Carter narrowly wins presidency

Nutmeggers like Ford

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut, known as The Land of Steady Habits, stayed with the known quantity Tuesday, re-electing Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, all six incumbent congressmen and giving President Ford eight electoral votes.

First Family-elect

Democrat incumbents win, but town goes for Ford

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter
For Manchester Democrats, Tuesday's election will provide sweet dreams for at least the next two years.

Patterns shattered in heavy balloting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrat Jimmy Carter, marching out of Georgia with a pledge to restore the nation's founding principles, narrowly ousted Gerald Ford from the presidency today in a pattern-shattering election.

When Carter finally put together enough votes to win, Ford was in a position to make the election the closest since 1876, when Republican Rutherford Hayes was awarded the presidency by a single vote in an disputed election decided by a special commission.

Buckland fire tax accord reached

By DOUG BEVINS

Braille voting machine believed to be a first

Manchester scored a historic first Tuesday in Connecticut voting by the handicapped, thanks to the initiative shown by two Manchester persons. They are Frederick Peck, Republican registrar of voters, and Christine Olson, rehabilitation teacher for the State Board of Education's Services for the Blind.

With enthusiastic backing by Secretary of the State Gloria Schaffer, Braille markings were placed on one voting machine in each of Manchester's 10 voting districts. It was the first time ever for Connecticut and one of the few times ever in the United States. The markings permitted blind persons to vote without assistance and without the need for absentee ballots.

The Braille code for the strips was "P" for president, "S.S." for United States senator, "U.S.R." for representative in Congress, "R.V." for registrar of voters. Because of the known placement of party letters, it was unnecessary to code party designations.

The idea for the Braille markings stemmed from a campaign promise made by Peck to his blind mother, the late Maria Peck, who died Sept. 11, about seven weeks before the fulfillment of his promise. Peck had pledged she'd be able to vote without the need for an absentee ballot. She died only days after casting an absentee ballot in the Republican primary for registrar of voters - won by her son, Peck and Ms. Olson, a 20-year employ of the State Services for the Blind, worked out the Braille code and submitted the idea to the secretary of the state's office for approval. Mrs. Schaffer approved, and the strips were made up for the machines.

"It was because of the cooperation by a Republican (myself) and a Democrat (Mrs. Schaffer) that we were able to accomplish the plan," said Peck. "We didn't announce it during the campaign because neither of us wanted to use it as an election issue. Peck said he has the cooperation of the secretary of the state's office to press for legislation by the 1977 General Assembly for Braille markings.

He said, "We want to make it mandatory for each of the state's 169 municipalities to provide one such voting booth in each of its polling places. I feel confident the proposal will be adopted."

Train rams truck

SEYMOUR (UPI) - A town dump truck was hit Tuesday at 8:17 by the passenger train of Waterbury, carrying 35 passengers, police said. Four persons were slightly injured.

The truck was struck and overturned as it crossed the railroad tracks in North Seymour near the Bridgeport Brass Co. at Dump Crossing, a Conrail official in New York said. Police said the driver, Joseph Dziadik, was taken to Griffin Hospital in Derby where he was being treated for head lacerations. One passenger was also taken to Griffin Hospital and a second passenger was being treated at St. Mary's Hospital in Waterbury, police said.

The train is a one-car shuttle that makes regular runs from Waterbury to Bridgeport where it connects with another train to New York. A Conrail official said the train was struck and overturned as it crossed the railroad tracks in North Seymour near the Bridgeport Brass Co. at Dump Crossing, a Conrail official in New York said. Police said the driver, Joseph Dziadik, was taken to Griffin Hospital in Derby where he was being treated for head lacerations. One passenger was also taken to Griffin Hospital and a second passenger was being treated at St. Mary's Hospital in Waterbury, police said.

Firecracker blast hurts local man

A 20-year-old Manchester man was hospitalized Tuesday afternoon after being hurt when a homemade firecracker exploded at his home, Manchester Police reported.

Robert Worden of 147 Parker St. suffered lacerations of his arms and legs, police said, and was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital.

A hospital spokesman said Worden is in satisfactory condition. Metal fragments lodged in his body.

Authorities said the incident occurred at about 5 p.m. when Worden reportedly was making a firecracker by filling a small brass pipe with match heads. The pipe exploded while he was working on it, police said.

Jubilant GOP quiets

Other local candidates fared no better than Cohen, but they weren't Tuesday night to comment.

Neither Marilyn England, challenger in the Ninth Assembly District, nor Anthony Stoppa, challenger in the Third Senatorial District, appeared at the GOP headquarters. Walter Joyner, running in the 12th Assembly District, was out of town on business, and Mart Bray Jr., trying for the 13th Assembly District, was hospitalized for a serious illness.

Manchester GOP leaders were disappointed by poor showings by Joyner and Bray, but the England and Stoppa losses were expected.

Both Mrs. England and Stoppa were trying for seats in heavily Democratic districts dominated by East Hartford. Stoppa, who entered the race late, was seen by some Republicans as a poor candidate, nominated just to prevent another man, Edward Wilson of Manchester, from running.

Besides the Fourth Senatorial District contest, Manchester Republicans also had high hopes for the 12th Assembly District. GOP leaders said Tuesday night they thought it would be a "horse race." They admitted it might have been a mistake to discontinue a campaign phase based largely on the controversial Buckland fire jurisdiction position of the Democratic incumbent, Cummings.

"Joyner ran a good race," Chairman Ferguson said, "and we'll urge him to stay active and run again."

Many of the Republicans jammed into the Main St. headquarters were concentrating on results of the presidential and U.S. Senate races in Connecticut, the only two contests in which the local GOP won.

Wallace Irish, local coordinator for President Ford, was beaming as local figures showed that Manchester went for his man. Irish left before the rest of the country outvoted Manchester.

Vivian Ferguson, Manchester coordinator for incumbent U.S. Sen. Lowell Weicker, wasn't as enthusiastic about the results, because "it was nothing different than what I expected." Weicker easily defeated Democrat Gloria Schaffer.

Cohen ran a well-fought race," Ferguson said after the final results were in, giving Barry another two-year term by a 23,675 to 19,216 vote.

Ferguson and other local Republicans indicated severe disappointment about Cohen's loss, which some party members attributed to lack of support in his hometown, Glastonbury.

Nobody wanted to say it for the record, but Cohen apparently didn't get much support from Glastonbury party leaders. In a speech near the end of the GOP party, Cohen said that during the campaign, "Manchester seems to have become more of a home to me than my own hometown."

Cohen, who lost in all eight towns in the Fourth Senatorial District, was unhappy when it was over but he had no regrets. "Some days you eat the bear," Cohen said, "and some days the bear eats you."

Scandia Lodge No. 23, Vasa Order of America, will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Emanuel Lutheran Church. Members are reminded to bring canned goods or non-perishable foods for the town's Thanksgiving food collection.

The local chapter of Parents Anonymous will meet Tuesday, Nov. 9, at 7:30 p.m. at Concordia Lutheran Church, 40 Pitkin St., and every Tuesday through Dec. 28.

The Organization of the Handicapped (OHI) will meet Monday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the Mayfair Gardens social hall on Main and N. Main Sts. All people who are handicapped under age 65 and living on the east side of the river are invited. For further information call 646-7786 or 646-7707.

Opinion
The people have spoken

The people have spoken for leadership, but not necessarily for change.

The strong turnout of the voters nationally reflects a fundamental commitment by them to our two-party system of government.

But the closeness of the vote — considering the overwhelming margin Democrats have in party registrations — is caution light to the Democrats, who will control the White House and the Congress next January, not to embark on any radical new ventures too quickly.

There is no doubt President-elect Jimmy Carter owes his victory to the support of organized labor in key industrial states and thus faces a contradiction in that his base for his victory was the relatively conservative south.

The first test of his leadership, and perhaps the continuing and dominating one of his term, will be reconciling the liberal demands of labor to those of conservative Southerners in Congress.

It may well bode for a short honeymoon and continuance of the Southern conservative and Republican alliance that so many times checked the more liberal Democratic programs in the Congress under recent Republican and Democratic presidents.

But despite these potential problems for Mr. Carter within his own party and the obvious resurgence of the Republican party for the despair of Watergate, he will have the opportunity to try to implement the promises he made in the campaign. His message won the popular vote by relatively narrow margins; but nevertheless he won. In this we wish him well for the most part.

President Ford, too, won something Tuesday. As the minority party candidate, the candidate of a party still stung with the stigma of Watergate, and the nonelected incumbent, the large popular vote accorded Mr. Ford rang out loud and clear that many millions of Americans believe that the President had "made Americans proud again" and that things really aren't all as bad as campaign oratory would have indicated.

President-elect Carter now has the opportunity to build on what is forecast to be a continuing economic recovery despite the pauses of the past two months which are probably the biggest single factor in Ford's narrow loss.

He has the Congress controlled by his party.

And he has the majority of the American electorate in a surprising nonpartisan turn-out behind him.

Yes, the people have spoken for change in leadership, but not necessarily for too much change in the directions we are going.

An owlish editor's notebook

For the past several weeks, the candidates for office from the presidency on down to state representative have been articulating their views on the issues before us.

Yesterday, we, as voters, spoke. We did not solve any problems nor erase any issues that were raised in the campaign.

We merely selected the men and women we felt most competent to deal with those problems and issues.

So to the victors goes the onus of coming to grips with the many problems that beset us because the mere act of voting did not wipe out unemployment, did not stop inflation, did not improve the schools, did not make government more responsible, and did not cut taxes.

These are still with us and the winners must now present to us specific ideas for coping with these problems.

We, as voters, must follow through with a commitment to support the men and women we have elected when we feel they are on the right course and sounding off loud and clear when the men and women we have elected show signs of veering off course or of not fulfilling what they pledged to try to do.

The act of voting may have climaxed a campaign, but it was also an act of involvement.

Election should not be occasion for celebration or regret, but rather decision-making that says, in effect, this is the course we must now try to solve our problems.

If we could think of elections as decisions to take what the majority feels is the best course of action instead of rejections or defeats of the alternative courses, perhaps unity of purpose would more easily be achieved.

For in retrospect there was not too much divergence on many of the major issues, but rather a concern as to who might best cope with the issues in the days ahead.

We know there are those who are disappointed in the outcome of Tuesday's balloting and we know there are others who are excessively jubilant.

But hopefully in a few days or so, the passions will have died down and thought can and will be given to the responsibility of governing that now rests with the victors and the equally awesome responsibility of providing an articulate and constructive loyal opposition that rests with the losers in a democratic election.

The elections have been conducted and the winners selected. The curtain has been rung down on the opening act.

Act II, the real performance is about to begin.

The corncatch special: One of the national defense problems is rumored to have been solved without the election. An unconfirmed report has it that our latest anti-missile shot itself down.

We Americans are a curious people

WASHINGTON — Americans indeed are a curious people. They are so grateful not to be insulted by a headwater in Paris that they over-tip him outrageously, and seem never to notice that Naples smells well — funny.

Thus I was not surprised at a dinner party the other night to hear a guest fresh from two weeks in the Soviet Union expounding on the sterling qualities of that Communist paradise. Here was a competent and presumably hard-boiled American businessman saying things that would be quoted favorably on Page 1 of Pravda.

Late so many newly born experts, this guy is at home with paradox. In one breath he noted that "I haven't seen much individuality in the Russian people," and in the next added there is more individuality in Russia than in the United States.

But I am sure it's there. I think there is more individuality in Russia than in the United States.

My fellow guest claimed Americans "have a misconception as to the restrictions imposed on the general public. Everyone seems to have 100 per cent freedom of movement." As a career cad, I suggest that this freedom is limited to that degree of movement involved in getting to work and back, and themselves to do what Brezhnev tells them. "The Russians admire their leaders," he said. "I could tell they did."

It must be wonderful to be grown up and discover Eden with such a minimum of research. I know my childlike mind would be incapable of concluding after two weeks in the Soviet Union that "In Russia there is no exploiting class. The workers have power." I might be "impressed at the way women work with men in steel mills," but I would seek one more opinion before accepting the statement of a female street cleaner that "Lenin liberated the Russian women."

There are, of course, certain superlatives in America who look kindly on the Soviet system. But they always seem to own ornate drawing rooms furnished with money spent on conspicuous consumption. Most American working stiff's sympathized with Svetlana's stand, because the concept of sharing one's income with a relative stranger who might be given to goofing off after a three-martini lunch is not in the nature of the human animal.

Americans also enjoy a little privacy, and I don't swallow my fellow guest's claim that Russians "never complain" about sharing an apartment with a couple of other families. Human beings may enjoy an occasional communal fling, complete with shared dishwashing and kids who belong to somebody else are therefore little monsters, but it is always a relief to get back home and lock the door.

Perhaps touring Americans are too anxious not to be ill-mannered. Those few who have visited Communist China are similarly inclined to rave about how beautiful life is in that enormous concentration camp. I suspect they are so relieved at not having been arrested on sight that they feel obliged to fawn long-distance on their recent hosts. One is tempted to inquire of these voyagers if they expect Red dictators to stage a few public executions for their personal entertainment.

Manchester likes incumbents

Large turnouts may or may not favor the Democrats. In Manchester, however, it can be said a high voter turnout favored incumbents, and if Tuesday's voting is any guide, it does not inhibit ticket-splitting.

Republican incumbents won the most votes at the top of the ticket and Democratic incumbents prevailed at the bottom half of the ticket.

Nor did local issues seem to be important enough to overshadow other factors.

President Ford was favored over Jimmy Carter by about 1,100 votes, indicating he was the beneficiary of ticket-splitting that gave Sen. Lowell Weicker's 4,000-plus edge over Democrat challenger Gloria Schaffer.

State Rep. Ted Cummings seeking re-election to the 12th Assembly District, faced a strong challenge from Republican Walt Joyner, who ran hard on Cummings' opposition to expansion of the Eighth Utilities District into the Buckland area. The issue undoubtedly hurt Cummings at the polls but not enough to beat him. In 1974, Cummings defeated Wally Irish 4,585 to 3,669. His margin over Joyner was 5,342 to 4,492.

Democrat Fran Mahoney won re-election in the 13th Assembly District but by a narrow margin, due in part to the Weicker pull among Democrats.

If incumbency doesn't put the myth of high voter turnout favoring the Democrats in Manchester to rest, perhaps this little statistic will.

While the Democrat incumbents won Tuesday, they won by narrower margins; and while some of this might be written off to Sen. Weicker's inroads with some validity, we doubt the Weicker factor offsets the fact that 75 per cent of the voters turned out in 1974 in Manchester. Tuesday, more than 80 per cent voted.

Perhaps the real significance of 1976 is that the voter has broken out of the tradition molds of the past and large turnouts no longer will benefit one party automatically as they may have in the past.

For the losers, the ticket-splitting, despite the heavier turnout, offers an opportunity in that it would appear many, many voters are truly independent and open to persuasion by articulate candidates regardless of party.

For the winners, the lesson is simply the one of diminishing returns; no longer can victory be counted on by the mere act of trooping the largest numbers possible to the polls. The winners, in looking at their narrowing margins of victory, must respond to an electorate more interested in answers to than appeals of party loyalty.

The victors in 1976 will be the ones who best adapt to the new electorate — not so apathetic as predicted, but, more important, not so predictable, either.

Why the little crook gets it in the neck

WASHINGTON — One point stands out clearly in a series of government studies over the past year written by respected members of the establishment.

In tax collecting, government regulation of industry, or the prosecution of gamblers or dog peddlers, the little man gets it in the neck; the well-to-do fare better.

This inequity is not intentional in most cases, it seems clear from the studies. There's usually so anti-poor, anti-little guy, pro-rich, pro-bigshot prejudice among the enforcers so far as can be determined. Like the rest of us, the enforcers are caught in a net.

Look for a minute, at how things work.

Most enforcers — whether in regulatory or tax collecting agencies or police departments — are ruled by the numbers game. There may be no quotas assigned. But the men, the agencies and departments look best which score the most arrests and convictions.

Like viewers at a football or baseball game, agency chiefs, department heads and congress look at the score cards.

It's results that count — and usually we measure results by numbers; the important case is one point, the trivial one point.

Catching a big-time dope peddler, the chief of a numbers racket, a major income tax evader, dishonest trucker, major manufacturer or commercial firm, can take years, cost millions and end with the government a loser at the trial because the party on trial has more funds, better attorneys and more highly skilled investigators than the government can spare. Score nothing for the government. Except headaches.

It is easy to round up petty gamblers off the street and convict them. Or to explain to a small taxpayer that it's cheaper to pay up than to fight. Or to pick up the small time dope user. Or a local trucker who carries 100 bags of cement illegally. Or a small firm which violates a regulation. Score 10, 15, 50, 1,000 for the government. With few headaches.

Congress has made the situation worse by writing complicated, confusing and contradictory laws in this area. Which makes conviction next to impossible in 90 per cent of the cases in which the defendants has first-rate talent working to free him.

Further, in some instances it is profitable for large companies to violate the law and pay the fines; the profits to be made being greater than the fines levied. An August report by the vice chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission pointed out that settlements averaged $1,344 in cases with average illegal gains of $5,304. One investigator commented that only the stupid and honest were caught. More often than not it proved impossible to convict companies which kept sloppy records.

There's a dreary sameness, it would seem, in the regulatory agencies and in other federal enforcement groups.

An inability to decide which cases are more important than others. An accent on the trivial, such as the great effort spent on the trucker who served a point 200 feet (perhaps) beyond the limit set by regulations.

Much inconsistency, office by office, and sometimes case by case.

Little attention to research, necessary to determine whether the regulations as written are necessary, helpful, fair and important.

A lack of independent data on which to base rulings. Much of the information on which the regulators made decisions comes from those with an interest in the matters being regulated.

Today's thought

Isaiah describes the government of this Messiah as one of justice for all. (Isaiah 9:7) And he may be understanding the case for in Jesus we have not only justice but also mercy. Our Messiah is sensitive to the people's needs.

Bay State rejects handgun ban

BOSTON (UPI) — Voters have bolstered a referendum to make Massachusetts the first state in the nation to ban private ownership of handguns but were undecided early today whether to junk throwaway bottles.

Voters also rejected by landslide proportions a graduated income tax proposal and a proposal to adopt a uniform electric rate system.

The so-called bottle bill requires a minimum 5-cent deposit on all soft drink and beer bottles and out-laws flip-top cans. More than $1.2 million was spent in the state on advertising the first state in the nation to ban private ownership of handguns but were undecided early today whether to junk throwaway bottles.

Eight referendum questions sparked immense voter interest across the state and were responsible for drawing one of the heaviest voter turnouts in recent elections.

The handgun measure would have banned pistol ownership except to police; the military; licensed gun manufacturers. It was expected to be rejected by a narrow three to one margin.

If adopted gun owners would have had to surrender their weapons to the state within six months of enactment. Gun owners would have been reimbursed at a rate determined by the state.

The cost for the state to purchase the guns was a major issue in the handgun referendum campaign.

Re-elected

Democrat incumbent Fran Mahoney is happy with results that sends him back to the state House of Representatives for a fifth consecutive term. (Herald photo by Dunn)

Early Learning Center work progressing

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Preparatory work continues on the Early Learning Center, but Alan Mason, director of social services, is not optimistic about opening the facility by Feb. 1.

The center will provide day care, primarily for low-income families. It will be located in the Orford Village School on Waddell Rd.

Pat Schardt, chairman of the board of directors of Manchester Early Learning Center, Inc., the nonprofit organization heading the program, said that she hopes the center can be opened by Feb. 1.

Mason explained, however, that there has been a delay in drawing up specifications for rehabilitation of the school, which needs new siding along with repairs to the roof, windows and doors.

Alan Lamson, assistant town planner, was in charge of preparing the plans for these repairs, but he became involved in the town's industrial park and was unable to devote full time to the center work.

Mason said that the bids for the repair work should go out next week, so the reconstruction will probably not begin until December.

But other preparatory steps have been taken. Bids were recently received by the town for 97 kitchen items for the center, including a range, refrigerator and dishwasher.

The Manchester Early Learning Center, Inc. also named the first staff member for the school Eileen Elliott of Manchester was selected as teacher/director at a meeting Monday night.

The school will have 6 1/2 other staff members, according to Mrs. Schardt. There will be one teacher, 1 1/2 assistant teachers, one aide, one janitor, one part-time cook, and one part-time secretary.

The center will provide facilities for 32 preschoolers, ages three to five.

"At least 22 will come from low-income families with working parents," Mrs. Schardt said. The students will pay for the children's tuition according to a sliding scale based on their income.

She said that not more than ten of the students will be those who can pay their full tuition.

The tuition costs and the income limits have not yet been calculated, she said.

Mason said that the town will devote about $40,000 of Community Development funds for operating the center.

The board of directors, headed by Mrs. Schardt, is made up of members of the Manchester Community Services Council, town citizens and "adopted parents."

"Right now, we've been adopting parents, so to speak, to give us input," she said. When the center's students are selected, about six of their parents will become board members, replacing the adopted folks.

Mrs. Schardt said that the final selection of the center's 32 children will be made after interviews of those interested parents. There will be announcements soon concerning application procedures for those interested in the center.

Water line flushing schedule announced

The Water Department will flush lines next week. The schedule for flushing is as follows:

Monday, Nov. 8, and Tuesday, Nov. 9 — Bryan Dr. and Baldwin Rd., through to the end of the system.

Wednesday, Nov. 10 — Union St. east to N. School St., then north to Tolland Tpke.

Friday, Nov. 12 — N. Main St. west to Tolland Tpke., then west to Meekville Rd.

 who saw the handwriting on the wall and brought a concession speech to her victory party.
 Weicker, 46, his image stamped indelibly on the minds of Connecticut voters because of his forceful pursuit of Watergate figures three years ago, stressed his image of independence from the GOP in his campaign.
 "The image of Lowell Weicker as a fiercely independent individual speaking his mind on the (Senate Watergate) committee certainly created great power at the polls," Mrs. Schaffer conceded.
 He refused to run on the national GOP platform and several times during Ford's primary campaign with Ronald Reagan, Weicker chastized the President for drifting too far to the right.
 "His old school the slightly aggressive 6-foot-6 Weicker told the faithful in his hometown of Greenwich as the strains of the Yale fight song, "Boola Boola" faded away.
 "We're going to lay it out on the table. We're going to tell it like it is. And I'll tell you, you've got six more years of that ahead of you."
 And he told Republicans—many of whom were his harshest critics for refusing to toe the party line "You may criticize me for not making good partisan speeches, but you will admit I gave you a good partisan win tonight."
 Weicker's 228,000 vote margin, easily surpassing the GOP Senate victory standard of 131,000 set by Prescott Bush in 1956 as he won town after town with his strategy of appealing to independent and Democratic voters.
 The President captured more than 51 per cent of the vote to Carter's 48

Indian feast today

TRUMBULL (UPI) — A traditional feast will be held today at 5 p.m. at the tiny reservation of the Golden Hill Paugussett Indians on Shelton Road, an Indian spokesman said.
 Roger Smith, chairperson of the Tribal Council, said those attending will include Attorney William Kuntzer who told the Indians last week he would help them in their controversy over ownership of the reservation.
 The feast is timed to mark the end of the first week of occupation of a hope on the reservation, believed to be the smallest in the country, by the tribe's chief, Big Eagle, who has said he will remain there indefinitely, Smith said.

Worked killed

FRANKLIN (UPI) — A workman fell 80 feet to his death Tuesday while working on a grain silo in Franklin, police said. Allen Craig, 28, of Oxford, Mass., apparently fell through a 40-inch high safety rail on top of a silo at the Rytman Grain Co. on Murphy Road, police said. He was pronounced dead at William W. Backus Hospital in Norwich. Police were investigating.

Pool to open

HADDAM (UPI) — The swimming pool at the Haddam-Killingworth High School, closed Oct. 27 because of an outbreak of scabies, was to be opened today. The pool was closed and night activities at schools in the district were canceled after at least 14 cases of scabies were confirmed. Health officials conducted screening tests in the schools for the contagious skin disease caused by a tick and determined that there was no epidemic.

Buckland industrial site valued at $298,000

The property that would be used for the site of the town's proposed Buckland's industrial park has a total assessed value of about $298,460, based on 1966 tax figures.
 Just under 400 acres between Burnham St. and Tolland Tpk. has been selected for the park site.
 The 1966 tax valuation figures are presently being updated in the town's tax revaluation. Tax Assessor Ed Belleville said that the assessed value of the land will substantially increase through the revaluation, but he would not estimate how much of an increase there will be.
 It was announced today that the revaluation will be delayed until next year.
 The 1966 figures also do not incorporate any land sales that might have taken place in the past ten years.
 The 308.98 acres that make up the proposed site is composed of 38 parcels of land, ranging from less than one acre to more than 80 acres.
 The largest land holder is the state, which owns about 114 acres on 11 parcels.

East Hartford okays renovation

SHEILA TULLER
The voters of East Hartford approved the bond referendum for renovation of the East Hartford High School science wing by 10,820 to 5,922.

The win was by nearly a two-to-one margin.

Last August when the Town Council passed a resolution to put the question to the people, Council Chairman George Dagon said, "The council recognized the need, but now it was up to the Board of Education to convince the voters."

The school board and the school administration did their homework. They mailed pamphlets to every resident explaining the need, the planned modernization with architectural drawings, and the costs.

Board members, EHS Principal John Callahan, and the science department members followed up by visiting parents' groups at every elementary, middle, and high school in town.

EHHS PTA members were stationed at all polling places Tuesday to ask for a "yes" vote. Their flyer told the voters no tax increase would be necessary to fund the project.

The people were convinced and approved the question. The approval means work will start on the project in June 1977. The work dates were scheduled in order not to disrupt class time.

All rooms in the science wing will be modernized, safety equipment and new furniture will replace the equipment and furniture installed 22 years ago.

A new greenhouse is the only new construction planned.

Last week, Supt. Eugene Diggs said he was concerned about the uninformed voter. It looks like many of the informed passed the message along by the number of votes and the margin of the win.

Hebron turnout hits 85 per cent

KAREN BISKUPIAK
Enthusiasm was the name of the game in Hebron as 85 per cent of the 2,770 eligible voters turned out to cast their ballots Tuesday.

Republican Registrar James Derby said 2,352 voters cast their ballots resulting in a 1,235 to 1,061 victory for President Gerald Ford over Jimmy Carter.

Absentee ballots totaled 103. Ten of the total votes cast were Presidential elections only. These were cast by those persons who had not registered in time to vote for the remainder of the candidates, but were allowed to cast a presidential ballot in compliance with the federal law.

Incumbent Sen. Lowell P. Weicker triumphed over Gloria Schaffer by 1,235 to 1,061.

Democratic Incumbent Congressman William Colter defeated Republican candidate Lucie DiFazio 1,218 to 1,015.

Fourth Senatorial Democratic Incumbent David Barry of Manchester defeated Republican David Cohen 1,191 to 1,004.

Democratic Incumbent State Rep. Aloysius Ahearn defeated his Republican opponent Dorothy Millie in a vote of 1,172 to 1,077. However, Ahearn's Hebron win did not offset his losses elsewhere.

Democratic Town Chairman Richard Keefe was obviously disappointed as, shaking his head, he said he didn't understand the results for the Wallace party, senatorial candidate Robert Barnabei received 15 and congressional candidate Charles A. Burke received 16.

U.S. Labor party candidates in the presidential race, LaRouche and Evans, received four votes. On the State ticket, Republican candidate Donna C. McDonald received 10.

There were six write-in votes for Eugene McCarthy with only three containing the eight names of the electors for him. One write-in was cast for Sen. Ted Kennedy and one for California's Gov. Jerry Brown. There were also two write-in ballots which no one seemed to know they were for. One was for a "C. Dana" and one for a "Richard Parker."

Hebron has 944 registered Democratic voters, 794 Republicans and 1,053 independents.

Apathy disproved
Town Clerk Marion Celio said she wasn't surprised at the heavy voter turnout. She said she hadn't accepted the previously predicted voter apathy she said the country was finally pulling together.

She first realized that there would be a heavy turnout when she saw the number of people registering to vote. She said her office had also received many calls concerning the election and asking questions concerning the procedure for registering and voting.

Republican Town Chairman Clay Osborn commented that with a 100 Democratic plurality, he felt the results were "quite satisfactory."

Osborn said the strong Weicker campaign contributed to the Republican ticket. The "outsider campaign" Carter put on helped the Ford ticket, he said.

Democratic Town Chairman Richard Keefe was obviously disappointed as, shaking his head, he said he didn't understand the results for the Wallace party, senatorial candidate Robert Barnabei received 15 and congressional candidate Charles A. Burke received 16.

Vernon turnout is 92 per cent

BARBARA RICHMOND
In the largest turnout in many years Vernon voters, better than 92 per cent strong, went to the polls Tuesday and supported the Ford-Dole ticket.

Vernon received its strongest support to Democratic Congressman Christopher Dodd.

Vernon has about 14,650 registered voters and, according to the total figures of those voting for presidential candidates, the total voting was 12,154.

Vernon is divided into three assembly districts, 55, 58, and 57.

Voting districts 1, 2, and 3 make up the 56th Assembly District. In this District Democrat Chester Morgan, a newcomer, beat Republican Morgan Campbell 4,193-3,684. Campbell is serving on the Town Council and has been involved in town politics for many years.

In the local District 4 which is included in Assembly District 55, Dorothy Miller, Republican, lost to incumbent Democrat Aloysius Ahearn, 1,008 to 938. But she won enough votes in other towns to overcome the difference.

In the 57th Assembly District, which the local District 3 shares with Ellington and East Windsor, incumbent Democrat Perseus Bertinson won over Republican Daniel McKeever, 1,008 to 857. McKeever won in his hometown of Ellington, 2,224 to 1,862. But Mrs. Bertinson gained in her hometown of East Windsor an edge of 1,281 votes.

District 1, which is the Rockville or city area of town, and traditionally Democratic, went for Carter 1,320 to 1,155.

However, they split their tickets to support incumbent U. S. Sen. Lowell Weicker over Democrat Gloria Schaffer 6,891 to 5,219. They favored Dodd 7,742 over Richard Jackson 4,161.

Incumbent State Sen. Robert Houley ran second to Dodd for high vote-getter in Vernon. He won 7,339 to 4,567 over Republican Peggy Roca of Mansfield.

Houley didn't lose a vote in any of the five districts and won 403 votes behind Dodd.

In District II, also a city area, the vote was close with Ford-Dole totaling by 19 votes. This district also supported Republicans Weicker and Campbell but otherwise supported Democrat Dodd and Houley.

In District III, the Skinner Road area of town, traditionally Republican, voters supported Ford-Dole in a 1,008 to 932 and Weicker 1,119 to 829. They supported Dodd and Houle over their Republican opponents.

District IV, the northeast section, gave its support to Ford 1,858 to 947. Weicker won 1,201 to 795. It supported Dodd 1,217 to 745; Houley, 1,150 to 816; and Ahearn, 1,008 to 938.

In District V, Vernon center area, traditionally Republican, the vote was 1,771 to 1,428 in favor of Ford. Weicker won 1,894 to 1,287; Dodd, 2,041 to 1,105; and Houley, 1,999 to 1,149.

At Democratic headquarters, the party to the polls closing, the atmosphere was charged. Democratic Councilman Thomas Dooley speculated Ford would win Connecticut but would lose the election.

The passage marks the first time since 1968 that local voters have voted to approve expenditure with the exception of sewers. The last spending item to pass referendum was in 1968 when voters approved the purchase of the Podim property on Barber Hill Rd.

Mayor Thomas Benoit, recovering from surgery, was there helping count the votes and looking for Republican headquarters, are: Ford 6,529 and Carter 5,895; Weicker 6,891 and Schaffer 5,219; Dodd 7,742 and Jackson 4,161; Houley 7,339 and Roca 4,567.

Walsh wins

LINDA LOVERING
Robert "Skip" Walsh, Democrat of Coventry, won the 53rd Assembly District by 508 votes Tuesday.

Walsh won his second term defeating Malcolm Harris, a political newcomer from Willington.

Walsh said, "We ran a good, straight forward, ethical campaign. I'm proud of the 53rd District.

Referring to his lighter 1974 win over Democrat's Steve Brannard, Walsh said, "We've run two clean, issue-oriented campaigns. It's a healthy sign for our area."

About his campaign, he said, "I did my homework, answered my letters and phone calls. I treated people as individuals and tried to answer their needs in the legislature."

Coventry went for Walsh 2,031 to 1,718; Willington 934 to 861; and Tolland 1,988 to 1,844. The total was 4,953 to 4,423.

Covered Democratic Town Committee Chairman Richard Cromie said Tuesday night, "No member of the General Assembly deserved to be re-elected more than Skip Walsh. He has had the strength to both support and oppose the governor on an issue by issue basis."

Residents were told they should not be alarmed if smoke enters their homes through cellar drains and for several weeks to cover all portions of town where there are sewer lines.

Lambert intends to pursue a career in music at either the New England Conservatory, N.Y. or the Eastman School in Rochester, N.Y.

McDonald's is offering a Paul LaValle scholarship to the New England Conservatory and Lambert plans to apply for that.

Lambert plays in the high school band and is band manager. He was elected to this position by fellow band members.

While a student at the Middle School he also played in that band.

For three years he has been chosen for the All State All New England Bands and Orchestra and also participated in the Music Education National Conference (MENC) Band in 1975.

Besides devoting so much time to music Lambert also lends to his other studies. He is a high honors student and a member of the National Honor Society. He is also state senior councilor in DeMolay.

Lambert has been playing the trombone for seven years and is principal trombonist in the Greater Hartford Youth Orchestra. He is studying on a full scholarship at the Hartford Conservatory under Edward Foster.

Miller regains seat

DONNA HOLLAND
Dorothy Miller, Republican, beat Aloysius Ahearn, Democratic incumbent, by 61 votes in the six-town race for representative from the 55th District.

Mrs. Miller carried four of the six towns in the district. She won in Andover by 19 votes, Bolton by 34 votes, Columbia by 141 votes and Marlborough by 32 votes.

Ahearn won in Hebron by 95 votes and Vernon by 70 votes.

Two years ago, Ahearn defeated Mrs. Miller by 578 votes. He carried all six towns.

Mrs. Miller has served five staggered terms in the legislature. This is the third time she defeated Ahearn.

Mrs. Miller's victory party was at Herrick Memorial Park in Bolton.

"I'm very pleased," she said. "I'm grateful to all my campaign workers. They outdid themselves getting out the vote."

Mrs. Miller said she will take a rest, attend the national OWLS (Organization of Women Legislators) convention and then get down to work.

Ahearn called Mrs. Miller from his home to congratulate her.

"I have no regrets," he said. "I gave 100 per cent to all the people in the district."

He thanked all those who supported him, saying he appreciated their trust.

Firehouse wins voters' okay

JUDY KUEHNEL
South Windsor voters Tuesday approved a referendum calling for bonding up to $765,000 for the much needed new fire department headquarters.

The passage marks the first time since 1968 that local voters have voted to approve expenditure with the exception of sewers. The last spending item to pass referendum was in 1968 when voters approved the purchase of the Podim property on Barber Hill Rd.

Andover picks all winners except Carter

Andover electors chose four of the five winners in Tuesday's elections. The only one they missed was President-elect Jimmy Carter.

On the local level the high vote-getter was Republican Lowell Weicker. He defeated Democrat Gloria Schaffer for the U.S. Senate 613 to 381.

The second high vote-getter was Congressman Christopher Dodd. He defeated Republican Richard Jackson 580 to 405.

President Ford won in Andover 526 to 487.

Incumbent Democrat David Barry defeated his Republican opponent for the state senate seat 524 to 461.

And Republican Dorothy Miller unseated her Democratic opponent Aloysius Ahearn for the state representative seat 528 to 489.

Of 1,172 persons eligible to vote, 1,019 cast votes. It equals about 87 per cent.

Bolton okays charter

Shortly after 8 p.m. Tuesday, Bolton's first charter took effect. Bolton voters had approved the proposed charter by 1,137 to 306.

About 518 voters did not vote either way on it.

The deciding vote was received by applause from those at the Town Hall. About 50 people had gathered to hear the election results.

RHS trombonist in national band

BARBARA RICHMOND
Denis Lambert, a senior at Rockville High School, has been selected to play in McDonald's All American High School Band.

This is an honor bestowed upon two high school students from each of the 50 states plus two from Washington, D. C. These students were chosen from among 160,000 applicants from high schools all over the country.

The band's main appearance will be in the Rose Bowl parade and at the Rose Bowl game New Year's Day.

The band will also play at Carnegie Hall on Thanksgiving eve and in the Macy's parade Thanksgiving day in New York City plus play in two concerts, one in Boston and one in Providence.

Lambert will be playing the trombone which is his favorite instrument although he does play just about every other instrument with his other two favorites being the piano and the trumpet.

He has been playing the trombone for seven years and is principal trombonist in the Greater Hartford Youth Orchestra. He is studying on a full scholarship at the Hartford Conservatory under Edward Foster.

East Hartford's turnout is heavy

SHEILA TULLER
Eighty-five per cent of East Hartford's voters went to the polls Tuesday.

Every district moderator commented on the heavy turnout when they returned to the town clerk's office with their figures, keys, and challenge boxes.

An unusually high number of write-in votes were reported by moderators. Some voters had problems when they decided to write in and then changed their minds.

Registrar Harry Borst, once the write-in section is used, the machine fails to prevent voting twice.

The top of the ticket, President-elect Jimmy Carter and running mate Walter Mondale, received 14,052 votes to President Ford's 10,178. Secretary of State Gloria Schaffer was the only Democratic loser on East Hartford's ballot. Mrs. Schaffer lost her bid for a senate seat taking only 11,822 votes to Senator Lowell Weicker's 12,340 votes.

Borst and V. James Delaripa were re-elected to their Registrar of Voters posts.

Top vote-getter
Third District Sen. George Hannon

Myonihan said the feeling of his fellow Democrats was disappointment because Democrats in other Connecticut communities were not as successful as the East Hartford candidates.

"Gloria Schaffer was the only Democratic loser in East Hartford," Myonihan said. "She had problems everywhere."

"I'm delighted about my victory and thankful to some one hundred and twenty workers who helped."

Myonihan was disappointed about many of his fellow legislators who lost their seats. When leaving the celebration, he said he was going home to watch television to see how his 118 fellow legislators fared.

Ford and Carter divide region's electoral votes

By STEWART POWELL
 United Press International
 President Ford won 19 of New England's 37 electoral votes — one more than Jimmy Carter received in the six-state region.

The two battled to mid-morning before Ford could claim the last elective elector in Maine. Ford won four states, Carter two.

The time won again "as Maine goes, so goes the nation" fell by the wayside, as Maine delivered all four of its electoral votes to Ford.

Carter, a Southerner who started his march to the presidency in the New England primaries, won 18 electoral votes with sizeable victories in the Democratic strongholds of Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

Ford amassed his 19 electoral votes by capturing eight in the traditional swing state of Connecticut, three from Vermont, four from New Hampshire and four in Maine.

The electoral college meets in December to choose the president.

Just as Maine's reputation as a bellwether suffered, so did the tell-tale character of Connecticut.

Democratic state has been with the winner in eight of the past 10 elections, but 1976 was an exception.

The last time the region divided four-two over a presidential election was in 1968 when Massachusetts, Maine, Connecticut and Rhode Island went to Hubert Humphrey and Vermont and New Hampshire fell to Richard Nixon.

Republicans picked up a Senate seat in the five races across the region, with Rhode Island sending a Republican to the Senate for the first time in 60 years.

Popular former Gov. John Chafee, Richard Nixon's Navy secretary, trounced wealthy auto dealer Richard Lorber. Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., Edmund S.

Muskie, D-Maine, Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., and Robert Stafford, R-Vt. won. The biggest loser was two-term Vermont Gov. Thomas Salmon, who failed in his long-planned bid to move from the State House to the Senate.

No such disappointments soiled the evening for Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., the beefy House Democratic leader who engineered the impeachment inquiry of Richard Nixon and expects to be elected Speaker in January. Voters in the Congress, Mass. district returned the 63-year-old O'Neill to Cambridge for a 13th two-year term.

Melroir Thomson, New Hampshire's headline-making conservative governor, won a third term, breaking a two-term tradition in the Granite State. Thomson's no-nonsense pledge in the state with neither a general sales nor income tax paid off once again.

Neighboring Vermont passed up the chance to install a woman as governor, choosing millionaire manufacturer and Republican legislative leader Richard Snelling over state Treasurer Stella Hackel, a Democrat.

Man arrested
 State police said Tuesday they arrested a Hartford man in connection with an alleged attempt to cash an Instant Lottery ticket as a $1,000 winner.

State Police Commissioner Edward P. Leonard said Richard D. Belliveau, 42, was picked up at his home Monday at 8:00 P.M. to consider and act on an amendment to Section 71.2 of the Ordinance of the Town of Manchester entitled "Fire Limits Establishment."

Police Report

A 17-year-old East Hartford boy was arrested by Manchester Police Tuesday on charges stemming from a burglary and theft of motorcycles from Manchester Honda in August.

Stephen L. Pinto of 16 Legion Dr. was taken into custody on a Common Pleas Court 12 warrant charging him with third-degree criminal trespassing and first-degree larceny. He is scheduled to appear in court Nov. 22.

Police said Pinto is accused of breaking into a motorcycle compound at the dealership, 24 Adams St., on Aug. 13. Police said five motorcycles, with a total value of $2,145, were stolen in the incident. Two of the cycles have been recovered.

A Beautiful Way To Start The Season...

Four Manchester boys have been referred to Juvenile Court, accused of mischief Tuesday afternoon in a Broad St. parking lot.

Police said the boys, ranging in age from 11 to 15, had uncovered a manhole and damaged its cover. The boys were released to their families.

Employees of Sears Roebuck & Co. at the Manchester Shopping Parkade reported the theft of automotive test gear worth about $100 Tuesday after a man walked into the store, picked up a box, and left.

Police said the thief stopped to talk to an employee on his way out of the store, but employees didn't suspect that goods were stolen until a few minutes after the man had gone.

Burglaries reported to police Tuesday included a break into a Woodbridge St. apartment in which $30 in cash was stolen.

WINTHROP

I THINK I'M GOING TO HOLLYWOOD AND TRY AND GET A PART LIKE VICTOR VICTORIAN.

EVERY TIME I THINK ABOUT ANGIE DICKINSON, MY BALLOON POPPS.

BY DICK CAVALLI

UNFORTUNATELY, I WAS THE VICTIM OF A WELL-INFORMED ELECTORATE.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have always considered myself a very fair-minded person and have tried to look at things from all points of view. But this has me stumped. I have a 16-year-old daughter I'll call Barbie. Barbie believes that it's everyone's right to do as she pleases as long as it doesn't hurt anybody and there is no law against it. This includes going braless, and that's what Barbie does. She's a nice-looking girl, but she's a "top-heavy." Her teacher has called me three times to tell me that if I keep letting Barbie come to school without a bra, she will be expelled.

Abby, do you know any 16-year-old high school girl who lets her mother dress her? Neither I do, and that's my problem. She's a good student and I've never had any trouble with her until now. Can you help me?

BARBIE'S TROUBLED MOM

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing this letter hoping that your million readers (parents and teenagers) will read it. We are foster parents who care for infants who are born out of wedlock and need homes until their adopters go through.

Now we have a beautiful 4-week-old girl whose mother changed her mind, hastily married the baby's father and decided to keep her baby. Both the mother and father are 15 years of age.

The girl's parents are very much against their daughter's decision, so these 15-year-olds are getting an apartment and joining the welfare rolls.

Yesterday I met the young parents and was heartachic. They sat there giggling the whole time they visited their baby.

I wanted so much to say, "If you really love this little girl, you will do what is best for her. Please let someone else adopt her and give her the many advantages you can't offer her."

Instead, I sat there feeling sorry for the child who was going to be raised by parents who were only children themselves.

I pray that they will remain teenagers to think twice before having a sexual relationship—at least until they are old enough to accept the consequences.

HEARTBROKEN FOSTER MOTHER

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Your letter is a powerful testimony to the aims and purposes of Planned Parenthood. Most accidental pregnancies carry with them the seeds of human tragedy. Sexually active people (especially youngsters) need to realize this. Legalized abortion is a safe substitute for birth control or self-control.

Clay Massey gives close scrutiny to his miniature set for "The Good Woman of Setzuau" which opens tonight at MCC and continues through Saturday.

With wire cutter in hand, Clay tackles the job of wiring his set design at Manchester Community College auditorium.

Library director

Finds theatrical work 'fascinating'

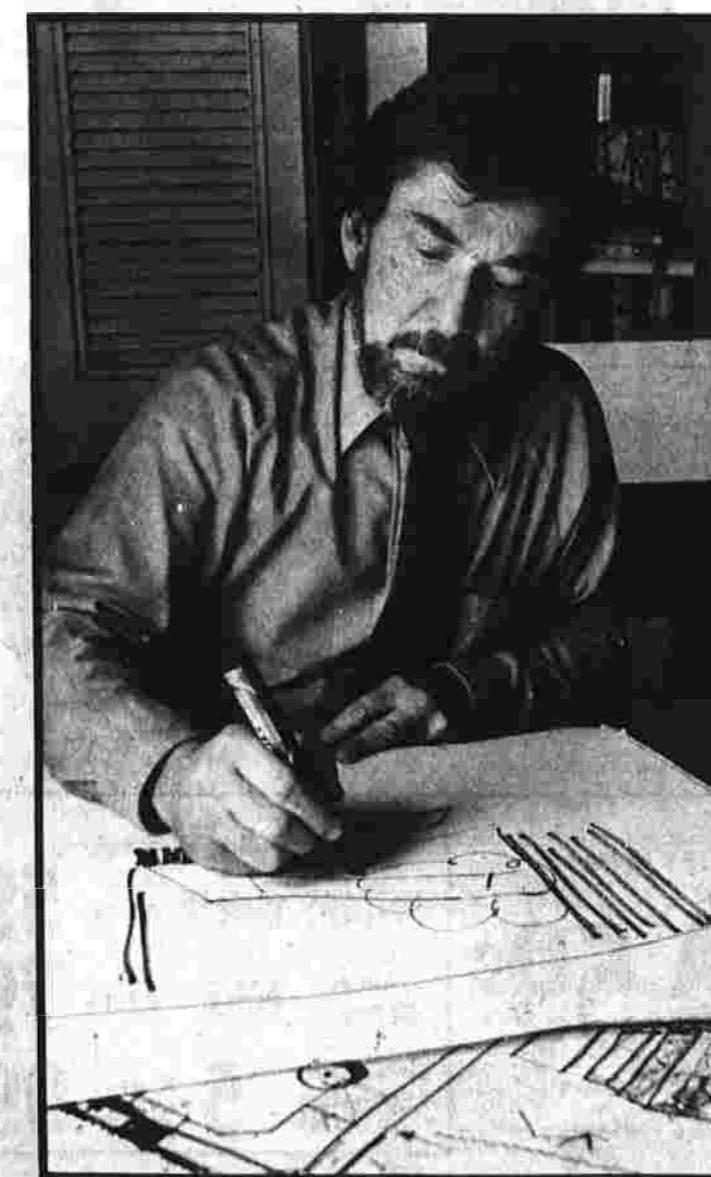

By BETTY RYDER Family/Travel Editor William Clayton Massey is a man of many talents. Besides his varied duties as director of the South Windsor Public Library, he is a scene and costume designer, an artist, and an actor of sorts, he says. Clay, as he's more popularly known, became interested in set designing at an early age. "My mother was a milliner and a seamstress and I used to make small studied for the seminary, and received his B.A. degree from the University of Tulsa in 1948. In 1952 he was awarded a bachelor's degree in the field of library science from the University of Oklahoma. Prior to coming to South Windsor, Clay was with the New Haven Public Library serving as acting coordinator of library centers, special projects librarian, and since January 1969, as director of public relations. Long fascinated with the illusions of the theater, Clay jumped at the chance to help out with set designs for the Little Theatre of Manchester. He designed the set for its highly successful "Fiddler on the Roof."

"I make complete miniatures of the sets before we actually begin the stage work," he said. In his attractive Manchester apartment, he has a collection of several of the sets which he designed. Obviously a stickler for perfection, his sets are complete with swinging doors and a sewing machine. One even has a bed resplendent with pillow and spread. "I must first determine the size of the stage space available, then I make my miniature set. After conferring with the director as to the various action areas in the production, we begin work on the actual set," he said. Among the productions for which he has designed sets are "Wait Until Dark," "The Crucible," and "Gingerbread Lady." "I have also worked with Betty Spalla and her son, John, who operated the Encore Theatre in Vermont, on "Gypsy," "Applause," and "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little." Not entirely satisfied with only set involvement in the theater, Clay also designs some of the costumes, and takes slides and lectures at Manchester Community College. "It is necessary to research the acquired from various cities where he lived or visited, Clay says it is his ambition to travel. "I enjoy traveling, but have only begun to see New England; I have to start with this country first." Of the theater, he says, "I'm simply fascinated. It's very satisfying; it detracts from library life. "I'm not just a bookish person," he says, grinning. Clay has appeared in several productions and says, "I'm enough of a ham to find it terribly exciting, especially on opening night." He recalls the opening night of "Applause" at the Encore Theatre. "I had a part. The entire cast could feel the electricity of the opening; but I was scared to death." Clay's interest in the theater has obviously rubbed off on his mother who lives on a farm in Oklahoma with her two dogs. "She came to visit me while I was working on sets for "Fiddler" so we put her right to work and she loved it," he says. "She also visited the Spallas with me in Vermont and now she just loves New England." The true test of production's merit comes from the audience, Clay says. "When we did the last song, "If We Only Have Love," in the production of "Jacques Brel," you could feel the surge of energy and response from the audience — they just rose to their feet — it was marvelous — it was marvelous." Tonight, having completed the set and costume designs for "The Good Woman of Setzuau" which opens at the Manchester Community College auditorium on Bidwell St., he will also be in the cast of this musical play. A comedy parable with music written by Bertolt Brecht, the play will continue through Saturday.

Beginning with a rough sketch of the stage area, Clay works out the dimensions for his set at the desk in his study.

Set designing can be hard work as Clay, hammer in hand, does some construction work on a stage design.

Your neighbor's kitchen

By Betty Ryder

A few months ago I received a lovely cookbook entitled "Bicentennial Heritage Recipes 76" from Lynn Richmond of 123 Richmond Dr. Lynn is the corresponding secretary of the Xi Gamma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi in Manchester. She sent along the cookbook in appreciation for my helping with their program "A Woman Speaks," at which I was the guest speaker a few months ago.

The cookbook is well filled with recipes from Beta Sigma Phi members throughout the country. Some recipes are over 100 years old. One recipe from Ann N. Purser of Macon, Ga., is for Old-fashioned Peach Custard Pie and she says it is about 150 years old.

Old-fashioned Peach Custard Pie
1 8-oz. packaged dried peaches
Sugar
3 eggs, well beaten
1 tsp. flour
1 cup milk
1 tsp. vanilla extract
1 cup sugar
1 cup flour
1 cup butter
Place peaches in saucepan: cover with boiling water. Cook until tender. Sweeten to taste. Cool. Combine eggs, cup sugar, flour, milk and vanilla; mix well. Spread peaches in bottom of pie crust; pour in milk mixture. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 40 minutes or until firm. Yield: 6-8 servings.
Another one is called "Impossible Pie."

Impossible Pie
4 eggs, beaten
2 cups milk
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 cup flour
Pinch of salt
1/2 cup margarine, softened
2/3 cup flaked coconut
1 tsp. baking powder
Combine all ingredients in blender container; process 1 minute. Pour into greased 10-inch pie pan. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for about 45 minutes or until golden brown and firm.
Sounds impossible — but I heard from a friend in Vernon that it's good.
Speaking of Vernon, my sister-in-law, Jane Beebe of Miriam Dr. in Vernon, makes the most delicious pie crusts. She always uses lard and it comes out nice and flaky.

Creamed turkey in cornbread ring

Jane's Pie Crust
1/2 lb. lard
2 1/2 cups flour
Pinch of salt
Using knife, cut lard into flour and salt until it forms little pea-sized bits. Make hole in the middle of the mixture in the bowl and add approximately 1/2 cup of cold water. Work with hands, adding more water if necessary, until it forms one large ball, then roll for crust.
Greek Turkey and Dressing might be your appetites. It's also in the Beta Sigma Phi cookbook and was submitted by Demetria Van Rossum of Salinas, Calif., and she writes that it is over 60 years old.
Greek Turkey and Dressing
1 large onion, chopped
1 cup chestnuts
1/2 lb. hamburger
1/2 cup dry bread crumbs or stuffing mix
2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. pepper
2 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. sweet basil
1 tsp. poultry seasoning
2/3 cup pine nuts (optional)
1/2 cup seedless raisins (optional)
1 1/2- to 14-lb. turkey
Cut an X in flat side of each chestnut; place in saucepan with water to cover. Boil for 30 minutes or until skins can be easily removed. Cool chestnuts; remove skins and chop. Sauté onion in small amount of oil until soft and lightly browned. Add hamburger; cook, stirring until browned. Drain off excess fat. Add bread crumbs, salt, pepper, cinnamon, basil, cloves, poultry seasoning, pine nuts, raisins and chestnuts. Stir over low heat until thoroughly mixed; set aside to cool. Stuff dressing into turkey cavity and neck area. Bake turkey with dressing using favorite method. Yield 12-14 servings.

For the leftover turkey, try Creamed Turkey in Cornbread Ring. Creamed Turkey in Cornbread Ring
2-10 ounce packages of cornbread mix or your favorite cornbread recipe.
1 tsp. thyme
2 lbs. finely chopped parsley
8 lbs. butter or margarine
4 lbs. minced onion
1/2 cup mushrooms, sliced
4 lbs. all-purpose flour
2 cups half-and-half cream
3 cups leftover turkey, finely diced
1 4-ounce jar, diced pimientos, drained
Salt, pepper and freshly grated nutmeg, to taste
2 egg yolks, beaten
3 lbs. Sherry
Prepare cornbread mix according to package direction, adding thyme and parsley. Melt butter in heavy saucepan, add onion and cook until soft, not brown. Add sliced mushrooms and saute lightly. Add flour and cook until just gold. Don't brown. Add half-and-half and cook until slightly thickened, stirring constantly. Add turkey and seasonings and cook, stirring often, for 15 minutes.
Beat Sherry with the egg yolks, whisk in some of the hot sauce and then add to the pan. Stir until thickened. DO NOT BOIL. Add pimiento. Turn baked cornbread ring onto platter. Fill center with creamed turkey mixture. Serve immediately. Serves 6.
If there aren't enough leftovers, add bread crumbs, salt, pepper, cinnamon, basil, cloves, poultry seasoning, pine nuts, raisins and chestnuts. Stir over low heat until thoroughly mixed; set aside to cool. Stuff dressing into turkey cavity and

Big buildup for isometrics

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I have heard that one can build up his muscles by doing isometric exercises only a few minutes a day. Is this true? I would like to increase the strength in my arms and shoulders particularly, and if I could do this with just a few, simple isometric exercises it would certainly be great. Would you explain a little bit about how important isometric exercises are and how one can use them to build up the strength and size of the muscles?

Dear Reader—An isometric exercise is one that contracts the muscle without changing its shape or length. A good example would be if you tensed your arm firmly so all the muscles in your arm are contracted even though you didn't move the arm or any part of it.
The effectiveness of isometric exercises has been grossly exaggerated. Don't expect to build a Mr. America body with a few isometric exercises a week. One of the biggest disadvantages of isometric exercises, particularly for middle-aged and older people, is their effect on the heart and circulation. While the muscle is tense or contracted it prevents the flow of blood through that muscle. This in turn causes a sharp rise in the blood pressure and in some susceptible people triggers off extra beats of the heart and circulatory system. What's in a name? Everything!

A local Mississippi man by the name of Jefferson Davis was a shop-in-town constable the moment his name was placed in nomination. He did no active campaigning and had virtually no experience. In trying to analyze his success at the polls a reporter said, "Voters must have figured that with a name like Jefferson Davis he just had to be good!"
I can't get that story out of my mind.
Back when my husband and I selected names for our children our concern was to pick simple everyday names that would cause them no embarrassment. I realize now that we did them an injustice.
Each of our children is currently in a position where the right name might give him that all important psychological edge.
Our youngest son is playing second string football. What string do you suppose he would be playing if we'd had the foresight to name him Joe Nattho?

Streamlining federal bureaucracy

Commission is fighting red tape

By NEA/London Economist News Service

NEW YORK (LENS) — When the Commission on Federal Paperwork held hearings in here recently, one witness arrived trailing a 45-foot-long string of forms. These represented a year's paperwork on one child in the program for aid to dependent families.

In a year when Americans have been showing, with every ballot they cast, how fed up they are with red tape, the cost and the interfering ways of the federal bureaucracy, filling out government forms is probably the chore that brings all these irritations to a head.

Americans spend some 138 million hours a year filling in forms from the federal government alone — in addition to tax returns. This is only about an hour for each adult, but the misery is not shared out equally.

Many forms overlap. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare takes the prize with 818 different forms; the Department of Agriculture comes a close second with 699.

The chairman of Eli Lilly, a leading pharmaceutical firm, has told the commission that his company fills out 27,000 forms or reports every year at a cost of $6 million. The research to back them up costs $10 million a year. A single application for permission to sell a new drug for arthritis ran to 120,000 pages.

The Paperwork Commission was set up in 1974 by Congress and has Jimmy Carter's eager support. It is elected, vast administrative reforms designed not so much to save money as to make the bureaucracy more effective. Good luck to him. He would not be the only president to have tried. President Nixon put this cause high on his list of goals.

And it is salutary to remember the work of the commission headed by former President Herbert Hoover that was set up by Congress in 1955 to cut big government down to size. Those were the days when federal spending had risen to a horrifying $75 billion a year (today it is over $400 billion).

But there were nearly as many federal employees then as there are today — 2.3 million. In 1955, before the computer, paperwork costs touched $4 billion.

Troop 176

Boy Scout Troop 176 recently presented merit badges, skill awards and progress awards to 14 scouts during a Court of Honor at Emanuel Lutheran Church.

Receiving merit badges were Michael Barker, Earl Benson, Eric Benson, Bill Calhoun, Stephen Gustafson, Russell Jensen, Paul Johnson, Carl Kjelson, Ralph Ley, David Mills, Richard Moore, Daman Plompen, Jeffrey Porter, Steven Porter.

Mile swim awards earned at the Lake of Isles went to Michael Barker, Carl Benson, Russell Jensen, Ralph Ley and David Mills. A swimming skill award went to Stephen Porter.

Progress awards were presented to Eric Benson, Star Scout, and James Traves, Life Scout.

During the program, E.V. Gustafson, scoutmaster, showed a short movie on the highlights of the Long River Council Bicentennial Encampment at the Rensselaer Airport last May.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Janet had just paid her bus fare when the driver, having already started forward, slammed suddenly on the brakes. Thrown against the coin box, Janet suffered cuts and bruises. Later, in a court action, she demanded damages from the bus company. But the company protested: "A bus ride is never perfectly smooth. Jerks and lurches have to be expected."

"Not this kind," retorted Janet. "Their driver was tailgating the car ahead. That's the only reason he had to stop so sharply."

Janet's point was enough to win the case. The court said bus passengers should not have to endure a rough ride that is caused by the driver's negligent driving.

In another sudden-stop case, however, the injured passenger had no luck with his claim. This time a rascally schoolboy had tossed a snowball through an open bus window, hitting the driver on the head. The court said hitting the bus in these circumstances was what "any person of ordinary prudence" was likely to have done. With no negligence on the part of the driver, the court could see no grounds for holding the company liable.

Furthermore, the passenger, too, has a duty to be careful.

One woman rider, injured as the result of a quick stop, had been stepping backward through the aisle of the bus while she carried on a conversation with a friend. Although there was a handrail along the aisle, she had not bothered to hold on.

These facts came out in court when she filed a damage suit against the bus company. Rejecting her claim, the court said she herself was guilty of negligence for disregarding the common sense rules of safety.

Church use for rally defended

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) - Grace Episcopal Church opened its doors to an old-fashioned political rally during rainy weather last week because it is "willing to serve as a port in a storm to either party, if asked."

That explanation was in a letter the rector sent to parishioners who questioned the partisan political gathering in the downtown church.

The church borders an open air Westminister Mall where an Oct. 25 rally was scheduled with speeches by Rosalynn Carter, wife of the Democratic presidential candidate, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and the statewide slate of party candidates.

The Rev. James J. Gambrell said he and the church's wardens felt many of the 1,100 people present were able to see "the loveliness and majesty of our nave for the first time."

On the question of separation of church and state, Father Gambrell said the possibility of the church being identified with one party was overshadowed by "our knowledge that we would have been willing to serve as a port in a storm to either party, if asked."

"As the only large and commodious meeting place on the Mall, we have been overshadowed by our knowledge that we would have been willing to serve as a port in a storm to either party, if asked."

Police chief offers tips on driving preparedness

Manchester Police Chief Robert Lannan, offering tips on preparing for winter driving, has made some references to "deadly tricks" the season has in store for Manchester drivers.

Winter's reduced visibility and loss of adequate traction were the chief's main concerns.

"Our major winter traffic tie-ups and skid-crashes can be traced back to one or a combination of these factors," Lannan said. "Drivers must re-acquaint themselves to adverse winter conditions. Their vehicles must undergo important changes."

As for changes in driving habits, Lannan said winter weather conditions call for slower-than-normal speeds and increasingly greater distances between cars.

"Under no circumstances," he said, "can you start, go and stop on slippery pavements with anywhere near the efficiency you can on clear, dry roads," he said.

Concerning vehicle maintenance, Lannan suggested that drivers follow checklists endorsed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police, based on testing by a special committee of the National Safety Council.

The checklist:

- Engine tune-ups: Indispensable for dependable starts when the thermometer plunges. More importantly, a sputtering, unresponsive engine makes vehicle control on slick surfaces difficult if not impossible.
- Electrical system: At tune-up time, have your battery checked and the generator (or alternator) as well as the wiring and distributor. Breaks and cracks can short out the system.
- Lights: All must be working and they must be kept clean.
- Exhaust: Make sure the entire system is tight and not leaking deadly carbon monoxide gas.
- Anti-freeze: Keep recommended proportions for prevailing temperatures. Permanent types should be replaced every two years.
- Windshield: Dead wiper blades and weak-pressure wiper arms can't clear snow and ice build-ups. Replace them, and at the same time

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. THE METRIC SYSTEM 6TH OF A DECADE

A UNIFORM SET OF PREFIXES IS USED IN THE METRIC SYSTEM TO TELL US WHETHER WE ARE MULTIPLYING OR DIVIDING THE BASIC UNIT AND BY HOW MUCH.

KILO- (k) = 1,000
HECTO- (h) = 100
DEKA- (dk) = 10
BASE UNIT (GRAM) = 1
DECI- (d) = .1
CENTI- (c) = .01
MILLI- (m) = .001

QUESTION CORNER
Number 8

To speak the metric language, we need to learn a standard set of prefixes to indicate whether we are increasing or decreasing the basic units (meter, liter, or gram) and by how much.

Instead of using clumsy number names, such as one-tenth of a meter or one-hundred liters, Latin or Greek prefixes are added to the basic unit to increase or decrease amounts in powers of 10.

When we divide the meter, Latin prefixes are added to the word "meter." Thus, 1/10th of a meter is 1 decimeter (dm) (from the Latin "decem," for 10), 1/100 of a meter is 1 centimeter (cm), and 1/1,000 of a meter is 1 millimeter (mm). As we accumulated meters, we add Greek prefixes: 10 meters makes 1 decameter (dkm), 100 meters make 1 hectometer (hm), and 1,000 meters make 1 kilometer (km). The same prefixes are used with other basic units of metric measurement, the liter (volume) and the gram (mass).

World Community Day Friday

"Into the Third Century Unafraid" is the theme of this year's World Community Day celebration scheduled for Friday noon at Emanuel Lutheran Church.

All church women in the community are invited to attend the observance, which is one of the three celebrations sponsored annually by Church Women United. Those planning to attend are asked to bring sandwiches for the luncheon in Luther Hall of the church. Beverages and dessert will be provided.

Hostesses are Gloria Kjelson and Audrey Ahlness. Baby-sitting will be at home.

Miss Jennie Jones, intern at Emanuel, will be guest speaker at the service which begins at 1 p.m. in the sanctuary. James W. McKay will be organist, and Mrs. Ernst Englebrecht, soloist.

Others participating in the service include Elaine Holcomb, Irene Goss, Phyllis Gordon, Jeanne Low, Mary McKeever and Carol P'Neil.

Offerings collected on World Community Day will be used for emergency and disaster situations around the world. Church Women United also makes grants to many programs including the Jamaica Homesteads for Marginal Families in the West Indies, the Delta Resources Committee of Greenville, Miss., and the Rural Women and Development in Goa, India.

Gift certificates ($3, $5, $10) to provide blankets for disaster victims will be available during the program. Money for gift certificates will also be collected at this time.

Several attend conference

Several educational secretaries from the Manchester school system attended the 27th annual conference of the Connecticut Association of Educational Secretaries recently at the Northwestern Regional School of Regional School District No. 7 in Winsted.

The following secretaries attended: George Emmerling, principal at Manchester High School, and Elhel Gay Newman, president of the Tangarone, Manchester High School.

Japan's work ethic falls on hard times recently by the Economic Planning Agency revealed that a full 16 per cent of their salaries goes on entertainment, and the durables most bought by single men and women are ski equipment, stereos and hair dryers. All this, and still the bachelor aristocrats are able to save around 15 per cent of their incomes.

By NEA/London

What sets the single worker apart from the married ones is not only the arithmetic of living on one salary but also the fact that the married get fewer fringe benefits. Pay is generally higher for married men but so are taxes.

Single men usually get free or next-to-free company housing in dormitories, and most girls still live at home until marriage. Married couples, except in the biggest companies, do not get subsidized housing. And although day-care centers are now common, the working wife is not yet routine in Japan.

Companies, magazines and sociologists are doing a phenomenal amount of research on Japan's youth "problem." At the bottom of it all is an attempt to answer the vital question: Has the new generation lost the will to work? A brief sampling of conclusions:

A labor ministry poll last December revealed that fewer than 10 per cent of those surveyed would "devote full effort to their work."

Another survey has found that a negligible number of respondents aim to become rich, attain social status or honor.

An Economic Planning Agency survey this summer concluded that the leisure time of single men is taken up by playing pinball, reading comic books, playing mahjong and watching television.

The Livelihood Information Center, financed by private business, reported in May on the goals of single office girls. Saving money is their chief ambition, the survey concluded. Their average savings, $2,000, are a reserve for travel, and marriage to the "ideal" partner — romance be damned — "with a service record of at least five years and an annual salary of $8,000."

But the single-married gap is less important than the distance between these groups and the dropouts on the one hand and the elderly on the other.

In Tokyo, it is hard to see beyond the well-dressed, well-fed and smiling commuters. There is nothing seemingly wrong for them, with enjoying the material proceeds of Japan's economic miracle.

What the older working generation, and the young one too, should be worrying about is the unaccountable wide gap between themselves and the non-working population. So far, the researchers have barely taken note of the problem.

MVD INFO

Q. Why can't I keep the previous owner's registration plates when I buy a car from a private party?

A. Unlike some other states, the Connecticut motor vehicle registration system identifies the true owner of the vehicle described rather than just the vehicle itself, such as boats where the registration number remains with the boat despite a change in ownership. It also helps to properly identify a correct record and transaction and clears the file of the previous owner who otherwise would be taxed for the vehicle.

Q. Why do I need a Bill of Sale to register a car?

A. Vehicles ten or more years old do not require a title. Upon transfer of ownership, therefore, the Bill of Sale is the only proof of ownership. It is also used to figure the proper amount of Connecticut Sales Tax to be collected by the MVD.

Q. How much does a temporary registration cost, how long are they valid and can they be renewed?

A. Each temporary registration for a passenger vehicle costs $4.00. The first such temporary is good for 10 days. They are not renewable. A second temporary may be obtained by reapplying and will only be issued based on the merits of each individual case. If issued, it would also be valid for 10 days. A third temporary registration may again be obtained by reapplying, but it would only be valid for 1 day.

Questions may be sent to MVD INFO, Department of Motor Vehicles, 60 State St., Wethersfield, Conn. 06109. Motor Vehicle Department Offices are open Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, 8:30 to 4:30; Thursday, 8:30 to 7:30; and Saturday, 8:30 to 12:30.

VA news

Q - Would receipt of parents dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC) be a bar to a widow's receiving death pension?

A - No. Receipt of DIC, based upon the death of a son, would not be a bar to the receipt of pension based upon the death of another person.

Q - I borrowed the maximum available on my National Service Life Insurance policy and did not pay the interest on the loan. I was later notified that the loan and interest amount was more than the reserve value of the policy. I took no action and the policy was canceled. Is it possible to reinstate the policy?

A - If the insured, after notice, permits the policy to be canceled because of excessive indebtedness against it, it may not be reinstated.

Q - May a veteran receive educational assistance for attending college and for on-the-job training at the same time?

A - No. He will be paid educational assistance for only one type of training at a time.

Q - May a veteran obtain a mobile-home loan through the VA loan guaranty program?

A - The VA will guarantee loans, obtained through private lenders, for purchase of mobile homes with lot up to a maximum of $27,500.

The smart people still save at Hartford National

Here was a man who knew how to get more out of things, even in 1792. He left ship owning to others, and made a fortune in marine insurance. He ran for Congress, then served 20 terms. And he put his savings in an American bank even before savings earned interest.

The bank was Hartford National. John Caldwell kept his money in a Hartford National account. Back then, we could only keep his savings safe. But we could save him time, trouble and money by giving him a place to borrow, a source of advice, even the 1792 version of checking.

For a man who wanted more for his money, Hartford National added up. Even in 1792.

Smart man, Caldwell. Things haven't changed all that much in 184 years. Savings earn interest now, and smart people still get more for their money by saving at Hartford National. In fact, nearly 200,000 smart people save at more than 60 Hartford National offices today.

It makes sense. We've had a long, long time to polish all the ways we can help you save. We'll always modify different savings plans for different individual needs.
