Coast Guard optimistic tanker leak has stopped

MANTUCKET, Mass. (UPI) — Coast Guard officials are optimistic no more oil leak from the crippled Liberian tanker Argo Merchant grounded for five days on Nantucket Shoals.

About 1.5 million of the tanker's 7.6 million gallons cargo has spilled into the ocean and is drifting towards the rich fishing waters of the Georges Bank.

"We feel the majority of the ship's tanks are still intact," Coast Guard Lt. Herb Williams said today. He said it does not appear there is any way the rest of the oil can spill from the top of the tanks. The Coast Guard says efforts to offload the oil probably will not begin until Wednesday.

Barges are heading towards the tanker in an effort to begin offloading the rest of the oil which was described by a Coast Guard spokesman today as "being the consistency of heavy pudding."

The oil has cooled off from its normal temperature of 90 to 140 degrees and has formed into sticky, black globules.

The 640-foot Argo Merchant has been aground 27 miles southeast of Nantucket since Wednesday. An oil slick 65 miles long has formed around the ship. The spill also imperiled two endangered species of marine life: the gray seal, which spawns in the area, and the humpback whale, which migrates south through the shoals.

According to Coast Guard officials the oil drifting southeast towards the Georges Banks is a danger to the area's fishing grounds because the heavy No. 6 crude oil has formed into heavier than water globs which sink to the ocean bottom.

A Coast Guard spokesman said special oil pollution strike team members are preparing to board the Argo Merchant with absorbent materials and shovels to clean her decks.

"Steam generators are also being brought to the scene on the barges in an effort to heat the oil so that it can be offloaded," a Coast Guard spokesman said. "A high seas mooring system is also being brought to the tanker so that the barges can pull up beside her."

Unloading, which could take a month to complete, is threatened by winds which the U.S. Navy said could hit gale force late today or early Tuesday. The National Weather Service, however, said the winds will be between 20 and 35 knots at their highest today.

An anchor was to be placed on the starboard bow today to further stabilize the tanker so barges can be brought along side to start offloading operations, the Coast Guard said.

"It's an estimate. It could be more, it could be less," said Coast Guard cleanup chief Capt. Lynn Hein, who said he revised the spill estimate after talking to other cleanup personnel who had been board the ship.

The spill also threatened two endangered species of animals: the gray seal, which spawns in the area, and the humpback whale, which migrates south through the shoals.

Woman named to commerce post

Carter names Bell attorney general

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — President-elect Jimmy Carter today tapped fellow Georgian Griffin Bell as Attorney General and educator Juanita Kreps to be commerce secretary, the first woman in his Cabinet.

Rep. Robert Bergland, D-Minn., also was in Georgia and was selected agriculture secretary by Carter.

It was Carter's fourth meeting with reporters this week.

Bell, 58, a former federal appeals judge, is a good friend of Carter's and a law partner to Charles Kirbo, one of the President-elect's closest advisors.

Mrs. Kreps, 55, is a vice president of Duke University and the first woman to be named by Carter to his Cabinet. She is a labor-economist, a member of the New York Stock Exchange and serves on several corporate boards, including J.C. Penney and Eastman Kodak.

Bergland, 48, is a farmer himself. He operates a 600-acre farm and has been an adviser on farm policy issues for Vice President-elect Walter Mondale. Carter had promised to appoint a farmer to the agriculture post.

Carter has now filled seven of the 11 Cabinet positions. The only vacancies are at the Departments of Labor, Defense, Housing and Urban Development and HEW.

Feminist and black groups have expressed their disappointment over the make up of Carter's Cabinet so far. There were reports that Newark Mayor Kenneth Gibson, a black, is a leading candidate to become housing secretary.

Press Secretary Jody Powell told reporters that Carter expects to complete formation of his Cabinet by Wednesday.

Among those mentioned for the remaining posts were Joseph Califano to be secretary of health, education and welfare and Dr. Harold Brown, president of California Institute of Technology, to be secretary of defense.

Powell said Carter also will name this week his director of Central intelligence, replacing George Bush. New Frontiersman Ted Sorensen has been reported in line for that position.

Soon the cabinet guessing game will be over.

Carter has focused his talent search on "good managers," and it appeared that some of his constituencies among feminist groups and blacks were bound to be disappointed that his selections have not been more broad based.

Dual beer drinking age levels invalid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled 6 to 2 today that a state cannot set different legal age levels for the purchase of beer by men and women.

Issuing the ruling in an Oklahoma case, Justice William J. Brennan Jr. said previous cases have established that classifications by gender "must serve important governmental objectives and must be substantially related to achievement of those objectives."

He found no such appropriate goal in Oklahoma's law which lets girls buy 3.2 per cent beer as soon as they are 18, while making males wait until age 21.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger

and Justice William H. Rehnquist dissented.

Oklahoma had advanced traffic arrest statistics and other data to support its statute but Brennan found them "a weak answer" to the claim that the state is denying males the "equal protection of the laws" guaranteed in the 14th Amendment to the Constitution.

"Proving broad sociological propositions by statistics is a dubious business," the majority ruled.

Brennan noted that the law prohibits only the selling of beer to young males and not the drinking of it once acquired — "even after purchase by their 18-20-year-old female companions."

Pro-reformist Spanish official rescued from right-wing mob

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Police today rescued one of the chief architects of post-Franco reform from an angry right-wing mob that shoved, jostled and insulted speaker of parliament Torcuato Fernandez Miranda for 100 years through downtown Madrid.

The crowd, opposed to democratic reform and aroused by the recent kidnapping of a prominent Francoist politician, beat Fernandez Miranda's car with umbrellas and fists when he was finally able to get in and sped away.

The crowd of several hundred went after King Juan Carlos' top adviser when he left a memorial service marking the third anniversary of the assassination of Premier Luis Carrero Blanco.

Shouting "traitor!" "perjurer!" and "away! Away!" the demonstrators blocked Fernandez Miranda from entering his black limousine. Then they jostled him through fashionable Serrano street in front of the U.S. Embassy with their arms in the Fascist-style salute and singing the Falangist battle hymn, "Face to the Sun."

A handful of police, one of them carrying a submachine gun, finally held the crowd back long enough to permit Fernandez Miranda to enter his limousine on a side street.

Right-wing Falangist youths among the crowd handed out leaflets charging that the Spanish Communist party made the plans for and financed such actions as the kidnapping nine days ago of the President of the Council of State Antonio Maria Oriol.

When Franco's widow Carmen Polo left the San Francisco de Borja Church, opposite the U.S. Embassy, the right-wingers snapped to attention, gave the straight arm salute and shouted "Franco! Franco!"

When all the dignitaries who had attended the mass were gone, the crowd broke up by itself. Police never dispersed it.

Elsewhere in Madrid, five men firing submachine guns robbed a Madrid bank today of about $240,000, killing a guard and wounding a customer in a guerrilla-style attack.

Rabin expected to resign as Israeli prime minister

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin will resign before a probable no-confidence motion based on his lack of a majority in parliament comes up for a vote Tuesday, political sources said today.

Labor Party leaders said Rabin's ouster of defiant National Religious Party ministers from his shaky coalition government meant there would be a call for elections within six months. The regular voting had been scheduled for next November.

The departure of the ministers and their 10 votes in parliament left Rabin with 57 seats, four less than a majority in the 120-member house.

If Rabin resigns, Israeli law provides that the president will charge him with forming a new government. If that fails, the president will name Rabin premier of a caretaker government that is safe from no-confidence motions pending new elections. "There was no other way," said former Premier Golda Meir after Rabin explained the ouster of the ministers at a party council today. "Now we need early elections," she said.

"Yitzhak Rabin has finally taken the bull by the horns," the Jerusalem Post said in an editorial praising the prime minister for ousting the National Religious Party for violating a law requiring cabinet members to support the government in key votes.

Rabin was to notify parliament officially today of his decision to expel the ministers after two had refused to vote against a motion of no-confidence brought last Tuesday by the United Tora Front — a religious splinter party.

Political sources said the defiance of the National Religious party on the no-confidence vote, coupled with its insistence that the government endorse the Jewish settlement at Kadum near Nablus on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan, prompted Rabin's action.

Unless contributions pick up

Seasonal Sharing Appeal faces $1,500 deficit

The Manchester Area Conference of Churches (MACC) stands to lose about $1,500 if its annual Seasonal Sharing Appeal does not succeed in reaching its goal of $2,500.

Expecting this year's appeal to at least equal the 1975 donations, which totaled almost $2,500, the conference went ahead and obtained vouchers totaling that sum to provide at least a pair of shoes or a warm jacket for children of 100 families, designated to be the most in need by local social service agencies.

However, the appeal is lagging, with only $964.50 received as of today, and the conference, which has a minimal budget, will be responsible for the balance. Mrs. Nancy Carr, executive director of MACC, said today.

In order for the social workers to get vouchers for the clothing to these parents so that they would be able to get to the store before Christmas, Mrs. Carr said that she went ahead and obtained the vouchers. "Now the money is not coming in to pay for them," she said.

"I'm still hoping that the people of the community will, with their usual generosity, make it possible for us to reach our goal," she said.

Those wishing to contribute to the appeal may make out checks and address them to MACC Seasonal Sharing Appeal, P.O. Box 773, Manchester.

Frigid weather dominates two-thirds of nation today

By United Press International
Bitter cold crept over much of the nation early today and snow or freezing rain plagued wide areas. Cold Canadian air pushing eastward sent temperatures dropping as much as 15 to 20 degrees in an hour as a cold front lumbered eastward.

The cold snap came on the heels of record warm weather over much of the midlands. Evansville, Ind., reported a record 67-degree temperature Sunday and Fort Wayne, Ind., reported a record 57-degree reading. A 68-degree reading in St. Louis tied the record for the date.

But frigid temperatures dominated the northern two-thirds of the nation today. A winter storm watch was posted for northern New York as the cold front spawned snow and freezing rain. Snow spread over portions of Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin and upper Michigan and rain stretched across southern Michigan, northern Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. Scattered freezing rain and drizzle also was reported. Rain also spread from the Texas Gulf Coast across Louisiana into Alabama.

Heavy fog shrouded much of south Texas, reducing visibility to near zero in a number of areas. A travelers' advisory was posted for the San Antonio area because of the fog.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 12 below zero at Warrad, Minn., to 72 at Key West, Fla.

Taming Argentina's labor

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — A key issue in Argentina is how the military junta deals with the labor unions who considered themselves a fourth branch of government under the Peronist administrations.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — Brazil has shown little inclination to accept Argentine suggestions for modifying its project for the 10-million kilowatt Itaipu dam on the Parana River.

Brazil has denied Argentine's claims that the Itaipu dam would prejudice other hydroelectric projects down river and alter the ecological system.

Washington (UPI) — The makers of Uncle Ben's rice will drop a television commercial the Federal Trade Commission said might have lured children into buying dangerously near pots or pans of hot food.

The commercial, aired late last year and early this year, showed a 4-year-old girl whose mother was cooking rice. The mother says: "Now Oh! Uncle Ben's is foolproof... during the last few minutes you don't have to watch the pot."

At that point she takes the pot of rice off the stove and tells the girl — "Sure. Watch the Uncle Ben's. Simmer 20 minutes. Then set set aside. It finishes cooking by itself. Perfect every time."

While the pot of rice is steaming on the counter, the little girl, elbows on the counter top and face and hands near the pot, watches the rice finish cooking.

"Faded to the dinner table, and the little girl proclaims: "I cooked it all by myself."

"That, the FTC ruled, may influence children to behave in a manner creating an unreasonable risk of harm."

FTC officials said they have no complaint about the product, but were more concerned about the way in which the little girl moved in on the still-hot pot of rice without anyone, parents or otherwise, mentioning that she should be careful.

The complaint which the FTC staff issued against Uncle Ben's Inc., Houston, Tex., said the ad may influence children to come very close to foods or to containers of foods being cooked, or to attempt to cook foods by themselves without close watchful supervision.

The consent order — a negotiated settlement of the complaint — forbids the company from depicting children closely examining, or closely approaching foods or containers of foods being cooked, and prevents future commercials which show children participating in cooking without the close supervision of an adult.

Why the Jews want a homeland

A lot of things happened in 1492: The last Moslem stronghold in Spain was overthrown and the nation united under King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella; Columbus was dispatched to find a shorter route to the Indies and the Jews were kicked out of the country.

In the intervening 484 years, a trickle of Jews apparently managed to slip back into Spain because today there are about 12,000 of them in a population of 34 million. Only within the past 10 years, however, have they been permitted to practice their religion. And only the other day were they permitted to hold their first legal meeting, other than worship services, since Ferdinand and Isabella—a conference sponsored by the World Jewish Congress and attended by 70 delegates.

This greatly distressed a number of Arabs, whose ancestors' once ruled a large part of Spain (and, ironically, granted the Jews greater tolerance than they were to know in Spain for five centuries).

Arab ambassadors denounced the meeting and demanded assurances from the government that it was a strictly private affair. A couple dozen Arab youths demonstrated outside the Madrid hotel where the meeting was held protesting the "imperialist, Zionist, reactionary conspiracy against Lebanese Palestinians."

The possibility that the expulsion of the Jews from so many countries over the centuries, and their routine persecution where not expelled, may have had something to do with the Jewish desire to re-establish a national homeland in the Middle East seems to escape the modern Arabs, as well as a lot of other people.

Luxury of breakdowns

Kipling needs updating: If you can keep your head while others about you are losing yours, you must be living in a mental hospital, my son.

According to a psychiatrist at the Lebanon Hospital for Nervous and Mental Disorders in Beirut, one of only about 10 psychiatrists in the entire country, the need for tranquilizers and other psychoactive drugs to treat the hospital's patients actually declined during the 19-month civil war.

"While the supposedly normal people outside were acting insane," he says, "our most disturbed patients became calmer in the midst of the worst gunfire. They watched television, played games and helped the staff."

It seems to have overtones of

"Catch 22," but in reverse, and might be humorous were it not for the very real human tragedy of that bitter conflict.

The Lebanese medical profession expects a marked increase in mental health problems now that the fighting has ended and when, as another psychiatrist puts it, "people settle down and can afford the luxury of becoming emotionally disturbed."

He guesses that 25 per cent of the population, especially in ravaged Beirut, will have breakdowns and hysterical manifestations that will require hospitalization.

Remember those pictures of Lebanese youngsters barely larger than the rifles and machine guns they carried? The war's long-lasting effects on them alone are incalculable.

A tribute to a colleague

WASHINGTON — Pete Lisagor is dead of cancer at 61, and there has passed a shining ornament to the news trade.

In a city filled with superb reporter talent, Pete was the best of the lot. Notice that I do not call him a journalist. He thought the title precious pompous, to be worn, he once said, "with top hat and cane."

Celebrity came unwanted to Pete through his participation in TV news and talk shows. "I'm becoming a goddam actor, he complained over a drink at the Democratic Convention in New York last summer.

He was kidding himself, as he kidded presidents, ambassadors, and the cop on the beat. Pete was never anything but a reporter, even under great pressure and the Kleig lights. His audience always knew he would bring to the screen an incisive wit and a penetrating search for the unadorned fact. He pricked the bubble of self-importance in politicians and in his colleagues. He never stopped covering the story, either in his job with the Chicago Daily News or on TV.

He loved his work, but wished he could do it anonymously. "None of us working stiffs was elected to bring the law down from Mt. Sinai," he said. "Our job is to tell the public what's going on and there isn't one of us who hasn't occasionally messed up that assignment."

Presidents liked Pete and respected him. But having let him know of that liking and respect, they were baffled that he should treat them objectively and critically in print or on the air.

The late Bob Considine once remarked that Lyndon Johnson "paid me the highest compliment I've ever gotten. He accused me of being 'as had as Pete Lisagor" because I told a couple of truths about him in my column.

Yet, Pete Lisagor was one of the warmest and kindest human beings I ever knew. His sense of humor was disarming even when he used it to bring a political celebrity down to earth because he was always fair, never crude. Unlike some media personalities, he never ridiculed another human being to polish his own image.

I cannot believe Pete had an enemy. Even Richard Nixon, whose major weakness was his capacity for holding a grudge and who was severely peppered by the rapier-like Lisagor prose, once told me, "Hell, that guy kills me almost every day and I still can't hate him."

Pete proved often that brevity is the soul of wit. Of Hubert Humphrey's nomination by the quarrelsome Democratic Convention in 1968, he wrote: "Hubert H. Humphrey could have gotten a better deal in bankruptcy court." He accused Lyndon Johnson in 1964 of "demanding victory by divine right."

He loved tall stories and outrageous social trickery. At a party given by the Housing Authority by Board of Directors. The directors also vote to purchase 27 acres of land for future schools.

What should we do about illegal aliens?

WASHINGTON — A man I know is breaking several laws of this country. He is an illegal alien, a citizen of Mexico come to Washington where the pickings are better. He works in a service station, and as far as I can determine he is in violation of U.S. immigration, labor, public assistance and tax regulations.

Yet I do not turn him in. He is a splendid man, cheerful and bright, and he has shown me photographs of his family back home. I like him and feel for him. I know he's wrong, but I'm not able to do what's right; indeed, I'm not even sure what is right.

In this regard I am something of a microcosm of the national attitude toward illegal aliens. Most Americans are at least somewhat aware of their increasing presence, and also of the grief they engender. We know we can't afford to be benevolent. We know we must stop the madness. We even know how to do it. And still we do not act.

Not that we haven't agonized to a good extent. According to the Immigration and Naturalization Service, as many as a million foreigners, mostly from Mexico, are silently invading the nation annually. Ten million may be here now, more or less permanently. Many states and the federal government call the phenomenon a crisis.

Already the illegals account for perhaps three-million jobs that would otherwise be available to legitimate residents. Vernon Jervis of the Immigration Department says at least one million of the jobs are substantial. And the work is not the only thing lost; much of the $3 billion to $10 billion earned each year by illegals is untaxed and sent by the wage earners to be spent in their home nations.

And, as things stand now, it can only get worse. For years immigration has admitted that its border patrol, though substantial, is unable to cope with the matter. Meanwhile, Mexico's population (now 60 million) is doubling in every 20 years. Pauperism there is common, the per capita (GNP is a thin $740, space and more peons are seeking relief in America.

Therefore the outlook is numbing. By 1980 there may be 15 million of them here, accounting for something like 4 per cent of the population. Combined earnings of the more fortunate among these may total as much as $50 million a day by some estimates. Others, less fortunate, will assuredly be causing havoc in the public hospitals, welfare agencies, jails and slums of a dozen or more affected states.

Also by then there may be additional misfortunes of a social nature. Last year disaffected farm workers in New Mexico set up a border patrol of their own, using violence, to flag the rush of illegals. Even now there are gangs of young bandits raping and robbing the legally defenseless aliens crossing the border into California. Authorities predict far more of this behavior as bitterness deepens.

But still, faced with this clear and present danger, America seems to be incapable of reacting quickly and effectively. Congress has wrestled with several bills — one of which would make the hiring of illegals a crime (as of now, it's not) — but to no good end. All the while, 3,000 more Mexicans arrive here every day.

The reason for our collective impotency is that we are in the grip of our own compassion. A law against hiring illegals, it's suggested, would be a burden on every Hispanic in the nation. The law might also place thousands of well-meaning employers in jeopardy. And then there are the illegals themselves, the U.S. Catholic Conference says we should grant the aliens already here a humane amnesty.

In the end, if there is to be an end to the invasion, someone will have to be hurt. Laws of such scope inevitably shatter the customs or conveniences of many. National identity papers? Greater regulation of business? More surveillance of one unfortunate minority? Then, too, if the cheap labor is one day kept out, every one of us may be stung by higher prices for our apples and lettuce.

What is right? Which answer is best? Don't ask me. I only know I enjoy my webback gas attendant. I've no thought of busting him. Today I've given him a card for Christmas. Kindness is weak.

Today's thought

Advent
A burnished eastern sky — scintillating a new advent born —
Portends strange mysticisms in silence of dawn!
As shrouded night melts away tones of purple gray
Pierced by the sun's golden shafts — glorify day!

"He is coming!" breathes the soft stir of nature.
A church steeple — spell bound in rapture
Reverberates — with holy inspiration
Voices of faithful — with redemption — beseech forgiveness of sins!
He comes in the name of the Lord — Heaven's Messiah —
He comes to enflame the world with the spirit of His Fire!
His Star will open Heaven's Dome to an adamant world —
Where banners of peace loving nations shall be unfurled!

We betide those — on whom His wrath shall fall —
Those who fail to heed Advent's austere call!
Make straight His paths — pray He spare the rod —
Smote thy breasts — in repentance — seek ye God!

May the solemn hours of prayer resound your church
Preparing the way for the Messiah!
Scan the sky in search
Of new hope — etched in Heaven's symbol of peace —
His Star of Love — causing all wars —
Corruptions to cease!

Reflections

Hai Turkington
Managing Editor

The column we publish today is the 52nd in a series that began Dec. 29, 1975. We have tried to relieve some of the recent past, reflect upon the present, and bring into the news people.

So it is quite natural, then, that we bring this first year to a close with thoughts about Christmas, about the joys of living, and about people, again.

There were several occasions last December that we answered an alarm at our front door. The porch light was turned on, and we were greeted by neighborhood youngsters, singing Christmas songs.

It brought back memories of similar scenes of those many years ago when we went carolling. In our case, we had some instrumentation to back up the vocalists.

The Chancel Choir at South United Methodist Church still goes out during the Christmas season, visiting some of their shut-ins and bringing their season's greetings in song.

There probably are others, all organized.

But that was different — youngsters singing in unison the songs so familiar to us all at this season of the year.

We expect more of it this week, as we approach Christmas. Perhaps you will experience it by those youngsters in your neighborhood.

It's a nice way to prepare us for Christmas, for thinking about others, and sharing the joys of the holiday.

We would like to bring this anniversary column to a close as we opened it a year ago.

"Christmas Day" will be repeated again during our Christmas as it has been for more than 40 years.

Some of you saved that music printed a year ago; others of you did not, and have asked that it be repeated.

May its words and message bring as much joy to you as it has in the Turkington family.

May your 1978 Yuletide be filled with abundant joy.

A warrant was issued for Botting who was already in custody in the Correctional Institute in Hartford on other charges. He was held on a $2,000 bond.

An 18-year-old man suffered lacerations when he was reportedly assaulted by two other young men in a parking lot at the 7-11 Store on Main St. late Saturday night. New Hampshire unconcerned about Connecticut efforts to lower liquor prices

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — New Hampshire is not concerned about Connecticut's efforts to lower its liquor prices, state liquor commissioner Condas Tentas said today.

Angered by its residents buying in New Hampshire, Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso recently ordered that state's tax commissioner, Gerald Heffernan, to make a complete analysis of Connecticut's tax and pricing laws. The study is scheduled to be completed when the Connecticut Legislature convenes Jan. 5.

Tentas said the outcome of the report would have little or no effect on New Hampshire sales.

"In both Connecticut and Massachusetts, there are markups by both wholesalers and retailers. In New Hampshire, the state acts in both capacities," Tentas said.

Tentas also noted the ace up New Hampshire's sleeve — the liquor commissioner's delegated power to change prices almost immediately.

The price war between Connecticut and New Hampshire over the liquor with the announcement Connecticut buyers of New Hampshire booze were trailed into the Nutmeg State.

Those who violated Connecticut law are subject to a maximum penalty of $1,000 fine and a year in jail.

Gov. Medirim Thomson has already printed names and license plates of Massachusetts tax agents who are investigating Bay State buyers of cheaper New Hampshire liquor.

Two men injured in one-car crash

Two 19-year-old men were still in serious condition today at Manchester Memorial Hospital suffering from injuries sustained Saturday night when the car in which they were passengers slammed into a utility pole and split in half.

The men were Gary Marchuk of 136 Greenwood Dr. who suffered chest contusions and multiple fractures and Matthew Clark of Springfield, Ill. who was reported with abdominal and foot injuries by hospital authorities.

The driver of the car, Wayne M. Babineau, 19, of 20 Lynch Dr. and the other passenger, Kevin O. Faria, 20, of 185 Birch St., were treated at the hospital and released immediately following the accident.

According to the police report, the car was traveling east down a small hill and around a curve when the car went out of control and struck the telephone pole, breaking it and splitting the car in half. The rear of the car was left on the road and the front was in a field nearby. The passengers were thrown from the car.

No skid marks were reported found by police. The Eighth District Fire Department responded with aid to the call at 11:32 p.m. as well as police and two ambulances.

Babineau is home on leave from the U.S. Navy in Virginia where he and Clark are stationed. The accident is still under investigation.

Jury favors Manchester in flood damage suit

The town of Manchester has won a court case connected with a 1970 flooding incident.

A jury Friday ruled in favor of the town after a trial at the Court of Common Pleas in Rockville.

Joseph Kaminski, a resident of 113 N. School St., had claimed that the town was responsible for flood damages to his yard and cellar during a heavy rain on Feb. 3, 1970.

Atty. David Ryan, who represented the town on the matter, said that a damage fee of $7,500 had been agreed to by both sides if the plaintiff had won the case. The jury, however, ruled in favor of the town.

Salvation Army plans 'Used Toy Day' Wednesday

The annual Toys for Joy project to collect toys for children of Manchester families in need, has received few new toys but so many used toys that a "Used Toy Day" is planned for Wednesday at the Manchester Salvation Army Citadel on Main St.

Parents of families, who have been designated as being the most in need of help, may come to the Citadel from 9 a.m. to noon to select toys for their children. From 1 to 3 p.m., any Manchester family who has been caught in this year's financial "squeeze" may select toys, many of which will have to be returned for Christmas giving.

Mrs. Nancy Carr, executive director of Manchester Area Conference of Churches, sponsor of the toy collection, said.

Manchester State Bank has a box in its lobby for the collection of new toys, Mrs. Carr said.

Gifts for patients in Manchester convalescent or nursing homes are also being sought. Gifts, which should be marked as to their contents, may be left at any local convalescent home or at the conference office at St. Bartholomew's Church.

Volunteers are also needed to provide Christmas dinners for shut-ins who are unable to cook for themselves.

Those wishing to participate in this project may call Mrs. Carr, 643-2995, or Diane Wicks, 643-5281, ext. 285.

School renovations report to be given board tonight

School Supt. James P. Kennedy is expected to give an updated report on the status of the renovation projects at Washington and Bentley School at the Board of Education meeting tonight at 8.

His report will be based on the priority ratings both schools received last week by the State Board of Education. Washington School was placed in a top priority category to receive $1,110,397 in state grants and Bentley School was in a third-priority category in an amount of $608,865.

Since the Washington project has a better chance of being funded, Dr. Kennedy will ask the school board to seek an opinion from Town Councils Victor I. Moses on the legality of proceeding with the two school projects.

Both projects were approved as a package at an estimated cost of $1.4 million to the town in a referendum in November 1975.

Kennedy explained last week that the Washington project may have received higher rating because its plans call for construction of a gymnasium. Physical education is required by state law.

Chamber to hear speaker explain CRCOG goals

The Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce, is expected to have a speaker from the Region Council of Governments (CRCOG) sometime next month in an effort to familiarize the local chamber with the work of the CRCOG as a regional forum.

The exact date and specifics of the meeting have not been worked out, according to Suzanne Fickett, executive director of the chamber. She said many of the members are not familiar with CRCOG.

A $50,000 grant to CRCOG was voted last week by the Boards of Directors of the Greater Hartford Chamber of Commerce, the Greater Hartford Corporation and the Greater Hartford Process to enable the organization to become a more effective regional forum.

The Glastonbury Chamber of Commerce also voted last week to contribute $500 to CRCOG.

Both actions were in response to CRCOG's request to the regional business community to help fund an expanded staff to develop needed regional programs not adequately funded by their current revenue sources. The CRCOG programs are funded principally by federal funds.

The Greater Hartford Chamber is seeking to raise $500 from each of the 18 regional chambers, of which Manchester is one.

Rehab loans sought by 22 applicants

A total of 22 applications have been given to Manchester residents interested in the town's rehabilitation loan program. Marilyn Walsh, administrator of the program, is pleased with the interest shown thus far, although she admits the number of inquiries has dropped recently.

"It is kind of slow right now. It's probably because of the holiday season," she said.

Even so, she does have three more interviews set up this week.

"People are continuing to call and ask about the program," she said.

Miss Walsh is now processing the applications that have been received. She has to verify information provided on the form before the applicant can be approved for a program loan.

The rehabilitation loan program provides federal subsidized home improvement loans to residents who meet geographical and income requirements.

The purpose of the program is to improve or "rehabilitate" existing housing in a section of town. Money for the program will come from federal Community Development funds.

Persons who qualify for the program will get their bank and receive the home improvement loans at the regular interest rate. The town, using program funds, will then pay part of the interest.

The town has received a total of $171,333 in grants through the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

"We certainly have sufficient funds to cover a good number of people," Miss Walsh said.

All home improvement loans on the homes will be put out to bid. Miss Walsh has sent applications to contractors who might be interested in the program. She said that, although the program will not restrict any firms, most of those participating will probably be local ones.

"It's probably easier for local contractors. They're here and they know the area," she said.

She also said that all firms are being asked to provide references. This will ensure the town that participating firms are qualified contractors with dependable reputations.

The Board of Directors has also appointed five members of the Community Development Citizens Advisory Committee as members of a review committee for the program.

The review committee will act as an appeal board for any resident who is denied a loan through the program, Miss Walsh said.

The five named to the panel are Marie Laramie, Kenneth Wichman, Gilmore Cole, Pauline Widmer and Harriet Donovan.

Diplomats reach interim accord on fishing rights

BOSTON (UPI) — American and Canadian diplomats appeared to have agreed on a temporary solution concerning their dispute over fishing rights in the northern reaches of the Georges Bank in the Atlantic.

The two neighboring countries are about to institute conflicting 200-mile fishing limits and have been squabbling over rights to those fishing areas where their boundary claims overlap.

The question of who controls what on the Georges Bank has serious implications besides fishing rights due to proposed exploration for oil and natural gas in the disputed area.

Under a preliminary agreement reached last week, only Canadian and American vessels will be authorized to fish on the northern third of the Georges Bank — the area of overlapping interest. Canada's 200-mile limit goes into effect Jan. 1.

Fishing fleets from the Soviet Union, continental Europe, and all other "third parties" will be excluded from the disputed area until a permanent agreement can be reached between the two North American countries.

Negotiations between Canadian and American diplomats will continue in an attempt to clarify definite maritime boundaries before the United States extends its 12-mile fishing limit to 200 miles on March 1.

The temporary agreement was revealed by the New England fishing industry's chief spokesman, Thomas Norris of Boston, after he returned from a meeting of the 18-nation International Commission for Northwest Atlantic Fisheries.

"It looks like this understanding will avoid any conflict between the U.S. and Canada on the Georges Bank from Jan. 1," Norris said.

London reveals its past

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON (UPI) — Rufus to his Head Steward Epillicus: "Get all the cash you can out of that slave girl!"

Across the centuries the heartfelt cry of a businessman of Roman London rings true to modern ears. The commodity may have changed but the name of the game is still profits.

Rufus dictated his urgent message to a scribe who wrote it on wax but his sharp-tipped stylus cut through and left the words on the wood backing for present-day scholars to decipher. The fragment now rests, fittingly enough, in the heart of the financial district where a $16 million museum has just been opened by Queen Elizabeth as a mighty tribute to her greatest city.

The museum, overlooking the remains of the Roman wall that guarded the metropolis for 1,000 years, assembles under one roof much that was dispersed elsewhere. It tells the story of Britain's capital from the arrival of primitive hunters from Europe in search of straight-tusked elephants 250,000 years ago to recent times.

Rufus is one of a score or so of citizens of Roman London identified by research as living or operating there after 54 B.C. when Julius Caesar invaded France and defeated the dominant defending tribe, the Catuvellauni, probably at Westminster (where parliament fights interparty battles of its own these days). When the Roman writer Tacitus visited Britain in the first century he described London as "a busy mart of trade and traders." But the Museum has axe-heads, bronze and iron weapons and some glass that shows the enterprising little city was engaged in commercial pursuits long before then.

By 350 B.C. it was importing a better grade of stone axe heads from Cornwall some 250 miles away. By 210 B.C. there was a Made-in-Denmark locket about some of the weaponry.

Always among the world's most efficient farmers, the ancient Britons apparently invented the socketed sickle before 1000 B.C. The superlative Concords screams off the concrete runways of Heathrow Airport whose construction turned up evidence of a farm of 600 B.C. on the site.

The Museum has a great deal of history to tell and does it in a series of well-conceived exhibits leading from Swanscombe Man, the earliest arrival, through the Roman, Anglo-Saxon and Viking Periods (the

Tall ship sails in the Bahamas

Tested tips make packing a cinch

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Now that you've limped home from Europe, or the Orient or the Caribbean each arm half an inch longer from hauling luggage, here's just what you need: packing advice. Well, there's always next year or next month. The principles themselves are timeless. The expert in this case is Pamela Ashley, an attractive blonde who represents Mark Cross, the $700 Avenue leather goods store here. (Actually, her name is Jean Webberg and she's an actress from Chicago. "I'm the original Organized Woman for Mark Cross," she says. "They came up with the name Pamela Ashley because it sounds English. The firm was started in Boston in 1865 by a saddlemaker from England. If I leave, the name Pamela Ashley will provide continuity.") cardboard which you've cut to size and lay that on top. "Because at your hotel, instead of unpacking everything to get to your toiletries, you simply lift out the cardboard with the clothes." Her strategy for clothing is to fold and cube. The "secret," she says, "is to have as few folds in your clothes as possible to prevent creases. Do this by protecting every fold with tissue paper, plastic bags, or all the garments you can roll up in scarves, sweaters, knits and jerseys." She starts with the longest items first such as coats and skirts. "I put one waistband against one side of the suitcase. Do not fold it; let the bottom hang out of the suitcase. I put the next waistband on the other side, letting the excess hang out and I go back and forth that way.

"On top, I put blouses and jackets. Incidentally, you fold a jacket inside out with the collar up and the sleeves flat against each other. Then you fold it in half or thirds. "Next, I take the rolled items and fill the spaces. When I have all the layers in, I just bring up the bottoms of the slacks and skirts and fold them across. There's no room for creases in them this way." Don't forget, she says, to pack a flat fold; it's for evening use, and a collapsible flight bag "to take all your presents home in."

Kerr tempers gourmet with God's word

By Gaynor Maddox

In these days of religious revivals and mystical cults, the story of a prominent chef who claims the impression of talking with the angels is not surprising. In fact, it is quite common. In the case of Graham Kerr, noted chef of the former TV show "Galloping Gourmet," he has returned to the public claiming to be a new man, a better husband and a more loving father. He has seen God and embraced His son Jesus. Family, financial and health problems started this search. It's a long story. His wife, Trenea, was baptized in the new faith first. He followed and

Dr. Lamb
What causes gas pains?

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have had my gall bladder removed but have had terrible gas pains ever since. I try to do the things the doctors advocate — eat less at a time, eat slowly without gulping, etc. but I still have a lot of trouble. My doctor says don't eat roughage. I have curtailed it but need a certain amount so that I don't get constipated.

I wonder if the same diet that helps when your gall bladder is not at peak function would help for me? I am getting to the point where my social life is curtailed because of this. Could you give me any pointers which could help me?

DEAR READER — Gas pains may not be from gall bladder problems at all. Almost everyone has gas but with normal digestive functions most people are totally unaware of it. The pain usually comes from the gas being trapped in the colon and associated spasm or squeezing action of the colon. When the gas is under pressure, where the colon bends, it stretches and causes pain. If the spasm in the colon relaxes, the gas is no longer trapped and the distention and pain disappear. Your comment about "roughage" makes me think you have an underlying colon problem, specifically a spastic colon. These types of conditions are often there before a person has a gall bladder operation and may even be confused with symptoms of gall bladder disease. When that is the case they will still be there after surgery. Symptoms may follow surgery because of the interrupted normal pattern of living. And symptoms may follow an illness that has affected the bowels, such as infectious gastroenteritis (food poisoning). Most everyone swallows air. You can't prevent it and swallow food and water. Some people do develop a nervous habit of swallowing lots of air and the problem of gas. Others who have gas problems want to know what they can do about it. Send a letter to me in care of The Manchester Evening Herald, P.O. Box 1551, Radio, City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

You can check to see if you are swallowing too much air by holding an eraser between your teeth. That will make swallowing more difficult and will alert you to the problem. It is a good way to break the habit.

Space sailboat under consideration

While scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., waited for biological data to come back from the two life seeking robots on Mars, plans were being studied for a way to get a piece of Mars back to Earth using a "space sailboat" such as the one in this artist's drawing. This version would be used to rendezvous with Halley's Comet, shown in the drawing, to study and photograph the phenomenon in depth. The thin aluminum plastic space sail would transform the Sun's photon energy into power for the spacecraft.

Producing the new NATO man

By BARRY JAMES
ROME, (UPI) — In a modern building identified only by the name of the insurance company that owns it, a select group of men and women train in a multinational college to become the future strategists of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. One of the problems they may be dealing with one day in their professional lives — the rising tide of Eurocommunism — is right outside the front door.

But for the time being, the growing importance of the Italian Communist party has caused no problems for the college — in fact, many of the comrades do not seem to realize it is based in Rome.

New home?
However, officials say privately the college may be forced to find a new home if the Communists do win power here — but they say that is still a very big if.

The college, which has just celebrated its 25th anniversary, has been forced to move once already. That was in 1966 after France withdrew from the alliance's military command, meaning the college had to abandon its stately headquarters in Paris.

The college takes in between 50 and 60 students every half year to give them an intensive course in the strategic, economic, political and military problems facing NATO.

Aim outlined
Lt. Gen. Roy J.W. Heulings of the Netherlands, the commandant of the college, said the aim here is to produce what he called "the new NATO man."

He immediately bit his tongue on that, saying he did not have in mind a western equivalent to the "new Soviet man" — that example of Marxist perfection which "the other side" is trying to produce. "What I mean is that we want to make our students approach problems as part of an international team," Heulings said. "We want them to mix with people of other nationalities and get to understand the feelings, the mentality and — let's face it — the prejudices of others. We try to make our students see that the other person's view is not necessarily wrong.

By the same token, a moviegoer who is offended by sex and nudity on the screen might find drugs and violence perfectly acceptable. So giving a film a VD rating would be doing both of you a favor. I'd even like to see this system carried a couple of steps further. The perversion symbol, for example, doesn't indicate the type of kinkiness involved. It could be broadened to include PSM for sadomasochism or maybe PFF for foot fetishism.

The lighter side

It's all XWZ to me

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — We have in this country two types of movie ratings, one artistic the other based on moral standards.

Artistic raters generally use stars. Four stars for smasheroo, three stars for socko, two stars the equivalent of E-for-effort including extra points for neatness and one star an out-and-out clunker.

Morality raters, on the other hand, use alphabetical symbols: G for general audiences, GP for parental guidance suggested, R for restricted and X for wowie.

The letter system, however, has been greatly expanded and refined by a film review board in Dallas. Its ratings include S for explicit sex, V for excessive violence, D for drugs, L for rough language and N for nudity.

And just the other day the board adopted yet another classification: P for perversion.

I believe the Dallas system is the wave of the future, mainly because it works two ways. It not only can help you decide what pictures you don't want to see, it may also be instrumental in determining what pictures you do want to see.

When a picture is simply rated X, you don't know why it received that classification. If, for example, you went to an X-rated film expecting to get an eye of sex and nudity and all you got was violence and drugs, you would be disappointed.

By the same token, a moviegoer who is offended by sex and nudity on forces, usually with the rank of major or its equivalent on upwards. The remainder are civilians, mostly from diplomatic corps or defense ministries. Each course includes a tour of western Europe and North America. Class work covers a range of subjects from Marxism to megadeath, from economics to Eurocommunism. The emphasis is on teamwork and crisis management.

the screen might find drugs and violence perfectly acceptable. So giving a film a VD rating would be doing both of you a favor. I'd even like to see this system carried a couple of steps further. The perversion symbol, for example, doesn't indicate the type of kinkiness involved. It could be broadened to include PSM for sadomasochism or maybe PFF for foot fetishism.

Additionally, I would like to see the letter system applied to artistic and well as morality ratings. Those stars just don't give you adequate warning about a picture.

Movie critics should have no trouble working up a more meaningful set of symbols. Here are a few categories that might be included:

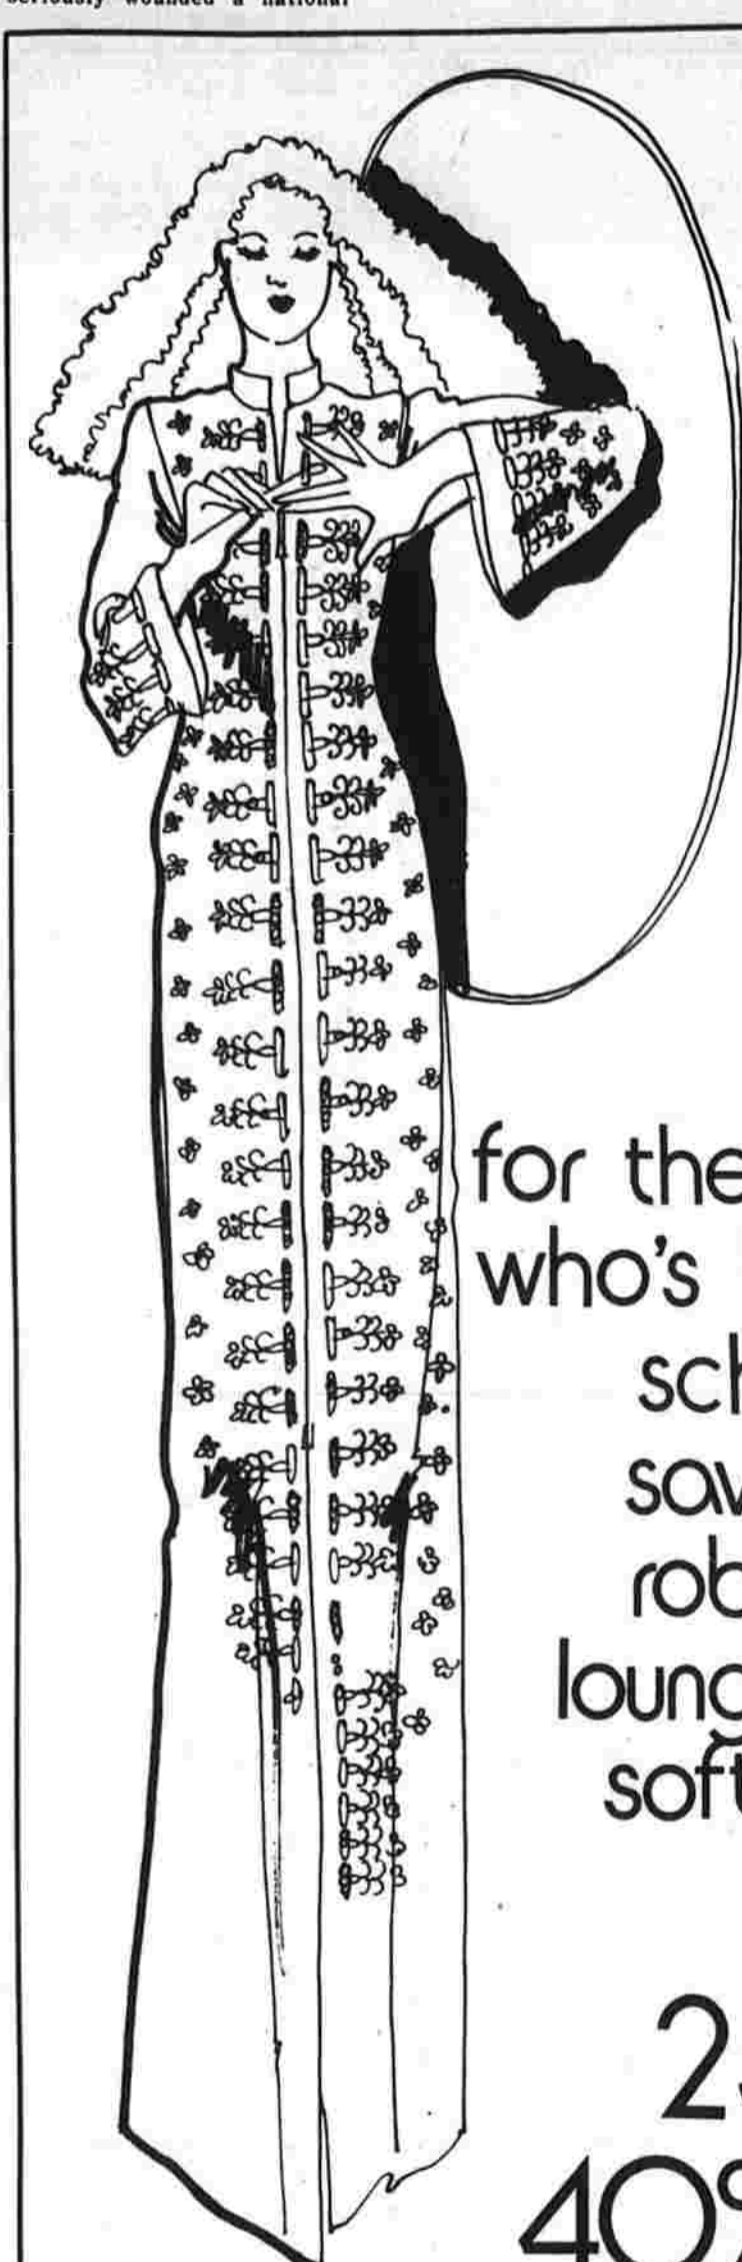

SP — Subtle plot. Film has murky story line that never quite spells out who is doing what to whom and why. The effect is similar to driving in a rainstorm with a broken windshield wiper.

HM — Hidden meaning. What you see is not what you get. Rather, the story unfolds on two levels, the second of which is merely implied and leaves the viewer feeling that he must have missed something when he went out for popcorn.

LE — Loose ends. Film ends without a firm resolution of the situation, leaving viewers to draw their own conclusions as to what happens next. This frequently leads to family arguments that may include V, L or both (VL).

Political violence

ROME (UPI) — Gunmen have tried to assassinate a Rome magistrate in Italy's fourth act of political violence in as many days. Police said gunmen missed Prosecutor Luciano Infelisi but seriously wounded a national policeman who was escorting him. Infelisi is serving as prosecutor in the current trial of a Roman left-winger accused of shooting and killing right-wing student Mikis Mantakas during a 1976 demonstration. persons died.

Parents, teachers and children team up to watch television

By JOAN HANAUER
UPI Television Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — The scene was a news conference held at NBC by the Teachers Guides to Television and one speaker was a teenage student at a New York high school. "Most of the people haven't grown up with television," she said, referring to her parents' generation.

Junior High in Americus, Ga., and fourth and fifth graders in Charlottesville, Va., all are taking part in Parents' Participation TV Workshops conducted by Teachers Guides to Television and keyed to the NBC "Special Treat" weekday afternoon children's television specials. Schools in Philadelphia and Chicago also have become involved in the program, although they were not originally part of the pilot project.

is in learning to use this new medium to open channels of communications across the generation gap; to use a television show as a jumping off point for a general discussion that will allow parent and child to talk. Father scoffed. One of the Cathedral girls said that initially her mother was interested but her father scoffed at the idea of television being of anything more than entertainment value. "Then he heard mother and me discussing something and he got into it," she added. Another girl denied that her family held discussions. "We just throw comments at each other," she said. Teachers Guides to Television plans to expand the program, working with a number of professional groups to include an increased number of school systems. For further information about the Parents' Participation TV Workshops, write to Teachers Guides to Television, P.O. Box 864, Lenox Hill Stations New York, New York 10021.

Groups says CIA wrong

BOSTON (UPI) — A study group has concluded the Central Intelligence Agency has been mistaken in its assessment of the Soviet Union's military policies according to an article in The Boston Globe. "The group headed by Prof. Richard Pipes of Harvard, called for a thorough reorganization of the mechanism used to make intelligence estimates, taking the function away from the Central Intelligence Agency and putting it directly under the President," the article, by William Beecher of the Globe Washington Bureau, stated.

made an oral report to the board and will present two written reports. "Well-placed sources familiar with the study said it is the most devastating indictment ever made of the CIA's Board of National Estimates and pointedly questioned whether the alleged misappraisals may have flawed the strategy followed by the Nixon and Ford administrations in their SALT talks with the Soviet Union," Beecher said. "Sources say the Pipes group, after studying all the evidence available to the intelligence community, and after talking to experts in and out of government, concluded that the Soviet Union's basic goal is to achieve strategic superiority worldwide," Beecher reported. "By contrast, the national estimates for the last several years have held that the Russians were satisfied with a position of approximate military parity with the United States but might seek to go somewhat beyond equivalence if not checked by arms-control agreements or U.S. actions."

Beecher said a CIA board produces long estimates of Soviet strategy based on contributions from all intelligence agencies. He said the estimates are used by presidents to help determine U.S. policies on military spending and arms control talks. Beecher said the Pipes group was created by the President's Foreign Policy Advisory Board to evaluate such estimates. He said it

Transfer compact endorsed

A statewide transfer proposal for students in all postsecondary institutions in the state was endorsed this week by the Commission for Higher Education. Gail Patrick, counselor at Manchester Community College, was chairman of the committee composed of admissions and transfer counseling representatives from colleges across the state, both public and private.

The proposal, called the State Transfer Articulation Compact, will now be sent to the boards of trustees of the various colleges for approval. Ms. Patrick said what the committee is looking for is a "universal transfer program" for students in all colleges in the state, both two and four-year institutions. She said the committee is asking that the community college student be treated the same as the "native student" who starts his education at a certain college.

Although Manchester Community College students have not fared so well, she said the students often get last choice in choosing courses and in opportunity to enter courses.

Ms. Patrick said 40 to 45 per cent of MCC students transfer to other colleges in the state. Any student or parent who has questions on transfer policy may contact Ms. Patrick at the college.

'Old Man of the Mountain' and friends

The Granite State's famous "Old Man of the Mountain" has been reduced in size. George Purgone and Serge St. Germain of Manchester, N. H., have created a smaller version of Franconia Notch's profile which stands 14 inches high and weighs 12 pounds. (UPI photo)

Hobby becomes profitable

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL
MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — George Purgone and Serge St. Germain were doing the tourist bit in Winter Haven, Fla., two years ago when they dropped in at a figurine-casting shop.
"What a nice hobby," they thought, and brought some statues of artificial stone home to paint. Then things got out of hand.
"I had the house full of them and said, 'Gee, we're getting too many,' and I jumped in the car and went out and sold them," Purgone said.
Before long, he and St. Germain had quit their regular jobs and were working full time in the basement of their 198-year-old home — making molds, making statues of artificial rock, painting them, and selling, selling, selling. At first it was dogs, cats, horses, zebras. You name it, in sizes from three inches to three feet. People liked these items for interior decoration.
Then Purgone, 38, decided he would like a Bicentennial present for himself, a nice replica of the Old Man of the Mountain. The small company's artist made a clay figure and Purgone made a mold and cast himself a 14-inch model of that great stone face on the side of Profile Mountain in Franconia Notch. More than a million tourists drive up to view the "Old Man" each year. Purgone liked the statue. His friends liked it. G&S Enterprises now is producing a not-too-limited edition of 2,500 plain Old Man of the Mountain statues and another 2,500 done up as lamps.

"Young people and people with summer homes here especially like the lamps. They go right to them," said Emile Kilcourse, who runs a hand-made furniture business in Wilmot Flat. G&S does all its selling through about three dozen gift and furniture stores around New Hampshire.
"I get a lot of calls for some reason for anniversaries and from people who collect things to this effect," Purgone said. The figures weigh 12 pounds apiece, so he isn't pushing the idea of selling them by mail.
G&S statues start with an idea by Purgone or St. Clair. They go to a woman who sculpts, and she plays around with it until we're happy."
Then they brush latex rubber onto a clay figure, a layer at a time, sometimes taking three weeks to make a mold reinforced with fiberglass and casting material.
The artificial stone is cast in the mold, dries for several days in a room heated to 100 to 120 degrees Fahrenheit, and painted by hand.
The Old Man sells mostly in New Hampshire, and out-of-state sales of that one product tend to be to people who once lived in the Granite State. Since G&S began production of the Old Man in September, it has taken up 79 percent of their time.
"We've been contemplating other state items, such as state shapes or state animals," Purgone said. "We eventually want to come out with a complete line of our own figurines. We're sort of feeling our way through and will grow as business grows."

Welfare roll up 12
Manchester's welfare roll increased by 12 cases during the month of November.
The number of cases for the month was 142 compared to the 130 cases handled during October.
"We expect this," Mary DellaFera, director of social services, said of the November jump. She said that the winter weather usually means an increase in welfare cases and costs.
Welfare costs increased by almost $1,400 during November. A total of $18,756 was issued in welfare vouchers during the month, while $17,389 in vouchers was issued in October.
The cost of last month's case load was less than that of a year ago, however. In November 1975, $20,373 was spent on a total of 139 cases.

The better way to retire rich.
TAX SHELTERED RETIREMENT SAVINGS.
An ordinary worker could retire with $290,592.48 in his tax sheltered Heritage Savings IRA (Individual Retirement Account), based on today's interest rates and tax laws. The worker in our example would deposit the $1500 annual maximum at today's 7 1/2% interest from age 30 to age 65. The tax savings alone would put him $153,345.89 ahead — just because he used a Heritage IRA account. The Heritage IRA account sure is a BETTER WAY to save for retirement — $153,345.89 better in this case. These figures are for the self-employed with a $1500 annual deposit maximum. Keogh accounts for the self-employed accumulate even more funds with a $7500 maximum. If you don't have a pension, ask at any of our offices about tax sheltered retirement savings. You pay no income tax on the money you deposit and none on the interest it earns. You are taxed only as you withdraw funds during retirement when you are likely to be in a lower tax bracket. DEADLINE DEC. 31. To qualify for IRA or Keogh you must act by December 31. Now is the time to arrange your tax sheltered retirement savings account.

Good Samaritan act brings months of pain

SOMERVILLE, Mass. (UPI) — Last summer, Edmund Keeffe of Somerville rushed to the aid of a policeman who had been knocked down while trying to break up a fight at a softball game.
His Good Samaritan act caused him 16 weeks of pain.
Keeffe's nightmare began July 25 when he was attending a game with his wife and two children. They had traveled to nearby Melrose to cheer on Keeffe's favorite team, "Piro's Pipers" of Somerville.
During a lull between games that tournament afternoon, a melee developed between players of one of the teams and disgruntled fans of another team.
"Someone on the sidelines was razing one of the players, and the player figured he had taken enough," Keeffe said.
"A fight broke out and there was mass confusion. A cop went down while trying to break up the fight and I raced from the sideline to help him. Then bang, I saw the punch coming and then I blacked out. I don't know who hit me but my jawbone was broken in three places," Keeffe said.
"My wife was more scared than I was. Before a police cruiser took me to the hospital, I said to her 'Give me the Blue Cross card.'" Keeffe, who is 29 and works as a telephone installer for the New England Telephone Co., spent the next week in the Melrose-Wakefield Hospital.
His jaw was wired shut and he was able to eat only soup which he sucked through the spaces in his teeth. He lost 60 pounds. During that time he also developed a "24-hour earache" which caused him intense pain.
He underwent surgery Sept. 28 and doctors used three screws to attach a metal plate to the bone to make certain the pieces stayed together.
"I figure I'll set off the metal detectors at Logan Airport whenever I go through there," he said, "and they'll never be able to figure out what's causing it."
After his second operation he returned home where he spent six weeks eating soups and blender-prepared meals.
"I ran everything through the blender — turkey, bacon, hot dogs. I even tried steak once, but it looked so horrible after it came out of the blender I didn't have the stomach to do it."
His wired jaw also caused some domestic problems. To discipline his children he would clap his hands when they were too noisy. His four-year-old daughter said "Daddy, when you get your wires out you can slap us."
He returned to work in mid-November and has been put on light duty until he regains his strength. Now that he is able to eat nonblendered food he has gained back about 30 pounds.
"I can't chew on the left hand side of my mouth and it still feels numb the way you do after you have Novocain in a dentist's office. Also, I can't open my mouth all the way. But the doctor tells me that eventually everything should be normal," he said.
Keeffe said if it were to happen again he would still go to the policeman's assistance.
"I definitely would do it again, but next time I'd put on a football helmet," he said.

Space age technology may guide man's future

By JENNIFER SMALL
NORTHFIELD, Vt. (UPI) — Space age technology may guide man's future, but it may also tell him something about his past.
Robert Brescia, 24, a Norwich University senior, has used satellite photographs to trace the westward migrations of early French-Canadian and New England settlers. His award-winning study disproved a common belief among geographers that 80 per cent of American land conforms to the U.S. land survey system of township, section and range.
The National Council for Geographic Education awarded Brescia top honors for his study at its recent convention in San Francisco.
Brescia conceived the idea of tracing migration patterns through soil imprints for a class in remote sensing — the "perception of objects from a distance."
That type of study has developed in the last 10 years.
With use of photographs from the satellite LANDSAT 570 miles above the earth Brescia spotted the "cultural footprints," or ancient boundaries, left by the settlers.
The French-Canadian "long lots," long, narrow plots of crop land, were not only visible in the Mississippi drainage basin, where they had always been known to exist, but were also shown in Wisconsin, Arkansas, Texas, California Oregon and Indiana. Unlike the long lots usually found in rows and along rivers, the "meets and bounds" used by New England farmers are irregular plots of land bounded by natural landmarks such as trees, rivers and rocks. Such demarcation of land was also used for mine claims on the West Coast, Brescia said.
The satellite photographs showed similar boundaries in Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin, Oregon, Washington and California.
Brescia confirmed with various state agencies his findings that French-Canadian and New Englanders settled in these areas some 200 years ago.
As settlers moved west, they maintained their traditional methods of farming, Brescia said. The rectangular and irregular plots of land, presumed to have been confirmed off by now, contrast with the gridded, blocked-off square patterns that denote U.S. public land surveys throughout the country.
Brescia said most American land does conform to modern land survey systems. His findings show people still live in some of the irregular land shapes created by early settlers.
Although Brescia said well-known geographer Norman Thrower estimated 90 per cent of U.S. land was assimilated along modern survey lines. "You could knock off 20 per cent from that figure," Brescia said. "Historically the conclusion is not a big one."
"The point is that this generalization concerning land survey systems can't be made any further and that LANDSAT can be used for future mapping and a new delineation of land survey systems."
Brescia said the LANDSAT prints, available to anyone for $3 a copy, could help restructure urban areas and develop suburban and farm areas.
"Satellite imagery can be used not only in mapping out present land use more accurately but also in analyzing past systems and more importantly, in planning future uses of our land and natural resources," he said.

"There is a solid spirit of unity among our membership," said Ronald Durler, re-elected president recently by Local 1174, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, Council Four, AFL-CIO.

Durler, 39, now begins his fifth, two-year term as head of the local. A sign of the union in local is that every candidate for office was elected by an overwhelming majority, he said.

Era of peace

"Our union is operating under a fair collective bargaining agreement with the town which does not expire until June 30, 1979," he said.

"And as recently as the first part of last week, we were able to sit down with town officials and, through mediation, resolve some potentially serious problems. The union considers all of these things as positive indicators of a new era of labor peace between the town and its employees."

Durler said the union wants the management of the town and its residents to know they intend to continue "...to provide the highest level of service possible throughout this period." They will do all they can to resolve any labor disputes through discussion and compliance with their contract.

Area union leader

Durler, raised in East Hartford, also served for six years on the executive board of Council Four which represents a total of about 12,000 municipal employees in the state. His local represents about 112 here.

He has also been a delegate to the Greater Hartford Labor Council for the past eight years.

Durler and his wife, Janet, live in town. Their daughter Mrs. Bonnie Caron lives in Vernon. Their daughter Terri and son Ronald Jr. are both students at East Hartford High School.

The other leaders elected by the union of workers in the Public Works and Park Departments here are: William Daley as vice president; William McAllister as secretary;

Did you know Mark Twain's famous Connecticut Yankee longed for his East Hartford home as he wandered through King Arthur's kingdom? Twain's story mentions his Yankee friend says Main St. was like a park because of the beautiful trees that lined the sides of the street.

East Hartford's Lee Paquette wrote a history that will inform and entertain the reader.

Paquette grew up and was educated in East Hartford. His mother, Helen Paquette, still resides in town.

After graduation from East Hartford High School and Fairfield University, Paquette spent two years in Columbia, South America with the Peace Corps.

After the Peace Corps, he studied for his master's degree at the University of Pittsburgh. Presently, he teaches at Northwest Catholic High School where he has been a member of the social studies staff for seven years.

Once a paper boy who brought the stories of the day to East Hartford, Paquette now brings the story of East Hartford's past to today's reader and to future generations of East Hartford students and history buffs.

'Only More So' tells a story of town's growth

East Hartford SHEILA TULLER

As Maine goes, so goes the nation, an old saying goes.

"As the country lived and grew, so did East Hartford," says East Hartford historian Lee Paquette.

Paquette recently said his book "Only More So" basically points out East Hartford's history is a more intense version of the history of the United States.

"The growth and changes that occurred in East Hartford were reflections of what was happening in the country," he said.

"Only More So," the story of East Hartford authored by Paquette and published by the Raymond Library Company, is now for sale at the library.

Paquette's father, Francis, a history buff, public servant, and journalist, wrote many articles on East Hartford's past for local papers. Because of his knowledge, the Raymond Library Company in February 1974 commissioned him to write the town's history.

Before he finished his research, the elder Paquette died unexpectedly in September 1974. Lee Paquette took over his father's work.

Meanwhile, the Raymond Library Company decided to republish Joseph Goodwin's early history of East Hartford. They directed Lee Paquette to begin where the first history ended. The second history of East Hartford covers from 1783 to the present.

Each phase of the town's growth from rural community to sprawling suburb is traced by Paquette. Besides telling the story of the town's growth, the author tells stories of famous forefathers, prominent families, and exciting events.

East Hartford police report

More than $6,000 worth of leather coats for men and women were stolen over the weekend from the Leather and Sweater Post at 13 Burnside Ave., police said.

A rear window was forced open sometime Friday night or Saturday morning.

Mrs. Maria DiNimmi, owner of the store, said today she had just opened the store two months ago. It was her first business. She had worked for 12 years for a leather coat store in West Hartford.

"It has hurt me morally, physically," she said.

She did not know this morning for certain if she was insured. In any case, she said she is determined to keep the store open.

Police are investigating.

Someone was reportedly shooting out street lights in the Woodcrest Dr. area Friday about 10 p.m.

A home at the south end of Main St. was broken into Saturday morning while the residents slept, police said. A pocketbook containing some cash and personal papers was taken.

A youth snatched a purse from a 61-year-old woman walking on Wall Ave. Friday at 5:31 p.m. She was not injured. The purse contained $10 and personal papers.

Each year since 1953, Van Alen has dressed in appropriate costume and stood in for Moore to make an annual Newport reading of the famous poem.

Because of its popularity in recent years, the reading was moved from Moore's home to the Van Alen Casino Theatre which packed in more than 500 youngsters to relive the celebration.

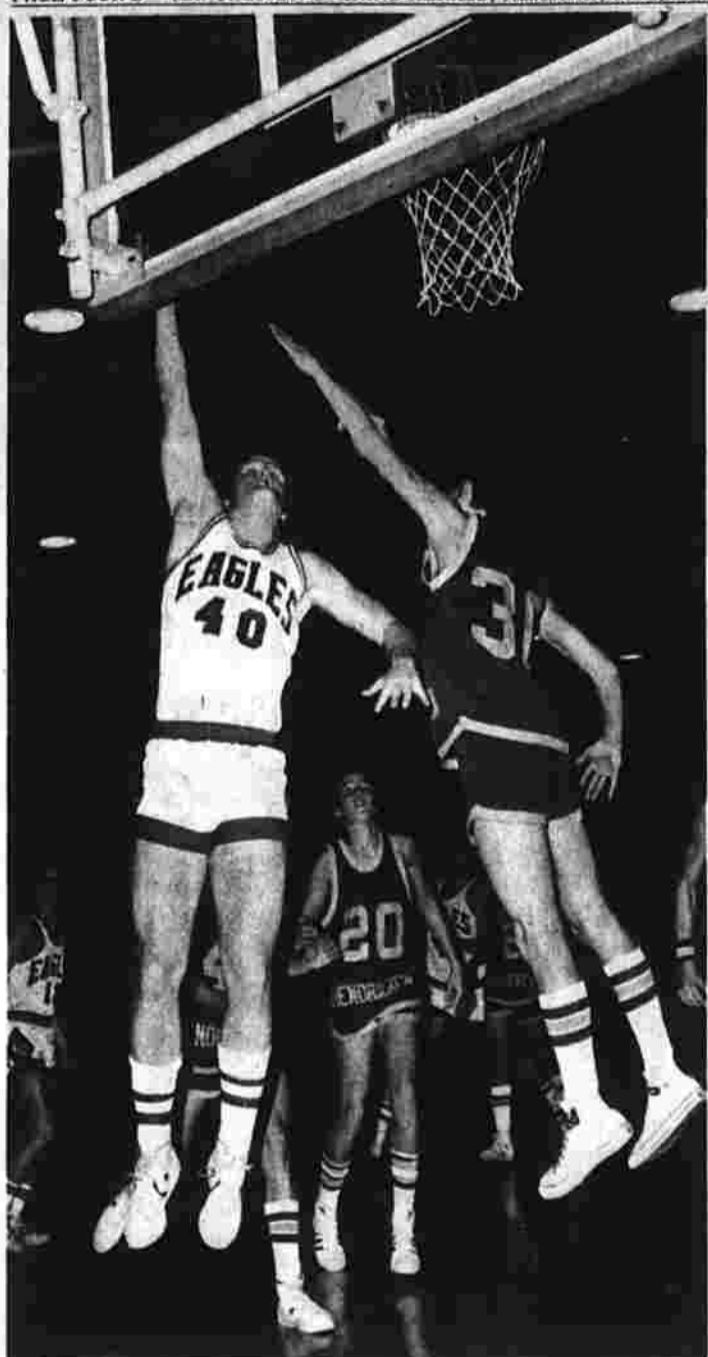

Instead of visions of sugar plums dancing in heads, wealthy Newport James H. Van Alen has on his mind a combined shrine to Moore and Santa Claus.

In the wake of a Dec. 6 fire that destroyed his home, Van Alen wants to muster $500,000 to renovate another building on his seaside estate and obtain appropriate memorabilia.

It was Moore who converted the gaunt old man in bishop's robes into a merry, fat elf in a fur suit — whose laugh made his belly shake "like a bowlful of jelly."

Moore lived in New York when he wrote the poem "A Visit From St. Nicholas," which is better known by its first line: "Twas the night before Christmas." He spent the later years of his life at 25 Catherine St. in New-

East easy hoop winner in first annual tourney

Adaptability.
The mark of a good team is its ability to change style to specific situations and do so effectively. East Catholic, normally a man-to-man defensive basketball team, utilized a 1-2-2 zone to throttle Bishop Hendricken's highly touted Victor Bertoglio and the result was a relatively easy 71-49 win in Saturday's climax of the first annual East Catholic Classic before a sparse gathering of 350.

Nater coming of age in fourth pro season

NEW YORK (UPI) — He played the kind of game Sunday night that some predicted he could play almost every night. Great potential has always seemed to reside in Sweeney Nater's 6-foot-11, 250-pound body. But in three previous seasons in professional basketball he has always left his teams disappointed.

Nater, who signed as a free agent with Milwaukee last June, scored 30 points and grabbed a team-record 33 rebounds to spark the Bucks to a 120-109 victory over the Atlanta Hawks in Milwaukee. The triumph was Milwaukee's second straight and only its sixth of the season. "He was something tonight," said Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson, who has taught Nater to take smaller steps under the basket in an effort to improve his defense. "He played a terrific game. He's taking up more room defensively instead of just getting offensive rebounds."

The victory by East was its third straight while the setback drops the visitors from Warwick to 5-2. East returns to action Tuesday night at the Eagles' Nest against Holy Cross High of Waterbury. "Our defense was one key. It took Bertoglio, who likes to run, out of his game and made him just another player," stated East coach Stan Ogrodnik. "We were able to control the tempo and I'm pleased. We used our books and in the three games we've showed improvement each time out. We're continually improving and we could be a very good team before the end," he added.

Bertoglio, the Ocean States' leader, finished with just 10 points, only two after intermission. Frank Miller, a 6-1 senior, was the most impressive Hendricken hooper pumping in 19 points. There were six ties and four lead exchanges in the first quarter with the Eagles holding a slim 17-16 advantage at the turn. After being down by five, the Hawks knotted it at 25-25 with 4:12 left in the half and took the lead on two charity tosses by Bob Marran. But Pete Thompson tied it again on a long range jumper, Jon Lindberg converted an offensive rebound, Mark Dumais pumped in a two-pointer and Thompson off a steal added two more as East raced to a 33-27 edge in a one-minute burst.

The Eagles led at the half, 36-29, with Thompson in 16 minutes showing 14 points, five assists and four steals. The third quarter was somewhat ragged with East pulling ahead, 48-35, going into the final can. Lindberg, 6-4 senior, had 12 second-half points to finish up as team-leader for East with 19 markers. He also hauled in 12 rebounds. Thompson totaled 18 points and seven assists and 6-4 senior tri-captain Gary Carlson added 17 tallies. East netted 28 of 47 field goal attempts, 11 for 17 in the second half, and had 18 turnovers. It consistently was able to beat Hendricken's zone pressure. Hendricken, a woolly nine for 36 from the floor in the second half, wound up 21 for 59. It committed 22 turnovers. Marran with 10 markers also hit double digits for the Rhode Islanders.

East Catholic (71) — Carlson 65-6 17, Donnelly 1 0-2, Lindberg 7 5-7 19, Dumais 2 1-5, Thompson 8 2-3 18, Heim 3 0-6, Holland 0 0-0, Hall 1 2-3 4, Hammick 0 0-0, Totals 29 15-21 71.

Tiant named again best RSox pitcher

BOSTON (UPI) — Luis Tiant, the bright spot on a dreary pitching staff in 1976, has been named the Boston Red Sox' Most Valuable Pitcher for the third time by the Boston Baseball Writers Association. Honored along with Tiant, 31-21 winner in three of his last four seasons, were outfielder Rick Miller as the team's Comeback Player of the Year and third baseman Rico Petrocelli as the Good Guy award winner. show," said Boston coach Tom Heinsohn. "It certainly wasn't as aesthetically successful, but it was a win and we'll take it." Despite a lethargic start and missing persons list, Boston now trails division-leading Philadelphia by only one game. The Celtics shot only 35 per cent in the first half, but trailed the Nets by only five, 52-47 at the half. Then it was the Nets' turn to hit a cold spell, as Boston's 26-16 edge in the third quarter was enough to give it a lead they never relinquished. Heinsohn says his team is still in a transition period. "Almost all the teams are still going through changes. Even a club like Cleveland in the Central Division is having trouble and they stood pat with the same lineup and coach," he said.

Hats off to athletes

Hats off to the young athletes at East Catholic High who helped notch six state titles for the school during 1965-76. No one is more elated at the success of the teams than the Rev. Robert Saunders, East Catholic principal, and a solid supporter of interscholastic sports. The six titles won were Class B outdoor cross country, indoor track, boys' tennis, girls' tennis and the Division II CIAC golf championship. ...Hockey buffs in this area will have a first hand chance tonight to watch European-style play when the New England Whalers take time out from the WHA to entertain Caertholovakia at the Hartford Civic Center. Tickets are still available for the 7-30 exhibition. One week from tonight the Whalers will go against Russia and a sellout is expected. Tabbed the best player in the Kingswood Invitational Basketball Tournament last weekend was 6-5 John Lusa, former East Catholic High standout, now attending Loomis-Chaffee. Lusa scored 76 points and collected 49 rebounds in three games as Kingswood copped the title. Lusa was named to the all-star team along with big Mike Quessel, who led Manchester High point-makers last season. The latter is now attending St. Albans Academy.

Tough loss to take

Cry all you want but the final score won't change. Oakland 24, New England 21. The loss was hard to take for Patriot rooters in these parts but the breaks evened up, penalties hurt the Raiders in the early going and the same killed the Patriot chances for an upset in the last quarter. Thanks to video, a glaring infraction on tight end Russ Francis on a passing play by Oakland defensive back George Atkinson went undetected by the six game officials. If called, it would have given the Pats a first down with time rapidly running out. The Pats should be back, they are a young team with great potential. Top job again this season is being turned in at the Parkade Lanes by Ginger Yourkas who handles the Junior and Bantam Youth 10-Pin Leagues. Peter Thompson of East Catholic High has been named player-of-the-week by Regal's in the first weekly selection. Basketball players from Manchester High and East Catholic are eligible.

Pats looking to future after disappointing loss

BOSTON (UPI) — Even a controversial and disappointing loss could not shatter the New England Patriots' high opinion of themselves. Saturday's 24-21 loss at Oakland knocked them from the National Football League playoffs. Yet the young Patriots, who reversed a 3-1 record to reach post-season play for the first time in 13 years, talked Sunday of pride and games to come.

"We had a lot of character on this team this season," said second-year quarterback Steve Grogan, the sparkplug of the maverick team. "We're going to have a good team for a long time to come and I'm looking forward to the future."

Grogan led the Patriots to a 21-10 fourth-period lead. But the Raiders scored two late touchdowns, the last one aided by a pair of questionable calls by the officials, to end the most impressive season in the Patriots' 17-year history.

"It's nice being in the Pro Bowl," said Gray, a fourth-year tackle who came to the Patriots on waivers. "But that is an individual honor, not a team concept. We'll think about the year we've had not just the one game. We know we're on the right road."

special feeling for each other and the coaching staff," according to Coach Chuck Fairbanks. They'll remember rebounding from an opening-game loss to Baltimore to ship Miami, Pittsburgh and Oakland in consecutive weeks and six straight victories at season's end to secure their first playoff berth in 13 years.

"I'm proud of my team; I've been proud of them all year long," said the leading candidate for Coach of the Year in the American Football Conference.

Fairbanks, who probably will have his existing contract torn up in favor of a new, long-term pact, congratulated his players individually on the long plane ride back from Oakland.

Destructive Steelers saved many lives in Baltimore with lop-sided victory

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Steelers were such a destructive force on the football field Sunday they sent the fans home early — and thereby ended up saving the lives of hundreds of people.

The Steelers, methodically marching toward a record third straight Super Bowl title, crushed the Baltimore Colts, 40-14, in an American Football Conference semifinal and, fortunately, sent people heading for the exits well before the end of the contest.

"If it had been a close game there would have been people up there and they would have been falling out of the stadium," said Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel, who attended the contest and inspected the accident site.

There were no injuries reported to spectators, but two policemen were struck by part of the plane's wingtip and were injured. Kroner was hospitalized with cuts and bruises and was reported in fair condition.

Steelers' Franco Harris on the run. Bruce Laird of Colts came up to make tackle.

Charges likely against pilot

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Police are considering charges against the pilot of a light plane that crashed into Memorial Stadium Sunday only minutes after the 60,020 fans at Pittsburgh-Baltimore pro football game had left the stands.

The pilot of the single engine Piper Cherokee, Don Kroner, 33, and two policemen were injured.

Most spectators had left the stadium early because of Pittsburgh's lopsided 40-14 win.

Police spokesman Dennis Hill said authorities were studying possible charges against Kroner. "He will be taken into police custody if he gets out of the hospital," Hill said.

"Fortunately, most of the fans had gone before this occurred and there were a lot of people in the stadium anyway because of the large crowd," he said.

Witnesses said the plane entered the open end of the horseshoe-shaped stadium about 10 minutes after the game ended and made a pass as if to land. Then, apparently seeing he was in trouble, the pilot tried to pull up but the plane landed nose down in the upper deck of the closed end of the facility.

"If it had been a close game, there would have been people up there and they would have been falling out of the stadium," said Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel, who attended the game. "You can pass all kinds of laws about flying over the stadium, but there's no way you can stop a nut."

Baltimore Colts officials said the plane had been buzzing the stadium for the past few days and the FAA was notified. An FAA spokesman said attempts were made to radio the pilot during the game, but he did not answer.

Kroner and Officer David Williams were reported in fair condition in a hospital today. Officer Joseph Socco was treated and released for pains in his side.

One woman fan who saw the plane coming shouted: "My God, it's get out of here. That plane is gonna hit us."

was awesome, holding the high-scoring Colts to just 170 yards total offense.

"We were ready," said Bradshaw. "They said they were ready, that they were at their peak. They said this and they said that. We said very little and did a lot."

Colts' Coach Ted Marchbroda admitted the Steelers were a far superior team to his club.

"We're not a Super Bowl team," Marchbroda said. "We need more ability and a few more top players on our club to become a Super Bowl team. You saw one out there today in everything they did — passing, rushing, defense and specialty teams."

The victory sets up a rematch between the AFC finalists of the past two seasons — Pittsburgh and the Oakland Raiders, Oakland, who lost to the Steelers 16-10 last year.

Marquette and Kentucky quintets bow in weekend of big upsets on college scene

NEW YORK (UPI) — For Marquette and Kentucky it was a weekend of turmoil that went beyond each team's first defeat of the season.

Louisville upset second-ranked Marquette 78-75 in overtime Saturday night in the Warriors' first game since Coach Al McGuire announced that he would retire after this season.

In the final of the Kentucky Invitational, the third-ranked Wildcats, playing without two starters who were suspended last week by Coach Joe Hall for missing curfew, lost to Utah 70-68. The defeat snapped Kentucky's 16-game winning streak, including six straight vicories this year. Then on Sunday Kentucky learned that the NCAA has placed the school's basketball and football programs on probation for two years because of violations of NCAA regulations.

McGuire discounted an affect his announced retirement might have had on his team's performance against Louisville. "I don't think the announcement had anything to do with it," he said of Marquette's first loss in five games. "If anything, it would be an asset rather than a liability."

Louisville's Ricky Gallon sank four free throws in overtime as the Cardinals boosted their record to 4-2 and handed Marquette its first loss at home since 1974. Marquette's Butch Lee, who scored a career-high 30 points, missed a foul shot with no time remaining in regulation that would have given the Warriors a 68-67 victory.

"I just personally feel Louisville is a lot better than we are," said the 48-year-old McGuire, in his 13th season at Marquette. "I honestly do. They're a super ball club. We'll be representative but we won't set the world on fire."

Wesley Cox led Louisville with 20 points and Darrell Griffith added 19. With Kentucky center Mike Phillips and guard Jay Shuler watching the game in street clothes, Louisville's Earl Williams hit a jump shot with one second remaining to send the Wildcats to their first defeat in seven games this season. It was only the sixth time in 24 years Kentucky has lost its own tournament.

After the game Hall reinstated the two starting players plus reserve Truman Claytor, the other suspended player. Hall said they will play in Kentucky's next game, Dec. 30 against No. 4 Notre Dame. With the problem resolved Hall now must deal with another. The NCAA probation reduces to three the number of basketball scholarships Kentucky may award in each of the next two years.

That is two scholarships per year less than NCAA regulations normally permit in the first half. Center Bill Cartwright scored a school-record 44 points and grabbed 10 rebounds as San Francisco won its own Cable Car Classic over Florida State and gained its 10th victory without a loss. Gary Yoder scored 18 points, Mike Jones 16 and Steve Collier 15 to pace Cincinnati over St. Louis. David Greenwood posted career highs of 31 points and 23 rebounds to lead UCLA past Tulsa. Glen Goodenrich scored a game-high 23 points and five other teammates were in double figures in Nevada-Las Vegas' victory over Idaho. Steve Sheppard scored 18 points to lead Maryland over Appalachian State and Greg Ballard had 27 points to spark Oregon over Los Angeles State.

In tournament championship games Saturday, Tennessee clipped St. John's (NY) 86-81 to win the Volunteer Classic. Houston beat Cal-Santa Barbara 77-62 in the Astro-Birmingham Classic. Florida edged Memphis State 84-83 in the Big Sun Tournament. South Alabama beat Army 80-54 in the Birmingham Classic. Missouri routed Texas-EI Paso 83-60 in the Sun Carnival and Mississippi downed Toledo 67-64 in the Toledo Invitational.

Tanner sparks victory

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Roscoe Tanner, using a few things he learned in a previous loss to Mexican ace Raul Ramirez, led the United States to a 4-1 victory Sunday to end Mexico's domination of the North American zone Davis Cup semifinals.

Tanner, who lost to Ramirez in his first Davis Cup competition, said he spent the past 20 months preparing for this weekend's rematch.

"It was very, very satisfying feeling," said Tanner, reflecting on the U.S. win. "This domination of Mexico has been going on for three long years. We were pretty pleased over how things turned out."

Tanner accounted for two U.S. victories tie this weekend, defeating Ramirez, 7-5, 6-4, 6-4, 4-1, Friday's other singles match.

Ramirez avoided a complete shutout by turning back Ashe, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4, in Sunday's final match.

Tangerine Bowl win for Oklahoma State

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Going into the Tangerine Bowl, Oklahoma State's pass defense was expected to be sorely tested by the Brigham Young aerial attack.

But the Cowboy defenders picked up a few hints from game films and came through with flying colors. They intercepted four passes by BYU quarterback Gifford Nielson Saturday night and each of the thefts led to a touchdown for OSU and a 49-21 thrashing of the Cougars.

Gifford Nielson was broadcasting where he was going to throw the ball, said free safety Gary Irlson, who intercepted a pass on OSU's second quarter touchdown. "When he'd go back, he'd look at a receiver, then look away and then throw to that same receiver."

Cowboy Coach Jim Stanley said Nielson "looks at his receivers and we played his eyes very well for the locals. Assists on Manchester goals were credited to Tully, Willie Simons, George LeBlanc and Paul LeBlanc.
