

Sidewalk repair vote has strong support

By GREG PEARSON

There is strong support for a proposal made Tuesday by Pascal Prignano, the secretary of the Board of Directors, to consider a referendum for sidewalk repairs.

At a board meeting Tuesday night, several citizens complained that the town should repair its present sidewalks before it begins building new ones.

Following the hearing, Prignano suggested the referendum, which would allocate funding through a bond issue for sidewalk repairs.

He said that money for sidewalk repairs is usually one of the first items to be sliced in the budget.

"We've been pushing sidewalk repairs aside for so long, it just isn't right," he said.

Other directors contacted Wednesday agreed with Prignano's approach to the problem.

"We have a situation that's getting out of hand," Board member Carl Zinsner said, referring to the need for sidewalk repair.

"I would probably endorse the referendum," he said.

He also said that he would like to see the referendum be for all the money needed for sidewalk repairs.

Joy J. Giles said at the Tuesday board meeting that the town needs from $2.3 million for work to existing sidewalks.

"Let's get it all out of the way. Once we get caught up, we'll have to establish a policy to make sure it stays kept up," Zinsner said.

Deputy Mayor John Thompson said he was in favor of the sidewalk referendum.

"The number of complaints and the number of people waiting for sidewalks is out-of-sight," he said.

Thompson said that it would probably cost the town less to do all of the sidewalk repairs at once, instead of in a "piecemeal" fashion, a little at a time.

Director Robert Price said of the referendum idea, "I think it's probably a little. Some sidewalks are in horrible condition."

Minority Leader Vivian Ferguson said that she also thought of the idea of a referendum for sidewalk repairs during the discussion Tuesday night.

She said that she once wore through a pair of shoes during an extended period of walking on town sidewalks.

"I wondered how the mailman delivers every day," she said.

Betty Sadoski, of 48 Hollister St., was one of those who criticized the town for not doing more to repair the sidewalks.

Without first repairing the existing ones, she said that she was "kind of shocked" at the $2 million price tag for sidewalk repairs and would not want to see a referendum for that amount.

She said that she would like to see a study of what sidewalks need repair and what the cost in different areas would be.

A "reasonable bond issue" with which the town "will do quite a bit of repairs" would draw her support.

Spending pace below budget projections

The Town of Manchester has spent less than half of its 1976-77 budget through the first half of the fiscal year.

The 45.7 per cent of the budget that has been spent is higher than the amount spent through the first six months of the 1975-76 fiscal year.

Total adjusted appropriations for this year's budget is $23,165,003. Expenditures through the first six months equaled $10,590,000 with another $107,895.28 in encumbered monies.

At the mid-point of the 1975-76 fiscal year, 43.1 per cent of the $21,266,606 budget had been spent.

A total of $9,170,168.50 had been spent and another $67,197.70 had been encumbered.

Controller Thomas S. Moore said that an extra pay period during the first half of this year's budget was a cause for increased expenses.

There were 14 pay days for town employees from July to December, Moore said.

"Because we spent 47 per cent for the first half, you can't say we're going to spend 94 per cent for the entire year," he said.

Some expenses made in the first half of the fiscal year—such as one-time payments by the Board of Directors to area agencies—will not be expended during the second half.

Likewise, some expenditures are made only in the second half of the fiscal year.

Coast Guard searches for crew of sunken Panamanian tanker

BOSTON (UPI) — The Coast Guard search today for the 38 crew members of the sunken Panamanian oil tanker Grand Zenith will focus on an area southeast of where debris and life jackets were discovered earlier.

Two international orange life jackets stenciled with the words "Grand Zenith" were located Friday about 300 miles east-southeast of Cape Cod and 240 miles directly south from Halifax, Nova Scotia.

The Coast Guard also found a brown trunk and a mattress, neither being identified as coming from the ship, about 14 miles to the northwest of the life jackets.

Other debris was found Thursday. "We're interested in the life jackets and other debris only to the point where it may lead us to the crew members," said Coast Guard captain Bernard Hoyle, chief of search and rescue in New England.

"We'll search for a crew until such time as we feel any further searching won't accomplish anything. We're gearing our search for life rafts. Anyone depending on a life jacket, with no protection from the waters, could not survive for a few hours."

Friday's bad weather halted the search at 3 p.m. as a helicopter hovering over the Atlantic Ocean landed aboard the Coast Guard cutter Dallas and secured for more rough weather. The skipper of the cutter radioed Coast Guard headquarters in Boston that breaking waves and rough seas had hampered visibility.

The cutter dropped a data marker buoy on the site where the life jackets were found, and the helicopter will pick up the signal today when the search is resumed.

Hoyle said the Coast Guard is pinning its hopes on rescuing the Nationalist Chinese crew members on two incidents in 1962 and 1975 when crews survived tanker mishaps despite the fact the vessels broke in two and lost radio contact.

Hoyle said once a life raft is boarded a man can survive for as long as his body holds out.

"The trick is to get in it (life raft), bail it out and raise the canopy," Hoyle said. "If the canopy is not raised, anyone in the boat is in grave danger of dying."

Hoyle said assuming the boat sunk last week, the life rafts could be as far as 120 miles away from the vessel. He also said if the crew is found, it wouldn't be responsive to signals of light from a helicopter.

"We wouldn't be realistic if we expected people in one of those rafts to respond to a signal," he said. "For one, they're probably dehydrated from extreme seasickness. Secondly, they're more than affected by the cold, and most important, they're probably in that semi-comatose state you develop when you've been exposed to the cold."

The ship carried four lifeboats and a pair of inflatable life rafts.

The 23-year-old tanker, built in Quincy, Mass., was last heard from nine days ago. She was carrying 6.2 million gallons of industrial fuel bound for a power station in Somerset, Mass.

Hoyle already assumes most of the oil has gone down with the tanker. "I'd say when you have a pouring point 86 degrees and the waters are 50 degrees it's safe to assume most of the oil has stayed with the ship."

Rescuers continue search for missing airplane carrying Sinatra's mother

RIALTO, Calif. (UPI) — Rescuers took a new turn today in a search for a missing airplane carrying Frank Sinatra's aged mother believed buried in a rugged mountain wilderness area.

A 12-man mountain-climbing team spent the night in near-zero temperatures halfway up the treacherous 10,000-foot San Geronimo Peak waiting for daybreak before plowing higher in the snowy, near-vertical terrain.

"It's a hunt-and-peck situation," a spokesman said early today. "They are sticking ice axes into the snow hoping to find something. There's bound to be something sticking up."

"They are looking for a fresh break in trees, which would indicate something was down in the area. Those guys really have to fight their way up there."

Snowy weather in the San Bernardino Mountains wilderness area Friday hampered an air search for the white twin-engine Lear jet that disappeared from radar screens Thursday night four minutes after takeoff from Palm Springs Municipal Airport.

About town 12 seek Vista job

The Town of Manchester has received 12 applications for a VISTA volunteer position, but the opening may not be filled in April, according to Alan Mason, director of human services.

Mason said that the VISTA program likes to train its volunteers before they begin working. The next such training session in the New England area is not until April, Mason said.

"I'm trying to get VISTA to let us hire before that date and then send the worker to the training session in April," he said.

If VISTA does not accept this arrangement, Mason said that the town would notify all the applicants that a final selection will not be made until April.

"I think that would be the fairest way," he said.

The VISTA volunteer will work in a variety of services for Manchester's elderly. The position was formerly held by Diane Wicks, who was recently promoted to the town's Outreach worker for the elderly.

The Maranatha Christian Coffee House for teenagers and young adults will be open tonight from 8 to 11 in Fellowship Hall of Calvary Church, 647 E. Middle Tpk. There is no admission charge.

Discharged Wednesday: Anna Hagstrom, 50 Wind Rd., East Hartford; Eileen Charron, Tatfield; Mary Ann Judge, 47B Esquire Dr., Schaghticoke; 48 Abby Rd., South Windsor; Rosina Comolli, 144 Ambassador Dr.; Charles Moore, 39 Broad St.; Karen Jerome, Enfield; Colleen Flynn, 12 Palmer Dr.; South Windsor; Gary Colley, 68A Spencer St.

Also, Jacqueline Cicco, 47 Elizabeth St., South Windsor; Douglas Sullivan, Eastfield; Victor Zabrow, Farmington; Carleen Peters, Westfield; Emanuel Meronite, 196 Broad St.; Joseph Conti, 155 Cipolla Dr.; East Hartford; Cynthia Dodson, 49 Horton Rd.; Robert Yaworski, 220 Green Dr.; Evelyn Glidden, 95 Charter Oak St.

Elderly can avoid home sale tax

By Ray De Lrame (Fifth of a series) If you are 65 or older and sold your home at a profit last year, there is a way to escape tax on all, or a part, of the profit.

If the adjusted sales price of the home (full selling price less a realtor's commission and other closing costs) was $20,000 or less, there is no tax on the gain, no matter how great it is.

Should the selling price be more than $20,000 (it generally is these days), the percentage of the gain that is free from tax is the percentage that $20,000 bears to your selling price.

To learn that percentage, divide $20,000 by your adjusted selling price. Let's assume you sold your home for an adjusted selling price of $40,000 and realized a $10,000 profit. How much of that $10,000 is taxable?

You divide $20,000 by $40,000 and get 50 per cent. So 50 per cent of the $10,000 is free of tax. The other $5,000 is taxable. Since it will be reported on Schedule D as a long-term capital gain only half of the gain, or $2,500 will eventually be taxed.

If you are married and the property is in both names, it is necessary that only one of you be 65 by the date of the sale.

This provision applies only to your personal residence, not a vacation home or income-producing property. The home must have been your principal residence for at least five out of the last eight years to qualify for this treatment.

Those were the rules for home sales on 1/76 that are now being reported on your tax return. New rules are effective this year. They will apply on sales you report a year from now.

The major change is lifting the $20,000 to $35,000. So, if the sale is for $35,000 or less, there is no tax on the gain.

For sales above $35,000 the percentage of the gain that is free of tax is the same percentage you get by dividing $35,000 by your

Directors approve Buckland pact

By GREG PEARSON

Herald Reporter

The Board of Directors gave its formal approval Friday to a water-and-septic guarantee, and a local attorney said that he is not opposed to the industrial park plans, although he is concerned about the effects of a zone change if the park does not develop.

The directors voted 8-0 (Director Phyllis Jackson was absent) in favor of the guarantee, which protects homes within 1,000 feet of the park in the event that private wells or septic systems are damaged.

The directors' vote was in response to a letter to the directors that said, "I cannot, from a strictly legal viewpoint, recommend to this board the passage of this resolution."

Moore explained that the Town of Manchester has the obligation of repairing the same (wells and septic) regardless of whether or not the construction of the industrial park was responsible for or caused said failures or defects.

He did say that the guarantee does have limits. According to the agreement, the town will not be liable for damages caused by the park.

Before the vote was taken, Town Counsel Victor I. Moses distributed a letter to the directors that said, "I cannot, from a strictly legal viewpoint, recommend to this board the passage of this resolution."

Carter begins work on inaugural talk

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Jimmy Carter summoned his chief speech writer to Plains today to start working with him on his inaugural address.

Carter and Pat Anderson, author of "The President's Mistress," are a dozen days to complete the speech before the President-elect is sworn in Thursday, Jan. 20.

Last Friday night, a spokesman announced that Carter would issue "a statement on international affairs" at his home today and then would answer questions from reporters.

There were no indications what prompted the news conference. Only hours before, Press Secretary Jody Powell had said this would be a quiet weekend with no news conferences scheduled.

Carter announced on Friday the broad outlines of his two-year economic package, which includes a tax rebate and a public works job expansion program as well as other tax breaks with a price tag of around $30 billion.

Still ahead is the completion of Carter's White House staff. There was speculation he might appoint Tim Kraft, one of his top coordinators in the campaign, to be his appointment secretary.

Greg Schneider, who had been in line for the job, bowed out when an FBI check turned up information relating to Schneider's two unsuccessful ventures as a Washington restaurant owner.

Congressional reaction favorable

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — A onetime income tax rebate, a special payment to Social Security recipients, a permanent tax cut for low and moderate income persons and programs to create 800,000 new jobs have been proposed by Jimmy Carter.

The president-elect's long-awaited program to stimulate a sluggish economy was announced Friday amid much confusion and with few specifics. There was no exact breakdown on how much of a rebate Americans can expect if Congress goes along with Carter's plan.

Carter gave only the barest of outlines. Even after his new chief economic adviser, Charles Schultz, explained the plan, many questions remained unanswered.

One fact became clear, however: Carter's two-year program of roughly $15 billion per year in tax and jobs programs will be aimed mainly at low income and lower middle income taxpayers.

Congressional leaders who met rolled back.

After hearing several hours of testimony Covello decided Northeast would be hurt more than its 850,000 customers if the existing rates were rolled back.

Covello's ruling, which puts on ice any hopes of a consumer refund, allows Northeast to charge existing rates until the state Supreme Court decides otherwise or until the Public Utilities Control Authority implements new rates.

On Dec. 1, the PUCA, lacking contempt of court charges, ordered the utility to roll back its rates to pre-May 1974 levels.

Later, the PUCA not only denied a with Carter appeared enthusiastic about the plan, but it looked likely that Congress would make a number of changes. Congress must originate any tax changes.

Here is a basic outline of the plan, as presented by Carter and his advisers:

• A onetime rebate of up to $11 billion, going both to taxpayers and to some groups who pay no tax, mainly Social Security recipients.

• Expansion of the job program from 300,000 jobs now to 500,000 late and possibly to 600,000 to 750,000 jobs in fiscal 1978. This would focus on "useful" jobs, such as conservation, national parks and urban clean-up.

Options on gains from sale of home

By Ray De Crane
(Sixth of a Series)

The home on the sale of a home by someone under 65 may or may not be immediately taxable. It depends on what you do with the proceeds.

But the loss on a home sale is never deductible on your federal income tax return.

If you purchase a replacement home whose cost is equal to or greater than the adjusted selling price of the home sold, the tax on the gain is deferred. It is not forgiven; it is delayed to a later day.

This, then, calls for a second step. The deferred gain is subtracted from the cost price of the replacement home, producing what is called an adjusted basis.

When the second home is sold for more than the adjusted basis there is a gain. Of course, you can continue stepping up to more expensive housing, pushing ahead further the eventual day of reckoning.

If you sell at a gain and do not buy another home, but, instead, move into rented quarters, the agony is over. Whatever your gain, over your total investment in the property, it is immediately taxable. If you owned the property for longer than six months, it is treated as a long-term capital gain and only half of it is taxable.

There is also the possibility you sold at a profit and then bought a replacement home whose cost was less than the adjusted selling price of

Registrars to consider legislation requiring voting machines for blind

A bill that would require voting machines for the blind will be discussed by the Executive Board of the Registrars of Voters Association of Connecticut.

The board will meet on Tuesday at the secretary of state's office to meet 45 new registrars elected in November.

A seminar will be conducted by Secretary of State Gloria Schaffer, and the registrars will discuss various matters, including the legislation requiring voting machines for the sight-impaired.

During the last election, Manchester had machines specially labeled for blind voters. It was believed that this was the first time in the state machines were equipped with braille labels.

The legislation to be discussed by the registrars would ask for such labeling on all state voting machines.

The executive board will also meet Tuesday night at The Colony in Talcoville, Manchester Republican Registrar Frederick Peck is in charge of arrangements.

Opinion

An important hearing

One of the most important public hearings in recent years will be held Monday, Jan. 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the Manchester High School cafeteria.

The Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) will conduct the hearing for a zone change needed for more than 200 acres of the proposed 350-acre Buckland industrial park.

It is a time for Manchester residents to be heard. Those who favor the park plans—and they appear to be in the vast majority—should make an appearance Monday to make their feelings known and express their support for a plan that could mean thousands of jobs and millions in revenues to the community.

It is also essential for those who have questions or doubts about the project to appear and make the necessary inquiries about the plans.

Since the first day that the park plans were made known, one of the most positive factors connected with the development of the project has been the give-and-take between town officials, residents in the area of the proposed park, and representatives of the J.C. Penney Co., the major tenant of the proposed park.

The members of the surrounding neighborhood have been tough, but generally fair, in seeking guarantees and information about the park plans.

Town and company officials have sought to be equally tough and equally fair in negotiations with the neighbors.

Each side has yielded some to the other's requests. There have been times of conflict and negotiation, but a resolution usually resulted.

A plan that will mean as many as 2,000 full-time jobs in a community (that is the estimate for the Penney center alone) should not be greeted with indifference at a public hearing.

People should come and speak their mind on the project. The give-and-take that has been prevalent thus far should continue through Monday's zoning hearing and beyond.

Consumer activism's most positive result

It's true that in recent years Americans have tended to look more and more to Washington or some other "authority" for the solutions to their social problems.

But it's also true that the old American tradition of mutual self-help is far from vanished from the scene. In fact, the number of groups organized around a particular problem or need has grown enormously in the past couple of decades.

According to one observer of the phenomenon, University of Michigan social work Prof. Thomas J. Powell, Americans have created "a vast, voluntary network of information sharing and mutual aid." He estimates there are hundreds of self-help groups with nationwide affiliation, and perhaps thousands of others that are oriented to local situations.

Granddaddy of them all is Alcoholics Anonymous, founded in 1935, with a current active membership of over 1.1 million.

Either offshoots of AA, or inspired by it, are Synanon and Narcotics Anonymous, aimed at persons coping with drug addiction, and Gamblers Anonymous, for people with a compulsive gambling habit.

Another and more recent "anonymous" is Parents Anonymous, a rapidly growing network of adults who have been guilty of child abuse and who, like alcohol or drug or gambling addicts, have joined together in the realization that they alone are responsible for their problem—and its solution.

In the health area alone there are any number of organizations, ranging from Recovery, Inc., which includes both discharged mental patients and any other person suffering from emotional problems, to Make Today Count, an organization of cancer victims. There are such specialized groups as Lost Cord Clubs, for people who have had their voice boxes removed by surgery, and Reach for Recovery, for pre- and postoperative patients with breast cancer.

Another category is represented by groups like Parents Without Partners and the Society of Compassionate Friends. Although the latter was organized by parents who have lost children through the Sudden Infant Death syndrome, it welcomes all bereaved individuals.

Still another category includes groups which focus more on public education and advocacy than on actual "help." Examples are various divorce reform groups.

Some groups are intended for short-term membership. Others, like Alcoholics Anonymous, can be lifelong commitments. The great value of all of them, besides rescuing people in trouble, is that they offer their "graduates" a way to repay the help and support they received.

As Powell points out, a person who has triumphed over a problem is in the best possible position to help others who are struggling with it.

In his view, the self-help movement is the most positive outcome of the consumer movement. It is people saying: "Other people have shared my misfortune. If they could pull through, I can pull through. I can take responsibility for my life. And I can help someone else with theirs."

Carter inner circle hasn't been opened

Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — For a man elected president on a "house-cleaning" platform, Jimmy Carter seems unusually vague on hard facts. Many of us had assumed during the campaign that Mr. Carter's vagueness was a political ploy—a stance adopted to insure he alienated as few voters as possible. We also saw his being on all sides of every issue as an attempt to please whatever audience he was addressing.

Today, I am not so sure. His statements about defense spending, welfare reform, new faces in influential government posts, economic policies, unemployment are as vague and contradictory as ever. They fly square in the face of what seems practical—even to those who are members of his Cabinet.

The suspicion is growing that, in spite of his reputation for meticulous planning, Mr. Carter may have a regrettable habit of shooting from the hip on policy issues. Trying to please? It may be that Mr. Carter, when confronted by an audience, so identifies for the moment with the group's feelings that he subconsciously shifts his thinking, and therefore his words, to match what it wants to hear.

If this is so, does it mean that the next president of the United States is overly influenced by the last person or the last group he talks to before making a decision? This possibility gives me pause: the intellectual quality of numbers of the Carter inner circle is not high, nor are the backgrounds of some key members of that White House circle impressive.

The question then is whose word will carry more weight—that of the Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, Charles Schultz, or that of longtime intimate and spokesman Jody Powell? Will the advice of Defense Secretary Harold Brown prevail, or that of campaign chairman Hamilton Jordan?

Cronyism has become a nasty word. Mr. Carter has said he will not tolerate it. We have grave witness to the serious effects of that practice in our knowledge today of what followed when President John Kennedy named his brother Robert as attorney general.

But there was cronyism in high places when Mr. Carter was governor of Georgia. At least one man used the governor's name and the governor's mansion for promoting schemes which are now charged as being highly questionable.

Intimate friends And today, an unusual number of the highest posts in the Carter Administration have been given to intimate friends of the president-elect. Though we have no reason to believe that any of these men are not of the highest character, the danger of cronyism is not limited, as we know, to dishonesty. An even greater danger is the creation of a closed inner circle, whereby the president is insulated from divergent views by individuals who think as he does and who, by past friendship, are in a position to influence him greatly.

In sum, today, close to two months after his election to the presidency, Mr. Carter is as much of an enigma as he was in the campaign. The inconsistencies in his statements and in his actions have not been cleared. The inner circle, which surrounds and defends him tightly, has not been opened to public view. Our worries have not been assuaged.

WASHINGTON — The ticker said 90 people had signed a petition denouncing the Communist regime in Vietnam for crimes against civil liberties. Ho-hum, I thought; the Goldwaters and the Reaganians and Full Buckleys are at it again.

But, stop! The world must be flat after all. For all 90 of the petitioners were leaders of the antiwar movement of the late 60s and early 70s—folks who demanded that the Americans and South Vietnamese stop fighting so the sainted Reds could bring peace, prosperity and the pursuit of happiness to the Vietnamese people.

Nice Ninety upset Now, however, the Nice Ninety have accused the Vietnamese dictatorship of "grievous and systematic violations of human rights," including the detention of an estimated 300,000 Vietnamese in so-called "re-education" camps, the suppression of cultural and political expression and the stifling of all non-violent dissent.

A 13-cent postage stamp for only 12 cents to the first one who guesses what that sounds like. Right! The way the Nice Ninety used to talk about Lyndon Johnson, Richard Nixon and assorted South Vietnamese leaders.

In the you're-another-league, the petitioners are an impressive lot: The Rev. Richard John Neuhaus, a founder of Clergy and Laymen Concerned About Vietnam; folk singer Joan Baez; Rev. Edward Koch, D.N.Y.; radical poet Allen Ginsberg; Kate and Geoff Pope of the War Resisters League—and so on, ad-adding-or-other.

Sent to Denh Ba Thi Anyway, the petition was mailed to Dihn Ba Thi, permanent Vietnamese observer to the United Nations. It said the signers were "deeply saddened to hear of the arrest and detention of a wide range of persons including religious, cultural and political figures who opposed the Diem government...the actions of your government constitute a great disappointment to all those who expected not the bloodbath so eagerly predicted by the American White House, but rather an example of reconciliation built on tolerance." Well, fine. Join the club, ladies and gentlemen. Of course the Communist atrocities were launched as soon as they took over, but as the man says, better late than never.

It takes time Besides, it takes some people time to admit they were wrong. Neuhaus explains: "I don't think any of us can be shocked by what followed the end of the war. I didn't expect it. We wanted to believe desperately—so desperately—the pledge and the promises of respect that would be shown by the Reds to human beings and human rights."

Where have you been all these years, Neuhaus? Dead? Even before they took over all of Vietnam, the Communists had shown their contempt for human life by their executions of Vietnamese officials, including some babies. And surely even a confused clergyman long before must have learned to suspect the promises and pledges of such Communist agents as the Soviet Union and Communist China. Could the petitioners really have expected different from the Vietnamese Reds? Still some diehards There are some diehards among the peacekins. John McAuliff, director of Indochina programs for the American Friends Service Committee, claims "There is insufficient evidence to reach any conclusion...to draw general patterns" of what's going on in Vietnam.

Very well. But why has the Communist regime so far refused to permit on-the-spot inspections of those "re-education" camps, or to release prisoners held purely for religious or political beliefs? Koch wants the U.S. to bring economic pressure—or any other pressure to bear on a new kind of repression over there. "Good luck, Koch, and watch your wallet."

Meanwhile, congratulations to Joan Baez & Co. You've learned that a dictatorship doesn't have to be fascist to be beastly.

Today's thought

I often wonder, as I am sure you do, if what we do every day is worthwhile and helpful to other people. Perhaps this Arab proverb will help you today. Peace and joy and fulfillment come when we sow our seed and sometimes we see the harvest flat even if we do not, other people do and they are grateful. It is our gift to life and God. The Rev. Paul C. Tringue, Church of the Assumption

Wings of evening

By CLIFF SIMPSON

There is an old hymn which counsels: "Take time to be holy. Speak off with the Lord."

This week I put away my 1976 calendar, the pages filled with engagements and dates. My new calendar for 1977 is before me, with only a few entries as yet. The days and weeks stretch ahead. How will the time pass? The Year of the Lord makes us more aware of the passing of time. "Resolutions" are in order. When you make yours, think of the words of the prophet Isaiah: "Lapsed Christianity?"

The activists in the church have been blowing the bugle for all kinds of social service. There are programs for relief, feeding the hungry, and clothing the naked. There are programs which set up ways of self-help around the world.

And these are good. They must continue. They have abounded in the past as a natural expression of gratitude arising from closeness to God. In serving our fellow men we serve Him. But there is more to religion than service, important as that is.

Evelyn Underhill, an English writer who wrote many profound books on the "Inner Life" points out the danger of imbalance: "I feel, more and more, the danger in which we stand of developing a lopsided Christianity, so concentrated on service, and on this-world obligations, as to forget the needs of constant willed and quiet contact with that other world, wherefrom the sanctions of service and the power in which to do it proceed."

We most of us these days lives conjugating three verbs — to Want, to Have, and to Do. Craving, clutching, and fussing, on the material, political, social, emotional, intellectual — and even on the religious — plane, we are kept in perpetual unquiet. Forgetting that none of these verbs has substance or significance, except so far as they are transcended by and included in, the fundamental verb, to Be; and that Being, not wanting, having, and doing is the essence of a spiritual life.

How can we hope to be the kind of persons we are meant to be? "Take time to be holy. Speak off with the Lord..."

Sunday morning Last Sunday I attended church in another community where I had never worshipped before. On the way there I listened to Dr. Reed, preaching under the auspices of the National Council of Churches over W.T.I.C. It was an excellent sermon, as I have listened to him often and I consider him one of the great living preachers.

Other officers installed are Louis Pardo, vice-president; Stanley Gray, financial secretary; Mrs. Renee Lucas, recording secretary.

Members of the board of directors are Helen Opalash, Stella Kiro, Ida Ferrance, Sophie Krowchenko, Michael Pliacharsky, Arthur Ott, Thomas Podkanski, Leo Molacko, Stephen Lucas. Trustees are Benjamin Gray and George Staf- fery. Cemetery directors are Alfred Custer and Thomas Podkanski.

Mrs. Peggy Gryzik is in charge of arrangements for the event.

One stolen motor vehicle was recovered, but another vehicle was stolen Friday, according to Manchester Police. Police arrested two men in connection with a dispute Friday night. Alan J. Directors approve Walter Fuss, consultant engineer for the park project, said the park development will not damage wells or septic in the area. The directors approved the "concept" of such an agreement last Tuesday, but residents in the area of the park had requested that the actual agreement be made before Monday's zoning hearing. Atty. Bruce Beck, who has said he represents a Tolland Tpk. resident, said Friday "At this point, we're not opposed to J.C. Penney and the industrial park, per se." He did, however, express concern about the change to industrial zone if the park plans fall through. About 240 acres of land would have to be rezoned to industrial for the park to be developed. Originally, the town had indicated that a zone change would be made on the condition that the park is developed. Atty. Jules Karp, who represents the town Economic Development Commission, has said that a zone change cannot be granted conditionally. "What happens if we rezoned all this land and the plan doesn't develop. I think that's a legitimate concern," Beck said.

About town

Town Manager Robert B. Weiss, and others involved in the development, have indicated that the property and zoning in the area is such that the entire parcel will eventually become industrially zoned, even if the park does not develop. In another development connected with the industrial park, the state Department of Transportation (DOT) and the Hartman Tobacco Co. have renewed a lease of 43 acres of land, most of which would be included in the proposed industrial park. The lease runs through March 31, 1978, but a DOT spokesman said that it will be canceled if necessary to accommodate the park. Don Leavitt, director of rights of way for DOT, said that his department will talk with all sides involved in the matter. "We will then determine what is in the best interest of all parties. The contract may have to be canceled," he said. Also, Mayor Matthew Moriarty and the Manchester Chamber of Commerce are urging people to attend the zoning hearing to be held at Manchester High School on Monday, Jan. 10 at 7:30 p.m. "When input from those who favor the park and from those who oppose it, if any, is presented, only then can the members of the Planning and Zoning Commission make their decision," Moriarty said. The Chamber, which like Moriarty has publicly supported the park, is urging its members to attend the hearing.

Vegetable harvest declines

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Consumers will get 5 per cent fewer fresh vegetables this winter because of the nation's three major winter-harvest states, according to the Agriculture Department. Officials said Friday surveys showed farmers in California, Florida and Texas expect to harvest 172,800 acres producing 32.5 million hundredweight of 13 major vegetables for fresh market from January through March. Both estimates are 5 per cent below year-ago levels. Experts blamed the decline largely on heavy rains which reduced Texas acreage during October, November and December.

Vernon asks for probe

Vernon Mayor Thomas Benoit, criticizing the way Public Works Employment Act funds were distributed recently, is urging Sen. Lowell Weicker and Abraham Ribicoff and Congressman Christopher Dodd to press for an investigation. The mayor said that a large segment of the Second Congressional District seemed to be virtually ignored "and yet it is this segment which has one of the highest unemployment rates and so desperately needs this type of financial assistance." "Certainly there must be something wrong with an evaluation procedure which allocates funds for projects in wealthy towns and rejects funds for towns with high unemployment," the mayor said. He strongly urged the senators and congressman to press for an investigation of the selection process used. "From all accounts the process seems to fly in the face of the purpose and intent of Congress when they passed the legislation. No wonder our citizens have a negative attitude about government when such a thing as this happens," Benoit said.

Bolton seeking candidates

Phoned throughout Bolton will be ringing incessantly during the next few weeks as both Republican and Democratic Town Committees soliciting candidates for caucuses for the May town election. The Republican caucus will be Jan. 25 at 8 p.m. at Herrick Memorial Park. It will be preceded by the regular Republican Town Committee meeting at 7:30 p.m. Anyone Republican interested in seeking an office through the election must file with the party chairman by Jan. 20. There is no limit to the number of persons who can seek the party's endorsement. Robert Morra, GOP town chairman, said it is now premature to list names the party is considering for endorsement, because Republicans are just beginning to seek names of interested persons. He did say that Selection Norman Preuss has expressed an interest in seeking reelection. The Democratic caucus will be Jan. 25 at 8 p.m. at the Community Hall. The Democratic nominating committee will present a slate of candidates at the town committee's Jan. 21 regular meeting. The slate in turn will be presented at the caucus. Nominations will be accepted from the floor. Anyone interested in seeking an office should contact the party chairman, Ivi Cannon. Mrs. Cannon said the Democratic Town Committee is now contacting persons to see what position, if any, they are interested in. All persons registered with a political party are eligible to vote at their respective party caucus. Anyone interested in seeking an elected position who does not get the party's endorsement at the caucus has the right to petition for a primary. Republicans seeking further information should contact Morra, 646-7447, or Joseph Gately, 646-6647. Democrats seeking more information should contact Mrs. Cannon, 646-8090.

Sarasin to speak in area

South Windsor Congressman Ronald A. Sarasin, now serving his third term as U.S. Representative for the Fifth District of Connecticut, will be the featured speaker at a special meeting of the South Windsor Republican Town Committee, Jan. 15. The meeting, combined with a potluck supper, will be held in the social rooms of the First Congregational Church on Main St. Mrs. Jean E. Geeseman, town committee chairman, said the event is planned as a "get-together" for all members of the town committee and others who worked for the party in the recent elections. "It's the opener," she said, "for what will be a very active year for all Republicans." Mrs. Judy Strout of Beelezeb Rd. has been named general chairman of the event and committee for telephone work, refreshments, entertainment and setup are being formed. Congressman Sarasin, a native of Beacon Falls and a Navy veteran of the Korean War, is a graduate of the University of Connecticut and the UConn Law School. He was twice elected to the state House of Representatives (1968 and 1970) and won his first term in the U.S. Congress in 1972.

Long week over for Super Bowlers

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The long week of questions and answers are over for Bud Grant and John Madden and all that remains is a short workout today and a trip to Pasadena tonight to await Sunday's Super Bowl XI confrontation.

Grant, the Minnesota Vikings' coach, and Madden, his counterpart with the Oakland Raiders, met the press for the last time Friday and both felt their clubs were ready for the little game Sunday, which is worth $15,000 to each member of the winning team.

"I can't see any great difference in preparation for this one and the others," said Grant, whose Vikings have lost all three previous Super Bowl appearances. "The players' spirits are good. Good Lord, when you win you have to have good spirits. But I can't say how good this club is compared to the others. We have to let the game decide if this is a better club than the last three."

Madden, in the Super Bowl for the first time as a head coach, also was pleased with his club's attitude 48 hours before kickoff Sunday.

"We're satisfied with the way the club is doing. There's going to be a lot of points scored. You're not going to see a 14-0 game."

"I've tried that in the past and found out I'm not very good at it," he explained. "I used to say a game will be offensive or a game will be defensive but I'm not into that any more. I think it will be a solid game. Both teams are solid in most areas."

Grant arrived by helicopter from the Vikings' Long Beach training site for his morning news conference and Madden was nearly two hours late for his afternoon news conference, to which he traveled by car.

"Our field was flooded this afternoon when we went out and we had to get some special equipment to pump it out," Madden explained. "Tickets in the Los Angeles area for the game were scarce, as over 100,000 fans were expected to jam the Rose Bowl for the game, which begins Sunday at 3:30 p.m. EST Sunday. The National Weather Service forecast late Friday called for partly cloudy weather today with high temperatures of 60 and fair weather for Sunday, with high again near 60."

Latest odds had the Raiders 4-1-2 point favorites.

"I think the people are going to see a lot of good football. There's going to be a lot of points scored. You're not going to see a 14-0 game."

Oakland rates nod
Tabbed "losers" in many corners, one will emerge a winner early Sunday night when Oakland's Raiders and Minnesota's Vikings clash in Super Bowl XI in Pasadena, Calif.

Oakland has been installed a four-point favorite by the bookmakers, and there is no reason to go against their choice.

Like the Raiders or not, after they cold-cooked the New England Patriots and then ran over a Franco Harris-Ricky Elbertless Pittsburgh Steelers, their record this season is the best in pro football and they deserve the Super Bowl spot.

Only one team scored more points in any game against coach John Madden's crew, New England, in the regular season meeting at Foxboro. Madden has to be one of the best coaches of all time. Year after year he leads his club to at least Western Division honors. He's a winner and he's a Super winner tomorrow night.

Both the Raiders and Vikings have to be the Super Bowl before. Green Bay turned back Oakland in game No. 2 in 1968.

Coach Bud Grant's Vikings were Super Bowl participants on three occasions, Nos. IV, VII and IX. Over the last 14 years the Raiders have the best record in the NFL.

Two premier quarterbacks will be on display. Ken Stabler in Oakland flannels and Fran Tarkenton in purple and white colors.

Sentimentally, I like Minnesota because of a friendship with Tarkenton when he was drawing his paychecks from the New York Giants and the fact I just like Bud Grant and his way of coaching.

Realistically, I'm in the corner of the Raiders. They didn't win 14 of 15 games with mirrors.

The guess here as to the final score, Oakland 24, Minnesota 21. Kickoff will be at 4 o'clock.

Rozelle stands fast on draft

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—In the face of a federal court decision in Chicago ruling the pro football draft illegal, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle is standing fast.

He thinks all of the NFL's problems can be settled amicably if the owners and the NFL Players Association sit down and hammer out a new contract. The players have been without a pact for three seasons.

Four months ago, U.S. District Court Judge William B. Bryant dealing with the case of Jim "Yazoo" Smith, ruled that the NFL draft was illegal. Los Angeles agent Michael Trope said last Sunday that he was offering Tony Dorsett, Ricky Bell and sundry other college football talent on the open market.

At his annual Super Bowl news conference Friday, Rozelle didn't flinch at the possibility of any of the league's 28 clubs breaking ranks and signing Dorsett, the Heisman Trophy winner, or Bell, the Heisman Trophy runner-up.

"I would disapprove any such contract," the commissioner stated. "Then the club would have to face action by the executive committee of the league. The constitution clearly states that a college senior cannot be signed to a contract until after the draft. Until that's amended, that contract will stand."

Rozelle sounded optimistic about the chances of the owners and their

Pate leads in Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—Jerry Pate is worried about his physical condition.

"I'm not as strong as a lot of guys out here," said the U.S. Open champion Friday, minutes after he had checked in with his second straight 67 on a two-stroke lead after two rounds of the $200,000 Phoenix Open.

Then Pate, who set a record for first year earnings in 1976 with $152,162, licked off the names of some of the U.S. Open winners — Jack Nicklaus, Hale Irwin, Lee Trevino, Johnny Miller and Tom Weiskopf.

Even Miller, who needed a sub-par closing nine in the second round to avoid the embarrassment of missing the cut in a tournament he won with a record 24-under-par score two years ago, seems preoccupied with weight and physical condition these days.

"I've gained 10 pounds since last fall," said Miller, who had a second-round 69 and trailed Pate by nine shots at 143. "You may not believe this, but I weigh 10 pounds more than Weiskopf now. I feel I need the added pounds because the game keeps getting more demanding."

Pate, who has a 36-hole score of eight-under 134, said he is working on strengthening his legs by running a half-mile daily as fast as he can.

Whatever it is Pate is doing, it seems to be working. While many in the Phoenix field have had trouble adjusting to a course wet from week of rain, Pate has played steadily, at least in the first two rounds. He has nine birdies and only one bogey thus far.

"I know I can play better," he said, "but it's early in the year and I'm not striking the ball as well as I should. But my irons and putting are all right and that's what has me up there."

Closest to Pate going into the third round, portions of which will be televised, are George Burns and Larry Nelson, who are at 136. Gibby Gilbert and Rick Massengale, who are at 138, and John Gentile, Dave Hill, Danny Edwards, George Cade and first round leader Vic Regalado, who are at 139.

PGA Champ Dave Stockton is at 141 along with defending second, Bob Gilder, Weiskopf, Miller Barber and Hubert Green.

Congratulations due
Hats off to hard-working and conscientious Dave Kelley, East Catholic High track coach, who has been tabbed by his cohorts in the CIAC membership as the 1976 Track Coach of the Year. Kelley's squads captured both the indoor and outdoor Class M titles. Another former baseball player who has turned to tennis as a way to stay in shape is Glen Metzger. Word is out that it is only a matter of months before the CCIL and CVC schools merge and form two divisions for all varsity sports. Have a nice weekend.

Nordiques hook Whalers

By EARL YOST
Sports Editor
Winning hockey has been played by the Quebec Nordiques this season. The standings prove that. The Nordiques lead the Eastern Division of the World Hockey Association by nine points over Indianapolis.

The flying Nordiques, featuring three of the top five-goal producers, buried the New England Whalers last night before an excellent turnout of 10,121 fans at the Hartford Civic Center, 7-3.

Tonight it won't be as easy for the winners who face the Russian Nationals. Only the Whalers have been able to pin a loss on the Soviets in seven games. Tonight winds up the USA tour.

On the other hand, the Whalers that whipped the Russians and the team that faced the Nordiques last night was far from the same.

Tonight, at 8:30, the Whalers will be back on Civic Center ice to entertain last place Phoenix of the Western Division.

Real Cloutier, the league's leading scorer, executed the 'hat trick' with three goals to up his total to 34 and 50 points for the season.

Despite this three-star showing, Cloutier didn't gain any of the top three spots as the game's top players.

That's how overpowering the Nordiques were. In fact, the visitors had the best eight or nine men on the ice including goalie Ed Humphreys, who was making his debut.

Until the game was wrapped up, Humphreys was superb, getting beat only on Larry Pleau's goal in the first period at 9:45 after Cloutier and Serge Bernier had tallied for Quebec at 44 seconds and 5:08.

It's apparent with each passing game that Christer Abrahamsson is not a WHA caliber goalie. He's had too many hot and cold performances. Last night, for the most part, he was cold.

Showing consistency, the Nordiques tallied twice in each of the first two periods and capped the night with three scores in the finale. The Whalers' Mike Rogers and Brett Callighen tallied for the Whalers, all last period scores coming in the final nine minutes, four in just over the final four minutes.

New England was out-hustled time and time again and the aggressiveness was gone after a penalty-filled first period which saw 11 players being whittled off. Gordie Roberts of the Whalers making three visits to the box. Marc Tardif collected four assists to move into sixth place on the scoring ladder. Pierre Roy and Bordeleau and Christian Bordeleau also tallied for the winners. The latter added three assists.

Humphreys, up from the North American League, turned aside 36 shots while Abrahamsson kicked out 28 of 35.

It's easy to understand why Quebec is in first place. Hustle, aggressiveness and ability are trademarks of the team, something the Whalers just don't have this season.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI)—Minnesota's Dan Gruen ended their seven-game losing streak in bone-jarring fashion, beating the Birmingham Bulls 7-1 Friday night.

Rich Leduc scored two goals the first resulting in a second-period brawl in which 44 penalty minutes were assessed.

UCLA, which has won 10 Pac-8 championships in a row, faces Oregon State at home tonight. The Beavers beat Southern California, 56-50, Friday.

UCLA led by seven with 3:49 left, 69-53, but did not score again, and mistakes contributed to the Bruins' defeat. Marques Johnson was called for goaltending with 2:28 to go. Brent Vroman missed a short jumper for the Bruins with 1:59 to go, and with 49 seconds remaining David Greenwood missed the first of a one-and-one free throw.

Oregon won when Greg Ballard hit two free throws with one second remaining after Vroman fouled him on a 15-foot jumper. Ballard finished with 22 points while Johnson led UCLA with 21.

NEW YORK (UPI)—UCLA Coach Gene Bartow says he doesn't know how the Bruins' loss to Oregon Friday night will affect his team, but says, "If we don't loosen up, there will be a lot of long nights."

Hula attracts scouts

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—Pro football scouts got their last chance today to see last season's top senior collegians in action before they either come up in the draft or go on the open market.

Many of the big names—including Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh and Ricky Bell of Southern Cal—were playing in the Hula Bowl in Hawaii. But a lot of the scouts were more interested in the Senior Bowl because the 62 performers were chosen for their pro potential.

About 200 pro scouts, including more than a dozen NFL head coaches, were in Mobile this week to watch the Senior Bowl practice. The Senior Bowlers practice in what amounted to a pro-type tryout camp.

"The possibility that there will be no draft, that this year's seniors will with the highest bidders, makes it imperative that each pro team has as much information on each prospect as possible."

MIAMI Dolphins' Coach Don Shula, who directed the South team in the Senior Bowl, said that he was here to see the Cleveland Browns and the North team. "I've got into a bidding war, we won't be able to afford mistakes."

The coaches who were here were unanimous in their hope that there will be a draft in some form. "No draft means anarchy," said Shula. "The rich teams will get richer and the NFL will really get out of balance."

The Senior Bowl, the debut for its 62 players (winners get $1,500 each, losers $1,250), had a few big names. The first two first-team All Americans—defensive end Mike Pulls of Nebraska and linebacker Keith Man of Penn State—and amend or make his own rules, replied "I think not. I don't think he can put his own rules in."

However, he added "I think that his job" when asked whether the commissioner could impose his own interpretation on rules.

"I don't think in the competition we are in that we are capable of interpreting those rules as they apply," Giles testified. "We need a commissioner to enforce them."

Earlier, Buzzy Bavasi, president of the San Diego Padres, testified the National League voted 11-1 to indemnify Kuhn. The actions meant any damages assessed against Kuhn would be paid by organized baseball.

Baltimore and Oakland of the American League and St. Louis of the National League voted against indemnification.

"We agreed with the action of the commissioner and we felt he should be indemnified," Kuffman testified.

"We felt all baseball should indemnify it," said Frank McGarr again defined the issues in the case as first, whether Kuhn had the authority to void the sale, and second whether his action was capricious and arbitrary.

"That is the legal issue," he said. "Ultimately I have to face up to that. Kuffman can tell whether he thinks Kuhn's action was arbitrary and capricious. The big difference whether something was or was not in the best interest of baseball is something I'm not going to decide, so I don't need too much help as to whether the action was in the best interest."

Kuhn, in voiding the sales which did not violate any major league rule, said his action was taken in the "best interests of baseball." Finley charged he exceeded his authority.

Kuffman and former National League President Warren Giles testified they believed the commissioner had broad power, but Giles, when asked whether the commissioner had unilateral power to void the sale, said he believed Kuhn had the authority to void the sale, and second whether his action was capricious and arbitrary.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow in my late 50s who has been keeping company with a bachelor my age for three years. My problem is I still haven't met any of his family members.

DEAR ABBY: I took your advice and acted like a liberated woman by calling up a guy and arranging a date with him.

DEAR ABBY: I work for the Bureau of Vital Statistics. Since quite a few people have had sex change operations recently, they have been requesting that their names be changed to agree with their sex change. We are having difficulty in writing to these people.

DEAR DILEMMA: Address him (her) by his (her) legal name.

Win at Bridge

Thinking could ruin bridge spades and led back the deuce of diamonds. Declarer went right up with dummy's ace, led the deuce of clubs, stuck in the jack and East was in with the king just as he had expected.

Now East cashed the ace of spades and West into one of those trances that tend to turn their partner's hair white. Finally, West discarded the diamond queen and that this play would lead to an extra set since West would get to ruff a diamond.

Greedy and particularly senseless greed is a terrible thing. East led the third spade. West ruffed and returned the king of diamonds. South won, led his 10 of clubs, let it ride and made his doubled contract.
