Police report

A Manchester man and his brother hit several charges relating to an incident Saturday night about 9:30 at Main and Eldridge Sts.
Dale R. Verreaneult, 18, of 223 Center St., was charged with breach of peace, carrying a weapon in a motor vehicle, interfering with an officer and failure to display front registration plates. His brother, Robert Verreaneult, 16, of the same address, was charged with interfering with an officer.
The charges resulted from a struggle with police officers who had been called to the scene on report of a fight in front of the Cumberland Farms Store at 1063 Main St. Police reported that Dale Verreaneult had to be handcuffed after resisting arrest. The younger man was restrained from throwing a soda bottle, police said, but did not resist arrest.

The weapon found in their car was reported to be an awl with a six-inch point. Dale Verreaneult was later released under a $200 cash bond and Robert Verreaneult was released under a $50 cash bond, both for court appearance Jan. 31.
Other arrests over the weekend included Edward Saunders, 41, of Tolland, charged with two counts of issuing a bad check on a warrant. He was released under a non-surety bond for court appearance Feb. 1.

Other vandalism occurred at Giovanni's restaurant, 250 Hartford Rd. in which 11 windows were broken early Saturday.
Numerous windows were broken in two town properties Friday night or early Saturday. Several windows on the second floor of the West Side Recreation Center on Cedar St. were reported broken. Windows were also broken in the Center Spring Lodge in Center Spring Park, after a forced entry was gained into the building, police said. Nothing was reported missing.
Bantville's Gun Shop on Main St. reported a possible break on Saturday. A hit-and-run driver Saturday about 2:37 a.m. at the intersection of Center and Henderson Sts. Gary Martin, 21, of 16 Proctor Rd., suffered concussions and a head bruise after being struck by a car which he was unable to partially identify. Martin was struck from behind while crossing Henderson St. by the car traveling east on Center St. He was treated and discharged from Manchester Memorial Hospital.

Police reported several other minor accidents over the weekend, mostly resulting from icy road conditions. There were no serious injuries resulting.

A color television set was reported stolen from the display window of Marlow's department store on Main St. The theft reportedly occurred sometime between 9 a.m. Friday and 10 a.m. Saturday, police said.
Ten model car kits valued at a $30 were reported taken in a break at War and Pieces, 100 W. Middle Tpk. Friday night or Saturday morning. Wood covering a broken rear window had been removed to gain entry, police said.
Three large plate glass windows were reported broken at a laundromat at 500 Center St. sometime Thursday night. The largest window had been smashed by a beer bottle, police said, and the other two had apparently cracked after a vehicle had hit side supports.

Slight relief promised from eastern cold wave

Even with a fur coat, Spooner had the shivers.
The dog climbed under a blanket and huddled in a space between the shiverer's feet.
"It's people"—Debbie and Tammy Harding of Pittsburgh, Pa.—to await a warmer day.
Slight relief was promised today for victims of the record eastern cold wave but fuel shortages forced states of emergency and drastic heat cutbacks in many areas.
A state of extreme emergency was declared in Pennsylvania because of power and gas shortages. Gas shortages Monday also forced automakers to idle 300 workers in three states—Michigan, Ohio and New York.
In Cumberland, Md., the frost line dropped to more than a foot Monday, leaving at least 170 families without power. City officials feared the ground might freeze further and hit the sewer pipes, sending sewage backups into basements.
The mercury plunged to 2 degrees below zero in Washington, D.C., Monday, closing schools and forcing some power cutbacks. Record subzero temperatures forced school and factory closings in Virginia Monday and cold-induced mechanical breakdowns at generating plants forced Virginia Electric and Power Co. to shut off power on a rotating basis to 350,000 customers.
The temperature hit an all-time record 24 below zero Monday in Cincinnati and another record low today—16 below, shattering the date's previous record of 10 below set in 1930.
Temperatures in the teens and 20s in Louisiana led the New Orleans Public Service Inc. and the Louisiana Power and Light Co. to warn of possible service cutbacks. Some 300 persons in the small town of Blountville, La., were left without gas when a frozen pipeline being thawed by workmen burst into flames.
Michigan suffered through its worst power crisis in decades as bitter cold depleted gas and fuel supplies. Consumer Power Co., and Detroit Edison—Michigan's two largest utilities—cut service by 5 per cent to 2.8 million customers.

Buckland Industrial Park zone change is approved

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter
With little discussion and no opposition, the Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) Monday night voted in favor of a zone change needed for the industrial park.
The commission voted 5-0 to approve a change to Industrial Zone for 245 acres that is included in the planned park, which will be located in Buckland between Tolland Tpk. and Burnham St. The 245 acres is presently zoned either Rural Residential or Business. The remaining land to be included in the park is already zoned Industrial.
The commission approved a report that gave reasons for enacting the zone change. The reasons listed included:
• Residential zoning is "no longer appropriate" for the land in question.
• Industrial zoning is the "most appropriate" use of the land, and it is.
• The proposed park is "entirely within the concept of land development as set forth in the Comprehensive Plan of Development."
• The park will not cause traffic hazards, impairment of neighborhood property values, nor any other adverse impact on the environment.
Chairman Alfred Siefert called the PZC's vote "a very wise decision" and the commission's vote is the first of several stamps of approval needed before the industrial park can become a reality.
A special exception is needed for the first of several stamps of approval before the industrial park can become a reality.

Gov. Ella Grasso this morning urged highway officials to isolate the problems involved in building an East Hartford connector between I-84 and I-95 and to work out solutions for them.
In a press conference this morning the governor made it clear that she would like to expedite that link of the highway without respect to the other links involved in completing I-84 from the Bolton line to the eastern boundary of Connecticut.
Later this morning, Gov. Grasso met with James Shugart, transportation commissioner, and Donato Altabelli, division superintendent for the Federal Highway Administration to discuss the project and move forward with it.

Train hits bridge, at least 29 die
SIDNEY, Australia (UPI)—A crowded commuter train derailed into a 100-ton bridge today, collapsing the span in an area where police said that trapped hundreds of screaming passengers under tons of rubble and crushed two cars.
Rescue workers trying to reach the trapped survivors were hampered by gas leaking from a ruptured line.
As priests crawled through the wreckage to administer the last rites, a spokesman for the ambulance brigade said his crew could no longer handle the number of injured. "We have simply run out of units," he said.
The train—eight wooden cars and an engine—was on its daily 70-mile run from Mount Victoria to Sydney when it derailed shortly after 8 a.m. as it approached Granville, about 14 miles west of Sydney.
A spokesman for the Transport Department said there were about 600 persons aboard the train at the time and police estimated about 200 were trapped by the rubble.

Police and town reach accord without binding arbitration

After an all-day negotiating session Monday, the Town of Manchester and the Manchester Police Union reached agreement at 4 p.m. on a contract proposal for the town's policemen.
Town and union officials both said today that they were pleased the matter has been settled without third-party involvement, but neither provided details on the actual settlement reached.
The third-party comments referred to a three-person binding arbitration board, which had been selected to settle the police-union labor dispute.
The union, Manchester Police Union, Local 1495, and the town had been unable to settle the contract through the first three steps of negotiation. Thus, the arbitration panel had been assigned to the matter.
The panel was sitting in on Monday's session, but was never required to take formal action on settling the dispute.
"I think it's fair," Joe Hawthorne, contract negotiator for the union, said of the agreement. "We were happy we could settle. Right along, the union didn't want to go to a third party."
Charles McCarthy, assistant town manager, said, "The town was glad we didn't have to play Russian Roulette with an arbitrator."
He called the settlement "a good one," but said that he could not give out any details on the agreement.
"I'm just free to go into it," he said.
He did say that negotiations on Monday started from the fact-finder's report, which had recommended a five per cent raise in each year of a two-year pact. He did not say, however, how close the final agreement was to the fact-finder's recommendations.

'Blue law' issue aired at legislative hearing

HARTFORD (UPI)—Proponents of restrictions on Sunday sales wrapped their case in a "God, mother and country," credo, while opponents said shopping was their constitutional right.
The legislature's General Law Committee—all too aware the Manchester contract was a freer day to shop, called for regulations to return the Sabbath to a day of rest.
"The basic unit of society, the family, is facing the greatest threats in history. All of you who have families know how many distractions and diversions threaten family life," said William J. Whelan, executive director of the Connecticut Catholic Conference.
Walter M. O'Connor, secretary-treasurer of the Connecticut State Labor Council, cited the waste of energy and its harm to the national interest in Sunday commerce.
Frank Toranquindt, representing the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, invoked the flag in his testimony, telling lawmakers "Save Sunday and save America."
Not to be outdone, Jack Daahosh of the Two-Guys discount store chain speaking for the status quo, told the committee "shopping is probably America's number one pastime."

The Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) approved two routine items Monday night, but tabled a third requested variance that drew opposition from neighbors.

The second lot would be 100 to 120 feet from the nearest home.

Underground home conserves fuel

Living underground may not be for moles only. A few future-oriented and ecology-minded individuals are already living in innovative, attractive underground homes in New England and other areas.

John E. Barnard Jr. of Osterville, Mass is one of those persons who satisfied his curiosity since boyhood of the feasibility of underground living.

After experimenting with many designs, Barnard came up with a house designed around a central courtyard, or atrium, which allows sunlight to enter the house at varying angles throughout the year.

Barnard said that about 10,000 persons have toured his house in the past two years and many commented that they did not feel that they were underground or confined inside the house.

The advantages of being underground, according to Barnard, include less energy consumption and need for less heat, less cost to build and less maintenance.

The home in square foot cost about $27 per square foot, which Barnard said is considerably less than the going rate for custom-designed homes above-ground.

More houses underground would allow more green space above, Barnard noted. One house he designed in Vermont has an entire garden above it.

The houses are covered with 12 to 18 inches of soil. Extra insulation is also provided by a styrofoam shell surrounding the walls of the house.

One of the main considerations in building such a house is site. One of the most preferable positions is against a hill with a windows facing south, so as to catch the sun's rays at the maximum.

Some libraries have been built underground with no exposure which provides a better atmosphere for preservation of books.

Waters' relief on the building's east elevator.

A happy and moved Wilfred Waters received a standing ovation from the State Senate and Lt. Gov. Robert Killian (right) Monday after a resolution was adopted honoring him after retiring from 46 years as east elevator operator at the State Capitol.

First half tax collections decline from a year ago

The Town of Manchester has collected $85,155.87 in taxes through the first half of the 1976-1977 fiscal year.

James A. Turek, collector of revenue, said that the total is a considerable drop in dollars from the half-year mark of 1975-76, when $154,314.46 had been collected.

But the percentage of collected revenue is down only slightly from last year, he said.

The unpaid balance on Dec. 31, 1976, was $227,238.69.

Waterbury schools reopen

WATERBURY (UPI)—Mayor Edward Bergin fears a new, $1.6 million wage pact for teachers may mean another property tax increase for residents of his financially ailing city.

Striking teachers and the school board Monday night separately approved the 15-month pact.

Officials directed the city's 38 schools, closed since the strike began Jan. 7, to be opened for their 17,000 students today.

The Democratic mayor said the pact, which was approved by the Board of Aldermen, will result in another tax increase. "We aren't out of trouble by a long shot," he said.

School board members unanimously accepted the contract which their negotiators tentatively had agreed to the night before. More than 1,000 members of the Waterbury Teachers Association then gave near-unanimous approval during a vote.

The contract will give teachers a $300 to $700 raise during the next 18 months, or an overall salary increase of 7.5 per cent. The teachers' last contract expired about 14 months ago and teachers missed their scheduled increment last September.

Tuition credit

HARTFORD (UPI) — Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., is cosponsoring a proposal to grant a tax credit of up to $500 to families who are paying tuition costs of their children in college or vocational schools.

The measure, introduced Monday by Sen. William Roth, R-Del., also provides a tax credit subtracted directly from the amount of taxes owed, for educational expenses paid by an individual for himself, his spouse or his dependents.

The tax credit will apply for full-time students above the secondary level.

Senate honors Waters

Wilfred H. Waters, who lives at 41 Bissell St. and has retired after 46 years as operator of the State Capitol's east elevator, was honored in the State Senate Monday.

Waters was asked to be present for the event by State Sen. David Barry, (D-4th) at which he was presented with a resolution commending his services to the state.

Waters said that he has worked in the Capitol since 1931. He also has a small solar collector converter unit to use for added air circulation.

The resolution stated that Waters has "over the years acquired a vast knowledge of the Capitol and its inner workings and has generously shared that knowledge as a frequent tour guide and as an informal advisor to all with whom he came in contact."

Lt. Gov. Killian Monday recalled that 41 years ago, while he was a student in high school and employed part time in the State Capitol, he was Waters' relief on the building's east elevator.

"MALPRACTICE Suit against law-makers" not Doctors...

Suits are being brought against doctors for injury to health... why not malpractice suits against law-makers and public officials who bring injury to health by issuing high pollution of Manchester's environment, through their powers. I am referring to the gross and flagrant violations being created by our town officials in the recent zoning of Buckland Commons and Industrial Park.

How many people realize that within 5 years we in Manchester will have:

- 1 - An additional 30,000 trucks and cars every day.
- 2 - Gross and flagrant violations of our National Air Standards and the Clean Air Act of 1970.
- 3 - Tremendous increases of Hydrocarbons, Carbon Monoxide, Nitrous Oxide, Ozone, Photochemicals, Sulfur Dioxide, Sulfuric Acid and Smog.
- 4 - Emphysema, Bronchitis, Heart Conditions, Circulatory Problems, Allergies, Sinus Headaches, and being alerted to lock our doors and windows, turn on the air-conditioner and to stay indoors.
- 5 - A higher incidence of nasal, throat, lung, esophageal and stomach cancer, as reported by the National Cancer Institute for people who live in urban areas.

For what may be political and economical expediency we will pay for in ill health. Manchester people, men, women and children will notice the sad price of higher stress, breathing, and circulatory problems. Some people of Manchester couldn't care less but there are many of us who feel that poor health is too great a price to pay for UNCONTROLABLE economic growth!

I commend Dr. Alice J. Turek, Town Health Director, for warning the people of Manchester of the additional health problems that will occur with the increased auto and truck traffic created by the town's additional Industrial Park and Buckland Commons shopping mall.

Manchester area is right now in violation of the Federal National air standards without the additional 30,000 cars per day.

Don't expect the State Government or Federal Government to come to your aid. WHY??? Because the State Government is pushing this project and the Federal Government may be too busy prosecuting other cities and states.

Certain interested individuals in town have asked me to start an Environmental Protective Council. If you are sincerely interested in preserving the health quality of our air in Manchester and are willing to fight for it please write me of your intentions.

Remember, no reduction of taxes guaranteed!!

Don't wait until your family member or friend contracts cancer, heart trouble or breathing problems with lack of stamina and good mental health, and say, "What could I have done to prevent this terrible condition?" DO SOMETHING NOW!!!

Many doctors in town agree with me when I state that increased automobile pollution will increase the incidence of Cancer, Cardiovascular problems (morbidity) and increase the number of deaths (mortality).

IT'S A CRIME! Store energy costs have risen so rapidly in the past few years that the fuel bills now often exceed the rent. In order to meet energy expenses, you the consumer will be paying the bills, in the form of ever-increasing prices on food and other commodities. This is the only way that large business can justify their expenditures.

In a "FUEL SHORT WORLD" a major emphasis is being put on conservation. Recently in Kansas City, schools were closed and homeowners were told to turn their thermostats to 50 degrees, in order to save on the dwindling supply of natural gas.

How do we now justify the opening of large retail establishments 7 days a week, often 24 hours a day? We will use more gasoline to reach our destination and more electricity and oil to operate these businesses. Higher costs that occur are bad enough, but the waste of energy is a crime. It's time to wave the banner of common sense and put a stop to what should have never started.

Opinion

One problem that will never go away

The exploitation of oil and gas deposits off this country's northern Atlantic Coast has long been stalled by fears of possible environmental damage.

The massive oil spill caused by the wreck of the Argo Merchant off Nantucket, which threatened New England coasts and fisheries, another spill in the Delaware River and, before that, the explosion of a tanker in Los Angeles Harbor, have certainly done nothing to calm the fears.

Paradoxically, however, these tanker accidents have provided one of the best arguments in favor of going ahead with offshore oil and gas development, asserts George H. Lawrence, president of the American Gas Association.

He cites a recent congressional study which found that most oil pollution in the ocean comes from land-based sewage runoff and from tankers bringing in imported oil, not from offshore drilling and production.

Another point frequently overlooked, he says, is that much of the proposed drilling on the Atlantic continental shelf will, it is anticipated, produce natural gas, which does not pollute water, air or land. To the extent that this clean-burning fuel is found, it will help to alleviate both air pollution in urban, high-density areas and dependence on foreign oil brought by tanker.

On the other hand, there have been some pretty spectacular pollution incidents caused by offshore drilling. The 1967 Santa Barbara blowout leaps to mind, as well as at least a couple other serious spills or platform explosions in the Gulf of Mexico in recent years.

To the extent that we drill more and more offshore wells, the chances of pollution accidents must inevitably increase, even if — on balance — the danger is less than that from tankers.

One fact that won't go away is that the country needs new sources of oil and gas, and nowhere are they more badly needed than in the Northeast.

According to another study, this one by the Brookhaven National Laboratory, the Northeast's already heavy dependence on foreign petroleum will double by the end of the century if Atlantic offshore reserves are not developed.

We are, almost literally, caught between the devil and the deep blue sea.

The road ahead... our next hundred years

By Richard Hollander
Our nation's Bicentennial year, which mounted to crescendo in a night outpouring of patriotic fervor on July 4, is now history.

The celebrations are over and the future is upon us, to cope with in a world whose hallmark is frighteningly swift change from the ways of the past.

America's first 200 years were in all respects a modern miracle. From a group of underpopulated colonies, scattered along the Atlantic seaboard, a minor element in the world as it was then, Americans conquered a vast wilderness enormously blessed with the bounties of nature.

They and the succeeding generations welcomed to these shores from the Old World, populated the new lands, wrested untold wealth from the soil and became the riches of nations.

Future will demand more
What Americans achieved in the first 200 years came from enormous toil and dedication. The future may well demand even more.

Opinion

No longer are we safely snug behind our ocean barricades. Our material wealth is vulnerable as never before. We know now that our national resources are not boundless, and that we are woefully lacking in certain essential elements.

We know now that our nations, recently emerged, has resources which, if withheld from us, could alter drastically our accustomed ways of life, perhaps even imperil our national existence.

We know now from bitter experience that, in spite of our power and prestige and unselfish good offices, we cannot police the world. We have learned that it isn't axiomatic that we win every war.

And we have seen the rise of other nations whose potential for power is as great as our own.

Can we meet the challenges? Can we keep pace with this swiftly changing world? Can we learn to accept the fact that the answers to the problems we face aren't to be found in the back of the book and that we must solve them ourselves, the hard way?

We must face future
These are sobering thoughts at the start of the new year and a new century in our history. But we must face them, willingly.

President-elect Carter's 'people' inaugural

WASHINGTON — "Although politics, and sometimes pettiness, has prevented the institution from becoming what it otherwise might, an inaugural still... represents a chance for at least a small portion of the electorate to glimpse in the flesh the men they have chosen to make fateful decisions on which their lives and fortunes depend."

I wrote that four years ago in an article appearing in the Wall Street Journal. Today, as the capital gets decked out for the Carter-Mondale inaugural, it is pleasant to report that pettiness is down and people are up for 1977's big bash.

Seals the transfer
An inaugural, as required by Article II, Section 1 of the Constitution, seals the transfer of power in the world's greatest democracy. All that is required is that a President and Vice President repeat the 35-word oath of office.

By custom dating to 1789, however, the year George Washington borrowed $3,000 to pay his travel expenses from Virginia to New York for the nation's first inaugural, the occasion has also been one of festivity. While the transfer itself has always been peaceful, the feuding between the incoming and outgoing administrations has sometimes been intense.

Washington — "Although politics, and sometimes pettiness, has prevented the institution from becoming what it otherwise might, an inaugural still... represents a chance for at least a small portion of the electorate to glimpse in the flesh the men they have chosen to make fateful decisions on which their lives and fortunes depend."

Although the power and perquisites of the presidency again are changing hands on Thursday as one political party to another, the switch this year is noticeably free of rancor. Both the Ford and Carter camps have gone out of their way to promote civility between them and harmony in the nation at large.

Even Richard Nixon has been invited to the inaugural, in line with official protocol — leading the conservative National Review to wryly suggest that "if Nixon accepts, our sources tell me, he will be asked to wear formal dress, dark glasses, and a red wig."

Carter has proclaimed the 1977 extravaganza a "people's inaugural." That immediately conjured up Andrew Jackson's populist celebration in 1829 when 20,000 of his rough-hewn followers stalked through the White House with muddy boots, raining fur

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: My heart aches, not for me, but for my 11-year-old daughter. Here's what happened: She came home from school with tears in her eyes, saying that a classmate had gone up and down the aisles passing out invitations to the birthday party she was having at home next week. Abby, there were 34 kids in the class. Twenty-nine were invited and five were not. (My daughter was not.)

DEAR ABBY: Don't you think there would be fewer divorcees if there was something else to watch on TV besides sports on weekend? My husband and I have been married seven years. We have two small children, so I'm pretty much tied down during the week. On weekends I'm glad to be on the TV while I serve him beer.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 73-year-old man who lost his wife seven months ago. We had 44 good years together, and I cried my heart out when they put her in the ground. My next-door neighbor, who has been a widow for three years, has been wonderful to me. We have been seeing each other for about a month, but on the q. because we don't want tongues wagging.

Town drafts reasons for appeal in Buckland fire dispute

By GREG PEARSON Herald Reporter The Town of Manchester has questioned a series of conclusions reached by Superior Court Judge Edward Hamill in his Sept. 30 decision that granted the Eight Utilities District the right to provide fire protection for the Buckland section.

The questions were mentioned in the town's draft of findings, which was filed Monday in connection with the town's appeal of the Superior Court decision.

The draft of findings, written by Town Counsel Victor I. Moses and his assistant, Atty. Thomas Prior, explains the town's reasons for appealing the case to the state Supreme Court.

The town's draft of findings asks, "Did the court err in reaching the conclusions as stated in the draft finding?"

Among the conclusions questioned by the town are: • The decision that Buckland residents, under Special Act 200, have the "purely voluntary right" to apply to the Eighth District for fire service.

The town claimed that Buckland residents do not have the right "to unilaterally petition for inclusion in another fire district."

The district is also required to compensate the town for the "financial loss it will suffer" if the district is granted fire jurisdiction rights over Buckland, the town said.

The town, in the draft of findings, also questions the inclusion of the petition from Buckland residents as evidence in the Superior Court case.

Moses had objected to the petition being submitted as evidence by the district's attorney, John LaBelle.

Moses' objection was overruled. In response to the town's draft of findings, LaBelle, representing the district, will now file a counter-filing.

"I will try to get my counter-filing out right away," he said last week.

8th District sets up meeting with Penney agent

By SUSAN VAUGHN Herald Reporter The Eighth District Board of Directors voted Monday night to invite a representative of J.C. Penney and town officials to a special district meeting Jan. 31 at 8 p.m. at the Whiton Memorial Library.

Director Larry Noe suggested the meeting for the purpose of public information and input regarding the industrial park in Buckland and the J.C. Penney distribution center which plans to locate in the park.

Zoning for the park was approved by the Town Planning and Zoning Commission Monday night.

Special invitations to the meeting, which will be open to all Eighth District residents, will be sent to Ralph Henderson, vice-president and director of catalog operations for Penney's. Town Manager Robert Wates and Public Works Director Jay Giles.

Buckland is the area which was included in Eighth District expansion of its boundaries last year. The expansion was ruled allowable by Superior Court Judge Edward Hamill in October; however, the Town of Manchester appealed the decision to the state Supreme Court.

If the appeal is rejected, the Eighth District will serve as the sewer and fire authority for the industrial park area.

J.C. Penney officials were not aware that the district would be the authority until about a month ago, according to Noe, when he talked to an official.

There has been no contact between Penney's officials and Eighth District officials up to this point other than Noe's brief contact, according to directors Torgler, Calvin Taggart, Eighth District superintendent of public works, questioned whether the meeting between the two groups should be until the court appeal is concluded, but board members expressed interest in going ahead with the meeting.

District Fire Chief Granville Lingard urged the meeting take place now in order to do some preliminary action if the area should be under district authority.

Lingard and Taggart will also be present at the Jan. 31 meeting.

Winter sports report Skating will be permitted today from 3 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Charter Oak Park, Center Springs Pond areas, and Union Pond areas.

Mayor seeks okay for transit study

Mayor Richard Blackstone will ask the Town Council tonight at its meeting at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall to approve the town's entering into a preliminary agreement for a multi-modal transportation system analysis.

The analysis should dovetail with the town's current updating of the comprehensive plan of development being done by the Department of Development, he said.

It will be done by the federal Urban Systems program.

The aim of the program is to attain a safe, efficient urban transportation system. Factors studied include: Present and future capacities of all major town roads, pedestrian needs, traffic control systems, and turning movements at major corners.

Also, existing public transit routes, future routes and their customer use, the need for bus shelters, the need for railroads and the need for railroad stations.

In other business, the council will discuss tax refunds, the carnival of Our Lady of Peace Church, and the filling of a council seat by Harry A. Egazarian, Democrat.

Dead girl's name still isn't known

EAST HARTFORD (UPI) - State police have had no luck in identifying a young woman hitchhiker killed in a traffic accident Christmas Eve.

Detective Stephen Fabian said it's the first time in his memory that an identification could not be made.

Usually, he said Monday, "we find out through the fingerprints, but the FBI said her prints are not on file."

A snapshot found in one of her pockets shows a man with his arms around two girls. On the back are the names Karen, Armando and Gail.

The woman started out in front of a car driven by William Moir Jr., 36, of Hartford as he was driving east on the Charter Oak Bridge toll station in East Hartford.

She was wearing new purchased wedge shoes, blue jeans, a blue sweater and an imitation gray jacket. A belt on her jeans was blue, decorated with gold stars and bore the name "Norma" in large letters.

The mutilated body of the woman, thought to be in her 20s, remains in storage at the University of Connecticut Health Center in Farmington.

Fabian said state police have a picture of the woman, but it is too grainy to be made public.

He was not charged because police found a witness who confirmed the woman just ran into the car's path.

She carried no identification, no purse, luggage or extra clothing. She was wearing new purchased wedge shoes, blue jeans, a blue sweater and an imitation gray jacket. A belt on her jeans was blue, decorated with gold stars and bore the name "Norma" in large letters.

Outstanding player

Ted Grabowski, a captain on the state champion football team at East Hartford High School, receives an award from Board of Education Chairman Lawrence DePonte Monday night at a board-sponsored banquet at the Marco Polo Restaurant on Burnside Ave. Grabowski was one of the less publicized heroes of the team because of his line position, but he played "outstanding" ball all season, said head coach James Dakin. East Hartford gridders feted

By SHEILA TULLER East Hartford High School's 1976 football team was the toast of the town Monday night.

Town officials, teachers, families, and friends filled the Marco Polo banquet room to honor the state champions at the Board of Education sponsored banquet.

The accolades were many. "You brought honor to your town," said Mayor Richard H. Blackstone.

"You're champions, and you'll always be champions," Dr. Eugene Diggs told the team.

"You're not the first East Hartford High team to win a state title, I'll tell you that," said John Kershaw as he presented the Hutt Memorial Trophy.

"You're the first football team to win a title and the best football team the school ever had."

Each player received a letter from the board, a letter from the coach, and a letter from the principal.

The board purchased the jackets in recognition of the team's championship win.

With the jackets, each player received a memento of the season.

The board also presented Coach James Dakin Callahan added to his presentation speech, "I want you to know this is the first time this title has ever been awarded."

Callahan said the team had also been commended for their sportsmanship at the title game by CIAC officials.

They said in a letter, "If an award was given for fine sportsmanship, the East Hartford team would have won that, too."

The team coaches, Dakin and Alan Lasser, and captains, John Christ, Mark Finas, Ted Grabowski and Jim Petricello, awarded varsity letters and CIAC patches to all players.

They also presented the team with goals in the beginning of the season.

They wanted to win everything, including a state title. At this time, the state tournament was even scheduled.

We succeeded, we were undefeated, won the CCIL, the town championship, and the Class L championship.

Dakin said, "We went into the arena and came out the victor. These kids are still modest but I'm not going to be modest tonight."

Dakin received a standing ovation as he tried on his blue and white jacket.

Captain John Christ, speaking for the players, proud Dakin's remarks right. "For tonight's banquet, and for your support all season, we want to thank the board, our coaches, and all the fans."

In closing, DePonte said, "Let's make this an annual affair!"

Det. Sgt. William M. DeBastiani of the East Hartford Police Department has helped run the city's detective division there for the past six years.

East Hartford police report

Police arrested two 16-year-old boys today at 3 a.m. in the basement of a Burnside Ave. apartment building.

Anthony S. DeBonne and Mark A. Kirk, both of 55 Williams St., East Hartford, are both charged with fourth-degree larceny (four counts) and criminal trespassing (five counts). The charges stem from breaks into three storage bins at 541 Burnside Ave. and two at 539 Burnside Ave., police said.

Police released them on their promise to appear in Common Pleas Court 12 in East Hartford Feb. 7.

George A. Richardson, 50, of 560 Burnside Ave., was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol or drugs in connection with a one-car accident on Hillside St. Monday at 6:30 p.m. Richardson was driving north on Hillside St. when he veered off to the right and into a snow bank, police said. Court is Feb. 8 here.

Placement of three marijuana cigarettes and two pipes for smoking in Hebron's Bicentennial time capsule have caused controversy in the town, but the Hebron Bicentennial Commission chairman is defending all the items in the capsule.

The contraband materials were among 143 items buried in the capsule Saturday.

Chairman John Sibon said the Bicentennial Commission buried more than 140 items in its time capsule.

"To us, they are all equally important as they reflect a cross-section of today's society and culture," Sibon said. "To highlight any one item is to take the intent of the project out of all perspective and proportion."

Despite blustery winds and freezing temperatures, many townspeople attended the Saturday ceremony in front of the Town Office Building on Rt. 85.

The red, white and blue time capsule, a memento for generations to come, will be opened in the Bicentennial year of 2075.

The controversial items, the time capsule contained a book on good manners in German, a 1976 living expense log, a Cub Scout master's uniform, a bathing suit, a 12-inch ruler, a Green Stamp catalog, samples of dried dog food, convenience foods, a toothbrush and toothpaste.

The commission also buried a $100 check made out to Hebron's Bicentennial Commission.

Residents voted at Friday night's award ceremonies to have selectmen appoint a commission, which would meet once a year until the 300th birthday of the nation.

The council also voted unanimously to accept the contract, which was negotiated between the town and the Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO.

The council also approved, by a 6-2 vote, to send Town Controller Ted Ellis to the National Municipal Finance Officers Conference in Atlanta, Ga., April 17 to 21.

The five-day conference is a series of seminars dealing with current concerns in public financial management.

Councilman Edward Havens and John Minko voted against the $500 appropriation because the money was not budgeted last spring, but the council was told that money was available in the town manager's account.

Talbot told the council he has attended several meetings regarding the proposed health district under study in the area for several years.

"The time has come," said Talbot, "when we have to decide yes or no." Talbot will submit statistical information and budget estimates to the council at the next work session.

In other business, the council made the following commission appointments: • Larry Fab, appointed member of the Mass Transit Commission to fill an unexpired term ending in December 1977.

• John Bednarz, appointed member of the Park and Recreation Commission to fill an unexpired term ending in December 1977.

• Martin Pandolfi, appointed alternate to the Historic District Commission for a five-year term ending in November 1981.

Benoit says Vernon needs a full timer

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

Making the Vernon mayor full-time and increasing administrative staff are two areas Mayor Thomas Benoit would like the new Charter Revision Commission to consider.

At the commission's second meeting Monday night, the mayor told members of the growing demand on local governments by federal and state governments.

He said the competition for federal and state funding is stiffer than it was 10 years ago.

The town government now is supposed to be a weak mayor-council form, by virtue of the small salary paid the mayor.

"A growing population demands more public services and more attention from the mayor's office," he said.

Seymour Lavitt, commission chairman, said the existing charter is silent about how much time the mayor is to spend on his duties and it says the council sets the compensation.

He said he feels the charter doesn't have to be changed and the council just has to increase the salary to create the full-time position.

Benoit said there are more full commissions than there were 10 years ago, and also more subcommittees, all of which the mayor is expected to attend from time to time.

He said the administrative staff hasn't kept up with the increased growth and demands of the township.

One of the additional staff he advocates is the position of a central coordinator for public safety. He said this person would not only receive calls for service but would follow up later to make sure that adequate service was provided.

Benoit also called for a thorough review of planning and zoning functions to see if there is any overlap of responsibilities.

Lavitt asked Benoit if there were to be a full-time mayor if there would also be the position of director of administration and other full-time staff positions.

Benoit said "yes" and added that even more staff would be needed, especially a purchasing agent.

Commission member Stanley Slicer agreed to the suggestion of a full-time mayor "to have a finger on the pulse of all departments."

Leonard Jacobs asked Benoit why he didn't say anything about a town manager instead of a full-time mayor. Benoit said he had talked with people from towns with a town manager and many are not satisfied with that type of government.

Commission member Stanley Sadlak asked if the town could afford a full-time mayor and asked Benoit if he would be willing to give up his restaurant business to take the job.

Benoit said he didn't advocate the full-time position because he is looking for employment.

Marilyn Enly, who attends the council meetings as a representative of the League of Women Voters, was asked to offer suggestions for charter changes.

Among her suggestions were: Reduce the Town Council from 12 to 7 or 9 members; extend the mayor's term to four years (it's now two); limit terms of commission members to two consecutive terms; limit to one the number of commissions or boards a person may serve on at one time; eliminate the annual town meeting; assess the need for a full-time finance officer to serve as assistant to the director of administration; consolidate the Vernon and Rockville Fire Departments; appoint a board to monitor the town's Affirmative Action Plan, and reconsider sewer assessment procedures.

In setting up procedures for future commission meetings, Lavitt said one of the objectives should be to shorten the charter where possible.

John Daigle suggested dividing up the charter into seven divisions and the commission agreed. The next meeting, on Monday, will discuss Chapters 10 and 11, which take in the position of mayor and the administrative departments and officers responsible to the mayor.

Still a thrill Appearances in all-star hockey games are old hat for Gordie Howe but the all-time great, probably the game's greatest figure, admitted last night that he still gets a big thrill out of playing.

Tonight, the 49-year-old Howe will be in the West Division lineup against the East in the fifth annual World Hockey Association exhibition at the Hartford Civic Center.

Last night at the banquet, which attracted 1,000 to the Civic Center, the man older than most of the players selected on the two squads told the capacity crowd:

"I've been in almost 30 of these but being selected is a tremendous honor," the Houston right winger said.

"I might not get as excited and have an upset stomach as I once did before a game, but it's still a thrill to be here."

"It's going to be great to be on the ice again and on the same side with Bobby (Hall)," he added.

Hall, along with all members of both teams, was spotlighted during the long program which was featured by Howard Baldwin's comments with an animated character, J.C. Slapshot, who appeared on a giant screen.

Tonight's all-star game will be the 20th for Howe in his 22-year professional career.

No one does a better job of selling the WHA than Howe and Hall, the veterans are still the showpieces.

This could be Howe's last all-star game, but then he might just be around next year at a 50-year-old "as he defies Father Time."

Strange but true, the New England AAU does not recognize Maine and Connecticut as members. Channel 24 will bring in tonight's WHA all-star hockey game on a tape-delayed basis starting at 9:30. Tickets are still available for the attraction at the Hartford Civic Center.

friendly, spontaneous game METULLA, ISRAEL (UPI) — Israeli and Lebanese Christian soldiers put down their rifles and picked up a soccer ball Monday in a friendly and spontaneous game between the two groups held adjacent to the "good fence" with Lebanon.

A group of Falange soldiers from the southern Lebanese village of Klia Crossed through the fence into Israeli territory for a soccer match against Israeli soldiers on reserve duty along the fence.

Dozens of fans from the two sides cheered the teams on. The Israeli team braved the cold afternoon air and played in their undershirts so the teams could be more easily distinguished.

The Lebanese, many of them wearing crosses around their necks, ran around the converted parking lot that served as a playing field while warming up for the game.

When it was all over, spectators were still uncertain which of the two groups of soldiers actually won.

Cowens ready to start BOSTON (UPI) — Dave Cowens may return to his starting pivot post this week as the Boston Celtics play five games in six days.

Cowens, who has come off the Boston bench in two games since returning last week after a two-month leave of absence, scored 10 points Sunday as the Celtics toppled the New York Nets 106-91.

"Dave's coming along well but we'll just play each game by ear."

said coach Tom Heinsohn Monday before the club left Boston. The team was to play tonight in New Orleans and Wednesday night in Houston before returning to Boston for a garden Friday night against San Antonio. The Celtics finish the week by playing a weekend, home-and-home series against NBA Atlantic Division-leading Nets — Saturday night in Philadelphia and Sunday afternoon in a nationally televised game from the Garden.

If Cowens was not ready to start tonight against New Orleans or against Houston Wednesday night, Jim Ard would open at center. Ard rescued Boston in the third quarter of the Nets game, coming up with eight of his 14 points in the session.

The Celtics, 20-30 on the season and still handicapped after losing guard Charlie Scott to a broken arm were hoping third-year backcourt reserve Kevin Stacom could provide a needed lift.

First place at stake, Knights face Indians

Defender versus pretender. That's the way it's going to be tonight in East Hartford as defending CCIL basketball champ Manchester High battles league-leading Penney High in one of the key hook-ups of the season.

The Silk Towners at 7:2 in the league and 7:3 overall currently are in second place trailing the streaking 8-1, 9-1 Black Knights, who've not lost since a season-opening 76-66 setback to Manchester.

Another key match-up pits East Catholic against Northwest Catholic at the Eagles' Nest in a Hartford County Conference tussle.

The Eagles are 2-1 in conference play, 7-4 overall while the West Hartford-based Indians show an 0-2

HCC ledger and aggregate mark of 3-4.

The other local quintet, Cheney Tech, has a home date with the 1-5, 1-7 Beavers entertaining 1-1, 1-6 Rocky Hill High.

Elsewhere, 0-4 East Hartford High visits 5-4, 8-4 Simsbury in a CCIL encounter, 2-7 Rockville High is at Bulkley High in a non-conference bout and 3-6 Ellington High hosts defending state Class M champ Middletown High.

Also, 0-7, 0-8 Bolton High hosts 3-3 Vinal Tech, 3-3, 3-5 Rham High entertains 2-4, 2-5 Portland High and 5-1, 6-1 Coventry High has a home date against 5-1, 5-3 East Hampton High in Charter Oak Conference play.

In the big Central Valley Conference engagement, 4-0, 5-4 South Windsor High confronts 5-5, 5-5 Bloomfield High at the Bobcats' Den with the victor taking over sole possession of the CVC lead. In district action, 7-3 Manchester High hosts Penney High at "Larke Arena at 6:15.

East after a lengthy stretch of non-conference contests is getting into the teeth of its HCC slate. Northwest comes in with a winless conference ledger out "they have the personnel," warns Eagle coach Stan Ogronik. "No question, from here on out we have to concentrate on every game. We can't be thinking of blowing people out but wanting to win every quarter by four or five points," the ninth-year coach added. One pleasing aspect in the win last Friday over St. Paul was that the Eagles went with their game plan and followed it all the way through, Ogronik noted.

It's not a "must win" situation for Manchester — but comes pretty close. A victory for Penney would give the Knights a two-game lead and pretty much sailing room the rest of the way.

"This is the biggest game our players will have ever played and we have to win it," Indian coach Doug Pearson insists. "If we don't beat Penney, we can't rely on two or three others to do so to give us the league," he continued.

What had been considered a strength — defense — before the season has not exactly panned out with Pearson very disappointed, especially by the defensive work of his guards. While he does credit to opponents, commenting "Penney is surely a fine team," the third-year mentor remarked, "We have been our own worst enemy when we lose... We have to start playing some team defense and we've just to play well."

"While it wasn't a sellout as of early Monday afternoon, tickets for the Manchester-Penney game will be at a premium and if you do want to get in, I'd advise you arrive early for there will be a cutoff figure.

Would welcome merger

WHA better off than last season

HARTFORD (UPI) — The World Hockey Association is content to continue on its own, but would be more than happy to discuss a merger with the National Hockey Association, according to the president of the WHA.

Despite the collapse of one team and financial maneuvering to avoid a crisis for another, Bill MacFarland says the league is better off this year than last.

MacFarland said Monday the WHA would discuss a merger if the NHL took the first step.

"If the NHL takes it upon themselves to open discussions, we would be more than happy to continue them," he said. "But we're content to build the WHA as a separate entity. We're not in a position to force a merger."

"We've been rather quiet on the thing," MacFarland said, "but there have been rumors springing up that a merger is being talked about. We're not talking about it," he said.

After a day of executive meetings in Hartford Monday following the collapse of the Minnesota Fighting Saints, MacFarland said, "Last year we had three teams collapse. This year one. We're a lot better off this year than last year."

The status of the franchise in St. Paul is that it is suspended. The team's owner has asked for time to attempt to raise money. The league trustees to decide whether to grant that time," MacFarland said. "The trustees were to meet today to discuss the St. Paul franchise and other league issues."

The Indianapolis Racers last week lost in two years to fall victim to their players to accept a 15 percent deferral of salary payment until the end of the season.

But MacFarland said the Racers are not in trouble.

"There is no problem in Indianapolis. It's just unfortunate timing for us that they did this at the same time we had problems in Minnesota," he said.

The collapse of the Saints — the second team in two years to fall victim to financial difficulties in St. Paul, Minn. — brought on reshuffling and public relations headaches for the rest of the league, MacFarland said.

"No matter how much this was expected, it causes a credibility problem," he said. "People questioned whether we would be successful going back to St. Paul," he said.

Seven Saints were sold Saturday to the Edmonton Oilers, but the New England Whalers claimed ownership of two players, Jack and Steve Carlson. MacFarland said, "The league position right now is not to trade Bobby Hull, Danny Lavoie and J.C. Tremblay who played in all five WHA All-Star games."

Mark Howe, who plays right wing for the Aeros, will not play for the West Division because he is resting with an injured shoulder. Also out with a shoulder injury is Whaler Rick Ley, who will be replaced on the East roster by Tommy Abrahamsson, also a defenseman.

Whalers' center Mike Rogers was added to the East squad, replacing Dave Keon whose contract status has not been resolved, officials said.

Even if Howe doesn't get out on the ice, West coach Bobby Kromm wants him around anyway.

"I certainly hope Gordie will be able to play with us because he can help us for sure," Kromm said. "But if come Jan. 18, he feels he shouldn't play, we just want him there with us."

It will be the fourth consecutive midseason classic for San Diego center Andre Lacroix, who holds the WHA all-star scoring record with three goals and four assists. The East's Bobby Hull, Danny Lavoie and J.C. Tremblay have played in all five WHA All-Star games.

Two other Whalers will see action — rookie left wing George Lyle and second-year defenseman Gordon Roberts.

East coach Jacques Demers of the Indianapolis Racers chose Lyle, who joined the Whalers this year after three seasons at Michigan Tech, and Roberts, at 19 the youngest player in the league, to round out his squad.

Braves' owner backed by political figures

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Atlanta baseball owner Ted Turner has the Georgia governor, the state legislator, the mayor of Atlanta and maybe even Amy Carter on his side today in an appeal for clemency from Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Kuhn is to hand down his final judgment in mid-afternoon against Turner on grounds the flamboyant 37-year-old Braves' chief violated baseball's anti-tampering rules in signing outfielder Gary Matthews as a free agent from the San Francisco Giants.

The commissioner initially assessed a one-year suspension against Turner and briefly delayed approval of Matthews' signing by the Braves. Kuhn's office said he will announce final details of the punishment today after a morning and afternoon meeting at the offices of a law firm which represents organized baseball.

The first meeting of the day involved Kuhn with Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson and other Georgians coming to Washington for President-elect Jimmy Carter's swearing-in. The afternoon session featured Kuhn and Turner for a final face-to-face discussion.

DETROIT (UPI) — This may be Larry Wilson's chance to coast in the National Hockey League, so he's taking it.

Wilson, brother to Colorado Rockies' Coach Johnny Wilson, accepted the job as coach of the Detroit Red Wings Monday, even though he knows General Manager Alex Delvecchio has an agreement with another man to coach the NHL team next season.

"I look at it as an opportunity," he said. "I've got 36 games to play to prove what I can do in the NHL."

His debut as the Wings' interim coach comes Thursday — ironically after brother John in a rematch of their many American Hockey

BOSTON (UPI) — Providence, which registered easy wins last week against Connecticut and Hawaii, was to face Rhode Island tonight in what promises to be an intense game at the Providence Civic Center.

Holy Cross, despite only one loss in 13 games and an early-season win over Providence, finished second with 47 points. The Crusaders, impressive victors last week over Yale and Canisius, were to face Georgetown tonight.

Massachusetts, 7-4 after a one-point win over Connecticut, advanced one spot to third place. The Minutemen picked up 30 points.

Rhode Island, 8-4, was fourth with 28 points. The Huskies, who finished the week by beating Harvard, received 14 points.

Fairfield, 8-5, finished sixth with three points.

Points are awarded on a descending scale, with a first-place vote worth five points.

Blount wins MVP, thanks to Greene

SEATTLE (UPI) — Mel Blount has an MVP trophy for his mantel because Joe Greene worked up one of those threatening "mean" looks and told him to stick around for the action.

Blount's two interceptions blunted a threatening National Conference drive and set up an insurance touchdown Monday night to earn him the Most Valuable Player award as the AFC All-Stars scored a 24-14 Pro Bowl victory.

But the guy who won the hardware admitted afterward that he came within a hair's breadth of watching the game on TV.

"I hurt my ankle on the first day of practice (for the Pro Bowl) and was going to go home," the Pittsburgh defensive back explained.

"But Joe Greene looked at me and said I shouldn't go, so I hung around and I decided as long as I was going to be there I might as well win the MVP Trophy.

Besides, Joe is not the kind of guy you want to have mad at you."

Blount picked off his first pass in his own end zone when Jim Hart of St. Louis was driving the NFC toward a fourth-quarter score that would have wiped out a 17-14 AFC lead.

"I don't think Hart saw me," said Blount, who snatched the ball with a pass in his own end zone when Jim Hart of St. Louis was driving the NFC toward a fourth-quarter score that would have wiped out a 17-14 AFC lead.

Bruins need luck in triumph

BOSTON (UPI) — "A team might be able to come out like that once a week," said Boston goalie Gerry Cheevers after making 24 saves to put the Bruins back in a first-place tie with Buffalo in the National Hockey League's Adams Division. "It's like bowling; it's a night out. But you can't do it every night."

The Bruins did what the best skating team in hockey. In danger of trailing after being outplayed in the first period, the Bruins tied the contest, 1-1, at 18:32 when Rick Middleton dived at the Montreal goal to deflect a airborne pass by Canadiens' netminder Michel Larocque.

Don Marcotte started a three-goal flurry 35 seconds into the middle period with a blistering 25-foot shot from the left faceoff circle. Jean Ratelle used a backhanded burst of his own rebound to beat Larocque at 5:07 of the period and Brad Park rifled a misdirected clearing pass alongside Larocque's left shoulder at 7:52 to give the Bruins a 4-1 edge.

The Canadiens surged back with a pair of goals by Pierre Bouchard (when Boston's Dallas Smith put the puck in his own net) and Rejean Houle to pull to within a goal at 14:41 of the second period.

Middleton won the game five minutes later with a play that required delicate balance and a good deal of luck. He first separated big Peter Mahovlich from the puck along Montreal's right wingboard. Middleton then, ducked Mahovlich's attempt to tie him up, skated to the puck and fed McNab perfectly at the left post for an easy tap-in and a 5-3 lead.

"They're the only team that works hard against us all the way and you have to give them credit," said Montreal Coach Scotty Bowman. "But they did have some luck against us, plus two of the three wins have been here (in Boston)."

Rape Crisis Center talk on Thursday

The Manchester Junior Women's Club will have a discussion of Hartford's Rape Crisis Center at its meeting Thursday at 8 p.m. at Community Baptist Church, 508 E. Center St.

A representative of the center will explain the services it provides to individuals or groups in the greater Hartford area.

Located at the Hartford YWCA on Broad St., the center assists women who have been sexually assaulted by providing needed support, information and assistance. It also provides support to the family and friends of these women and information to the general public on sexual assault and what citizens can do to help reduce assault in their communities. The center works closely with the police, hospitals and with emergency referral services that women may need.

Those wishing to contact the Rape Crisis Center for assistance information may call 522-6666.

Thursday's meeting is open to club members and their guests. Women between the ages of 18 and 40 wishing to join the club may contact Mrs. Laura Boutlier, 649-4274, or Mrs. Cheryl Ahlbeck, 649-2665.

Commuter milestone observed

WEST HARTFORD (UPI) - Gov. Ella T. Grady in every way marked the fifth anniversary of commuter bus service in Connecticut by calling the blossoming of such programs a "big success."

Mrs. Grasso, at ceremonies at the Corbini Corners shopping center here, noting that when the first program began only 54 commuters were involved.

She said five years later thousands of workers around the state rode on such buses, with 14 commuter programs in 75 towns in existence.

She said such programs benefit energy conservation and help commuters by reducing parking charges.

"It is imperative that we deliver this request to the tables of mobility. The earliest recorded bus on its discriminate hauling of the back-hauled bus was issued in 1954 by Archbishop Leibold of Baltimore."

Ugly Delacy

The back-haul bus is a particularly heinous water-logged. Yet it was one of the first birds of prey to be protected, mainly because its yawns were regarded as delicacies that only grace the tables of nobility. The earliest recorded bus on its discriminate hauling of the back-hauled bus was issued in 1954 by Archbishop Leibold of Baltimore.
