And they're off and running...

More than 1,000 men, women and children - 927 official entrants - stepped off the starting area yesterday in the 40th edition of the Five Mile Road Race. Here Herald Chief Photographer Reggie Pinto caught the record field as it headed south on Main Street. Complete details on sports pages.

Relief rushed to quake victims

VAN, Turkey (UPI) — The United States today flew tons of relief supplies to shattered eastern Turkey where the worst earthquake in nearly 40 years killed more than 3,300 persons. Officials feared the death toll may go even higher with relief workers battling snow, sleet and landslides to reach the injured and homeless in remote villages in a region that borders both the Soviet Union and Iran. Gov. Burhan Yavuz Yilmaz of Van province said the number of bodies recovered had risen to 3,302 from the quake, which was the strongest in 37 years. U.S. Air Force C130 transport planes flew 1,120 polar tents with individual heating systems, 10,000 blankets and cooking pots to Van from the Incirlik air base in southern Turkey. U.S. officials in Ankara said 25 planes with relief supplies would land at Incirlik within the next few days from the United States. International aid was also arriving from Italy, Switzerland and West Germany. But blocked roads and bad weather were delaying distribution to earthquake victims.

"If only I had a shovel," said Mehmet Zeki, who lost his wife, three children and 86-year-old mother in the quake. "They died under the bricks and stone, shouting and screaming tiel," said Mehmet Zeki. "They died under the brick towards the stable, but the stable came toward me. I looked toward the house. It was shaking unbelievably. The stable wall fell on me. The house also collapsed. I dragged myself from under the wall and ran toward the house. I managed to get my badly injured wife from beneath the rubble. But my three-year-old daughter was crushed to death. Three towns — Muradiye, Caldiran and Ercis — and 80 villages of mostly one-story mud huts were devastated, local officials said. "Muradiye is a shambles," said Aziz Celikezer, a survivor. "Everybody there is dead." Celikezer, who was evacuated with his injured wife to Ankara, described what happened at 2:22 P.M. Wednesday when the earthquake, measuring 7.6 on the open-ended

Richter Scale, struck north of Lake Van near the border with Soviet Armenia, Iran and Iraq. "I was attending a meeting at a local school," he said. "It came with an ear-shattering noise. I ran to my house; it was a pile of rubble. All the town of Muradiye was covered under a cloud of dust coming from the collapsing buildings." A Turkish news agency reporter in the town said only three buildings remained standing. "All the rest were either completely demolished or badly damaged with only a few walls standing up," he said.

Throughout the day Thursday, soldiers, rescue workers and relief teams battled heavy snow and blinding sleet to reach the mountainous earthquake zone. Often they were slowed by landslides and gasoline shortages. Turkish air force planes dropped supplies to villages and a field hospital and 8,000 tents were sent in by the Red Crescent, Turkey's Red Cross. The thousands of homeless victims, meantime, huddled a second night around makeshift fires in below zero temperatures. Electricity and water supplies were cut and communications with the outside disrupted.

'Banner day for Manchester and our state' — Gov. Grasso

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

It was not much of a surprise, but the official word came Wednesday afternoon — The J.C. Penney Co. will be locating a catalog distribution center in Manchester.

The plans for the center had been known publicly since late October, but the formal announcement was not made until Wednesday. Even though the element of surprise was missing, there were plenty of smiles and words of praise spread through the 90-minute conference, which included a champagne reception.

"This is a very good way to begin our Thanksgiving holiday," Gov. Ella Grasso said in her opening remarks. About 125 people, including town and state officials and Penney executives, attended the conference, held at the Manchester Country Club. "The company's decision to center its northeastern growth in our state certainly is a vote of confidence in Connecticut and its future," Mrs. Grasso said.

"As you know, the priority of this administration has been to take every possible step to revitalize the economy of our state — to put people without work back in jobs," she said. "This new facility will create more than 2,000 jobs, and it represents a major contribution to the business growth of Connecticut.

"This is a banner day for Manchester and for our state," she said.

After finishing her talk, the governor gave James Shugrue, commissioner of transportation, a letter instructing the Department of Transportation to find an alternate location for I-291. The original site of the proposed highway was on property that is now planned for the J.C. Penney site.

A J.C. Penney Co. spokesman said that he foresees no problems in satisfying 11 changes suggested for the proposed site of the company's distribution center.

Ralph B. Henderson, vice president and director of catalog operations, said that he feels the company can meet the changes, requested by neighboring residents, with little effect on their planned location in the Buckland section of Manchester.

Henderson was one of the Penney officials who met Wednesday with four residents who live in the Burnham St.-Craft Dr. area next to the proposed location of the 400-acre industrial park that would include the Penney facility.

A committee of the neighbors had drawn up 11 proposed changes that they would like to see made to the industrial park plans. Most of the changes dealt with traffic and buffer zones between the park and their homes.

Some of the proposed changes, such as the relocation of Windsor St., would be alterations the town would have to make. Others, such as the relocation of a parking lot and the construction of buffers, would directly affect Penney.

Some people expected that the relocation of the parking lot, which was proposed for the north side of the Penney building, within a few hundred feet of Burnham St. homes, would be a major problem.

But Henderson indicated Wednesday that the company has agreed that the proposed site for the lot will be shifted.

He said that Penney officials were apprehensive before the meeting with the neighborhood representatives.

"But, the meeting was very encouraging because of the fine spirit of cooperation," he said. "We'll have good neighbors and the Penney company plans to be good neighbors."

Two of the residents who attended the meeting said that they were pleased with the results of the session.

Ray Smith said that the meeting had gone "very smoothly."

"If they follow through with what they say they are going to do, everything is going to be all right," he said.

Debbie Rogers said, "I'm much calmer now than I was when this was first thrown at us."

Israel objecting to Syrian move

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israel has told the United States it will oppose the entry of Syrian police or any foreign force into southern Lebanon. "It is quite logical we would not accept such an idea," a government source said. "Today it's police, tomorrow soldiers in police uniforms, soldiers the next day and then what do we have?"

Reports on government radio and television said Ambassador Simcha Dinitz spelled out the Israeli position in a meeting with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in Washington Thursday.

Israel would like to see the Lebanese army or a local paramilitary force become responsible for maintaining order in the only section yet unoccupied by the Syrian peace-keeping troops, government sources said.

Kissinger said the Syrians feel they should move a limited force south of the Litani River since there is no other way to supervise the activity of Palestinian guerrillas in the region, the radio said.

"Israel's response was totally negative," the report said. "Opposition was declared to Syrian presence and terrorist activity in the south."

Israeli leaders have said the government will not tolerate the entry of any hostile force into a fuzziily defined area south of the Litani, which flows more or less parallel to the border at distances from 18 miles to two miles.

In a speech to a convention of American Conservative Jews in Jerusalem, Defense Minister Shimon Peres said Israel saw no need for any foreign force in southern Lebanon.

"It is not an empty space, there are forces ready to defend their security and peace," he said, apparently referring to local militias of Christian and Moslem villages.

"There is no need for conquering Syrian forces or destructive forces of the Palestine Liberation Organization," he said.

Israel recently beefed up troops and armor along the Lebanese border in a well publicized show of force.

Not polite, but...

It's not polite to talk behind someone's back, but in this case Ralph B. Henderson, director of catalog operations for J.C. Penney, probably didn't mind at all. Town Manager Robert B. Weiss, left, and Gov. Ella Grasso, right, share a laugh while Henderson listens to a speaker at Wednesday's press conference. The conference was called to formally announce that J.C. several steps required by both the state and the town to bring the Penney facility to Manchester. Ralph B. Henderson, Penney vice president and director of catalog operations, stressed the cooperation his company has received from both state and local officials. "There's been a spirit of cooperativeness that gives us the feeling we're working with a unified team," Henderson said. "It extends from Mr. Weiss, Town Manager Robert B. Weiss) through to the governor." Henderson said that the distribution center will be 47 acres under roof and should be open by the summer of 1980. The entire Penney property will be about 150 acres, making it the major tenant of a 400-acre industrial park proposed by the town. The distribution center will concentrate primarily on filling orders placed from surrounding Penney outlets.

Trudeau may seek vote on Quebec separation

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said Thursday he may have a national referendum to determine how Canadians feel about Quebec's possible separation from Canada. Parti Quebecois leader Rene Levesque, sworn in as Quebec's 23rd premier Thursday, has promised a provincial referendum within three years on whether Canada's largest province should become independent. At a wide-ranging news conference, Trudeau raised the possibility of a national referendum on the issue if Quebec votes to separate. "We not only have to ask if Quebec wants to stay in Canada, but we also have to ask the rest of Canada if they want to retain Quebec in Confederation," Trudeau said. "This might be a way of reassuring Quebec it is really well-liked in the rest of Canada — unless the vote went the other way." He said such a national referendum might even be held before the Quebec referendum if he felt it was necessary to calm a climate of uncertainty. Trudeau said he did not think the rest of

Quake reported

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI) — The National Earthquake Information Service said a strong earthquake occurred today off the California coast in the Pacific Ocean. An NEIS spokesman said the quake occurred at 6:19 a.m. (EST), about 60 miles west of Crescent City, Calif. The quake measured 6.3 on the Richter scale. The spokesman said shocks from the quake should be felt "only along the coast and we don't expect any damage."

Conversion complicates purchases of gift CBs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thinking about buying a Citizens Band radio for Christmas? The Federal Trade Commission recommends caution. It issued a "consumer alert" Tuesday to remind the public of a significant change that will be occurring one week after Christmas. On Jan. 1, the number of CB channels will increase by government order from 23 to 40. The 40-channel sets can be sold only after Jan. 1. Consequently, some consumers may wind up buying sets that can't be converted to 40-channel reception after the FTC said. The sets will still be usable for the 23 existing channels. The FTC said it will closely watch the promotion of and advertising for CB equipment done by importers, distributors and retailers to make sure they are adequately informing buyers of the facts. The agency said it wants the conditions and terms of conversion agreements clearly stated.

Regulations foster adversary attitude

"The business of America is business," said Calvin Coolidge back in 1925. Today, many would revise that to say, "The business of America is complying with government regulations."

There is no question but that the chore of meeting the requirements of and filing reports with the federal government's lengthening list of regulatory agencies has become a major business of American business, large and small.

The first federal regulatory body was the Interstate Commerce Commission, established by Congress in 1887 to regulate the railroads. Later the ICC took the job of regulating motor carriers as well.

As the nation's modern industrial economy developed in the 20th century, other agencies were created. Chief among these were the Federal Trade Commission (1914), Federal Power Commission (1930), Federal Communications Commission (1934), Securities Exchange Commission (1934) and the Civil Aeronautics Board (1940).

Regulatory powers were also conferred upon departments in the executive branch, and much of Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal program in the 1930s was carried out through such departments. Throughout the same period, a comparable development took place in state and local governments.

During the last decade or so, in response to newly perceived needs, we have seen the creation of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, Environmental Protection Agency, Consumer Product Safety Commission, Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, Mining Enforcement and Safety Commission and Federal Energy Research and Development Administration, to name a few.

In addition, older members of the "alphabet soup" of department and agencies have expanded their activities. For example, in 1940 the Department of Labor administered 18 regulatory programs; by 1960 the number had increased to 40, and by 1975 it was 134.

In one recent year, 1974, 25,000 federal regulations were issued, and every year more than 5,000 federal reporting forms are distributed. Completing these forms (not counting tax reports) requires some 130 million work hours annually and enforcing all the government's regulations occupies some 74,000 federal employees.

Fortunately, there is also no question but that many regulations have resulted in immense benefits for the public. Car safety laws, combined with the 55-m.p.h. speed limit and highway deaths in half. The Consumer Product Safety Commission reports that in the two years since child-proof caps have been required on medicine containers, deaths by aspirin ingestion alone among children under five have been reduced by 48 per cent.

Unfortunately, however, the proliferation of agencies and regulations, many of which seem to work at cross-purposes to each other, has fostered an adversary attitude between business and government and various public interest groups.

Realizing the need for a long overdue dialogue between these three vital sectors of our society, American Management Association (AMA), a non-profit educational organization that conducts worldwide management training programs for more than 100,000 public and private executives annually, is sponsoring a forum designed to bring together leaders from the ranks of all three sectors, as well as labor.

"The First National Forum on Business, Government and The Public Interest" will be held in Chicago, Dec. 1-3.

"Unless we do something now to create an understanding among the major sectors involved," says AMA president James L. Hayes, "we may become hopelessly enmeshed in a maze of misunderstandings, conflicting policies and decisions which, instead of helping the economy prosper or protecting the public interest, may cause economic stagnation and public unrest."

In addition, older members of the "alphabet soup" of department and agencies have expanded their activities. For example, in 1940 the Department of Labor administered 18 regulatory programs; by 1960 the number had increased to 40, and by 1975 it was 134.

In light of numerous proposals to streamline government at all levels, proposals by Manchester's town manager to add more management personnel deserves careful inspection. That inspection should cover the 11 years (minus a month) since the town manager took office.

Because he bases Manchester's needs (for another assistant town manager, a budget analyst and for more advisory committees) on Manchester's growth since 1966, it is interesting to note that the population in 1966 was about 45,000 and that the population now is about 47,000 — up about 4 per cent.

When the town manager took office 11 years ago (minus a month), Manchester had a town manager, a town planner, a town counsel, a part-time health director, a police chief and a director of recreation — among other administrative heads.

What it didn't have 11 years ago (less a month) was an assistant town manager, two administrative assistants, a director of human services, an assistant town planner, a full-time health director and two civilian assistants, a deputy police chief (plus a sophisticated computerized records system), an almost full-time assistant town counsel, an assistant director of recreation, a zoning enforcement officer and a general upgrading of middle management personnel in all departments. It has them all today.

One doesn't doubt that the added positions have increased the efficiency of administrative duties. What it also has done, however, is to increase the rationalization (by Manchester administrators) that the positions were needed and that the requested ones also are needed.

In looking around Manchester and in questioning Manchester residents, however, it is difficult to pinpoint enough improvements, let alone additions to services rendered to justify all those positions.

Sincerely,
Sol H. Cohen

WASHINGTON — I still think I could walk a letter to New York faster than the Postal Service can deliver it by wheels or wings, but credit where credit is due.

For the first time since the P.S. was created as an independent corporation in 1971, it has brought us some good news. The postal work force has been reduced from 728,911 in '71 to 664,000 today. And the Service actually showed a $15-million surplus in the quarter that ended in September — the first in its short history.

Postal union contracts, naturally, prohibits layoffs of regular employees even if they spend their work days at tiddlywinks. But the Service has made the work force reduction possible through attrition — no filling vacancies left by departing employees. Some 50,000 jobs were eliminated since Jan. 2, 1975, at a savings of $600-million a year, according to Postmaster General Benjamin F. Ballar.

Ballar says this reduction of jobs has been proceeding at a rate of about 2,000 a month. "This is not a fluke," Ballar told reporters. "Our employment level has dropped in every craft and at every level." He said also the number of man hours worked has decreased.

A small bully for Ballar. The policy not only saves money in wages and salaries, it cuts the ever increasing cost of such benefits as health insurance, vacation and sick leaves, and future pension payments.

Tell that to angry readers of this prose, Ballar. The mail, when it finally arrives at this desk, still tells horror stories about the Service's struggle to transport a letter from one street to another in the same city. Even giant-sized utility bills — courtesy of our energy geniuses — almost always take two days from post office to my modest lean-to. And toasts are drunk when a letter from New York gets here in two days.

Accordingly, I am cheered that President-elect Carter has reaffirmed his campaign promise to seek legislation aimed at making the semiprivate Postal Service more responsive to the public's elected representatives.

Specifically, Carter would make the Postmaster General a Presidential appointee subject to confirmation by the Senate. The P.S. now is appointed by the Postal Service's board of governors and confirmed by the Senate. But although the board is appointed by the President, he has no direct control over the P.G. and can't fire him. Carter also would abolish the independent Postal Rate Commission and make the board of governors responsible for setting rates.

But Carter should seriously consider going whole hog by abolishing the Postal Service and returning the job of delivering mail to the government. A federal bureaucracy at times may be unwieldy and time-serving, but it can be made to straighten up and fly right by public pressure exerted through Congress and the White House. Even the CIA has been forced by an aroused electorate to watch its manners a little more carefully.

Anyway, although economies are always welcome, the Postal Service's job, under whatever setup, is to dispatch the mail from Aik to Ghent as swiftly as possible and at the lowest possible cost to the user. Ben Franklin created the system as a service, not as money-making corporation. Do we ask our firemen to show a profit?

Family Week also. Their concern is well placed, since only strong families can assure the survival of a strong and free society.

"The future belongs to those nations that are prepared to make a primary commitment to their families and children," says Dr. Urie Bronfenbrenner of Cornell University, widely recognized as a leading expert on the family. "As a nation we have not yet been willing to make that commitment."

"However, we have the resources in human talent and imagination to reverse the negative trends. But it's up to us to capitalize on these assets to assure a brighter future for our families and the next generation of Americans."

Bronfenbrenner himself is a kindly man dedicated personally as well as academically to helping stop the erosion of the nation's family-based society. One effort he is involved in is an ongoing seminar program, coordinated by George Washington University. Its participants will suggest to the government changes in laws to aid families in such areas as health, education, welfare, and military transfers.

Leaders of the university program note — with good logic — that the government now requires environmental impact statements before laws are passed or major projects undertaken. Should it not

But that $15-million surplus should not set us working stiffly to dancing in the streets. Under the law, certain government subsidies for money-losing operations are counted as revenues. But the taxpayer does get a crumb. Only 12 per cent of all Postal Service revenues came from public dough during the recent quarter. The figure was 24 per cent in the last year of the old Post Office Department. These days, even a nickel saved is progress.

However, I wonder if Ballar plucked one of his figures at random. He claims that the Service's economic were not "at the expense of service," and that 95 per cent of first class urban mail gets overnight service.

Tell that to angry readers of this prose, Ballar. The mail, when it finally arrives at this desk, still tells horror stories about the Service's struggle to transport a letter from one street to another in the same city. Even giant-sized utility bills — courtesy of our energy geniuses — almost always take two days from post office to my modest lean-to. And toasts are drunk when a letter from New York gets here in two days.

Accordingly, I am cheered that President-elect Carter has reaffirmed his campaign promise to seek legislation aimed at making the semiprivate Postal Service more responsive to the public's elected representatives.

Specifically, Carter would make the Postmaster General a Presidential appointee subject to confirmation by the Senate. The P.S. now is appointed by the Postal Service's board of governors and confirmed by the Senate. But although the board is appointed by the President, he has no direct control over the P.G. and can't fire him. likewise require family impact statements, they ask, to assure that legislation doesn't harm the quality of family life?

A number of other hopeful signs pointing to a better future for America's families are also on the horizon, according to K. Wayne Scott, president of the American Family Society. The Washington-based Society is a private, nonprofit research and educational organization geared to helping families cope with the stresses of everyday life. It is backed by Bronfenbrenner, among other family experts.

"We believe that parental preoccupation with other matters, often at the expense of spending quality time with their children, is a major source of the difficulties families experience today," says Scott.

"A second major problem," he told Scripps League Newspapers, "is the general apathy shown toward those who actively promote philosophies and life styles counter to time-tested values and practices that have created wholesome family relationships and worthwhile communities."

Fortunately, according to Scott, some of America's best minds and most influential organizations are pushing efforts to increase family unity. One of the most useful products to emerge from the effort is a full-color book published by the insurance industry's Million Dollar Round Table and called Family Time: A Revolutionary Old Idea.

Crammed with practical ideas to help family members enjoy each other, Family Time suggests that "Each family would benefit from a weekly time together spent on and in quality projects/events/times that enrich, deepen, bring joy to family living."

Family Time also suggests that "No other success can compensate for a failure in the home." As individual families, and as a nation, we would do well to heed the advice.

Today's thought
"Tracer of lost persons"
Do you remember the old radio drama, "Mr. Keene, Tracer of Lost Persons"? Mr. Keene never failed to locate people who had disappeared, and restored them to their loved ones.

I know a real tracer of lost persons who is always looking for us; it's our Creator. Maybe he comes after us through our conscience, a caring person, or a Bible verse, but he follows us because he wants us to return his love.

Today in Friday, Nov. 26, the 331st day of 1976 with 35 to follow. The moon is moving toward its first quarter.

The morning stars are Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius.

John Harvard, founder of Harvard University, was born Nov. 26, 1607.

On this day in history:
In 1789, President George Washington set this day aside as one of national thanksgiving for adoption of the United States Constitution.

In 1930, one-fourth of all office space in New York City's skyscrapers was vacant because of the depression.

In 1940, the German Nazis forced half a million Jews in Warsaw to live in a ghetto surrounded by an eight-foot concrete wall.

A thought for the day: American humorist Will Rogers said, "Everything is funny as long as it is happening to somebody else."

America's families: Help on the way?

WASHINGTON — This city has just registered two alarming firsts: the first major American city where abortions now outnumber births, and the first city where more children are born out of wedlock than are born to married women.

District government officials, in releasing the newly compiled figures covering 1975, noted that blacks accounted for about 87 per cent of all resident births in the capital and likely made up about the same proportion of the nearly 10,000 known abortions here. In addition, 57 per cent of all children born to blacks in the city — which has a majority black population — were illegitimate, compared to about 13 per cent for whites.

The collapse of moral restraints and traditional family relationships in Washington, while extreme, is symbolic of the general decay in family life that has swept the nation in recent years. Permit a few more statistics:

Divorces in the U.S. have doubled in the last 10 years, reaching one million in 1975 alone. One of every four marriages today ends in divorce. One of every six children is now reared by a single parent, and an estimated one million youngsters — most from middle-class families — will run away from home this year.

Spurred in part by such sobering trends, President Ford, at the urging of Congress, has designated this Thanksgiving Week to be National

Meaning of early heartbeats

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I read an article in the newspaper that caused me some concern. The title was "Skipped Heartbeats May Be Forerunner of Sudden Death." Since I have been subject to premature beats for about 20 years I read the article with some trepidation. The article said the significance of the premature beats depends on their setting. They are more significant in persons who have already had a heart attack or in persons who have a large number of them.

I am 59 years old, 5 feet 1 and weigh 112 pounds. I have never had a heart attack. I teach English and lead a fairly active life. I follow a regular exercise program - a half hour of calisthenics, including jumping jacks, every weekday morning; brisk walks (three to five miles round trip) four or five days a week, frequent working out to music; and almost daily bicycle riding in the summer. I drink one cup of coffee a day and smoke about a carton of cigarettes a month.

My doctor has been aware of these irregular beats from the time they began and he assures me that they are not from any organic heart condition. I have an annual physical, and my cholesterol, triglycerides and blood pressure are all within normal range. He says not to worry about these skipped beats and up until now I have managed not to worry unduly about them. However, when I read this article, I wondered if continued research had revealed new knowledge which might apply to me. I do have them almost daily and sometimes they are sustained. They do not seem to be related to exercise or exertion.

DEAR READER - Since you have had them for 20 years, if they are a forerunner of sudden death, you have been very lucky, particularly considering all that physical activity. Seriously, I think you can relax under the circumstances. It is true that premature beats that come from the ventricle in a person in the hospital with a heart attack can be quite important. They may even precede a fatal irregularity of the heart. If they occur for the first time in a person who has underlying heart disease they can be significant.

To give you more information about premature beats I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-12, Heart Irregularities, Skipped Beats, Tachycardias. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mail order. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

The vast majority of premature beats that people have in daily life are suggest heart disease, we returned these people to full flying duty. People with these problems should quit smoking, avoid coffee, tea, colas and anything that causes indigestion. Of course, a medical check-up was brought on during its exercise and went away as tain what they mean.

HSA local council lists study areas

High on a list of health study suggestions presented to the local Health Systems Agency (HSA) subarea council Tuesday night is the need for a dental program.

Nancy Tyrrel, Manchester school dental health nurse, said she was appalled at the lack of dental care for children in Manchester. "Dentists are refusing welfare cases," she said, and they are not taking emergency cases.

Other areas mentioned were:

- Emergency Medical Service (EMS). Manchester is well covered, but smaller towns in the area are not. There should be a study on what people expect and what services should be supplied.
- Lead screening. A program which was conducted jointly with Hartford last year showed several cases of lead poisoning which proves there should be a periodical screening among young children, according to Dr. Alice Turck, town health director.
- Transportation. Low income families have difficulty providing transportation for those who need to visit clinics or doctors' offices.

Mental Health. Paul Moss said a group of hospital trustees headed by Mrs. Elinor Rubnow are looking for input from local groups as to what to include in a mental health clinic to be planned at Manchester Memorial Hospital. An assessment of what the public considers as needs could have a bearing on the decision making, Moss said. There are currently 26 beds provided for mental health patients at MMH. They are always filled and there is usually a waiting list, Moss said.

Moss will appoint a task force representing the towns on the subarea council which will report on a mental health study at the next meeting on Dec. 28.

Moss also told the council that a joint planning committee of officials from Rockville General Hospital and Manchester Memorial Hospital is studying the possibility of consolidating the obstetric and pediatric services in both hospitals. He said he hoped that the committee would have a final report in the next two or three weeks.

Carter says tax cut depends on statistics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President-elect Jimmy Carter says he will wait for the October - November-December economic statistics to come in before deciding whether to recommend a tax cut to stimulate the economy.

The current statistics show a recovery that appears to have stalled.

In October, unemployment was 7.9 per cent, up somewhat from May's 7.3 per cent, the lowest it had fallen during the recovery from the severe 1973-75 recession.

In the third quarter of this year, the Gross National Product, when discounted for inflation, grew at an annual rate of 4 per cent.

This was less than half the 9.3 per cent rate of the first quarter, and below the 4.5 per cent rate of the second quarter. On the price front, wholesale prices rose by an annual rate of 7.2 per cent. Wholesale food prices fell, but industrial prices rose at an annual rate of 12 per cent. That increase was the largest in a year.

As for the outlook, Benjamin M. Friedman of Harvard, an economic adviser to Carter, gave the Senate Banking Committee in mid-November a gray picture for 1977 if stimulative steps are not taken by a Carter administration.

Friedman advocates a tax rebate. Friedman foresees an increase of only 3 per cent in GNP for 1977, making next year "a slower year for the U.S. economy than 1976 has been." "This outlook suggests that unemployment will fall slightly but will nevertheless remain at or above 7 per cent by the end of 1977," he said.

Carter told congressional leaders Nov. 23 that he hopes to cut unemployment by as much as 1.5 per cent and return the economy to a healthy 6 per cent growth rate by the end of his first year in office. And he reiterated that he would decide nothing about a possible tax cut until he sees the economic indicators for the last quarter of 1976.

"There has been an excessive assumption within the press that I have decided for a tax cut," Carter said.

Can the Titanic be raised?

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — The author of a novel about the raising of the Titanic believes the luxurious liner, which sank to the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean almost 65 years ago, can be brought to the surface in good condition.

Furthermore, Clive Cussler explains exactly how the sunken ship can be salvaged in his spellbinding adventure novel, "Raise the Titanic." The time is the 1960s and the method of lifting the huge four-stacker is ingenious but believable.

Cussler's book, published by the Viking Press late in October, already is headed for the best-seller list. Bantam Books has paid $50,000 for paperback rights and $450,000 has been offered for a movie to be filmed by producer Sir Lew Grade and director Stanley Kramer. Written as entertainment.

"I wrote it as entertainment," Cussler said in an interview. "I tried to make it almost like a movie. It was a fascinating concept to work with."

Cussler said he hopes his novel will stir up some interest in finding the Titanic, which sank after hitting an iceberg in 1912 on her maiden voyage from England to New York. The motive for raising the Titanic in the novel was the belief that the only existing supply of a precious metal vital to the defense of the United States had been put aboard the ill-fated vessel.

Among the approximately 2,200 passengers aboard the 882-foot-long liner was John Jacob Astor, who was among the 1,490 dead, and the "unsinkable" Molly Brown of Denver, one of the 705 survivors.

"I hope we will see some action taken in 1977 to see if we can find the bulk," Cussler said. "It would not be a great technical feat."

Sank in 12,000 of water.

Cussler noted that the Titanic sank in 12,000 feet of water.

"There is no destructive sea life at that depth," Cussler said. "The temperature is around freezing at 33 degrees. Also there is a low level of oxygen and salt in the water so it couldn't have rusted away. If cameras are ever lowered, you should be able to read 'Titanic' over the bow."

Cussler, a native Californian who has spent much of his spare time skin-diving, has probed the depths of lakes in the Rocky Mountains in search of aircraft that disappeared 30 years ago. So the thought of salvaging a ship would not be a new idea to him. He said he ran across some oceanographic expedition's photos in a Denver library.

"They had dropped cameras in the deep," Cussler said. "They found actual objects, a newspaper beautifully preserved in 8,000 feet of water. A World War II fighter plane, which had been ditched at 10,000 feet, looked like it had just come out of the factory."

"Seeing the picture of the well-preserved plane caused him to begin thinking about the Titanic and its condition."

Post office mistake saves lives of couple

BROMSGROVE, England (UPI) — A post office mistake saved the lives of a nurse and her sick husband who had made a suicide pact.

Court testimony said the nurse put a second-class stamp on her note to an uncle, telling him of the pact, to make sure it wouldn't be delivered until she and her husband were dead.

But the post office mistakenly treated the letter as first class and delivered it the next day. The uncle called the police who found the couple unconscious from a drug overdose. They were taken to a hospital and recovered.

The court was told the death pact was made after the nurse was caught at her hospital stealing pain-killing drugs for her husband, who suffers from hemophilia and arthritis.

Cussler said the movie version of his novel would be costly because of the nature of the story — a hurricane at sea, the raising of the ship, and the process of towing it to the Brooklyn Navy Yard. The film will be budgeted at $15 million.

Cussler is now working on another novel, his fourth, about a missing C97 Stratocruiser with a mysterious cargo, highly classified.

Lutz Junior Museum given $31,593 bequest - Lutz Junior Museum has received a bequest of $31,593 from the estate of the late Miss Helen E. Gorman, a former teacher in Manchester public schools.

This gift is the largest ever received by the museum and will be used to promote future expansion of museum facilities and services. Miss Nina Dvornik, president of the museum's board of trustees said.

A plaque, acknowledging Miss Gorman's gift, will be dedicated in a ceremony in the near future. Several items belonging to Miss Gorman and given to the museum by her friends are now on display at the museum.

Miss Gorman, who died last December in Gunderland, N.Y., taught in Manchester elementary schools for 40 years before her retirement in 1958. She began her teaching career at Washington School in 1928 and later transferred to the former Hillier St. School, now Bentley School.

She was one of the museum's earliest supporters and continuous users of the museum's teacher resource materials.

Miss Hazel Lutz, museum founder and co-worker of Miss Gorman, said she was "a teacher who conscientiously sought to fulfill her obligations to see that every child in her room attained the standard of excellence required of that grade level."

False alarms, fires at MHS cause concern

Manchester High School and town Fire Department officials are concerned about a recent outbreak of false alarms and minor fires at the school.

"The situation is a problem. There's no two ways about it," James McKay, deputy fire chief said. In the last two weeks, there have been about six false alarms or small fires reported at the school, fire authorities said.

McKay said that the problem is being dealt with by school authorities.

"I know Mr. Emmerling (Principal George Emmerling) is on top of the fire, according to firemen at the school. He's upset about it," McKay said. Emmerling said Wednesday that firm administrative action would be taken when offenders are caught.

Firemen battle garage fire - Eighth District fire fighters are silhouetted as they battle a garage blaze Wednesday night. The garage, located at 66 Helaine Rd., and a new automobile were destroyed, but there was only minor exterior damage to the home. (Photo by Dave Roback)

Fire destroys car and garage

A fire Wednesday night at 66 Helaine Rd. destroyed a garage and a new automobile, which may have been the cause of the fire, according to firemen at the scene.

A total of 48 Eighth District firemen responded to an alarm at 6:57 p.m. Wednesday. The fire was under control by 7:10 p.m., but not before both the garage and the 1977 model auto had been ruined, fire fighters said.

There was, however, only minor exterior smoke damage to the attached home of Charles Blakeslee. Wally Irish, assistant fire marshal for the Eighth District, said that the fire apparently started in the automobile, which was inside the garage. He said that a faulty carburetor may have ignited the vehicle, although the cause will be further investigated.

Three fire engines and a rescue truck were called to the scene of the fire, and a fourth engine was placed on standby. The last fire vehicle left the scene at 8:10 p.m.

East Hartford - Michael P. Lefrancois, 37, of 135 E. Middle Tpk., Manchester, was arrested Wednesday on a court warrant charging him with making a series of burglaries in the area of the Tudor Village, the area and the Long Hill Rd. area in February and March.

He was charged with third-degree burglary (seven counts), first-degree larceny (five counts), third-degree larceny, and fourth-degree larceny.

He is scheduled to appear in Common Pleas Court 12 in East Hartford Dec. 13. He was released on his written promise to appear.

Anthony J. Lupacchino, 17, of 45 Warren Dr. was arrested Thursday at 12:25 a.m. on Main St. and charged with reckless driving, carrying a weapon (knife) in a car, threatening (four counts), assault on a police officer, and resisting arrest.

The charges involved a car chase from the aircraft area of Main St. down to Connecticut Blvd., police said. Lupacchino posted $1,000 surety bond for court appearance Dec. 14.

John R. Tofli, 19, of Hartford was arrested Thursday evening and charged with fourth-degree larceny and second-degree larceny.

The charges stem from a break Thursday into an apartment at the south end of Main St. Missing from the apartment were two wallets containing $27, an 11-month-old Doberman pinscher, and dog food. The car belonging to the apartment resident, the brothers and witnesses told police.

The injured brother was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released. No arrests were made.

Engineers will study East Hartford dikes

The threat of a 1,000-year flood and the current state and height of the East Hartford river dikes are causing the Army Corps of Engineers to focus on East Hartford, Mayor Richard Blackstone says.

A flood such as the one which struck the Virginia area several years ago would have caused great havoc in East Hartford, engineers have told the mayor.

The town's dikes are about five feet lower than those in Hartford. The lack of retention basins upriver increase the hazard to the town.

The engineers told the mayor they have funds to begin a study of the town's flood protection system along the Connecticut River.

The report of the Connecticut River Comprehensive Study published by the Corps of Engineers in 1970 recommended the construction of seven more reservoirs to supplement the existing 16 reservoirs and seven mainstem Connecticut River local protection projects in order to provide the desired level of flood protection.

Since 1970, the basin states have withdrawn their support of the seven more reservoirs. This means the needed level of protection urged by the engineers for six mainstem urban communities including East Hartford will not be provided by these reservoir basins.

The basins were to be created in Massachusetts and New Hampshire. Local pressure caused the states to withdraw their support, the mayor said.

The New England River Basins Committee earlier this year issued a preliminary report which proposed the town study raising its dikes 4.3 feet at a cost of about $7 million. Most of the cost would be covered by federal funds, said Col. Ralph T. Garver of the corps.

Col. Garver told the mayor the study will take about two years. The better answer is to retain excess water in the upriver states until it is safe to release it, he said.

Westling here with a swollen, fast moving river worries him, said the mayor. The town has not suffered from flooding by the Connecticut since the late 1930s, he said. Few recall the damage the river can do here.

Foreclosure stopped

Foreclosure action against the owners of the Tudor Village Apartments at 30 Nutmeg Lane, East Hartford has been stopped since the owners paid 75 per cent of their tax bill Tuesday, said a spokesman in the town's corporation council office. David Dick and Eugene Weiss, trustees for the apartments, paid $109,113 of the bill of $135,000.

The reduction was accepted because the apartment owners are appealing their tax bill before the Board of Tax Review. The bill is for the first installment of taxes on the 1975 Grand List which was due July 1.

Long-range plan for lake property

Site plan drawn by Stanley Bates shows proposed development of lakefront property purchased by the Town of Bolton from the E. J. Holl Estate. The land, totaling 27.82 acres with lake frontage of 1,082 feet, will eventually offer the town's only swimming facility on Bolton Lake.

It took Bolton 12 years to acquire land on lake

By DONNA HOLLAND Herald Correspondent

Although the town purchase of the E. J. Holl property on Bolton Lake was approved by a June 1975 Town Meeting in a matter of minutes, the preliminary work took 12 years. Stanley Bates was involved from the beginning.

The story begins in 1964 with the creation of the Bolton Conservation Commission. The new group immediately began work on an open space plan. Its first proposal was to purchase lakefront property.

Bates was secretary of the commission then. He is now its chairman, and he also serves as park commissioner.

Early in 1965 Bates and other members of the Conservation Commission contacted Edward J. Holl concerning purchase of lakefront property.

Bates said Holl was not receptive to having the town own the property at that time.

On Dec. 22, 1967, Holl died. He was 93 years old.

He left his estate in specific public and private bequests, totaling $466,000. His will was dated March 9, 1969.

Hartford National Bank was appointed executor of the estate. The property purchased by the Town of Bolton was part of that estate.

In March 1968 the Conservation Commission wrote to the bank expressing an interest in purchasing the property.

In October 1968 the land was expected to be put on the market. The commission then applied for a grant from the George Dudley Seymour Trust through The Second National Bank of New Haven, first in October 1968 and then in November 1970.

In November 1970, the bank replied that it normally helps towns acquire land that costs no more than $20,000. The fair market value of the E. J. Holl property was estimated at $75,000.

In April 1972, interest in the lakefront property was reaffirmed by Bates. He asked when the property would be for sale and at what price range.

Hartford National Bank said it didn't have the answers to either question, but it would let the town know when it was ready to sell the land.

In November 1972, another parcel of the estate — 143 acres of land off Box Mtn. Rd. — was offered to the town for $240,000. The Conservation Commission recommended that it be purchased by the state, but it wasn't.

In March 1973, Hartford National Bank again wrote that the lakefront property was not for sale and it had no idea what the price would be if it was for sale.

But three months later (in July 1973), the bank told town officials that the land was on the market — for $100,000. Bates wasted no time writing to the bank and indicating the town's interest.

Robert E. Dussault, of Rhodess Rd., Tolland, pleaded innocent to a charge of breach of peace in Common Pleas Court 19, Rockville, Tuesday. He chose trial by jury. The date hasn't been set for the trial.

Glen Lathrop, 19, of 28 Thompson St., Rockville, pleaded guilty to a charge of third-degree burglary. Judge Joseph Morelli sentenced him to four months in jail, suspended, and he was put on probation for one year. Judge Morelli, as a condition of the sentence, told Lathrop to make restitution of $175 within 60 days.

In a companion case to Lathrop, Chester Hansen, 18, of Nathan Hale Dr., Coventry, pleaded innocent to a charge of second-degree burglary, waived examination and was bound over to Tolland County Superior Court.

Charges against Hansen of third-degree burglary, third-degree larceny and carrying a dangerous weapon were nolle. In the case of Reed D. Blair, 25, of Piney St., Ellington, charges of third-degree sexual contact and risk of injury to children were not prosecuted.

What's in a name?

Bolton What's in a name? The residents of Bolton have lots of ideas about that...35 to be exact.

They were asked to suggest names for some lake front property purchased by the town and came up with some farout ideas, many unpronounceable as far as First Selectman David Dresely was concerned.

Dresely read the list of proposed names at a recent town meeting and apologized for his mispronunciation of such ones as Maesfyed and Sagumketuck.

After the list was read, those attending the meeting voted to table action on naming the area and asked the selectmen to return to a future meeting with the list boiled down to three names.

The choice of names began with 14 of the 26 letters of the alphabet, leaving 12 letters not represented.

The suggested names were: Cedar Swamp, E. J. Holl Athletic, Meadowrun, Quarry Stone, Sunset Slope, Himeado, David Clark Toomey & Olive Hutchinson Toomey, David & Olive Toomey, Toomey, "Holl" Land, Quarry Meadows, Quarry Dale, Meadowbrook, Mica Meadow, Quarry Notch.

Also: Meadow Lake, Mohegan, Sagumketuck, Friendship, Deer Path, Meadowmere, Indian Notch, Hollsmere Park, Manor or Rec Center, Dudley Acres, Grassmere Meadows, Landsdowne, Maesfyed, Bolton Lakeview Park, Broad Heath.

Also: Radnor Park, Folkstone, Cord Lian, Bicentennial Sports Fields, Bolton Playing Field, and Bryn Meadow.

In an official poll of those present the list complete, here are a few suggestions: Acquired Through Town, State, Federal and Nature Conservancy Money, Jekyll and Hyde Park, Kiddie's Park, Not Free Park or No Name Park, Open Space Will Be Filled Park, Park 4-U, Utilize Me Park, Vandallism Stopped, When I Was Developed Park, Washington Did Not Sleep Here Park, X Marks The Spot Park, Y Did We Do It Park, and Zoorama Park.

Smalltowns to meet on Dec. 3

A look at the upcoming session of the General Assembly — what should go into it and what can be expected to come out of it — will be the focus of the annual meeting of the Council of Small Towns (COST) in Cromwell Dec. 3.

Mayors and selectmen from more than 90 Connecticut towns of under 15,000 population have been invited to the session, which begins at 10 a.m. at the Lord Cromwell Inn.

According to COST Coordinator David Russell, the morning work session will be devoted to a discussion of legislative goals held by member towns so that a priority package can be developed.

Then, during the luncheon, he said, leaders from both the state House and Senate will provide members with their forecasts of General Assembly activity in the 1977 session.

The meeting will also include election of officers for COST's new year of operations. The organization was formed two years ago.

Teacher contract approved

South Windsor

The South Windsor Board of Education ratified contracts this week with the South Windsor Education Association, giving teachers a 4.95 per cent hike in pay for next year.

The contract agreement is for two years and provides a total 11.49 per cent pay raise for teachers by 1978, and a 10 per cent hike for administrators in wages and benefits.

The two-step increase means the Board of Education will have to budget about $180,700 more in teachers' salaries for next year and about $253,500 the following year.

Next year the Board of Education will spend about $13,000 more in principals' salaries and $14,000 during the 1978-79 school year, according to the agreement reached with the South Windsor Administrators Association.

The merit pay arrangement for the town's teachers was dropped, according to the agreement.

The merit pay system allowed teachers to earn more money by qualifying as "career" or "master" teachers.

For the last 14 years, teachers with a master's degree could apply for "career teacher," which would give them an immediate $500-a-year pay hike and a five per cent increase each year until the teacher was earning $2,000 over their base pay.

Two years after becoming a "career teacher," the instructor could apply to become a "master teacher," giving a $200 a year immediate pay boost with a five per cent-per year increase until the teacher was earning $3,000 over the base pay.

According to the contract ratified this week, no new teachers will be allowed this type of classification, although teachers who have attained career or master teacher status will continue to receive the same pay bonuses as long as they remain in the system.

According to Asst. School Supt. William Perry, about 93 teachers have been classified as master or career teachers.

The plan was devised to compensate teachers who gave a great deal of extra time to the school system either planning new curriculum or advising clubs. Today, however, teachers are paid a differential to compensate for additional duties.

Suspicious fire destroys small house in Coventry

A fire of undetermined origin destroyed a 4 1/2-room frame house on Buenavista Dr., Coventry, Wednesday night.

Coventry Fire Marshal Richard Galinat said today that the blaze is "a little bit on the suspicious side."

The South Coventry Fire Department was summoned at 11:11 p.m. Wednesday, and North Coventry and Eagleville Fire Departments were also dispatched on mutual aid. About 10 pieces of apparatus and nearly 50 fire fighters responded.

One unidentified South Coventry fire fighter suffered a mild case of smoke inhalation while fighting the fire, officials said. He was treated at the scene and returned to fight the flames.

Deputy Fire Chief Harry Leet said smoke was seen coming from the house when the first officer arrived. Before he could get out of his car, the structure was fully involved in flames.

Fire fighters set up apparatus to draft water from nearby Coventry Lake, but the fire was under control in about half an hour with most of water coming from engine tanks.

Fire fighters remained on the scene for another hour to make sure the fire wouldn't rekindle.

While South Coventry, North Coventry and Eagleville units were on the scene, fire apparatus and men from Andover, Mansfield and Tolland were on standby.

I-86 hearing scheduled

The New England Division of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will conduct a public hearing Tuesday, Nov. 30 on a state application for work on Interstate 86.

Lt. Col. Arcade Bovin, assistant division engineer of the division, will be hearing officer. The session is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at Tolland High School.

The application, by the state Department of Transportation, seeks approval for extensive dredging, filling and construction associated with 1.86 reconstruction and improvements.

Amby Burfoot continues domination Captures eighth Five Mile Road Race Vitale second, 927 complete run, 12,000 watch

By EARL YOST
Sports Editor

Familiar scene was re-enacted again yesterday in the 40th edition of the Manchester Five Mile Road Race when Amby Burfoot set the pace, crossed the finish line first and stepped up to the prize list table first and was offered his choice of awards as the winner.

The triumph was the sixth in succession and eighth in the last nine years for the gangling, six-foot, 146-pound, 30-year-old Burfoot. He represented the Mohegan Striders.

Three records were established, (1) the most registered runners, 1,983, (2) the most starters, 927 official, plus 75 unregistered men, women and children, (3) the most finishers, 927.

The attendance was an estimated 12,000, matching the turnout once previously. The temperature was in the mid-30's on a beautiful, cool, sunny November morning.

Burfoot was chased across the finish line by 29-year-old John Vitale, the former University of Connecticut standout now with the Hartford Track Club. The 5-7, 130-pounder had to settle for second best - all to Burfoot - for the fourth time in the last six years. The long-bearded, bespectacled Burfoot, minus his good luck painter's cap, was clocked in 22:34.2, 13 seconds under his course record clocking in 1972.

Vitale, the only man to beat Burfoot in the last eight years, less than 20 yards back and was timed in 22:43.

It was strictly a two-man race between the pair of national and international figures, especially over the last three miles. Charlie Duggan of the Florida Track Club and Bob Day of the University of South Carolina managed to stay with the leaders up to this point before falling back.

Duggan wound up in third place with Paul Oparowski of Bates College finishing fourth. Mark Daniele of the University of Pennsylvania was fifth, Dean Stephens of Dartmouth sixth, Jack Mularin of the North Carolina Track Club seventh, Wayne Jacob, unattached, eighth, Tom Leonard of Bates College and the Hartford Track Club ninth and Mike Murphy of the University of Massachusetts 10th.

The top 25 finishers received awards, plus the top three school runners and the first three masters (50 and over) to finish.

It was after the make-or-break point in the trot, the long run up Highland Street, that Burfoot and Vitale pulled away from the field. Coming down Porter Street, the pair was side by side up to the three-mile marker and halfway to four-mile.

Burfoot stepped out and was up by 15 yards at four miles and increased the margin at one point to 40 yards before running just fast enough to win over the distance from the center to the finish line.

Outstanding performances by Manchester runners were turned in by Steve Gates and Glenn Florsdorf.

The former Manchester High and Eastern Connecticut State College standout, placed 18th and Florsdorf, No. 1 man with Manchester High's cross country squad this fall, was 23rd, the best finish by a school runner. Both made the prize list.

Manchester Mayor Matt Moriarty capably handled the award presentations at the East Side Rec. The race is now history and Burfoot remains the undisputed king of the Five Miles.

Two-time winner, ran bare-footed as usual, and took part for the 31st time, 24th year in a row. He paced the masters group placing 123rd. John Tuweenty and Jim Taylor were the other masters to gain awards.

Because of the large field and shortage of finishing lanes, many runners after the first 300 finishers were backed up for 50 yards.

Nutmeg Forest Tall Cedars of Lebanon promoted the race for the 26th year with Will Hadden rounding out 25 years as general chairman.

Burfoot gives up prize to first woman finisher

By EARL YOST
Sports Editor

"The Manchester Road Race is in the same class with the Boston Marathon," Amby Burfoot responded when called front and center to receive his choice of the merchandise awards for winning the Five Mile yesterday.

"It's time that the Manchester Road Race started recognizing women. I know that Jan Merrill, if she ran here today, would have qualified for a prize.

"I believe that the Manchester Road Race should do something to generate more enthusiasm, interest and excitement and that would be by recognizing women runners, the same as they did young men and masters.

"I have won more than my share of prizes here and I want my prize to go to the first woman finisher, Cynthia Wadsworth."

The bearded Burfoot had made his pitch for the fairer sex and the response, from both male and female in the East Side Rec Center, supported his view.

Up stepped Miss Wadsworth and Burfoot handed over his portable television set.

The 18-year-old Farmington woman, Connecticut State Open cross country champion in 1973-74-75, is now a freshman at Michigan State University on a track scholarship.

She placed 160th in the field of 927 in 27:30.

Perhaps next Thanksgiving race sponsor, Nutmeg Forest, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, will include the fairer sex in the prize list.

"I felt that I could have run faster, if pressed," he added. "I never felt better here. I really eased up."

While accepting congratulations, Burfoot added, "It's always a thrill

Good luck painter's cap missing on Amby's head

While the result was the same, Amby Burfoot winning the Five Mile Road Race for the eighth time, sixth year in a row yesterday morning, something was missing.

"I didn't realize until I got to the starting line that I left my white good luck painter's cap in my car," the most dominate individual in race history in Manchester noted.

Reflecting on the win, Burfoot said, "I go more confident with each passing mile. I was worried about Charlie Duggan and John Vitale.

"I guess I have a psychological advantage over John because I have beaten him so many times here. I felt good as the race got going and I felt John was laboring after three miles.

But I was terribly apprehensive that John would probably beat me. If Duggan could stay with me half the race I knew he would be tough because he has superior speed."

While accepting congratulations, Burfoot added, "It's always a thrill to come to Manchester. All around the course the crowd was calling out my name and giving me encouragement. This is a great racing town, a friendly town. It's nice to come back every year."

Will Burfoot be back in '77?

"I'll be back next year but I'm really going into semi-retirement as a runner. I don't expect to be first in line at the winner's table next year but I plan to run."

Before making his 14th appearance in the Five Mile Burfoot in response to a question as how he would be repaid "I expect to run well. I won't be embarrassed."

Run well, Burfoot did, and he didn't embarrass anyone, except perhaps the 926 registered runners who followed him across the final line.

Bridesmaid's role again for Vitale

By EARL YOST
Sports Editor

Bridesmaid's role has been assumed by John Vitale on four occasions in the Five Mile Road Race and each time he looked at Amby Burfoot breaking the tape first.

Only one man in the past seven years has been able to beat Burfoot - John Vitale. He did it in 1970. For three straight years, 1971-72-73, the Hartford Track Club star was second best in Connecticut's biggest racing event. That's the placement he gained again yesterday.

"I caught up to him at three miles but that was it. Maybe next year will be my year," he concluded.

Tuning up for the local run last week, Vitale came out second in the National 15 kilometer run in Youngstown, Ohio. He was beaten at the tape by Frank Shorter, the Olympic marathoner.

Burfoot and Vitale remain the two biggest names in the Five Mile. They, more than any other runner, helped attract the 12,000 spectators yesterday.

"I've tried different strategy against Amby but there's no way he can lose here. Manchester to him is like winning in the Olympics," the winner of numerous national long distance championships said.

"I trained hard but I didn't have enough competitive races," the former Springfield College All-American and second place finisher a year ago said. Duggan was a strong third yesterday, 100 yards behind Amby Burfoot.

"Nobody is going to beat Amby Burfoot if he can hold the lead coming down the hill.

"I'll be back next year," Duggan promised.

East rallies to top Indians, 14-6

Generosity can only go so far.

East Catholic, noted as breaker of opponents' long losing streaks, allowed Manchester High an early touchdown.

After that, however, the Eagles slammed the door on the Indians, scored two second-half touchdowns of their own, and registered a 14-6 football victory Thanksgiving Day morning at Memorial Field before a crowd estimated at 3,000.

The triumph was only East's second of the season compared to eight losses but a win in a traditional battle, like this is shaping up to be, "makes the season," Manchester misfortunes continue as the Silk Towners wind up the '76 campaign, the first for coach Jack Holik, with an 8-0 record and they've lost their last 19 straight.

"I expected this to be a tough battle," noted smiling East coach John LaFontana. "But we were ready. I just knew it. The defense played well and two days of hard work for the defensive line paid off. When they're effective everyone is. I'm just so proud of my team."

The decision, East's second in the series which began with the 1975 opener, did not come easy in this good-hair-hitting rock'em, sock'em affair. Manchester drew first blood on its first offensive series and looked like it could control the line of scrimmage. The tally, however, was somewhat a fluke and proved to be the Indians' last.

Taking over on their own 41, the Indians with Ralph Donadio bagging the pigskin six times advanced to the East 40. There on a third-and-14, QB Mike Presti hit wide receiver Jim Fleurent with a 15-yard gainer. On the ensuing play, Presti lofted an aerial towards the end zone. East defenders Bob Caffrey and Brian Shea each had a hand on it but failed to bat it down. Fleurent, in a near supreme position in the end zone, latched onto the ball for the TD with 6:27 left in the first period. Pete Gourley, snubbing for injured Ed White, attempted the PAT but his boot was wide left.

It was one-two-three kick for most of the first half with the Eagles having two good scoring opportunities. They recovered a fumbled punt at the Manchester 29 but failed to move forward with a Jim Dakin 42-yard field goal attempt falling short. Later in the second stanza, Dave Kiser took a reverse from Dave Kolakowski on a punt return and streaked down the left sideline for an apparent TD. But it was called back as Eagle Mike Furlong was called for clipping near midfield.

Just before the half, Eagle QB Ken Brasa hit Kiser with a 41-yard pass down to the Indian 11 but a 20-yard holding penalty and pass interception by Fleurent on a fake field goal thwarted this bid.

A 60-yard strike from Brasa to the elusive Kiser, a 5-11, 160-pound junior, set up East's first tally late in the third stanza. Brasa found Kiser wide open down the middle and the latter angled to the left and headed upfield. Defensive back Craig Ostrout played off a block by Mike Freiheit and stripped Kiser of the ball near the Indian 15. But offensive left guard Bill Gordin following the play jumped on the pigskin retaining possession for East.

Five plays later, fullback Furlong crashed into the end zone from five yards out behind the strong blocks of the left side of his line, Gordin and tackle John Andros. Freiheit, only a freshman, calmly booted the PAT, splitting the uprights, giving East a 7-6 edge with 1:14 left in the third quarter.

Manchester's efforts to take the lead were continually halted with sophomore cornerback Shea making three fine interceptions.

East's final score was a result of the defense, led by Tom Landers, Greg Egazarian and Rich Harrison, stopping Manchester at the Eagle 41. Senior tailback Bob Frank in four quick bursts chewed up plenty of yardage down to the Indian 17. Furlong breaking tackles picked up 12 yards to the five. Three cracks into the line moved it ahead four and Brasa, behind center Bill Bulger, pushed into paydirt with 1:20 left icing the verdict. Dakin's PAT was just some added frosting.

"Defensively we played well but we didn't get enough offensively," stated a dejected Holik. "We tried to

Old magic gone from NFL Cardinals

NEW YORK (UPI) — The old magic was gone from the St. Louis Cardinals Thursday but it was rekindled in O.J. Simpson.

The Cardinals, who were nicknamed "the cardiac kids" because of their penchant for pulling out last-minute victories over the past two seasons, fell to the Dallas Cowboys 19-14, when a 59-yard drive in the game's final two minutes stalled at the Cowboys' 8 as Jim Hart threw a pair of incompletions into the end zone.

Simpson, who has watched all season as running backs like Walter Payton, Greg Pruitt and Lydell Mitchell took turns in the spotlight, exploded for a single game record of 273 yards and a 43-yard touchdown pass against Detroit but it wasn't enough to prevent his Buffalo Bills from dropping a 27-14 verdict to the Lions.

It took Simpson 29 carries to get his record yardage and it put him over 1,000 for the fifth season in a row.

Simpson proved to be the entire Buffalo offense because quarterback Gary Mangani only completed 4 of 21 passes for 29 yards and Jeff Kinney supplemented Simpson with just 21 yards in nine carries as the Bills slipped to 2-10.

"I'm surprised I ran as well as I did against the Lions' great defense," Simpson said, noting that Detroit is first in the NFC with an average rushing yardage of just 116 yards per game. "Especially since we didn't have much of a passing attack."

The Lions countered with a pair of touchdown passes from Greg Landry — 21 and 24 yards to tight end David Hill — a four-yard scoring run by Dexter Bussey and a pair of field goals by Benny Ricardo to even their record at 6-4.

The Cardinals, who fell two games behind the front-running Cowboys in the NFC East with an 8-4 record, pulled to within five points of Dallas on a 13-yard TD pass from Hart to Mel Gray to cap a 68-yard drive with less than two minutes remaining.

The St. Louis defense held Dallas on downs in its next possession and forced the Cowboys to punt. The Cardinals then drove from their own 33 to the Dallas Dallas broke a 7-7 tie in the final minute of the first half after punter Danny White threw a 43-yard pass to Benny Barnes to pull the Cowboys from deep in their own zone to the St. Louis 39. Four plays later, Roger Staubach swept in from four yards out to give Dallas a lead it did not relinquish.

The Cowboys increased the margin by five points in the final quarter on a 42-yard Elfen Herrera field goal and a safety when Thomas Henderson blocked a St. Louis punt out of the end zone.

Scott Laidlaw scored the opening TD of the game on a two-yard pass from Staubach, but the Cardinals tied it on a four-yard second quarter run by Steve Jones.

The loss left St. Louis just a half-game ahead of Washington in a race for the NFC wild-card berth. If the two teams tie for second place behind Dallas, the Redskins would advance into the playoffs because they have beaten the Cardinals twice.

Hornets class in East Hartford, steamroll over Penney High, 41-0

By STEVE ARMSTRONG

Correspondent

For this year at least, there can be no second-guessing or arguing on who the best football team in East Hartford is.

By all-everything running back Larry Komarenko, the East Hartford High Hornets mauled the Black Knights of Penney, 41-0, before a standing room only crowd Thanksgiving Day morning at the loser's field. The crowd, estimated at 7,500 plus, was the largest ever to witness a football game at Penney and most probably the biggest to ever see a game in East Hartford.

The story of the game was all East Hartford and most especially all Komarenko. The senior running back scrambled and darted for unofficially 228 yards on 30 carries including two touchdowns and had two other scores called back because of penalties. Komarenko's magnificent effort gives him 170 points for the year, which is high in the state as he leads St. Paul's Brian McCutcheon by four points. Komarenko has, unofficially, for the year 28 touchdowns and 1,644 yards on 248 carries.

The much sought-after runner has led coach Jim Dakin's squad to a perfect 10-0 mark, a CCL championship, and berth Dec. 4 in the Class I Division contest against Fairfield Prep at a site to be announced. Penney, also much improved this season, finishes with a 5-5 record.

Penney never made a game of it as the closest it came to scoring was when it got the ball to the Hornet 22 early in the third quarter.

East Hartford first got on the scoreboard late in the first quarter with the aid of its passing game, which was also impressive, as quarterback Jim Ogle threw for 100 yards. A magnificent power run by Komarenko brought the ball from the Hornet 31 to the Penney 19. On the next play, Ogle hit Pasqual Barile for a touchdown and with John Christ's PAT boot, the game for all intents and purposes was already decided.

Penney's Mike Nobile stopped short

The Hornet defense, which also performed superbly all day, accounted for a score on the very next series with Barile intercepting a Lynch pass on the Penney 15 and racing into the end zone. Barile played a fine game both offensively and defensively, batting down numbers Lynch passes, and was named the co-most valuable player for the game along with Komarenko. The PAT was good again for a 14-0 bulge.

East Hartford made it 21-0 midway through the second period with Komarenko's touchdown plunge from the two clinaxing a 68-yard, 12-play drive. On the first play of the fourth quarter, Komarenko won the state scoring championship with a one-yard plunge. The tally was set up by a bad snap from center to Penney punter Steve Cassarino, with the Hornet defense burying him at the Penney five after a made scramble.

East Hartford's powerful defense, sometimes overlooked because of Komarenko and the overall offensive prowess, also set up the next score when on a fourth-and-23 situation early in the final stanza guard Tom Ahern blocked and recovered a Cassarino punt on the Penney nine. Two plays later, Ogle fired to Mark Finan for the touchdown to make it 31-0.

The Hornets finished their scoring when Ogle to Karl Grabowski pass brought the ball down to the four and the same combination connected on a pretty scoring toss two plays later. Jim Petrelo, who missed the first nine games because of a broken leg, ran in for the two points on what was mercifully for Penney, the final scoring of the day.

East Hartford now leads the series, 10-2-1, including winning the last eight in a row. Yesterday's triumph gives the Hornets a leg up on the fourth Raymond Hutt Trophy.

Fans pelt Whalers following road win

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — The New England Whalers beat the Birmingham Bulls Thursday night, but the Birmingham fans were so furious they threw things for nearly 30 minutes and the Whalers had to lock themselves into the lockerroom.

Center Mike Rogers, with an assist from right wing Tom Webster, broke a 3-2 tie in the third period, then followed with another goal later in the contest to lead the Whalers to a 5-3 World Hockey Association victory.

When Rogers threw an empty net insurance goal with 25 seconds to play, New England power play Coach Harry Neale stood up and cheered. The next thing he knew, he got hit in the head with something and the disappointed Birmingham fans were on their feet, throwing things. "Beer, cokes, ice sticks, anything you can think of was getting thrown at us. One of those rent-a-cops that they have here handed a fan his bottle. What kind of crowd control is that? He had a gun, too. I guess that was going next," Neale said there wasn't a

Police report

Thanksgiving was not the most joyous holiday for residents of an E. Middle Tpk. apartment. Returning home shortly before 6:30 p.m. Thursday, they discovered two stereos and $500 in cash had been taken from the apartment, police said.

The value of the stereos was placed at $1200, police reported. Entrance was gained by prying a bolt lock on the front door, according to police reports. The apartment had been vacant since about 9 a.m., police said.

Police made a total of 19 traffic arrests over the holiday. Among those charged with traffic violations by Manchester Police were: Steven R. Detella, 20, of Vernon, reckless driving. Court date is Dec. 7. Russell L. Meacham, 40, of Vernon, driving while his license is under suspension. Court date is Dec. 14. Karl D. Ojala, 19, of 148 Esquire Dr., failure to drive right. Ojala was charged following an accident Wednesday. Police said he swerved off the road on Main St. just south of Lilley St. and struck a fire hydrant.

Ojala was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital, where he was treated for facial lacerations and released.

Indians stage quiet protest during Plymouth Rock rites

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (UPI) — Traditional celebrations of the Pilgrim landing at Plymouth rock were overshadowed Thanksgiving Day by a quiet Indian protest. About 100 Indians camped on Coles Hill, beat drums and chanted while several thousand tourists congregated at the colonial landmark. "They were fasting and praying because they feel the Indians have not been represented at Thanksgiving time," said Patricia Fama, a spokesman for the Chamber of Commerce. "The Indians did not draw the attention they usually do," Mrs. Fama said Thursday. She said the protest had been staged at Plymouth Rock for the past several Thanksgiving celebrations. The early voyagers first spotted Plymouth when the Mayflower landed at Provincetown, and settlers on board the ship then traveled the 23 miles and landed at Plymouth Rock. The rock has been moved several times, into the town square in the 1800's, then later to Pilgrim Hall, the nation's oldest museum, and in 1920, back to its original spot. The rock was cracked in the moves and is now washed over by Atlantic Ocean tides.

and harvest the corn crops which carried the settlers through the first harsh winter in 1620. Many descendants of the Wampanoags still live on Martha's Vineyard. While 51 local women, men and children dressed in colonial garb marched to the beat of drums recreating the Pilgrim Progress to morning church service, the Indians beat drums of their own, sang songs and chanted. Fewer lawyers in upcoming legislature

HARTFORD (UPI) — In the recent election, Connecticut voters elected fewer lawyers and people involved with real estate and insurance to the state legislature, but more teachers and women picked up legislative seats. According to recently released figures, lawyers, as well as real estate and insurance employees, lost ground to women and teachers. However, lawyers continue to hold the largest occupational bloc in the state legislature following the recent election. Lawyers now hold 16 of the Senate's 36 seats and 19 of the House's 151 positions. Although lawyers did not lose any seats in the Senate, they did lose 11 seats in the House. Individuals involved in real estate and insurance or both declined from 34 in the legislature to 24 in the new body. Female legislators have also picked up more seats. The new House will have 32 women, compared to 21 in the previous body. There will be five women in the Senate, an improvement of one. Teachers also picked up an additional three seats in the new legislature.

Guest speaker

Arnold Lerner of Hamden will speak on the Career and Counseling Service of B'nai B'rith on Sunday at 9 a.m. at a breakfast meeting of the Charter Oak Chapter of B'nai B'rith at Bonanza, Spencer St. Lerner, who recently returned from Israel, is an educator and guidance counselor and is active in various organizational endeavors. The public is invited.

Joseph Duffey member of transition team

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former Connecticut Senate candidate is part of a nine-member team who will advise President-elect Jimmy Carter on who to choose for key Washington jobs. Included on Carter's list of transition personnel is former Democratic candidate Joseph Duffey, 44, who tried in 1970 to unseat Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., and his wife, Anne Weicker, 46. Duffey is currently on leave from his post as executive director of the American Association of University Professors. His name has been mentioned in Washington circles as a possible choice for Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. Ms. Weicker is an associate to the publisher of the Rolling Stone newspaper and served on the national steering committee of Carter's campaign.

Other present or former Connecticut residents listed on the 152-member transition list are: — Douglas Costle, 37, of Simsbury, an assistant director of the Congressional Budget Office and former state commissioner of environment- — Jim Gammill, 23, of Danbury, an assistant director of the Carter's convention coordinator. He will work with Duffey and Wecker.

New York City has billion dollar headache

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor Abraham Beame has a new billion-dollar headache, but the atmosphere at City Hall is no longer panic but assurance the problem can be solved. Mayor Abraham Beame lunched privately today with Arthur Richental, the lawyer for the Flushing National Bank, to work on a plan to pay off up to $1 billion in city debt by Dec. 15.

It was that bank whose suit led the state Court of Appeals to strike down the city's moratorium on repayment of $1.8 billion in short-term municipal bonds. Under the moratorium, which began a year ago, bondholders were given the option of either waiting three years for repayment of the principal or exchanging their bonds for new notes issued by the Municipal Assistance Corp., created by the state last year to float city paper. The moratorium was a major prop in the city's three-year financial recovery plan, and the high court's ruling last Friday stunned city officials and even forced Beame to cut short a Mediterranean vacation. But the panic at City Hall soon subsided to a sense of optimism now that the worst that could have happened has happened — without catastrophe. Besides, as state Comptroller

Arthur Levitt noted, the court decision has given new strength to bonds floated by New York City and other municipalities because bondholders know they must be paid, and paid on time. The Beame administration has received warm overtures from U.S. Treasury Secretary William Simon, whose self-help approach has been chilly in the past, and even warmer support from President-elect Jimmy Carter.

Taxi Fleet. The first fleet of motorized taxis in the United States made its debut in 1860. New Yorkers blinked in amazement at the red, high-seated taxicab cabs imported from Paris. The word "taxicab" was coined in New York. "Taxi" came from a French company that made taximeters for horse carriages. Cab abbreviated the French word for cabaret, a light one-horse carriage.

Stroke victim surmounts handicap to paint landscapes

ARTHUR FREDERICK DIXFIELD, Maine (UPI) — Carl Miller was 75 when they found him lying in a street in Wilton in 1965. Miller had suffered a stroke. He recovered, but the stroke had left his right side paralyzed.

The handicap would be difficult for most people. But Miller had spent his late years painting gentle pictures of the Maine countryside. And Miller was right-handed.

The stroke had left Miller's right arm virtually useless. It had also wiped out much of his memory, and made speaking difficult.

They moved Miller to the Dixfield Nursing Home. He began sketching with his left hand. He is now 86, and he draws, at least a little bit, nearly every day.

Miller's earlier paintings had been realistic, quiet visions of mountains and streams and cold winter nights. The crayon drawings he does now with his left hand are much more primitive, many depicting miniature town scenes and landscapes.

Miller's paintings were recently exhibited at the Rumford Bicentennial Gallery. Oil paintings from before the stroke and his more recent, more primitive works were both on display.

"He draws quite a bit, and the amount varies from day to day," said Melba Quint, director of nursing at the nursing home.

Miller uses crayons now because they are easier to work with than the oils he once used. His models are the scenes he can see through the windows of the nursing home, and pictures from his earlier days in Wilton.

"He only gets outside during the summer, when he sits out there in his chair," Mrs. Quint said.

Miller can't speak well, and he doesn't remember much about his past. He has no known relatives, but manages to support his hobby from a small allowance.

"He has an income from Social Security, which he turns over to us for his support," Mrs. Quint said.

"He gets an allowance of $25 per week, and he pays for his supplies out of that."

The people at the nursing home know little about Miller. They know he was born in Brockton, Mass., and they know he worked in the woods and in woolen mills in Dryden before his stroke.

They also know he is strong-willed and independent. Mrs. Lorraine Varanelli, another nurse, said Miller refuses to be wheeled around the building, even though he is half-paralyzed.

And could he be persuaded to quit drawing?

"He wouldn't give up his painting without a fight," she said.

Air pollution study called $22 million flop by probers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A $22 million government study to find out exactly what levels of air pollution are harmful was a flop in terms of finding out what it was supposed to, congressional investigators said.

George E. Brown, D-Calif., chairman of a House environment subcommittee, said discovering the impact of industrial and automobile pollution "demands research of the highest quality. That is what we are pushing for, and, unfortunately, that is not what we found."

A probe by Brown's panel, begun in April, found that results from the Environmental Protection Agency study so far have "virtually no quantitative value due to problems and mistakes in carrying out the project," the subcommittee said.

The program involved was called the Community Health and Environmental Surveillance System, a five-year $22 million research project intended to provide EPA with the hard facts it needs to write rules governing how much pollution can be allowed in the air.

The subcommittee's report said the study suffered from limitations due to external pressures and restraints combined with inadequately controlled use of air and health monitoring methods.

As a result, the data gathered had such a large statistical uncertainty that few, if any, valid quantitative conclusions relating health and air pollution can be drawn.

Brown noted at a news conference that there were suggestions of "banky pan-ky" in the program — a reference to published reports earlier this year that data from the program had been deliberately distorted.

ORDER OF NOTICE

November 10, 1976
Ret. 1st Tues. Sept., 1976
STATE OF CONNECTICUT
COUNTY OF HARTFORD
AT HARTFORD
FRANCES COURCHESNE
vs.
EARL COURCHESNE
NOTICE TO
EARL COURCHESNE

of the plaintiff in the above-entitled action praying, for reasons therein set forth, dissolution of the marriage on the grounds that the marriage has irrevocably broken down, alimony, custody and support of minor child, returnable before the Superior Court within and for Hartford County to be held at Hartford on the 3rd Tuesday of Dec., 1976, and upon a motion in said action for an order of notice, it appearing to and being found by the subscribing authority that the said defendant has gone to parts unknown, and that notice of the institution of this action most likely to come to his attention is through the newspaper published in Manchester, Conn. once a week for two successive weeks, commencing on or before December 13, 1976, and that return of such service be made to the above named Court.

ORDERED, that the notice of the institution of said action be given the defendant by some proper officer or indiffererent person causing a true and attested copy of this Order of Notice to be published in the Manchester Herald, newspaper circulated in Manchester, Conn. once a week for two successive weeks, commencing on or before December 13, 1976, and that return of such service be made to the above named Court.

John F. DeMonte
Deputy Sheriff
Hartford County
Denis R. Caron Assistant Clerk of the Superior Court for County of Hartford

Economy is the feature of this two-story home. Many money saving devices have been incorporated in the design. A large activity room with a fireplace, allows all family oriented activities to take place in one spacious area. A french door leads to a rear sun deck. The country-style kitchen has lots of cabinet and counter space as well as the breakfast area.

The three upstairs bedrooms are approached by an open rail stair from the foyer. The master bedroom has a private bath and a walk-in closet. The other two bedrooms have ample closet space and hall access to a full bath with a vanity. The first floor contains 821 square feet and the second floor includes 755 square feet, a total of 1,576 square feet. For further information on Plan Number 576, write W. D. Farmer, P.O. Box 49463 Atlanta, Ga. 30329.

Shopping For That New Home

One way to find out what houses are available is to shop the newspapers. The big house displays usually appear in the weekend papers. Study these advertisements to find out the kinds of houses on sale and how much they cost. Look at the classified sections of "homes for sale" too. People selling their homes themselves as well as real estate agents advertise this way.

Also, you may want to talk with people in the real estate business. When you know what you want, they can often find it for you. As a rule these firms do not advertise every house they have for sale. Another way is to get the word around to your friends that you are in the market for a house. This may lead to a good buy. Watch for "open house" signs. A sign in the most unlikely spot may produce exactly what you want for your family.
