Hold hostages on plane

Croatian terrorists continue eastward

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI) — A group of Croatian terrorists hijacked a New York-to-Chicago Trans World Airlines 727 jetliner, forced it to fly to Canada and Iceland and then took off today with more than 50 hostages toward Europe, possibly London.

It was the first hijack of a U.S. domestic airliner in nearly four years, and the hijackers left behind them one New York City policeman killed in a bomb explosion and the threat of another bomb hidden in a crowded location. Accompanying the hijacked jet, carrying 59 persons including the terrorists, was a second TWA plane, a 707 jet, equipped for transatlantic navigation. The 727 is used normally only on domestic flights.

The two planes took off into the sun heading south toward Europe after spending 2½ hours at Iceland's Keflavik airport.

The hijackers told the control tower they wanted to go to London. The plane was directed to a remote area of the airport at Keflavik where it was surrounded by Icelandic policemen without weapons and U.S. soldiers, who were armed.

The plane carried 59 persons. When hijacked Friday there were 92 persons aboard but the hijackers released 33 of their hostages at a stop in Gander, Nfld.

The plane landed at Keflavik on Iceland's southwest tip at 6:57 a.m. EDT.

Keflavik is an international airport and also a North Atlantic Treaty Organization base with approximately 3,700 military personnel. NATO commanders and the head of the Icelandic police, Thorger Thorsteinsson, were in charge of the situation. Justice Minister Olafur Johannesson was also in contact with the officials.

Authorities were acting according to a plan held in reserve for such cases. It was the first time a hijacked plane had landed in Iceland.

The weather was clear with 50-degree temperatures. Usually at this time of year it is very windy in Iceland, but there was no wind today.

The 727 was guided across the Atlantic by a TWA 707 jet equipped with navigation gear suitable for long-distance flights, an airport spokesman in Gander said.

"The pilot of the 727 was not familiar with transatlantic crossings and his plane did not have the right navigation gear so he is being led to Iceland by the 707," the spokesman said.

The 33 passengers released by the hijackers were flown back to Chicago this morning.

The FBI said the group, which called itself "The Fighters for Free Croatia," threatened to set off another bomb if its lengthy political demands were not printed in larger newspapers across the United States.

One of the hijackers was reported "wired" with explosives. After they took over the plane, the hijackers ordered the pilot to stop for refueling and maps at Montreal's Mirabel International Airport and then ordered the plane on to Gander.

In New York, a bomb rigged in a kitchen pressure cooker found in a Grand Central Station locker blew up at a police firing range when police twice tried to defuse it, killing one bomb squad officer and injuring three others.

The FBI said the hijackers notified authorities in Montreal of the location of the bomb and a note listing their demands.

"They said they were with the Croation National Liberation Forces," an FBI spokesman said in New York. The note found in the locker, however, was signed "The Fighters for Free Croatia."

"They want the eight-page typewritten note printed in several newspapers including a Chicago paper (Chicago Tribune), the International Herald Tribune, the Los Angeles Times, the Washington Post and the New York Times," the FBI said.

"They want at least one-third of it printed on the front page of each paper and the rest within the first section," the spokesman said. "They said they will know by a pre-arranged code whether or not it was done."

"If it is not done, they said an explosive device will be detonated at a highly busy location," the FBI spokesman said. "They did not say what city."

Highjackers surrender to Pakistani police

LAHORE, Pakistan (UPI) — Six nervous hijackers armed with grenades and pistols surrendered to Pakistani authorities today and freed the last of their 84 hostages.

The hijackers earlier had released 77 passengers, including two Americans, keeping the seven-member crew of the Indian Airlines jetliner at gunpoint until the surrender. All of the hostages were freed unharmed.

The official Pakistan Times identified the hijackers as Indians who wanted to fly to Saudi Arabia.

Greg Spinner, 25, of Washington, D.C., one of the hostages spoke from Lahore in a telephone interview with UPI in New Delhi today. He said the bearded leader of the hijackers carried a rusty gun and "looked like a pirate."

"They were totally incompetent as hijackers," Spinner added. "It was the funniest thing you ever saw."

Spinner, whose parents live in Los Angeles, said the leader spent much of his time outside the plane while the others — some carrying grenades — took up positions inside.

He described them as nervous and said they would occasionally pass the grenades back and forth, sometimes putting the pins back in and sometimes taking them out.

"We were quite frightened they would drop the grenades, not because they knew what was going on, but precisely the opposite."

The other American was identified Cynthia Jane Darden, of New York City.

The Boeing 737 was hijacked Friday morning en route from New Delhi to Bombay and diverted to Lahore, 280 miles north of New Delhi.

Andrews explains CLUTRAP vote

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut NAACP President Ben Andrews says he was concerned more with mass transit than with minority hiring when he voted against a $30 million state highway project.

Andrews said Friday he was interested in the numbers of blacks and Hispanics to be hired for the project, but that was a separate subject which he will take up with the state Transportation Department.

Andrews was one of the three members of the Connecticut Land Use and Transportation Planning agency who voted against the project after Hartford City Councilman Nicholas A. Carbone spoke out against it.

Carbone argued the project — for highway improvements around the Greater Hartford area — failed to insure a sufficient number of minorities would be hired as laborers.

Three Manchester highway projects totalling about $2.3 million are involved in the dispute.

Andrews said Carbone's argument was not the only factor that affected his vote.

"The citizens have made it clear that minority hiring was only one of the issues and that the lack of emphasis on mass transportation improvement program for the region was another major reason for the lack of approval," Andrews said.

The vote at the CLUTRAP meeting was 5-3 in favor of the project, one short of the six yes votes needed for endorsement.

The agency reviews state transportation plans in the Hartford region because it is a branch of the Capitol Region Council of Governments, a coalition of officials from Hartford and its suburbs.

It was not known how CLUTRAP's failure to endorse the federally funded highway project will affect its future.

Mocaldo to emcee band shell 'Afternoon of Entertainment'

Ronald Mocaldo, a professional pianist, will be master of ceremonies Sunday for the "Afternoon of Entertainment," which is open to the public free of charge, at the site of the proposed Bicentennial Band Shell on the Manchester Community College campus near the Wetherell St. entrance.

The Sphinx Temple Highlanders Pipe Band will open the variety show at 2 p.m. The program will also include the Round Table Singers of Manchester High School, Griffith Irish Step Dancers, the Silk City Barbershop Chorus, and the 45-piece Greater Manchester Wind Ensemble.

Also performing during the program will be Shirley Giraults a folk singer, Marion Macarone and Tom Casolino a folk duo, The Sunshiners, dancers from the Bartob Dance Studio, and the Duhaldo Trio (instrumental).

There will be a brief ground breaking ceremonies for the band shell.

One of the highlights of the afternoon will be the inflating of the Connecticut State Bicentennial

Bomb removed from Grand Central Station

LWV considering fifth debate for minority party candidates

By LAURENCE McQUILLAN

United Press International
The League of Women Voters, in an apparent attempt to quell the objections of presidential candidates not running on the Democratic or Republican tickets, is considering adding a fifth debate for the other challengers.

McCarthy Friday filed suit against the league, Ford, Carter and the television networks, in U.S. District Court in Washington to demand that he be allowed to participate with President Ford and Jimmy Carter in debates being sponsored by the league. U.S. District Judge Robinson next week will set a hearing date.

The McCarthy camp had contacted the league about the debates last month. "We just got a response and their answer, believe it or not, was that they are considering a fifth debate," John Armor, McCarthy's national legal coordinator said Friday night.

"That's like sitting in the back of the bus," said Armor, a Baltimore attorney.

He said a fifth debate would not include Ford or Carter. "Can you imagine how many people would watch something like that?" Armor asked.

The league is sponsoring three debates between Ford and Carter, the first on Sept. 23, and one between the vice presidential nominees of the two major parties.

Ford met Friday at the White House with the six-member executive board of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops. His chief spokesman said only that the President was "very pleased" and that they had a "frank exchange of views."

Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin of

Cincinnati said the group was "encouraged... (although) that is not to say we are totally satisfied" by Ford's willingness to support a constitutional amendment letting each state regulate abortions.

Carter addressed 2,300 cheering delegates to a convention of the International Association of Machinists in Hollywood, Fla. In an apparent reference to testimony given several months ago by Alan Greenspan, chairman of President Ford's Council of Economic Advisors, he condemned the Ford administration for allegedly asserting the economy is hurting Wall Street more than working people.

"We're going to change that attitude next January," said Carter, who campaigned in Wisconsin and Illinois before going to Florida.

Democratic Vice Presidential nominee Walter Mondale, meanwhile, promised 2,000 persons at the University of Notre Dame that a Democratic White House would have a foreign policy that "couples power with justice."

Will it be a clean campaign?

We have all kinds of watchdogs over our campaigns and candidates. At times it would seem that a good part of the campaign effort involves filling out the various financial forms Connecticut and Uncle Sam require to make sure that no one "buys" a public office or "sells" his political soul to special interests — vested or otherwise.
But laws, pledges of clean campaigning by candidates, and the best of party intentions do not guarantee that the current campaign is going to be waged on that high road we always hear about.
Actually, the tone of this campaign will be determined, as always, by what we, the electorate, tolerate.

If we willingly repeat those near-slanderous rumors about candidates' private lives, the campaign will have its mud-slinging.
If we willingly repeat half-truths knowing that the full truth would make the world of difference in meaning, the campaign will not be one of enlightenment, but rather one of distortions.

Today's thought

Faith comes by hearing

Tomorrow, church people gather in their respective houses of worship. According to Romans 10:17, "Faith comes by hearing and hearing by the Word of God."
The entire chapter 10 of Romans is inviting to be read. But in this short verse, we hear God gives faith to us through the Word. What we may never thought could happen, God can and does through the Word. He says in the Old Testament, "My Word shall not return unto Me void." He sees to this! So the appeal is to hear for joy and faith in believing. If you've never been in a church, take heart. Those who have been are not superior either!

'Bella's big mouth got her in trouble again'

Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON — Daniel Patrick Moynihan, who reaped headlines as our ambassador to the United Nations with his rough-tongued gibes at Third World regimes, is talking old-line political talk in his campaign to win the New York Democratic nomination for U.S. Senator Tuesday.
In a state where the pot is still melting various ethnic, racial and religious blocs, Moynihan keeps returning to the theme that these blocs fared better as individuals under the "despised" party regulars of old.
The regulars, Moynihan reiterates almost daily, had accommodated "the needs and wishes of a racially and ethnically and religiously variegated constituency," while a new political generation has shown "an incredible degree of insensitivity to the nuances of group difference."
He blasts away at "a new system of discrimination under which individuals are treated not as individuals according to their own merits, but as members of an ethnic or racial or religious group."

Federal bureaucracy snarls state programs

Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — Though no remedies have appeared, much has been made this past year of the cost to consumers in excessive, muck-picking, counterproductive regulation of manufacturing and commerce.
Now state governors are up in arms against what some of them believe is a bureaucracy run amok.
They're beset, they say, with conflicting rules from competing agencies, with piecemeal requirements that can cost millions and leave them dashing in one direction on Monday and the opposite direction a week later. This can mean junking entire projects, throwing out or completely revising expensive staff work.
In nursing homes, for example, federally imposed requirements may sometimes mean tearing down walls for no known medical reason. Some programs operate intermittently because funds regularly arrive six months late, with a provision that the federal government will not be responsible for money spent in the interim.
Noting what the governors have to report is a depressing experience:
— The U.S. Department of Labor requires 140 different types of reports from the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services, most monthly.
— The Corps of Engineers and the Federal Highway Administration require separate, duplicate hearings on the same construction projects.
— Environmental assessments approved by one federal office often are rejected by another. Worse yet, regulations from the Environmental Protection Agency are issued at the rate of about 270 a year, more than one for each working day. Each must be screened in each state to determine if it conflicts with local law.

A noncandidate's dream speech

Tom Tiede

WASHINGTON — The following is a speech you will not hear from any of the presidential candidates this season. Too bad.
"Good evening, ladies and gentlemen.
"I know you will be happy to learn that I am not going to attack at length. Nor am I going to flatter my record, attack my opponent, or include in my remarks an outrageous gimmick to assure myself headlines in tomorrow's newspapers. I assume such nonsense is offensive to most Americans. If not, it should be. Your vote should not be purchased by the better showman in this or any other election.
"Instead, I wish to present a brief lesson in civics. To wit: it really doesn't make much difference whom you choose as president in 1976. I say this knowing better than any that there are differences between my opponent and myself, differences of style, of nuance, of personality, perhaps even of ability. But as president either of us would run the government essentially the same, from and changing attitudes of the people of the land.
"it has always been this way. Presidents do not lead in America, they follow. Of course, they do go in their own various directions regarding specific matters, but in the main they do little that the people will not allow them to do. Hence our government, as no other government, is a reflection of those it governs. Which leads me to a second part of my civics lesson: If you are unhappy with your government, and are honest about it, you must look to yourselves for the blame.
"What did I say? I said you are at fault, my friends. You are guilty of careless citizenship, of apathy in national affairs, of political ignorance and societal greed. The result is a government that mirrors your personality. It is self-centered, it is corrupt, it is fueled by voracity and it has lost its nobility. Worse, as you have withdrawn your support for it, it has withdrawn its respect for you.
"Allow me one moment for wallfing, please. I am not here to accuse so much as advise. And I admit that I am exaggerating for effect. The people of this nation are as fine as those in any land on earth. As for the country itself, we must remember that it is a place where 93 percent of those who want to work are working, where the poverty level is based on an income which is most nations would constitute middle class, where an imperfect constitutional system is nevertheless stout enough to seek out and eliminate its own aberrations.
"it is because we are so grand and have so much that I remind you of where the responsibility for our good fortune lies. The people rule. Sadly, you have not of late been ruling well. Fifty million of you did not bother to vote in the last presidential election.

Dear Abby By Abigail Van Buren DEAR ABBY: I have been reading you for 20 years and have used your common-sense answers to some of life's knottiest problems in teaching my students. I am a professor in a medical school.

DEAR ABBY: I have been successful in the field of mental health, but I can do for others what I can't do for myself. My only complaint is the way he keeps talking all the time at night. Your article about the man whose sister got drunk and telephoned him at all hours of the night hit home with me because I've done that hundreds of times. I would hope that the sober man would show some compassion for his alcoholic sister because I know so well the hell she lives in. Abby, have any of your readers had a successful escape from alcoholism?

DEAR LIVING: Yes! And the highest rate of success has been with those who have sought help through Alcoholics Anonymous. (And for the spouse or friend of the alcoholic, Al-Anon, and for the children, Alateen.) I know I am beginning to sound like a broken record, but I cannot say enough for this wonderful non-profit organization.

DEAR ABBY: I met a very attractive, eligible widower last winter, and we've been keeping steady company since. My only complaint is the way he keeps talking all the time about Mildred, his deceased wife. I never talk about my deceased husband. Outside of that, he is a decent man, and we get along just fine.

DEAR UNDECIDED: If he has a sense of humor, tell him that Mildred is in the cemetery, you don't want to take her place. But if he wants a new life and a new wife, I'll consider it - providing he quits talking about Mildred.

Boston harbor front — urban renewal at its best

By STEWART POWELL, BOSTON (UPI) — Gone are the ragged wooden wharves, the jostling, sweating merchants, the smells and men and darkness that put the waterfront of this bustling harbor town off limits for decades.

Scarred, rotten docks that served wooden clipper ships and steel hulled luxury liners alike for two centuries have been repaired.

Government, private enterprise and $140 million have taken the waterfront from the past and given it to the future.

Nearby marketplaces where fresh produce has been sold for 250 years have been restored.

Change for 104-acre harbor front area including 40 wharves and warehouses began a decade ago. Most buildings were gutted and modernized from within, leaving red-brick exteriors untouched.

Many visitors to the area express astonishment as they wander through evidence of urban renewal at its best.

For investors, the long awaited harvest has just begun.

"I just don't believe this place," said Bostonian Ken Gurvin, glancing at greenhouse-style glass enclosing merchants' wheel-to-wheel push carts along the outside walls of 150-year-old Quincy Market.

"It's just incredible." Shops and conflicting smells from adjacent cafe-style food counters crowd the 500-foot long interior of the granite market building, replacing the musty, cluttered butcher shops and wholesalers that packed the building for decades.

The city's second mayor, Josiah Quincy, had the green copper domed market built in 1926 as an "improvement, unexampled in its general character and not to be paralleled for its public utility." Some called it the nation's first urban renewal project.

New construction may not have ignited higher prices for Bostonians then, but the $9.5 million renovation in 1976 has.

Gold plated price tags are common at the market and along the waterfront now that the 20th century and antique chic have arrived.

"I don't know if I'd shop here," said Gurvin, a young financial analyst, "but it's a great place to visit."

The uninhabited warehouse district and the men in tee-shirts that worked it have been replaced by posh apartments housing well heeled men and women tailored collar to cuff.

A harbor view, two-bedroom condominium in a renovated warehouse with a yacht mooring below may cost $100,000 or more. A one bedroom walkup nearby may cost $450 a month.

Twin 40-story luxury apartment buildings tower over the renovated area.

The district's population, less than 1,000 six years ago, now numbers more than 3,400.

Low priced, after work cocktail hours at new waterfront restaurants draw customers from business districts blocks away. Many stay in the area for dinner, rather than hike to the center of town for less expensive meals.

A steady stream of interest in the district evident the past two years has turned into a torrent in recent weeks.

On the first weekend the Quincy market was open in late August, thousands of city dwellers dodged thunderstorms to sample the results of years of careful planning. Whether they return remains uncertain.

"I can't afford any of this stuff," complained Marvin Carter, as he headed from the red-bricked sidewalks outside the new market to the familiar, crate cluttered Haymarket vegetable market across the street.

Contrast exists between the new market and the Haymarket, a crowded outdoor market that has served the area for decades.

"They cater to different kinds of people as far as I can see," says Louis Jackson, a construction worker with six children who travels weekly from the Mattapan section to haggle at the outdoor market. "I think the two places compliment each other well."

Prices and styles compete. Apples selling for 25 cents a pound at the Haymarket sell for 25 cents a piece across the street at the new Quincy brick-a-brack and handicrafts fill the tables outside the renovated market.

Ask Kleiner

By Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: Will any of the recent disaster movies — "Jaws" or "Earthquake" — be shown on TV? DAVID SEARCH, Vancouver, B.C., Can.

They'll all get on TV eventually, but it will probably be several years before you get to see "Jaws" at home. "Earthquake," however, is just around the calendar. NBC will show it in two parts on Sunday, Sept. 26, and Sunday, Oct. 3, on the network's new program, The Big Event.

DEAR DICK: I'd like some information about the guy who plays Carmine on Laverne and Shirley. What is his name? How old is he? Is he married? ANITA BROWN, Laura, Ohio

His name is Eddie Mekka and, glory be, he's single. His age is "under 30," whatever that means. He was in a play, "The Lieutenant," on Broadway and got a Tony nomination for his efforts, and that started things for him.

DEAR DICK: My friends say that Martin Landau and Barbara Bain of Space 1999 are married. Are they? TREVOR ELMORE, Chicasaw, Ala.

Yes — and to each other, too.

DEAR DICK: Will you be kind enough to tell me who Mike Douglas' father is. Have been told it is Curt Douglas. Right or wrong? LORETTA SHORT, Newark, Ohio

DEAR DICK: Is David Carradine of Kung Fu the son of the actor, John Carradine? HARLEY MCCAULEY, White Rock, B.C., Can.

DEAR DICK: I'd very much like to know if Peter Marshall, of The Hollywood Squares, is the son of the great Katherine Marshall, author of so many fine books. E.S., Athens, Ga.

OK, here's the facts about who's whose child. Michael Douglas (the actor, not the talk show host) is the son of Kirk Douglas. David Carradine is the son of John Carradine. But Peter Marshall is no relation to Katherine Marshall — his real name is LaCock, and he's the father of Pete LaCock, the Chicago Cubs' first baseman.

DEAR DICK: We would like to know if the bear in the movie, "Grizzly," was real or mechanical. DONNA HENRICKS AND SHANNA RICHARDS, Duncan, Okla.

Very real and very frightening, according to the film's star, Chris George. He was supposedly trained but you just can't train a grizzly completely.

DEAR DICK: I think Brenda Vaccaro is such a neat person and actress. Sara was a good and decent show. Why was it taken off the air? Will she ever have another show? D.S., Sunnyside, Wash.

I agree with you about Brenda, and about Sara. It went off the air because of that old debbil, low ratings. There's no correlation between neat people and good shows, on the one hand, and successful ratings on the other, unfortunately. I'm sure Brenda will have another show some day, if she wants one.

CB Convac: Unsung heroes of CBing

By INK DIPPER

There are some unsung heroes in Citizens Band Radio. And everytime someone pushes the button on their mike and says: "Break...break..." it is the result of the far-sightedness of a man at the Federal Communications Commission. Back in the mid-40s, World War II having just ended, an engineer at the FCC was appointed an FCC commissioner. It was 1945. He was Ewell Kirk Jett.

It was through his efforts that a Citizens' Radio Communications Service System was established. His predictions for it were considered science-fiction then. Today they are a reality. Jett died in 1967 without ever seeing his wide-ranging views reach culmination.

In a Saturday Evening Post interview right after he was appointed to the commission, Jett explained that "Citizens Band Radio will have a great role to play should there ever be another war. The need for organizing adequate air-raid defense speedily will be served." However, the visionary Jett could see widespread peacetime uses for Citizens Band Radio.

"One can picture a young woman motorist riding alone at night on a lonely road outside a city," he told the Post interviewer in 1945. "A car comes roaring down an intersection and sideswipes her car. She is not badly hurt, but she finds the occupants of the other car seriously harmed." Jett describes a situation that is real: "There is no light that she can see, no farm house nearby, no telephone available immediately. She turns to her handie-talkie, slung over her shoulder like a camera. Pulling up the antenna, she spins the dial to the CB distress frequency."

Obviously, a lot of minute changes have taken place since that vision was projected by Commissioner Jett. But the concept is correct and that is the way it has happened in 1976, just 30 years later. FCC Chairman Richard Wiley pointed out recently that "it took 16 years to reach the first million CB licenses, only eight months to get the second million, and three and one-half months to reach the fourth."

As the scientific discoveries of World War II revealed ways of expanding the usable radio spectrum, necessity seems always to open doors that were previously closed.

The 10-code that is used by all CBers came about as a result of the bank robberies in the Midwest in the 1930s. It was a time of depression. Unemployment was widespread. And with this, came the Bonnie and Clyde, Ma Barkers and other notorious bank robbers of the time.

Stories from that era tell of the problems police had in attempting to isolate the hit-and-run holdup men who were using the automobile and back roads for a fast getaway. Mobile radio, though in its infancy, was brought into play by police. However, it was like an electronic tower of Babel at first.

Then, the 10-code — an idea whose time had come — was invented by Eugene F. Brown of the Iowa State Police. Some say the bankers were prepared to reward any man who could get more orderly action from the police in apprehending the robbers. And it was the Iowa Bankers Association that funded the Iowa radio system. Thus, the 10-code became the method by which pursuing police cars communicated their locations to establish road blocks and isolate land areas.

Modest about his contribution to CB, Brown, who now lives in Omaha, Neb., says that the "10-code was just a natural offshoot of the need for some easily and universally understood communication."

Brown said his broadcasts from Des Moines in 1933 were responsible for the capture of the infamous Barrow gang. Marvin Barrow, Clyde's brother, was killed in the shootout which resulted, and Marvin's wife, Blanche, was captured. Bonnie and Clyde escaped until a later and final engagement with police.

"Ten was just a word we felt was easy to pronounce and easy to understand," the 71-year-old Brown said. "That's the only reason I can remember for using it."

It was never copyrighted. But Brown is an avid CBER himself and enjoys using the code he invented.

Ten-four and out.

Oceans: Our Continuing Frontier - 1

Editor's Note: This is the first of 16 weekly articles in the Courses by Newspaper program, "Oceans: Our Continuing Frontier," to be published in The Herald's Weekend magazine each Saturday. The course is offered for college credit by Manchester Community College. For details about this and future Courses by Newspaper, call MCC's Division of Community Services, 646-2137.

By H. WILLIAM MENARD

Once the whole world was a frontier challenging man. Now the land is explored, occupied, and bursting with people. Only the sea remains as Byron described it, "dark—heaving—boundless—endless and sublime." It is to this frontier that people turn increasingly in the hope that it will offer the riches of the frontiers that are gone—or because it seems the last hope.

In America the hope surges high. This is only fitting, for no great nation has been more intimately linked to the sea throughout its history. Nor none so negligent of that link when other frontiers beckoned. Across the sea our ancestors came, willy nilly, in an unmatched migration. Only the Polynesians went farther seeking homes, and them the sea conquered.

The founding Americans clung to the sea at first, and most of us are still clustered there in the great cities that began as ports.

More and more the sea interests the city dwellers for sport, surfing, and diving, but it was not always so.

In those ports we once built a merchant fleet that culminated in the clipper ships—the queens of the seas, when the '49ers sailed to California. By 1890 when American Admiral Mahan wrote his great theoretical analysis, "The Influence of Sea Power Upon History," the fleet was gone. We built it again during the World Wars, watched it rust, and again it is gone.

In pursuit of Leviathan

From the tiny ports of New England issued the men who did not fear to battle in his own element the largest animal that ever lived.

From pole to pole and through the tropic climate they pursued leviathan for his oil until one day a new frontier opened and cheaper oil was found on the land. All that remained was a tradition, a few men telling sea stories and a few women staring moist-eyed at the sea. Those and an epic masterpiece, Melville's "Moby Dick."

That was a century ago. Now the oil fields of the land grow as elusive as the great white whale. A new breed of American has turned to the sea seeking oil from the continental shelf. Monstrous and marvelous towers rise from the waves, and the accents of Texas are heard from the North Sea to the Persian Gulf. These too will pass—a field yields oil for only a few decades.

A sperm whale calf, newborn by the polar ice, will outlive the oil fields—if we let it.

The living resources of the sea will help to feed us forever if we only can control human ignorance and greed. Fisheries in their present form, however, will not help much more than they do now. What can be hoped of hunting? We would not be what we are, nor in our present predicament, if we had not invented farming 10,000 years ago. The world needs to farm the sea and herd the fish.

The most advanced and productive farms in the world are in America: One very important reason for this preeminence is the advancement of agricultural research that occurred in the Land Grant Colleges. Taking note of this, the nation is beginning to support the Sea Grant Colleges and foster the development of the resources of the sea.

I say "beginning" although the program is several years old, because the application of science and industry to marine food production is surely in its infancy. Here and there in the world we crop oysters and shrimp and other high cost foods. Likewise we are learning to cultivate lobster and abalone. Even on a large scale these developments will not feed very many people, but they may encourage greater advances. The plants and animals heaving sea, scientists have come to a new perception of the solid land they left behind.

The floor of the abyss is splitting apart, the land moves, whole continents drift from pole to equator, and the history of the world is not what it seemed. This revolutionary viewpoint, as startling as the idea once was that the earth moves around the sun, is opening new frontiers of the mind that will help us to understand the physical frontiers of the sea.

The sea is a continuing frontier because it has been too strong to be subdued. The balance is changing. We have not fished the oceans clean but we probably could. We have not poisoned them but we could. Few scientists believe that we have significantly altered the vast open ocean, but near the cities we have. Even a sea as large as the Mediterranean may already be in danger because it is enclosed—and many of its burgeoning industrial cities dump sewage as they did in ancient, emptier times.

Even the open sea is defenseless against the pollution of some new materials created by man. No organisms nor natural reactions affect them, and they will become ever more objectionable for ages to come. Finally we face the ultimate pollution of nuclear wastes, not necessarily those from power plants which might possibly be containable. A twenty-minute exchange of nuclear rockets could poison the sea.

The frontier of the sea has much to offer. Properly developed it can provide challenges for future generations of pioneers. People who have the spirit and will to farm, herd, and mine the sea. People who teach, study, paint, and write about the sea while they are on and in it.

There will be a price to pay and, as times change, some of the moist eyes gazing at the sea may belong to men. However, we shall never learn to conquer the new frontier unless we first control ourselves. Nothing could be worse for mankind—or the sea—than a lawless technological race. "Endless," wrote Byron, but the uncontrolled resources are not. "Boundless," but the emerging law of the sea could bind it. "Sublime," let us unite to keep it so.

Changing viewpoints

Not long ago all our views of the sea were derived from the land, but attitudes and viewpoints are changing. The horrors of the deep have become the shy creatures of Jacques Cousteau's movies. What was a global myth of a flood has become a measured, dated global rise in sea level. We had chanteys about the whale—now we have recorded the eerie moving song of the whale himself. Can we, with such a song echoing in memory, still hunt leviathan? We had paintings of the sea—now we have painters under the sea who feel as well as see what they are painting.

The most profound changes in our views have to do with our basic understanding of the world around us. Working on and in the

Yes, there really is a two-headed coin

By RUSS MacKENDRICK

Beware the two-headed coin! Here (at right) we see two sides of the very same one-cent piece — an "Indian-eagle" rarity. A Denver outfit is hitting the market with a tie-in sale of three double-obverse coins. They are not likely to be snapped up by a dishonest flip artist because the price for the lot is half a million dollars.

Stamps and coins

Note that the one shown here has the flying eagle side dated 1858, and the Indian head side dated 1864. The other pieces in the astronomical offering are on shield nickel planchets with Indians opposite. This sort of thing occurs when mismatched dies are used — one of them has to be wrong. The operation is called "muling" — not because it is a dumb thing to do, but because the product is a hybrid, like the well-known southern draft animal. (And anyway, mules are said to be smarter than we think.) Both of the dies that produced this piece were the same as the ones used in regular coinage. Only two "mules" like this have ever been found. This particular one was formerly in the collection of the late esthete, King Farouk. Many, many mulings have been spotted by beady-eyed numismatists. (There was a recent one in the Canadian Olympic commemorative set). They are not always worth all outdoors, but it is something else to be looking for in that beanpot-full of Indian heads in Aunt Hepzibah's attic.

Cover maniacs agog

Real covermaniacs must be agog over the "LaSalle: Expedition II." This is made up of 25 men wearing old-time clothing and paddling handmade canoes that set out Aug. 11 from Quebec for an eight-month journey to New Orleans. The idea is to follow the route described by LaSalle in his log of the 1680s. There are 38 landings in Canada and 116 in the United States — with covers and cancellations as they go along. The first in this country will be Washington Island, Wisconsin, on Nov. 4.

For ordering information see "Stamps" magazine of Aug. 14 and 28 at the Mary Cheney Library.

There is a petition afloat that asks for the issuance of a LaSalle stamp before the trip is completed.

Cheers for Ochs

Cheers for the Adolph Ochs stamp that will go on sale in New York City on the 18th. It will have only one plate number. The reason is that it comes only in shades of black, light and dark. When you get five colors you get a selvage strip with five numbers — the price we pay for beauty.

The stamp will commemorate the 125th anniversary of the New York Times. No first-day ceremonies are planned by the Postal Service but the Times will surely whoop it up a bit. Genuine, handback first day cancellations will be available at the lobby of the NYC General P.O. at 33rd and 8th Ave.

What do you call it?

The collection and study of paper money has provoked a tempest in a teapot over what to call the hobby. The British are saying "notaphily" and Americans are leaning toward "syngraphics." It depends on whether you want to look at it as a love of notes or a garnering of printed material.

Stamp collecting might be called timbromania except that in 1965 one Monsieur Herpin suggested "philately," a combination of "love of" and a word for "tax-free" or "prepaid things."

First fall meeting

Francois Gamache will preside at the first fall meeting of the Manchester Society for the "Lovers-of-Prepaid-Things" on the 14th, at Mott's Community Hall, 7 to 10 p.m. Visitors are welcome.
