Carriers do a big job

A term that is coming into increasing favor these days is "delivering."
 We hear about better means of "delivering" hospital care, government services, etc.
 But we in the newspaper business know and have known for a long time how important delivery is, for it is how and when we get our newspaper into the hands of our readers that completes the cycle of communication.
 The freedom of the press would be severely crippled if the results of this right to collect, write and disseminate the news could not be delivered quickly to our readers.
 And we think it is fitting today, International Newspaper Carriers' Day, to congratulate all the young men and women who "deliver" The Herald each afternoon. They are our delivery system and have done it well over the past year.
 We can only echo what Gov. Ella Grasso has stated in her official statement designating

Project Concern

To the editor:
 At the Oct. 12 meeting of the Manchester Board of Education, I witnessed the most deliberate, disgraceful betrayal and sell out of the people of Manchester in the history of this town. That the thousands of Manchester residents may get a clear picture of this episode, I wish to make the following comments and observations.
 The long awaited Project Concern contract was unveiled almost five weeks after the start of 1976-1977 school year. In less than five minutes the school administrators, the board chairman, and the board had everything discussed, approved and wrapped up in a blitzkrieg fashion.
 This three year Project Concern contract is a real "sweetheart package" giving Hartford a three-year agreement cutting the tuition costs down to $600 per pupil in 1977-78 and leaves the 1978-79 tuition cost to be negotiated probably to $500 or $400 or $300 or what have you. Considering that the per pupil educational costs of each town will be at least $1,600 in 1977-78, it is easy to see that Hartford children getting the full benefit of a Manchester education at $600 per pupil will result in a swindle of the local taxpayers at the rate of $1,000 per Project Concern child. On the basis of an enrollment of 50 Hartford pupils by 1977-78, the Board of Education has thus thrown $50,000 in legitimate expected revenue right down the drain.
 The ring leaders responsible for this "rip off" Project Concern contract who must bear the brunt of the blame are Supt. of Schools James Kennedy, Asst. Supt. Wilson Deakin, and Board Chairman Allan Thomas. The seven approving board members must also assume their share of guilt as accessories or accomplices of this offensive deal.
 This is a patently crooked contract entered into by all these people who apparently have placed the interests of notorious Hartford political operators above fair treatment of Manchester citizens.
 I do want to single out board member Beverly Malone as the one and only person who had the wisdom, honesty, integrity and courage to do the right thing by voting NO on the new contract. School officials and many glibbie do-gooders continue to use false, phony, and specious arguments to cover up their double dealing and double standards of tuition costs per pupil, to wit:

 1. A Manchester child costs the taxpayer $1,600 to receive a full year's educational service.
 2. If a child comes from Hartford then the cost is only $600 in 1977-78 for identical service in Manchester school.
 3. If a Bolton, South Windsor, or Vernon pupil is accepted either of those towns and the pupil's parents must pay a combined sum of $1,600 tuition. Further, the parents must furnish transportation for that child.
 The foregoing examples reveal the preferential treatment granted to the Hartford pupils and the flagrant discrimination against our own pupils or those of other towns when it comes to paying for one year's educational services in Manchester schools.
 I challenge the school officials and the Board of Education to end their double standard and provide true equality for all pupils by lowering the 1977-1978 budget request to a level of $600 per pupil for one year's educational services in our schools.
 In the interest of full equality, non-discrimination, and fairness to all concerned this is the only solution.
 Yours
 in truth and fairness,

U.S. can benefit from Soviet science

Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — John W. Kiser III, writing in Foreign Policy, argues that détente with the Soviet Union need not be a one-way street, with all benefits going to the Russians.
 If détente turns out that way, he seems to suggest, then it may be our fault for being blind to opportunities staring us in the face.
 He's referring to the scientific-technical drain — whereby the Soviet Union apparently is on the way to milking this country of hard-won breakthroughs, bolstering the wobbly Russian economy by modernizing their outdated manufacturing processes and improving the quality of their military hardware. Yet giving the United States little or nothing in return. Kiser suggests that Soviet scientists have made a respectable number of scientific breakthroughs of their own which could be of immense value to this country. He argues, and in this he is in agreement with findings of the National Science Foundation, that the slow pace of Russia's industrial advance lies not in the inability of Soviet scientists to make great discoveries, but rather in the inability of the Soviet system to incorporate those discoveries into usable hardware, advanced manufacturing techniques and into practical use in mining without excessively long delays.
 To take one example which I have studied in depth, Soviet scientists have done exceedingly fine work in computer technology. They are, however, well behind us in the development of advanced computers and in the software needed to make the most effective use of computers and computer systems.
 Kiser suggests that if we put our efforts to the task, American science and industry might be able to latch on to a goodly number of these Soviet scientific discoveries, using them to improve our own industrial methods. We might, he hints, even be able to put Soviet discoveries to practical use here before the unwieldy Soviet system was able to absorb and utilize them at home.

 He lists 17 examples of "Soviet technology in use or in development for commercial applications by U.S. companies" — a particle accelerator by Energy Services, an evaporation cooling process for blast furnaces by Andco, magnetic impulse welding for nuclear fuel elements by Maxwell Laboratories, titanium hip prosthesis by U.S. Surgical, underground coal gasification technology by Texas Utility Services, a method for leaching aluminum from alumina ore by Southwire, and others.
 This, says Kiser, could be the tip of an iceberg. He says the Russians are "world leaders" in the development of hydrofoil craft, that they are "far ahead of the United States" in the development of hydraulic mining techniques, that parts of the Soviet iron and steel industry "are superior to ours, particularly in the design and operation of coke ovens and blast furnaces," that Soviet technology is excellent in superconductors and magneto-hydrodynamics, of great importance in increasing the efficiency of our power industry.
 From my own reading of translations of Soviet scientific and technical magazines over the years, it would seem the opportunities for American advantage are exceedingly great. Great, that is, if we can open the doors wide to an import of these Soviet breakthroughs.
 The Soviets, it would seem, are willing. They applied for roughly 500 patents in this country in 1974.

Today's thought
 Honest confession is good for the soul. The old maxim was proven true by King David. In Psalm 32 he describes his misery and frustration when he tried to hide his sin from God and present to the world the appearance of righteousness.
 So much of the emotional sickness in the world today is because people carry with them the weight of unforgiveness. Their guilt becomes a heavy burden, sapping their strength, robbing them of sleep by night and oppressing them by day. David confessed that this was his experience until he made the decision to turn his burden of guilt over to God; that is, confess his sin and ask for forgiveness. Then he could sing for joy.
 "What happiness for whose guilt has been forgiven! What joys when sins are covered over! What relief for those who have confessed their sins and God has cleared their record." (v. 12)
 God became his refuge, kept him out of trouble, put a song in his heart! He learned that it was good to look to God for forgiveness for He will lead us along the way that is best for us. This does not make man a weakling; rather he becomes strong and able to cope with life. The peace of God becomes our portion!

Computer rip-offs are hurting you

The really clever crook doesn't physically break into an office or bank these days. He does it electronically.
 The growing problem of computer break-ins has drawn record attendance at recent computer industry conferences, where stories like the following are told:
 In New York City, a Neighborhood Youth Corps employe with access to the agency's computerized check-writing system had more than 900 unauthorized payroll checks printed for his friends, at a cost of $2.7 million to the taxpayers.
 In Washington, D.C., a swindler substituted his own magnetically marked checking account deposit slips for the blank ones a local bank kept on the counter. His account accumulated $250,000 in four days from other people's deposits. He then made a hefty withdrawal and hasn't been seen since.
 In California, a young graduate student stole about $1 million worth of inventory from a utility company with the assistance of the company's own computer. He simply had the computer order equipment to various warehouses, where he picked it up in a disguised truck. He then sold the equipment through a dummy company.

 Elsewhere, private computer files have been invaded by people adding huge amounts of money, in the form of personal credit, to charge accounts.
 To protect computer-stored files, many companies have devised systems as tight as Fort Knox, and a whole new industry has grown up in the field of computer security. For example, a company in Ann Arbor, Mich., has come up with magnetic badges, key locks and even passwords to ensure that only legitimate personnel have access to specific file banks.
 Despite all the safeguards, an estimated $200 million worth of data has been stolen from business this year by means of computer manipulation — an electronic rip-off that will inevitably be passed on to honest consumers in the form of higher prices.

"Piggy back on the trivium"
It has been said that it is a good thing we have the weather to talk about so that strangers can chat even on a chance meeting. Probably this is true. Standing in line, waiting for a bus, or sitting in a doctor's office, such conversation can help to pass the time as well as break the ice.
But when family or friends communicate only on the level of the superficial, how tragic it is. A wife in a voice strident with bitterness said of her marriage, "We piggy-back on the trivium."
Sometimes it is very difficult to converse about the deeper things of life, yet we must keep trying. How often parents in desperation break out, "Our children never listen. And if they do, at the first pause for a breath they ask, 'Can I go now?'"
Over years of counseling I have usually found that young people feel exactly the same frustration about their parents. "Where were you when I needed you? Now it is too late."
This is a very complicated subject with so many facets depending on different relationships and varied personalities that obviously it can only be touched on lightly in this column. But here is one.
A wife objects to her husband's life style of "all work and no play" and complains to him: "The way you live makes absolutely no sense." He is troubled but shrugs it off with no explanation.
Later, in a counseling situation he blurts out "If I didn't do what I'm doing I would lose my self-respect."
He was one who was deeply involved in community activities as well as being absorbed in his work. This example is given in an excellent book "The Miracle of Dialogue" by Reuel Howe. He states:
"There is never a situation that is without some meaning and our task is not to dismiss it as meaningless but to open our eyes and ears and look for the meaning that lies behind what appears to have none."
In this case what looks to the wife to be a "senseless life style" actually stems from her husband's desire and attempt to find his own worth. If we believe there is a "meaning" in all situations and if we seek clearer dialogue we can stop our riding "piggy-back on the trivium" and delve down to something deeper.
Many have found an opportunity to do this through a "Marriage Encounter" experience. I suggest that you get in touch with your clergyman for information about this for there are a number of excellent programs along this line. I believe that the Roman Catholic Church was the first to set up opportunities of this kind but now they are provided through various sponsors.
The United Church of Christ offers one designed by Ken and JoAnne Taylor (125 Sherman St., Hartford, 233-5564) The October "Missioner," a UCC publication, describes it as "an eight hour, low-key, inexpensive resource... led by trained leaders."
The contagious enthusiasm of participants in "Marriage Encounter" is testimony of its value.
"Good Lord, forgive!"
No matter how sincerely we strive to understand another person as we try to deepen our relationship, we will never fully succeed. There is always the need of forgiveness. Contrary to the popular song which claims that love means not having to say "I am sorry," these words are important.
Forgiveness and the acceptance of forgiveness is a healing force. In the deepest sense it is God who forgives, enabling us to try again. This truth is expressed in our poem of the week, by Charles H. Gabriel: "Evening Prayer."
If I have wounded any soul today,
If I have caused one foot to go astray,
If I have walked in my own willful way —
Good Lord, forgive!
If I have uttered idle words or vain,
If I have turned aside from want or pain,
Lest I myself should suffer through the strain —
Good Lord, forgive!
If I have been peevish, or hard, or cold,
If I have longed for shelter in Thy fold,
When Thou hast given me some part to hold —
Good Lord, forgive.
Forgive the sins I have confessed to Thee,
Forgive the secret sins I do not see,
That which I know not, Father, teach Thou me —
Help me to live.
Personal Examenicity (?)
It has often been said that the different branches of the church have much to learn from each other and are strengthened as they work together. Here is a "tongue-in-cheek" suggestion by the Rev. Dr. Edgar Dewitt Jones propounding the specifications of a good minister. It might be applied to the "good Christian" in pew or pulpit.
"He should get religion like a Methodist; experience it like a Baptist; be sure of it like a Disciple; stick to it like a Lutheran; pray for it like a Presbyterian; conciliate it like a Congregationalist; be proud of it like a Episcopalian; practice it like a Christian Scientist; propagate it like a Roman Catholic; and work for it like a Salvation Army lassie."
A chuckle

Church speakers

Andrew LaPenta of Townsend, Mass., and a former member of North United Methodist Church, and Jean Gilbert, former Manchester Memorial Hospital chaplain, will be guest speakers Sunday at the 10 a.m. service at North Church. Their topic: "The Cutting Edge of the Church." Sunday's service concludes a week-long series of special services and events marking the 125th anniversary of the church. THE BIBLE SPEAKS

By Eugene Brewer

Do you find trials and suffering hard to accept? All chastening seems for the present to be not joyous but grievous... Heb. 12:11 They are unpleasant, and it is less than honest to say we should enjoy them. However, when one sees the possible good which can issue, he learns to live joyously... Joseph reassured his brothers who had sold him into Egyptian slavery: "for God sent me... to preserve life." (Gen. 45:5) But I doubt that as a 17-year-old boy Joseph had this viewpoint. David wrote: "It is good for me that I have been afflicted; that I might learn thy statutes." (Psalms 119:71) Paul exclaimed: "the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed to us." (Rom. 8:18)

Flu shots resume

By SCOTT MACLEOD
United Press International
The nationwide swine flu vaccine program was back in business today, but officials concede they won't know until next week whether the public believes government assurances that the $135 million project is safe.
"Our hope is that people, on hearing of the results of our investigation, will see we're dealing with an expected phenomenon," J. Donald Millar, director of state services for the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, said Friday.
"There is no reason for people to be afraid of the vaccine or the vaccination."
The CDC has confirmed the deaths of 35 persons, mostly elderly with a history of heart disease or other chronic illnesses, who became fatally ill within 48 hours of immunizations.
But, CDC officials reiterated, the persons died of ordinary ailments and not because of the vaccine.
Millar said that of the number vaccinated, 160 would have died on a statistical basis within 24 hours with or without the vaccination program.
Holdout health officials in Wisconsin, Maine and Michigan Friday joined seven other states in ordering the $135 million program to continue.

Only a few programs suspended after the puzzling deaths of three aged recipients were reported in Pittsburgh Tuesday were held up.
Ohio Health Director John Ackerman criticized health officials who have not resumed inoculations.
"There is no way in God's earth this vaccine causes death," Ackerman said. "I can start up a program of giving sterile water, and within 24 to 48 hours some people would die."

Oceans: a new world frontier

A geologist studies the earth, but until a few years ago the two-thirds of the earth's surface that lies beneath the oceans was almost totally unknown.

A young ocean floor

Perhaps the most remarkable difference is that the rocks of the oceans, both sediments and lavas, are all quite young. Young, that is, as geological ages go.

and the arc of islands between the southern tip of South America and Antarctica. These belts of earthquakes are shallow on the ocean side and run down under the continents to depths of six or seven hundred kilometers.

Continents on the move

In the Atlantic there is no sign of crumbling where the sea floor meets the continent. The moving plates appear to include not only the sea floor, but also the continents around the ocean.

By a wonderful and quite unexpected piece of good fortune it is now possible to trace the whole history of the movement of the ocean floors.

Questions

- 1. How does the geology of the sea floor differ from that of the land?
2. What is the most striking feature of the ocean floor landscape?
3. What processes begin at the valley that runs along the mid-ocean ridge?

Answers

- 1. Sea floor mountains are all volcanoes, rocks are lava-formed black basalts, sediments and lavas are all quite young. On land, mountains are formed from flat

As the sea floor moves away from the ridge, stripes of opposite directions of magnetization are formed. The sea floor thus forms a giant tape recorder which preserves a record of the reversals of the field in the past.

A double record, one on each side of the ridge, covers the whole of the floors of all the oceans and enables us to say with some certainty, "This piece of floor was formed on the axis of the ridge, as a hot and molten lava, at this date and has moved out to where it is now."

Very recently the drilling of more than 400 holes in the floor of the deep sea has wonderfully confirmed the ages expected from the magnetic lineations.

The idea was urged most persuasively by Alfred Wegener, a German meteorologist, 60 years ago. What is new is that a study of the ocean floor has demonstrated that it really happened.

We have, in fact, what is nothing less than a world view of geological change. The new views have developed as more or less academic science, but clearly we cannot change our views of global processes without effects on practical affairs.

rocks that have been squeezed and folded, the cores are granites, some rocks are 4-000,000 years old.

- 2. The mid-ocean ridge that runs around the world.
3. Earthquakes continually occur, the sea floor in splitting apart, and lava flowing through the cracks forms new ocean floor. The ridge plates which make up either side of the ridge and adjacent continents are moving outward. At the outer edges of the moving plates the sea floor plunges beneath the continents along a great earthquake belt.
4. Discovery that the sea floor reflects past reversals in the earth's magnetic field.
5. The new insights gives us a scientific basis for oil and mineral exploration.

Gala philatelic event coming to UNPA

By RUSS MacKENDRICK

There will be a real hoedown at the U.N. Postal Administration on Nov. 19. Here are three of the items that will be put forth on that day. They look much better in the preview brochure showing their colors.

Stamps and coins

The 13-cent World Food Council will be in blue where it looks black here. And the Geneva stamp will be mostly in an olive green. They both will have vari-colored flags opposite stylized yellow awns of wheat. The swirling arcs on the center make an almost kaleidoscopic effect.

The "19 November," as they say it (they do love that backwards date!) will be a very large day down there because they will also release a souvenir sheet with reproductions of the World Food Council stamp twosomes for 1963 and 1971, plus these latest ones.

And, still coming, there will be the Annual Souvenir Folders for 1976. They will have one mint stamp of each denomination in a glassine envelope besides the pages of relevant info.

So, for the gala event on 19 November at the UNPA, The Food Council souvenir card, and the folder with all the samps for 1976. Bring money.

Sooner or later

Sooner or later, it's coming — the mini-dollar coin. Several patterns are shown at a press conference at the Mint's theater in Washington lately. (With the Chief of Security looking on so nothing could happen again like that aluminum cent caper. Congressman Sludgepump: "Where DID I put that thing!")

There were Eisenhower designs, and a Martha Washington, and others. The most exciting was shown on the front page of Coin World. It was by Frank Gasparro — a flowing-hair Liberty with a pole and cap like the early cents and half-cents. On the reverse there is an almost authentic eagle flying over a mountain labeled "E Pluribus Unum."

There have been no decisions yet and don't expect anything remotely like intrinsic value as they will be making the things for three cents each. If people will use them instead of paper money there would be a real saving as they would last 15 years, whereas the dollar bills that cost 1.4 cents to make last only 15 months.

Still available

Souvenir programs with first day cancels of the Clara Maass stamp are still available at Belleville, N.J., according to RN Magazine. ($2.50 each). Proceeds go to nursing scholarships. See page 40 in "Stamps" for Oct. 2.

The design is beautiful but back to the old drawing board for the paper. It was announced to be 20 per cent thinner and it turns out to be just terrible for curling. My cigar box of mailing stamps is getting its lid almost pushed open by the squirming things and it is a tussle to get one flattened out enough to stick to a letter.

'Omnibus issue'

If you want to know what they mean by "omnibus issue" stay alert for the Queen Elizabeth II Jubilee series that is in the of-fing. It will involve a stamp set from every member of the Commonwealth — that makes it omnibus.

Not much happening

Nothing much numismo-philatelic going on around here this weekend. (A good time for a tour of our Main St. suppliers). Down at Orange, at the Legion Hall, there will be the Third Sunday Stamp and Coin Bourse.

Today, at Groton, too late to get there, is the keel laying for the La Jolla, the 14th in the SSN Los Angeles class of nuclear subs. Commemorative covers may be had from the Dynamics Philatelic Society, Box 849, Groton, CT 06340, for 50 cents. Tomorrow, at New London, the THEMESPEX exhibition and bourse. Ocean Beach Park, noon to 6 p.m.
