Sunday shoppers at department store

Despite controversy and inclement weather, many East of the River residents took advantage of the first Sunday when almost all of the major department stores opened for Sunday business. The Sunday hours were instituted in the wake of court rulings invalidating the so-called "blue laws" banning most stores from doing business on Sundays. Shown above the K-Mart store on Spencer St. near the Manchester-East Hartford line.

Blue Laws no longer valid

Many stores says sales good on first Sunday opening

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Business was generally very good Sunday as many local stores were open the first time on the first day of the week.

"Sales were better than anticipated," Robert Swartz, manager of D&L in the Manchester Parkade said.

He said, "Business was fair to good. It was not as good as a Saturday, but better than a weekday."

A spokesman for D&L in the Vernon's Tri-City Plaza said that business was also good there.

"Booming" was the word Frank

Addabbo, manager of Regal's Men Shop in the Tri-City Plaza, used to describe business Sunday.

Ann John Gibbs, manager of K-Mart on Spencer St., said that Sunday, in his store went very well.

"We were satisfied. Being the first Sunday the store was open, I don't know how many people knew we were open," he said.

Gibbs would not disclose figures on the amount of sales made Sunday, when the store was open from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

He did say, however, "For those hours, business was better Sunday than those same hours on Saturday."

A spokesman for King's Department Store in the Manchester Parkade said, "It was an excellent day over-all."

King's had been open last Sunday, and the spokesman said the sales this week were comparable to the week before.

Although business was good, at least a couple of the store owners expressed dissatisfaction with the recent Court of Common Pleas ruling that declared the Blue Laws prohibiting Sunday sales unconstitutional.

Gibbs said he is not overly excited with the idea of being open Sunday. He said the continued Sunday opening of his K-Mart store will depend on competing stores.

"We have to go with the competition," he said.

Addabbo, speaking of his Regal's shop being open an extra day each week, said with a laugh, "We're going to bring our wife and kids and sleep in the store."

The company that runs Caldor stores intends to appeal the court decision, but area Caldor stores were open Sunday. A Caldor spokesperson could not be reached this morning for comment.

Ford stumps West

By ELIZABETH WHARTON
United Press International

While Jimmy Carter followed his usual weekend routine of church and rest, President Ford stumped southern California and aired a television show with sports figure Joe Garagiola which could become a mini-series for the windup of the campaign.

Aides dubbed the 10-station, statewide television program the "Jerry and Joe show" Sunday night. Garagiola will stay with the campaign to air similar shows in Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York and possibly one more state this week.

Ford spends today in the northwest states of Oregon and Washington before flying eastward Tuesday.

Carter, who broke his self-imposed rule and chatted about religion and the Bible with reporters in Plains, Ga., Baptist Church doorway early Sunday, also spent time with the television cameras during the afternoon.

Aides said he taped "fireside chat" programs which will be shown at different times on all three networks on election eve next Monday night.

The Democratic candidate answered questions about his religious philosophy and said he did not know why his Bible class is for men only or why his church is all white. He said he assumed that if a black applied for membership, he would be admitted.

Carter said he had no way of knowing if some of the biblical stories — like that of the serpent in the Garden of Eden — were literally true, but that much of the Bible is written in allegories.

For instance, he said, he does not believe the biblical view that the earth has "four corners," and doubts the earth was created in seven days — it was more likely to have been seven stages, or seven time periods.

Carter is taking today off as well, and embarks on his final campaign swing Tuesday morning.

Ford attended a Catholic service in a mission church, then spent the afternoon telling enthusiastic crowds in Orange County that California is a "must win" state in his drive for the presidency.

Ford sounded his familiar campaign themes: that he has earned the White House because he restored public confidence in the presidency after Watergate, "turned the economy around" after recession, "achieved peace and we are going to keep the peace" and healed national divisions.

GOP vice presidential candidate Robert Dole attended a Billy Graham crusade, and his Democratic counterpart stumped the northeastern area.

Dole was greeted with polite applause when he entered the stadium, but did not speak at the rally. Graham, who is not taking sides, told reporters he invited all four candidates but only Dole accepted. He said he received a phone call from the White House, a "nice letter" from Carter, but heard nothing from Walter Mondale.

Mondale spent a busy Sunday campaigning in ethnic neighborhoods from Cleveland, Ohio, eastward through Pennsylvania, winding up in Bangor, Maine, for the night. He lashed out at Ford's economic record and predicted the Democrats are "going to win and win handsomely."

P&WA will lay off workers but denies 800 are involved

EAST HARTFORD (UPI) — Pratt and Whitney Aircraft will lay off workers in its manufacturing division, but not 800 as reported by a political candidate, according to a company spokesman.

First District Republican congressional candidate Lucien DiFazio said Sunday he had been told a week ago by two P&WA officials 800 layoffs were coming. The firm, the state's largest employer, has 33,000 employees in the state, down from 34,400 a year ago.

The company is trying to minimize the layoffs by reassigning the employees within Pratt's parent firm, United Technologies, according to Frank Murphy, UT vice president for public relations.

"In any event, the number of people laid off will be substantially lower than that quoted in media reports," he said. It is too soon to tell how many people will be involved, ac-ording to Murphy.

The layoffs are needed because of dropping commercial orders for P&WA jet engines, which have resulted in "sharply reduced work requirements," he said.

Murphy denied DiFazio's charge the announcement of the layoffs was delayed to avoid embarrassing his opponent, Rep. William R. Cotter, D-Conn.

Robert Zaiman, Cotter's campaign treasurer and a P&WA public relations man, said he did not do public relations work for Cotter and had nothing to do with the firm's decision about the time to make a public announcement of the layoffs.

Meanwhile, company officials said the startup of F16 manufacturing by General Dynamics, a plane which uses the Pratt F100 jet engine, will not have much of an impact on Pratt. General Dynamics rolled its first F16 off the assembly line last Wednesday and expects to be making 15 of the aircraft a month by 1979. P&WA's F100 jet engine is also used in the F15 eagle.

The largest union at the plant, the International Association of Machinists, objected to contract provisions providing 40 per cent of the work on each F16 must be done in one of the four European countries which are buying 348 of the planes.

That includes 40 per cent of the work on the $1.2-million engine in the $6.1-million plane.

"We couldn't have gotten 60 per cent of the work, if we hadn't gone along with the giveaway," said a spokesman for P&WA's parent firm, United Technologies.

The division which markets the engine in government planes was moved to Palm Beach, Fla., taking 600 jobs with it. The division which manufactures it is still in Connecticut, employing about 20,000 here and in Southington and North Haven.

White police, army control demanded by Premier Smith

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith said categorically today that whites must control the army and police in an interim government leading to black majority rule.

Smith told a news conference three days before the opening of the Rhodesia Conference that he is not prepared to negotiate on this point.

"Clearly that is not part of the room for negotiation," he said.

Black Rhodesian nationalists attending the conference said exactly the opposite — that continued white control of the two ministries is "absolutely" unacceptable.

Smith said that if the conference arrives at an impasse it may be a good thing if Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger came to Geneva. He said that this would have to be a decision of the British conference chairman, Ivor Richard.

Smith reiterated earlier statements that he came to Geneva on the basis of the six-point peace package put forward by Kissinger in September.

The African nationalist leaders, claiming they were not consulted, have said they "completely reject that package."

Silver Lane cafe bombed

"An explosion from a bomb-type device" extensively damaged the Lion's Den Restaurant on Silver Lane shortly before midnight Sunday.

The owners of the restaurant, Roxie and Angelo Leone, are also proprietors of the Town and Country Liquor store in the same vicinity that was hit by a bomb on Sept. 29.

East Hartford Police Chief Clarence Drumm said the bomb-type device extensively damaged the restaurant. The explosion caused a minor fire which was extinguished by firemen and no one was reported injured.

The explosion occurred about a half hour after the restaurant closed for the night. Police said the bowling alley next door also suffered some damage from the blast.

Police said it hasn't yet been determined just where the bomb was detonated. They said they are not sure whether it was set inside or outside but investigation is continuing. A homemade-type bomb set in the package store owned by the Leone brothers knocked out seven windows and an unexploded bomb was found about 30 feet from the building. This bombing occurred about 11:15 p.m. on a Wednesday.

At that time the Leone brothers said they were at a loss to explain why their store was bombed.

Police are searching through the rubble of the restaurant to determine if the same type of explosive device was used in last night's bombing.

Police search scene for clues to explosion

East Hartford police cruisers parked in front of the Lion's Den Cafe next to the Silver Lanes bowling alley in East Hartford are the only outward indication the cafe was damaged late last night after closing by a bomb blast. Police, at the request of the owners, Roxie and Angelo Leone, were not allowing the press to photograph the damaged interior early this morning. A package store, also owned by the Leones, was damaged by a bomb blast about two weeks ago. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Board to consider policy on loaning of textbooks

A new policy on loaning textbooks to nonpublic school students will be considered by the Manchester Board of Education when it meets tonight at 8 p.m. at Wadwell School, 181 Broad St. School Supt. James Kennedy told the school board earlier this month that they have been a few requests for textbooks under provisions of a recently amended state law, so the board would be asked to approve the policy.

The state law allows local schools boards to loan textbooks currently in use to any student who is a resident of the school district and attending a nonpublic school within the district. The law specifies that the loan will be free of charge.

Requests for loans came from administrators of St. James, St. Bridget and Assumption Schools, public school officials said.

The textbook loaning policy is one of several items on tonight's school board agenda, which includes a public comment session at the start of the meeting.

Other business includes reports on the school system's youth services program, high school computer services and the program for blind students; personnel matters; an extended field trip for the high school's Ski Club; and board committee reports.

Stevens attack

WALLINGFORD (UPI) — House Minority Leader Gerald F. Stevens of Milford Saturday night said Gov. Ella T. Grasso's two-year record as governor was inconsistent and bad for business. He said, "Government spending is going on just as usual, with a poor sense of priorities determining where the money is spent."

Stevens said the governor has spoken of attracting business while raising business taxes. "In Connecticut, our businesses pay 24 per cent of all state revenue although the national average for business tax is 16 per cent," Stevens said.

Most of the persons hired under the program will receive a yearly salary of $4,500, Mrs. Grasso's office said.

500 welfare recipients to get child care jobs

HARTFORD (UPI) — About 500 persons now on welfare will be placed in child care jobs this year under a $3.9 million federal grant, Gov. Ella T. Grasso said today.

Mrs. Grasso said the program, administered by the Department of Social Services, would hire the welfare recipients to work as paraprofessional aides at child day care centers.

"Men and women on public assistance will be placed in jobs and will take home paychecks, reducing and in some cases eliminating the dollars they are now paid on welfare," Mrs. Grasso said.

Community Affairs Commissioner W. James Rice said he expected the program to increase staffing to a point that would allow 800 additional children to be served by the day care program.

Most of the persons hired under the program will receive a yearly salary of $4,500, Mrs. Grasso's office said.

Commentary: Who is the loser on Medicare fees?

By DONALD H. MAY WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some time ago an elderly woman walked into physician Alan Bruckheim's office in Harrison, N.J., not dreaming her case later would be discussed in Congress.

It was not her medical condition that eventually came to the attention of congressmen. It was a matter of arithmetic of concern to millions of Americans who receive benefits under Medicare, the federal government's $22-billion-a-year health program for the elderly.

Dr. Bruckheim's normal fee for an office visit was $10. Medicare allowed him a "reasonable" fee, based on a formula taking into account rates charged during the previous year by him and other physicians in the area. In this case it was $8.

Of that amount, Medicare would pay 80 per cent, or $6.40, and the patient was to pay 20 per cent, or $1.60. In due course, the doctor received $6.40 from the federal taxpayers, and the patient was to pay $1.60.

Meanwhile, the doctor billed the patient for her $1.60 share.

She replied: "Wait a minute. My bill says the cost was $6.60. You were paid $6.40. So you have already been overpaid. You owe me — $4.80."

Dr. Bruckheim, who now practices in Yonkers, N.Y., told the House Ways and Means subcommittee on health about the incident during a recent hearing in which he spoke for the American Academy of Family Physicians.

It illustrates two things about that portion of Medicare that pays for services to the elderly by private physicians: — Doctors say they aren't being paid enough for their services. — Patients say the fee system is confusing, and they sometimes suspect they are paying too much.

According to a "background" report by the subcommittee staff, the problem is a tangled one.

Physicians' fees have been rising faster than non-medical consumer prices — 60 per cent faster between 1968, the year before Medicare began, and 1971. In an effort to keep the taxpayers' cost of Medicare from rising out of sight, Congress and the government began in 1972 putting various brakes on how fast the "reasonable" fee allowed a physician under this method of Medicare payment can increase year by year, holding it below the going rate.

Depends Upon Diet Silk worms feed on the leaves of the white mulberry. The worms will feed on leaves of other members of the mulberry family, but the quality of their silk is poor.

This has the American Medical Association up in arms. It testified that Congress should approve reimbursement for doctors "more nearly reflective of usual and customary charges."

However, the method of payment used between Dr. Bruckheim and his patient — technically known as the "assignment" system — is only one method open to a doctor under present law. He can elect to directly bill the patient and let the patient collect from Medicare. In this case, the doctor can charge the patient whatever the traffic will bear. The patient gets back the "reasonable" fee from Medicare and makes up the difference.

The law leaves the choice between the two systems entirely to the physician, allowing him to use one for some patients, the other for others and even to switch back and forth between the systems over several visits by the same patient.

According to the subcommittee, the assignment system was used in 61 per cent of cases in 1969 but only 50 per cent in the first half of this year.

In other words, as a result of holding down the "reasonable" fee, doctors increasingly are using the direct billing method, "reasonable" fees. But the background report notes that this would raise the Medicare patients are paying more of the cost out of their own pockets, generally in the field of medicine.

The recently adjourned 94th Congress ran out of time and will hand the problem to the 95th, which convenes in January. A congressional staffer says a possible drawback, the fact since the subcommittee notes, is that physicians might members then, it probably will hold hearings on the matter all over again.

HOW THEY STAND

On nuclear power

Gerald Ford
"Greater utilization must be made of nuclear energy in order to achieve energy independence and maintain a strong economy. It is likewise vital that we continue our world leadership as a reliable supplier of nuclear technology in order to assure that worldwide growth in nuclear power is achieved with profitable and effective controls."
It is essential that the Congress act if we are to take timely advantage of our nuclear energy potential. I urge enactment of the Nuclear Licensing Act to streamline the licensing procedures for the construction of new power plants."
—Message to the Congress, 2/25/78

Jimmy Carter
"U.S. dependence on nuclear power should be kept to the minimum consistent with our national security. We should apply much stronger safety standards as we regulate its use. And we must be honest with our people concerning its problems and dangers."
I recognize that many other countries have no immediate alternative except to concentrate on nuclear power.
But all of us must recognize that the widespread use of nuclear power brings many risks. Power reactors may malfunction and cause widespread radiological damage, unless stringent safety requirements are met. Radioactive wastes may be a menace to future generations and civilization, unless they are effectively isolated within the biosphere forever. And terrorists or other criminals may steal plutonium and make weapons to devastate society of political leaders with nuclear violence, unless strict security measures are developed and implemented to prevent nuclear theft. Beyond these dangers, there is the fear that nuclear power will mean the spread of nuclear weapons to many nations."
"Considerations of commercial profit cannot be allowed to prevail over the paramount objective of limiting the spread of nuclear weapons."
—Address to United Nations 9-7-78

Opinion

Responsive government entails some risks

The Filer Commission's draft of its proposal to reorganize state government structure is much the topic of discussion these days. We think that the real crux of the matter, though, is not whether any of the plan ever comes about, but if Connecticut residents are prepared to make their state government more effective or continue to make it less able to respond to citizen demands.

For behind the Filer Commission lies a basic dissatisfaction with the way state government now is functioning. The commission suggestions may be too strong a "medicine" at this time, but on the other hand they cannot be cast aside without consideration.

Three things come to mind in a cursory examination of the proposals.

First, is the concentration of power in the hands of the governor to be feared if responsibility is also concentrated in the hands of the governor?

At the risk of oversimplification, isn't it one of the risks of a democratic society that we must accept the possibility of a mediocre administration from time to time if we are to fully get the benefits of brilliant ones?

How much of our present bureaucratic maze has come into being, not to serve the people but to check and balance one elective office against another and one branch against the other?

Power, when used wisely, is accepted, but we are almost paranoid about potential — abuse. Instead of trying to overcome the ill effects of occasional abuse, we legislate more rules and regulations to anticipate future abuses. We are close to the point where we presume every public servant is guilty and if he is of the opposite party, doubly guilty.

Much of the ineffectiveness and nonresponsiveness of state government today comes not from misuse of power but the paralyzing obsessions that someone might.

Second, we hear justifiable complaints about the government overregulating the private sector; but, we think, overregulation of government by the government accounts for much of the lack of faith the people now have in it.

For in curbing government from mistakes, we limit its ability to act correctly, too. Paperwork too often is a means of evading responsibility if something should go wrong than meeting responsibility to the taxpayer and the citizen.

Third, why not let the people decide?

Why not let the people again have a direct voice in whether or not power by any branch of the government is being abused?

Why not give authority co-equally with responsibility and call off the watchdogs who are

Freedom of the press at bay

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — "It is the mark of democracy that its press is full of bad news. When the press of a country is filled with only good news, you can be pretty sure the jails are filled with good men."

On the eve of the third and final debate here between President Ford and Jimmy Carter, another issue was being debated across town that will likely have a more profound long-range impact on history than who wins the presidency next month. That issue: Freedom of the press throughout the world, particularly in the developing countries of Africa, Asia and Latin America.

Leonard Marks, a Washington attorney and former head of the U.S. Information Agency under President Johnson, sounded the alarm in the above words during an address to leading publishers and editors of the Western Hemisphere. The annual meeting of the Inter American Union Assn., a routine affair, provided the occasion. But the urgent nature of current threats to press freedom made IAPA's agenda anything but routine.

Marks and others focused their concerns specifically on another meeting later this month in far-off Nairobi, Kenya. There, the 19th general conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) is scheduled to take up an agenda affecting the international media. That agenda, appropriate to the Halloween season, is full of spooks and goblins for those of us who believe a free press is essential to the survival of other individual liberties.

The UN organ, ironically, was established to facilitate the free flow of ideas throughout the world. In recent years, however, it has fallen increasingly under the sway of Third World governments which tend, by and large, to be leftist dictatorships whose media models are the Communist bloc countries where news is regarded as something to be feared and controlled.

One proposal due to come up at Nairobi calls for creation of national news agencies, under government control, which in turn would channel information to a Third World wire service. Also expected to surface in Nairobi is a mouthful of a resolution, hammered out at an earlier international assembly, called the "Declaration of Fundamental Principles Governing the Use of Mass Information Media with a View to Strengthening Peace and International Understanding and Combating War, Propaganda, Racism and Apartheid."

The first proposal — to stimulate creation of new news agencies — may seem innocuous enough, and even laudable, on the surface. However, at George Beebe, chairman of IAPA's executive committee, said: "It is disturbing to note that the main

Fire fighters praised

Sirs,
With all that has been said recently about the controversy concerning the Eighth District Fire Department, I would like to take this opportunity to say a few things regarding our recent loss Monday, Oct. 11th.

When the alarm was sounded at 7:01 a.m. that day, 45 volunteers were on the scene within minutes battling the flames. The firemen immediately ventilated the building with axes to allow the heat and pressure to escape. It was this professional procedure of the volunteers that helped contain the fire, allowing the building to be saved. This action usually draws bitter criticism from the public. But it is necessary contrary to public opinion. After the fire was out, and the store was in ruins, we were faced with a tremendous amount to clean-up. The fire department remained with us for several hours to aid us in mopping up the gallons of water that flooded the store.

For several days after, many of the men volunteered their time to help us remove the debris.

As far as we're concerned, the Eighth District Fire Dept. are not only volunteers, they are professionals.

Persecution continues

To the editor,
In the last few months, The Herald has been kind enough to publish two articles concerning the persecution of Jehovah's Witnesses in the East African country of Malawi.

As your readers may remember, intense and often brutal persecution, including murder, and rape, were carried out against Jehovah's Witnesses because of our refusal to join the only political party in that nation. That persecution was confirmed by the World Council of Churches, which urged the government of Malawi to discontinue the reign of terror and free the thousands held in concentration camps. To

Reflections

Hal Turkington
Managing Editor

We'd like to see Manchester have a Sports Hall of Fame of its own. We'd like to see tribute paid to those who have contributed to the sports scene of our town, through participation, through sponsorship, or through support.

The idea is not original. We are putting it into print to learn if it has readership support.

We remember Feb. 17, 1970; it was Earl Yost Day in Manchester, and more than 250 male athletes, sponsors and friends paid tribute to Earl who had completed 25 years as The Herald's sports editor. He came here in April of 1944.

The party was on a Monday night at the country club; many people were seeing each other after several years; the second paragraph: Contributions through participation, sponsorship, or support.

Who should comprise the organizing committee? People from all walks of sports; people in football, baseball, basketball, tennis, golf, bowling, track and cross country.

What makes one eligible for the Hall of Fame? Simply put, you'll find it in the second paragraph: Contributions through participation, sponsorship, or support.

Is Manchester residency an eligibility requirement? We suggest no; there are many athletes and sponsors and supporters who contributed to sports in Manchester and they should not be excluded.

How do you honor them? We'd like to see something that can be worn. It would have to be designed, and have something significant about Sports Night Oct. 11.

UNICEF Sunday
On Sunday afternoon, when the doorbell interrupts your football viewing, please be smiling when you open the door. On the other side will be colorful little trick or treaters, many of whom will be holding a UNICEF collection box.

As you know, UNICEF is devoted to the problems of children, everyone's children, but particularly those 3 out of 4 children across the globe who live in developing nations where the average income per person is less than $200 a year.

Gloria Kjellson, president of Church Women United in Manchester, sponsor of the UNICEF collection, tells me that one of the many things the money will be used for will be to develop water resources in poor and underdeveloped countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America where the only water source is polluted ponds, rivers and springs, often miles away.

Open your front door Sunday afternoon with a welcoming smile and generous heart.

Contributions may be sent to UNICEF, care of MACC Box 773, Manchester. UNICEF boxes are available in your church office, the MACC office, or from your CWU representative.

World Community Day. Another CWU event coming up is World Community Day, Friday, Nov. 5. This is one of the three days when women from all Christian communities in town are invited to come worship together. Come meet at Emanuel Lutheran Church at noon with your own sandwich. Dessert and a beverage will be provided. Baby-sitting is available for this and all CWU functions.

Dr. Lamb

Doctor's advice ends problems

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb - I ever thank you enough? For more years than I care to remember I had Crohn's disease or regional enteritis. Four years ago I had emergency surgery. My intestines blew up and exploded. The doctor said, "Sorry, right now nothing will kill the bug." I was weak, very thin. I was so tired that I was walking down the stairs as a real project. I had to be in bed three out of five days. Drinking half and salt to build myself up, vitamins, ice cream, cheese galore. I'd get so sick I wished I'd die.

The doctor gave me tranquilizers for my intestines. No soap. As I lay in bed very ill near Christmas time about two years ago I read an article you wrote about how milk and gluten affects intestines. My husband and I decided, "Oh, well, give it the old college try." I did and almost immediately I began to feel better. I remain very strict. I only use non-dairy milk, no ice cream, no cheese, I take calcium pills. I've got so much energy now. At times I have spells, but I suppose that is to be expected. Thank you for your help and article.

The only thing I dislike is my weight. Now I'm not 122 but 150 pounds. Food now looks appetizing and delicious. Before I couldn't even look at it. I'd force fattening food down and spend hours in the bathroom or in bed. I'm busy, my husband is happy with my health and also my children. I enjoy everything and haven't had Crohn's disease in an inflammation of the region of the intestine where the small intestine joins the colon. It may also affect adjoining areas of the intestine. It is true that many people with this problem are intolerant to milk and milk products as your case demonstrates. Patients with ulcerative colitis may also have attacks precipitated by milk and milk products.

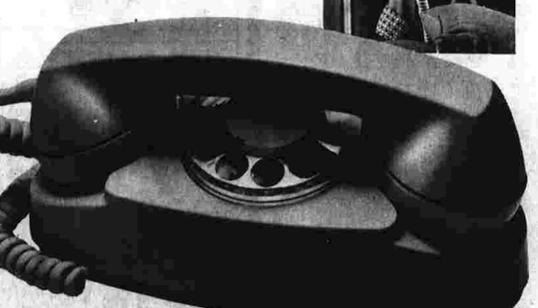

Buttermilk, cheese and ice cream are not devoid of lactose, the double sugar that seems to cause a lot of these problems. Natural fermentation with the lactobacilli will eliminate more than half of the lactose but commercial buttermilk is not made that way and will cause the person intolerant to lactose to have real misery. Commercial cheeses are also not free of lactose. Yogurt is sometimes recommended but commercial yogurt (not made by natural fermentation by the lactobacilli) is so thin that dry milk powder is often added to it. That makes it especially rich in lactose and particularly harmful to patients with this problem.

Foreign news comment: Window on Asia

By United Press International

One Softening Policy HONG KONG (UPI) - Although no major changes are expected immediately in China's foreign policy as a result of the purge of radicals in the Communist party leadership, diplomatic analysts say they anticipate a softening of China's hard line position on at least one important issue.

This is Peking's demand for an "anti-hegemony" clause in the proposed Sino-Japanese peace treaty. Negotiations for conclusion of the treaty have been deadlocked for more than two years because of China's insistence on having such a clause and Japan's refusal.

Analysts say there have been some hints by Chinese officials recently that indicate they might give in a bit on this issue.

Diplomats in Hiding BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) - Communist diplomats in Bangkok have been maintaining low profiles since the Oct. 6 coup by the Thai military. The mostly American-trained junta officers have made it clear that their main target is insurgency, and communism in general.

Soviet diplomats stayed inside their embassy building for several days after the coup. The Chinese, who live in their hotel-embassy, have not been publicly since. And there seems to be little hope that the empty buildings for Vietnamese and Cambodian diplomats will be occupied in the near future.

Marxist House-cleaning MANILA, The Philippines (UPI) - After receiving overwhelming approval of his marital law role in the national referendum, President Ferdinand Marcos says he is planning a governmental housecleaning.

Marcos says he will fire local officials facing charges ranging from abuse of authority to criminal offenses. The president will probably review the performance of municipal, provincial and perhaps even national government officials. During his last purge in September, 1975, Marcos dismissed about 3,000 civil servants.

Incumbents spending the most BOSTON (UPI) - Incumbents are outspending their challengers in races for the U.S. Senate in New England, Common Cause said. The only exception is the Senate race in Maine.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has spent more than $550,000 this year. In contrast, his Republican rival, Paul Robertson of Berkeley, Mass., has spent only $105,000, Common Cause said.

In Connecticut, Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., has a campaign budget of more than $21,000, Common Cause said. His challenger, Democratic Secretary of State Gloria Schaffer, has a budget of slightly more than $183,000.

In Vermont, Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., and his Democratic challenger, Gov. Thomas Salmon have spent close to $77,000.

In Rhode Island, the competition for the seat of retiring Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., is extremely heated.

Democrat Richard Lorber has spent more than $447,000 to defeat his rival, former Gov. John Chafee, who has spent only $230,000.

In Maine, the only exception to this incumbency spending rule, Republican Robert Monks has spent slightly more $78,000. His challenger, Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, has a war chest of more than $166,000.

able to agree on the choice of a candidate to replace him.

Drug trafficking diplomats SEUL, Korea (UPI) - North Korean diplomats are struggling to find the struggle even tougher. He has managed to remain in power so far because his opponents had not been able to agree on the choice of a candidate to replace him.

The uncovering of the North Korean activities in Scandinavia will cost Pyongyang the friendship of many neutral countries, they say.

This could become a plus in Seoul's diplomatic campaign against the Communist north.

Lee Down Under SINGAPORE (UPI) - Australian and Singaporean student demonstrators did their best to steal the headlines from Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew during his visit to Australia this month.

The students called for the release of political detainees, including some of the returned students who had studied in Australia universities. In Singapore, Lee's answer to the best to steal the headlines was that Singaporeans will continue to be allowed to study in Australia, but just as demonstrations are the release of political detainees, including some of the returned students who had studied in Australia universities.

PUCA to review court ruling on $47.4 million rate hike

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Public Utilities Control Authority plans an emergency meeting this afternoon to react to a state Supreme Court ruling it must review the $47.4 million rate hike it granted Northeast Utilities in 1974.

It had planned to hold hearings Tuesday on a new $56.4 million rate hike request by Northeast, according to PUCA Chairman Albert J. Kleban.

The Saturday ruling did not back up Common Pleas Court Judge William Bieluch's March decision the hike was illegal, a question the court is still considering on appeal from Northeast. But it did deny Northeast's request to delay PUCA reconsideration.

Kleban said the authority now must review the decision based on Bieluch's ruling and "will do everything necessary to protect the interests of consumers."

Bieluch overturned the two-year-old increase, granted by the PUCA's predecessor, the Public Utilities Commission.

He found the PUCA had held illegal private conversations with Northeast, had granted the company an extra $28 million by mistake and made numerous procedural errors.

The decision could mean refunds of up to $70 million to a million state residents served by the electric power company, according to Alexander A. Goldfarb, who represented Hartford in a challenge to the rates.

The decision is "a major victory for the consumers of this state," Goldfarb said. Northeast began charging the new rates in January of 1975, and would have to pay back as much as $35 million a year if they are rejected, a process that might take two years by the time a decision is reached, he said.

Carter's brother vetoes release of SBA data on family business

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Small Business Administration says Billy Carter, younger brother of the Democratic presidential nominee, won't let the agency release some information about the Carter family business.

UPI was told of the matter by a source friendly to President Ford, and the SBA later confirmed the source's account. Carter's campaign aides questioned the propriety of the news leak.

Some of the information includes Jimmy Carter's salary while he was running for governor of Georgia in 1966 and again in 1970, the SBA documents showed.

Under federal law, the agency has no authority to disclose data such as that involving the Carter loan without formal approval of the principals.

The SBA records showed bid forms, plans and specifications are available at the General Services Office, 41 Center Street, Manchester, Connecticut.

Today's thought

It's autumn — A great time of year. God's great gifts for us is to hear and then see the world going on over. Any time of day will do but the moonlight night is most thrilling of all.

Think about them. Who is leading them? One of them is at the head of the wedge leading and calling. Then that one drops back and another takes its turn, but deep within them all is that migratory instinct.

Can of sardines lucky for Patriots

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Some people might have thanked their lucky stars after New England beat Buffalo Sunday. But Patriot offensive guard Sam Adams was thanking his lucky sardines.

Adams, who had suffered through nine straight losses in past years to the Bills, kept the can of sardines in his locker during the game and saluted their success after New England's 26-22 victory. He said the Patriots won earlier this year after he ate a can of sardines, so he decided sardines might be his lucky charms.

"The only game I forgot them was in Detroit and we lost that one. That was a big mistake. I won't forget them anymore. If I do, I find myself hugging the can," he said.

The five-year NFL veteran admitted his sardines — even though they have a 5-1 record — may not have been totally responsible for the win.

"It could have been just good pass protection by the offensive line," he said after quarterback Steve Grogan passed for one touchdown and ran for another to lead the win.

White Adams was praising his locker charms, the Bills had to be wondering what O.J. Simpson, which gave eight Buffalo players were injured in the loss — with starting quarterback Joe Ferguson knocked out, for the season with a back injury.

The defeat and the injuries moved him into second place on the NFL's all-time rushing list ahead of Jim Taylor.

"You would like to be No. 1 and that's what I'd like to do," Simpson said after moving up to number two, behind Jim Brown's 12,112.

New England back Sam Cunningham piled up 118 yards and scored a touchdown on a one-yard plunge.

Adams looked knowingly at his sardines while considering the game's 11 fumbles and two intercepted passes. But other people blamed the weather and a slippery ball for the turnovers.

"There was a lot of bouncing footballs around the field today," said Patriots coach Chuck Fairbanks. "Some bounced our way and some didn't. But we're very thankful to get the Bills into second place on the market for his fourth place kicker Russ Francis. And Grogan said that's what I'd like to do."

Buffalo coach Jim Ringo said his team would be looking for another quarterback to backup third-year pro Gary Marangi for the rest of the season.

He also hinted the team might be in the market for its fourth place kicker George Jakowenko missed two extra points and a key field goal on Sunday.

The Patriots led 26-16 when Jakowenko's field goal attempt went wide from 32 yards after a drive that started with a Buffalo recovery of a fumble.

Two conversion kicks by Oakland's Fred Steinfort were blocked by Fred Carr and Ray Guy missed the third attempt.

The Chargers scored touchdowns on Dan Pastorini run his car into a tree and coach Bum Phillips narrowly missed a 50-foot field goal.

Instruction will emphasize the basic skills of soccer. A special "beat the goalie" contest with MCC goalie Mike Gerber and Mike Motta in the nets will be held.

A game, at 11 will pit MCC against arch-rival Middlesex Community College.

back Doug Woods' 11-yard pass to Sam Scarber. Cleveland's Greg Pruitt was injured in the second quarter and left the game.

State's Catholics, ethnics key to Nutmeg electoral votes

By PETER A. BROWN (UPI) — Connecticut's large Roman Catholic and ethnic population hold the key to the state's eight electoral votes during the last eight days of the presidential campaign.

The state has less than three per cent of the electoral votes needed for victory, but has always been considered an indicator of national trends.

Its results, usually among the first available in the country, are thought to have an influence in the electoral vote-race West, which finds out Connecticut's decision with three hours of voting time remaining.

Despite an overwhelming Democratic plurality in voter registration, President Ford appears to have the smallest of leads. Both sides agree his surprising strength among Catholic and ethnics voters explains the lead.

Both groups traditionally vote Democratic and Jimmy Carter's problems in Connecticut, as in much of the Northeast, has been his inability to reach them.

Carter coordinator Michael Cardozo concedes his problem with the two groups lies with his origins, similar to the handicapped John Kennedy, the nation's only Catholic President, faced in 1960.

"You have many people who don't understand his way, just like people in other regions couldn't understand Kennedy. He gives an air of having marbles in his mouth," Biebel said.

But Biebel says its more than just Carter's speaking style. "It's a feeling of people being satisfied with what they've got and being unsure of what they'd get with Carter," Biebel said.

Officials threw flags but Steelers scored

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Mean Joe Greene made it a point prior to Sunday's game between his Pittsburgh Steelers and the New York Giants to advise the officials of excessive holding they could expect from the New York offensive line.

Greene felt there was an inordinate amount of undetected holding when New York beat Pittsburgh 17-0 during the pre-season and the all-pro defensive tackle wanted to make sure the Giants did not manage a repeat performance.

The officials heeded the Pittsburgh lineman's advice, stretching it to a point a little too far even for Greene to accept. The officials whistled 27 penalties in the game, including a club record 19 against the Steelers, but it was not enough to prevent Pittsburgh from rolling to a 27-0 victory over the hapless Giants.

"I told them to watch out for the guys in the blue," Greene said. "But apparently they (the officials) didn't think that too much. They just kept throwing those flags."

"Somebody must have been mad... someone must have been irritated with a certain defensive tackle. They didn't take too kindly to what I had to tell them."

The Giants accepted 15 of the 19 penalties against the Steelers for 120 yards. Eight of the penalties came in the first half when Pittsburgh had trouble generating any offense.

The Steelers finally scored with 1:41 to play in the half on a one-yard plunge by Franco Harris; they added a 21-yard field goal by Roy Gerela 76 seconds later after a 38-yard interception return by J.T. Thomas to the New York three.

"It's extra frustrating," said Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll of all the penalties. "I have no explanation for it."

Noll, whose offensive unit was called seven times for either holding or illegal use of the hands, said he was going to complain to the league office about the officiating in the contest.

West to try kill press curbs being considered by UNESCO

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — The United States and West European nations will try to kill a Soviet-inspired plan to curb traditional press freedoms at a major U.N. meeting opening Tuesday, western sources said today.

The conference is expected to be the most controversial in the history of the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. It is scheduled to be opened by President Jomo Kenyatta and will run for almost six weeks.

Some delegates warned on the eve of the meeting that UNESCO's future could be in jeopardy unless the questions of press freedom and full membership rights for Israel were handled skillfully. To forestall possible terrorism, security was extremely tight. For the first time in the history of the Kenyatta Conference Center, site of the meeting, all persons and their baggage were being checked by metal detectors.

The United States, which pays 25 per cent of UNESCO's budget, has already shown its displeasure at what it considered the organization's anti-Israel bias by chopping off $38 million dollars in contributions for the last two years.

Washington will come under intense criticism in Nairobi for its action from the UNESCO secretariat, the Soviet bloc and third world nations, sources said.

At a UNESCO executive board meeting late last year the Russians inspired a controversial mass media document whose key passage said: "States are responsible for the activities in the international sphere of all mass media under their jurisdiction."

Western governments and media argue that if the 138-member UNESCO general conference adopts the declaration it will give the U.S. stamp of approval to a snowballing effort by Communist and third world countries to restrict press freedoms.

UNESCO itself denied the charge. The Western delegates argue a second resolution to channel UNESCO funds to fledgling third world news agencies eventually will have the same result.

A second amendment to be considered would add all Business II uses to the Central Business District. This would extend to the Central Business District the requirement that hotels and motels have at least 16 rooms.

The PZC is also scheduled to act on a land division request from Leon Podvone and will bear a pre-application review from Charles Burr for property on N. Main St.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in Lincoln Center.

Preparing for the worst

A mock fire at Rockville General Hospital Sunday morning puts fire departments, ambulance and rescue crews and RGH staff through the paces of an emergency evacuation. A Rockville fire fighter is the "patient" in the basket. Tolland, Manchester, and Ellington fire fighters assisted in the drill.

Chlorine blast injures man

Tolland
A Tolland man was treated at Rockville General Hospital for multiple chemical burns caused by an explosion of powdered chlorine in his garage Saturday morning, authorities said.
The man, John Gouley of 26 New Rd., was released from the hospital. Tolland Fire Chief Ron Little said Gouley was apparently taking chlorine from a cardboard container when it exploded, starting a small fire in the garage. The incident occurred at about 11:15 a.m.
Officials said the chlorine probably exploded because it was contaminated with moisture or dirt. Townspeople were warned to store the chemical, used in swimming pools, in a clean place outside the home or garage.

Schaffer for, Weicker against I-84

HARTFORD (UPI) — Whether Interstate 84 should be completed through Eastern Connecticut is an issue which sharply divides Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., and his Democratic opponent Gloria Schaffer.
Mrs. Schaffer sides with those who want the highway to link Hartford and Providence, R.I., as a means of spurring the economy of the area.
Weicker has supported those who contend the project will destroy the area's environment and not be nearly as much of a boon to the economy as has been claimed.

South Windsor studies MACOS

JUDY KUEHNEL
"Man, A Course of Study," a sixth grade social studies program implemented seven years ago in the South Windsor schools, will come under fire Tuesday night when the Board of Education meets at Ellsworth School.
The course referred to as MACOS will be reviewed by the full board.

Curve plans under way

Coventry
Planning for the realignment of a dangerous curve on Rt. 31 here is under way.
State Department of Transportation (DOT) leaders met in the Town Hall Friday with local leaders to discuss the curve which is just west of Liske Beach at Coventry Lake.
They began plans for the realignment. The DOT men presented sketches showing a widening of the roadway from its current 24 to some points to 30 feet measured curb to curb.
The plans call for the elimination of three curves to be replaced by a single, long curve not to exceed five degrees. Work will involve cutting into the ledge on the north side of the road. It will also include the relocation of utility poles and should make for a better sight line.
Local leaders suggested a pedestrian walkway. DOT people said they would try to get it in.
DOT people said they are confident about 70 per cent of the project will be paid for with federal dollars.
The current time table calls for design work on the project to be done by the spring. Then public hearings would be held. Buying rights-of-way and getting the federal funds will follow. Construction might begin at the summer of 1978.
Better lights will be put at the curve soon.

Board to study DEEP

Vernon
At its meeting tonight at 7:30 at the Middle School, the Board of Education will discuss an agreement to establish a Developmental Economic Education (DEEP) phase II program.
Dr. Raymond Ramsdell, superintendent of schools, named a committee to study DEEP.
Dr. Robert Lintone, assistant superintendent, has been named committee chairman. Other members are: Richard Lavator, social studies teacher at the high school; Ronald Kozuch, adult education director; James Norwood, social studies supervisor; Mrs. Brenda Somerset, reading consultant; and William Bountriss, guidance counselor at the Middle School.
The program is designed to improve economic education in major school systems through the efforts of the Joint Council on Economic Education.
Also on tonight's agenda will be discussion of: The nursing needs at Rockville High School; the status of the high school addition; the custodial and secretarial contracts; and a citizens' forum.
The board will go into executive session to discuss the status of teacher negotiations and a request from a parent.

Firemen tracking false alarm caller

Hebron
Hebron Volunteer Fire Department Chief William V. Borst said a recent rash of false alarms has plagued them.
Five false alarms have been reported in a recent six day period.
Borst said such calls needlessly consume the time of volunteer fire fighters and subject them to the usual dangers of fire response. The put extra strain on equipment.
"The biggest problem is that the department is unable to respond quickly to real calls."
He cited one incident recently in which the department was requested to respond to a mutual aid call in the town of Columbia but received a report of a structure fire in the Gilead section of town at the same time. The Gilead call turned out to be another false alarm.
Borst said there are several suspects and the department is working the state police.
"We have a good tape of the caller," Borst said. "If we get one more tape, we will submit them for voice analysis to the state police forensic laboratory."
ZBA meeting
The Zoning Board of Appeals will meet Thursday, Nov. 4 at 8 p.m. in the Town Office Building, Rt. 85. The board will hear from Patricia and Philip Taylor requesting a variance in frontage for a building lot on the east side of Old Hartford Rd.

Complaints from parents as well as the release of an 18-page, detailed, anonymous written booklet criticizing the program prompts the board discussion.
Since September 1969, every six grade student has studied and analyzed the ideas and concepts of MACOS.
It uses multimedia approaches and studies the gull, the salmon, the baboon and the Eskimo as comparisons to the complicated life of today's man.
School Supt. Robert Goldman is expected to present a detailed analysis of the program Tuesday.
A newly organized group of parents, Citizens for Better Education, met last week at which time they gave out a fact sheet on MACOS.
The sheet charges that many of the movies used have violent scenes. Some show brutal killing and slaughtering of the caribou and seals. The group charges that MACOS does not have any educational value and that the program "undermines fatherhood and motherhood, the family unit and society."
Reasons for MACOS
According to a review of the program which will be introduced at Tuesday's board meeting, primitive life styles are studied for the following reasons:
• The study of the gull, like the study of the salmon and the baboon, is to give the students the rudiments of life and to present the life cycle that all living things, including man, go through. The concept of parenting and the contrast of animal and human parenting is keen.
• The study of the salmon shows the need of all life to reproduce itself, regardless of the obstacles. The contrast between animal life and man can clearly be seen. The independent nature of the newly born salmon, without parents, can be contrasted to the dependent nature of human infants and his need for constant parenting.

• The study of the baboon is a more complete and thorough. By careful contrast, the differences of man to the baboon can be easily seen. The fact that baboons may casually act manlike, but under careful examination, be so different in a way that man to the baboon can be easily seen. The Netsilik Eskimos were chosen because they are considered one of the remaining groups of people in the world untouched by outside forces. In films and materials, various aspects of life of all humans are brought before the students to ponder. The concepts covered include such ideas as the need to provide food and clothing, the family and its structure, the learning activities and play of the young, and the culture and mores of the people.
As each of these topics are presented, the students are asked to make comparisons and contrasting observations about American society.
For example, in the Eskimo way of life the concept of a food chain is established. The student is then asked to develop the food chain for American society.

Stolen card nets clock

East Hartford
Mrs. Josephine Picone of 37 Melton Dr., East Hartford let her Master Charge card fall out of her pocket while shopping at Marshall's store on Center St.
She did not realize it until the Master Charge bill arrived Thursday. Friday she and her husband, Angelo, tried to find out what happened.
Apparently, someone picked up her card and took it to the Country Left at 245 Broad St. They picked out a fine pendulum clock priced at $105 and bought it with her card signing by name, said her husband.
The Picones went back to the store Friday. The clerk could not remember who it was who signed for the clock.
The bank said they were sorry but no one had notified them in time that the card was stolen. The Picones must pay for the fine clock they will never see.
"The creep must have had good taste, whoever she is," Picone said Friday afternoon to The Herald.
The Picones said they have five children, three of them now attending college. "So we're hurting," he said.
They called The Herald to place a classified ad asking the card holder to help them out of the jam. They did not care if the card holder did it anonymously or even if she did not return all of the cost involved.
Their phone number is 568-8925 in case the woman wants to contact them about the matter.

East Hartford 'Y' plans class

The East Hartford Branch YMCA will begin its pre-school movement education program Thursday at 10 a.m. at the YMCA, 770 Main St.

Dancing in Bolton

Darby Barnard holds onto her perch for the Sady Hawkins Dance Friday at Bolton High School. He is Marty Ferguson who really did not regret being "caught." This will be an orientation session for both parents and children and will be followed by 12 class sessions on Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 10 to 11. Class sessions will run from Nov. 4 through Dec. 16.
Movement education is the process of learning by discovery through bodily movement. Since movement is the basis for learning many lifelong skills, the pre-school child can be guided in learning these skills by having the problems, to think about them and to solve them more skillfully and creatively.
Other benefits are increased coordination, a willingness to complete tasks, an increased self-motivation and self-discipline, and appreciation of their own self-worth and the self-worth of others, and a willingness to help and work with others.

Instructor is Mrs. Allmuth Purzell. She has a B.S. in physical education from the University of Rhode Island and an M.S. from Springfield College.
At the orientation session, Mrs. Purzell will talk about the classes, answer questions and hold a mini-class for the children. The orientation is without cost. Equipment will include balls, jump ropes, hula hoops, a balance beam, gym mats and the trampoline.
The class will be limited to 15 children. Registrations are now being accepted at the YMCA, 299-4377.

Board okays shows

Hebron
Regional District 8 Board of Education approved plans by Rhams Chamber Singers to make four performances at an Elizabethan Boarshed Festival at Jury's Tavern Dec. 6, 7, 8, and 12.
The closed shows will be by reservation only with students selling tickets for dinner and the Christmas Program.
The Chamber Singers will receive a flat $75 per performance or $1 per dinner, whichever is greater. They will be guaranteed $500 for the programs to offset an estimated $300 cost for costumes. Students make a profit only if ticket sales exceed 75 for each performance.
In other business the board accepted the resignation of Sharon Wishkin as speech teacher and approved the appointment of Jeffrey Graham as student custodian. The board also approved Diane LaFontaine as a food handler in the cafeteria.

Special ed bus hikes budget

Bolton
DONNA HOLLAND
Lou Cloutier, chairman of the Board of Education transportation committee, said one of the school routes will cost about $1,500 a year over the amount budgeted.
The mileage is due to trips to Manchester for special education and was unforeseen at budget time.
Clark Transportation Co. of Colchester provides the rides.
Cloutier said there is a chance about half the amount can be paid from the fuel budget. The board planned on 40 cents per gallon. To date the cost is 35 cents.
Bill not to be paid
A bill for $44 from Clark for physicals for four bus drivers will not be paid by the board.

Raymond Allen, superintendent, said the drivers did not meet the time limit set by the school physician and therefore arranged their own physicals. The school physician made time available, the people in question just did not go.
Allen said if the board is honoring its contractual commitment (overmileage on the buses), then Clark should honor theirs.
PTO person sought
The board is seeking a PTO member for its transportation committee. Anyone interested is asked to call Cloutier at 84-8255.

Lake land project may start

Bolton
David Dreselly, first selectman, asked Town Attorney Jerome Walsh whether Board of Finance approval was needed to spend money donated to the town by Nature Conservancy.
Walsh said, "The legislative body of Bolton (Town Meeting) at any annual or special meeting can vote to use all or part of funds consistent with the terms of the gift."
The Board of Finance need not make any recommendation on the use of the funds."
Bolton received $23,568.73 from Nature Conservancy. Approval to spend about $9,000 of that amount for phase 1 of the development of the newly acquired lakefront property will be sought at a Town Meeting Nov. 3.

Bank gifts
David Dreselly, first selectman, and Leon Rivers, selectman, will attend a meeting Nov. 3 at the Colony Room in Vernon with officials from the Savings Bank of Manchester and other towns.
William Johnson, SBM president, said, "As a means of making the presentations of gifts to the various libraries in our area, we are planning a report on Nov. 3."
Zoning meeting
At its last meeting the Zoning Commission received preliminary plans for the Sheridan Heights subdivision on Brandy St.
The commission plans to request a legal ruling from Walsh, town counsel, on enforcing the regulations it recently adopted. Commission members discussed the suggestion two

Campaign comment

55th District
State Rep. Aloysius Ahearn said the old trolley car may be coming back but the new system will be clean, efficient and fast, unlike the old trolley that rattled and rumbled along our city streets many years ago.
Ahearn said he is an advocate of mass transit.
A plan of study now under way by the Capitol Region Council of Governments (CRCOG) is examining light rail vehicles (LRV), an electric railway that would make use of existing rails and roadways. Plans call for a loop around the business area of Hartford with lines extending outward to Bloomfield in the west and Manchester and Vernon in the east.

Ahearn said the study has local and state approval. It has been submitted to Urban Mass Transit Administration (UMTA) in Washington. It is expected the plan will be completed in the spring of 1977.

Rham hearings set

Hebron
Public hearings on the recommended 12-member Board of Education for Rham High School, Regional District 8 will be held Nov. 8 preceding a referendum Nov. 15 on the matter.
Reapportionment Committee Chairman James Derby of Hebron will chair the Hebron hearing Nov. 8 at Hebron Elementary School, Rt. 85 at 8 p.m.
Committee member Mary George Hoevler will chair the hearing Nov. 9 at the Elmer Thines School in Marlborough.
The Andover hearing will be chaired by committee member John Yeomans at Andover Elementary School Nov. 10.
The vote will be in all three towns Monday, Nov. 15 from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.
The new board, if approved, would consist of three members from Andover, four from Marlborough and five from Hebron,

Major papers endorse Ford

By United Press International
Such words as "tranquil" and "known quantity" dotted Connecticut newspaper endorsements of President Ford in three of the state's largest daily newspapers.

The Hartford Courant, the New Haven Register and the Waterbury Republican all endorsed Ford Sunday. The morning Republican said, "There are times when former Gov. Jimmy Carter seems to represent the opinions of the majority of Americans. But there have been other times when he appears to represent the same serving of pie-in-the-sky Democratic promises Americans have been desirous to try."

It concluded, "Confronted with the choice between the unknown and untested Carter and the quiet stability of Gerald Ford, the nation's interests would be better served by returning the president to the White House."

The New Haven Register, an afternoon newspaper, said "We think the man most fitted to head the United States in the coming four years is Gerald Ford."

Ford is "the known quantity exemplified. His administration has met America's problems head on. He has shown personal leadership and has applied tangible programs and he has vetoed costly political maneuvers."

The newspaper went on to say, "Jimmy Carter is not lastingly reassuring. The evidence of this campaign is that while we learn more about Mr. Carter we still have trouble understanding him."

The morning Courant, the largest circulation paper, said, "President Ford's long suit has been, and still is, his handling of the economy. Notwithstanding the recent sluggishness of the recovery, we feel that Mr. Ford has been right in placing his emphasis on fighting inflation as the economy grows."

It also said, "Mr. Carter, it seems to us, would attempt to rush ahead with an ill-conceived housing program and might give welfare reform a low priority."

The Register also endorsed Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., whom it called "unusual and genuine." He was said to represent "Connecticut with authority and a kind of off-beat grace."

The paper said his opponent Gloria Schaffer's "credentials are sound and her perceptions of the problems of government are valid."

It cited Weicker's independence and concluded, "It is not enough therefore to challenge him simply by offering a partisan alternative."

'Promise to appear, system not working'

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state-wide problem of suspects failing to appear in court after being released on their own promise to show up is worse in Hartford, according to Connecticut court officials.

Police Chief Hugo Masini said a study of cases in July and August showed 60 per cent of suspects failed to show up. He was charged with minor crimes such as breach of the peace or disorderly conduct.

Common Pleas Chief Judge Roman J. Lexton said the "promise to appear" system is not working and that a "crackdown" is in order.

He estimated as many as 60 per cent of the suspects are not showing up in cases closed out after the statute of limitations are included.

The state bail commissioner in New Haven said Hartford released 5,362 suspects last year after they gave a written promise to appear in court, but 1,095 failed to appear, the worst record in the state.

The "skip rate," those released who are never seen again, was one per cent 10 years ago, under stricter bonding rules. On the average, of the 1,000 suspects arrested each month here, 450 are now released on written promise, 100 back the promise and 36, or 8 per cent, "skip."

A person's criminal record, or present status on probation on parole cannot be considered when deciding whether to allow "written promise" bond under guidelines issued by Masini in 1974.

He said the law required such guidelines. Lexton disagreed saying he knows of no law requiring such rules.

ROTC comeback

STORRS (UPI) — The Reserve Officer Training Corps is apparently enjoying a comeback at the University of Connecticut.

The Army ROTC program currently has 205 students, including 41 women, an increase of 32 students from last school year.

In addition, a new Air Force ROTC program currently has 165 students enrolled.

ROTC Commander Col. Franklin L. Wilson said, "I haven't seen any signs of objection to our presence on campus."

He said the training has changed, with students no longer marching in drills on the campus. The program now emphasizes teaching cadets outdoor skills, hiking, mountaineering and using maps and compass. Also, cadets are not issued uniforms until their junior and senior years, he said.

Safety agency chided

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — Rep. Stewart B. McKinney, R-Conn., today accused the Consumer Product Safety Commission of irresponsibility for not publishing his "banned toy list."

McKinney said he has written Commission Chairman S. John Dington to reverse the decision not to publish the list and instead, "act aggressively to protect the people in the marketplace."

The lawmaker said the commission last year decided not to publish the list because of increasing industry compliance and the development of new, generic toy standards.

McKinney said industry self-policing is "far from complete" and he called the commission's "retreat from a firm policy, a shocking policy of indifference and irresponsibility."
