Cities and states inflate public works requests

The taxpayers are being set up for another federal spending ride again. The Commerce Department's Economic Development Administration has reported state and local governments across the country have filed nearly $24 billion worth of applications for $2 billion that Congress has made available for job-creating public works projects.

To quote the news report, "the flood of applications has prompted tentative suggestions that the controversial program be expanded." We will not be tentative. We urge the agency to assess the applications — including those from Manchester and other Connecticut communities — in the light of the appropriations available.

We suggest on the basis of past performance of public works programs, that the $24 billion figure is politically inflated.

First, every community and state submitted requests for funds for every conceivable project that might have the slightest chance of being eligible. That is to say, many sent in numerous applications in the hope that at least one or two might pass muster. We have no doubt that if city and state officials were told they could only get one application into the finals, they would cull the list substantially.

Second, no city or state official would dare to admit politically that his town or state does not need funds from this federal program. Thus, the applications reflect many low priority concerns in order to maintain a "poor relative" image with the Congress.

Third, there are those in the Congress who wanted to spend more money on this program

TGIF

Perhaps you have seen these letters which many people have been wearing. They stand for the words "Thank God It's Friday."

This may be only a humorous way of expressing relief that the work week is over and a couple of days of rest are ahead. These same letters can be interpreted on a much deeper level.

First, it is good to be thankful. Saying "thank you" is a much better habit than taking for granted all the good that comes to us.

Secondly, it is good that our deepest thanks is given. The impulse to give thanks to something above and beyond ourselves is hard to suppress even when a person considers himself irreligious.

I am reminded of the Russian girl who took an exam, answering the question "What inscription is on (a particular) building?" with the words "Religion is the opiate of the people." Anxious to know if she had answered correctly, she walked that she had given the right inscription she breathed "Thank God."

We need to raise our thanks to God — on Friday and every other day. Lastly, there is a reason for being especially thankful on Friday which goes beyond the natural desire for a day of rest. The weekend gives the opportunity for both Jews and Christians to meet in worship. On a Jewish Sabbath, and on the Christian Sunday, the faithful gather to renew their faith, to praise Almighty God, to receive forgiveness, cleansing, and strength for the week ahead.

TGIF because soon we will be worshipping together. Once again we will be assured that life has meaning and that "behind the dim unknown standeth God within the shadows keeping watch above his own."

A very special reason to TGIF comes to our Jewish friends next Friday when Hanukkah begins, and the following Friday to all who look forward to Christmas eve — the birth of the Saviour.

So, when you see someone wearing a pin with TGIF, think what those letters can mean to you.

"The Russians" The Pulitzer prize-winning New York Times correspondent Hendrick Smith has written a fascinating book based on his experience of living in Russia with his family. It gives a different picture than the official one presented to us. It was particularly interesting in his comments on religion in Russia. Here is a paragraph from his introduction.

"The longer I stayed in Moscow, the more I began to wonder whether anomalies weren't the rule. I found that in spite of the climate of aggressive state atheism, there are twice as many church adherents as card-carrying Communists; that in a society that has enshrined state ownership of property, more than half of the living space is privately owned; that in a system of rigorously collectivized agriculture, nearly 30 per cent of farm output is grown on private plots and much of it sold through sanctioned free enterprise markets... that in spite of the rigid ideological conformity imposed from above, large numbers of people are politically indifferent and privately mock the inflated claims of Communist propaganda; that in the land of the proletariat, people are far more rank-, class- and status-conscious than in the West."

The chuckle Some of you may have been amused by the "genetic elbowing" among the Baptist churches in Washington that are anxious to have the next President worship with them. The President-elect had first announced that he would attend the nearest Baptist church. Ironically it turned out that there are two Baptist churches exactly seven-tenths of a mile from the White House. Whichever he chooses there will inevitably be growth in attendance, prestige and income.

This puts in mind a comment made by the "President's minister" some years ago. Late one Saturday night a tourist from the Middle West asked the clergyman with a phone call. He wanted to know if the president planned to be in church the next morning.

CLIFF SIMPSON

Rightfully annoyed, the minister answered, "I do not know, but I assure you that God will be there. Maybe He will do."

Poem of the week — "My Master" My Master was so very poor, A manger was His cradling place; So very rich my Master was Kings came from far To gain His grace.

My Master was so very poor And with the poor He broke the bread; So very rich my Master was That multitudes By Him were fed.

My Master was so very poor They nailed Him naked to a cross; So very rich my Master was He gave His all And knew no loss.

A timely warning from Great Britain

Lee Roderick

The Herald's Washington Correspondent WASHINGTON — "The path to socialist destruction in Britain was prepared by good but ill-advised and ill-judged men and is now passing into the hands of men of destructive envy and hate. The bell of Soviet Russia tolls for us, as ours toll for you."

That sobering warning to America comes from a prominent member of the House of Commons, Rhodes Boyson. His recent speech at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah should be required reading for Jimmy Carter and his Washington team before they set about to implement ambitious new social welfare programs.

Boyson's graphic description of life today in England is a veritable horror story of how an all-powerful democratic government, even though benevolent, can systematically strip its citizens of basic liberties as surely as any totalitarian regime.

England's housing problems are even worse. Rent prices for private accommodations are fixed so low by the government that such housing is scarcely available in urban areas.

"The wage earner in Britain's cities has thus only the choice of renting the ordinary socialized medicine, or buying a house on the free market which may be beyond his purse," said Boyson.

"Millions of Londoners are thus condemned to live in large tower blocks built by local councils with rents which only cover 40 per cent of the economic cost of the property — 60 per cent being subsidized by the local rate and national taxpayer."

Such housing, he added, is studded with "mugging, violence, vandalism, sleeplessness, noise and misery" for its tenants.

house accommodation only in the area where they live, they are tied there for life. They are thus imprisoned as a Russian dissenter allowed by the Soviet state to live only in one town or country area.

Boyson continued: "Another attack on the free society comes from opponents who point to the complications of modern life and throw doubt on the ordinary person's ability to overcome them without help or direction by the state. This, I believe, is a great falsehood. Most people today lead lives no more complicated than those of a medieval peasant or of a North American Indian before the white conquest..."

"The irony is that it is the government that creates the very complications which it claims are then the justification for its further interference. Cut government back and there are few problems besetting the ordinary person."

On an optimistic note, the speaker said most of the British now appear to oppose a further extension of socialism. "Britain is now, however," he added, "an internal battleground between the two opposing ideologies — one of freedom and one of totalitarian tyranny."

"Those of us engaged and dedicated to the army of freedom look to the U.S.A. for aid and support in what is your fight as well as ours as much as we did in 1914-1918 and in 1939-45. This time the succor is not financial or military help but the charge that you, by your ideals and actions, keep alive in the U.S.A. and elsewhere the ideals of freedom and liberty which inspired the founders of the American nation 200 years ago."

Lack of funds apparently delays Forest St. curve correction

A land deal that would never been consummated because the town has not had the funds to do the necessary road work, according to town officials.

The property, a strip on the northern side of the street, was offered to the town a few years ago by the owners — Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Danyliw, of 43 Forest St., and Mr. and Mrs. Matthew M. Moriarty Sr., of 75 Forest St.

"We donated the land because of the hazardous curve. It's a bad spot," Moriarty said.

Frank Ennis, of the Engineering Department, said that when the land was first offered, the town and the Moriarty could not come to a final agreement.

About a year later, the two parties agreed to the land transfer, he said. At this time, however, the town had no plans drawn up for the road improvement.

Ennis, who handles land matters involving the Engineering Department, said that even though the Moriarty had agreed to the land transfer, the deal has not been recorded.

The town clerk's office has no record of the deal, even though both the Danyliws and the Moriarty said that they have turned the land over to the town.

"We would donate the land if we would make the improvement to the road, but I couldn't make the commitment," he said.

"We just haven't had the funds," Ennis said.

Weiss said that it is a "possibility" that funds will be available in next year's budget to permit the necessary work to the road to be done.

But, the curve in the road remains as is. "At night, people don't realize there's a curve there," Halina Danyliw said.

There's always an accident out there," she said.

Fire victims need housing

Mrs. Ise Gyokeri and her two children, victims of the fire which destroyed a multi-story home on Oak St. Thursday where they lived, are in desperate need of an apartment.

The Red Cross and the Manchester Area Conference of Churches have not had any success so far in locating a place. Mrs. Nancy Carr, executive director of MACC, said Mrs. Gyokeri can pay $190 a month for an apartment with heat.

An apartment with two bedrooms, or a three-room apartment would do, Mrs. Carr said.

The family also needs clothing. The boy, age 4, wears size 5 or 6; the girl, age 7, wears size 7 or 8, and Mrs. Gyokeri wears size 18.

Anyone having information about an available apartment, may call the Red Cross office at 643-5111, or Mrs. Carr at 643-1891.

Clothing or household furnishings and appliances may be deposited at the action center of the Revitalization Corps in the former Grant's building at the Parkade.

Money donations may be sent to Box 773, Manchester Conference of Churches, in the name of the fire victims. There were four other families left homeless by the fire.

Court speeds up rate dispute case

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Supreme Court has ordered moved up the timetable for considering the decision which struck down a $47.7 million Northeast Utilities rate hike.

The high court Friday made the decision at the request of the firm and the Public Utilities Control Authority, despite pleas from consumer representatives they needed more time to prepare their case.

The court ordered both sides to submit all required documents by the middle of February and said a date for a hearing would be set at that time, presumably shortly thereafter.

Without that order it had been anticipated the appeal would take more than a year to be heard.

The court said it would rule soon, perhaps early next week, on a motion by Northeast that all actions before other courts involving the rate hike case be stayed and the Supreme Court act as a clearing house for them.

Manchester man assaulted and robbed by two men

A Manchester man returning to his home at Squire Village was mugged and robbed of $120 Friday night by two men who assaulted him when he got out of his car. The assailants fled on foot. When Masse arrived at his apartment, he discovered his wallet was missing. Police found it empty near his car. The incident occurred shortly after 5 p.m.

Richard W. Brennan, 25, of 92 Campfield Rd. was charged Friday with larceny after reporting an incident in connection with a false fire alarm from at box at Windemere and Broad Sts., police said. Court date is Dec. 27.

A burglary was reported at a Tudor Lane apartment Friday night in which $182 was taken by someone who pried open a front door. Don McPhail of Northboro, Mass. told police a briefcase containing about $1,500 in money orders and checks was stolen from his car either at the Burr Corners shopping plaza or at the lot of a French restaurant where he stopped to eat. A resident of Bolton Center Rd. reported to police that the windshield was taken from his station wagon while it was parked in a driveway.

Three persons have been arrested by Coventry Police on charges stemming from a reported armed robbery in July 1975. The three suspects, charged Friday with conspiracy and larceny, were identified as Gayle Insalaco, 19, of Windham; Jeffrey Baker, 27, of Williamstown; and Kenneth Langille, 19, of Rt. 31, Coventry.

All three were released on $5,000 non-surety bonds each and are scheduled to appear Jan. 4 in Courtroom 3-C, 12 East Hartford. Police said the charges stem from an armed robbery reported July 20, 1975, at the Gasland service station on Rt. 44A, Coventry. Police said their extensive investigation concluded that the case was "an inside job," but authorities didn't reveal details.

Building Inspector Donald McLaughlin, Fire Marshal William Lanning, and Talbot have surveyed the historic structure and have indicated the entire house would have to be gutted and rebuilt. Talbot said if the house was rebuilt inside it would be a "very attractive addition to the town." However, he feared that during the process, the significance of the architecture and materials would be lost.

Talbot indicated if the building was gutted and rebuilt — a process officials fear would be necessary to make the building safe — it would be difficult to justify placing it in the National Registry of Historic Places. Bolton considers beach first

Bolton Park Commissioner Stanley Bates asked the Board of Selectmen this week for some directions on development of the town property on Bolton Lane.

Bates said, and Selectman Leon Rivers agreed, that there is strong feeling in town for a beach on the property.

Both said sanitary facilities would be required by the state Health Department if the beach area is developed.

Selectman Norman Preuss said plans for the development have stopped pending federal action on Bolton Lane.

Corson was charged in connection with the alleged shooting of a neighbor on Nov. 15. He pleaded innocent to the assault charge after a court psychiatrist termed him competent to stand trial. He was being held at the Hartford Correctional Center in lieu of posting a $25,000 bond.

Harold Sugden, 40, of Hartford, pleaded innocent to driving while under the influence of liquor or drugs and chose trial by jury.

Martha Casavani, 44, of 30 N. Park St., Rockville, failed to appear to answer a charge of breach of peace. A re-arrest warrant was ordered and bond was set at $250.

Woman vows fight against pet rules

East Hartford — Mrs. Walter E. Schwamb of East Hartford said she will fight "to my last breath" to save the pets of the residents of the town's 870 units of housing for the elderly and moderate-income and low-income people.

The town Housing Authority has had a "no pets" rule in its leases for many years. However, it has not always been enforced.

Complaints this year prompted the new executive director, Nicholas Giamalis, and the newly appointed members of the authority to enforce the rule. Many residents were told to place their pets elsewhere or move out.

Mrs. Schwamb, not a resident of any of the housing units, said the residents of the 105-unit Hookanum Park complex will meet at their meeting room next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the pet rule as well as needed repairs in the project.

Security deposits — The Housing Authority met Thursday and voted to begin to require security deposits in the 330 units of housing not for the elderly. The authority will now seek permission from the Department of Community Affairs (DCA) and federal funds.

The cost of moving the house, heating, electrical and site work and plumbing is estimated at about $54,000. The South Windsor Historical Society planned to raise some of the money, but it asked the Town Council to help pay the cost for making the building a town museum.

• A Paradox of Plenty as set up by Raymond Johnson at the Langford School. He received $800 to introduce fifth grade students to well known authors and fine books.

• School and Home Reading Project as set up by Janet Craven of the Center School. She received $300 to encourage parent-child interaction through reading.

Sam Leone, assistant superintendent, said the successful mini-grant programs will be described in reports to other teachers and principals at the end of the school year.

Probe of Coventry fire still leaves suspicion

The Coventry house fire Nov. 24 on Boreal Vista Dr. is still considered suspicious, Richard Galinat, fire marshal, said.

"Someone was seen in the area around 10:20 that night," Galinat said. The South Coventry Fire Department was called at 11:11 p.m. Galinat said the owner, Cahliq D. Satari, was not there when the fire started. Satari, a Manchester resident, used the 4-1/2-room house as a seasonal dwelling.

The fire started in the living room, but there was no fire in the fireplace. The heating and electrical systems showed no signs of malfunction, Galinat said. He said a gas can was left on the steps, but it had not been used recently.

"By process of elimination, we assume the fire was suspicious," Galinat said. He said it would be difficult to prove the origin of the fire, however.

South Windsor

The old Sullivan house on Ellington Rd., South Windsor, has been deemed "in poor condition" and Town Manager Paul Talbot has recommended the Town Council fund its relocation and renovation for a museum.

Building Inspector Donald McLaughlin, Fire Marshal William Lanning, and Talbot have surveyed the historic structure and have indicated the entire house would have to be gutted and rebuilt.

Talbot said if the house was rebuilt inside it would be a "very attractive addition to the town." However, he feared that during the process, the significance of the architecture and materials would be lost.

Talbot indicated if the building was gutted and rebuilt — a process officials fear would be necessary to make the building safe — it would be difficult to justify placing it in the National Registry of Historic Places.

If not registered, South Windsor would not be eligible for matching federal funds.

Better rebounding, foul shooting enables Indians to defeat Knights

Indians' John Pisch dribbles away from Penney's Kevin Grady on floor.

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sportswriter
Getting the better of it in the rebounding and foul shooting departments, defending CCIL basketball champ Manchester High opened its 1976-77 season with a 78-66 victory over Penney High of East Hartford last night at Clarke Arena before a crowd of 1,000.
Manchester held a sizeable 48-26 advantage in the rebounding department, including 21 off the offensive glass. John Pisch and 67 center Jeff Pearson each had 10 caroms for the Silk Towners with Steve McKemie adding nine rebounds to the total.
Foul shooting proved to be the difference as the visiting Black Knights, considered one of Manchester's prime challengers for the league title, outshot the Indians from the floor, 27-26. But the locals attempted 40 free throws converting 26 while Penney was just 12 for 25.
The Indians were only 18 free throw infested. Forty-nine fouls were whistled through three players, Manchester's Mike Sherman and Penney's Brent Young and Tom Francis, each leaving with five personal fouls.

"I thought we played an excellent first game, considering the inexperience," Indian coach Doug Pearson stated. "Penney is an excellent team and hung right in the final period to narrow the gap but the Indians' tribe of ballhandlers made the strategy pay no dividends. A cold shooting press by Penney midway through the stanza coupled with four points from Pisch and two by Hyde built the edge back to 74-60 with 3:34 to go.
"Foul shooting definitely hurt us," noted Penney coach Bernie Dandley. "We didn't hit from the line, especially at crucial times. And we didn't do a strong job on the boards as we would've liked."
Pisch with a 10 for 16 performance from the foul line led all scorers with 24 points for Manchester with Hyde canning a big 18 points, many at crucial intervals. "He (Hyde) was the difference tonight," praised Penney assistant coach Mike Lauppes. Kierman, in limited service because of foul trouble, added a slight edge to within four, 58-54, with 1:07 remaining in the third stanza. But a lane jumper by Hyde and bucket by Rick Marshall off a court leap kept Pisch restored the bulge to eight going into the final period.
Penney, as it had most of the game, tried to press Manchester in the final period to narrow the gap but the Indians' tribe of ballhandlers made the strategy pay no dividends. # Somers nips Tech, edge at foul line

Hurt at the foul line, Cheney Tech dropped a 59-56 decision to Somers High last night in Somers in the 1976-77 basketball opener for both schools.
The homecoming Spartans went to the foul line 40 times cashing in on 25 while Cheney had only 18 free throws and converted eight.
The Techmen outscored Somers from the field, 24-17.
Somers led after the first quarter, 12-10, and held a 31-30 halftime advantage. Cheney came back and took the lead going into the final eight-minute period, 46-44. But Somers made its foul shooting pay off in the final quarter to take home the verdict.

East Hartford drops opener

By RICH TULLER

Turnovers can destroy a basketball team and they did just that as East Hartford High's Hornets dropped their 1976-77 season opener to Simsbury's Trojans, 59-44, last night at East Hartford before a crowd of 750.
The teams fired out of the gates quickly with both using full court presses. The Trojans was successful while East Hartford's failed.
Led by Lance Harris, the game's high scorer with 20 points, Simsbury broke East Hartford's zone pressure for many layups and easy jump shots. Harris actually outscored the Hornets himself in the second quarter netting seven while East Hartford only managed six as the Trojans took a 35-20 halftime lead.
East Hartford had chances to come back with four points each but a deliberate Simsbury offense held the Hornets at bay.
The Hornets made a valiant attempt to get back into the contest in the final period. The defense didn't allow a point until Steve Lutz came free, three with 4:32 left. Joe Kasper, the comeback try was second, all in a final quarter. But the Hornets couldn't, come closer than 54-42 with two minutes to go.
John Dixon led East Hartford in scoring with 12 points with Sean Lawton netting nine. Besides Harris' effort, Lutz had 12 and Mike Byrne 10 for Simsbury.
East Hartford coach Neil Guerin despite the loss was optimistic. "Simsbury has a good team and our foul shooting and turnovers killed us," he stated. The Hornets were 12 for 22 from the charity stripe and had 17 turnovers, many in key parts of the contest.
Guerin added, "We have a few kids who haven't practiced due to the length of the football season. We have to iron a few things out."

The Indians grabbed a 16-5 first quarter lead and built it into a 30-13 halftime edge. An 11-4 third quarter bulge moved the lead to an unreachably position.
Ellen Dandley led the Manchester attack with 11 points while Jill Grant added 10 markers. Mary Fay led the Penney offense with 10 tallies.
Manchester's jayvees also moved their record to 2-0 with a 38-8 victory over Penney. Lisa Griffin and Sharon Maher each had six points for Manchester.

Decision vacated

It's nifty-gritty time in the National Football League for the Pittsburgh Steelers and this afternoon the defending Super Bowl champions will know whether or not they will be assured of a post-season berth for the third straight year and a third straight AFC Central title.
All the Steelers have to do is make Houston their ninth straight victim today.
No team has ever won three straight Super Bowls. Pittsburgh hopes to accomplish that within the next few weeks.
Terry Bradshaw has been grabbing the headlines the past two years as the quarterback who guided the success, but it's a former Boston College star, Mike Kruczek, who is spotlighted now, along with the always-tough defense.

Steelers team of destiny

NEW YORK (UPI) — As the Pittsburgh Steelers see it, they may have more than an eight-game winning streak going for them Saturday when they take on the Houston Oilers.
"We're a team of destiny," said Pittsburgh linebacker Andy Russell, whose club can clinch its third straight AFC title with a victory to stage one of the most remarkable comebacks in the league's history. "We're going to do it."
In the early autumn the only thing the Steelers seemed destined for was a dismal finish.
Even if fate dealt the 14-point favored Steelers a losing hand before a national television audience Saturday, they can still take the Central Division championship provided the Cincinnati Bengals and Cleveland Browns drop their games.
However, a victory for the two-time Super Bowl champs assures Pittsburgh of a playoff spot for the fifth straight year regardless of what Cincinnati and Cleveland do.
On the other hand, the Oilers, who missed the past three seasons, Pittsburgh took the Oilers 22-16 three weeks ago.
"If it's possible to give 200 per cent I'll do it," said Houston wide receiver Ken Burrough. "I'm not thinking about the off-season or anything else. We haven't had a good season but we're in a position to give ourselves something to be proud of, to take home with us for the winter and everybody's gonna be watching."
The Steelers will bring the NFL's top defensive unit into the regular season finale. Only one team has scored a touchdown against them over the last eight games, a span in which they recorded four shutouts.
"You can't just do anything against Pittsburgh," said Houston quarterback John Hadl. "It's the best in football. No, make that the best defender in the history of football."

Struggling Suns top Celts

NEW YORK (UPI) — Struggling to reach the 500 mark this season, the Phoenix Suns have not been reminding many people of the team that soared unexpectedly into the National Basketball Association playoff finals last spring.
Boston Celtics, 107-103, Friday night in a frantic, but loosely played game.
The Suns were going to win in Boston Garden for the first time since the Celtics' triple-overtime playoff win in June.
"Sure we thought about that game when we came in here this morning to work out," said Paul Westphal, who had six of his 21 points in the decisive third-period spurt. "But that was last year and we have to put last year out of our mind."
Westphal, who led the NBA title series in six games to Boston, erased their memories by outstrung and outdefending the Celtics Friday night in a frantic, but loosely played game.
Elsewhere, Portland nipped Buffalo, 102-102, Detroit beat the New York Nets, 108-104, Chicago ripped the San Antonio Spurs, 107-98, Washington defeated Indiana, 98-88, San Antonio whipped Milwaukee, 126-120, Los Angeles beat Houston, 109-99, and Seattle downed Golden State, 99-93.
Blazers 103, Braves 102.
Bill Walton had 18 points and 15 rebounds and Bob Gross and Larry Rife each added 17 points apiece to pace Portland over Buffalo, which played its first game since Bob McAdoo was traded to the New York Knicks.
Phoenix 106, Nets 104.
Bob Lanier scored 22 points, grabbed 15 rebounds and blocked a possible game-tying basket with 10 seconds to go to lead Detroit.

Bulls 92, Jazz 78
Norm Van Lier scored 17 points, Wilbur Holland added 16 and Scott May 15 in Chicago's easy win. Pete Maravich, the NBA's leading scorer going into the game, scored only six points for cold-shooting New Orleans.
Bullets 98, Pacers 88
Wes Unseld, who sat out most of the third period with a sprained ankle, returned to score 11 of his 13 points in the final period for Washington. Within four minutes he scored nine points and assisted in helping Dave Bing ignite the Bullets on a 13-0 streak that insured a Washington victory. Elvin Hayes led Washington with 27 points and Len Robinson added 26.
Suns 136, Bucks 120
Larry Kenon scored 23 points, Mike Gale 22 and George Gervin 18 to send Milwaukee down to its fifth straight loss and snap a four-game San Antonio losing streak.
Lakers 109, Rockets 99
Lucius Allen scored 20 points and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar 18 Friday night as Los Angeles broke a three-game slide. The victory was the seventh in a row at home for the Lakers, who have won 11 of 13 their home games this season.
Sonic 99, Warriors 93
Fred Brown scored 23 points and Dennis Johnson and Leonard Gray 19 each to give Seattle its 20th consecutive home court victory. The victory broke a five-game win streak for Golden State. It did not come easily for Seattle as the Sonics scored just three points the first 7:15 of the game and fell behind by 13.
The Hawks had to withstand a strong surge by Central in the last 12 minutes to win. Jere Quinn had 23 to lead Central's scoring.
Steve Halimowski had 25 points to lead Wesleyan while Arthur Blake was top scorer for Trinity with 23.

Courageous Thompson succumbs to leukemia

ROCHESTER, Minn. (UPI) — The man honored in 1974 as baseball's most courageous performer, who taught himself to accept terminal leukemia, died Friday of complications connected with the illness.
Danny Thompson, shortstop for the Texas Rangers, died at St. Mary's Hospital, an affiliate of the Mayo Clinic, where he had been since Nov. 16.
Thompson was told in February 1973, he was suffering from chronic granulocytic leukemia, when he was with the Minnesota Twins. But he said playing big league baseball was his lifelong dream. He was traded with pitcher Bert Blyleven from the Twins to the Texas Rangers early last season. When he learned of his illness, he programmed himself to accept his fate.

Special prosecutor request to be submitted to Assembly

HARTFORD (UPI)—In the wake of the Peter A. Reilly case, Gov. Ella Grasso has asked the 1977 General Assembly to consider a special prosecutor so citizens can channel criminal justice complaints to an ombudsman. She met Friday with Connecticut Chief Justice Charles S. House, Chief State's Attorney Joseph T. Gormley Jr. and leaders from the General Assembly for more than an hour behind closed doors.

"My concept is we should seek to develop here in Connecticut an opportunity for the receipt of all complaints so that our citizens can make application to the office of (special prosecutor.) It's the ombudsman concept," she said.

Mrs. Grasso said that the Reilly case was discussed and that Gormley told her he is working on the report she requested on the use of evidence during Reilly's original trial and retrial hearing.

She said, "I will wait for his (Gormley's) report until I make any further judgment on this matter." Gormley said he would have the report completed by the first week in January, if not sooner.

Reilly was convicted of manslaughter in the 1973 killing of his mother, Barbara Gibbons, 51, and won a new trial last March. The charges against him were dropped last month after the state revealed previously undisclosed evidence placing him away from the scene of the crime.

Mrs. Grasso had ordered State Police Commissioner Edward P. Leonard to have the state police reopen the investigation into the death of Mrs. Gibbons.

While in the Army in 1953, Dr. Pastel first became interested in photography with his first camera, the Kodak Retina. Since, he has developed that interest into a skillful tool of expression to make him an outstanding Manchester photographer.

Mental health program uses CB

By INK DIPPER

Truckers, hailed as the last of the American cowboys, are in a business that breeds mental problems. For long hours, they're isolated from people, shut up in lonely truck cabs with only their problems to keep them company.

But a few of them are beginning to find help while they're out on the road, thanks to a Bowling Green, Ohio, agency that provides mental health counseling and referral services over CB radio channel nine.

The CB hook-up through The Link, an agency funded by tax money and private donations to provide mental health counseling and services to area residents.

Using a CB radio was the idea of Dr. Harve Meskin, executive director of The Link.

Meskin, who became director in July, came up with the idea when he moved to Bowling Green from Arkansas, where he had received his doctorate.

"I noticed a lot of people communicating over CBs. It seemed like a logical extension of our services," he says. "Hopefully this will someday be expanded into a nationwide network."

The program has applied for a federal grant to set up a mental health counseling program for truckers on a broader scale to see if it's feasible. Right now, The Link is working in a field of mental health that otherwise has been neglected.

"Because of their work, truckers haven't been accessible to help," he says. "They're always on the move, and they're cut off. These people need help just like anyone else, and because of the nature of their work probably need it more."

"Since they're always on the move, they can't find out how to get help for personal problems. Maybe they have problems with drugs or alcohol. Maybe a trucker is afraid that his wife is abusing their children, and he needs to know how to get help."

Meskin says that The Link, which is open 24 hours a day, hasn't provided much direct counseling over the CB, but it has set up counseling for truckers either on the telephone or at the project's office in a converted house in Bowling Green.

Because the CB is a sort of public party line, truckers have been reluctant to discuss their problems over the radio, he says.

So far, The Link has been receiving a couple of CB calls a day, and its counselors have been telling people where to go for help and how to seek social or mental health services. They've also listened to the trucker's troubles, which is a help for some of the highway cowboys.

The calls have come in because of word-of-mouth or a few stories which have appeared in magazines or newspapers. Eventually, Meskin wants to have a sign placed on a nearby interstate giving The Link's call letters and the channel it monitors.

The Link has also provided help for people who are not truckers.

"One thing we didn't expect," says

Ask Kleiner

By Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: I've been always wanted to be in a TV series. I am 14 years old and have no idea what my first step is to become an actress. What is my first step, Dick? And how can my acting talent be discovered? W. CRAWFORD, Salinas, Ca.

The best advice I can give anybody who wants to come to Hollywood is don't come to Hollywood. Hollywood is a jungle and it eats girls like you. Stay home, act in school plays, little theater plays, go on to college and do college plays. You can't expect to conquer Hollywood unarmed, and training and experience are your weapons. If you must do it now, first contact an agent (Screen Actors Guild, in Hollywood, has a list of accredited agents) because you must have representation. But he'll want to know your experience, which brings us back to Rule 1 — stay home and get some experience.

DEAR DICK: In the movie, "Rosemary's Baby," with Mia Farrow, I said to my family that she was insane. Or was she sane? She thought everybody was out to get her. RUSSELL FLAIDE, Roaring Branch, Pa.

You have to accept the author's premise, that she had been raped by the devil at the behest of a coven of witches. In the context of the film, she was sane. Of course, it was only fiction but, no, the intent was not to portray her as insane.

DEAR DICK: Why did great singers like Jerry Vale and Dean Martin stop making records? When they stopped, the junk took over. I know damned well the people are getting tired of junkie music we have to listen to now. A. MARTIN, La Mirada, Ca.

You're obviously older than 20. It's the kids — from eight to 20 or 30 — who buy most records, at least singles. And the kids like today's music, which is natural because it's their music. So, naturally, the record companies turn out records the kids buy, and they like what you call "junkie" music. Sad, but true.

Stay up tonight. You won't want to miss any of the fun and excitement of Connecticut Public Television's first fund raising extravaganza. Starting tonight and continuing until 6:00 p.m. Sunday, Connecticut's entertainers and the comedy team of Bob and Ray will rally in support of CPTV. Make your pledge of support and keep public television going and growing in Connecticut. Call 247-2424 with your pledge.

CPTV CHANNEL 24
WTNH-TV, Channel 8 will also broadcast the CPTV/Bob and Ray Television extravaganza from 12 midnight to 7:00 a.m.

Oceans 14: Ships and the sailor

Editor's note: This is the 14th of 16 weekly articles in the Courses by Newspaper program, "Oceans: Our Continuing Frontier," published in The Herald's Weekend magazine each Saturday. By J. H. PARRY

Water transport is by far the oldest method of moving men and goods about. Most primitive societies, long before they learned to domesticate beasts of burden or to construct vehicles for use on land, discovered means of crossing water. And the character of the ships has largely determined the nature of the lives of sailors ever since.

Their ancient craft varied widely, depending on water conditions and available material. However, almost all fall into one of three broad groups: rafts, made of logs or bundles of other buoyant materials lashed together; hollowed-out logs, and basket-like frames of pliant boughs, covered with skins. All effective boats and ships derive from one or another of these basic types, or from crosses between them.

With such simple devices — still used in some areas — hunters and gatherers could cross rivers and range more widely. Fishing peoples could leave the shore to fish or to dive for mollusks. Goods for barter could be carried over short distances by laborious paddling or poling in sheltered waters.

Harnessing the wind

For more ambitious travel, primitive man needed an independent propellant — the wind — and sails to use it. The earliest basic sail was probably a simple square or rectangle. From it evolved, over many centuries, the balance-lug, characteristic of the China seas, and the lateen of the northern Indian Ocean. Fore-and-aft sails were technically more sophisticated. A vital supplement to square rig, they are European in origin and relatively modern. Sails freed their users from dependence on human muscle. They could carry more goods, and travel farther and faster, with smaller crews. The use of sails also encouraged adaptations of the hull.

In the course of centuries, the dugout became a planked hull in which the basic log, no longer hollowed, survived as a solid keel. Rafts, by a different but analogous process, also developed into planked hulls, usually flat-bottomed, without keels, with the transverse braces surviving in the form of bulkheads. The types converged. Vessels developed from dugout origins differ from vessels in the raft tradition, as European clinker boats differ from Chinese junks, but their purpose and their effectiveness are similar.

Sky compasses

Protected by planking, later by decks, the sailor could venture into the open sea, provided he could find his way. He could steer by the sky, by associating the bearing of particular stars with the direction of particular destinations, as some primitive navigators still do.

Sky "compasses," however, are imprecise, and stars are not always visible. Crude magnetic compasses came into use at sea by the 12th century A.D. in the Mediterranean, perhaps a century earlier in China. With a compass, the sailor could ordinarily navigate — except for storms — at all times of the year, but he still used the sky to find his position.

The end of sail

By the late 15th century, expert navigators in all the major maritime societies could measure latitude, though they had to wait three centuries more for longitude. Between those dates, the range of maritime travel steadily expanded. Already by the middle of the 16th century, European navigators had established the crucial facts that all the great seas of the world are connected and that, except in the areas of circumpolar ice, all seas are navigable.

The unwilling celibate

Distant voyaging set the sailor apart from his fellow man. He was cut off from home life, a celibacy for which he traditionally made up when ashore. He was closely integrated in the male society in which he worked. Ships were crowded.

In the 16th century, ships often carried a man to every two or three tons, for manhandling coarse and clumsy gear, and for defense.

In the 18th and 19th centuries, technical improvements and the decline of piracy allowed a steady reduction of crews, so that — in merchant ships, at least — crowding became less severe. But even so, sailors had to develop special conventions of behavior in order to preserve amenity and self-respect in crowded conditions.

They had also to accept a discipline of work, often brutal and always more demanding than would have been tolerated ashore. A ship is a tighter community, both literally and metaphorically, than a village.

Sailors until recently ran greater risks than their contemporaries ashore, not only of accident, but of disease. Wooden ships are difficult to keep dry and impossible to keep warm in winter. The scrupulous cleanliness associated with well-run ships is relatively modern.

The distempers most characteristic of life at sea were rheumatoid complaints: typhus — the dreaded "gaol fever" — carried by rats and lice; dysentery, caused by contaminated food, malaria and yellow fever, conveyed by mosquitos in tropical harbors, and, above all, scurvy.

Scurvy is caused by lack of vitamin C. Men fed on fresh food do not suffer from it. Until recent times the staples of ships' diet were hard biscuit and salted beef or pork, with perhaps a short-lived ration of cheese and fresh onions. After a few weeks of such diet the symptoms appeared: rotting gums, swollen joints, general lassitude. The diet was probably no worse than that of peasants in the winter months, and scurvy was not unknown ashore. Sailors, however, had the same diet all the year while at sea.

The value of citrus fruits as antiscorbutics was known at least by the early 17th century, and a few enlightened commanders carried them, though never in sufficient quantity. It was not until the late 18th century that Captain Cook demonstrated the possibility of keeping a ship's company healthy by careful dieting, for years on end. Ways were then found of concentrating citrus juice without destroying its efficacy, so that enough could be carried for daily use. In the British Navy, general issue began in 1795. Within five years scurvy had disappeared from the fleet.

The industrial revolution eventually replaced wood by steel and, more gradually, sail by steam.

For a time, steel hulls and wire rigging enabled sail to hold its own. The last commercial sailing ships were often as fast as clippers, but stronger, safer, much bigger, and more economical. They were faster than most steamers, needed no bunkers, could remain longer at sea. Their weakness was in manning. They carried big crews of skilled men inured to hard conditions.

Steamers needed fewer men and offered them more comfort: cabins, enclosed working space, latterly air-conditioned accommodations, and refrigerated food as good as, or better than, they would get ashore. As oil replaced coal, the comforts and advantages increased.

The biggest sailing ship ever built, the Pruesen of Hamburg (8,000 tons deadweight), had a crew of 47. A modern tanker of 50 times that tonnage needs 20 or 30 men, of relatively limited skill, most of whom need never get wet. Seamen and shipowners alike gradually abandoned sailing ships. The few survivors are manned by nostalgic amateurs or

France has last regular silver coins

By RUSS MacKENDRICK

These coins came over last month from sunny France — that area formerly known as All-Gaul-Divided-Into-Three-Parts.

The middle one is a 50-franc piece in .900 silver. It is larger than our silver dollars and is the last regularly circulating silver coin still current among the larger nations.

The design is from a hand-cut die made in 1795. It shows the figures of Justice and Liberty body-guarded by a more-than-adequate Hercules. The inscription "Liberte, Egalite, Fraternite" was a slogan of the Revolution that arrived too late for the parties already guillotined.

The design of the coin at the lower left also goes back to those days. It represents "Marianne" — the symbol used by the secret republican societies that worked toward the uprising. They later made statuettes of the figure and carried it in processions to the tune of the Marseillaise.

Note the headgear; it was supposed to be red — "Le Bonnet Rouge." It is a form of that ancient Phrygian cone-shaped floppy cap that appears also on our large cents and half cents to stand for Liberty.

The Sower (who was that Marianne again) was first used on a coin in 1897 and then there was no stopping it. It went on and on and spread over into stamps in 1907 and lasted there on the regular issues for 30 years.

We look in vain for a stamp with a jug of wine, a loaf of bread and a "thou" — there should be such, because French vintners lead the world.

The lower right-hand coin, a 10-franc value, is edgemarked with the Liberte slogan and carries a brand new design created by G. Mathieu in 1974. There is a stylized R and F for Republique Francaise superposed on a map of the country. Mathieu also designed stamps for the ARPHILA '75 exhibition which was held in Paris last year. (See Scott Nos. 1425-29).

Perhaps the most exciting thing about French coinage is the profusion of "privy marks." They have the common ordinary mint marks like anybody, but also on the same coins they will have a beaver, or pick and shovel, or wolf, or heart, or rooster, or helmet, vase, horse head, tulip, rose, owl, hammer, prow of a ship, ad infinitum. These are the marks of the mint directors — they had over 25 mints and heaven knows how many directors.

Each of the coins pictured here has either a cornucopia or a fish for a privy mark.

The set of nine is being sold for $35 in "brilliant fleurs de coin" (prooflike finish). Not too bad, considering that the face value is nearly $14 and you would get practically the sole survivor of regular silver coinage.

Stamps and coins

Fed up with mushy designs?

The Second Sunday Show at the Meriden Holiday Inn tomorrow will feature a Salute to Swedish Philately with a souvenir card showing the Flying Swans airmail issue. The Swedish Post Office will have a spot. If you are fed up with mushy stamp designs, give them a try — they always go on about their sharp steel engravings in their ads.

Equipment went 'oops'

"COPE inverts" are the latest thing in paper money chatter. They are upside-down serial numbers on dollar bills. The Currency Overprinting Processing Equipment went "oops" a few times. Haven't seen any price figures yet.

Show and bourse

The Manchester Coin Club will have a show and bourse tomorrow at the KofC Hall. There will be 24 dealer tables and an exhibit of military and other currency. Trophies will be awarded.

Annual party

The Manchester Philatelic Society will put on their annual Christmas/Hanukkah party at Mott's Community Hall on Tuesday evening, Dec. 14.
