

Cut your own taxes

Over-65 should delay home sale

By RAY DE CRANE (Last of Three Parts) Because of the many changes in the new income tax law, some moves should be made in the final weeks of this year to capitalize on tax advantages while other decisions should be postponed until next year.

If you will make a profit on the sale, the tax bite will be bigger this year than if you wait to sell until 1977.

In the event, the portion of the gain that is exempt from tax is the ratio that $20,000 bears to your actual adjusted sales price. That may sound complicated, but it really isn't. If, for example, you sold a home at an adjusted selling price of $70,000 and reaped a profit of $28,000, here is how your tax problem would be worked out:

price to be considered is what Internal Revenue calls the adjusted sales price. This is the agreed-on selling price less those expenses incident to the sale. This would reduce the final selling price by the real estate commission, if any, and by various escrow and closing costs.

Fords dance at benefit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and his wife Betty danced in the early hours of the morning today in a rare post-election public appearance at a white tie and tails benefit ball for the National Symphony Orchestra.

The crowd gathered around the President and his wife to applaud and cheer them on as they danced to the "12th Street Rag" at midnight.

The Fords arrived at the $125 per person affair shortly after 8 p.m. and remained until after midnight. Others on the dance floor steered clear of the President and his wife at first, but later they began to interrupt to shake his hand and chat.

Police-Town labor talks in binding arbitration

Negotiations between the town and the union representing the Manchester Police Department have entered binding arbitration, the final step of municipal labor negotiations.

The town chose Joseph Bogdan, an attorney from Milford. The union selected Frank Raccio, an attorney from New Haven. The two attorneys will now meet to select a third, neutral member for the three-member panel.

The town and the union rejected the report. A union spokesman, however, said that the union's rejection was primarily a strategic move since the town was expected to reject the report.

Both sides must agree to the report for it to be adopted.

Dr. Heller, professor of music at University of Connecticut and music director and conductor for the Manchester Civic Orchestra and Chorus will perform the great work.

Referring to a 72-page section from the book "Handel's Messiah" by Jens Peter Larsen, Dr. Heller said there is no original version of the "Messiah" in existence.

Handel's religious oratorio is still being updated. "We can't recreate that of period to today's tastes," Dr. Heller said as he explained that it's a bit of a myth that there is only one way to interpret the "Messiah."

That's where it will go Minna Noone, left, points to the location of the 400-acre industrial park proposed for Buckland. Looking on is William Anderson, who along with Mrs. Noone and four other local residents, traveled to Columbus, Ohio Friday to view a J.C. Penney distribution center. A similar center would be the major tenant of the Manchester park. (Herald photo by Dunn)

Penney complex described as 'immense, clean, quiet'

Tucker, of 235 Burnham St., said, "I think Penney will appreciate our requests for landscaping." Steve Penney, of 305 Burnham St., said, "If it's properly landscaped, it will add to the building."

The size and operation of the center was mentioned by the residents. Penney said that he was "absolutely amazed" at the size of the building.

The whole warehouse and distribution center is just incredible," Robert Spencer, of 376 Burnham St., said.

While the Columbus operation is a large one, employing about 2,300 people during the Christmas season, it is also a quiet one.

On the outside of the building, you hear nothing, even in the loading area," Tucker said. He said that trucks back up right to the loading dock. Thus, none of the loading is done outside, he said.

Three of the people who made the trip — Spencer, William Anderson, of 340 Burnham St., and Minna Noone, of 327 Burnham St. — spoke with Columbus residents who live near the Penney plant.

The neighborhood had that attitude. "It's there, who cares," Mrs. Noone said.

Spencer said that the residents had lived with the rail lines in their back yards before Penney came. This contributed to their "no hum" attitude, he said.

Mrs. Noone said that the neighbors did say there was noise and dust during the construction. The neighbors also praise Penney officials for quickly responding to complaints.

When the building was being constructed, the area was sometimes used at night for "drag-racing," according to the neighbors. Mrs. Noone said that they called Penney on the matter and security at the site was soon increased.

A complaint about parking lot lights shining on homes brought similar quick action from Penney officials. Mrs. Noone said she was told, "The Columbus neighbors, unlike local residents, had no input into the Penney plan before the center was built. People agreed that this might have contributed to their lack of concern."

Mrs. Noone said that while they visited the plant, there did not seem to be any traffic problems. One person at the center did say that at peak time, someone might have to wait through two or three light changes before getting onto the main road.

Anderson suggested that more incentives might be made in Manchester to encourage carpooling. At the Columbus center, there is less than 12 employees for every car, he said.

Alan Lamson, assistant town planner, who also made the trip, said the work conducted at the center is a "very clean process. What happens inside, you are almost totally unaware of on the outside."

Generally, those who made the trip spoke favorably of the center coming to Manchester. They also, however, again expressed their opposition to I-291, fearing that if both the industrial park and the highway are built, they will be sandwiched between.

As Mafie said, "If we can get rid of I-291, the center is good for our neighborhood and good for the town."

Dr. Jack Heller is shown in his study looking through books and manuscripts of Handel's "Messiah" which he will direct Sunday night at 7:30 at Bally Auditorium. The great work will be performed by the Manchester Civic Orchestra and Chorus. (Herald photo by Tompkins)

Science today: Computer helps recovery room nurse

By AL ROSSITER Jr., UPI Science Editor. WASHINGTON (UPI) - Taking a cue from the space program, a New York medical team has demonstrated the value of computerized surveillance systems in monitoring the vital signs of patients recovering from open heart surgery.

Opinions have varied whether computers are worthwhile additions to the hospital recovery room, but a new study by doctors and engineers from the Mt. Sinai Hospital adds further support to the electronic nurses.

Comparison made. Ninety-one open heart patients were studied before the $50,000 computerized system was available at the hospital. Then, 120 patients who had undergone similar surgery and were of similar ages and sex were placed in the computer monitoring units.

In the group with conventional monitoring, 11 of the 91 patients suffered such events, all related to devices helping the patients breathe. Two patients died.

We are all Americans now

A much-acclaimed book currently high on the bestseller lists is "Roots." In it, author Alex Haley, a descendant of slaves, traces his family history back through seven generations and in doing so presents an emotionally powerful saga of the black experience in America.

Following up isolated linguistic hints and scattered records, and employing a great deal of historical sleuthing, Haley was actually able to discover the name of his first ancestor to arrive on these shores — one Kunta Kinte who, in 1750 was kidnapped at the age of 17 by slavers in Gambia, Haley went so far as to lie naked for days in the hold of a freighter to try to experience for himself what the Atlantic crossing must have been like for young Kunta.

"Roots" has been hailed as both a genealogical and a literary tour de force. Few other black Americans have any idea who their distant ancestors were, or even what part of Africa they came from, or would know where to start looking.

Something no reviewer seems to have commented upon, however, is the fact that it's a rare American of any color who can trace his family tree back two centuries. Even many second-generation Americans of European descent have only the sketchiest knowledge of their forebears beyond their parents.

Moreover, in terms of roots in this country's history, any black American can point to deeper ones than can the majority of white Americans.

The difference, of course, is that any white American who wanted to trace his roots would find it a far easier task than Haley did.

Except for an insignificant number, the Europeans who came to America at the same time as Kunta Kinte, and before and after him, did so voluntarily. Even if they came as indentured servants, they were not chained or forcibly separated from their families, or stripped of language, culture and even their names.

"Roots" has been called by one reviewer an important gift to black Americans, but it speaks volumes about the different paths taken and the different destinies found by both races on this continent.

We are not all that different. However our roots may have been planted here, in the final analysis we are all Americans now.

Council for Blind opposes Filer project

To the editor,
I am Gertrude DeLoo, a resident of Manchester. I am writing as president of the Connecticut Council of the Blind and as a very concerned individual.

We, the members of the CCB are unanimously and vigorously opposed to the dismantling of the Board of Education and Services for the Blind as proposed by the Filer Committee. We shall work together with all other organized blind as well as with understanding, concerned citizens, blind or sighted, to prevent such a disaster.

I have been totally blind 59 of my 60 years of life and through personal experience I have seen our agency grow, reflecting the changes for our betterment. This has been especially significant in the last few years. Many excellent programs have been developed in the field of education, rehabilitation, mobility and industry. In all programs planned and developed our agency has made the best use of the latest techniques, innovations, adaptations and inventions devised specifically for the blind and visually impaired.

We must continue to have access to the services of our well coordinated central agency with its understanding, experienced trained staff and personnel to help us when necessary, to solve or minimize our blind related problems.

Any blind individual in the State of Connecticut regardless of race, creed, color, sex, age or economic status can obtain qualified assistance in preparing for gainful employment from this agency.

Finally, but most important, our B.E.S.B. is equipped to give professional assistance to any blind individual by locating suitable employment in accordance with his educational background, capabilities and interests, where he or she can succeed on a par with his sighted peers.

I am sure the members of the Filer Committee put a great deal of time and effort into their state-wide plan. I believe however, there could not have been a single member in the group who is aware of the unique problems resulting from complete or partial loss of vision. Since we are neither mentally nor physically handicapped, we cannot be adequately served in generalized programs.

Favors Penney project

Dear Sir:
I for one have a very special interest in this project. I have resided in Manchester since 1914 and this is the best project that I have ever had an opportunity to witness to date.

If the Eighth District is allowed by court order to furnish sewer service to this project then let the district build a two million dollar sewage disposal plant then people will decide that consolidation is the best and only solution.

I would ask residents of Manchester to get behind Manager Weiss 100 per cent and hope they will name park after him.

They need a crash course in Russian life

Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON — I have here a letter from a group of females in Berkeley, Calif., who say they are planning to emigrate to the Soviet Union because they are tired of the "superficiality" of American life and, besides, women are treated better in Communist paradise.

My 15 correspondents do not wish their anonymity breached "because we might get in trouble." Very well. But they need a crash course in contemporary Russian life, before they do something rash.

The Soviet Constitution says that "women in the USSR are accorded equal rights with men. The possibility of exercising those rights is assured by women being accorded an equal right with men to work, payment for work, rest and leisure." Label those words Catch No. 1.

In fact, except for some artists, so-called highly skilled and highly educated women, plus those who know some man rather well, women in Russia lead lives that would cause American females willingly to retire to a life of domesticity.

Moreover, jobs performed by women include some of the most arduous and disagreeable. They mine coal, in violation of a 1922 labor code. They sweep the streets, shovel snow, haul concrete, dig ditches, collect garbage. They do the dirty, unskilled work in heavy industry. Russia's own propaganda handouts praise women as constituting the backbone of the nation's unskilled labor force.

Berkeley's collection of Madame De Farge points out that three out of every four Russian doctors are women. Just so. But because the Politburo believes it needs men for more important jobs, a doctor in the USSR earns less than a skilled factory worker.

There is, to be sure, an elite minority of women in the professions, but they serve by official decree, not by personal preference. A woman with a university education is required to put that education to work. The Soviet Union does not waste money educating female

The Herald's Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON — Gerald Ford may have been a football player, but it is impossible to imagine him believing, as Redskins Coach George Allen has said, that "losing is like dying." Or to imagine him saying, as Jimmy Carter did after a political defeat in Georgia, "Show me a good loser, and I will show you a loser."

President Ford, who clearly played football at Michigan with his helmet on, knows that only dying is like dying. And he has demonstrated repeatedly since his recent election loss that as a politician he may be a loser but as a person he is a winner.

Although the heart of this city, if not the country yet, now belongs to Jimmy Carter, it is Mr. Ford who continues to amaze observers here by his not-so-common decency and grace in defeat.

Even Carter, who regularly belittled the President during his campaign, went out of his way during his Thanksgiving Week visit to the White House to praise him.

WASHINGTON — The past Congress made its re-election virtually certain.
As noted by Representative John B. Anderson, R-Ill., "they set up a special $5,000 newsletter fund whereby every incumbent can flood his district with printed material at the expense of the taxpayer."

Congress so worded the election laws that contributions were discouraged among those who might want to back a newcomer uncertain of victory. But encouragement was given to those special interest groups which wanted to have post-election influence with certain or almost-certain winners.

As a result, special interest groups, which donated around $2.5 million in the Congressional elections of 1974, came forth with $20 million or so in 1976 — heavily to incumbents, marginally to challengers.

Congress insured another term for all

WASHINGTON — The past Congress made its re-election virtually certain.

Enterprise Institute, it is rather quinine to expect a Congress to role rules which will hurt the chances of its own members to secure re-election. That is expecting too much of human nature.

One Congressman I know has pledged to limit his membership in the House of Representatives to four terms. He believes a longer tenure would be counterproductive.

Further, he says, he can afford the time to do the job as he wants to do it while young and single. But once married, with family interests, he didn't see how he could do justice to the job and to his personal responsibilities.

Now Representative Larry Pressler (R-S.D.) may change his mind, having only completed one out of the four terms he's picked as his limit, but his reasoning is sound. I have in the past three decades watched men grow tired and set in their ways in the routine of Congress and become tied too closely with influential cliques.

Gerald Ford: Faith of a president

Lee Roderick

Emerging from his chat with Mr. Ford, the Georgian told reporters gathered on the White House lawn that "there could not have been a better demonstration of friendship and unity and goodwill than shown me by President Ford."

Then, as the two men shook hands and Carter prepared to depart, he added, "God bless you, sir."

Students of Carter are quick to single out his strong religious convictions as the main wellspring of all they say acknowledge Him and He will direct thy path." (Proverbs 3:5-6)

The President, who reads daily from a Bible given him by his son Michael, a seminary student at Gordon-Conwell in Massachusetts, continued: "As a public official, I feel that I am responsible to conduct myself privately so as to earn the respect of those I serve and those with whom I work."

"The most effective public servants I have known were those who had a high moral code in their personal life. We cannot stand very long on the shifting sands of 'situational ethics.' History proves that power and prestige are slippery peaks from which the mighty have often fallen into disgrace. Jesus said, 'What is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?'"

Ray Cromley

As a result, 96 per cent or more of the incumbents were re-elected. This is more than in the 10 preceding years, where re-election averages had been running at nine out of ten. Challengers obviously didn't have much of a chance before; they have less now.

These new re-election safeguards are on top of a vast panoply of advantages Congressmen have had for years — government contracts and jobs for influential groups and citizens, special favors for individuals who influence voters, expense-paid trips to their states and districts to influence voters, special office funds which can indirectly be used for campaigning, a staff paid for by the taxpayer which more often than not is used both directly and indirectly in campaigning.

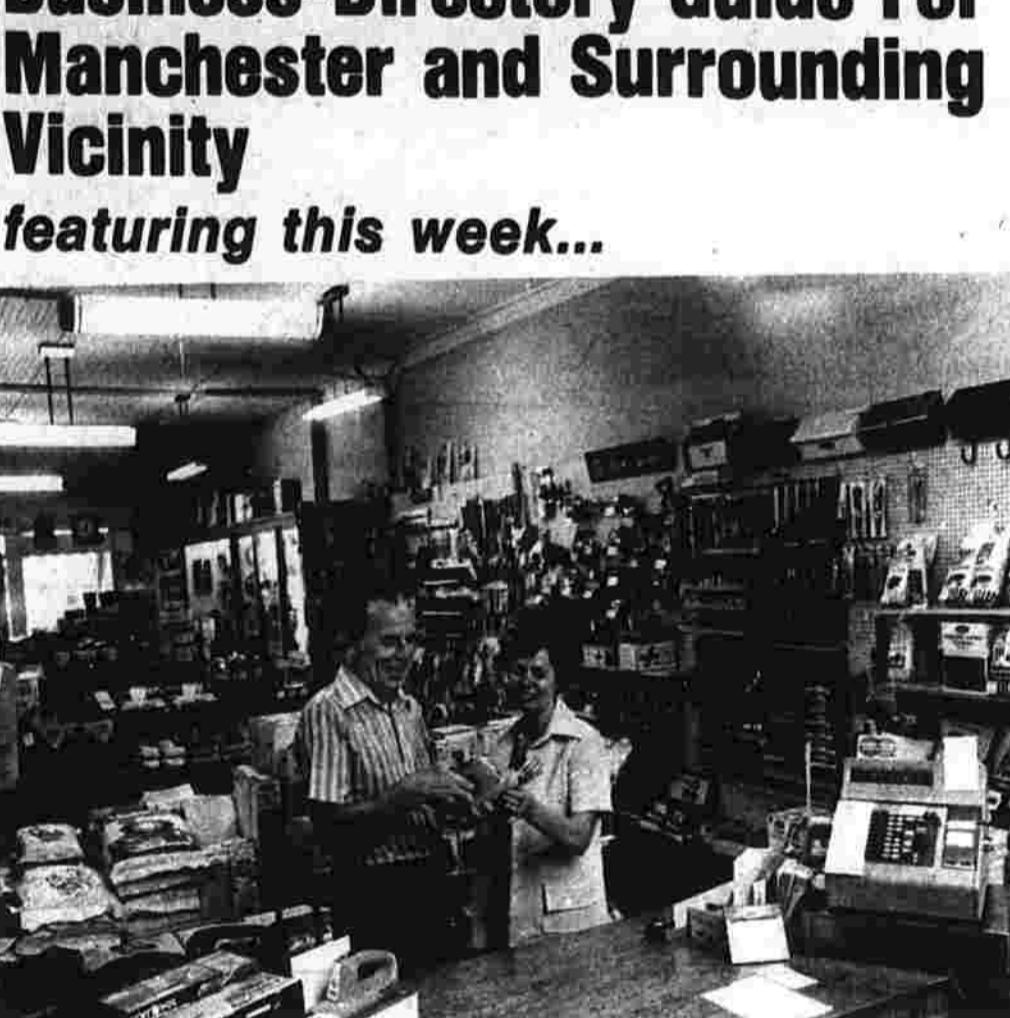

Efforts to change the system have been noteworthy for their ineffectiveness. As Professor Ralph K. Winter, of Yale Law School, noted in a debate sponsored by the American

Grow With The — EAST HARTFORD NURSERY

East Hartford Nursery, 1375 Silver Lane, East Hartford, continues to grow. The next step of the long range plans is nearing completion. This has been the removal of the offices from the store making the store much lighter and more pleasant. A new counter area has been built and new wooden gondolas are being added for potted soils, pots and a variety of goods. Outside the tree and shrubbery display area has been more than doubled so that it is easier and more pleasant to view and choose plants.

Originally the Nursery was a vegetable stand and over the years the store has been re-done, enlarged, and green houses, poly house, fertilizer area, lath house and a power shop have been added.

Today the Nursery is a full garden center carrying trees, shrubs, annuals, perennials, house plants and seeds as well as chemicals, fertilizers, tools, soil, mulch, and everything needed to plant and care for all your growing things.

The motto of the Nursery is "Where you and your business are appreciated." Our customers are our most valuable asset; please feel to call us at 569-0800.

HARTFORD (UPI) — Worried they could lose billions of federal environmental dollars, representatives of seven Northeastern states are trying to make sure they make up shopping lists acceptable to federal officials.

Warm man inside

While traveling the major league baseball trail on occasion for nearly three decades my path often crossed with that of Danny Murtaugh, the Pittsburgh Pirate manager who died Thursday at the age of 59.

I have a number of pleasant memories in Murtaugh's company, during regular National League season play and at World Series games involving his club.

Murtaugh was a slow-talking, fun-loving, tobacco-chewing man who took great delight in exchanging barbs with writers.

Dead-panned Danny was one of the nicknames the Pittsburgh press tacked on the Pirate manager and it was most apropos.

Until one got to know Murtaugh, you would be led to believe that he was an old grouch — until turned on his warmth and affection.

The jut-jawed Irishman was one of the best liked skippers, always making himself available to the media, and treating everyone alike, from major league city to a town like Manchester.

Murtaugh's retirement from baseball was brief, only a few months. He had hoped to spend some time with his family, principally his grandchildren, but as so often the case, death cut short his plans.

Off the cuff

The Manchester youngsters are members of the Hartford Whalers Peeewe hockey team, Galen Byram, Jim Ferreri and Eric Stepper. Winning three of the first four games Byram tallied five goals and added three assists, Stepper had two goals, three assists and Ferreri one goal and two assists. Hartford's luck will host a national football tennis tournament this weekend. Philadelphia Phillies and Minnesota Twins will meet in baseball's Hall of Fame game Aug. 8 at Cooperstown, N.Y. Single match tickets are now available at the Hartford Civic Center for the Aetna World Cup tennis play March 10-13. Sophomore guard Tony Calapano was the only UConn football player named to the All-ECAC Division II squad. Just for the record: Among the prominent Manchester men who ran in the Five Mile Road Race, Judge Jay Robinson placed 78th, former mayor John Thompson was 77th, School Board member John Yavis was 68th, Atty. Vic Moses was 89th. Atty. Jules Karp 91th and Dr. Carlos Benevides placed 80th...Steve Grogan needs three more touchdowns to tie the NFL record for quarterbacks. Johnny Lujack in 1950 with Chicago's Bears and Green Bay's Tobin Rote each rushed for 11 scores. The New England Patriots led the league with the best one-two punch among the fullbacks in the NFL in Sam Cunningham and Don Cathom. Have a nice weekend.

Perfect score

The first winner in The Herald's weekly "Beat the Experts" football contest to correctly bat every game was Ray "Moose" Finnegan. The former Manchester High player, now in local real estate, said he was a winner in his first try. Explaining his system, Finnegan said he just flipped a coin when he had any question in his mind as to the game winner. Hal Goodwood was a visitor at the desk yesterday and reported he had cut down to "just 130" speaking engagements this year. The former Milwaukee Braves and New York Mets Speaker Bureau chief is now on his own and already has a number of coast to coast sports books next year. He resides in Wellesley, Mass. SuperSonics snap road loss streak

NEW YORK (UPI) — They have taken two seasons and a 3,000-mile, cross-country pilgrimage, but the Seattle SuperSonics have come to the end of the road and found the one victory they've been looking for.

They downed Philadelphia, 121-112, Friday night in a 14-game losing streak on the road and drop the 76ers into second place in the NBA's Atlantic Division, half a game behind the Boston Celtics.

The victory ended an on-the-road losing string which dated back to March 10 of last season at Milwaukee. They have won all 12 of their home games this season.

Seattle's Fred Brown took care of the 76ers with a game-high 29 points, 14 in the final period. Guard Slick Bledsoe had 12 points and three rebounds, including a key layup to wheeling backcourt spearheaded the Sonics into a second-place tie in the Pacific Division.

Coach Russell said, "We took a time out and you know you call time out just to stop their momentum but to say something to your team.

"I told our team that we had stopped moving without the ball. If you move enough, you at least might get the free throw line," said Tom Burlison added 22 for Seattle, while George McGinnis was high for Philadelphia with 26 points and Doug Collins had 21.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Boston beat Chicago, 115-109, in overtime. Buffalo whipped the New York Knicks, 135-112. Denver topped the New York Nets, 126-124. New Orleans topped Atlanta, 121-105. Detroit dropped Kansas City, 124-115. Indiana lost Cleveland, 112-109. Portland stopped Phoenix, 113-99. And Los Angeles dumped San Antonio, 114-105.

Rookie Adrian Dantley and Bob McAdoo pumped in 30 points apiece as Buffalo handed New York its fifth straight loss. Randy Smith added 24 for the Braves, while New York was led by Earl Monroe's 23 points and Spencer Hayward's 19.

Drop football

CINCINNATI (UPI) — "Drop football" is again being rejected by some students at the University of Cincinnati.

Three student groups have gone on record urging the school to abolish intercollegiate football. The Student Senate adopted an antifootball resolution by a 13-1 vote, the Graduate Student Association supported that resolution by a 15-0 margin and the Residence Hall Association adopted a similar resolution.

The university's football team enjoyed one of its finest seasons ever this year, finishing with a 9-2 record.

Fairbanks blasts support of fans

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Coach Chuck Fairbanks says fans have not shown enough support for the New England Patriots in their last home game of the season.

The team announced Friday 14,500 seats were still available for Sunday's important game against the New Orleans Saints. "I'm disappointed in the apathy of the New England fans for the last home game of the season," said Fairbanks at his daily news conference.

"I think this ballclub has given the New England area and its football fans their best season in the club's history. We're coming into a game that can assure a place for us in NFL playoffs."

"In a home game you like to have the advantage of an enthusiastic home crowd as opposed to thousands of empty seats. I'm afraid we may lose our home advantage for this important game."

"I was told fans when I came here that fans in New England are supposed to be the best in pro football. This makes me wonder."

In seven regular season games, counting the upcoming contest Sunday, the Patriots have sold out all 61,279 seats twice. Since the Saints game was not sold out 72 hours prior to game time, the contest will not be televised.

Pats' defensive backfield most improved

BOSTON (UPI) — The odds used to be in the fingers' favor when quarterbacks threw into the New England Patriots' secondary. Now there's a 50-50 chance the pass will go incomplete against the most improved defensive backfield in pro football.

Enemy quarterbacks completed 57.8 per cent of their passes and just 13 intercepted against the Patriots last season. With two games left this season, quarterbacks already have thrown 20 more passes against the Patriots than all last season, yet have completed 14 fewer passes.

While quarterbacks have com-

Nordiques Whalers, tie

HARTFORD (UPI) — The New England Whalers were suddenly pouring goals into the net, but not fast enough to beat the club.

Clutching a one-goal lead in the third period, the Whalers Friday night allowed a 5-4 win in turn into a 5-5 tie with Christian Bodeleau scored for the Quebec Nordiques, the World Hockey Association East Division leaders.

Ten minutes of overtime failed to change the score.

"We can't play this wide open as we've played in the last two nights or Christy (Abrahamson) is going to see us," said Whalers coach Harry Neale, shaking his head.

Goalie Abrahamson played one of his finest games of the season despite five goals scored on him. He stopped 53 goals for some of our players since they've been frustrated all year." Scoring for the Whalers were Gordie Roberts, Alan Hangeleben, Gary MacGregor, Larry Phear and Tom Webster, who scored on a power play, his 12th of the season.

Other Quebec scorers were Mark Tardif, Richard Grenier, Charles Constantin and Curt Brackenburg, 6:47; Weir, Que, 14:39.

Steelers rooting for Oakland win

NEW YORK (UPI) — Obviously, the Pittsburgh Steelers will be rooting like crazy for the Oakland Raiders against the Cincinnati Bengals Monday night.

It's obvious in fact, the Steelers' playoff fate may hinge on what the Baltimore Colts do against the St. Louis Cardinals today.

The Bengals must lose one more game this season for the Steelers to have a chance of getting into the playoffs to defend two straight Super Bowl championships.

With the New York Jets the only other team left on the Bengals' schedule, the Steelers' best chance of making the playoffs is the Raiders. But, having wrapped up its division title already, Oakland's only motivation for the game against the Bengals is the home field advantage in the playoffs.

They have a one-game advantage over Baltimore already, another loss would mean the Raiders could afford to lose to the Bengals.

Therefore, the Steelers must hope the Colts manage to keep the Raiders from the playoffs.

In the midst of their fervent rooting for the Colts and Raiders, the Steelers also must remember to beat the Tampa Bay Buccaneers Sunday.

Tennessee people happy, pry Majors from Pitt

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The people of Tennessee finally are getting the coach for whom they've been campaigning for three years.

University of Pittsburgh football Coach Johnny Majors, who shaped a 110 team into this year's No. 1 in the rankings, announced Friday he was resigning to become head coach and assistant athletic director at the University of Tennessee, his alma mater.

He leaves Pitt shopping once again after only a year in the limelight. However, "I don't have to worry about people calling for the job," said Pitt Athletic Director Casimir Myslinski.

Myslinski said he hoped to name Majors' replacement by Dec. 21, the day the Panthers fly to Biloxi, Miss.

Preparations for the Sugar Bowl, where a win over fourth-ranked Georgia could give the national championship, "I'm very sorry to see Johnny go," he's done an excellent job here," Myslinski said. "All the recruiting he's done we'll be benefiting from for three or four years."

Majors, meanwhile, said he hopes to carry the team he carried as a player to a

Broyles, Royal to end careers

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Darrell Royal and Frank Broyles have visited on countless golf courses and at a number of Southwest Conference functions over the past 20 years.

But it appears they will meet for the final time on a football field tonight.

Royal's Texas Longhorns and Broyles' Arkansas Razorbacks play tonight in what a week ago seemed to be nothing more than a blatant contest to run out the string on a pair of unsuccessful seasons.

Now, however, it looks as if the game will provide the two men with their final appearance for the two men — giants in their profession and the closest of friends.

Reports of Broyles' impending resignation began to circulate Thursday and on Friday Royal admitted he was considering the same move — resignation as football coach, but continuation as athletic director.

"I would like to say that I have felt no pressure to leave," Royal said in a prepared statement Friday. "The only pressure I have felt is from people urging me to stay."

Earlier in the day, however, he said he was thinking of quitting the head coaching job and of his close friends — Billy "Rooster" Andrews — said he has already made his decision and I don't think he has anything to do with it," Andrews said.

Illinois tabs Moeller to handle grid team

CHICAGO (UPI) — All four Moellers had going for him in his bid to become head football coach at the University of Illinois were youth, a winning background and the stamp of approval of Bo Schembacher and Woody Hayes.

Moeller was named to the job Friday and promised a five-year contract at $55,000 after the board of trustees rostered him at Danilowicz 201, Bob Charon 205, Bob Oliver 215-589, Don Wilson 203, Barry Finney 216-574, Tom Jenkins 228-584, John Belasky 200, Ernie Whipple 551, Ken Bower 562, Dick Murphy 200.

Moeller is a graduate of Michigan's better recruiters, both big assets in trying to remake the Fighting Illini, 5-6 last season under outgoing Coach Bob Blackman.

San Francisco Dons living up to notices

NEW YORK (UPI) — A year ago great things were predicted for the University of San Francisco Dons' fourth straight victory this season without a loss.

"It didn't look like a rout

College basketball

at halftime as the Dons led only 43-41; five minutes into the second half the game was deadlocked at 51-51.

Then the Dons took charge, thanks to a 15-0 burst led by Redmond, starting at forward to give the Dons more board strength. He connected on an incredible 11 of 12 shots, including eight during the 15-0 burst. The 7-foot Cartwright led the Dons with 24 points, while Boynes had 16.

Overall, San Francisco

notted 40 of 66 shots for a 60% percentage and dominated the boards, 46-32.

Ray Murry had 22 for the Bears, none for the Dons. Only two other major teams were in action Friday night. Missouri edged Illinois, 76-75, in an opening round of the Show-Me Classic, and Wichita State lost to Oregon, 57-49, in a first-round game in the Sun Devil Classic.

In other top games, North Texas State nipped St. Louis, 62-40, in the first-round Show-Me game to earn the right to meet Missouri, Arizona State rolled to an 89-25 victory over San Diego State and will meet Oregon in the Sun Devil Classic championship. Wake Forest remained unbeaten, at 4-0, with a 92-75 triumph over Washington and Nebraska edged Hawaii in a sloppy game for the second straight night, winning by a 60-59 score.

Washington still unable to tack loss on Flyers

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Washington Capitals are now two for two against the Philadelphia Flyers; two points in three games, that is.

Harland Monahan's goal with just 30 seconds left Friday night gave the Caps a 4-4 tie with the Flyers and Philadelphia's Gretch Lindberg had 10 points and sophomore Laurie Barry eight for East.

East's next tilt is home Wednesday night at 6:30 against South Windsor.

Pro hockey

1:57 into the first period and scored his second goal with five minutes left in regulation to insure the tie. Claude Larose and Larry Patey talked for St. Louis.

Colorado's Vancouver 2 Simon Olfert scored an unassisted goal with 2:26 left in the game to lead Colorado to its third straight triumph, ending the Rockies' unbeaten streak to four games and bring the club within three points of second-place Chicago in the Smyth Division. Nelson Pyatt scored for the first in Colorado goals. Vancouver's goals were by Rick Bight and Bob Dailey.

The Aeros' Wayne Rutledge and Oiler's Ken Berrick matched shutouts in the WHA's third scoreless tie. Willy Lindstrom and Anders Hedberg scored goals a minute apart to spark a three-goal, second-period outburst for the Jets over the Fighting Saints. Denis Abragall scored two goals to lead the Stingers past the Cowboys... and Colorado led by 30 seconds left in regulation time game enabled the Nordiques to tie the Whalers.

CB radios becoming theft-proof

By INK DIPPER

CB radios are becoming more than just little boxes under the dashboard, and the rising crime rate has a lot to do with the new look.

Thefts of CB radios have skyrocketed with the growth of the CB's use. Those little radios are easy to steal in most cases — just pop open the door, turn a couple of screws and out they come.

The same people who made small fortunes stealing stereo tape players five years ago have turned their evil talents to CBs. The rip-offs have forced insurance companies to drop automatic coverage on CBs installed in cars.

In most cases, a car owner has to pay extra for CB coverage and the annual premium can run $25 and more.

Edmund James of East Hartford plays Scrooge in the Center Ballet Theatre production of "Scrooge" at Penney High School in East Hartford Saturday, Dec. 11.

Christmas ballet

The Center Ballet Theatre group of 1227 Burnside Ave., East Hartford will present the third annual production of the Christmas story ballet, "Scrooge," at 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 11 at the George Penney High School on Forbes St., East Hartford. Mrs. Joyce Karpie, director, said Edmund James of East Hartford will pantomime and dance the title role.

There will be a cast on stage of about 70 of the center's dancers.

Manchester residents performing include William Bean, Alison Hublard, Donna Klucwicz, Camille Medeiros, Claudia Medeiros, Susan Welch, and Heidi Witt. East Hartford dancers include Joseph McCarthy and Denise Ouellette.

To learn more about it, call 569-2082. Tickets will be on sale at the door.

Ballet coloring book

The Hartford Ballet has published a coloring book based on the company's production of "The Nutcracker." Hartford performances of "The Nutcracker" are scheduled for Dec. 17, 18, 19 and 20 at Bushnell Memorial Hall in Hartford.

The 40-page book with text features all the major characters of the ballet.

The coloring book is the work of Ellie Bender, a Meriden artist. The book is available at book, department and toy stores in Manchester and elsewhere in the Hartford area.

At the Bushnell

Tonight at 8, the Connecticut Opera Association will present Rossini's "Il Barbiere di Siviglia" at Bushnell Memorial Hall in Hartford.

Wednesday at 8:15 p.m., Peter Serkin appears as guest pianist with the Hartford Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Arthur Winograd, music director. Serkin will perform Mozart's Piano Concerto in A.

Thursday at 8 p.m., the Travelers Choral Club presents its annual program of Christmas choral music. Phone Victor Stiff at 277-2713 for a free ticket.

Dec. 10, 11 and 12, Chris Borden narrates a full-length color travelogue on Afghanistan.

attended — including at home. Most people, though, have trouble forming that habit.

The second-generation CBs, of course, are trouble to install unless they're bought in a new car. Installation in either case would cost at least $25 and tie up the car for an hour or more.

And they cost more, too. A two-part radio can cost ten to 25 per cent more than regular units, and the built-in system with an AM-FM combo can often double the price of regular CBs.

But you can see the advantages if you compare that with the cost of buying a second unit after the first is stolen, or paying $35 a year more in insurance premiums for five years.

There will always be a market for under-dash units, but they are becoming one of several alternatives instead of the only game in town. It's a change that can be appreciated by everyone but the professional CB thief.

The sea: Connector or barrier?

Editor's note: This is the 13th of 16 weekly articles in the Courses by Newspaper program, "Oceans: Our Continuing Frontier," published in The Herald's Weekend magazine each Saturday. The course is offered for college credit by Manchester Community College. For details about this and future Courses by Newspaper, call MCC's Division of Community Services, 646-2137. By HERMAN KAHN
The oceans have played two very different roles in human history. Very often, as in the Mediterranean, even relatively primitive seafarers could hug the coast, using the sea as a free, natural highway for trade and colonization. However, the oceans, especially the Pacific and the Atlantic, were imposing barriers to serious commerce.

The extent to which the largest ocean of all, the Pacific, will now become an efficient connector rather than a barrier is one of the more interesting questions for the next decade. If this occurs, the countries of the Pacific basin (including some nations such as Brazil which technically do not border on the Pacific Ocean, but whose commerce and financial relations increasingly involve nations which do) would surely form a relatively tight Trading and Investment Community.

Such a development would represent a new stage in the march of history which focused first on the Mediterranean and then on the North Atlantic. I am suggesting also that a remarkable amalgam of Western, Chinese, and Indian cultures will be created around the Pacific basin "connector." In some ways Singapore is a prototype of the new culture since it mixes Western (mainly American and British) with Sinic (Chinese and Japanese) roots and adds a significant Indian influence.

The likelihood that the Pacific Ocean will increasingly become a connector of nations and peoples does not, of course, depend simply on shipping. For the Pacific to work effectively in this way, new telecommunications systems are needed that can tie organizations together almost as tightly as if they were in the same building.

To a considerable extent, the sea is a great natural highway. No energy is required to keep masses of goods afloat, and little to overcome the modest friction of water, unless high speed is wanted.

Thus a freighter can carry 10,000 tons on one-fortieth of the power required to move a jet carrying perhaps 100 tons - at 30 times the speed. Even on expensive roads, a car requires a 30th of the freighter's power to move a payload of perhaps a quarter-ton at three times the freighter's speed. And, until recently, extensive paved highways have been built in only a very few parts of the world. It is hardly surprising, then, that a great part of the world's commerce has always moved - and still moves - by water.

Bulk carriers

At the moment, the best way of moving great masses of homogeneous material is by the so-called VLCC (Very Large Crude Carrier). The larger the ship, the less fuel it has to expend per ton transported. Thus, the size of tankers has mushroomed from individual capacities of 20,000 tons in 1945 to 0.5 million tons 30 years later.

The dramatic increase in size involves serious consequences to the environment (in the event of disaster at sea) and to the pattern of port use (most ports cannot accommodate very large tankers). In a future war - or other situation of violence lengthy and uneconomical process, the container has been developed. Goods move into a ship prepackaged in sealed metal containers, which can be loaded and unloaded rapidly and may be transferred on land to trucks or railroad cars.

Another modern innovation is the registration of ships controlled by owners in advanced industrial nations - with high labor costs, taxes, and safety standards - to so-called flags of convenience, like Liberia. This stratagem doesn't mean that these ships completely evade regulation. Since all operators must carry insurance, the insurance companies are very vigilant in examining what really counts in terms of the risks they accept. As a result, despite much concern, safety standards are reasonably good for the ship.

The 'cost' of economy

One problem, however, is that economies of scale have dictated larger and larger ships, and the longer the ship, the easier it is to drive with fewer horsepower per ton of ship. But this also means "with less and less effective steering" since the efficacy of a ship's rudder depends on the volume of water (i.e., the power) thrust upon it by the propeller.

Economics also dictates smaller crews and a reduction in duplicate systems. That is, the potential onboard repair force shrinks, while the significance of the items in question grows. The consequences of poor maintenance of such large ships can be very serious indeed. If an inexperienced crew runs an underpowered supertanker aground, a very nasty and highly visible oil spill can easily result.

Furthermore, the shipowner's vulnerability to the legal vengeance of those who suffer from the spill is reduced by the use of flags of convenience, which can lead to a welter of confused jurisdictions.

The dominant feature of modern commercial shipping, then, is the rise in both the size and number of cargo carriers. The larger ships are usually faster but less maneuverable than their smaller predecessors. Since they can use fewer ports, the greatest sea lanes have become increasingly congested. Indeed, radar ship control similar in spirit to the aircraft control at busy airports has already been introduced in some ports. A corollary trend has been much more careful sounding of coastal waters as ships have grown in draft.

Future trends

An opposite trend must also be mentioned. While conventional ships are limited to speeds below 50 miles per hour (considerably less if they are to be economical), new technologies (hydrofoils and vehicles riding on an air cushion) promise ship-like vehicles capable of up to twice this limit - albeit with limited payloads. Such vehicles, which could cross the Atlantic in little over a day, may revive the long-range passenger traffic lost to the airlines. It seems likely that the means of ocean commerce will proliferate and its volume increase even more in the future than in the past.

Some reflections on the recent MANPHIL '76

By RUSS MacKENDRICK
 "MANPHIL" is a mercifully short name for the MANchester PHILatelic Society's annual hosting of the Connecticut Philatelic Society — all in one breath.

Stamps and coins

Here is one of the covers prepared for the latest occasion with a Currier and Ives "Minute-man" cachet. They had several types of such special mementos, including three souvenir cards.

If you are thinking "What goes on anyway?" then join me in a mini-tour or waltz-around to get with it. The whole thing is a sort of bazaar for stamps, new and used and on envelopes; and for accessory material such as tongs to hold them, albums for protection and display, and mag glasses to puzzle out details.

Of course it was primarily set up as a place for the November meeting of the CPSEs, but this lasted for only 10 minutes then back to the fun.

There were 15 or 20 booths for dealers, but first you would have had a chance to get some 10-cent envelopes with better-than-nothing stamps and perhaps a lucky number for a door prize (one was a pair of hand-knit woolen mittens).

Then nearby was the place to purchase the souvenir material. Just inside the hall was the post-office sub-station where they pull off plate blocks for you to supply commemorative stamps you had forgotten to get.

There was a display of auction stuff running width of the hall. You see stamps offered singly or on pages or in partly-filled abandoned albums. And there are always boxes of philatelic material sometimes referred to by the auctioneers as "junk," but nothing stops the eager bidders from bidding them up.

Everything is here except a competitive exhibition of stamps — this will be next April at the MANPEX '77 — see you there for another waltz.

Gifts to libraries

The charter of the Manchester Philatelic Society Inc. says something about fostering philatelic knowledge, so they have voted to supply the Mary Cheney, Whiton, and Lutz libraries with 1977 copies of the Scott and Minkus stamp catalogs.

Sounds like a deal

Have just dashed off a check ($3.05) to Washington for a copy of the latest Annual Report of the Director of the Mint. As described in Coin World, it is stuffed with an almost incredible amount of numismatic information in its 247 pages.

It gives the United States coinage — quantities, compositions, and dimensions. Also you get clues to potential scarcities in case you want to hoard — only 65 million pieces of the 1974 Denver half as against 126 million from Philly. This type of info is no surprise, but they go on with the story of all the medals made by the mint, so you can winnow out those many non-official "officials" that came crawling from the woodwork this year. And then there is the foreign coinage program, both for the U.S. Mint and worldwide mints, even with their addresses. It gives world monetary stocks of gold and silver (with the USSR doubtless omitted). And did you know about FAO coin issues from the Food and Agricultural Organization of the UN in Rome? All this is supposed to be in the Report.

Anyway, I bit, and the check is on its way to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office,

Washington, DC 20402.

Coming events

The Central Conn. Coin Club will meet Tuesday evening, December 7, at the K of C Hall, 138 Main St., Manchester. Visitors are always welcome.

Gerry Gerath's First Sunday Stamp Bourse tomorrow will have a holiday twist with a special free grab-bag door prize offering. It has now expanded to 25 dealers with stamps and supplies for collectors. Place: Ramada Inn, 100 E. River Dr., East Hartford. Get off at the Darlin St. Ext. Free parking and admission. U.S. Postal Service booth as usual.
