Chinese shakeup under way

China's Communist Party newspaper today urged support of Hua Kuo-feng as the apparent successor to Chairman Mao Tse-tung amid reports Mao's widow and three other radicals had been arrested for plotting a coup. Shown in a photo taken Sept. 2 are: Hau, left; Chang Chun-chiao, behind Hua, chief political commissar of the armed forces; party vice chairman Wang Huang-wen, second left; Chang and Wang are two of the three radicals. At far right is Mao's widow, Chiang Ching and beside her is Yeh Chien-ying, defense minister.

Hua is appointed Chinese premier

TOKYO (UPI) — China formally announced tonight the appointment of Premier Hua Kuo-feng as chairman of the Chinese Communist party, succeeding the late Mao Tse-tung. Japan's Kyodo News Service reported.

In a dispatch from Peking, Kyodo said Hua's appointment to China's top post was announced by a government spokesman.

Hua's appointment as chairman had been disclosed by wall posters in Peking in recent days but there had been no official confirmation of the move.

The announcement came amid Western and East European reports that Mao's widow and three other party "radicals" had been arrested for plotting a coup.

Diplomatic sources in Peking and Hong Kong said there was no evidence to substantiate the reports of the arrest of Chiang Ching, a former actress and Mao's fourth wife, and three other members of the influential party politburo.

The reports, carried by the London Daily Telegraph, the London Financial Times, Toronto Globe and Mail, and the Yugoslav News agency Tanjug said Mrs. Mao and three members of the so-called "Shanghai Mafia" were arrested for planning a coup.

Kyodo quoted the Chinese government spokesman as saying the official announcement of Hua's appointment was delayed because the entire party organization had to be informed of the decision in advance.

Ford admits mistake

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today admitted he made a mistake in saying Eastern Europe was free of Soviet domination and delivered a scathing attack on Jimmy Carter's leadership qualities.

"I did not express myself clearly; I admit it," Ford told a group of ethnic leaders at the White House.

In a formal statement he read to the gathering, Ford said, "The original mistake was mine." He was referring to his statement last Wednesday during his San Francisco debate with Carter when he said Poland and other East European nations were not Soviet dominated. Since then, he has said he could have been "more precise"—that it was all a "misunderstanding."

"There can be no doubt where I stand," Ford said. "Any man who seeks to persuade you that I think otherwise is engaging in deceit and distortion."

Ford said he wanted to spell out "precisely what I believe:

"—First, the countries of East Europe are, of course, dominated by the Soviet Union. Were it not for the presence of more than 30 Russian divisions there now, the countries of eastern Europe would long have achieved their freedom.

"—Second, the United States never has, does not now and never will recognize, accept or acquiesce in the Soviet domination of eastern Europe.

"—Third, the peoples of eastern Europe yearn for freedom; while their countries may be physically dominated their spirit is not. Their spirit has never been broken and never will be. And someday they will be free."

Ford's campaign suffered a setback as a result of his remarks in San Francisco and his aides conceded he had lost momentum. In recanting before an assembly of mostly pro-Ford ethnic leaders, Ford tried to make amends.

Directors to act tonight on two contract proposals

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Contract proposals for town fire fighters and school administrators will be two of the items the Board of Directors is scheduled to act on tonight when it meets in the Municipal Building at 8 o'clock.

The directors are scheduled to vote on acceptance of a fact-finder's report for the local fire fighters union, Local 1579. The report asked for a four per cent pay hike in each year of a two-year contract and was generally favorable to the town in several other non-salary issues.

The board is also supposed to act on the school administrators contract proposal. A three-member arbitration panel suggested a two-year contract with a four per cent pay raise in the first year and a five per cent boost in the second.

Wilson Deakin, assistant school superintendent, spoke to the board last Tuesday and said that the arbitrators proposal is a fair one.

The Board of Education and the Manchester School Administrators Association, representing about 30 principals and supervisors, have both approved the proposed contract.

Also on tonight's agenda is consideration of an ordinance to provide town patrolling of fire lanes at shopping areas in Manchester.

Town Manager Robert B. Weiss has requested adoption of such an ordinance. The patrol work would be done by members of the Manchester Police Department.

Manchester store owners have complained that shoppers often park in the fire lanes, which are marked out in front of the store to provide a route for fire apparatus in case of emergency. The store owners have no power to keep people from parking in the area.

The board is scheduled to consider a proposal for the hiring of an Outreach Worker for Manchester's elderly residents. The directors met for an hour with the Commission on Aging to discuss the possibility of hiring someone for the position.

The board is also supposed to act on several financial allocations and appropriations.

Four of the appropriations are for Educational Special Projects, which will be funded through state and federal grants. One of the appropriations will be for $108,446 to help finance a remedial reading program.

Director of Public Works, Jay J. Giles, has asked for a $42,925 additional appropriation to the Sewer Fund. This money, which will come through state and federal grants, is to be used for designs for improvements at the sewage treatment plant.

Giles is also seeking a $700 allocation improvement from the board for construction of a canopy at the rear entrance to the Municipal Building. The canopy will help eliminate problems with ice formation on the rear entrance during the winter.

Economic 'pause' debated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said today the nation's economy is in a "pause" which should not cause concern because the overall economic recovery is still on track.

However, Charles Schultz, an economist from the Brookings Institute and an adviser to Jimmy Carter, said a reduction in federal government spending this year has hurt the recovery.

"It is time to begin to worry about it (the recovery)," Schultz said. "I don't think we ought to rush in with an immediate dose of stimulus but we are getting closer and closer and closer to the point where that may be necessary."

Simon and Schultz discussed the economy in an interview on the NBC Today program.

In recent weeks, the government's economic indicators have slumped, wholesale prices have climbed, unemployment has hovered at just below 8 per cent and the stock market has declined sharply.

"Certainly," Simon said, "we can still call it a pause and more than get away with it."

However, he added, "It is tremendously unfortunate that we pay so much attention to one or two months of economic statistics and totally ignore the underlying trends in our economy.

"The underlying trend in the economy is that we are in the midst of a healthy and balanced expansion that compares very favorably with the four expansions since the end of World War II. In fact, in two areas, employment and industrial production, we're actually ahead of the last four expansions. This pause is a natural phenomena that occurs in every recovery."

United Way helps MPHNA

Manchester Public Health Nursing Association is a United Way agency that provides home health care for people of all ages. Just as good health is a valuable personal asset, public health nursing is a valuable community asset.

The nurse gives nursing care and teaches families how to care for the ill member at home. She assists in the rehabilitation of patients, counsels the patient and family when mental illness strikes, and makes referrals to other health and social services when appropriate. She assesses the level of nursing care needed and supervises home health aides who very often provide direct personal care.

MPHNA helps make the transition from hospital to home easier for patients, provides continuity of care and serves as a bridge between hospital, physician and patient. Home visitation services cover a life span, starting with maternity and infant care through teen-age health, injuries, illnesses, communicable and chronic disease and health care for the elderly.

In addition to its home visit program, MPHNA conducts Well Child Conferences twice a month. This program provides routine physical exams, immunizations, and screening tests for preschoolers who would not otherwise receive preventive health care. Screening tests for blood pressure, glaucoma, diabetes, etc. are provided for the public at an annual Health Fair.

Patients may request care for themselves or may be referred by family members, physicians, hospital, clinic, other agencies or friends. A patient receiving nursing care or treatment must be under the care of a physician. Physical therapists, home health aides and medical social service workers are available to patients through MPHNA contractual arrangements. MPHNA services are available to all Manchester residents without regard to race, color, religion or economic status. The agency fee is based on actual cost. Those who can are expected to pay the full cost. For those unable to pay full cost, the fee is adjusted according to ability to pay.

Besides United Way, MPHNA also receives financial support from donations, patient fees, State Welfare (Medicaid), Health Insurance for the Aged (Medicare), and other third-party payers such as private insurers and the Veterans Administration.

Someone still makes house calls and is there in time of need. Thanks to you, it's working.

Checks blood pressure

Judith King, R.N., of the Manchester Public Health Nursing Association, checks the blood pressure of Alice Hutchinson whom she visits twice a month for health teaching and supervision of medications and diet. Ms. King also supervises the home health aide who visits Miss Hutchinson once a week.

WASHINGTON — The U. S. Agriculture Department has admitted that retail beef prices will increase up to 25 per cent by 1978, Rep. William R. Cotter, D-Conn., said today. He said the acknowledgment was in reply to his complaint made in September that the department was concealing the possible price rise from the public. Cotter alleges it "proves the bankruptcy of the administration's food policy."

PITTSBURGH — U. S. Steel has agreed to spend more than $600 million to stop its coke works at Clairton, Pa., from spewing out soot, smoke and other pollutants. PLO condemns embassy attacks

ROME (UPI) — Italian authorities say they are having difficulty establishing the nationalities of three youths who stormed the Syrian Embassy with submachine guns to protest the "massacre" of Palestinians in Lebanon. The trio — first identified as Palestinians but later as one Palestinian, one Syrian and one Lebanese — shot and wounded a consular official and held two other hostages for an hour Monday before surrendering to police. Spokesmen for the Palestine Liberation Organization in Rome and Beirut condemned the attack as an "irresponsible action" that Syria could exploit as a pretext for a new military offensive against Palestinians in Lebanon. Earlier in the day, three youths believed to be Palestinians lobbed a hand grenade at the Syrian Embassy in the Pakistani capital of Islamabad. One of the attackers was killed and the other two arrested. Police said the three identified themselves as Nabil Hassan, 25, of Lebanon, Ahmed Ousein, 22, a Palestinian, and Jaad Mohammed, 20, of Syria and said they were students who arrived in Italy Saturday. Investigators said, however, the three carried no documents and the names and nationalities they gave may be false. The Italian government could not confirm a report that Syria had asked for extradition of the Rome raiders. Legal sources said the real nationalities of the three might play a role in Italy's decision on any such request. The trio, carrying sub-machine guns, a pistol and six hand grenades, burst into the embassy and shot consular official Hurin Hatem, 45, in the leg. Four other embassy officials and employees were slightly injured. A message found on one of the attackers listed a series of demands by the "Black June" organization, named after the start of the Syrian offensive against Palestinian and leftist in Lebanon. The Italian government could not confirm a report that Syria had asked for extradition of the Rome raiders. Legal sources said the real nationalities of the three might play a role in Italy's decision on any such request.

Red Cross seeks housing for explosion victims

Through the public's generosity, Mrs. Lorraine Goss has received much household furniture for her family who were left homeless last week when their home was destroyed by an explosion. However, she has no place to put them as she has not yet found a place to live. Temporarily, she and her three children are staying with friends. Mrs. Goss has issued an appeal through the Manchester Red Cross for an apartment or house with three bedrooms for a reasonable rent. Anyone with such information is requested to contact Mrs. Elaine Sweet, director of the Manchester Red Cross, at 645-5111.

Business climate said challenge for state solons

WATERBURY (UPI) — The biggest challenge facing lawmakers, says House Minority Leader Gerald F. Stevens, R-Milford, is producing a suitable business climate in Connecticut. Stevens, widely expected to be a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in 1978, said Monday night an overall commitment must be made to stop the loss of jobs from Connecticut. He said in remarks to the Naugatuck Valley Industrial Council that positive steps should be taken "designed to make Connecticut a good place to expand your business in and a good place to move your business to." Stevens, one of Democratic Gov. Ella T. Grasso most vocal critics, said he favored additional tax credits for employers who create new jobs and removal of the sales tax on business machinery. "The cost in jobs of particular proposals must be spelled out in blunt terms," he said. "The Connecticut people who hold jobs have more to lose from a plant that moves South than the corporate executive does." He called for a crusade for jobs similar to the effort to clean up the environment and improve consumer protection laws that took place in the state earlier in the decade. "The concern of the employer who wants to work and the employer who wants to stay in business in Connecticut are the same," he said.

Atty. Dominic Squatrito of 37 Jordt St. has been named campaign manager for Sen. David Barry, who is seeking reelection in the Fourth Senatorial District. Squatrito is a member of the Democratic Town Committee and has served as counsel for legislative committees.

Cedar Ridge corrosion cleaned out

The flushing of water mains on Sunday in Glastonbury's Cedar Ridge area has apparently cleaned out a corrosion problem that had occurred. The Manchester Water Department had received complaints from customers in that area about water quality. Tests of the water determined that corrosion in the mains was the cause. The department attempted to flush the mains two weeks ago, but they were not able to sustain the water pressure at a high enough level to do a thorough cleaning job. On Sunday, the department got together with the Glastonbury Fire Department, which provided pumps needed to maintain the water pressure.

Asian expert believes Hua will stabilize China

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — Premier Hua Kuo-feng will be a stabilizing influence in China's international relations, but not so charismatic a leader as Mao Tse-tung, says an Asian affairs expert at the University of Bridgeport. Prof. Justis Vanberkroef said today that Hua is essentially interested in maintaining a steady momentum toward the industrialization of China. He said reports from Peking that Mao's widow has been arrested, along with three other persons, indicate the power struggle is continuing despite the naming of Hua. "Hua is not and never was a major party figure, but he is what we might describe as a relatively quiet but extremely competent managerial type of technician," he said. "At the moment I see Hua primarily as a stabilizing influence and so I don't anticipate any major changes in relations with the outside world." On Sunday, the department got together with the Glastonbury Fire Department, which provided pumps needed to maintain the water pressure.

Voter-making deadline 8 tonight

People lined up in the town clerk's office this morning in a last-minute attempt to register to vote for this year's election. Today is the last day for registering for the Nov. 2 election. The town clerk's office will be open until 8 p.m. today to register voters. A total of 305 new voters were registered at Saturday's voter-making session. Of the new voters, 112 signed up as Democrats, 65 became Republicans, and 128 chose to remain unaffiliated. Since Oct. 1, 1,356 new voters have been registered in Manchester, according to the registrars of voters' office. People who turn 18 or become United States citizens between now and Election Day may register until Nov. 1. These people may register from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, in the registrars of voters office.

Democratic factions now reported united

HARTFORD (UPI) — Factions in the battle earlier this year for the Democratic state chairman's job apparently have barred the hatchet for the sake of party unity. The effort to solidify the party's backing of Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter in the state came about Monday, according to Democratic late chief William A. O'Neill said after a meeting "all factional disputes have been put aside and we are so informing the Democratic National Committee." O'Neill, who succeeded the late John M. Bailey in 1975, successfully fought off a bitter challenge for the top post in July by Democratic Town Chairman Peter G. Kelly. The fight left a split between O'Neill and his chief supporter, former Gov. John N. Dempsey, and Kelly and his main backer, Nicholas R. Carbone, former Hartford Democratic town chairman. The four met Monday "to bring all factions together on a statewide basis," said O'Neill. "The four of us will now work together to sell the message of Jimmy Carter." Kelly agreed, "We've reached basic agreement on the approach to the campaign." Dempsey said he will begin a statewide effort to mobilize state organization support for Carter.

Weapons deal with Israel requires okay of Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sophisticated new weapons scheduled for Israel must be approved by Congress and therefore probably will not be shipped until next year, according to Pentagon officials. President Ford said at a meeting with Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon Monday he approved a $1 billion arms sale agreement to forestall "circumstances we want to avoid" in the Middle East. His press secretary, Ron Neesen later told reporters the President made the decision last week on a long-standing Israeli request, and the weapons are part of the credit sales to Israel already authorized in the budget. "I would like to tell you very frankly that we never discuss in public any military equipment purchases we make anywhere in the world," Allon told reporters as he left the meeting with Kissinger. Allon also denied to reporters that the step-up in arms to Israel had any connection with the U.S. elections. "Posing for photographers at the start of their Oval Office meeting, Allon told Ford, 'I'm glad you have agreed to the new items' in the sale." Ford replied, "It was the right thing to do as there would be no question about the support, in order to prevent circumstances we want to avoid." A White House statement after the Ford-Allon session said the President "reaffirmed his continuing commitment to the security and survival of Israel, noting that the United States intends to continue its generous policy of economic and military aid to Israel." The statement also said Ford and Allon agreed the strong friendship between their two countries "forms a solid basis for addressing ... questions involved in the search for a peace settlement in the Middle East."

Ex-Democrat Lucien DiFazio now party's severest critic

By FLOYD LARSON Herald Reporter
A few months ago, the name Lucien DiFazio didn't stir much recognition. Today, thanks to his adroit exploitation of a campaign contribution controversy, Lucien P. DiFazio, Jr. is becoming known as the man who wants to replace William Cotter as U.S. Representative in Connecticut's First District. But having overcome the recognition factor is only part of DiFazio's battle. His Republican toga is relatively new in that he has been a party member only a short time. He ran for mayor in Hartford in 1971 and his political experience has been limited to Hartford. Despite his former Democratic affiliation, he is outspoken in his criticism of the party. "It only took me a minute, in the legal sense, to become a Republican," he said in an interview at The Herald. "But my decision to switch was two years or more in the making. Under the Democrats I have seen my grocery dollar shrink in half since I was in college. "One of the best kept secrets has been the 22 years of Democratic control of the Congress with deficit spending. I thought too the Democrats favored busing (to desegregate schools) which I opposed and I felt they have been cutting our military budgets to the point where we are not keeping pace with our enemies. And finally, I think the Democratic congresses have enacted too much deficit-type legislation which has put too many criminals back on the streets," DiFazio continued. "Another distinction between the Republicans and the Democrats I find is in leadership. The Republican leaders are accessible and they are more open-minded; but the Democrats are not. You can't talk to Carbone." (Nicholas Carbone is a Hartford City Councilman and a frequent target of DiFazio in his criticism of First District Democrats.) "The major issues in this district are jobs, inflation and honesty in government," the Hartford attorney said. He went on to spell out his support of a bill co-sponsored by Republican Rep. Ronald Sarasin as an amendment to the Humphrey-Hawkins Full Employment Act, which the Congress has not acted on. Under the Sarasin plan, he said, tax incentives would encourage private enterprise to maintain jobs instead of laying off people without the creation of another federal bureaucracy. "It costs the federal government $10,000 to supervise a $14,000 a year job," DiFazio said. "Under this proposal the Internal Revenue Service and the Department of Health Education and Welfare could do the supervising without adding more to the bureaucracy. "Government cannot do it all alone. It can help, but the best way to create long-term jobs is through private industry. I am opposed to dead-end CCC (Civilian Conservation Corps) type of jobs which have no dignity. "He was highly critical of Rep. Cotter's handling of the job as First District Congressman. "One of the first things I would do," he said, "is to designate one or two of my top staff men to keep me informed about what is happening in major industries and unions in the district. I feel a good congressman can function as a mediator and often help head off the confrontations between labor and management which sometimes lead to a loss of jobs when an industry decides to leave the state. "There are other areas in which a congressman should intervene also. My opponent's failure to become a part of the dispute between Carbone and the seven cities over HUD grants and more recently the $30 million transit fund; shows why I call him a phantom congressman. "Cotter said he stayed out of the seven-cities dispute because it was in the courts. I know, and he knows too, that 95 per cent of such cases are settled out of court. If I am elected congressman, I intend to keep informed on what is going on in the district so I can help solve some of these problems. I may not always succeed, but I think it is my job to try," the 33-year-old Trinity College graduate said. "Government cannot do it all alone. It can help, but the best way to create long-term jobs is through private industry. I am opposed to by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., as where budget cuts could be made without endangering vital problems. As honesty in government, DiFazio feels this is a very vital concern of the people and he has been repeatedly pointing out Cotter's acceptance and return of contributions from staff aides which are allegedly illegal. In summing up, DiFazio defined his concept of a good Congress as being one "that is subjective in recognizing that the problems facing New York City and Hebron, Conn., are different. That a model cities program for Los Angeles may not apply well to South Windsor. This is why I am for revenue-sharing because I believe the states and the cities and towns are in much better position to decide their own needs than Washington." Lucian P. DiFazio is fighting an incumbent Democrat in a district where Democrats heavily outnumber Republicans. He also has undoubtedly strong opposition from the Carbone forces in Hartford where most of the voters reside. Cotter's return of the challenged contributions and other admissions in public debates have indicated the incumbent is on the defensive. DiFazio is campaigning hard and toward the end of the day, when this interview took place, the strain was showing; but, as he says, "It is time the First District had a visible congressman not a phantom who shows up at times when there is no controversy. He is there because of the Democratic bosses." The question Nov. 2 may well be decided, not by Republican voters, but by rank and file Democrats who seem to be the real target of DiFazio's campaign.

KEEP SMILING
KEEP HAPPY

Abolishing the old Connecticut "Blue Laws" as regards Sunday store openings had me digging into some old books to see just what is still in effect in other states.

Some laws, admittedly, seem funny only because the need for them has passed, yet they remain on the books. Like the law in Emporia, Kan., requiring a passenger to precede a car through town alert to warn people so they can get their horses off the street; or the law in Newton, Kan., that forbids driving buffalo through the streets. I guess we can consider that one passed. Others are worded in a way to give one pause, such as a statute of The Virginia Code that prohibits "corrupt practice or bribery by any person other than candidates"; not said. One wonders just what life was like when some of these laws were deemed necessary. Imagine having to restrain anyone from picking feathers from live geese as they did in California. And what a sad time it must have been in Riverside, Calif., when they wrote the health ordinance forbidding two persons to kiss without first wiping their lips with carbolic soap water. As for Connecticut, well, in Bristol, anyone for negotiating with a bus is fined $50 or more. If music is your thing, watch out. Females are not allowed to play in orchestras in Connecticut after 10 p.m. And this has to be a law that has been broken many times. It is against Connecticut law for a man to write love letters to a girl whose mother has forbidden him to see her. In other rather bonehead legislation, Hartford, Conn., makes it illegal to educate dogs. If you happen to be traveling through Danbury, remember, no one can fly a kite on the streets of Danbury without a permit from the mayor.

Betty's notebook

By Betty Ryder

Now this state law could result in some very sloppy supermarkets. In Connecticut, it is against the law to sell pickles which, when dropped twelve inches, collapse in their own juice. "They should remain whole and even bounce." And woe to the poor taxicab driver who finds himself with a corpse in his cab. The law says that in Hartford, carrying corpses in taxis is punishable by a five-dollar fine. Still on the law books is a law that must give great displeasure to farmers. No person is allowed to chew tobacco without a doctor's permit in Connecticut.

And if you happen to be athletic, well, you still have to watch out. The law states that in Hartford you cannot cross the street walking on your hands.

If you're aware of the traffic in Hartford, I wouldn't advise it.

Dedication

The beautiful Regional Occupational Training Center at Hilltown Rd. and Webber St. will be dedicated on Sunday, Dr. Mark R. Shedd, commissioner of education, will be the guest speaker. Drove by the new facility this past Sunday and it must be a wonderful feeling for so many people who gave so much of their time and energies to make it a reality. Especially its director Norman Fendell, without whose foresight and determination it would not now exist.

The Manchester Longhouse, comprising all the Tribes and a part of the Indian Valley Nation, also conducts Longhouse events, such as bowling tournaments, family picnics, and this year it participated in the Bicentennial Parade in Manchester. The high point of the year is the Longhouse weekend campout at the YMCA Camp Woodstock in Woodstock. The program is designed to bring fathers and their children closer together. All dads with children ages 5-9 are invited to attend the Pow Wow and learn more about the program.

What's good for General Motors

Detroit is watching the behavior of the automobile-buying public more closely than ever this year. Will people go for the new slimmed-down Chevrolets, Oldsmobiles, Pontiacs, Buicks and Cadillacs just introduced by General Motors, or will the industry's pace-setter lose sales to Ford and Chrysler, whose big cars remain unchanged in size for 1977? Will GM, in fact, be competing with itself since its intermediate models are not due for the same treatment until 1978?

The corporation is betting that its gamble will pay off, that Americans are ready for the kind of "full-size" family cars it says will have to become the standard if the industry is to meet government-mandated gasoline mileage guidelines - cars that are lighter, shorter, more economical and yet (as its heavy advertising campaign emphasizes) have as much or more interior room and trunk space, as well as the ride and performance Americans have come accustomed to.

"We expect the best fourth-quarter in history," says Robert D. Lund, general manager of Chevrolet, whose Caprice and Impala models are almost 11 inches shorter and 700 pounds lighter than their predecessors. If so, it will signal a dramatic reversal of a trend which saw Americans seem to have forgotten all about high gasoline prices, snapping up big cars as fast as the industry could produce them this year. Only American Motors, whose largest model is classed as an intermediate, sold fewer cars in the 1976 model year than in 1975.

But whatever the final sales figures will be for 1977, the long-range future would seem to be on the side of General Motors.

"Something just had to be done," says Lund. "Cars were getting too big because of the government's demands for emission controls and safety improvements, such as door braces and bumpers. All of this added up to about 500 pounds to a car's weight and made it so long many people just couldn't get their cars into a garage."

This GM officials made the decision four years ago to redesign their big cars from scratch - to built-in safety, emission and, especially, economy requirements rather than continuing to add them on to existing designs. Their competitors must eventually do the same, they believe. We think they're right. We even think this may be one case where what's good for General Motors is good for the country.

Open forum

Youth only wants a chance to learn

To the editor, I have a conflict along with many others, but don't know quite how to solve it. Our conflict deals with our getting a job. I thought maybe if I wrote this to Open Forum many store managers/owners would read this and could help. When I turned 16 this past January, I decided it was time I went out and started earning my own money. So I set out to find a job - 18 and unexperienced. I understand jobs are hard to find, right about now. But those I did find will hire 15-year-olds but want them experienced. So I did not get a job. How can employers expect us to get experience if they don't hire us? Today I answered an ad for a job in a shoe store. They asked me if I had any experience in selling shoes. I said "only in buying them for myself." They laughed.

Town Meeting '76 backers praised

To the editor, Of all the many groups who participated in Town Meeting '76, Manchester, several have not been publicly recognized. Cadette Troop 10 and Cadette Troop 628 of the Girl Scouts for planning and providing all day child care for 35 children whose parents participated in workshops and discussions. Christ Felleter and Steven Whitam of Boy Scout Troop 29 (Center Church) for helping set up the day.

Weiss commended for urging appeal

To the editor, General Manager Robert B. Weiss is to be commended for supporting the recommendation of Town Council Member to appeal the recent court decision relative to the Buckland Firehouse and the decision to man the firehouse at this time. John B. Barin, Town Council Member, is to be commended for his support of the appeal. As owner of the Pioneer Industrial Park and other commercial land at the northern end of town, I fully appreciate the need for a property located fire fighting facility to serve this growing area of our town.

Butz retirement long overdue

WASHINGTON - Ford finally gave Earl Butz the gate. He should have fired Butz on Friday, Oct. 1, 1976, when Butz admitted that he had made a course, vulgar and gratuitously insulting remark about what he called "the colored." The conversation should have gone like this: FORD - Did you say it?

HOW THEY STAND

On energy

"First, we have to free the energy-producing portions of our economy from the kind of regulation and control that has been imposed on it for a number of years. We have to make some realistic appraisals and adjustments in how we use our coal more effectively and more efficiently. We have a 300 year supply of coal. We have got to increase it from 800 million tons to 1 billion 200 million tons by 1985. We have to spend research and development money on solar energy, on geothermal energy and some of the other exotic fuels, and I am glad to report to you that I submitted for the next fiscal year, we increased the R and D money by over 35 per cent.

"I would increase dramatically the amount of research and development funds that go into solar energy. I would favor strong conservation measures, including mandatory efficiency of autos, better insulation of homes, changes in the rate structure of electric power companies. I would continue to use atomic power as a last priority, and with strict conservation and safety protocols required. I favor the deregulation of natural gas for a limited period of time, leaving existing contracts at the lowest price levels intact."

Today's thought

"...out of His glorious, unlimited resources He will give you the mighty inner strengthening of His Holy Spirit." Eph. 3:16 L.B.

Asaph, a spiritual leader and poet contended that he was going through a time of doubt and discouragement and was tempted to forsake His calling. (Psa. 73)

His desperation and doubt was brought on because of his observation of people around him who were envying his inner strengthening of His Holy Spirit.

Asaph, a spiritual leader and poet contended that he was going through a time of doubt and discouragement and was tempted to forsake His calling. (Psa. 73)

"Does God realize what is going on?" said Asaph. "Why take the trouble to be pure? For all I get out of it is trouble and we - everyday and all day long!" "I came so close to the edge of the cliff! My feet were slipping and I was almost gone."

His backsliding was almost complete but one day he went into God's sanctuary to meditate and there, in God's Presence, the Holy Spirit did His work. He revealed that these evil persons were on a slippery path to sudden destruction at the hand of God and that if he would just reach out and accept the assurance of God's continuing love all the glorious, unlimited resources and mighty inner strengthening of the Holy Spirit would be available; acting as a balancing rod as he teetered so dangerously at the edge of the cliff of spiritual destruction, establishing him safely on the firm foundation of God's love and justice.

10 years ago Four East Catholic High School students, Virginia Manning, Kathleen Michalak, Rella Daigle and Nancy Lynch, and a St. Thomas Seminary student, Edward Moran, all of Manchester, receive $200 scholarship awards from the Knights of Columbus in honor of the Rt. Andrew Tully

BUTZ - Yes, sir. FORD - Then pack up and get out. Instead, on that Friday, Ford gave Butz what the White House announced was a "severe reprimand." That didn't satisfy the Ford Campaign Committee, whose associate director, William Greener, said the Secretary's comment was "shocking and outrageous," and "obviously hurts us."

Greener wasn't kidding. Jimmy Carter, then the black vote locked up, but Ford's indecision ignored another political law that says you don't alienate folks who are lined up with the opposition; after all, the other candidate might make a boobyboo. Moreover, Ford had to lose ground among voters of both parties who are repelled by use of the language Butz chose to characterize blacks.

"We don't talk like that down here," a deep South editor said on the phone, "and we don't like people that do." Some Ford people noted that Butz's loud-mouthed remark posed a dilemma for the President: Firing Butz risked a hostile reaction in farm states where the Secretary's policies have been popular.

Such thinking suggests that farmers are second-rate people. Even as they and me, farmers are not perfect, but they have always been sorry to see Butz go, but whatever

Growing older

Seniors speak to the next president

An open letter to our next president. We older Americans are, for the most part, a hopeful company. God willing, we will all live through your term of office. But we are aware that for some of us, the vote on Nov. 2 may be the last presidential vote of our lives. That certainly is a solemn thought. Your decisions as president can determine the climate of our last years on earth. Will we end our days in comfortable serenity? Or will we be tossed about in anguish and despair?

We don't really dwell on death overmuch. Actually, we're too busy making our money as we can. We meet whatever difficulties may confront us. Two great pleasures have advised us on how to face our final days. Dylan Thomas urged: Do not go gently into that good night. Old age should rage and burn at close of day. Rage, rage against the dying of the light.

More will be required. But the construction of housing for the elderly is not entirely a matter of money. Local zoning laws often limit the areas where senior housing may be located. In some cases, the zoning laws determine whether housing for the elderly will be built at all. We hope that the administration will initiate and promote laws and regulations in housing for the elderly.

As our president, you and the aged will have common interests. You may want our votes again. We want to be alive to cast such a vote. But we may not live long because of health services in our country are horrendous. The richest industrial nation in the world is ashamed. Any comparison between our health services for the elderly and those in other industrial nations finds the United States operating in the dark ages.

In recent years, the scandal in nursing homes and home health services have been exposed by Congress. There has been no substantial effort to correct disgraceful abuses of the helpless old and the temporarily sick. These conditions can be eliminated. Proprietary nursing homes and home health services should be taken over by our government. No one should make profit from our physical or emotional difficulties. What we demand from our President is a National Health Plan, as proposed on the record, a greater percentage of senior citizens cast ballots in general elections and in more elections than any other age group. In this election, it is being rumored that we aren't sticking to our usual practices. We'll vote all right. But the talk is that our party loyalty is not what it used to be, that we'll be splitting tickets all over the lot. What about you? How do you feel about the candidates, the issues and what they mean to senior citizens? Here's a chance to sound off. Fill in the opinion ballot below. You may wish to make this a group project with friends, sending your ballots to The Herald for over 60 citizens only, no youngsters please. - Lou Cottin

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: TIRED OF ACTING wrote: "After eight years of marriage, I've fallen out of love with my husband. He's generous, a wonderful father and easy to live with. I have a car of my own, don't have to work, and I know he loves me, but I'm sick to death of taking it in the bedroom."

DEAR ALONE: These wings must be pretty crowded, judging from the number of letters I've received from women who'd like to be on that waiting list. Which only goes to reaffirm that one woman's leftovers is another woman's banquet.

DEAR ABBY: Congratulations to SICK OF TIPPING! He's the first person who's made me furious enough to actually write Dear Abby letters. My husband supervises the dining room of a large hotel. He started as a busboy and worked his way up. We have four children who have depended on tips for the roof over their heads for quite a while.

DEAR ABBY: Begging to disagree with you, "regrets only" on an invitation DOES NOT simplify matters. What about those persons who are out of town and do not receive the invitation? How could THEY attend?

DEAR WASH: A waiter who performs the services you describe has certainly earned a generous tip. But what about the waiter who is impatient, indifferent or surly? Does such a waiter "earn every tip he or she gets"? If tips were given for performance instead of automatically, some waiters would be "in for a surprise."

DEAR ABBY: I know everyone who works with my husband, and they all agree that he's a very good waiter. He's in for a big surprise. WASHINGTONIAN

West victor in dirty tricks

NORTH (D) 12. EAST returned his jack of spades. South played his ace and West dropped the queen. Now it was South's turn to do something and the results were disastrous. He decided that East had led the jack of spades from jack-10-dummy. He entered dummy with a club and took a finesse against that 10 spot that East was supposed to hold. West produced that card and led a second diamond, whereupon South, who was really mad at himself by then, hopped up with dummy's queen to wind up going down one at his notrump contract.

ASK THE GOODDOGS

A Missouri reader wants to duplicate and South felt that he needed a top score. Hence, his two-diamond response to the spade opening. When North raised to three diamonds, South bid three notrump. If West had led anything but a diamond, South would rattle off 12 tricks for his top or at least a tie for top with any other suit played, three notrump and made six. However, West decided that maybe South was trying something. He opened his fourth-best diamond, dummy's 10 forced East's king and

Tom Hart spectacular as 49ers upset Rams

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — On his biggest night as a football player, Tommy Hart seemed a little blither.

After a spectacular national television performance in a 16-0 upset victory over the Los Angeles Rams, the San Francisco 49ers' defensive end let his feelings spill out.

"It's tough to play as long as I have and not get any recognition," Hart reflected. "Do you know I've never made any all-star teams? Not a one.... It would be nice to be recognized once in a while. A big game like this on TV will help, of course. Maybe there'll be a few more big games before I'm through. I sure hope so."

Maybe Hart, a nine-year pro from Morris Brown of Atlanta, has been overlooked because San Francisco's other defensive end is All-Pro Cedric Hardman.

But it was all Hart's show Monday night. He forced James Harris into three fumbles as the 49ers, with a club record 10 sacks, moved ahead of the previously unbeaten Rams to the top of the National Football Conference West standings.

Improving their record to 4-1 under new Coach Monte Clark, the 49ers jolted the Rams with all their points in the first 5:56 of the second half. Jim Plunkett, the 1970 Heisman Trophy winner, passed for two touchdowns.

After a scoreless first half, Plunkett hit Ram castoff Willie McGee on a 36-yard touchdown pass on the fourth play of the second half to put the 49ers ahead, 7-0.

Hart then got to Harris twice in the next four minutes, both deep in Los Angeles territory, and forced him to fumble. Taking the ball on the Ram 5 and Ram 14, the 49ers converted the Los Angeles mistakes into insurance points. Tight end Tom Mitchell caught a six-yard Plunkett pass on the goal line after the first recovery and Steve Mike-Mayer added an 18-yard field goal after the second fumble.

"Yes, this is easily my biggest game," Hart said. "This really feels great. We had good pass coverage tonight. Then they got behind and had to throw the ball. It wasn't Harris' fault. We were on him so quick he didn't even have time to think. Now we're in first place. But we won't be able to relax. We were up tonight but it's hard being up for all 14 games."

Added Plunkett, "It's a big boost but we can't enjoy this one too long. We can enjoy it tonight. We've got to go to work tomorrow for the next one."

The 49ers, who have a 4-1 record while the Rams are 3-1-1, appear to be a definite threat to end the Rams' three-year dynasty in the NFC West.

Pats can't stand attention

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — National attention seems to affect the New England Patriots like a peppercorn pizza before bedtime.

For the second time in three years, both major news magazines flocked to Schaefer Stadium last week to glorify the accomplishments of the Patriots. And for the second time, the Patriots responded by losing.

In 1974, Jim Plunkett's picture was suppose to appear on the cover of the national publications. But a string of six losses in seven games caused the two magazines to cancel their plans after stories already had been written.

The cover boy this time was to be Steve Grogan who led the Patriots to stunning wins over Miami, Pittsburgh and Oakland. But Grogan threw five interceptions Sunday as the Lions upset New England, 30-10, leaving the Patriots reeling.

"Well, all we can do now is go back to practice and start concentrating on our own division," said fullback Sam Cunningham, one of the many casualties of the 1974 campaign. "You don't want to have a bad game, but you can't afford two in a row."

The Patriots, who watched films Monday of the Detroit loss, were to begin practice today for the Jets game.

The Patriots have beaten the Jets just once in five games at Schaefer Stadium and have lost the past two home games to Joe Namath and crew. In the past nine games with the Jets, New England has lost eight times.

Defensive end Mel Lunsford missed Monday's team meeting. Lunsford also missed the team plane and drove to Detroit for Sunday's game. Fairbanks said Lunsford "violated some of the club rules" but the coach said he hadn't discussed the matter with Lunsford yet.

Hall drove to the Tribe one after taking the second half kickoff only to be stopped inches short. It worked to the Warriors advantage shortly thereafter as signal-caller White stumbled in his endzone and Hall got to a two-point safety.

The West Hartford team continually threatened but didn't take the lead until the final canto on what appeared to be a busted play. Signal-caller Bob Partridge apparently wanted to hand off but the pitch man was covered. So instead he lofted a pass to Tony Trenchard in the left flat. The latter was unguarded by about 20 yards and the last 20 yards was a footrace between him and defensive back Fredi. Trenchard was to complete the 49-yard scoring strike with 7:06 left.

Manchester had two more opportunities, the first stopped by a fumble. Rookie Coach Jack Holik after the second elected to punt and he probably wish he hadn't. His porous secondary, which had been burned badly the week before, was looking pass so Hall decided to go around the corner.

Manchester had two more opportunities, the first stopped by a fumble. Rookie Coach Jack Holik after the second elected to punt and he probably wish he hadn't. His porous secondary, which had been burned badly the week before, was looking pass so Hall decided to go around the corner.

The Warriors tore up tons of real estate to tally a clinching touchdown. The latter was unguarded by about 20 yards and the last 20 yards was a footrace between him and defensive back Fredi. Trenchard was to complete the 49-yard scoring strike with 7:06 left.

Rose most exciting player in game

By MILT RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI)— Found for pound, little Joe Morgan stands above everybody else. He's No. 1, the best ballplayer in baseball today and that means in the whole world. Never mind that he doesn't have any hits yet in the playoff. He'll make that all up in the World Series, then most likely pick up his second consecutive MVP award a few weeks later.

Look at what he did in this game. He finished with 320, drove in 111 runs, hit 27 homers and stole 60 bases—even though he missed 21 ball games. The little Cincinnati second baseman checks out perfectly on all five counts that are used to differentiate between merely a good ballplayer and a great one. Morgan hits for average, hits with power, runs exceptionally well and there isn't a thing wrong with either the way he fields or throws.

Yet even with all his attributes, if I had to single out the most exciting performer in both the National and American League today, I mean the one player most capable of turning around an entire playoff or World Series and dominating it completely, Pete Rose would be my choice hands down.

Anytime he's in a ball game, which in his case means every day, he worries the players on the other team half to death, sometimes beating them all by himself, and the last two men can remember ever being able to do that were Jackie Robinson and Roberto Clemente.

Rose gets $190,000 a year. Morgan and Johnny Bench each make more than $200,000. Rose's contract expires at the end of this season and if he doesn't get what he wants, presumably as much as Morgan and Bench, there's a good chance he'll play out his option and become a free agent. For the moment, however, Rose insists he prefers to stay with the Reds and does not wish to be traded.

At 35, Rose is no kid even though he generally plays like one. He was the only member of the Reds to play the one of their 162 games this year and don't forget, he ran everything out. Instead of being tired now that the regular season is over, he's throwing himself into these games as if they were the opening ones of a brand new season.

In the Reds' first playoff victory over the Phillies Saturday, Rose ripped Steve Carlton's very first pitch for a double, sliding head first into second base, and added a triple and another double before he was through. Every time he came up, the confidence stuck out all over him. The Philadelphia fans saw it, too, so that even after the game was lost for the Phils, they cheered reliever Tug McGraw for retiring him late in the contest.

Rose had blood all over his uniform from an angry looking bruise he had picked up on his right arm sliding into third base.

"Look, Pete, you're bleeding!" someone said to him after the 6-3 victory.

"So what?" he brushed it off. "It ain't the first time, and it won't be the last."

He had two more hits, scored twice and drove in a run in Sunday's 6-2 verdict over the Phils.

Jay Johnston, the Phillies' right fielder, leads all the hitters in both playoffs with an 800 percentage for his four out of five, all singles. He doesn't really count, though, because he's like Smokey Burgess—wake him up at 3 in the morning Thanksgiving Day and he'll slip on his pants and go

Redlegs confident of sweeping Phils

CINCINNATI (UPI)—The world champion Cincinnati Reds, a team which prides itself on "coming to beat you," expects to do just that today in the third and possibly final game of the National League Championship series with the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Reds, boasting a 2-0 edge on the Phillies with the remaining three games, if necessary, in Cincinnati, were naturally confident a second straight National League pennant was imminent. "I'm not saying we're over confident," said Joe Morgan, the Reds' Most Valuable Player candidate second baseman, who drove in 111 runs this year. "But I don't think anybody can come back and beat us these games in a row."

Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson nominated Gary Nolan, his winningest pitcher with 15 victories, to oppose the Phillies, while Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark named 37-year-old southpaw Jim Kaat to try and keep their slim chances alive.

The Reds had won 12-4 this year and 1-2 against the Reds, was philosophical about his team's chances of overcoming an 0-2 deficit on the road in a best-of-five series.

"I don't think you'd find anybody who'd bet their weekly paycheck that we'll beat Cincinnati three games in their own ballpark," said Kaat. "But if we win Tuesday, I've got to like our chances of coming back to win the whole thing."

Pivotal playoff at Yankee park

Pete Rose, baseball's best

NEW YORK (UPI)—Managers Herzy of the Kansas City Royals and Billy Martin of the New York Yankees named a pair of pitchers, who had dubious futures at the beginning of the season, as starters in tonight's pivotal third game of the American League Championship Series.

In accordance with the theory the Yankees have trouble hitting left-handers, Herzy labbed Andy Hassler, a 24-year-old southpaw with 11 straight losses shattered confidence when he started the season with California Angels.

Martin, meanwhile, has countered with Dock Ellis, a 23-year-old right-hander who came to the Yankees as a free agent in a four-player trade with Pittsburgh. Ellis was an unimpressive eight-game winner last year with a ballooning earned run average and a highly publicized reputation as a troublemaker.

The game, scheduled to start at 8:15 EDT, marks the return of post-season play to tradition-rich Yankee Stadium, recently refurbished at a cost of more than $100 million to the taxpayers of New York City and the site of 29 World Series.

The third game of the deadlocked series makes for a pressure situation, but Hassler, who never has appeared in a playoff game, doesn't seem bothered by the circumstances.

"Four months ago I was a million miles away from here," Hassler said. "I couldn't even fathom being on a playoff team, much less a starter. I was a mop-up man for a last-place team. There's not as much pressure on me now as there was before."

Ellis, meanwhile, should be used to the pressure, having been a member of Pittsburgh's five-time National League East division winners. A model of deportment since joining the Yankees, Ellis has remembered how to pitch like the All-Star hurler he once was. Where once he threw mostly heat, Ellis, a 17-game winner, now relies on an assortment of sliders and sinkballs.

Martin will switch back to his right-handed lineup against Hassler—the one he used against Larry Gura in the opener—with Lou Piniella the designated hitter and Elliott Maddox the right fielder.

Amos Oles, the Royals' regular center fielder, will not play again because of a sprained ankle and Herzy plans to start Al Cowens in center and Jim Wohlford in right against Ellis.

Peppler to depend upon top assistant

ATLANTA (UPI)—Atlanta Falcons General Manager Pat Peppler of responsibility as head coach Monday, but says Bill Walsh will be doing much of the job.

Peppler was named to replace ousted Head Coach Marion Campbell by owner Rankin Smith and quickly pointed out that since he hadn't done any coaching in 14 years, he was going to rely heavily on Walsh, who was moved up from offensive line coach to assistant head coach.

Peppler indicated that if he has the say, Walsh will be named coach next year. "My ambitions are not to be a football coach," said the balding, 54-year-old Peppler, who came to the Falcons from the Miami Dolphins as general manager 20 months ago. "I will wear the hats of head coach and general manager for the balance of the season. At the conclusion of the schedule, I expect to return to the full-time role of general manager, with the responsibility at that point of assisting the new 1977 coaching staff in building the Falcons' fortunes on the football field."

Peppler, who last coached as an assistant at Wake Forest in 1962, said Smith's decision "caught me by surprise. I felt a change was needed. But I didn't figure this is what it would be."

Smith said he and Peppler agreed "philosophically" that they were opposed to making a coaching change at midseason but the situation dictated that it do just that.

Campbell, defensive coordinator for the Falcons for six seasons under Norm Van Brocklin, replaced Van Brocklin after eight games of the 1974 season, a best-ever 9-5 the year before, were 5-4 and squabbling among themselves. The

Alabama makes elite list of college powers

NEW YORK (UPI)—Steve Sioan called the signals at quarterback in 1965 to lead Alabama to No. 4 national ranking and, 10 years later, he again has his team in the top 10.

Only now, he's calling the shots from the Texas Tech bench.

Sioan's Red Raiders upset Texas A&M, 27-16, last Saturday to vault into the No. 10 spot in this week's UPI Board of Coaches college football ratings. Michigan remains a near unanimous selection as No. 1 with 41 of 42 first-place votes, while Ohio State, after a one week absence, joined Texas Tech in crashing the top 10.

The Red Raiders, with the home field victory over Texas A&M, remain undefeated in three games. Three other schools with perfect records are in the top 10—Michigan, No. 2 Pittsburgh and No. 6 Maryland, all 5-0.

Nebraska climbed two runs this week into its 24-12 whipping of Colorado, while UCLA also advanced two places into fourth with the win over Stanford.

Overconfidence? Poor preparation? Or just being beaten by a better team on that particular game?

SW in upset

Previously unbroken Windsor Locks High fell out of the ranks as South Windsor scored an upset 20-6 victory yesterday in Greater Valley Conference football action in South Windsor.

The Rebels scored on a 60-yard interception return by Jeff McInerney, a Steve Ward to Matt Galt pass on a fake field goal and two 20-yard field goals by Frank Zavallo. South Windsor is now 1-1 in the CVC and 1-3 overall while Windsor Locks stands at 0-1 in all contests.

Pay delayed on ballfield construction

Andover
 Recently members of the Recreation Commission asked the selectmen to withhold payment of a $25 bill to Stanley Szeszowski and Associates of Vernon for work done on 75 feet of land adjacent to the ball field on Long Hill Rd. And the selectmen voted not to pay it.

The Recreation Commission, at a formal meeting, voted 5-1 with 2 abstentions, to recommend to the selectmen that the bill be paid. The matter will go back to the next meeting of the selectmen for further discussion.

It appears that the commission disagreed on whether or not construction of the field was properly supervised. Because grade stakes were removed it was not known if grading problems at the field were caused by engineering problems or by work done by Reed Construction. The area in question was donated by Reed.

Strange light over The Old Cemetery, Coventry

The sun setting over the horizon brought something like spooks to this photo of The Old Cemetery off Silver St. just south of Rt. 44A in Coventry. In the background moves a truck of the Antonio Peracchio dairy farm, possibly it carries a load of corn silage just cut from one of their fields covering the hillside and almost surrounding the cemetery. The farm's 225 cattle will eat the silage through the winter. John Hetzel, a town historian, says the cemetery holds people who died between 1774 and 1819. Among war heroes here is Capt. William Wilson, veteran of the Lexington Alarm. Since the WPA rebuilt the walls during the Depression, the town Streets Department has maintained this final resting place.

Roch promises

35th District
 State Senate candidate Peggy Roch (R) has been telling area residents that if elected she would introduce bills to ensure the present cooperative financing arrangement between the state and towns for resident state troopers stays the same.

Now the towns pay 60 per cent of a resident trooper's support. The state pays 40 per cent.

Board gives heroes praise

Hebron
Supt. David Cattanch wrote letters of commendation on behalf of the Regional District 8 Board of Education and the Rham High School administration for efforts following the gas range explosion at Rham in September. Commended were: William Borst, chief of the Hebron Volunteer Fire Department; Herbert Johnson, head Rham custodian; Walter MacDonald, Rham custodian; and Richard Morris, of the W. C. Mason Co. who was working in the school on an unrelated matter. Cattanch commended Johnson saying his actions following the explosion were above normal expectations. He cited Johnson reducing injury to other employees at a cost to himself of more severe burns. Morris applied first aid to the victims reducing the possibility of shock. Borst was cited for the fire department's prompt response and handling. MacDonald was also cited for his actions that Cattanch claimed had significantly reduced the extent of physical injury to the victims and damage to the property.

GOP gears up for campaigns

Coventry
The Republican Town Committee met last week at campaign headquarters on the corner of Rt. 31 and Daly Rd. Martine Vinney, Paul Edmundson, and Lisa Halloran will be the local campaign coordinators for President Gerald Ford and Richard Jackson. Jackson is seeking the Second Congressional District seat now held by Democrat Chris Dodd. The town committee acted to fill the vacancies on the following boards and commissions: Flood and Erosion Control Commission, Richard Bolduc and Robert Vinney; Planning and Zoning Commission, Beata Banach to fulfill member (he has been an alternate); Board of Health, Catherine E. Rosignall and Henry J. Gomez (an independent). Named to the town committee was Claire Connolly. The committee interviewed candidates for the Board of Education vacancy. They are Gary Dopplaff and Roland Green. Dopplaff is a nine-year resident and has taught math at Windham High School for 13 years. Green has lived in town 44 years. The committee voted to submit both candidates to the school board. The board will act on the vacancy Thursday night.

Clerk to buy humidifier

Bolton
Although quotes for two dehumidifiers for the town vault were received from six companies, the Board of Selectmen was unable to decide who will be awarded the purchase order. The board then authorized its clerk, Mrs. Shirley Riley, to make the decision. The town budgeted about $200 for the dehumidifiers. Quotes ranged from $100 to $170. Quotes were received from Consumer Sales, Bernia's TV & Appliance, Economy Electric, B. D. Pearl, Potterton's and W. H. Preuss and Sons. At a recent meeting the selectmen appointed Alden Chick to the Building Board of Appeals. He will serve until June 30, 1981. James Grunke was appointed to the Zoning Board of Appeals to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Wade Perguson. Elaine Camposeo was appointed to the Conservation Commission to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Ruth Hoffman.

Voters to consider new board structure

Andover
A Nov. 15 referendum will be seeking approval of the reappointment of the Regional District 8 Board of Education. The present board was declared illegal by the courts. A committee to study the situation recommended that there be a 13-member board with five members from Hebron, four from Marlborough, and three from Andover. Now it is a nine-member board with three members from each of the three towns in the region. The referendum hours will be 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. with voting at the Andover Elementary School. If the recommendation is rejected by any one of the three towns in the region, then it will be rejected by the entire region. If it fails to pass the committee will have to find another solution.
