Carter defense views blasted

By LEWIS LORD
 United Press International
 President Ford is picturing Jimmy Carter as a novice in foreign policy who could endanger the country, while Carter describes the President as a fine man who says ridiculous things.

With one week remaining before election day, Ford blasted Carter's foreign and defense positions in a speech Tuesday to the Pittsburgh Economic Club. He heads today for New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

His schedule is not being announced in advance, mostly because it is subject to last-minute changes if private polling shows he is needed in specific areas.

Ford and Carter both spent the night in Chicago, but never crossed paths.

Carter planned an early flight to New York today, and was to move on to Pittsburgh in late afternoon.

On Tuesday Ford, claiming that Carter's policies had "a strong flavor of isolationism," said the Democrat is asking voters to venture "into the unknown with a doctrine that is untested, untried and, in my view, potentially dangerous."

Carter, in Moline, Ill., calmly rejected the charge.

"Obviously I'm not an isolationist — that's a ridiculous thing to say and he knows it," Carter said. "But this is the last week of the campaign and I don't care to get in a squabble with him."

"He's a fine and decent man and I don't have any criticism of him," Carter said.

Carter, who says he intends to win next Tuesday, has begun sharing his post-election plans with crowds.

He told a gathering of thousands Tuesday "one of the major commitments I make to you — a top priority — is to put the American people back to work before the inauguration."

Later he told a congregation at a Jewish temple that the Arab boycott is a "travesty and a disgrace" and pledged to "move aggressively as president and even as president-elect" to end it. "During a 30-minute live TV spot in Chicago, Ford said that he, unlike Richard Nixon, never exercised 'dictatorial authority.'"

"There's one very, very fundamental difference," Ford said in the strongest language yet about the former president who chose him as his potential successor. "Under President Ford there's not an imperial White House, which means there's no pomp, there's no ceremony, there's no dictatorial authority."

Ford drew a cheering crowd estimated by police at more than 35,000 in a shopping complex in Chicago's Republican suburb of Schaumburg.

Ambassador Dr. petition referred to 8th District

By GREG PEARSON
 Herald Reporter
 Town Counsel Victor I. Moses has ruled that the Eighth Utilities District must decide on a petition by Ambassador Dr. residents, who are seeking to leave the district.

Eighth District Counsel John LaBelle said "there is no authority" for the petitioners' request for release from district fire service.

Moses said that there are about 50 Ambassador Dr. residents who have petitioned the Board of Directors for fire protection by the Town Fire Department. The area is presently included within the boundaries of the Eighth Utilities District and thus, is serviced by the Eighth District Fire Department.

Moses ruled that the legislative body of the Eighth District would have to rule on the matter before the town Board of Directors could act.

"Only if said body (the Eighth District) grants the petitioners their request, can they then come before the Town Board of Directors for its determination and decision," Moses wrote in his ruling.

"We (the Town) needs the Eighth's permission," Moses said this morning. "If they say no, that's the end of the ballgame."

And "no" appears to be the likely response from the district, according to LaBelle.

"There's no provision for decreasing the utilities' boundary lines," he said.

"There's no way to reduce the boundaries," he said. Asked what steps would be taken if the petitioners approach the district, LaBelle said, "We'll just tell them there's no authority for it."

The petitioning by the Ambassador Dr. residents is a twist to the Buckland fire jurisdiction case. The recent court decision, which granted the Eight Utilities District the right to expand its boundaries was the result of a petition by Buckland residents seeking to be serviced by the Eighth District Fire Department rather than the Town Department.

Ambassador Dr. is located on the eastern fringe of the Eighth District. Those residents who live within the district are seeking the opposite switch from the Buckland residents. They want to be served by the Town Fire Department rather than the Eighth District Department.

Manchester hospital unveils long-range building plans

By JUNE TOMPKINS
 Herald Reporter
 A new mental health facility, a new parking garage with office space, interest in the area occupied by the state army, and demolition of the original building are all part of a long range plan at Manchester Memorial Hospital.

Presentation of a 20-year plan, begun in 1965, was explained by Paul Moss, assistant hospital administrator, to members of the sub-area group F of the Health Systems Agency Tuesday night at the Municipal Building.

The plan was introduced to the group to stimulate their interest in becoming involved with community health planning, one of the prime purposes of the Health Systems Agency.

Noting the completion of the new emergency area and the very near completion of the north wing renovation, Moss said the hospital is about half way through its overall plan. The $1.8 million north wing renovation should be finished in about two weeks, he said.

The next major phase in the hospital's expansion program, after the completion of the proposed new laundry facility, will be the replacement of existing mental health facilities with a building constructed east of the hospital where a parking lot is now. It would replace former private homes across the street from the hospital now in use for in-house patient care and therapy.

Besides being an in-patient and outpatient mental health care center, the facility would also replace the locked security unit within the existing hospital.

Moss said the full size and scope of the building has not yet been determined, but it is a top priority item and hospital officials are working on a plan to present to the HSA within a year. He estimated the cost to be about $3 million.

Moss said that the hospital is also interested in the space occupied by the state army and has written to the state adjutant general of the hospital's concern about the property should it ever be available.

Moss said possibly the new mental

Fire fighters quell shed fire

Quick reporting and quick response kept damage to a minimum after a potentially serious fire in a large shed on S. Main St. Tuesday night, town fire fighters said today.

Fire fighters were concerned that flames in the corner of the 15-by-25-foot structure might spread into the attached dwelling, but the fire was doused within minutes of the 7:56 p.m. alarm.

Deputy Chief William Griffin said occupant Richard Nielsen of 333 S. Main St. was apparently doing soldering work with a propane tank in the shed when there was a flashback, the propane tank dropped and a fire started.

The fire was reported immediately, and the Town Fire Department responded with Engines 2 and 4 and Ladder 2. Fire fighters pulled booster lines (small hand lines) into the structure and extinguished the blaze with water in the two engines' tanks, Griffin said.

The fire was put out easily, he said, but fire fighters had to make sure sparks didn't get into the shed's attic or into partitions attached to the dwelling. A small amount of siding was removed from the outside of the shed to make certain the fire was totally out.

Griffin said the fire could have been much more serious if the flames hadn't been doused quickly. Both the shed and house are about 100 years old, he said, and it appeared likely that the fire could have spread rapidly.

Damage was limited to a small corner of the shed, Griffin said. No one was hurt in the incident.

Utility rates could cost $112 million

HARTFORD (UPI)—The Connecticut Public Utilities Control Authority has begun considering two rate cases that could affect consumers' pocketbooks to the tune of $112 million despite a plea they take them one at a time.

The "most complex" case in the PUC's short history is marred by a side battle in which the commission's chairman, Albert J. Kleban, has been asked to disqualify himself.

Kleban Tuesday sidestepped the request by a consumer group seeking to block the hikes that he remove himself because of alleged bias. Instead, he scheduled hearings to continue today.

At stake was review of an already granted 1974 rate hike of 47.7 million which a state court has rejected, and a new $56.4 million increase sought by Northeast Utilities.

Kleban refused to disqualify himself immediately as one of three commissioners hearing the cases and asked Alexander Goldfarb, representing the Connecticut Citizens Action Group which made the request, to document the charge.

Goldfarb eventually stormed out of the hearing, claiming Kleban was incapable of being impartial because he had made statements favorable to the utility companies.

The PUC was created in 1975 as the result of a promise made in the successful gubernatorial campaign of Ella T. Grasso. She charged its predecessor, the Public Utilities Commission, had burdened consumers unfairly in granting rate hikes and vowed to replace it with a consumer-oriented agency.

The 1974 increase, granted Northeast by the former PUC, was for $47.7 million. But company officials say if they are forced to make refunds, it will cost them at least $56 million.

Both cases will be considered concurrently, but the PUC has pledged not to rule on the current request until the legality of the 1974 increase — upon which the new request is based — is determined.

Northeast Controller Warren Hun was the main witness Tuesday, seeking to substantiate the firm's request for additional revenues.

Kleban said the issues before the commission were "the most complex issue ever to come before a regulatory body in the state of Connecticut."

The State Supreme Court last week upheld a lower court order directing the PUC to review the rate hike given NU in 1974. A Hartford Court of Common Pleas judge had ruled that increase illegal because it was approved by the PUC without holding proper hearings and by illegally discussing the hikes directly with Northeast.

The PUC, after meeting behind closed doors, Monday night declined a motion to dismiss the request for rate hikes submitted by Hartford Electric Light Co., and Connecticut Light and Power Co. Both are owned by Northeast.

CCAG contended no decision could be made on a proposal to boost 1976 rates until the legality of those rates — based on the increase granted in 1974 — was settled and wanted the 1976 case thrown out.

But hanging over the hearings was a state law setting a 150-day deadline on reviewing rate hike requests that could allow the 1976 rate proposal to take effect Dec. 29 if no action was taken by the commission.

Kleban and Goldfarb quarreled as the hearing opened, with Goldfarb demanding and being refused permission to present his case against Kleban before the rate hike cases began.

"Your bias is already shown by the way you're conducting this hearing," Goldfarb shouted.

Kleban told Goldfarb to submit evidence by Nov. 4 to back up his charge that Kleban made "public and private statements and communications to the media" that clearly indicate "his predisposition, prejudice and bias."

Accident investigated

Policeman investigates accident at E. Center and Benton Sts. Tuesday afternoon as wrecker operator surveys damage. Driver Wilma D. McComb, 62, of 11 Quaker Rd. suffered minor injuries when her car struck a utility pole. (Herald photo by Dunn)

Minor injuries sustained in two automobile accidents

Minor injuries were reported in each of two separate traffic accidents Tuesday in which automobiles hit utility poles. Manchester Police said today. In one crash, at about 1:50 p.m., a westbound car driven by Wilma D. McComb, 62, of 11 Quaker Rd. hit a pole at E. Center and Benton Sts. The car was towed. In the second pole collision, a southbound car driven by Daniel M. Daigle, 18, of 18 Madison Rd., Glastonbury, went off the road at Hilltown and Redwood Rds. Daigle was charged with reckless driving; court date is Nov. 18. The car was towed. Thelms reported Tuesday included a burglary at a Tudor Lane address in which fishing tackle was taken from storage area. Arrests made Tuesday by

Boarding house zoning rules may have to be amended

Lack of a restriction on boarders in a multiple-family dwelling has led to the creation of "boarding houses" in Manchester, and a change in zoning regulations may be needed to solve the problem. Under present regulations, boarding houses, per se, are not permitted. There is also a regulation limiting the renting of rooms and furnishings in a home to not more than three people. The intent, if not the letter, of this regulation is being violated though, according to Zoning Enforcement Officer Ernest Machell. He recently wrote a memo to Town Planner J. Eric Potter and said that in at least two instances there were boarding house type setups existing in Manchester. One is on Avon St., where Machell said, "There were 8 or 9 individuals living in a two-family house." He said that the son of the owner was named as the chief tenant, thus allowing him or her to legally rent to three other boarders in each of the five family compartments. "This is a danger," Potter said. He has suggested that the regulation allowing the renting out to three other boarders be restricted to just single-family dwellings. Potter said that under the present regulations it is not legal for a single-family dwelling to be rented to more than four people unless at least two of the people are related. "Four may rent a home, because one is classified as the tenant and may then 'rent out' to the other three. If a fifth person were involved in the setup, he or she would have to be related or adopted by one of the other four.

Cold snap grips region

By United Press International It seems to be time to get the winter clothing out of mothballs. The National Weather Service says it's been cold and going to get colder in New England. Meteorologist Alvin Cote of the Boston office said the low temperatures today in the 20s and 30s are the "coldest of the season so far." Cote said it will be even colder Thursday. "The next morning, Thursday, will probably challenge some of the individual records for that date," Cote said. The weather service predicts generally clear and cold weather for the next few days with little significant winds, except possibly along the coast and at higher elevations. Cote said lows could be expected in the teens in northern New England and in the 20s in the south Thursday. Some areas have a head start on winter. Cote said snow flurries were reported Tuesday night in northeastern Maine and snow accumulated on an inch or two on the higher mountaintops in New England. "Mt. Washington had four inches and it's generally been one to two inches in the mountains," Cote said. "There has been very little warm

State Supreme Court hearing on diaries set

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — A state Supreme Court hearing has been set for Nov. 19 on a request by the wife of Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., that she turn over his personal diaries for her lawyer to examine in connection with her divorce suit. Counsel for Remigia Brooke said her case would be "severely handicapped" without access to the diaries. Brooke's lawyer said the diaries are "private, personal and confidential records of a United States senator and reflect his involvement in the operation of the federal government."

Douglas leaves hospital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Retired Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, who suffered a broken hip Sept. 3, was released from Walter Reed Army Medical Center Tuesday to continue recovery at home. Douglas, who was 78 on Oct. 16, is currently paralyzed by a stroke on Dec. 31, 1974. He sustained the broken hip in a fall at his home. Because of his frail condition and the fact that his heart is regulated by a pacemaker, he remained in the hospital so that doctors could observe him carefully. Douglas served on the court longer than any other justice. He retired Nov. 12, 1975, after a record 36 1/2 years on the high bench.

State tax revenues coming in higher than estimates

HARTFORD (UPI) — The first accounting of tax revenues for the current fiscal year shows Connecticut state revenues at a level slightly higher than expected.

State officials Tuesday released revenue figures for the first three months of the fiscal year, saying they were a bit higher than expected, but not enough to force officials to change their estimates.

"It's a trend, but not enough of a trend to revise our estimates yet," said Finance Commissioner Jay O. Topper.

He said the figures for collections through Sept. 30 showed $2.2 million more than anticipated. The fiscal year began July 1.

Tax collections customarily are used to determine whether the revenues expected will be derived and if the state budget will remain in balance.

It was those figures last November that caused Gov. Ella T. Grasso to project an $80 million deficit. The state finished the year with a $34.7 million surplus.

Mrs. Grasso said the austerity program she implemented was responsible for turning the state's fiscal situation around.

Her critics say the possibility of such a deficit never existed and she manufactured the problem in order to claim credit for the solution.

Topper said the largest increase was in the workhorse sales tax, the largest single source of revenue, which showed $2.4 million — 3 per cent — more revenue than had been projected.

The largest shortfall — $438,000 — was in the gasoline and special fuels tax. Below projected revenues were reported in the inheritance tax, $389,000 and alcoholic beverages tax, $222,000.

He said cigarette tax revenues were $368,000 above expectations, while the admissions tax collected that caused Gov. Ella T. Grasso to project an $80 million deficit. The Challenges Mobil advertising

Gloria Schaffer, Democratic challenger of Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., talks with the press in front of the Mobil Oil Co. building on 42nd Street in New York Tuesday. She discussed the possibility of filing a complaint against Mobil for an advertisement the company placed urging support of candidates who favor oil company positions. She said this constitutes direct political involvement in the Connecticut Senate campaign.

Regardless of who wins,

Economic improvement to continue upswing

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — The U.S. economy will continue its upswing regardless of who is elected in November, but inflation and the cost of imported oil will also rise, according to Arthur D. Little, Inc., one of the nation's leading consulting firms.

The U.S. Gross National Product, a measure of the goods and services produced in the country, will probably grow between 4.5 and 5 per cent, Little Vice President Dr. A. George Gols said Tuesday.

"Expansions usually have a staying power well beyond two years," said Gols. "By this measure the recovery momentum will extend into next spring when that amount of time will have elapsed since the bottom of the recession."

"It would be unwise to assume that there will be no new major hurdles for the economy. A major derailment possibility is posed by the imminent OPEC meeting which will undoubtedly result in an increase in the price of crude oil."

"The only uncertainty is how much," he said, predicting a hike of between 10 and 20 per cent.

Gols said an increase of 10 per cent would have a minimal effect on the United States, adding only about 3 per cent to the inflation rate.

However, an increase of 20 per cent could cut the U.S. growth rate in half, he said.

The continued growth prediction was based on a number of indicators, the most important being a strong surge in capital expenditures, which will be matched by increases in consumer spending, he said.

There will be about 1.8 million housing starts and auto sales will increase 23 per cent to 10.6 million units, he said.

"We should not be alarmed if next year's GNP is a little below real growth in 1978," he said. "Slow growth conditions are more likely to prolong than to curtail the expansion phase."

Gols said if the economy's growth should fall, another tax cut will probably be made — regardless of the outcome of the Nov. 2 election.

High turnout would benefit Jimmy Carter

HARTFORD (UPI) — If more than 80 per cent of Connecticut's registered voters go to the polls election day President Ford is in trouble, according to his state campaign chairman.

"If you get 80 to 85 per cent turnout I don't see how we can win" because of the dominance of Democratic voter registrations, Joseph B. Burns, Connecticut chairman of the President Ford Committee, said Tuesday.

Ford is generally thought to be leading Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter by the slimmest of margins here and both sides are pointing to the election day turnout as the key to the state's eight electoral votes.

Registered Democrats outnumber Republicans by 197,000, but an unaffiliated block about the same size as the Democrats traditionally makes Connecticut a state which could go either way.

Republican officials concede a big turnout will work to their downfall and admit a bright, sunny day that encourages voters to go to the polls could be disastrous.

"Voter turnout is the key at this point," he said. "If it's under 70 per cent things will be very good and if it's in the 70-80 per cent range it will be very tight, but once you get on the high side of 80 we're in tough shape," he said.

State GOP Chairman Frederick K. Biebel said the cutoff figure for a Ford victory was about a 90 per cent turnout.

Connecticut has a history of large voter turnouts and despite the general feeling of national apathy toward the campaign both sides concede an 80 per cent turnout in the state is not beyond possibility.

The lowest turnout in a presidential election in Connecticut since 1940 was in 1972 when 85.5 per cent of the voters went to the polls.

The Republicans, virtually powerless at this point on the state level, have made a strong effort to identify Ford supporters through extensive use of telephone banks and are expected to be able to get these people to the polls.

The Democrats privately admit they haven't done that comprehensive an identification effort and because of limited funds under the new campaign financing law can't mount their traditional get-out-the-vote effort.

They admit the large numbers of Democrats in the inner cities of Hartford, New Haven and Bridgeport are the key and without a sizeable turnout there Carter is in trouble.

The general feeling on both sides is these voters — generally poorer and many of them minorities — are less likely to vote and their presence at the polls will be heavily dependent on the weather.

Both Republican and Democratic officials are anxiously waiting for the first weather forecast.

Flights canceled

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Strike-bound Continental Airlines has canceled all flights through Sunday but has booked most of its scheduled passengers on other airlines, officials said Tuesday.

No new talks were scheduled between management and the Continental pilots, members of the Air Line Pilots Association, who struck the airline Oct. 23.

The two sides have been negotiating a new contract for a year, but the union rejected a binding arbitration offer by the National Mediation Board and, following a 30-day "cooling off" period, decided to walk out.

Management said pay raises were the major issue but the union said the major contention was work rules.

Schaffer to take case to FEC

HARTFORD (UPI) — Democratic Senate candidate Gloria Schaffer says she will probably ask the Federal Elections Commission to look into a Mobil Oil Corp. advertisement she alleges supports her opponent.

Mrs. Schaffer and GOP Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, the man she will try to unseat next week, were out campaigning Tuesday among workers in the south central region of the state.

Mrs. Schaffer was in the Naugatuck-Waterbury area after returning from her trip to New York city where she met with Mobil officials to discuss the legality of the advertisement that was run in newspapers across the nation last week.

Weicker has supported elimination of such controls. Mrs. Schaffer backs the idea that they violated federal election laws. Mrs. Schaffer said after a 30-minute meeting at the company's headquarters, 150 E. 42nd St. She cited Section 411b of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1976, which prohibits corporate interference in federal elections.

Mrs. Schaffer said she would announce later whether or not she would file a formal complaint over the ad, which she characterized as an endorsement of Weicker.

The advertisement, under the heading "Observations," referred to "cheap shot" campaign statements that price controls have prevented gasoline from reaching a dollar a gallon. The subheading was "The dollar-a-gallon gasoline play."

Absentee ballot requests up

Town Clerk Edward J. Tomkiel said Tuesday that there has been about a 40 per cent increase in the number of absentee ballots mailed out this year compared to 1972, the last Presidential election.

About 1,300 ballots have been sent out through Tuesday. The ballots are processed daily.

Tomkiel reported that about 900 of the absentee ballots were sent out in 1972.

This year's figure marks the greatest number of the ballots ever sent out by the Manchester town clerk.

"We're to the point of fatigue," Tomkiel said.

Dr. Kurien says grandmother role is missing link in medical care

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter

There's a missing link in medical care and that is the role of the grandmother.

So said Dr. Abraham Kurien, associate in the department of cardiology at Manchester Memorial Hospital, members of the hospital auxiliary at a luncheon meeting Monday.

Dr. Abraham Kurien

He described the role of the grandmother of former generations when families lived in a closer unit geographically as one who had many of the solutions to and on understanding of basic bodily ills.

But today, Dr. Kurien said we live in a world of rapid social change which affects our lives, whether we like it or not.

"These changes occur with such force and speed that our inability to grasp and adapt to them is one form of major illness in our society today," he said.

He quoted a Greek philosopher who said that the essence of life is change, and added that one major aspect of this change is related to our capacity to move from one place to another with astonishing speed and frequency.

He termed the "nuclear family" one which perhaps arose as a result of the transition from an agricultural to an industrial society and overtook the three-generation family.

The daily development of new fields of knowledge demands constant and continuous education resulting in the tendency to seek out experts in every field to answer even the simplest questions a person may have, Dr. Kurien said.

Punctuating his talk with humor, the speaker said that perhaps there was a time when the inner workings of a Model T Ford car was fairly easily understood.

"But in this era of computer analysis and exhaust specifications, I find that all I know is how to drive the car and whom to call in case of need."

He attributed various areas of rapid social change as partially responsible for the general practitioner being ahead of the blue whale as a vanishing species.

Noting the prevalence of specialists over general practitioners, he referred to the small number of general practitioners in a Hartford Directory compared to the nearly 800 names of specialists.

"It is not too uncommon nowadays to find a patient who has five or six physicians that he or she consults fairly frequently, with perhaps two or three medications from each one," he said.

Referring to the impersonalization of medicine, he said the personal relationship that characterized the doctor-patient relationship seems to be on the wane.

Caricaturing the doctor-patient relationship with and without a grandmother's practical medical assistance, Dr. Kurien suggested strongly that there is a substitute for the grandmother, "someone who is close to us, loves us, is with us all the time and knows us well, and is perhaps almost as important in this decade of inflation — our own self."

The restoration of the missing link in medical care, the role of the grandmother, has to be played by each individual, Dr. Kurien said, with the help of the physician who should teach his patients the logic of decision making in medicine. This means knowing the difference between an emergency situation, or a situation where an individual can assess his condition and decide whether he needs to take up a doctor's time, which Dr. Kurien described as precious, or whether he can use his own medical knowledge for preventive medicine.

Dr. Kurien said it was because of his conviction that medicine should be effective, should be reasonably priced, and above all, should give patients that sense of independence in the field of their competence, which is the basis of all self-image," to who killed the general practitioner, Dr. Kurien replied. "I think we all got together and killed him. You're undermining his self-confidence if you think he can care for all the little things, but not a major calamity."

Again supporting the self-help idea, he said the public could become better informed medically if they would use the library and their own available resources.

In another humorous analogy with a bit of irony added, Dr. Kurien said, "A doctor has to be a God and provide 24-hour service, and not get tired. That's why God made himself invisible, or He would have died. We are simply human beings who are just trying a little harder to become divine."

Open shirts reveal more than ring around the collar

By KAY MCCARTHY
LAWTON, Okla. (UPI) — Men who wear their shirts open may be in style, but their appearance might make them less liked, according to a study by a psychologist at a state mental health center.

Louis Scott Williamson, 32, conducted the study while working on his master's degree in psychology at the University of Missouri at Kansas City.

He found that persons wearing clothing considered sexually suggestive generally did not get high marks for being physically attractive or liked.

Williamson, now a staff psychologist at Lawton's Jim Tallaferro Mental Health Center, showed 40 students photographs of men and women models wearing different types of clothes.

They compared two photographs for each of 15 clothing styles for men and women. They rated the models on physical attractiveness, sexual suggestibility and likability.

For men the comparisons involved a baggy versus tight swim suit, baggy vs. tight pants, shirt vs. no shirt, baggy vs. light shirt and regular vs. unbuttoned shirt.

For women the comparisons included bra or no bra, regular vs. unbuttoned shirt, regular vs. a tied-up shirt exposing the stomach, regular or short shorts, regular vs. short skirt and a tied-up shirt vs. a bikini.

Men models were rated as significantly more likable when they wore light pants, the study showed. Men found women models more likable when they wore shorter garments and women found them more likable when they wore short shorts as compared to longer shorts.

Otherwise, the participants felt those wearing sexually suggestive clothing generally were less likable.

Nobel winners miffed

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Ten winners of the Nobel Prize Tuesday criticized President Ford for using the American sweep of 1976 awards to blast charges from Democrat Jimmy Carter that America is seen as a weak nation.

"His partisanship was unfortunate and his implicit claims inaccurate," said Harvard Prof. George Kistiakowsky, a chemistry professor who served as President Dwight Eisenhower's science and technology advisor.

Kistiakowsky read a statement on behalf of 10 winners of the Nobel Prize in science and economics, including this year's chemistry winner William Lipscomb of Harvard.

Ford, following the second debate in which Carter said America was seen as weak, pointed to the American domination of 1976 Nobel awards as evidence the United States has remained strong in the eyes of the world.

"Nobel Prizes usually reflect work done over long periods of time," Kistiakowsky said. "This year's prizes do not therefore reflect this year's strength."

The signers of the statement also criticized the Ford administration for not adequately funding scientific programs. The latest appropriation for the National Science Foundation, corrected for inflation, was 10 per cent lower than in 1974, the Nobel winners said.

The signers said they hope that this year's sweep of the Nobels will lift the awareness of the Ford administration to pour more funds into science. "We hope that this occasion of national pride in past scientific accomplishments will be the occasion for a new commitment to the support of scientific excellence, so that the man who holds the presidency in 1986 will still be able to justly claim that American science is healthy and productive," Kistiakowsky read from the statement.

Included in the signers were four Nobel winners from Harvard and three from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

PLEASE . . . NOT Sunday!

We hope we will never be forced to open our ten stores on Sundays.

We believe that stores now planning to open on Sunday are really not thinking of the best interests of the communities they serve, nor of the best interest of the people they employ.

We've grown big by doing business energetically six days a week, and we enjoy serving our 100,000 or more customers. The large stores leading the Sunday opening movement are now open 12 hours a day, six days a week. In 72 hours a week there's plenty of time to serve all the customers well. We've found it so.

This country, the northeast region, and especially Connecticut are critically short of fuel, electric power, oil and gasoline. Prices of energy are already sky high. Sunday opening of the shopping malls will dramatically increase the demand for power and light — and further drive up prices of already scarce energy.

And what have any of us to gain by opening Sundays? Do people eat more when food markets are open seven days a week, instead of six? Will the consumer have more money to spend because there is another day to shop? Of course not!

Opening stores on Sunday is an incredible waste. There is not really a thing to be gained. Your money will buy less, because the store open seven days a week instead of six will obviously cost more to operate. The increased costs will have to be passed along to the customer in higher prices and more inflation.

Will it ever end?

Yes . . . when you refuse to shop in stores that are trying to exploit you and their employees. Stores do not need more shopping hours — they need management with enough ability to make a business profitable in six days a week!

Her mother grows senile

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — My mother at age 61, an intelligent, active woman, developed what was diagnosed as cerebral atrophy. Four years later she had gradually deteriorated to the point where she is a body without a mind, unable to speak or feed herself and apparently unable to recognize us. There is no family history of such an illness, so we assumed perhaps a head injury was behind it. However, another member of the family is now showing similar symptoms. Can you tell us what causes this condition? Dear Reader — I understand thoroughly your distress. I wish there were some good answer to give you. Your mother's condition is the same as that which occurs in many older people. Whether it begins early or late the changes are approximately the same. I don't need to detail these because they are all too familiar in our society. In medical circles we call these dementia and sometimes senile dementia, although it must be stated that this condition can occur at a relatively young age, specifically in later middle age in some people. Women seem to be more susceptible to this disorder at an early age than men. Most of these disorders are associated with actual changes in the cells of the brain and the condition can occur in individuals with brain injury as well as in young men in their early twenties and thus is hardly excessive brain injuries. Sometimes disease of the arteries to the brain contributes to this problem. In other instances it is the degeneration of the brain cells seems to be independent of disease to the arteries. What we really need is a better understanding of the fundamental process of aging and how to prevent it. The truth is, we are very close to being able to control biological aging, that some people, but we already understand a great deal of the regeneration process, how cells are replaced, and even how to make duplicates of frogs from the nucleus of an intestinal cell (popularly called cloning). Those who want information on what we understand about aging can send 50 cents for the Health Letter, Number 1-7, Perpetual Youth, Aging, Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Court orders McCarthy back on New York ballot

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — An appeals court, reversing lower courts, has put independent presidential candidate Eugene McCarthy back on New York's ballot and restored a second line to Democratic Senate candidate Daniel Patrick Moynihan. However the Court of Appeals, the state's highest court, was called back to Albany for a special session today to review both decisions by the Appellate Division State Supreme Court. The state Democratic Party, apparently fearing McCarthy would draw votes from Jimmy Carter and throw the state's 41 electoral votes to President Ford, obtained a State Supreme Court ruling last week rejecting McCarthy's nominating petitions. The Conservative party obtained the court order last Thursday removing Moynihan from the Liberal decision Tuesday, saying the Democrats "failed to sustain their burden of proving" the Independence Party's petitions were invalid. Earlier in the day, the Democrats scored a victory when the same five-judge panel unanimously reversed another lower court and said Moynihan should be allowed to run on the Liberal Party line also. The two cases could turn out to be crucial for Carter and Moynihan, both involved in close races in New York against Republican incumbent Gerald R. Ford.

EEC pushes profit-sharing

BRUSSELS — (LENS) — The EEC commission has been pushing the idea of giving workers seats on company boards for years. Now it is launching a campaign to create capital for the workers, but nothing more has been heard about this. The unions have shown little interest. In the rest of the EEC too, notably in Belgium and Italy, some unions feel that workers should not really affect decisions and that profit-sharing might merely promote a more unequal income distribution among wage-earners. Sweden, although not part of the EEC, may well influence the decisions taken inside the community. One of the most hotly contested issues during its election campaign was the controversial Medner plan under which an increasing portion of company profits would gradually be transferred to a series of collectively-owned wage-earner funds. Over a period of 20-25 years, his plan could make employees the majority shareholders in Sweden's medium and large companies. The Social Democrats' election defeat last month will delay the plan, but may not kill it. In France a form of profit-sharing is compulsory under legislation passed in 1967. This requires all companies employing more than 100 people to do one of three things: to allocate shares in the company to their workers, to provide them with a fixed-interest deposit in the form of blocked investment in the company, or to make payments on their behalf to a unit trust acting for more than one company. The unions claim that the arrangement is a form of compulsory saving, not a real transfer of wealth. In Britain, profit-sharing is limited to a few imaginative companies such as the John Lewis partnership retail chain. When the labor party was in opposition it proposed a Danish-type fund which companies would have to invest to create capital for the workers, but nothing more has been heard about this. The unions have shown little interest. In the rest of the EEC too, notably in Belgium and Italy, some unions feel that workers should not really affect decisions and that profit-sharing might merely promote a more unequal income distribution among wage-earners. Sweden, although not part of the EEC, may well influence the decisions taken inside the community. One of the most hotly contested issues during its election campaign was the controversial Medner plan under which an increasing portion of company profits would gradually be transferred to a series of collectively-owned wage-earner funds. Over a period of 20-25 years, his plan could make employees the majority shareholders in Sweden's medium and large companies. The Social Democrats' election defeat last month will delay the plan, but may not kill it.

VA to dedicate national cemetery at Otis Sunday

Joseph M. Card Jr., director, Veterans Administration Regional Office at Hartford, has been designated Connecticut coordinator for the public dedication ceremonies for the new 750-acre VA National Cemetery at Otis Air Force Base, Cape Cod, Sunday, Oct. 31, at 3:30 p.m. New England governors, state and national veterans organizations as well as area U.S. Congressmen and Senators will be among the distinguished guests. Richard J. Roudebush, administrator of veterans affairs, will introduce Cong. Gerry Studs, who represents the Cape Cod area; and Cong. Margaret Hecker, a member of the House Veterans Affairs Committee who has also been a strong congressional supporter of the new cemetery for New England veterans and their families. Card said the ceremony itself will take place on General's Boulevard, which is off Conroy Boulevard, the main road into the Air Base from the Bourne rotary on Rt. 28. Numerous direction signs will guide vehicular traffic into the area from Rt. 28. According to John W. Mahan, director of VA's National Cemetery Service, the dedication will be conducted under a backdrop of a 76-foot ceremonial flag pole which will be highlighted by a semi-circle of the united colors of 49 national, state and local veterans organizations. Approaching the dedication area, the public and guests will pass along an "Avenue of Flags" framed by scores of mounted flags that once draped the caskets of deceased veterans and were donated by survivors to be used as ceremonial flags at the new National Cemetery. One highlight of the dedication will be the "Dedication of the Hallowed Ground" ceremony to be performed by four chaplains representing the Protestant, Catholic, Jewish and Greek Orthodox faiths. As a finale, airmen from Otis Air Base will perform an aerial maneuver called the "Missing Man Fly By."

$80 million theft thwarted

NEW YORK (UPI) — Undercover detectives, on stakeout since August, today arrested three men as they attempted to steal $80 million in currency, gold and diamonds from a Swiss Air cargo vault at Kennedy Airport, police reported. Det. Anthony Cimato, whose unit is part of the Public Morals Division, said police obtained "confidential information" about a possible heist last August and began an undercover investigation at that time that included having one officer pose as an airline guard at the hangar. Cimato said the $80 million in valuables was not a single shipment, but many belonging to banks, individuals, jewelry exchanges "and was destined to be shipped all over the world. Swissair is known as the 'money airline' because of these shipments." A police spokesman said officers believed it was the "largest known attempted burglary ever." The other suspects were identified as Cosmo Mezzatella, 51, of Brooklyn and Ralph Leichtweis, 47, of Manhattan. They were arrested at 12:30 a.m. at Hangar 13 in the Swiss Air cargo terminal at Kennedy Airport. All were charged with burglary, criminal trespass and possession of burglar's tools — sophisticated alarm-bypass equipment — according to police. Georgia lion hunt in second day

RINGGOLD, Ga. (UPI) — Authorities said a pose armed with high-powered rifles would search the North Georgia hills today for the last of seven African lions which escaped their cages Monday night and found Tuesday by a posse looking for the animals. The lions' owners run a private zoo near the Georgia-Tennessee border about 16 miles from Chattanooga, which included the seven lions, a cougar and a bobcat. Someone deliberately pried open the lions' cage with a crowbar and set the animals free, authorities said. Linda Keown, the owner's wife, returned home Monday evening about 5:30 p.m. and "panicked" when she saw the lions wandering around her front yard, in and out of a nearby wooded area, she said. One of the females "bared people. She didn't like anybody," Mrs. Keown said. They had already slain four of her dogs, she said. Catoosa deputies said they did not kill the animals until humane society officers said that all tranquilizers would be too weak to subdue them, a spokesman said. "All four lions were coming into the crowd. One of them made a charge. We started firing," said Lt. Howard Walthour of the sheriff's department. The officers were about 50 yards from the house, he said.

White Rhodesian leaders pondering black demands

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — White Rhodesian officials said today they are considering black nationalist demands for the release of political detainees made on the eve of the Rhodesian peace talks. "We have received the demands and they are under consideration," a Rhodesian spokesman said. There was no official comment on whether the demands would be met, although diplomatic sources said this was a possibility once negotiations get under way. Prime Minister Ian Smith meanwhile "totally rejects" nationalist charges that Rhodesian security forces were committing "acts of genocide," the white spokesman said. White and black Rhodesian leaders have agreed to start the conference on Saturday but unless the two sides soften their positions an early impasse appears certain. Ivor Richard, the British conference chairman, said after completing preliminary talks with the four black delegations and the white group of Smith that the talks will begin as scheduled. As part of the delegations stick to their public preference statements, there will be an immediate deadlock, diplomatic observers said. Robert Mugabe, the most militant of the four black African nationalist leaders attending the talks, warned Tuesday the guerrilla war against Rhodesia's white regime will continue if blacks are dissatisfied with the outcome of the talks. "There will be some degree of suffering," he said. "There will be wanton killings, but some people have got to suffer after this conference." Smith insists on negotiating on the basis of the peace package put together in September by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. This would give Rhodesia black majority rule within two years but give whites continued control of the army and police in an interim government. The four black leaders, while divided among themselves, have been unanimous in totally rejecting the Kissinger proposals.

Soviet Union announces huge economic growth

MOSCOW (UPI) — "The Soviet Union today announced plans for the highest economic growth rates in its history, but conceded that even by 1980, it will be behind where the United States stood in 1975 in certain areas, such as agricultural production higher than this year," Presenting an economic blueprint for the 1976-80 period and targets for 1977, Premier Nikolai S. Baibakov said, "The period will be marked by the highest absolute rates of growth in the production of the most important items in the history of our country." But, comparing three key areas, he said the Soviet Union by 1980 would have a national income 85 percent against the U.S. industrial production of 5.6 percent figure of 1975. Its per cent—1.3 per cent agricultural production higher than this year—would be the same as the industrial production of 1975 U.S. output and only on consumer goods. Light industry — consumer goods and food — was targeted to rise 4.9 per cent this man of the State Planning year, one of the lowest Committee, submitted the objectives since World War draft plans for 1976-80 and 11.

Pollster says Carter fading in Southland

HAMPTON, Va. (UPI) — Pollster George Gallup says Jimmy Carter's support in the South is fading as election day nears because of the region's conservative leanings. "I think every Southerner was proud when Carter got the nomination," Gallup told a Virginia audience Tuesday night. "That seems to be wearing off now." The South is the most conservative area in country, he said, and in the last election was the most Republican. "In many respects, this is one of the most unusual presidential elections in 40 years," he said, because of Carter's drop in the polls from last July. Gallup said Carter's near 30-point lead there has dwindled to 6 per cent. "I've never seen a case where a candidate that far ahead lost that much ground," he said. "The drop in Carter's strength in the South is particularly noticeable."

Darrell Hooley's goal decides, Indian booters gain tourney

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sportswriter

It took 53 minutes and 52 seconds for Manchester High's standout goalie Joey Tomaselli to register a 1-0 CCIL soccer victory yesterday at Memorial Field under bone-chilling conditions.

The victory for the Silk Towners was their sixth compared to three losses and two ties and qualified them for the State Tournament in the Class LC Division for the 10th straight year and 22nd time in the last 30 years.

The winning goal originated in the Silk Town backfield with fullback Rich Marshall sending a long blast goalward. It caromed off the crossbar and an initial header by Bill Finnegan didn't get home.

While Tomaselli was getting bombarded and knocking away drives by Joel Malinoski, Finnegan, Greg Smayda, Jack Medzola, etc., Silk Town goalie Mark Copeland could've played in a rocking chair as he was called upon to make just two stops, neither of the testing variety.

Erving draws record crowd, 27,383 show up at Louisiana

NEW YORK (UPI) — Julius Erving proved again Tuesday night that he is the biggest draw in the National Basketball Association. And the Philadelphia 76ers, the team that last week added Erving to an already talented roster, finally proved they could win with the player many thought had made them unbeatable.

A crowd of 27,383, the largest ever to see a professional basketball game, came to the Louisiana Superdome to see Erving and the 76ers play New Orleans. Erving scored only 10 points, but teammates George McGinnis had 37 and Doug Collins added 25 as Philadelphia won its first game in three starts, beating the Jazz 111-101.

"I just couldn't believe the enthusiasm of the crowd," said McGinnis, who scored 23 of his points in the second half. "After the second quarter, they (the Jazz) weren't even in the ball game. I'd love to play in a place like this. I don't think you'll ever find a more enthusiastic bunch."

The crowd broke the NBA single-game attendance record of 26,511 set last year in the Superdome.

Erving's biggest contribution to his first victory as a 76er was nine first-half rebounds.

"The only difference I found so far is my timing," Erving said. "The guys here really give me a lot of time to be able to do what I need to do. They are a very supportive group of players."

In other games, the New York Knicks beat Buffalo 119-104. Atlanta defeated San Antonio 122-114. Chicago edged Milwaukee 90-88. Indiana routed Seattle 120-90. Kansas City squeaked past Los Angeles 117-115 in overtime and Portland defeated Golden State 110-96. Knicks 118, Braves 104.

Guard Larry Rester and Walt Frazier combined for 50 points in the Knicks' third victory without a loss, their best start in seven years.

Monroe had 29, including 11 in the first quarter, and Frazier 23. Spencer Haywood's 23 points and 15 rebounds also helped send Buffalo, playing without Bob McAdoo, to its first defeat in three games.

Hawks 122, Spurs 114.

John Drew scored 33 points and Ken Charles added 25 for Atlanta, including 14 in the second quarter when the Hawks erased a nine-point San Antonio lead. Atlanta took the lead at 60-59 on John Brown's layup with 1:22 left in the half and never trailed again. Billy Paulitz led the Spurs with 23 points.

Bulls 90, Bucks 88.

Artis Gilmore's layup with a little more than a minute left sent Milwaukee to its fourth consecutive defeat. The Bulls led at halftime, 54-38, but the Bucks, led by Brian Winters, fought back to win 83-82 with 4:04 left. The team traded baskets until Gilmore sank the final field goal. Norm Van Lier led Chicago with 18 points. Jim Price Walton scored 21 points, grabbed 19 rebounds and blocked six shots in Trail Blazers' 110, Warriors 96.

Cory Calhoun and Herm Gilliam combined for 18 points in the third quarter as the Blazers built a five-point lead into an 85-70 bulge. Bill Walton scored 21 points, grabbed 19 rebounds and blocked six shots in Trail Blazers' 110, Warriors 96.

Despite playing without high-scoring forward Billy Knight, Indiana won its first NBA game since a straight defeat for the Warriors last post-season entry.

Whalers stung

By EARL YOST
Sports Editor

Superb goal tending at both ends of the ice, fast, clean and hard-hitting play all added up to the finest World Hockey Association game of the season last night at the Hartford Civic Center.

Again the crowd diminished from two previous outings, only 7,121 on hand, as the Whalers' modest two-game winning streak came to an end.

Cincinnati's Stingers stung the Whalers, 1-0, on a short-handed goal by lanky Dennis Sobchuk in the third period.

In the first period, Gordie Roberts and Hangeleben each saw their bids for success ricochet away after hitting the standard.

Late in the third period, with the crowd urging the Whalers to go, Tom Webster missed a shot into an open net when he faked Hoganson out of position and the fans groaned.

It was that kind of a night for the Whalers. They played good excellent hockey in the first period, tallied off in the second and part of the third but came roaring back.

Cincinnati was more consistent, with speed and puck handling outstanding throughout.

Coach Harry Neale of the losers couldn't find words to explain the inconsistent play of his club.

The Whalers are home Friday night against Phoenix and Saturday with Birmingham. Each will be a "Family Night" promotion with the head of the household purchasing a ticket at full price and other members of the family getting off at a reduced rate.

It will be hard to have a repeat of last night's game. Only the final score hurt the Whaler faithful.

Undefeated teams await N.E. elevens

BOSTON (UPI) — Massachusetts and Boston University are out of their league as well as out of the region Saturday to play a pair of undefeated Eastern independents.

Boston University, confident from a big victory over Rhode Island, heads for Hamilton, N.Y., and a date with Colgate. Massachusetts, shocked 28-8, by Connecticut last Saturday, visits powerful Rutgers.

Massachusetts, 4-2, must face a Rutgers team that two weeks ago drubbed Connecticut, 38-0. The Minutemen must get some more offense out of its Veer attack while stopping a Rutgers offense that ran up 47 points last week in shutting out Columbia.

All six Yankee Conference teams will play non-league games this Saturday. Connecticut hosts perennial Division II power Delaware (4-2-1); New Hampshire plays at West Chester State; Maine is at Southern Connecticut and Rhode Island visits Holy Cross.

Intraconference action will take place in the Ivy League, with Brown at Harvard looming as the key game. Both teams are 5-1 and tied with Yale at 3-1 in league play.

Despite the score, the Indians played an excellent game with goalie Loisann Diana making several fine saves.

Manchester's jayvees battled to a 6-0 tie with Simsbury. Debbie Dawson Guard led goalie Beth Donnelly to prevent a late Trojan bid to snap the deadlock.

Volleyball
Manchester High's girls' volleyball team dropped a 15-11, 15-9 decision to Simsbury High yesterday in Simsbury. The Indians now stand 4-6 for the season.

Playing well for Manchester were Kathy McCona and Donna Trudeau.

ILLING JV
Illing Junior High's jayvee soccer team squared its record at 4-4 with a 1-0 win over Timothy Edwards yesterday at Illing.

Illing dominated play and Eric Jutiner's goal proved to be the game-winner. Skip Moreau was a standout in the Ram goal.

Posting its eighth win in nine outings yesterday was Manchester High's jayvee soccer team with a 5-0 whitewashing of Penney High of East Hartford at the Indians' field.

Taking advantage of gale-like winds in the third stanza, Manchester booted home three goals to put the contest away. Joe Foran got two of the tallies with Tom Roach adding the third score. Roach later on added his second goal of the afternoon with Gary Swanson converting a fine cross by Ron Stavens for the final tally.

Stavens, Foran, Roach, Steve Fitzsimmons, Mike Roberts and Peter Krupp played well offensively and Mike Colombe, Jeff Greenberg, Aaron Horwitz and Dave Golnik defensively for Manchester.

Field hockey
Manchester High's girls' field hockey team was upended by defending state champ Simsbury High, 4-0, yesterday in Simsbury. The locals are now 4-7-1 with one game left on the slate.

Mohan (C), 9 Owen (M), 10 Pearson (C).

Area Soccer
Yesterday action spread the Illing Junior High high school whitewash brush to East Windsor, 5-0, East Hartford High battle to a 2-2 tie. Simsbury, Debbie Dawson led to a 2-2 tie with two goals left. Rockville fell to 4-2-2 with the setback to Windsor Locks and the Rams must win their final two to gain post-season entry.

East Hartford moved its record to 1-10-1 with the tie with 8-1 Simsbury. Rham saw its record go to 6-4-1 with the loss to 7-2-1 Bacon Academy.

South Windsor got goals from Phil Goodwin, Paul Lenket and Chip Heath but it wasn't enough as the Bobcats slipped to 6-5-1 with two games left. Rockville fell to 4-2-2 with the setback to Windsor Locks and the Rams must win their final two to gain post-season entry.

Coventry High upped its record to 10-1-2 with a 2-0 whitewashing of 4-7-1 Hampton High.

Allen played the same guessing game prior to the Monday night battle with the St. Louis Cardinals refusing to designate either Kilmer or Theismann until just before the kickoff in the fumble-filled contest won by the Redskins, 20-10, in the mud and rain.

Theismann, who had filled in two previous games for the Cardinals, recovered from a sore shoulder, got the nod but it was the type of thing that he brushed early in the third period. He never got back in action as the 37-year-old Kilmer finished the game.

Allen commented: "I wouldn't start to miss a Redskins game and he'll be in there if my guess. I can't see where it should bother him that much."

Asked if veteran Bill Kilmer or his younger understudy, Joe Theismann, will start for Washington, Allen shrugged and said: "I don't know what I'm going to do. I want to see how everybody is. There's no hurry about it."

A win by the Redskins over the 6-1 Cowboys would boost them into a tie for lead in the NFC Eastern Division with six weeks left in the regular season.

Brown recounted that the return punt was improvised in the mud on the sidelines by special team coach Paul Latham. "He noticed the Cardinal punt coverage was coming down wide," special teams captain Rusty Tillman added. "He told us to screen them to the outside. Eddie took it from there."

Here's mud in your eye
St. Louis Cardinals' Conrad Dobler wipes mud out of his eye as teammate Tom Banks fouls out against Redskins Monday night in Washington.

Cowboys, 'Skins in big meeting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington Redskins' coach George Allen is willing to predict that Roger Staubach will start at quarterback for the Dallas Cowboys Sunday, but he's not yet ready to name his own starter.

Of Staubach's broken left finger, which should heal by Monday, Allen said: "I expect Roger the Dodger to start. He wouldn't want to miss a Redskins game and he'll be in there if my guess. I can't see where it should bother him that much."

Asked if veteran Bill Kilmer or his younger understudy, Joe Theismann, will start for Washington, Allen shrugged and said: "I don't know what I'm going to do. I want to see how everybody is. There's no hurry about it."

A win by the Redskins over the 6-1 Cowboys would boost them into a tie for lead in the NFC Eastern Division with six weeks left in the regular season.

Allen played the same guessing game prior to the Monday night battle with the St. Louis Cardinals refusing to designate either Kilmer or Theismann until just before the kickoff in the fumble-filled contest won by the Redskins, 20-10, in the mud and rain.

Theismann, who had filled in two previous games for the Cardinals, recovered from a sore shoulder, got the nod but it was the type of thing that he brushed early in the third period. He never got back in action as the 37-year-old Kilmer finished the game.

Allen commented: "I wouldn't start to miss a Redskins game and he'll be in there if my guess. I can't see where it should bother him that much."

Asked if veteran Bill Kilmer or his younger understudy, Joe Theismann, will start for Washington, Allen shrugged and said: "I don't know what I'm going to do. I want to see how everybody is. There's no hurry about it."

Square record
Manchester Community College's women's volleyball team evened its record yesterday with a 15-7, 14-16 and 15-1 victory over Tunxis Community College.

Diane Leonard, Betsy Mayshar, Marianne Pemberton and Ginny Peterson played well for the 5-5 Cougars.

Rangers' Murdoch breaks loose

NEW YORK (UPI) — Don Murdoch, the New York Rangers' high-scoring rookie, had been having more than his share of problems.

He had been suffering through a scoring drought and the local fans were letting him know they were becoming impatient with his lack of defensive skills. And on top of that his father's heart condition was beginning to act up again.

Murdoch, much ballyhooed as the big goalcrusher the Rangers needed to become a winning team, scored 80 goals in 80 junior hockey games last season.

He began this season as if he were ready to live up to those expectations, scoring two second-period goals in his Philadelphia debut. Against Minnesota a week later, he scored five goals to tie a National Hockey League record for most goals in a game by a rookie.

Since then, however, Murdoch had been having trouble finding the net, particularly at Madison Square Garden.

But Tuesday night, at Cleveland, with New York clinging to a 2-1 lead after the first period, Murdoch scored two second-period goals to lead the Rangers to a 5-2 victory over the Barons and raise his goal production to 11.

Pat Hickey, a second-year man, also scored two goals, and Phil Esposito notched two assists to become the eighth man in NHL history to record 700 assists.

Red Gilbert scored New York's other goal, while Simmer and Jim Pappin tallied for the Barons, who dropped to 3-3-2 but remained tied with Buffalo for second place in the Adams Division.

The victory was the fourth in five road games for the Rangers, a mirror reflection of their dismal 4 home record, bringing them within one point of second-place Atlanta and Philadelphia in the Patrick Division.

In other NHL games, St. Louis beat Vancouver 5-2 and Los Angeles topped Detroit 3-2.

In the World Hockey Association, it was Quebec that scored the most goals in 11 Phoenix 3, Minnesota 3, San Diego 1, Cincinnati 1, New England 0, Houston 3, Los Angeles 2 and Calgary 2.

Blues 5, Canucks 2.

Red Berenson scored twice and assisted on a goal by Ted Irvine to lift St. Louis into first place in the Smythe Division. Garry Unger and Larry Patey also scored for the Blues, while Chris Oddleifson beat St. Louis netminder Ed Stankowski twice for Vancouver.

Kings 3, Red Wings 2.

Butch Goring and Tommy Williams each scored in the final two minutes to earn Los Angeles the come-from-behind victory and move them within five points of Norris Division-leading Montreal.

Williams came on a power play came with just 11 seconds left into an unguarded corner of the Red Wings' net. Goring's 20-foot slapshot tied the game at 2-2 with just 1:41 remaining. Bert Wilson also tallied for the Kings, while Michel Bergeron scored twice for Detroit.

WHA

Bucky Cloutier tied a league record by scoring five goals for Quebec in his first game. Minnesota's Louis Lefebvre kicked out 36 shots ... Dennis Sobchuk's second short-handed goal of the year gave Cincinnati its victory ... Terry Ruszkowski and Rich Preston scored third-period goals for Houston ... and Calgary scored five of its victory ... SW board debates MACOS

By JUDY KUEHNEL

Three of the pros and cons of the Grade 6 social studies program, "Man, A Course of Study," were debated by the South Windsor Board of Education last Tuesday night. The MACOS program has stirred controversy following charges by members of the Citizens for Better Education that the course was "morally sick" and had a detrimental effect on the students. The curriculum, written by the late Dr. Robert Goldman, read a statement in which he explained the purpose of the study of the herring gull, salmon, bobcat, and Eskimo, quite lengthy, helps students to develop an appreciation for a culture other than their own.

Board member Frank Devney expressed concern over the program being an isolated unit in the sixth grade, with a different program used in the fifth and seventh grades. "MACOS is in a vacuum," said Devney. "Does it fit in with other social studies curriculum used in the fifth and seventh grades?"

Mrs. Jean Cashman, board member, said she was concerned that the children "walk out with negative impressions."

"I can see the value in religious study," said Mrs. Cashman. "In fact, MACOS is taught in some towns as religion."

MACOS leaves so many questions unanswered, Mrs. Cashman felt it lent itself well to moral and religious interpretation and was unacceptable for public school study.

Mrs. Pat Sprengelmeier, speaking for the Citizens For A Better Education, asked the board to consider a forum of four members of the board administration and four people of their group to discuss the program. The board will consider her proposal.

Motion passed. At the conclusion of the meeting, the board passed Neal's motion to look at other programs by a 5-3 vote.

He also requested that the board hire a consultant to study the course to look at a special course in order to teach it.

"I generate tremendous amounts of enthusiasm," said Eisenburg.

"I've been a teacher for 20 years. I've been teaching the course to look at a special course in order to teach it."

Commuter bus added

Vernon
Starting Monday the Post Road Stages bus service will add another commuter bus to make two buses going from Vernon to Hartford.

The buses will go express from two spots in Vernon.

For three years one bus has been starting from the Vernon Center Middle School, Rt. 30. The bus to be added Monday will leave from the new commuter parking lot on Rt. 30 (almost opposite the town garage).

One bus will leave the Middle School at 7 a.m. and from the new lot at 7:05 a.m. The second bus will leave the school at 7:10 a.m. and the new lot at 7:15.

Both buses will stop on Central Row in downtown Hartford and the Acta Insurance Co. on Farmington Ave.

The return trips will leave Acta and Central Row at 4:20 p.m. and Central Row at 4:35 p.m.

Bradford Wright, charter manager for the bus service, said even though there are questionable problems with the Department of Transportation.

Mayor George Athanson to address CHS students

Coventry
Mayor George Athanson of Hartford will give the congratulatory address at the National Honor Society Presentation at 9:15 a.m. Thursday at the high school.

Membership to the society is awarded to students high in scholarship, leadership, service and character. The faculty picks them.

A reception for guests, members, parents, teachers and administrators will be held in the library following the presentation.

Committee is seeking gym building funds

Andover
Capital Development and Investment Act of 1976, Robert Little, county chairman, said the program is competitive one and the community would be lucky to get approval.

In June the Board of Education submitted an application for state aid for building construction. This would allow for 50 per cent state funding. It will not be known whether or not the application has been approved until the spring.

John Barry prepares for East Hartford

By SHEILA TULLER

East Hartford Town Clerk John J. Barry Jr.

For everything there is a season. For town and city clerks this is the season, the busiest time of year, the weeks and days before an election.

The bigger the election, the greater the job with many details to remember and dates to meet.

On a recent visit to East Hartford Town Clerk John Barry's office, he explained the routine of preparing a town to vote.

Barry's job begins in May, six months prior to election day when he has to file a form with the secretary of state naming the officers to be filled and the term of office.

East Hartford's report listed president, U.S. senator, representative in Congress, state senator, three state representatives, and two registrars.

This is the first of much correspondence between the town clerk and secretary of state concerning election procedures. Barry referred to his guidebook for much of the information he passed on. The first page of the book is the first information he receives from the secretary of state regarding election procedures. This calendar, received in June, is a summary as prescribed by the secretary of state. Town clerks must follow this calendar to the letter he said.

Voter making sessions.
Admission of voters in held every three months but Barry said the July session is always the biggest. Several special voter making sessions are held before an election and the town clerk, his assistant and the town's selectmen are required to be present at these sessions.

In July, the town clerk also has to verify that all candidates nominated at party conventions are on the voting list. Anyone not nominated at a party convention who wishes to run for office can force a primary by filing petitions with the registrar. To force a primary, a petitioner must have five per cent of party affiliated people sign a petition. Such petitions are filed with the town clerk who then prepares for a primary election.

Primary gap "dry run"
This year Barry had a dry run for November's election as the same procedures are followed for primary elections. Sept. 7, a Republican primary election was held to determine a candidate for registrar of voters.

Two days prior to the primary, Barry was busy with absentee ballots and checking voting machines. A new state law requires town clerks to prepare their own envelopes for absentee votes. Sample ballots also had to be prepared.

Twenty-four hours before the primary, the town clerk had to inspect and seal the voting machines. Only one machine is used in each of the town's 13 polling places for a primary.

Fifty-two machines, four in each district, will be used in the presidential election. Barry started inspecting machines in mid-October.

While preparing for the primary, Barry had to shift gears and notify the secretary of state of any questions to be on the local machines in the November election. This has to be reported by Sept. 2. Four constitutional questions and a local referendum question will appear on the machines.

Barry also has to watch periodic deadlines for filing financial statements as prescribed by law.

Clerk's warning
Once the town clerk has the names of all the party endorsed candidates, he issues a warning. This is a legal notice to notify voters of the election date, times and candidates, districts, and polling places. Warnings are put up on the machines.

Rosedale area denied bus stop

Vernon
By not taking action on a request for an additional bus stop, the Board of Education Monday night, in effect, denied a request of Rosedale area residents.

The residents of Rosedale in the Bolton Lake area of Vernon, had asked to have the school bus travel farther into their area and add another stop onto the route.

Mrs. JoAnn Worthen, chairman of the board's transportation committee, said her committee did not have a recommendation to make concerning the request.

Charles Brisson, the school system's business manager, said there are 17 stops on this route now and the route runs close to 40 minutes. He said the bus contractor said the requested stop couldn't be made in the winter because of the condition of the road.

Board member Edward Meyers made a motion to add the bus stop now and to ask town officials if the road can be improved in the winter. The motion received no second.

Meyers said the area is definitely dangerous for children walking. Board member Dan Woolwich questioned whether it would be more dangerous to have the children walk up to the other stop or to have the bus try to negotiate Lynwood Dr. in the winter.

High voter turnout urged

Hebron
BiCentennial Commission Chairman John Sibon of East St. reminds residents the town has been entered in the "Alameda Vote '76 Competition" as one of its BiCentennial projects.

The competition is a nationwide contest to encourage every citizen to register and vote Nov. 2.

Sibon said every Hebron has done well with registrations and that whether Hebron does well in the voting and rates high nationally in this event is "up to each and everyone of us."

Alameda, California has challenged the rest of the country to be the "votingest town" in the state in all BiCentennial aspects. He said there is no reason why the town, which was first in Connecticut to receive its BiCentennial flag, cannot be number one in this event.

Sibon added as a final thought, "Competition aside, it behooves all of us to invest, on a personal basis, in the future, by celebrating the BiCentennial year with a vote on Nov. 2."

PZC to hear six requests

South Windsor
The Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) will meet Nov. 4 to hear the following applications:

• Stanley Greenberg, 116 Edgewood Dr., requests a variance to allow construction of a porch closer to the driveway than permitted.

• Carl Cole, 224 Ridgewood Rd., West Hartford requests an appeal from the building inspector's decision involving location of the right of way from Feit Rd. to his property.

• Richard Caraballo, 55 Windsorville Rd., requests a variance to allow construction of a porch closer to the front and sideyard to enlarge a garage.

Bolton's football teams all win

Bolton
Three football teams were victorious over the weekend at Herrick Memorial Park.

Saturday the Bulldogs junior pony team defeated the Coventry junior pony team 14-6. Touchdowns were scored by Chris Coadman on a 45-yard run and Mike Ouellette on a 50-yard run. The extra points were scored on a pass from Steve Everett to Shannon Young.

Mark Boone, head junior pony coach, said it was an exceptional ball game. He cited the entire offensive line of Peter McCarrick, Ron Everett, Bob Roy, Ron Maloch, Mark Hopper, Ray Myette and Mike Neath. He said defensively Hopper intercepted two passes and Myette had several outstanding tackles.

The junior ponies will play Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Tigers win
Sunday the Tigers midge football team defeated the Colchester Cougars 22-6.

Vinnie Morrone scored four touchdowns, a 50-yard punt return and three runs of 10, 28 and 58 yards. Other touchdowns were scored by Charlie Anderson and Lee Schiavetti. Jimmy Barcomb had three conversions, Anderson one and B team defensed a safety.

Gil Boissonne, head coach said the A and B team did not allow Colchester a first down. In Blain Jim Groot, Ken Miffit, Travis Cassella, Scott Arsenault, Bucky Taylor, and Jim Vatteroni were good on defense, he said.

The Tigers will meet the Coventry Panthers Sunday at 1 p.m. at the park.

Senior ponies
The Bulldogs senior pony football team defeated the Tolland Eagles 12-0 Sunday. Touchdowns were scored by Robby Sewell and Chris Everett. There were 22 tennis players in a tournament, all but two were Bolton residents.

The men's singles winners were Dr. Clark and William Cavanaugh. The men's doubles winners were Dr. Clark and William Cavanaugh. The women's singles winner was Doris Hanford. She defeated Jennifer Daily 6-0, 6-4. The women's doubles winners were Fred Audette and Marion Nicolay. Audette said the class will have another tournament in the spring.

Italian night
The Knights of Columbus will have an Italian night Thursday at 7 p.m. at St. Maurice Church parish center. It is being arranged by Joseph Licitra.

Charter on radio
The Charter Commission program on WINP FOCUS will be rebroadcast Thursday from 8:36 until 9 p.m. WINP is at 1230 am on the dial.

Area candidates comment

Vernon
If elected, Chester W. Morgan, Democratic candidate for State Representative from the 56th District, pledges to support equal opportunity for quality education.

Morgan said next year the town will receive $127,800 in additional state aid for the financing of education under the new Guaranteed Tax Base (GTB) program passed by the Democratic-controlled State Legislature in 1975. The 1977 GTB grant is nearly $41,000 more than the initial phase of the program, Morgan said.

These grants are funded through the Instant Lottery and are given to qualifying towns as supplements to the $50 per pupil ADM education grant, Morgan explained.

He said this year, under the initial phase of the program, the town of Vernon has received $86,787.50 in supplemental aid to education.

Fourth District
David M. Barry, Democratic candidate for the Senate from the Fourth Senatorial District, appointed Jacob H. Wisnall Jr. and Mrs. Rita Zazel as co-chairmen of his campaign committee in Coventry.

Barry said he is "very pleased that Rita Zazel and Jake Wisnall have accepted this role in my campaign. Their knowledge of the problems facing Coventry residents will be a great asset."

Mrs. Zazel is deputy registrar of voters in the First District, and was formerly vice-chairlady of the Democratic Town Committee. Mrs. Zazel resides on Rt. 31 with her husband, Stanley. They have one married daughter and two sons.

Wisnall is a project quality engineer at Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Corp. He has served on the Recreation Commission. A member of the Democratic Town Committee, he is presently a member of the Board of Education.

He graduated from Mitchell College and served seven years in the submarine service of the U.S. Navy. He resides at South River Rd. with his wife Rita, and their two children.

Second Congressional District
Taxation With Representation, the public interest, pro-taxpayers lobby, has given U.S. Rep. Christopher Dodd the highest tax reform voting rating among Connecticut's Congressional delegation.

Dodd received an "A" rating from the group for voting for tax reform measures on 15 out of 17 key House votes held during the 94th Congress. The group rated Congressmen and Senators on a scale of 0 to 100, depending on the percentage of votes cast for tax reform.

According to the 31-page study, Dodd's rating was 33 percentage points above the 55 per cent average rating for all U.S. Representatives.

Taxation With Representation disagreed with Dodd's votes in favor of tax incentives to encourage energy conservation through individual homeowner installation of solar energy equipment and insulation. Dodd called those votes "consistent with my membership on the House Science and Technology Committee, which handles alternative energy development and energy conservation measures, and with my position that moderate and middle-income taxpayers should be encouraged as much as possible to help promote solutions to our energy problems."

Dodd's votes which earned the "A" rating included votes to repeal the oil depletion allowance, deny a multi-million-dollar tax break to Texas millionaire H. Ross Perot, increase minimum income taxes on wealthy individuals, reform estate and gifts taxes, limit the use of real estate tax shelters for the rich, and limit tax benefits to corporations engaged in export sales and were allowed to escape paying taxes on half of this foreign income.

"We need to close the many loopholes which allow the rich and the corporations to escape taxes and we need to restore fairness to the tax system," Dodd said.

Taxation With Representation was founded in 1970 and works to make the tax code fairer, simpler and more efficient, according to a recent statement issued by the group.

55th District
Dorothy Miller, Republican candidate for state representative from the 55th District, challenged her Democratic opponent, Aloysius Ahsara, to explain his voting record in the last session of the legislature on taxes.

"Our state is in a poor financial position and the people of the state do not realize it because of the many conflicting stories put out by the Democratic leadership. Ahsara, voting with the Democratic party leaders and the big city politicians, took the position that it is all right to use 12 month revenues to pay for 12 months of bills. This method is misleading to all taxpayers and is leading Connecticut down the same road as New York City, but Ahsara favored its passage as did the Democratic big city bosses," said Mrs. Miller.

Ahsara also voted with the big city bosses to force the utilities to pay their taxes earlier than normal. This is a one-shot gimmick to balance next year's budget. All it really does is make-it necessary for the utilities to increase their bills to their customers. Again, we all lose.

"Connecticut has the highest gas tax in the nation, and we depend heavily on cars as a necessity of life. But the Democratic bosses, with Mr. Ahsara following them completely, voted a 10 per cent increase in the gasoline tax. This tax discriminates most against the rural towns like Andover, Bolton, Hebron, Marlborough, Columbia and Vernon because it is in the rural towns that cars are used the most."

"I returned to the General Assembly, I promise to vote for the interests of the small towns I represent, as always did in the past. We must not be overrun by the big cities whose interests are so different from ours," concluded Mrs. Miller.

35th District
State representative Peggy Roch called for a "people's independent credit." The idea behind such a program, she said, is to encourage industry to invest in human beings as well as machinery and buildings.

The men's singles winners were Dr. Clark and William Cavanaugh. The men's doubles winners were Dr. Clark and William Cavanaugh. The women's singles winner was Doris Hanford. She defeated Jennifer Daily 6-0, 6-4. The women's doubles winners were Fred Audette and Marion Nicolay. Audette said the class will have another tournament in the spring.

Carter makes a fighting speech

Unemployment big issue in 1st District campaign

HARTFORD (UPI) — Incumbent Democratic Rep. William J. Cotter and his GOP opponent Lucien DiFazio agree the number one issue on the minds of voters is unemployment. The 1st Congressional District candidates spoke their views Tuesday in interviews conducted in Hartford. The discussions were separate because Cotter, seeking his fourth term, refused to debate with DiFazio, who has been charging Cotter with improper campaign fund raising and failing to save jobs in the district. Cotter said he did not want to face

DiFazio because past confrontations became little more than shouting matches. Cotter is seen by political observers as the probable winner by virtue of a tremendous edge in Democratic registration in the city of Hartford. DiFazio said the district could become "another Appalachia" and accused Cotter of failing to counteract the transfers last month of 600 employees from the Pratt & Whitney Division of United Technologies Corp. in East Hartford and the possible layoffs of hundreds more in the near future. Cotter said he had been in contact with officials of the jet engine firm to see what he could do but he said the problem is that there is no market for commercial jets. He said he has supported an increased tax incentive to encourage airlines to invest in new equipment. The two also discussed what should be done to solve local housing and construction programs and disputes involving the holdup by Hartford of federal funds for suburban communities that refuse to cooperate in assistance to minorities.

UPS strike hurts small businesses

HARTFORD (UPI) — The effects of the seven-week United Parcel Service strike are becoming more severe for some small businesses in Connecticut as the holiday season approaches.

About 1,000 Teamsters at eight Connecticut locations joined in the Sept. 15 walkout by 8,000 UPS workers in 15 Eastern states. Talks to reach a new contract have been sporadic and nonproductive while thousands of shippers, mostly small businessmen, have to pay higher shipping costs through private truckers and bus lines. Many other packages, if within required size limits, are being shipped through the mails and postal officials say the load is still heavy, however, manageable.

Schrager goes on trial for bakery murders

HARTFORD (UPI) — Six witnesses were summoned to the stand Tuesday in the first day of testimony in the Donna Lee bakery murder trial of Gary Schrager of New Britain. The testimony before a Superior Court jury of six men and six women established the scene where the murders of six persons occurred in the New Britain shop Oct. 19, 1974, during an apparent robbery attempt. Henry Theriault Jr. of New Britain, a regular customer of the bakery, testified he, his wife and his daughter entered the shop about 8:45 p.m. and found the salesroom empty. Theriault said he poked his head into a darkened back room and called out. When no one answered they left and he went to a neighbor's home where he called police, he said. A policeman went to the shop a short time later, about 9 p.m., and found the bodies. Policeman John C. Gray testified he was off duty when he went to the shop about 8:10 p.m. and bought cake and cookies. He said while being served, an 11-year-old boy was in the shop eating a cupcake.

His first trial ended last March when the jury was unable to reach a verdict. Sanford, 29, of Waterbury, committed suicide 10 weeks after the Pasternak murders. At Gold's first trial, when Sanford's alleged involvement was argued, two witnesses testified in the absence of the jury that he confessed to the murders. The defense said Sanford was angry at Pasternak in connection with some litigation involving custody of children of a friend of Sanford.

Dead man's name crops up in Gold murder trial

WATERBURY (UPI) — The name of a dead man whom the defense in the past claimed was the real slayer of Irving and Rhoda Pasternak cropped up Tuesday in the retrial of Murray A. Gold. Defense counsel William M. Kunstler brought up the name of Bruce Sanford while questioning a detective in the presence of the jury. Superior Court Judge George A. Saden sent out the jury and ruled the question inadmissible. Kunstler had asked Chief of Detectives John Griffin if Sanford's name came up at the home of the Pasternaks on the night of Sept. 28, 1974, when they were found slashed to death. After Griffin replied, "No, it did not," the state objected and Saden ruled the line of questioning about Sanford was hearsay. Kunstler argued that a transcript showed that Griffin testified in an earlier hearing in the case that Sanford's name was brought up on the night of the murders. Gold, 43, was divorced in 1964 from a daughter of Pasternak, a prominent divorce attorney, and his wife.

Democratic Town Chairman Ted Cummings and Republican Town Chairman Thomas Ferguson announced Tuesday that the two parties have agreed not to distribute campaign literature at the polls on Nov. 2. This is done to prevent litter on Election Day.

Washington window: Whose dirty linen?

By IRA R. ALLEN
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dirty linen is hanging out and sexual hanky panky abounding in a legislative committee room down near the Watergate. And it will be there until just after the election.

It is British playwright Tom Stoppard's latest farce, "Dirty Linen," which had its most appropriate opening in Washington before heading to Broadway in mid-November.

Apparently endowed with as much presence as his gift for wordplay, Stoppard managed to write and produce a play about sexual capers and cover-ups in Parliament last April, just before the Washington sex scandals broke.

Substitute the word "Congress" for the word "Parliament" and the play becomes American. It is a one-hour and 35-minute comedy about the House of Commons Select Committee on Morals in Public Life investigation of a mystery woman who has "gone through the ranks like a lawnmower in pantsies."

The woman, as is obvious from the very opening of the play, is the comely clerk of the committee, Miss Maddie Gotobed, who does 40 words a minute — talking. The male members of the committee, of course, have known Miss Gotobed before, and during, the meeting.

The comedy is lowbrow, the writing imitatively Stoppard highbrow. What moral there is in this comedy deals not with the public trust of sex and politics. It is about the hypocrisy of the press, in this case the tabloid London press. But it warrants a rethinking of the hubbub that enveloped Washington when it was learned some congressmen were committing adultery.

Some of the English lingo has been adapted into American and, given Congress' similarity to Parliament, "Dirty Linen" is as topical as NBC's "Saturday Night." And funnier. The select committee's answer to the public scandal about Parliament's behavior is to blame it on the press. But it is left to the supposedly naive Miss Gotobed to articulate Stoppard's differing viewpoint.

"People don't care what M.P.s do in their spare time, they just want them to do their jobs properly bringing down prices and everything. Why don't they have a select committee to report on what M.P.s are up to in their working hours — that's what people want to know."

When a committee member declares that you can't ignore the newspapers, Miss Gotobed, taking notes sans cuticles, disagrees indignantly: "Nothing would happen if you did. They've got more people writing about football than writing about you and that's in the cricket season."

So much for her analysis of news coverage. But Miss Gotobed is not through, stating a thought accepted as fact by many in the audience at the West End Theatre, not too far from the Watergate complex. Disagreeing with the notion that the press has actual malice toward the elected officials, she cries out, as if instructing a sophomore journalism class: "They're not writing it for the people. They're writing it for the writers writing it on the other papers. Look what I've got that you haven't got. There don't have to be any people reading it at all as long as there's a few journalists around to say, 'Old Bill got a good one there.'"

"That's a warning to the candidates that they have only a few days left in which to apologize for their boobies."

He went on to say that his prophecy was based primarily on a vision in which a specter appeared unto him and told him the campaign would end next Tuesday if not sooner. "What form did the apparition take?" I asked. "Was the messenger an angel from Heaven?" "No, it was a little old lady in tennis shoes."

"He made it sound almost believable, but I'm sure we'll wake up next Wednesday and find the campaign still going full blast. If so, turn over and go back to sleep."

The lighter side: The political Armageddon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Passing through Lafayette Park this week I saw a strange Old Testament-like figure pacing back and forth among the pigeons.

He had long white hair and whiskers and wore a flowing biblical robe and sandals. And he was carrying a sign that read: "REPENT — The Campaign Is Coming To An End!"

Lafayette Park is sort of a gathering place for crackpots, many of whom claim to be prophets of one type or another. Researcher predicts vaccines will someday control VD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Venereal disease may be controlled one day by vaccines, a new government research report said Tuesday.

Gonorrhea may be traced by disease control experts through identification of particular strains of the disease-causing bacteria, similar to the way epidemic-causing strains of flu virus are tracked, it said.

Traditional methods of VD control — treatment with drugs and the tracing of an infected person's sexual contacts for treatment — haven't been completely effective, said the report on Sexually Transmitted Diseases.

Some VD organisms have become increasingly drug resistant. Like other infections, these diseases often are transmitted before symptoms occur and treatment is begun. "Research today seems to hold the key to the control of sexually transmitted diseases that antibiotics once promised," said the report from the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, one of the National Institutes of Health.

"New or improved diagnostic tests, better therapy, and perhaps even vaccines are potential rewards of medical research on diseases that have plagued mankind for hundreds, if not thousands, of years."

A vaccine may one day provide protection against gonorrhea, the most widespread sexual disease in this country, the report said. Epidemiologists believe the 1 million reported gonorrhea infections in 1975 actually represent 2.7 million cases. Worldwide, 100 million cases are reported annually, and the number is rising.

Though commonly believed to include just gonorrhea and syphilis, VD represents a number of sexually transmitted infections, some only recently considered to be venereal. Among other diseases cited in the report are genital herpes, trichomoniasis, and non-gonococcal urethritis.

These five diseases afflict an estimated 8 to 10 million Americans annually. All have in common the fact that they are spread through very intimate, usually sexual, contact.

"Rarely, if ever, does it result from contact with inanimate objects such as toilet seats," the report said.

Should victims of crimes help sentence offenders

By STEVEN SYRE
BOSTON (UPI) — Working on the theory that there's no better judge than the victim of a crime, a Southern Illinois University sociologist thinks the victim should participate in sentencing of the offender.

"Crime victims, hoping for a punishment (of the criminal) commensurate with the harm they have suffered, are unlikely to find their hopes fulfilled in the present day judicial system," Hugh Barlow said.

Barlow made the statement during a recent Second International Symposium on Victimology at Northeastern University. The symposium was a gathering of criminologists and other experts studying the role of a criminal victim in his society.

"Many people don't even bother reporting crimes because they have no faith in the present system. That's a terrible statement. We need a system which would be of and for the people, which would be more open to public scrutiny and which many of us could better respect," he said.

Barlow suggested a revision in the judicial process which would give the victim of a crime a formal role in the criminal's punishment. "This clearly goes well beyond the newly emerging systems of victim compensation. In these, despite their differences, compensation is kept apart from the punitive disposition of offenders."

"Who is in the best position to know what damage has been done other than the victim? I'm tired of hearing about the human interest of the victimizer being undervalued. What about the victim?" he said.

Barlow said under his theory, a sentence must receive the victim's approval. According to Barlow, the victim would be assured the penalty would meet his or her minimal requirements for the harm done.

"Criminal penalties currently bear little meaningful relationship to concrete grievances and are both arbitrary and an abstract measure of justice," he said.

He said when people see themselves cut off from an effective participation in criminal justice and sense they cannot rely on officials to accommodate their interests, they inevitably look for alternative ways of handling their personal troubles with crime.

"One possibility is a sort of passive acceptance of one's victimization. Another is to take the law into one's own hands and neither is particularly healthy," he added.

Barlow believes the victim's role in punishment of white collar criminals might also be a significant improvement, making the force of retribution more uncertain and more than a business risk.

"It is widely argued that the threat of severe sanctions would deter potential white collar offenders," he said. "They involve offenders who do not think of themselves as criminals and are not bound up in subcultures supportive of criminal involvement."

Victim involvement in sentencing may have important implications for deterrence. Experienced offenders often can make sound predictions regarding what certain judges will do if they come before them convicted of certain offenses. The offender will be hard-pressed to predict the sentiments of the particular person or group of persons he offends by his crime, he said.

President gets shirt off Dorsett's back

Ford, ever the old athlete, seeks a ninth inning rally

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gerald Ford, ever the old athlete, speaks in terms of the drama of sports — of staging a ninth-inning rally, a fourth-quarter comeback.

Ford never has lost an election, but he never has been in so tough a campaign, one where the stakes are so high.

But the competitive spirit that made him a star football player at Michigan four decades ago cannot be quenched, and he tells supporters in the waning days of the presidential race that on Election Day he will pull "the political surprise of the century."

Even as he speaks of upsets, Ford is growing in confidence. He has made great strides since he trailed Jimmy Carter by more than 20 points last summer.

The polls show he is pulling ever closer and some of the most astute political analysts are saying the election is too close to call.

"Let me say without any hesitation or reservation that we're going to win Nov. 2 and we won't let you down," Ford told a gathering of 2,500 supporters as he embarked on his final campaign swing.

His aides reject any thought that it's his "last hurrah." They're pleased that he has made Carter "the issue."

Ford began his campaign with the idea of emulating a hero, Harry Truman, and waging war on the Democratic Congress.

But on the advice of politicians like John Connally, Ford switched tactics. He stressed the fact that he is a known quantity, and that Americans should have "fear of the unknown" — Carter.

The Ford campaign has had to overcome the Nixon pardon, which still rankles many Americans. He also has had to contend with the fact his White House still includes many holdovers from the administration of the man whose resignation made him president.

Ford picked up some steam when Carter ran into trouble with the Catholic bishops over abortion, and since then his campaign has focused on the ethics and special interest groups. He had trouble with campaign organization until he tapped James Baker, a Houston lawyer after the GOP convention.

Following the advice of his advisers, Ford played it cool during September.

He presented a "presidential" image, with ceremonial events in the Rose Garden and the East Room — enough to get on the nightly news.

He saved energy and money. Meanwhile, Carter began to stumble, seemingly changing positions on issues and giving two interviews which hurt him.

Carter lost votes when he said he would increase taxes for middle-income groups. He also cast a shadow on his campaign when he gave an interview to Playboy magazine.

But Ford also had his troubles. After a spurt in the polls before the first debate, his own political forces began to sag.

He came under investigation by the special Watergate prosecutor after it was revealed his tax audit showed he spent only $5 to $13 a week during 1972.

Other aspects of his campaign financing during congressional days came under review. But after a few weeks of tension, the prosecutor cleared Ford of any allegations of wrongdoing.

His acceptance of going vacations as the guest of big corporate friends also came under attack, and the White House conceded Ford had accepted several such gratuities before becoming president.

The role he played in blocking the budding investigation of the Watergate scandal by the House Banking Committee in 1972 also became a point of widespread publicity. Again, the special prosecutor and Justice Department cleared his name.

Ford, by all accounts, hurt his stance in the second debate with Carter on foreign policy when said Eastern Europe was not dominated by the Soviets. The statement shocked the nation as he had persisted in his wood, and Ford finally said he made a mistake.

He reverted to his former style on the GOP political circuit in the closing weeks, and became the heavy hitter of old. He said Carter "wavers, wiggles, wanders and flounders" as a way that says there is "nothing personal" when he calls Carter "naive" and "ridiculous."

Ford, whose clumsy image drew from the election a standup comic, began shedding the press from his frequent head-bumping incidents which occur when he gets on and off helicopters. He simply refused to let reporters watch the takeoffs close up.

Someone also got him and told him he was mispronouncing "judgment" as "judgement."

And with 10 days to go before the election, Ford abandoned the friendly confines of the Rose Garden for a final blitz that would keep him on the road through Nov. 2.

All this leads Ford to believe he has wrested the momentum from Carter.

Barring a major mistake, he is confident voters will look at his record of the past two years as the nation's only appointed president — and reward him with his own term in the White House.

Underwriters Laboratories Inc. has reported that there are some sets of Christmas tree lights that have been brought into the United States bearing counterfeit UL labels.

The company said that these lights do not comply with UL safety standards and may present a serious safety hazard.

UL said that the labels of the counterfeit products may be detected by the following signs: 1. The label is red on one side and white on the other. 2. There may be traces of a black border around the label. 3. The labels have one of two sets of code numbers. One counterfeit label code number is "B-1622." The second false label carries the numbers "B-807" and "E-84923."

Foreign news commentary:

Israeli scandal damages establishment's image

By MATTHIAS CHAZANOV
TEL AVIV (UPI) —

Israelis watched with morbid fascination as Asher Yadin was caught up in the worst scandal to hit the Jewish state in recent years.

Little more than a month ago, he had all the credentials for success and stood at the threshold of real power as governor-designate of the Bank of Israel.

But today he is in jail, charged with misappropriating thousands of dollars in a series of shady deals involving the Histadrut union movement's sick fund, which he headed.

The arrests and hints of more to come amount to "opening Pandora's box," a pollster here said.

While unlikely to topple the government, it damaged the image of the ostensibly Socialist Israeli establishment.

It could hurt the coalition when Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin puts 29 years of Labor rule on the line in parliamentary elections next year.

But Ford also had his troubles. After a spurt in the polls before the first debate, his own political forces began to sag.

He came under investigation by the special Watergate prosecutor after it was revealed his tax audit showed he spent only $5 to $13 a week during 1972.

The company said that these lights do not comply with UL safety standards and may present a serious safety hazard.

UL said that the labels of the counterfeit products may be detected by the following signs: 1. The label is red on one side and white on the other. 2. There may be traces of a black border around the label. 3. The labels have one of two sets of code numbers. One counterfeit label code number is "B-1622." The second false label carries the numbers "B-807" and "E-84923."

nian border to a series of managerial jobs in the Histadrut labor federation, a colossus that controls nearly half the Israeli economy.

His last job was head of Kupa Holim, the $75 million Histadrut sick fund, which covers 2.5 million of Israel's three million population.

Investigators say large sums vanished during a number of Kupa Holim real estate deals, and they suspect the money went into the pockets of officials of the Histadrut union movement's sick fund, which he headed.

The arrests and hints of more to come amount to "opening Pandora's box," a pollster here said.

While unlikely to topple the government, it damaged the image of the ostensibly Socialist Israeli establishment.

It could hurt the coalition when Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin puts 29 years of Labor rule on the line in parliamentary elections next year.

But Ford also had his troubles. After a spurt in the polls before the first debate, his own political forces began to sag.

He came under investigation by the special Watergate prosecutor after it was revealed his tax audit showed he spent only $5 to $13 a week during 1972.

Other aspects of his campaign financing during congressional days came under review. But after a few weeks of tension, the prosecutor cleared Ford of any allegations of wrongdoing.

His acceptance of going vacations as the guest of big corporate friends also came under attack, and the White House conceded Ford had accepted several such gratuities before becoming president.

The role he played in blocking the budding investigation of the Watergate scandal by the House Banking Committee in 1972 also became a point of widespread publicity. Again, the special prosecutor and Justice Department cleared his name.

Ford, by all accounts, hurt his stance in the second debate with Carter on foreign policy when said Eastern Europe was not dominated by the Soviets. The statement shocked the nation as he had persisted in his wood, and Ford finally said he made a mistake.

He reverted to his former style on the GOP political circuit in the closing weeks, and became the heavy hitter of old. He said Carter "wavers, wiggles, wanders and flounders" as a way that says there is "nothing personal" when he calls Carter "naive" and "ridiculous."

Ford, whose clumsy image drew from the election a standup comic, began shedding the press from his frequent head-bumping incidents which occur when he gets on and off helicopters. He simply refused to let reporters watch the takeoffs close up.

Someone also got him and told him he was mispronouncing "judgment" as "judgement."

And with 10 days to go before the election, Ford abandoned the friendly confines of the Rose Garden for a final blitz that would keep him on the road through Nov. 2.

All this leads Ford to believe he has wrested the momentum from Carter.

Barring a major mistake, he is confident voters will look at his record of the past two years as the nation's only appointed president — and reward him with his own term in the White House.

Underwriters Laboratories Inc. has reported that there are some sets of Christmas tree lights that have been brought into the United States bearing counterfeit UL labels.

The company said that these lights do not comply with UL safety standards and may present a serious safety hazard.

UL said that the labels of the counterfeit products may be detected by the following signs: 1. The label is red on one side and white on the other. 2. There may be traces of a black border around the label. 3. The labels have one of two sets of code numbers. One counterfeit label code number is "B-1622." The second false label carries the numbers "B-807" and "E-84923."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a young married woman. My father died last year, and my mother who was devoted to him is still grieving.

They would have been married 33 years last Sunday had my father lived. On the date of their anniversary, I invited my mother to my home for dinner. I purposely didn't make a party of it, and carefully avoided wishing her a happy anniversary. (I know it was anything but happy, and figured the last thing she needed was another reminder of what day it was.)

Well, a few days later, my mother told me that she was very "hurt" that I didn't even wish her a happy anniversary. Abby, no amount of wishing could have made that day happy.

Under the circumstances, do you think I was wrong?

MEANT WELL

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I belong to a senior citizens' group. I'm a widow, over 65, and that is as far as I care to go when people get on the subject of age.

Abby, nearly everyone in our group tells that age, which makes me feel self-conscious because I have never told anyone my age and I don't intend to. I would never lie to my doctor, or falsify my age on a legal document, but I can't see what's to be gained by telling it to others.

In there any harm in keeping my age a secret? When casual acquaintances ask me how old I am, I always say, "That's a subject I don't care to discuss." I know this sounds abrupt and unkindly, but that's the way I feel.

Please tell me how to handle this question about age without seeming unkind or unfriendly.

AGELESS

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The letter about the employee who will be a married man in preference to a single man if both are equally qualified for the same position interested me. I find this deplorable. Single people are taxed more, which is unfair considering most single people are not adding to the population problem.

I am 29, male and single. I enjoy traveling, going to the theater with other singles who pay their own way and going out to dinner with no cranky kids around.

My brother is 35 and on his second marriage. He has five kids, is up to his neck in bills and spends his vacations staying home and babysitting.

I have missed only three days of work in the last 10 years. I am always on time and work a full day for a day's pay.

So, Abby, please pass this to that employer. My boss must appreciate the fact that I'm responsible, though single, or I wouldn't have kept my job this long.

SINGLE AND LOVING IT

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Usually you're generous. Tom usually the little today. Get to the heart of the matter. Success is assured if you operate in a capricious way. (Oct. 22-23)

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone who owes you a long-standing debt isn't going to pay voluntarily. Go after it firmly. (Oct. 23-24)

CANCER (June 21-July 21) It's possible you'll encounter some opposition today. The problems won't be insurmountable if you're tactful.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22) You're more willing to aid people with your hands today than with your purse. Service can accomplish what your checkbook can't.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Although it may be tempting, don't try to use your social contacts for business gains unless they'll make the venture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Domestic matters should be given top priority today. Think of the family first, and then yourself.

A former child abuser says 'It's good to see my children happy again'

People

By Betty Ryder
Family/Travel Editor
(Editor's note: Due to the nature of this interview, the names and photograph of the principals involved have been omitted.)

Susan C. is not yet 30. She is the mother of two young sons, ages 8 and 7, who attend local schools. An attractive, friendly woman who enjoys conversing, Susan is like many other young mothers, except in one respect, Susan is a child abuser. Divorced from the father of her two children, Susan is on welfare, rents an apartment and is struggling to maintain a suitable home for her sons. "I guess I can cite loneliness, frustration, perhaps even having to raise the boys by myself, as reasons for my abusing them. The hatred I feel for my former husband because he left me alone with them can get to be too much sometimes," she said. Susan, who openly admits she has lashed out at her boys unnecessarily many times, has been struggling to right the wrong she has inflicted upon them. "I have been going to a mental health clinic for quite some time, getting back into my church, and trying to get involved in community activities," Susan said. "I find I don't yell so much at the kids when I'm busy with school activities," she said. While her sons have never had to receive emergency treatment, Susan says she knows her children were constantly frightened of her; afraid that one misdeed would bring her wrath down upon them. "I love my children and I want to get their respect and love back. I want them to love me again," Susan said tearfully. Susan thinks she has found the solution through a group called "Parents Anonymous." "Parents Anonymous" is a self-help group for parents with a control problem, giving them an opportunity to share their feelings with others who are experiencing the same problem. The group leader is a parent who has experienced an abuse problem. "The group meets on Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m. at Concordia Lutheran Church," Susan said. "We have had as many as 18 parents in attendance. "Mainly, we sit and rap; sometimes it's hard to get others to participate; they are naturally shy. But it doesn't matter as long as we can communicate a little." Susan serves as a chairperson of Parents Anonymous of Manchester. She is the leader coordinator of local group. Marie Wolcott, her sponsor, has a master's degree in psychology and is practicing with her husband in a private counseling program. She also works with the Family Therapy program at Bristol Hospital. Marie attends all meetings. She supports the chairperson, is an advisor to the group, and is a source of information regarding community resources. The Manchester Chapter has been meeting weekly since Nov. 11, 1975. The Auxiliary of the Manchester Memorial Hospital is acting as a facilitator in maintaining the group and is supplying supportive services to the group, such as free babysitting at the meeting place, transportation to meetings, and facilitating a meeting place. It also assists with publicity, pamphlets, letters, newspaper and radio interviews, and a roundtable seminar for service agencies in Manchester. Susan's two boys are perhaps among the more fortunate youngsters who have been victims of child abuse. Their mother is aware of her shortcomings and is doing something about it. "I've joined the PTA, something I never did before. I'm trying to lose weight, to be more content within myself.

"If this organization (Parents Anonymous) can reach out to just one mother and let her gain what I have gained, to see herself as she really is, and to find a solution to her problems for the sake of her children and herself, it would be wonderful," she said. Susan's sons seem to sense that she is trying to restrain her more explosive emotions, too.

"Now, when things get on my nerves, I just say, 'Boys, mommy needs some time alone,' and they go right into their bedroom for a little while. I know they are happier when I'm involved in activities because as they told me, 'Mom, you don't yell so much.'" "The other night the three of us just play wrestled on my bed and it broke, and we just laid there and laughed till the tears came into our eyes. It was great. It was warm. "It's so good to see them go to bed happy again," she said. Persons interested in joining or obtaining more information about Parents Anonymous may contact Helen Nix, R.N. at 646-1206, Elaine Romeo, R.N., 872-0474, or Polly Davis, 643-5021.

Your neighbor's kitchen

By Betty Ryder

Like the professional who pulls rabbits out of a hat, you can work magic if you prepare ahead for those weekend parties celebrating occasions from football and hockey victories to visits from old friends. Your "magic act" features an easily made-in-advance elegant ice cream roll with a taste surprise — crunchy bits of chocolate-covered English toffee candy mixed into the softened ice cream filling. More bits of candy sprinkled over a dollop of whipped cream makes a glamorous topping for each cake roll slice. At party time, pull it out of the freezer and presto, serve and take your bows. Toffee Magic Ice Cream Roll
3/4 cup sifted flour
2 tbs. instant coffee
1 tsp. baking powder
1/4 tsp. salt
4 eggs, separated
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 cup granulated sugar
confectioner's sugar
1 quart vanilla ice cream, softened
1 cup chopped English toffee bars (6 ounces candy in bar form equals 1 cup chopped)
1/2 pint (1 cup) whipping cream, whipped
Sift together flour, coffee, baking powder and salt. Beat egg yolks and vanilla until lemon colored. Add 1/2 cup sugar gradually and beat until very thick. Beat egg whites until they hold soft peaks. Gradually add remaining 1/2 cup sugar and continue beating until stiff and glossy. Fold yolk mixture into egg whites, then fold in dry ingredients.

Spread batter evenly over greased and waxed-paper-lined jelly roll pan (15x10x1-inch). Bake in 375 degree oven about 12 minutes. Turn cake out onto clean linen dish towel sprinkled with confectioner's sugar. Working quickly, gently peel off waxed paper and trim off the lengthwise crusts. Roll cake jelly-roll fashion in towel. Unroll cake; spread with ice cream and sprinkle with 2/3 cup chopped toffee bars. Remove towel, roll filled cake up lightly, wrap in foil and store in freezer until serving time. To serve, slice and top with a dollop of whipped cream and sprinkling of remaining chopped toffee bars for each slice. Yield: 8 to 10 servings. Jessie Hazen, home economist for the Tolland County Extension Service has a great recipe for vegetable lentil chowder. "One of the plus features of this chowder for many occasions is its ease of preparation. It can be created in 15 minutes by the home chef, and then taken to the range to simmer for an hour," she writes in extension services' bulletin. "This Idaho vegetable Lentil Chowder tastes even better the day after preparation and freezes well for future use," she said.

Idaho-Vegetable-Lentil Chowder
1-1/2 cups lentils, washed
1 quart water
2-1/2 tsp. salt
1/3 cup chopped green pepper
1/3 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup chopped pimientos or sweet red pepper or carrots

Toffee Magic Ice Cream Roll

1 (1 lb. 14 oz.) can tomatoes
1/4 tsp. pepper
Combine lentils, water, and salt in large saucepan.
Cook, covered, over medium heat for 30 minutes.
Cook onion and green pepper in butter until tender. Combine all ingredients; simmer, covered, 10 minutes.
Makes 6 large servings.

Incidentally, if you have never used lentils, they will be found in the supermarket on the shelf with their cousins, the dried beans and peas. They will cook to tenderness in about 30 minutes. ADDENDUM: Had a couple of calls recently about recipes and unfortunately was unable to reach the callers by telephone. So, if the woman who called inquiring about the recipe I had for Zucchini Nut Bread will call again, I have located it. Also, if the reader who asked for a copy of our "Outdoor Cooking Recipes" will call I have a copy for her. Incidentally, if any readers would like to contribute recipes to be featured in this column, please call. I'd love to have them.

Primack-Neleber

Robin Mary Neleber of Manchester and Dr. Richard Primack of Newton, Mass. were married Oct. 24 at Temple Beth Shalom in Manchester.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Seymour Neleber of 29 Adelaide Rd. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Primack of Newton, Mass.

Rabbi Leon Wind and Cantor Israel Tabatsky of Manchester officiated at the double-ring ceremony. The couple was married under a canopy decorated with flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore an ivory chiffon gown designed with tiered skirt, caplet sleeves, and gathered cummerbund waistline. She wore an ivory lace hat with rosebud and pearl trim and carried her mother's bridal Bible covered with stephanotis, pink rosebuds and streamers of white ribbon.

Miss Hillery Groobert of Manchester, the bride's cousin, was maid of honor.

Robert Hahn of Utica, N.Y. was best man.

A reception was held at Temple Beth Shalom. The couple departed on Oct. 25 for California, Hawaii, Fiji and will arrive in New Zealand in Nov. 4.

The couple will reside in Christchurch, New Zealand.

Mrs. Primack was employed as an intensive care nurse at Yale New Haven Hospital. Dr. Primack received his Ph.D. in botany from Duke University this year and will do research at the University of Canterbury, Christchurch, for two years.

Mrs. Richard Primack

Lecture opens Nov. 8

Mrs. Joanne Roark of Ambassador Dr. is serving as area volunteer chairman in Manchester for the Hartford Business Morning Lecture Club, a non-profit community service organization formed for the education and entertainment of its members.

The series of four presentations will begin Nov. 8 at 11 a.m. at the Bushnell Memorial Hall. Coffee is offered and free baby-sitting is available.

First in the series will be Adela Rogers St. John, well-known newspaper woman. Other speakers scheduled are Clive Barnes, New York Times Bureau Chief for Times magazine, March 28; and Kitty Carlisle, TV personality, April 23.

No individual tickets are sold; participants must purchase tickets for the entire series.

College notes

Two Manchester students William Gora of 24 Eldie Dr. and Philip E. Summer of 73 Princeton St., are teaching a course entitled 'freshman explorations' this fall at Tufts College.

The course is offered through Tufts' Experimental College, a sub-unit of the university, which offers new ideas in curriculum teaching methods and course administration.

About town

First Church of Christ, Scientist, will have its regular Wednesday testimony meeting tonight at 8 at the church, 447 N. Main St. The meeting is open to all.

The nominating committee of South United Methodist Church will meet tonight at 7:30 at the church.

Reservations for the dinner are on a first come, first-served basis and will be accepted through Saturday by contacting Mrs. Sandy Novitch and Mrs. Ivy Sheptoff, chairmen.

Proceeds will go to the Hadassah Israel Education Services, which provides Israeli children with schooling on many levels. These services include the Seigsberg.

Two Manchester physicians have been named Fellows of the American Academy of Family Physicians.

They are Dr. Joseph J. Giardino and Dr. Nicholas A. Marziano.

The degree of Fellowship may be attained in either of two ways:

successful completion of 600 or more hours of accredited continuing medical study, or achievement of diploma status in the specialty of family practice as a result of passing a certifying examination administered by the American Board of Family Practice.

Growing older By Harold Blumenfeld Elderly yearn for a family doc

I recently had a "rap" session with 60 of my peers. These 60 men and women have been gathering for weekly lectures for Senior Citizens at a local community center. They were all above the poverty level but nobody there was rich enough not to be affected by today's economic situation. They were a healthy and mentally alert group, articulate, interested in community and national affairs. It very well could have been a typical town hall meeting of average citizens in the aging population.

They already had heard lectures on specific subjects such as financial investments, nutrition, how to use their buying power, proper exercising, interior decorating, arts and crafts. I was there merely as one of them, another Senior Citizen with their same problems and frustrations about which I had written in my columns in my local newspaper.

I had expected that in the hour-and-a-half meeting we would touch on many subjects of mutual interest to me, to them and to others who are growing older in other parts of the country. I had anticipated the talk would steer itself to our political clout for the upcoming presidential election, Medicare and the small reimbursement we get for our doctor bills, Social Security, the high cost of living. And I had hoped I could talk about the things I was doing which kept me busy and active and healthy and alive.

Most people in this group had recently moved to Florida from cities up North and I expected they would talk proudly about the grandchildren they left behind. Or they would perhaps talk about their sons and daughters who were neglecting them.

But mostly they talked about doctors. And with little praise and much damnation.

Surely, most of us think medical bills are too high and we get too little back from Medicare and our supplemental health insurance policies. But the lengthy gripes were mainly about the lack of that old-time human relationship between doctor and patient which had become accustomed to as we were growing older. We had considered the family doctor a counselor, psychiatrist and a sounding board as we unburdened ourselves while he scribbled his notations on a prescription pad.

When I said we had been lucky to find a young local doctor who came ever so close to being like our old family physician, many in the audience wanted his name and address.

A generalization of the gripes: "Gone are the doctors as we knew them. Today they are medical scientists and maybe they do make us feel better and prolong our lives. But a nurse takes our blood pressure, pricks a finger to draw blood and gives us other necessary tests. And we have little or no time to sit and talk with the doctor about our real or imaginary ailments."

"We seem to be laboratory test cases rather than human beings and we resent this. And we wonder why the doctor, who today commands a stiff fee for his services, sends us off to a specialist rather than he, himself, following through with the necessary treatments."

"As one man put it so well, "Once upon a time we went to the friendly neighborhood garage man to keep our car running. He did everything. Now he sends us to a specialist to fix the auto's transmission or to another expert to repair the air-conditioning unit. It's the same with doctors. They diagnose, undoubtedly correctly. But then we are sent to a specialist if we have a stuffed-up nose or to another medical expert for our fallen arches and varicose veins."

A dynamic woman closed the meeting, saying, "Maybe the doctors should frequently re-read the Hippocratic Oath. Read it each morning when they shave, and tape it to the dashboard of their yachts."

Of Consumer Concern

Book, record clubs

We have all seen tempting offers to join merchandise clubs such as: "Get these three best selling books (or records or tapes) for only a dollar."

How often, however, have you carefully read the small print in these advertisements? Do you make certain that you know what you would be agreeing to if you returned the coupon with the ad?

One thing many clubs have in common is the "negative option" plan—a plan where unless you inform them that the selected merchandise is not to be sent, you will receive it and be billed for it. Under such a plan, to stop shipment or to terminate membership, you usually must notify the company by a specific date.

A federal regulation governs "negative option" plans. Here are your protection factors under this regulation.

Those using a "negative option" plan must disclose in their advertising the following:

- That a negative option plan is used.
- Any obligation to purchase a minimum amount of merchandise.
- That you can cancel your membership any time after you have completed your agreement to buy a minimum amount of merchandise.
- Whether charges include postage and handling fees.
- That you will be given 10 days to notify the seller that the selected merchandise is not wanted.
- The frequency with which announcements of merchandise will be sent.

Further, before sending any merchandise, the company must send an announcement identifying what will be sent and a form you can use to notify them if you don't want the merchandise, and they must describe the procedure for notifying them and the date by which the notice must be given.

Companies are required to ship within four weeks any introductory or bonus merchandise, and to terminate the contract if you request it after completing your obligation. They are prohibited from sending substitute merchandise without first getting your approval.

Social Security

Q. I heard my ex-husband, whom I divorced in 1967 after 22 years of marriage, recently died. I'm 58, have not remarried, and wonder if I can collect Social Security on his record?

A. A woman married at least 20 years prior to divorce who has not remarried can get Social Security widow's benefits as early as 60. If her ex-husband starts getting retirement or disability benefits she can get a wife's benefit at 62 on her ex-husband's record.

Q. My sister, who is 54 and disabled, hasn't worked long enough under Social Security to get benefits. As she is greatly in need of help, could she get Supplemental Security Income (SSI)?

A. If your sister has no more than $1,500 in resources and little or no income, she may be able to get SSI. No work credits are needed but her disability must be severe and expected to last at least 12 months.

Q. My husband is working full time and I just started working. The other day we decided that I should drop my private insurance because the family is covered under his group plan on the job. Then I got to thinking - what's the advantage of both of us having Social Security coverage?

A. The protection you earn as a worker in your right could mean Social Security survivors or disability benefits to your children if you die or become disabled, even if your husband continues to work. Also, you might get a retirement check based on your own work record that would be greater than what you would receive as a wife.

Q. What's the limit on the number of home health visits Medicare will pay for?

A. It depends on how you use them. Medicare medical insurance will pay for up to 100 visits a year. Medicare hospital will pay for 100 during a benefit period, and there is no limit on the number of benefit periods. A new benefit period begins when you enter a hospital after having been out of a hospital or skilled nursing facility for at least 60 days in a row.

Q. My Social Security check goes directly to my checking account. I plan to move soon and need to know if I should tell Social Security about the move. I gave the bank my new home address.

A. Yes. You should notify Social Security promptly so that any messages about your Social Security protection can be mailed to your home address.

Does Poe's ghost still haunt Sarah Whitman?

By LAURIE HORN
PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — In daylight the graveyard seems sterile, blanched in the sinking western sun, old tombstones white with old bones.

But at night, generations of Rhode Islanders have been drawn by its power, coming by twisted alleys and dark paths to the place where the old colonists lie buried and the ghost of Edgar Allan Poe still courts the ghost of psychic Sarah Helen Whitman.

Poe wrote the first spied her standing in her courtyard in the moonlight, looking out over the settler's graves behind the now refurbished spire of St. John's Church. She once probably conducted séances from the house, now renovated and painted rust-red.

"I have a friend who lived in that house and claimed to have seen him smoking opium on her couch," said Faye Ringel, a fifth-year doctoral student at Brown University. "It was a regular party and all of a sudden they noticed that there was another guest."

Gone are many of the decayed 18th century homes that lured Poe and, after him, horror writer H.P. Lovecraft. Others have been "restored" — painted in prosperous hues like the tawny yellow of the "Shunned House" at 135 Benefit St.

Until only a few years ago it remained as it had for centuries — a ghostly Lovecraft-created vampire lurking in the shadows of the imagination.

Barton L. St. Armand, a Lovecraft and Poe specialist at Brown, can point out Whitman's portrait in the overgrown classic-columned Providence Athenaeum, a private library where the lovers once trysted.

"He carried on a literary courtship," St. Armand said. "Sponsored by her and Sarah Helen Whitman were once shushed for giggling in the Athenaeum."

On its walls hang an ink drawing of a swooping pitch-black raven, penned by the French impressionist Edouard Manet and dedicated "To Helen" by French poet Stephane Mallarmé.

These are literary ghosts. But modern spirit-seers also claim they have seen or felt presences on Providence's East Side, especially from a shady park where a Lovecraft character beheld "a sea of hazy roofs and domes and steeples and far hills

... all violet and mystic against a fevered apocalyptic sunset of reds and golds and purples and carious greens."

"I got involved in the occult without being aware of the surroundings that I was in which were also probably involved in the occult too — moisture would exude all over the place," he said. "There was an apparition that was one time I saw."

Brown belongs to a "freemooding" group of witches whose high priestesses is Pat Morgan, a warm, immense black-haired psychic who lives with her husband Edward and children in rural Foster.

"The group views witchcraft as a way of perceiving and communicating with the world — not only on the "physical plane" but also on non-physical energy levels."

MVD INFO

Q. I recently bought a small sailboat from a private party, but I haven't registered it yet. What papers or other information do I need to bring with me when I go to get it registered?

A. When you go to any office of the MVD to get your boat registered, you must have a copy of the Bill of Sale and if the boat has previously been registered in Connecticut, the previous registration number of CT number.

Public Act 76-199, which became effective July 1, 1976, requires that before the boat can be registered, you will have to pay the state sales tax to the MVD, or prove that the sales tax has been paid. Had you purchased the boat from a dealer, you would have paid the sales tax to him.

Q. What is the boat registration fee and for how long is the registration valid?

A. Registration fees are based on the length of the boat as measured from the outside front edge of the bow straight to the outside edge of the center of the stern. The fees are: Under 16 feet, $5; 16 feet but less than 40 feet, $10; 40 feet and over, $25.

Q. Boat registrations expire the last day of April, each year. (Questions may be sent to MVD INFO, Department of Motor Vehicles, 60 State St., Wetherfield, Conn. 06109. Motor Vehicle Department offices are open Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, 8:30 to 4:30; Thursday, 8:30 to 7:30; and Saturday, 8:30 to 12:30.)

News for senior citizens

Hey there, I hope you didn't forget that tomorrow evening is our big gala Halloween Dance here at the center. We're looking forward to a real fun night with a costume parade with prizes, and plenty of snacks to munch on, and juice to quench your thirst. Lou Joubert and his live and lively band will be supplying the music. Now you can still come and enjoy a night out even if you don't want to dance.

We'll end the evening with our usual nice door prizes. Our bus will be running to pick up all on our route who are coming to the dance. Our bus driver will leave the center at 6 o'clock to pick you up. Tickets are available at the door, and the action starts at 7:30, ending around party for their generous donations, and to our

Band shell

You have been reading from time to time from the Bicentennial Committee regarding the band shell. These are now in the process of raising funds to construct the shell. One way is that they have tickets on sale which will have drawings where people can win about six different fabulous trips, and also about 300 other prizes. We have some of these tickets here at the center.

Now the committee has come up with another plan. On Nov. 20 and 21, they will hold an enormous tag sale in the Forbes and Wallace building at the Manchester Parkade. To make this a success, they need loads of saleable items.

So if any of you seniors would like to help by donating items for the sale, just start putting them aside and put a reasonable price tag on each item. I'll be getting back to you as to when to deliver them.

The committee needs volunteers to help at the sale, and if you would like to help on either or both days, or even a few hours, give us a call here at the office. This band shell will certainly bring hours of pleasant entertainment for all people, and is well worth everyone's effort to see it built.

Tomorrow is another big day here at the center. In the morning we have our social dance class, and at noon we will be treated to a pork chop dinner with all the trimmings. Then in the afternoon we will have a talk by Judge of Probate William Fitzgerald.

We want to remind all you folks that we are starting a drive for canned goods that can be given to the needy for Thanksgiving. Just drop the goodies off here at the center and we'll do the rest.

LCV rates senators

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrat Walter Mondale got better than average marks and Republican Robert Dole got low ones from the League of Conservation Voters in a rating of senators' environmental voting records.

The league, a non-partisan campaign committee which raises money for outstanding environmental candidates, has been rating the records of congressmen, senators and presidential candidates since it was founded in 1970.

The average rating for the Senate, based on members' votes on 31 issues, was 44 this year out of a possible 100 — with Democrats scoring 53 on the average and Republicans 28.

GOP vice presidential candidate Dole received an 11 mark, compared to 76 for his Democratic counterpart.

The issues included such things as their votes on strip mining, energy conservation, offshore oil drilling restraints, nuclear energy, airport noise, sewage treatment, the New River dam in North Carolina and Virginia, air pollution and wetlands protection.

Scores of New Englanders included: Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., 87; Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., 84; John Durkin, D-N.H., 83; William Hathaway, D-Maine, 85; Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., 79; Thomas McIntyre, D-N.H., 81; Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, 87; John Pastore, D-R.I., 65; Clairborne Pell, D-R.I., 74; Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., 81; Robert Stafford, R-Vt., 59; Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., 65.

Supreme officers to visit

Supreme officers of the United States of America will be honored by local organizations this week and next.

Mrs. B.M. Cameron, supreme president, and Mrs. Venita Berger, supreme marshal, will be honored at a dinner-dance Saturday sponsored by the Rockville Lodge of Elks at the Elks Home in Rockville.

Mrs. Cameron and her marshal will install the newly elected officers of Danbury Elks Club in Danbury also on Saturday.

The Manchester Elks Club will host a dinner in the visitors' honor room at Willie's Steak House.

Mrs. Cameron and Mrs. Berger are both from Van Nuys, Calif.

The smart people still save at Hartford National

All the rich aren't born rich, you know. Back around 1792, Jeremiah Wadsworth began building his fortune with a lot of work and a couple of smart ideas.

One of them was Hartford National. Jeremiah Wadsworth's bank.

Jeremiah Wadsworth kept his money in a Hartford National account, even before savings earned interest. We still gave him more for his money. He could finance through us. He could give and get credit through us. He could even get the 1792 version of a checking account. We made sure his future kept growing. The next generation of Wadsworths found more than enough to build the Athenaeum and futures of their own.

For a man who knew value, Hartford National added up. Even in 1792.

Smart man, Wadsworth. Things haven't changed all that much in 184 years. Savings earn interest now, and smart people still get more for their money by saving at Hartford National. In fact, nearly 200,000 smart people save at more than 60 Hartford National offices today.

It makes sense. We've had a long, long time to polish all the ways we can help you save. We modify different savings plans for different individual needs.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"NO PETS ALLOWED" says a printed line in your lease. But "dog okay" has been typed into a blank space on the form. In case of a dispute with the landlord about Fido, which of these two conflicting clauses would the law recognize?

The second, typewritten clause, allowing you to keep Fido in your apartment. Generally speaking, words that are inserted in a lease by typewriter, rubber stamp, or handwriting carry more weight than the printed language. "Inserted" words, explained one court, "are the immediate language selected by the parties themselves, while the printed form is intended for general use."

This is one of the rules the law invokes to achieve fairness in the interpretation of legal documents.

Here is another: In case of ambiguity, the lease is interpreted against the party who drew it up—usually the landlord. For example:

A woman's one-year lease on an apartment mentioned an option-to-renew, but did not say for how long. The landlord pointed out this omission in trying to evict her at the end of the first year.

But the court ruled that the woman was entitled to another one-year term. The court said the tenant should get the benefit of the doubt since the landlord, having provided the lease, was more to blame for the lack of clarity.

Of course this does not mean that the printed portions of a lease can be blithely ignored. If the language is clear, and not in conflict with inserted words, it will ordinarily be enforced. The fact that you just didn't bother to read it is not an excuse in the eyes of the law.

As one court warned: "Signatures to obligations are not mere ornaments."

VA news

Q — I was recently honorably discharged from service after serving two years on active duty. I have not completed high school. Can I complete high school and continue in a vocational program?

A — Eligible veterans can complete their high school training with no charge against enlistment. They may then use their entitlement for further training as desired.

Q — I used my GI loan to purchase my present home. I have a veteran who wants to purchase my home and assume my GI loan. If I do this, can my entitlement be restored?

A — Yes, if the purchaser is a veteran who has entitlement to a GI loan and agrees to substitute the same amount of his or her entitlement as was used on your loan and the purchaser is approved by the VA as to income and credit.

Q — I am medically retired from military service. I intend to buy $10,000 of disabled veterans (RBI) insurance coverage. Does this affect my right to buy Veteran Group Life Insurance coverage in the amount of $50,000?

A — No. Coverage under USGLI policies and NSLI policies (including RBI policies) is generally limited to $10,000, but this does not limit concurrent coverage under SGLI, VGLI or VMLI, provided you are otherwise eligible for these programs.

Poor test results analyzed

BOSTON (UPI) — Reasons for poor performance in Scholastic Aptitude Tests include the belief SAT is no longer used by colleges in selecting entrants and increased use by students of alcohol and drugs, according to the Massachusetts Department of Education.

The department has released a study by Dr. Janice J. Weinman who conducted a statewide survey on the extent and causes of score declines in Massachusetts.

"Interviews with college admission officers and high school guidance counselors throughout Massachusetts and close examination of college catalogues in recent years indicate that achievement on standardized tests has become less important as a criterion for college admission," Dr. Weinman said.

The study noted that alcohol/drugs seemed to have affected student motivation. "They appear less concerned about how well they perform and consequently exert less effort when taking the tests," the report said.

Also, she said, "It is quite plausible that the degree of alcohol consumption and drug usage is affecting the learning process."

"If a significant proportion of junior and senior high school students are continually or frequently under the influence of alcohol or drugs, this might have a detrimental effect on their ability to retain information provided in class," the report said.

The analysis also concluded changes in high school curricula have contributed to a drop in scores. Other factors cited in the report as possibly contributing to the decline were social upheaval and the increased number of students taking the tests.
