world at times, especially in the area of politics. Recently Rep. William R. Cotter, D-Conn., has been telling his 1st District constituents that Connecticut has been getting short-changed by Uncle Sam. According to Cotter, Connecticut taxpayers paid $425 million more in taxes than it received in federal aid and services last year. Now that figure makes for good campaign fodder, but before we get too alarmed we might consider the indirect expenditures of federal tax dollars in our state at Electric Boat in Groton and United Technologies plants in the state including East Hartford. If we include all federal expenditures in the state we will find that we are not being neglected despite Rep. Cotter's implications to the contrary. But even if it were true that our state was supporting "programs throughout the country because of our taxes" as the congressman says, isn't it one of the fundamental precepts of his party that we take from the haves and help out the have nots?

Today's thought

I won't forget you
Loneliness has no age. It strikes the young as well as the old. Children may venture out in strange ways to get attention. The older because of experience may express, they feel alone. For any of us, the promise of God is, "even to your old age I am He; I have made, and I will bear; even I will carry and will deliver you." See Isaiah 46:3-12.

Carter ADA endorsement is a mixed blessing

WASHINGTON — "If nobody minds, I'd rather have a nice dish of ice cream" John Kennedy said off-the-record in 1960 when informed he had been endorsed for President by Americans for Democratic Action. Privately, Jimmy Carter may be suffering a similar reaction to his 63-to-7 blessing by the ADA executive board. Indeed, whereas Kennedy ran as an unabashed, though pragmatic, liberal, Carter had tried from the very beginning of the primary season to present himself as a centrist Democrat with conservative tendencies. A Carter aide reported that his tiger was "pleased" with ADA's endorsement. He could hardly say anything else. Like certain labor unions of questionable morals, the ADA is a kind of unofficial arm of the Democratic Party in that it has considerable influence among the party's ultra liberals. Gerald Ford has a similar burden in the number of fatal defense contractors who embrace his candidacy; he can't disown them but he could wish they had a lower visibility. After all, that is what campaigning is all about. If the poll is accurate today, it would appear Carter and President Ford have two jobs cut out for them. First, convincing millions of voters that their vote is important and second, of course, which man best deserves that vote. If the poll stirs the parties and the candidates to attack this growing indifference to voting, it will have served an important purpose. If it does not, it may well be an ominous sign of an era of government by a majority of a minority — a form of political inbreeding that leads to governing of the people, by fewer and fewer people, for fewer and fewer people; or as it is known abroad, a totalitarianism.

Car assembly line, Detroit, trade toasts

Some time in July, the U.S. automobile industry produced its 275 millionth passenger car. By unplanned coincidence, the 275th birthday of the city which symbolizes the automobile to the world, Detroit, was also celebrated in July. The irony is that the milestone car may not even have been made in Detroit, notes Stanley Roe, manager of the statistic department of the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association. There are currently some 102 automobile assembly lines scattered in 29 states, and no way of determining which one of them built the 275th-million car. Less than eight per cent of the country's motor vehicles are now produced in Detroit. At one time or another during the past eight decades, more than 1,500 auto makers in virtually every state built motor vehicles. It was in Detroit, however, where interchangeability of parts and the moving assembly line took root. It required 50 years until 1946, to reach the 75-million car mark, and it at the Democratic Convention — Carter's link about "big-shot crooks" who go free while little ones go to jail, and running mate Walter F. Mondale's allusion to the man who pardoned the man responsible for it all — there may be much less political hay to be made of Watergate among the population at large than there is a danger of a boomerang effect. If Watergate is a burden all Republicans carry, the passing of time, not to mention the emergence of other scandals, has served to put it into better perspective. Richard Nixon is viewed today less as a menace to the country than as a pathetic figure. The "bitter end" defense of him by some Republicans should at least be contrasted with the dismal record of Democratically-controlled Congress in disciplining their own wrongdoing. In short, there is plenty of mud that could be dragged up by both sides. Jimmy Carter is too smart, and one hopes, too honorable a man, to start that kind of fight.

The GOP: Laughing all the way

WASHINGTON — Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen was midway through his daily briefing for the White House press corps recently when he reported that Sen. Richard Schweiker had met with Mr. Ford that morning. "What for?" cracked one newsman. "So Mr. Ford could thank him for running for vice president?" The remark, appropriately greeted with guffaws from other reporters, brings to mind this opener by President Ford, speaking at the annual dinner of the Radio and Television Correspondents' Association: "Before I begin, let me ask you to join with me in a short, but rather solemn ceremony. When I give the signal — would it be all right? — I'm in enough trouble now without saying to someone 'Excuse me, I have to answer the lamp.'" While meeting with a group of small businessmen recently, the President Rockefeller — "The best part about being vice president is pressing over the Senate. Where else could I have Barry Goldwater addressing me as 'Mr. President.'" "Republican Humor" played football with Jerry Ford for two years — and it made a lasting impression on me. It was quarterback, Jerry Ford was the center. And you might say, it gave me a completely different view of the President! Vice President Rockefeller — "The best part about being vice president is pressing over the Senate. Where else could I have Barry Goldwater addressing me as 'Mr. President.'" Andrew Tully princes warned that a vote for McCarthy would only help Ford. Although officially murmuring a low-voiced thanks, fellows, Carter's emotions have to be mixed. His base of support, after all is in the South, which has never been a bastion of left-leaning liberalism, and Carter has to carry the South practically 100 per cent to win in November. According to George Gallup's latest poll, Carter is ahead in the Southern states, 64 per cent to Ford's 28 per cent. But in the rest of the country, the poll shows Carter leading Ford by only 44 to 43 per cent. Allowing for possible statistical error, that means the contest outside Dixie is too close to call. The 13 Southern states have 151 electoral votes of the 270 needed to win. If Carter can hold all those states, that's a splendid base on which to build. But it is not to derogate Dixie to point out that many of its mainly conservative voters could be suspicious of a candidate, even one from the South, who is backed by the ADA. They will be torn between voting for one of their own and their basic, right-leaning ideology, to which the ADA is anathema. Then there are the other sections of the nation, where Carter's big lead has disappeared. The ADA has its adherents in certain states, notably California, Michigan and Wisconsin, but its major sphere of influence lies in the Northeast, and even there it is really big only in New York, Massachusetts, and perhaps New Jersey. In most of the Midwest, the Southwest and the West the ADA is either a minority lobbying outfit or one that excites actual hostility among the great masses of voters. It is definitely not popular in the Farm Belt or in generally conservative, vote-rich Texas. Then, of course, there is the fact that the ADA's current president is Sen. George McGovern, whose popularity in the 1972 election was confined to Massachusetts and the District of Columbia. Pondering the ADA's support, Jimmy Carter might well wonder how a candidate protects himself from his friends.

Working women more satisfied with lives

CHICAGO (UPI) — A study of women in a working class community near Boston indicates that married women holding jobs — even mundane ones — are more satisfied with their lives than full-time housewives. The study, published in the September issue of Psychology Today, showed 26 per cent of the housewives questioned said they were dissatisfied with their lives, while only 14 per cent of the employed wives who were asked said they felt that way. Forty-one per cent of the housewives compared to 22 per cent of the working wives believed their husbands' work was more interesting than theirs. The study, conducted by Myra Marx Ferree, an assistant sociology professor at the University of Connecticut, involved 135 women whose youngest children were already in school. Some 38 per cent of the women had not finished high school and three held college degrees. Just over half of them worked outside the home, mostly as clerks, typists, waitresses, factory workers, beauticians, bookkeepers, banktellers and nurses' aides. Of the housewives interviewed, 7 per cent said they were extremely good at taking care of a home and 57 per cent said they were not very good. Some 67 per cent of the working wives felt incompetent as homemakers. None of the women with paid jobs said she did poorly at her job. In fact, 54 per cent of the working wives said they were extremely good at their jobs. The study also indicated a fourth of the housewives were very happy with their lives. A third of them said their husbands decided they should work or stay at home, compared with one in 10 of the working wives who attributed such power to their husbands.

Education today: Here's help for the teachers

PATRICIA McCORMACK, UPI Education Editor, says that the A's on homework and C's on the same type of work done in class.

The A's mystery his teacher, the C's puzzle parents.

When the first report card goes out, the parents come in - at 7:30 the next morning. When teacher and parents meet you have what's known as "the parent crunch."

Problems stemming from this stress-producing event in the life of a teacher are highlighted in one of several episodes of a new television production, "The Heart of Teaching."

The series, produced by the Agency for Instructional Television and National Instructional Television, also deals with: "The Last Hour Clash (Frustation). Teacher Whit J. can't understand why Sidney always disrupts his class; Sidney can't understand why the teacher picks on him. This program caricatures the frustrations teachers feel when nothing they do seems right in efforts to reach certain students.

Ever One Is Something Else (Individual Differences). The program highlights the multiple things a teacher must keep in mind, simultaneously, to be helpful to all manner of individual students with all manner of needs and backgrounds.

"The Heart of Teaching" was produced at the facilities of the Educational Film Center in North Springfield, Va., and the facilities of KETC-TV in St. Louis.

Consultants included Eli Bower, director of health and medical sciences, University of California at Berkeley; Bonnie Brae, classroom teacher from Arlington, Va.; and Bee Jay Freeman, teacher from Memphis, Tenn.

There is a gap in teacher training. The new television shows, for public television, are expected to help bridge it.

Agency for Instructional Television says the series will help teachers who find it increasingly difficult to teach their students without taking feelings and concerns into account the feelings, they enter the classroom, perceptions, and problems. It also will help teachers which students carry with who find it more and more them into the classroom.

More than 600,000 Connecticut students went to classes for the first time Wednesday in schools beset by labor problems, enrollment drops, increasing class sizes and tightened budgets.

Clear and crisp skies met the youths as they headed for the state's 1,100 elementary and secondary schools, named by more than 30,000 teachers.

Teachers in 65 of Connecticut's 159 local school districts went to work without contracts, and the leaders of the two major unions said teachers in the unsettled areas were hoping to reach agreements "within a reasonable time."

In addition to wages, teachers were concerned with the size of classes that have grown in some districts despite a decline in the elementary in class sizes and other non-economic issues.

Paul Skirgan, chairman of the teachers' negotiating committee, said the union also is seeking any hikes higher than the 5 per cent recommended by a panel of three arbitrators. The city has said it cannot afford even the 5 per cent hike.

Schools, especially those in Connecticut's far-flung suburban belts, have reported enrollment drops of up to 10 per cent, which translates into further tightens of budgets already hit by the national recession.

The state subsidizes local education to the tune of $255 per registered student a year.

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso should fire Finance Commissioner Jay O. Tepper, says House Minority Leader Gerald P. Stevens, R-Milford.

Stevens, one of the most persistent critics of Mrs. Grasso's handling of state finances, twice before asked for the removal of Tepper, Mrs. Grasso's chief financial officer.

Stevens had been upset at Mrs. Grasso's use of one-time-only revenues to meet the state's budget problems.

"It is imperative we have a commissioner on whom we can rely and whose figures have credibility with members of the legislature," Stevens said.

"The performance of Commissioner Tepper during the last two years has not established a record we can believe in, he should be replaced immediately," he said.

RANDOLPH, Utah (UPI) — Merrill Weston, a candidate for Rich County commissioner, has found a way to get around the mandatory filing of campaign finance records.

He doesn't have anything to report.

Weston wrote State Auditor David Monson:

"Since Rich County is very small, we don't campaign much around here. Since I was born and raised in Rich County and lived here all my life and since I'm known by everyone, I haven't spent any money for campaigning and haven't received anything."

"I hope this will be sufficient for your records."

Not included are Connecticut Blue Cross and Connecticut Medical Service which will run similar but separate programs.

The program could get under way by Oct. 1, according to Peter F. Keisler, chief of the Insurance Department's Examination Division. The Travelers Insurance Co. will administer the program.

Policies with deductibles of $200, $500 and $750 will be offered to individuals who can buy insurance themselves or in groups of three to 25. The policy would pay, after the deductible is exceeded, 80 per cent of covered medical expenses, except out-patient treatment of mental conditions for which the plan pays 50 per cent up to $1,000.

No individual would pay more than $1,000 a year and the maximum cost for expenses to a family would be $2,000 a year.

Hearings planned this month on state health insurance

HARTFORD (UPI) — Hearings will be held later this month on a plan required by state law to provide health insurance to Connecticut residents regardless of their health.

The state's more than 300 insurance companies have formed the Health Reinsurance Association that will offer insurance with benefits up to $1 million for those considered high risks and unable to get regular health insurance.

The state Insurance Department Sept. 21 at the State Office Building for operation of the plan required by the 1975 legislature.

Not included are Connecticut Blue Cross and Connecticut Medical Service which will run similar but separate programs.

The program could get under way by Oct. 1, according to Peter F. Keisler, chief of the Insurance Department's Examination Division. The Travelers Insurance Co. will administer the program.

Policies with deductibles of $200, $500 and $750 will be offered to individuals who can buy insurance themselves or in groups of three to 25. The policy would pay, after the deductible is exceeded, 80 per cent of covered medical expenses, except out-patient treatment of mental conditions for which the plan pays 50 per cent up to $1,000.

No individual would pay more than $1,000 a year and the maximum cost for expenses to a family would be $2,000 a year.

Proposed monthly rates, with a $500 deductible as a sample, would begin for individuals at $17 for men and $29.06 for women under 30, to $60.79 for men and $72.20 for women 60 to 64.

For groups, per person, $15.30 for men and $26.15 for women under 30, to $54.71 for men and $64.98 for women 60 to 64.

More than 600,000 in state's schools

By United Press International

More than 600,000 Connecticut students went to classes for the first time Wednesday in schools beset by labor problems, enrollment drops, increasing class sizes and tightened budgets.

Clear and crisp skies met the youths as they headed for the state's 1,100 elementary and secondary schools, named by more than 30,000 teachers.

Teachers in 65 of Connecticut's 159 local school districts went to work without contracts, and the leaders of the two major unions said teachers in the unsettled areas were hoping to reach agreements "within a reasonable time."

In addition to wages, teachers were concerned with the size of classes that have grown in some districts despite a decline in the elementary in class sizes and other non-economic issues.

Paul Skirgan, chairman of the teachers' negotiating committee, said the union also is seeking any hikes higher than the 5 per cent recommended by a panel of three arbitrators. The city has said it cannot afford even the 5 per cent hike.

Schools, especially those in Connecticut's far-flung suburban belts, have reported enrollment drops of up to 10 per cent, which translates into further tightens of budgets already hit by the national recession.

The state subsidizes local education to the tune of $255 per registered student a year.

Baptists plan retreat

The Women's Society of Community Baptist Church will have a one-day retreat Sept. 18 at the Hungerford House at Columbia Lake. The theme: "Help Yourself and Others with God's Help."

Members will leave the church at 8:30 a.m., and the retreat will be conducted from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Each person attending the retreat is asked to bring a Bible, pencil and a sack lunch.

Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. William Zimmermann, 875-8718, or Mrs. Charles Butler, 649-4112.

Tepper firing asked

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso should fire Finance Commissioner Jay O. Tepper, says House Minority Leader Gerald P. Stevens, R-Milford.

Stevens, one of the most persistent critics of Mrs. Grasso's handling of state finances, twice before asked for the removal of Tepper, Mrs. Grasso's chief financial officer.

Stevens had been upset at Mrs. Grasso's use of one-time-only revenues to meet the state's budget problems.

"It is imperative we have a commissioner on whom we can rely and whose figures have credibility with members of the legislature," Stevens said.

"The performance of Commissioner Tepper during the last two years has not established a record we can believe in, he should be replaced immediately," he said.

Nothing to report

RANDOLPH, Utah (UPI) — Merrill Weston, a candidate for Rich County commissioner, has found a way to get around the mandatory filing of campaign finance records.

He doesn't have anything to report.

Weston wrote State Auditor David Monson:

"Since Rich County is very small, we don't campaign much around here. Since I was born and raised in Rich County and lived here all my life and since I'm known by everyone, I haven't spent any money for campaigning and haven't received anything."

"I hope this will be sufficient for your records."

Trees go down for road project

Trees are falling fast near the junction of W. Middle Tpke. and New Slate Rd. and the wood from them is disappearing just as fast. Herald photographer Reginald Pinto made this picture shortly after midday Wednesday and by the end of the day the logs were gone. Householders were loading them on trucks and into station wagons and car trunks for use in stoves and fireplaces. The trees are in the path of road improvement project.

Police report

Three Manchester men thrown at the bar, police arrested by local said.

disturbance at the Brass Hammer Cafe, Charter Oak St., police reported.

Taken into custody on Common Pleas Court 12 night police pursuit to arrest warrants Wednesday were Joseph Duva, 21, of 108 Carter St.; Michael J. Murdock, 21, of 108 Carter St.; and Peter M. Weiss, 21, of 71 N. Lakewood Circle.

Each was charged with third-degree criminal mischief and breach of peace, police said. Each was released on a $250 non-surety bond for court appearance later this week.

Wednesday's arrests bring to four the number of persons charged in connection with the Aug. 9 bottle and chair-throwing incident, police said. Donald J. Corcoran, 22, of 78 Bryan Dr. was arrested on the night of the disturbance, police said.

Police said several young men went into the cafe at about 11 p.m. that night, and the owner refused to serve them. The refusal touched off a melee in which liquor bottles were smashed and chairs

Two Manchester motorists have been issued summonses for alleged traffic violations which occurred during a Tuesday night police pursuit to Bolton and back.

Anthony F. Pagano, 28, of 60 E. Middle Tpke. was charged with speeding and failure to obey a red light.

Guy J. Lebrun, 21, of 108 Carter St. was charged with reckless driving, failure to obey an officer's signal, speeding, and passing on the right. Court dates are Sept. 21.

Police said Pagano was the only one of four motorists to pull over and stop when patrolmen observed fast-traveling cycles at E. Center and Lenox Sts.

Police chased the others to Bolton Notch, where they split up, and the patrolman still in pursuit was only able to follow one motorcycle, who returned to Manchester via I-84.

Lebrun was apprehended near the Highland St. exit off I-84, police said.

Manchester Police detectives have apprehended a Manchester youth in connection with a series of burglaries and stolen car reports, police said today.

The boy, not yet identified by police because he hasn't been formally charged, is accused of 13 house breaks and three auto thefts, police said.

The stolen cars were recovered shortly after the respective incidents, police said. Of a variety of goods taken in the house breaks, police have recovered some jewelry and three guns. Further details weren't available.

'Messiah' set Dec. 5

The Manchester Civic Orchestra and Choral will present Handel's "Messiah" Dec. 5 at Bailey Auditorium in Manchester High School at 7:30 p.m.

Rehearsals for both the orchestra and choral group will begin Monday at Robertson School time at one of the first rehearsals.

Those planning to sing in the chorus are reminded to bring their own copies of the "Messiah" if they have them, or have access to all sections.

A new choralmaster will be selected by auditioning with the chorus during regular rehearsal time at one of the first rehearsals.

Anyone interested in auditioning for the concertmaster's position in the orchestra may contact the orchestra's director, Dr. Jack Heller, at University of Connecticut in Storrs, or Mrs. Barbara Dickie, 449-6543.

Orchestra members are asked to bring music stands to rehearsals.

The Manchester Civic Orchestra has scheduled two more concerts to be held in the early spring at a date to be announced, and on June 12. In discussion are plans for a concerto concert and a pops concert.

Town insurance losses down despite increase in claims

By GREG PEARON
Herald Reporter

Despite an increase in the number of claims made by the Town of Manchester during the 1975-76 fiscal year, the total paid for insurance losses was almost half of what the town paid in 1974-75.
And, although insurance losses went down, the cost of medical expenses for the town tripled during last year.

During 1975-76, the town reported 199 claims that resulted in $40,934 in losses. Medical expenses were listed at $27,729.
In 1974-75, the town made 173 claims that resulted in $78,218 in losses. Medical expenses for the year were $9,199, less than one-third of the medical costs for 1975-76.
The rise in medical costs indicates there were more accidents in the recent fiscal year that required medical attention, or those that did require such attention were more serious than accidents that occurred in 1974-75.
While town officials were not pleased with the rise in the number of claims during 1975-76, they did feel the drop in the amount of losses was a good sign.

"We have a safety program that's beginning to pay out," Asst. Town Manager Charles F. McCarthy Jr. said.

He pointed to a counseling service that is offered to town employees. If an employee work performance drops because of personal problems, the boss may refer the worker to the service.
The service, which is run out of the basement of 66 Center St., is also offered for any town employee who wants to seek counseling help on his/her own.
McCarthy also said that Health Director Dr. Alice J. Turek has been a "small accident" that has been "a bad accident," he said.

Members of the Manchester VFW Auxiliary will meet tonight at 7:30 at the John F. Tierney Funeral Home, 219 W. Center St., to conduct a memorial service and to pay respects to the late Mrs. Elizabeth Britley, a member. Members are urged to wear uniforms.

Dr. Basile visiting Italian quake areas

Dr. John X. R. Basile is visiting the Friuli earthquake area in Italy this week finalizing arrangements for use of money from Connecticut donors toward the ravaged area's revitalization. He will return this weekend.
Dr. Basile, state chairman of Venetian Earthquake Relief, Inc., and who practices in Hartford and Manchester, is meeting with Italian officials and industrial personnel and trying to plan something of permanence that will be an everlasting memory of the Connecticut residents who aided in Italy's recovery program. Salvatore Filloramo, a member of the Venetian earthquake relief committee in Manchester, said perhaps the money would be used in the construction of an industrial building.

New town rescue truck expected in November

The Town Fire Department expects delivery of its new rescue truck by the end of November, Chief John Rivona said Tuesday.
A contract for the new vehicle was signed Aug. 27 with the American Modular Rescue Corp. of Smithfield, R.I., town officials said. The price, which doesn't include all the options originally sought by the fire department, is $17,997, three dollars less than the $18,000 appropriated to buy the truck.
American Modular Rescue Corp. was the low bidder when proposals were submitted for the second time last month. When the truck was first put out to bid in July, prices quoted by manufacturers were much higher than $18,000.
The new truck will be used to carry rescue equipment, including the fire department's heavy duty Hurst Rescue Tool, and will respond to the increasing number of traffic accident emergencies. The new truck will also be equipped with emergency lighting gear, tow hooks and space for spare fire fighting equipment.

Nastase back on center court

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Ili Nastase was back on center court today at the U.S. Open Tennis Championships and, for the seventh straight day, a record crowd is expected to cheer, boo and bait the game's most tempestuous player.

Today he faced Dick Stockton of Dallas, the only surviving unseeded player. Jimmy Connors, the only other American left, defeated former Wimbledon champion Jan Kodes 7-5, 6-2, 6-1 in a bitter match Wednesday afternoon.

Following Nastase-Stockton on center court today were Rael Orantes, the defending champion, and reigning Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg in the last of the men's quarter-final matches. The winners of today's matches play each other, while Connors takes on Guillermo Vilas in the semifinals. Vilas edged Eddie Dibbs, 6-1, 2-6, 7-6, in a quarter-final match Wednesday.

Seven people believe Orantes has a chance to win this $165,000 tournament, despite the fact that the claylike surface here is made to order for his kind of "touch" game. But the second-seeded, 20-year-old Borg, who survived a tough five-set quarter-final match against Brian Gottfried, may put an end to Orantes' bid for another title.

Connors, who gets attention everywhere and excites crowds almost as much as Nastase, said he may have had an advantage playing Kodes. "We're easy," the Czechoslovakian complained angrily about a double-fault call on a crucial breakpoint that gave Connors a 6-5 lead in the first set.

"I was upset because I had a chance to win the set, but I lost because of a bad call," Kodes said. "It's very important against Jimmy who drove in four Pittsburgh runs with a single and a double. . . . But I still like their position. They've got a 4½-game lead with 25 games left. I'd like to have that."

"I can't really believe it," said Manager Danny Ozark of the Phillies. "Yet it's there."
Rooker went the distance, raising his record to 13-7 while Steve Carlton, bombed for five runs and eight hits in three innings, lost his sixth decision against 16 wins. Dave Cash had three hits for the Phillies. Cincinnati defeated Houston, 3-0. New York led Chicago, 11-5. Montreal swept St. Louis, 7-5 and 8-7. San Francisco edged Los Angeles, 1-0, in 11 innings, and Atlanta downed San Diego, 3-1, in 10 innings, in the other NL games.

Netles blasted his 26th homer Wednesday night to take the American League lead in that department and Ed Figueroa tossed a three-hitter as New York downed the Milwaukee Brewers 9-0.
Netles, enjoying a fine season in the field as well as at the plate, capped a three-run fourth inning with his homer. Roy White and Thurman Munson ignited the rally with consecutive doubles, and Lou Pinella struck a run-scoring single.
Pinella was thrown out trying to stretch the single into a double before Netles connected off starter and loser Jerry Augustine for a 3-0 lead.
Netles, signed earlier this year to a $450,000 three-year pact, says the reason he's doing so well is simple: "I owe this good season to good, clean living."
Figueroa, also enjoying his finest season, took off for Puerto Rico after the game to be at the hospital bedside of his pregnant wife. The right-hander is counting on a 20-win year and talk of his becoming the first pitcher to win 20 games to earn the distinction makes him proud.
"It will mean a lot to be the first 20-game winner from Puerto Rico and it will mean something to the country too," he said.
When Figueroa was asked about his chance of winning the Cy Young award, he said: "I can win more than 20 games then I might have an edge over the other pitchers because we will win the pennant."
Figueroa allowed three singles, walked one and struck out six in recording his 17th victory against eight defeats. He did not allow a Milwaukee runner past first base in his fourth shutout and 12th complete game.

New York added two more runs in the fifth on a run-scoring single by Thurman Munson and a home run by Willie Randolph's run-scoring single in the fifth upped it to 6-0 and Otto Velez finished the scoring with a two-run homer in the eighth.

Carl Yastrzemski had two hits, including his 20th homer, and rookie Butch Hobson had three hits and scored twice to lead Boston over Detroit. Fred Lynn also drove in a pair of runs for the Red Sox, including what proved to be the winning run in the seventh inning with a sacrifice fly.
Twinz 3, Rangers 1.
Lynn Bostock had four hits and tripled in the go-ahead run while Steve Luebber spaced seven hits to spark Minnesota's rain-shortened victory over Texas. Tom Grève honored for the Rangers.

By EARL YOST

Tennis has played a major part in the life of Gloria Darling since she married 20 years ago and picked up a racquet at the insistence of her husband, Mal.
This has often been referred to as the Darling family fits into this category perfectly.
A teaching tennis professional since 1969, the Manchester woman has taken part in 7,542 sets in the last two decades.
"I've kept track of every competition I've ever played," she recalled recently.
"Mal, who was in the printing business before retirement, made me up a book for every year. I started jotted down every match that I played and I've kept it up all these years," she added.
Ninety-four times Gloria Darling has been a finalist in singles, doubles and mixed doubles competition and 30 trophies are now attractively displayed at her home.

Forest Hills, N.Y. (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies' one-time 15½-game lead is down to 4½ and the awkward question is out in the open—are they staging the greatest ffolderol in baseball history?
Wednesday night the Pirates defeated the Phillies, 6-1, and cut their lead to 4½ games in the Eastern Division of the National League. The victory was the 12th in 14 games for Pittsburgh, which had trailed Philadelphia by 15½ games on Aug. 24.

"We have to be realistic," commented Jim Rooker, who pitched a nine-hitter for his 13th victory Wednesday night. "You don't expect a team to fall apart like that."
"Are you saying they have fallen apart?" asked a reporter.
"What do you think?" was Rooker's reply.
"I think a lot of the guys may be trying to hard," said Richie Hebner.

The trophy, which included Brown's, attracted 34 teams with games played on five of eight fields in one area with crowds averaging between 1,500 and 2,000 for all games.

Glancing at the Boston Red Sox roster of 49 players, the guess here is that the players the club will protect in the baseball draft to stock the new American League entries in Seattle and Toronto will be Fred Lynn, Rick Burleson, Cecil Cooper, Carl Yastrzemski, Jim Rice, Carlton Fisk, Dwight Evans, Rick Miller, Butch Hobson, Luis Tiant, Rick Wise, Bill Lee, Reggie Cleveland, Ferguson Jenkins and Luis Jones. Tip for grabs, from this seat, will be Bob Hays, Denny Doyle, Bob Montgomery, Bobby Darwin, Rico Petrocelli, Doug Griffin, Jim Willoughby, Dick Pole, Tom House and Tom Murphy of the current 25-man roster. Twelve home dates remain on the Red Sox slate at Fenway Park while the Yankees have 11 at Yankee Stadium before the American League playoffs. How many have noticed that baseball interest has dropped off with the Red Sox slipping from pennant contender to also-rans. Boston followed the 1975 season, which was tremendous as always but our out-field defense has been less than spectacular.

Judge flags down NFL player draft

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal court Judge William B. Bryant flagged down pro football's annual college draft as an antitrust violation, but he opened the door a little for the owners to continue the system on a modified scale.

Bryant was unequivocal in his language when he ruled that the existing draft was illegal. He awarded $276,800 to 1967 Washington Redskins' first-draft choice Jim "Yazoo" Smith on grounds the former University of Oregon star was denied his bargaining rights under the system.
The judge declared the NFL draft system amounted to an "outright, undisguised refusal" to deal with college stars chosen each year by the 28 pro teams and a "most pernicious" antitrust violation.

But Bryant, who presided over a four-week court trial without a jury, suggested NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle and the owners might come up with alternatives that could pass legal standards.
He suggested each team be limited to only two draft choices of the "blue chip" college stars, rather than the 17 now allowed, or permit three teams to claim a player and negotiate with him.
Of the system which has existed since 1937, Bryant said: "The owners of the teams have agreed among themselves that the right to negotiate with each top quality graduating college athlete will be allocated to one team, and that no

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal court Judge William B. Bryant flagged down pro football's annual college draft as an antitrust violation, but he opened the door a little for the owners to continue the system on a modified scale.

Bryant was unequivocal in his language when he ruled that the existing draft was illegal. He awarded $276,800 to 1967 Washington Redskins' first-draft choice Jim "Yazoo" Smith on grounds the former University of Oregon star was denied his bargaining rights under the system.
The judge declared the NFL draft system amounted to an "outright, undisguised refusal" to deal with college stars chosen each year by the 28 pro teams and a "most pernicious" antitrust violation.

O.J. Simpson not a Ram, Jets restructure roster

NEW YORK (UPI) — There was a collective sigh of relief among defensive linemen in the National Football Conference Wednesday when the inter-conference trading deadline passed and the Los Angeles Rams failed to surface with O.J. Simpson. Simpson, who has won three rushing crowns in the past four seasons with the Buffalo Bills, had asked to be traded to the Rams last spring. Simpson not only asked to be traded, he staged his own power play by saying he would not return to Buffalo under any circumstances this season. But Bill's owner Ralph Wilson Jr. was not to be held over a barrel by Simpson and told the Rams they would have to come up with "proper compensation" for the game's most explosive runner. Wilson demanded NFC defensive player of the year Jack Youngblood, running back Lawrence McCutcheon, defensive tackle Mike Fanning and first-round draft choices for 1978 and 1979. The Rams failed to sway Wilson with assorted other combinations.

O.J. Simpson is not coming to Los Angeles as a Ram, an LA club spokesman said shortly after the 4 p.m. EDT inter-conference trading deadline passed. "The trading deadline came and went and we made no deals with any clubs," Simpson's spokesman said. Simpson's non-movement was the highlight of a day that included a major restructuring of the New York Jets by first-year coach, Lou Holtz. The Jets traded two players, cut seven and claimed eight more on waivers to complete a 48-hour period in which they managed 25 player movements.

Elsewhere, on an otherwise tranquil day, the Kansas City Chiefs announced they would invite quarterback Terry Hanratty and running back Ron Johnson to try out this week once they clear waivers; the Philadelphia Eagles were awarded defensive back Al Clark on waivers from Los Angeles; Green Bay received center Bob Hyland on waivers from the New York Giants; Seattle was awarded defensive end Richard Harris on waivers from Chicago; and New England received Pete Barnes on waivers from Tampa Bay.

The Jets traded linebacks Godwin and Richard Wood to Tampa Bay and cut veteran center Wayne Mulligan, defensive back Rich Sowell and running backs Jazz Jackson and Bob Gresham. Holtz also cut rookies Don Buckey, Buck Baker and Joe Davis.

The Jets were awarded defensive end Richard Harris on waivers from Detroit and Howard Satterwhite from Washington, strong safety Tommy Marvaso also from Washington, and offensive lineman Stan Rogers from Denver.

There is a chance Simpson still might play on the West Coast with either the Oakland Raiders or San Diego Chargers. Both teams are in the American Conference with Buffalo and the intra-conference trading deadline is Oct. 16.

Nicklaus defends World Open title

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus sets out to defend his 1975 World Open title today.

A win would give him his third tournament victory this season and push his winnings past the $300,000 mark.

Nicklaus had won four tournaments by the time the World Open rolled around last year. He edged Billy Casper in a playoff with a par on the first hole to take the $400,000 first prize.

Johnny Miller, the 1974 World Open winner bowed out of the competition this year, along with other notables such as Gary Player, Al Geiberger, Don January and Lee Trevino.

But Nicklaus still has lots of competition from U.S. Open winner Jerry Pate, PGA titleholder Dave Stockton and Masters champ Ray Floyd.

The tournament is played over the Pinehurst Country Club's 7,007-yard, par-71 No. 2 course, which Nicklaus rates among the best in the world.

"The subtleties make the course great," said Nicklaus, "like watching your ball all of a sudden disappear when you thought you were on the green and then finding it down in a little hollow."

This tournament is the next-to-last tournament on the PGA tour for Nicklaus this year. He said he plans to enter the Ohio Kings Island Open next week. He will round out the season playing tournaments in Australia and Japan.

Wright, 4 others

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — Mickey Wright, who dominated the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour in the 1950s and early 1960s, has been named to the World Golf Hall of Fame along with four male golfers.

The four also inducted Wednesday, all of whom are deceased, were Tommy Armour, James Braid, Tom Morris Sr. and Jerome Travers.

The inductions bring to the Hall of Fame along with four male golfers 26 the induction of golfers and distinguished contributors, who have been immortalized since the Hall of Fame opened two years ago.

Officials also announced Wednesday that the Hall of Fame has been converted to a nonprofit organization. It had been run by Diamondhead Corp., which owns and operates much of the Pinehurst resort business.

Mrs. Wright, 41, won a total of 22 tournaments in golfing career. She is the fifth woman elected to the shrine by the nation's golf writers. She was preceded into the hall by Patty Berg, Glenna Colelet Vare, Joyce Wethered and Babe Dirksen Zaharias.

She was the leading money winner four times and won the Vare Trophy for low-stroke average five times.

She set a record by winning 13 tournaments in 1963, and in two other years, she won 10 tournaments each year. She claimed four U.S. Open and four LPGA championships.

Armour, a native of Edinburgh, Scotland, won the U.S. and British Opens and the PGA. He won the PGA by beating Gene Sarazen in 1930 on Sarazen's home course.

Braid joined Hall of Famers Harry Vardon and J.H. Taylor to form a triumvirate that dominated golf in the years prior to World War I.

Braid, a native of Scotland, won the British Open five times.

Ace

P.J. Petrone got a golfer's dream yesterday at Manchester Country Club by firing a hole-in-one at the par-3, 147-yard fifth hole using an eight iron. He was in a foursome with Tim Devaney, Jack Hull and Mike Crockett.

into the hall last year, was the first four-time winner of the British Open. Morris was appointed greenskeeper at the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, Scotland from 1859-1894.

Travers won four U.S. amateur titles and was one of only five amateurs to ever win the U.S. Open, which he captured in 1915.

Holds lead

HARTFORD (UPI) — A proposal for a $5 million thoroughbred and harness racing track in Middletown today held a full length lead in the race to become Connecticut's first and only horse track.

The Sawmill Brook Racing Association won permits Wednesday from the state Department of Environmental Protection allowing it to discharge sewage and water runoff.

Backers of another horse track in Wolcott were denied those same permits this summer, and although they have appealed to the courts it is doubtful they can recover and beat Sawmill to the finish line.

Trio of amateurs copped MCC Opens

Not since 1967 has an amateur won the Manchester Open Golf Tournament. The last to turn the trick was Don Parson, now a professional.

The 30th Open will be played Saturday and Monday at the Manchester Country Club. Better than 200 amateurs are slated to perform Saturday in a sea of merchandise with the pros spotlighted Monday when the goal will be greenbacks.

Last year's winner was Wayne Levi, who fashioned a course-ying 69 to pace a field of 348, 231 amateurs and 116 pros. Levi had from Long Island, N.Y.

The lowest score either day will win. Parson proved that his '67 success was no fluke as he came back in 1971 to walk off with the crown after beating Mike Ballou in an 18-hole playoff.

Alex Sott (1966), Allen Breed (1966) and Parson were the only amateurs in the 29 previous Opens to show the way.

No fainting this time

Andover

Carol Hagen did not faint Wednesday. The goal was 80, said Mrs. Henry Wroblewski, recruiting chairman for Andover for almost 20 years.

She did not faint then because she was healthy. The workers at the Bloodmobiles will not let you donate a pint of blood unless they feel certain you can afford it.

Also, Ms. Hagen should have been in far better physical shape than most donors. She has been a physical education teacher at Rham High School in Hebron for the past 12 years.

Since the Bloodmobile then was operating in her own Rham High School, her students and fellow workers all knew about it.

So her embarrassment last year was triple layered. She was healthy, a physical education teacher, and in her own school.

A tribute to her determination to donate a pint of her healthy blood is her appearance after school, the first day of school at that, at the First Congregational Church of Andover on Ft. 6 here.

She came nervous into the hall of the church where the Red Cross chapter which serves Columbia, Andover and Hebron was holding the Bloodmobile. The volunteers and Red Cross staff moved her through the checking process smoothly.

Mike Morrison, blood program technician, made her feel at ease joking with her as he took a blood pressure reading.

She smiled a lot. She chatted with the nurses.

But she did not look at what they were doing.

She seemed surprised when Morrison told her it was all done. As soon as she felt ready, she could walk over and have a cup of coffee and a sandwich supplied by the local chapter.

Quota not reached

Despite Ms. Hagen's determination and her pint, the Bloodmobile

Wednesday gathered only 60 pints. The goal was 80, said Mrs. Henry Wroblewski, recruiting chairman for Andover for almost 20 years.

Sandra Lohr of Columbia was captain of the day. There were 25 donors from Andover.

Margaret Holman received her six gallon pin. Howard Roberts received his two gallon pin.

Peter Hutchinson, Carol MacKay and Susan Federspiel received one gallon pins.

First time donors included Paul Jurovaty Jr. and Jane Carlberg from Andover.

Luncheon refreshments were prepared by members of the Young At Heart group.

The game will be held at the new softball diamond at Rye Street Park.

Friday night also there will be a rock concert from 8 p.m. until midnight.

Saturday the traditional weekend will begin with the parade, after which the booths and rides will open.

Ed Welenta Polka Band will play in the beer tent from 1 to 7 p.m. From 8 p.m. until midnight music will be by "Electric Company."

Special events on Sunday include a Frog Jumping Contest, the five mile foot race, magic by Mr. Unusual and Karate demonstrations by Paul Arel.

"Silk and Steel" sing along folk music by Bob Davey will be featured in the beer tent on Sunday.

Wapping Fair book guides have been distributed to all households.

Tolland tax group attacks Skip Walsh

53rd District

A small group of taxpayers here called Tolland Concerned Citizens released charges against the record of State Rep. Robert "Skip" Walsh now campaigning for re-election.

Folke A. Erickson of Dunn Hill Rd. said the group has reviewed Walsh's record and are unhappy with it. He founded the informal group about five years ago.

The group discusses anything that concerns townspeople and their taxes.

The 53rd District serves the towns of Willington, Coventry, and Tolland.

"We feel Mr. Walsh has not represented his small town middle class constituency," said Erickson.

"But he has leaned toward the big cities and supported their issues, not ours."

Erickson noted Walsh's public support for a state income tax bill which

Erickson called "an unnecessary tax."

"Needless to say," said Erickson, "the core cities would be the only ones to benefit from a state income tax."

Erickson said the Connecticut State Taxpayers Association gave Walsh a rating of zero based on 10 roll call votes the group was concerned about.

Walsh voted against a bill which would prohibit people who quit their jobs from collecting unemployment benefits.

He voted for a bill to extend welfare benefits to those on strike. He voted to keep the one cent tax on each gallon of gas. And he voted against a bill to cut the state budget by $50 million.

Erickson said Walsh is a big budget to the core cities but only a distant cousin to his own middle class constituency," said Erickson.

Ahearn to be at fair

55th District

Aloysius Ahearn, incumbent state representative for the 55th District, will be at the Hebron Harvest Fair today through Sunday.

The 55th District includes Andover, Bolton, Columbia, Hebron, Marlborough and part of Vernon.

Ahearn said he will spend his time primarily between the Hebron and Bolton Democratic Town Committee booths.

"I want to talk to as many people as possible and the Hebron Fair is the biggest event in the district.

About 70,000 people are expected to visit the fair.

Ahearn will be handing out balloons and litter bags.

"The balloons are for the kids. The litter bags are to stress my concern for the environment and the need to educate everyone to care about the future of our air, water and natural resources."

The board will have three members from Andover, four from Marlborough, and five from Hebron.

Phone service cut by dump truck box

A dump truck, whose body lifted while it was moving, snagged a 600-pair telephone cable at Highland and Porter Sts., knocking out phone service to at least 50 customers for several hours Wednesday.

Authorities said the dump body sheared the large cable in half, and the backlash from the cable snap knocked down nearby signs. There was no damage to the truck.

Waddell crossing guard mixup straightened out

An opening day mixup in scheduling of school crossing guards in the vicinity of Waddell School has been resolved, Manchester Police Lt. Joseph Brooks said today.

Waddell School opens at 8:30 a.m. and crossing guards were scheduled to begin work in that area at 8:15 a.m., a time which many Waddell parents considered too late to assure on-time arrival by students, Brooks said.

Parents complained that it takes a child longer than 15 minutes to reach Waddell School from some areas of that school's district.

Brooks said the Police Department received several calls about school crossing guard schedules on Wednesday's first day of school, and 98 per cent of the calls dealt with the Waddell School situation.

Meet CBT's Alltime Jet Banker. His name is Barney and he's practically a one-man bank. He'll give you cash, or take your deposits or payments anytime you want. All you need is a CBT Jet Banking Card. And about 36 seconds. Barney in the morning. Barney is hard at work before you wake up. Which means you can now do your banking on the way to work or when you're driving the kids to school or even on your way home from the night shift. You'll really appreciate Barney when you're in a hurry. Because in about 36 seconds your transaction is complete and you're on your way. Barney in the evening. The mad dash to the bank is a thing of the past. Because Barney never closes. So if you're running a little late take your time. Barney will take good care of you. Fast. And if you're one of those people who makes all the arrangements for a big night out, but forgets to bring money, just remember Barney. He's waiting for you. Barney all through the day. Barney doesn't go out for lunch. No coffee breaks. Not even a midnight snack. Best of all, he's easy to work with. Because once you've handed him your Jet Banking Card, he gives you step-by-step directions on how to work with him. Barney has a free gift for you. When you come into one of the seven CBT branches where Barney works, you won't go away empty-handed. Just ask one of the demonstrators to put Barney through his paces and you'll receive one of the alltime great gifts, while supplies last. Compliments of CBT's Alltime Jet Banker. Buckland firehouse nears completion

The Town Fire Department's Buckland firehouse is nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy during the week of Sept. 20, Town Building Committee Chairman Paul Phillips said Wednesday.

Installation of overhead doors in the apparatus bays, delayed for several weeks due to late delivery, has now been finished, Phillips said.

Work on ceilings and floors, which began this week, will probably continue through next week, he said. When the fire department moves in, only outside landscaping work will remain.

Town Fire Chief John Rivosa said he's ready to establish an engine company at the new firehouse, Co. 5, as soon as the facility is ready.

Under an agreement reached by lawyers in the Buckland fire protection lawsuit, Co. 5 won't serve Buckland but can serve other parts of the Town Fire District. Rivosa said Co. 5 will respond to calls in the Oakland area, via Tolland pike.

Superior Court Judge Edward Hamill hasn't indicated when he might reach a decision in the Buckland lawsuit, which seeks a determination of who — the Town Fire Department or the Eighth District Fire Department — has jurisdiction for fire protection in that area.

Council to sponsor youth work program

The Capitol Region Education Council, which sponsored the summer Comprehensive Youth Work Experience Program (CWYEP) regionally, has been selected to also sponsor the in-school segment of CWYEP.

A spokesperson for the City of Hartford Comprehensive Manpower Program (CMP), which oversees CWYEP, said that in-school phase should begin by the end of September.

CWYEP is federally funded and provides part-time employment to children between the ages of 14 and 21 who come from economically disadvantaged backgrounds.

Manchester is expected to get about 20 part-time jobs for the in-school phase of CWYEP. Students employed in these jobs will work ten hours a week for non-profit or public businesses.

The CMP spokesperson said that the number of CWYEP jobs granted to a town is calculated according to several factors about the town — the number of 14 to 21-year-olds, the number of job applications from the town received by the state employment office, the number of 14 to 21-year-olds in school, the number of unemployed, the number of people in the poverty level, the number of families receiving public assistance, and the number of 14 to 21-year-olds who are direct recipients of welfare.

Robert J. Digan, director of youth services, said he was pleased with the choice of the Capitol Region Education Council as a sponsor.

"As the sponsor of the summer program, they did a fine job," he said.

Barry to begin campaign

State Sen. David M. Barry of Manchester will open his campaign for re-election this weekend with appearances at the Harvest Fair in Hebron tonight and Saturday, a parade in South Windsor and the Wapping Fair also on Saturday.

Barry said that he will again campaign door-to-door in the eight-town district beginning next week.

"You get to know what is on people's minds when you go to their front door. There's no substitute for that," he said.

Barry headquarters will be located at 321 E. Middle Tpk., Manchester. The date for opening festivities will be announced soon.

DuPont heir injured in freak accident

BLOCK ISLAND, R.I. (UPI) — Henry B. duPont II was critically injured Wednesday afternoon after falling from the wing of a private plane as it was taking off by accident.

DuPont, an heir to the vast duPont fortune and a prominent Connecticut business executive, was reported in critical condition today at Lawrence Memorial Hospital in New London, Conn.

Police said DuPont Wednesday flew the Beechcraft Bonanza to this island 13 miles offshore with his wife in law, Daniel Wheeler Jr., as co-pilot.

They landed about 4 m. off the cape and opened the cabin exit and crawled onto the wing, leaving the engine on so Wheeler of Strapp Depot, Conn., could immediately fly the plane back. As Wheeler climbed into the pilot's seat, he apparently bumped the aircraft controls and the plane began speeding down the landing strip with duPont struggling to hold onto the wing. DuPont fell to the ground as the plane began lifting off.

DuPont is business manager of Venture Appraisal and manager for new business development of Remington Arms in Bridgeport, Conn., which he joined in 1956.

Wheeler later flew the plane, a Beechcraft Bonanza, back to the mainland, police said.

DuPont has been president of the symphony. He was a director of the Museum of Art, Science and Industry, the Bridgeport Hospital, Atlantic Aviation Corp. of Wilmington, Del., and the University of Bridgeport.

He attended Pomfret School in Connecticut, and graduated from MIT with a degree in business administration. He joined Remington as a junior engineer.

Dear Abby

Dear Abby: If I were a Catholic, I'd go to confession and get this guilt off my conscience, but seeing as how I'm a Baptist, I'm writing to you instead.

I'm a grown woman, but I've been acting like a schoolgirl about a man in town. I became infatuated with him two years ago, and haven't been able to leave him alone since.

I've sent him anonymous love letters, cards and poems, and I've even called him on the phone to hear his voice, but I always hang up right away.

I'm a grown woman, but I've been acting like a schoolgirl about a man in town. I became infatuated with him two years ago, and haven't been able to leave him alone since.
