Management techniques taught by new book

Learning managerial and informational systems made easy for administrative managers in a newly published book co-authored by a University of Connecticut business management professor.

Designed for the administrative management society and made available to the general public, the book was written by Dr. Herbert F. Spitzer, who teaches in the UConn Masters of Business Administration Program here.

The student reports his problem-solving accomplishments to MGI for grading managers seeking Certified Administrative Manager (CAM) certification.

His wife, Louise Zeigler Spitzer, co-authored several earlier books — her specialty lying in informational systems.

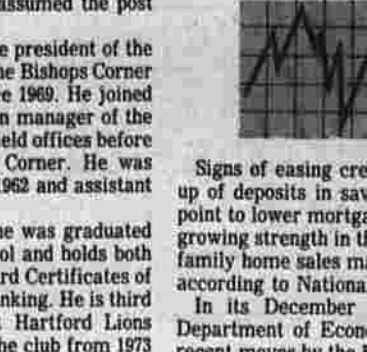

Dr. Spitzer received his bachelor's degree from Cornell University and his master's and Ph.D. degrees from New York University. He joined the UConn faculty in 1970.

Storm closes schools, creates driving hazards

A winter storm, which started as snow just before midnight, eventually changed to rain and caused poor driving conditions and the closing of local schools.

The snow started at 11:55 p.m. Sunday, according to George Ringstone of the Highway Department.

Manchester's public libraries closed today because of the weather, but the Recreation Department reported that recreation centers will be open this evening.

Oil tanker splits off of Cape Ann

BOSTON (UPI) — An American oil tanker with eight crewmen aboard was split in half today by pounding seas off the coast of Gloucester.

The Coast Guard reported 25 foot seas in the area; visibility of about 200 yards, and winds of about 35 knots.

The Coast Guard said the ship is owned by the Chester Poling Transportation Co., of New York City. Richard Griggs of the Boston Coast Guard station said two cutters were steaming toward the scene, about 400 miles north of where they are searching for crewmembers of the missing tanker Grand Zenith.

The accident happened at about 10:30 a.m., Griggs said.

The hearing will be held at Manchester High School's cafeteria to accommodate what is expected to be a large turnout of residents interested in speaking and hearing about the project.

The State of Connecticut has allocated $75,000 to park planning, and the Town of Manchester has matched that amount with $30,000 in cash and the rest in time spent on the project by town employees.

Buckland industrial park zoning hearing tonight

The lawyers were hired by the Manchester Economic Development Commission, which is the planning agency for the park, to prepare the zoning presentation.

The hearing will be held at Manchester High School's cafeteria to accommodate what is expected to be a large turnout of residents interested in speaking and hearing about the project.

The regulations were drawn up by Lamson and a subcommittee of the Economic Development Commission. These regulations will govern lighting, buffering and other items affecting tenants within the park.

Lawmakers seeking alternatives for state educational funds

HARTFORD (UPI) — Although the consensus in Connecticut has regained its fiscal footing, influential lawmakers are well aware that one judicial decision could upset it.

They are mindful of the state's system of funding public education primarily through local property taxes is being challenged before Connecticut's Supreme Court.

Sen. J. C. Penney Co. would be the major tenant in the park. The firm has announced plans to locate a two-million-square-foot catalog distribution center in the park. Penney's chunk of property would cover about 150 of the 350 acres.

Daoud, a high official of the Palestine Liberation Organization, was arrested Friday while visiting the French capital with a PLO delegation.

West Germany, which issued the warrant for Daoud's extradition, is also considering asking for his extradition. West German Justice Minister Hans Jochen Vogel said in a television appearance Sunday night that West Germany had 20 days to demand Daoud's extradition.

Construction official cites 'nitpicking'

WETHERSFIELD (UPI) — A top construction industry official is complaining that an environmental impact statement on a controversial Connecticut highway project will take longer to complete than it took the Allies to win World War I.

"This is the horror story of the bureaucracy and nitpicking that has led to a high unemployment rate in the state's construction industry," Donald J. Lynch, executive secretary of the Connecticut Construction Industries Association, Inc., said Saturday.

At issue is the proposed Interstate 291 which would connect two other interstates, I-84 and I-91.

"It took three years and nine months to win World War I, Pearl Harbor to V.J. Day," Lynch said. "It will take three years and 11 months to complete an environmental impact statement for I-291."

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward J. Reardon announces that St. James Parish will build a new church on its present property, below the present church and close to Main St.

Jay Giles, director of public works reported to the committee Thursday night on the status of the storm sewer improvements, for which $116,000 has been allocated from this year's community development grant.

If the work on the storm sewer project is started now, it would be completed by 1981, Giles said. One of the projects which could be started now with the available funds is the improvement of the dam in the undeveloped section of East Cemetery at the end of Birch St. This would enlarge the present pond into a larger retention area, which would lessen some of the problems in the downstream area, he said.

Giles also requested $75,000 from next year's grant for other storm sewer improvements in the downtown area. He estimated this would be the cost of improvements on the lower portion of the dry brook area starting at Charter Oak and working northward.

MACC news

The budget allowances for the aged, blind and disabled who are living in the community reflect the pass-through of federally made increases in Supplemental Security Income or Social Security payments. However, no cost of living adjustment on the state supplementary payment itself is made.

Further, even though the number of elderly in crisis who are not eligible for federal, state, town or private aid and who have no family resources for fall back on. It is because of the very limited amount we have to work with, to be used only as a "last resource" fund in situation of real human need.

Any Manchester resident who is ineligible or who has exhausted all his available avenues of aid may request help in situations threatening his well being or the well being of his family.

In 1976, we received well over 300 requests for help. Some were able to refer elsewhere, or helped find other sources of assistance. In 47 cases we provided outright grants or if there was a possibility for repayments small interest loans. Although we made every effort to help in the most serious situations, it was obviously impossible to provide adequate assistance to all those in financial trouble.

Why so much need in a town like Manchester? Many of those applying to the Human Needs Fund are dependent on pensions or state payments. The picture for 77 looks even bleaker than 76 as far as we can determine. Under the recommended budget for the state Department of Social Services, the allowances for the 35,000 children supported under the AFDC program remain at essentially April 1971 price levels — some 40 percent below the expected costs of living in 77-78.

For most families the allowance for food will be about 36-45 cents per person per meal and the allowance for heat will be $14-22 per month.

Credit on salary paid for help in the home

By Ray De Crane (Seven in a Series)

If you are a working babysitter who employs a husband or wife who work, or a husband or wife who must employ a practical nurse to look after a spouse who is physically or mentally incapable of self-care, you may have a special income tax credit.

Although called child care expenses in the tax law, the term is a misnomer, as can be seen from the example above.

While such expenses are generally paid for the care of children under the age of 15, they apply equally to fees paid to a housekeeper who takes care of the home for a wife, a husband, even an older dependent incapable of self-care.

The expenses create a tax credit only if their sole purpose was to permit the taxpayer to be gainfully employed. A nonworking wife who employs a babysitter, or a housekeeper, to look after young children while she goes to work or to a part-time job, has no claim on the credit.

But an unmarried and employed son or daughter who maintains a home that includes a disabled parent may claim the credit if the services of someone to look after the patient are required.

The credit can even be claimed by a married couple if one works full-time and the other is either a full-time student or a part-time worker.

Such expenses are a direct credit against the tax that otherwise would be due on the income, instead of a deduction, as it was in former years. This enables many taxpayers who do not ordinarily itemize their deductions, but take a percentage standard deduction, to receive a valuable tax savings.

The credit is 20 percent of the actual employment-related expenses, but not more than $2,000 a year for one qualifying individual, or a maximum of $4,000 a year if two or more qualifying individuals are being cared for.

In the case of a married year, she could claim $2,000 in expenses for one employed child (a 400 tax credit at the 20 percent rate) or the earnings of the spouse with the lower income. This $800 tax credit means that a wife earning more than $800 on a part-time job other than child care expenses of $2,000, for the hire of a cared for.

Opinion

Let's get in step

The Connecticut American Automobile Association chapter has 115,000 members and thus represents a substantial portion of the motoring public. It is also a part of one of the oldest auto clubs in the country and a long-time advocate of improved safety on our highways.
We think this prelude is important to keep in mind because the Connecticut AAA has endorsed the "Western" rule which permits a right turn on red unless a sign is posted PROHIBITING the move.
This is the law in 43 states. Only seven states, including Connecticut, according to AAA, permit such turns only when a posted sign authorizes.
There is one in Manchester at the light where New State Rd. and W. Middle Tpk. fork at the entrance of East Catholic High School. And from personal observation it seems to be working well at its job of maintaining safe and orderly traffic flow.
In coming out in favor of the "Western RTOR," AAA said where such turns are practical "traffic congestion is significantly reduced with no apparent increase in the incidence of traffic-related accidents." It also mentions gas-oline savings and air pollution reductions by decreasing idling

Those short stereotypes

You've heard of sexism, racism, ageism and other prejudicial "isms." To the list add "heightism," a term coined some time ago by sociologist Sam Feldman to describe discrimination against short people.
While it may never become a vogue word, "heightism" is nevertheless an unhappy fact of life for countless men and women, even in this supposedly enlightened age, says Robert Hall, president of a nationwide chain of personnel agencies.
He cites a study of University of Pittsburgh graduates which revealed that men 6'2" or taller received starting salaries 12 per cent higher than equally qualified men who stood 5'7" or less. Short women receiving similarly short shrift.
Short people are often stereotyped as being feisty, stubborn, cocky or overaggressive, says Hall, who cannot be accused of bias in favor of "shortism" since he is 5'10" himself.
"When short people reach the top of the corporate ladder, their well-deserved success is almost invariably attributed to a 'Napoleon complex," he notes. "Six-foot executives, on the other hand, are simply credited with drive, skill, ambition and intelligence."

He further notes that in every presidential election from 1900 to 1968, the taller of the two candidates always won. Not until 1968 was the pattern broken by Richard Nixon, who was half an inch shorter than George McGovern.
Unfortunately, certain other shortcomings about the winner were later revealed. Even so, Hall is encouraged to believe that the victory of 5'9 1/2" Jimmy Carter over 6'1" Gerald Ford may indicate a healthy change in the way we evaluate and choose our national leaders.
In any event, and in short, "heightism" doesn't make sense, he says. "Prejudice against shorter people, no matter how subtle, is both absurd and intolerable."

Will brother Billy be a humiliation?

Tom Tiede

PLAINS, Ga. — As we all know by now Billy Carter, the younger brother of the President-elect, is in enthusiastic agreement with H.L. Mencken's definition of prohibitionists: they are not the kind of people one would care to have a drink with.
The First Brother is a boomer. He is a man who believes that abstinence makes the heart grow fonder. Some years ago he engineered a repeal of this community's dry law, and then won for himself what is still the only commercial beer license in town. Now he says very proudly that he has "a red neck, white socks and Blue Label beer."
None of this is of much moment to America, but it seems of importance to the communications industry. Billy Carter is a number for hundreds of reporters grommied from his brother's near stifling of piety.
Everything Jimmy is isn't — and the media knows from experience that this paradox has possibilities.
Remember Sam Houston Johnson? He was the errand boy brother of LBJ. And he was always good for fill on a slow news day. Usually the fill was an embarrassment for the President, and so much the better.
Brother Sam was also a fellow who, in George Nathan's phrase, drank to make other people interesting. While Lyndon was winning the election in 1964 by the greatest landslide in history, Sam was drying out in the drunk ward of a South Carolina hospital. Besides this he gambled, womanized and reportedly passed at least one bad check.
Yes, Sam was fun copy. Particularly when he was accused by a congressman of using a White House credit card to take personal

Jimmy Carter is a political realist

Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON — I don't know what kind of a President Jimmy Carter will be, and neither does anybody else — including, probably, Jimmy Carter. "It all depends," said Harry Truman, "on Lady Luck."
Truman, of course, had those bits of done-to-a-crisis humility, and as one of his admirers I nevertheless learned that when his administration did something right he was never bashful about hogging most of the credit.
But Truman knew well that a President falls far short of being the absolute boss. Not being a director or the Shah of Iran, he is a hostage to events and to the various power bases in his own backyard. Congress helps decide how successful a President will be, and so does the Supreme Court. So do Big Business, Big Labor, the minorities, liberals and conservatives, lobbyists for foreign interests, and the Pentagon.
Defense cuts?
When Defense Secretary-designate Harold Brown said in effect that Carter was talking nonsense by promising a $5- to $7-billion cut in defense costs, Carter didn't jump down Brown's throat. He knows that a President who tries to get the Pentagon to economize must overcome assorted generals and admirals, Congressional hawks of both parties, defense contractors, and politicians in communities that live off war industries.
Welfare reform? Carter is for it, but another of his Cabinet appointees has warned us not to hang by either ear waiting for it. Joe Females were making their marks in Manchester athletics a good many years ago. One of the finest women's basketball teams was the PA Girls.

We remember them playing prelims before the State Polish League games in the old East Side Rec. We say "old" because we go back to the days when there was a running track about the basketball floor.
Johnny Falkowski coached both the male and female teams. He probably was one of the best coaches this town has ever had. John succumbed to illness last year.
Somehow, there should be a fitting tribute to Johnny in this town.
Teams in the league were from Hartford, Bristol, Thompsontown, Terryville, Rockville, Middletown, New Britain, Meriden, New Haven, Naugatuck and Waterbury.
Most of the listed girls were active in Manchester High School sports activities when they joined the team. As I recall the girls' games in school, only half a court was played by the forwards with guards and the center allowed a full court under the opponent's basket. However, in the State Polish Basketball League, boys' rules were played by the girls' team," said Irene.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 46. For the past 10 years I have been troubled with nausea, gas and spasm of the stomach. During this period it cost me plenty for specialists, tests and prescriptions. All tests proved negative. I have stopped coffee and cigarettes, but to no avail. I was going crazy for an answer. Every night while watching TV my wife would bring me a saucer of cheese. I love cheese of every commercial kind. An elderly relative told me to stop eating cheese. He claimed that it irritates the stomach lining. That was six months ago. Now I feel terrific. How about a run down on cheese and its effects? I would think there are thousands of readers who have the same problem with their stomachs.
DEAR READER — The

Cheese affects lactose intolerant

probability is that you have intolerance to lactose, milk sugar. Your letter prompts me to emphasize that it is not the milk products in cheese. Commercial cheeses contain large amounts of lactose. Individuals who cannot break down the double sugar cannot absorb it and it acts like a chemical irritant. It produces exactly the same kind of symptoms you have described. You can probably tell if this is true or not by your reaction to other milk products.
About two-thirds of the people who have lactose intolerance can't utilize even one glass of milk without having at least minor symptoms. The usual tests of the digestive system, including X-rays, will show nothing at all that the doctor can use to make a diagnosis. There are chemical tests which are done to identify people with this problem but their use is not yet that widespread.
The best method of determining whether or not a person has this problem is to eliminate all milk and milk products, including cheese, just as you have done. If the symptoms disappear the problem is usually lactose intolerance.
The dairy industry could use Lact-Aid to form low lactose milk and market cheese, yogurt and products from this milk. The practice of adding dry milk solids to thickened yogurt makes it high in lactose.
I'm sending you The Health Letter number 7-2, Milk Products: Good and Bad, to give you a more complete understanding of this problem. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a gown of ivory silk illusion trimmed with lace and pearls with skirt terminating into a cathedral-length train. She wore an ivory elbow-length veil and carried a colonial bouquet of ivory roses and yellow chrysanthemums.
Miss Diane E. Treadwell of Philadelphia, Pa. was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Judith Treadwell of Concord, N.H., the bride's cousin; Mrs. Susan C. Buell of Madison, Wis., the bridegroom's sister; and Miss Kristin W. Brown of Carlisle, Pa. Miss Valerie Vohoril of West Wellington, the bride's cousin, was flower girl.
Michael F. Brown of Carlisle, Pa. served as best man. Ushers were John Burt of Madison, Wis., the bridegroom's brother-in-law; Joseph Coladin of Matawan, N.J.; and Neil Hendershot of Allentown, Pa.
A reception was held at The Nutmegger House in Newington, after which the couple left for Virgin Gorda in the British Virgin Islands. The couple will reside in Carlisle, Pa.
Mrs. Covino is currently a second-year law student at Dickinson School of Law in Carlisle. She is employed part time by the Public Utility Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Today's thought "This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth, but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein; for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt have good success" (Joshua 1:8).

Dr. Henrietta Mears gives this helpful information: The Bible expounds the perfect will of God, the spiritual condition of man, the wonderful plan of salvation. Its law is perfect, its teaching binding, its records are true.

Coach John Madden's American Football Conference champions were not to be denied. The Raiders completely dominated their National Conference foes and left Red Duncan in an effort to get the ball after falling behind by two points with 2:17 left.

Ken Stabler, who led the way two weeks ago when the Raiders took on the challenge of the Pittsburgh Steelers to gain the right to play in the Super Bowl, was the man of the hour again.

Coming into the game, Duncan, used sparingly, had hit on just two of his five foul line tries.

Turnovers, and official's calls vital in Catholic loss to South

By LEN AUSTER Herald Sportswriter Some might say it was eight fourth-quarter turnovers which caused East Catholic's downfall Saturday night before a less than capacity crowd at the University of Hartford.

But Eagle coach Stan Ogradnik believes otherwise, characteristically pointing a finger at an official for a 48-45 loss to MCC basketball arch-rival South Catholic.

"Referee Steve Hrubala turned this game around," he took the momentum away from us. He took the game away from us. He took the game away from us.

Offense, defense in NBA

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two routs to victory, one emphasizing offense and the other defense, brought the same result Sunday to the Portland Trail Blazers and the Seattle SuperSonics, both of whom set team records.

Portland hit nine of its first 11 shots and never looked back in blasting the San Antonio Spurs, 120-113, and notching its 22nd victory in 23 home games this season. Portland's previous scoring record of 146 was established in 1970 and equaled earlier this season.

Seattle used another strategy, more familiar to its coach, Bill Russell, and set team defensive record in a 92-76 romp over the usually high-scoring New Orleans Jazz. The 76 points set earlier this season against Cleveland.

Seattle used another strategy, more familiar to its coach, Bill Russell, and set team defensive record in a 92-76 romp over the usually high-scoring New Orleans Jazz. The 76 points set earlier this season against Cleveland.

Fred Brown scored 26 points for Seattle while the Jazz' futility was demonstrated by the NBA's leading scorer, Pete Maravich, who could manage only 12 points on six of 20 shooting from the field.

Lakers 124, Pistons 118 Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 15 of his 28 points in the fourth quarter and Cazie Russell contributed a season-high 35 points to lead Los Angeles. The Lakers outscored Detroit, 124-112, in a five-minute stretch of the last quarter to lead a 108-100 deficit into a lead they never relinquished.

Four vet players keyed Raider win

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Nine years ago, the Green Bay Packers humiliated the Oakland Raiders, 33-14, in what was the Super Bowl I. Only four members of that team remain with the Raiders today and on Sunday, all four played key roles in bringing the Raiders their first Super Bowl title.

Fete Banaszak scored touchdowns in three of his four games. He was named the game's Most Valuable Player and Gene Upshaw outmuscled All-Pro defensive tackle Alan Page after the game.

"When we were ahead, I knew the game was over," said the 36-year-old Brown, who touchdown kicked the 32-14 victory. "I just can't describe how I feel... I feel like I won the Super Bowl."

Super Bowl remains elusive for Vikings

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — The Minnesota Vikings headed back to their frigid homeland today, shaking their heads and wondering whether they'll ever capture football's richest prize — the Super Bowl — which has eluded them four straight times.

The Vikings were unable to convert on third-down situations, he said. Jeff Siemon, the game's leading tackler with 15 and two assists, virtually put the Vikings on a one-man show for the Vikings on defense, but there was little other help as the Raiders continually wore Minnesota down.

"It's a damn long road to the Super Bowl," said Terkenton, in the Vikings' dressing room following the loss. "But it didn't work out that way... Right now, I can't imagine getting up tomorrow morning. I want to get away and not see a football for a long time."

"I agree to terms," Pittsburgh Pirates' infielder Mario Mendoza and outfielder Tony Armas have agreed to terms for the 1977 baseball season, team officials announced Sunday.
