

Law and order course closes gap

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

Several students and former students of Manchester High School may be a little less skeptical of policemen and law enforcement agencies as a result of a taking a course called, "Law and Order." The course has been offered as a half-credit semester elective for seniors for the past six and a half years and the unique aspect of it is that the majority of the classes are held inside the Manchester Police Department.

Elgin Zaturky, social studies department chairman at MHS and creator and teacher of the course, said he knows of no similar situation in the country.

The course would lose much of its effectiveness if it had to be held in the high school Zaturky said and the students feel. Zaturky feels the students benefit from their firsthand look at daily operations at the police department.

Plans for next semester call for the "Get Smart Test" of inmates from the minimum security prison at Enfield to talk to the classes.

The classes are intended to give the students an honest, real picture of the whole justice system, McCooe said. The students are often very dubious of what the teachers tell them at the beginning of the course, but they gradually open up when they find out the teachers and speakers are not trying to "pull anything over them," McCooe said.

Young people are also less impressed with the bureaucracy than they used to be, according to Chief Lannan. "They're no longer intimidated by a police chief," he said.

The original intent of the course was to bring an awareness of the criminal justice system to the students, Lannan and Zaturky agreed. They said they never tried overtly to change attitudes, although psychologists were interested to see if there would be a behavioral change. Attitude change

Zaturky said the attitude in the 1960s that "cops were pigs" used to bother him. He thought by exposing the students to the police that some of the attitude might change.

After six and a half years, Zaturky feels the course is still successful. Some students — although not all are still successful. Some students — although not all are still successful.

Another related course called Law and Society has also been added to the curriculum at MHS. That course has been taught by a third-year law student from the University of Connecticut and covers areas such as consumer law, housing laws, child abuse and criminal law.

Zaturky hopes the new course will grow. He thinks it offers valuable information for students to use when they leave school and have to deal with various problems.

There are plenty of job opportunities in many areas of law enforcement, especially for imaginative persons and behavioralists who understand human behavior and psychology, according to Tom Connors, professor of law enforcement at Manchester Community College. He was the last speaker of the semester for the course. The students liked Connors, according to their critiques which they are required to write up at the end of the course.

Student reaction

The critiques indicated that the students found the course valuable, for the most part. They liked most of the speakers but were lukewarm about others.

They like speakers who "tell it like it is" and that is the intent of the course, McCooe said.

Discuss law enforcement

Tom Connors, professor of law enforcement at Manchester Community College and former New York City police lieutenant, discusses various aspects of law enforcement and job opportunities in law enforcement with students of the "Law and Order" class held at the Manchester Police Department three mornings a week. Next to Connors is Elgin Zaturky, teacher and creator of the course which is in its seventh year.

President Carter lets all know White House formality is dead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jimmy Carter of Plains, Ga., is now the nation's 39th President and he has let it be known that White House formality is dead.

Thousands of just plain folks had a great time celebrating his inauguration. The 52-year old President and his wife Rosalynn, who chose a 6-year-old gown for the occasion, danced until the early hours today to climax an inaugural festival that at every turn discarded the formal trappings that previously made the transition of power in America almost a royal ceremony.

Carter took the oath of office in a constitutionally required style, then walked to work.

Never before had a new American president paced off the 1.2 miles from the Capitol to the White House. Hand-in-hand with his wife, and for the first time with his 8-year-old daughter, Amy, he led his parade.

In an inaugural address that he called the populist tones of his two-year campaign for the White House, Carter promised nothing but asked Americans for a "fresh bias in the old dream."

Carter dumped formality every time he got the chance during the daylong celebration. He wore a business suit instead of top hat and tails to the swearing-in, but he gave in and wore a tuxedo — with clip-on bow tie — to the jammed parties.

He also said that funding such a proposal is bound to have support from the construction industry and labor unions as well as the support that has already been shown by members of the business community, town officials, former students and others outside the campus.

Businesses and industries in the area are particularly interested in expansion of facilities to provide more vocational training, Denison said.

The college is operating under very restricted conditions in its new two-year old temporary facilities, Dr. Denison said. "We are restricted in what we can do," he said. Courses have to be limited and more than 1,500 potential students have to be turned down each semester.

Dr. Denison said he is grateful to the legislators for proceeding under the college request. He feels optimistic that the bill stands a good chance of being funded since this area of the state has not received a major grant for a long time for community colleges.

Draft evaders pardoned in first official act

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In keeping with a major campaign promise, President Carter today ordered a "full, complete and unconditional" blanket pardon for Vietnam draft evaders.

Press Secretary Jody Powell also announced Carter had ordered the Defense Department to step up its study of what to do about deserters and those who had received other than honorable discharges during the Vietnam era.

Carter's long inaugural walk impresses local politicians

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Most local politicians were impressed with Thursday's inauguration ceremonies, particularly the 1 1/2-mile walk made by the new president.

"I was quite impressed with the long walk," Elsie Swenson, vice-chairperson of the Republican town committee, said of President Jimmy Carter's walk from the Capitol to the White House in the inaugural parade.

"My best wishes are with him. I think any good Republican would say the same thing," Mrs. Swenson said.

"He is in better shape than I am," Fred Peck, Republican registrar over the town, said of Carter. "I couldn't have walked that far."

Peck said he also was impressed when Carter acknowledged outgoing President Gerald Ford.

"I thought that was a nice gesture," Peck said.

Democratic Town Chairman Ted Cummings called the Carter walk "a new and down-to-earth twist."

Of Carter's speech, Cummings said, "I felt it had a pretty high moral tone to it, yet was simple and easily understood by all. I think that's going to be characteristic of his administration."

Republican Town Chairman Herbert Stevenson said that he was also impressed with Carter's introduction of Ford.

"I think that indicates the type of president he's going to be. He's not vindictive. He's a sincere and compassionate man," Stevenson said.

Democratic Mayor Matthew Moriarty said, "It was refreshing the way he opened the address with the thanks to the former President."

He also had positive comments on the walk and the "informality of the people's inaugural."

He said that the Republican party will act as the "watchdog" over the Carter administration, just as the Democrats have done for the last eight years under Richard Nixon and Ford.

"We wish Carter well for the best interest of the nation," Irish said. Democratic Registrar of Voters Herbert Stevenson said that he was also impressed with Carter's introduction of Ford.

Special budget request planned for MCC permanent facility

By SUSAN VAUGHN

Barry noted how attempts last year were successful in obtaining $250,000 from the General Assembly for permanent athletic facilities, the first permanent facilities on the campus. Dr. Denison announced earlier this week that construction on the athletic facilities is scheduled to begin in March.

The funding proposal will probably first be presented to the education committee, Barry said, but he said it is too early to tell its chances for funding.

Dr. Denison said he is grateful to the legislators for proceeding under the college request. He feels optimistic that the bill stands a good chance of being funded since this area of the state has not received a major grant for a long time for community colleges.

East Hartford man shot by terrorists

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Police say the militant Sept. 23 Communist League terrorists have renewed their violence in the past week and shot dead eight persons, including an engineer from East Hartford, Conn., because they're running out of guns.

"The terrorists are in urgent need of weapons," city street police chief Rafael Rocha Cordero told newsmen Thursday night.

In raids police have made on their hideouts recently, a great number of arms has been confiscated, so they need more," he said.

Micheli Andreksi, an engineer and president of Dur-A-Flex Inc. of Hartford, Conn., became the band's eighth victim in a week earlier in the day.

Extra service makes carrier a favorite with customers

After only about six weeks on the job, Skip Fisher has already been termed "the best paper boy ever" by several of his Manchester Herald customers in the Vernon Circle area.

Skip is 13 years old and lives at 11 Pam Dr., South Windsor. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fisher.

He has quickly become a favorite among several elderly persons in the Vernon Trailer Park and is known in all the stores in the Tri-City Plaza for his friendly manner.

Skip believes in extra service with a personal touch for his customers. He brings the paper to Anthony Gamache, who is confined to a wheelchair in his trailer home, wherever Gamache happens to be in the trailer. Skip's family even brought Gamache a bottle of his favorite beer from Germany because they knew he is German.

Skip takes time to visit with his customers, particularly the older people. He has turned down their thermostat for them and done special favors.

One customer said he never has to worry about the paper getting wet or blowing away.

Employs in Regal's Men's Store in Vernon said that Skip is always on time and is very polite and friendly with everyone in the store.

So-Fro Fabrics also made a special call to the Herald, as have several of Skip's customers, to report he is "the best paper boy ever."

Moral choice Course by Newspaper begins in The Herald Saturday

"Moral Choices in Contemporary Society," the winter program of Courses by Newspaper, begins Saturday in The Herald's Weekend magazine.

In the first of 16 weekly articles, Professor Philip Rieff of the University of Pennsylvania will discuss the role of culture in establishing limits to human behavior and the current moral crisis of our society.

The course is offered for college credit at Manchester Community College. Mail registration deadline is Jan. 22, and in-person registration sessions will be conducted tomorrow and Jan. 29, from 9 a.m. to noon, at the MCC registrar's office, main campus administration building.

The instructional fee for the three-credit course is $40. An orientation meeting for registered students will be Jan. 29 at 1 p.m. at Room MB-13 on the main campus. Two optional review sessions and two examinations (mid-term and final) will be scheduled soon.

Courses by Newspaper was developed by University Extension, University of California at San Diego, and is funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Further information about the MCC course, offered in cooperation with The Herald, is available from the college's Division of Community Services, telephone 646-2137.

MHS-constructed custom car invited to auto show

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter

Visitors to the Frank Maratta Auto Show at the Hartford Civic Center this weekend will see cars exhibited by a Manchester High School teacher and two MHS students.

Adrian Groot III, automotive teacher at MHS, is exhibiting a 1964 Chevy II Nova in the "Competition Car" class.

Alongside the Nova is a black 1970 Chevelle, a towcar, built and owned by Randy Hall, a MHS alumnus.

Louis Pantaleo, a MHS senior, is showing his 1969 Plymouth Sports Satellite, a bracket racer.

Groot began building his drag model in the back yard of his home at 50 Steele Crossing Rd. in Bolton when he moved there five years ago. It was a place where he and his students would gather on weekends to work on each other's cars.

As Groot says, they could accomplish things there that they couldn't in the classroom where they were disciplined by class bells and time restrictions.

Groot's car is a modified production dragster and was completed last summer in time to enter the 10-week racing season at Colchester.

"I spent most of the summer getting it dialed in," he said. That means perfecting things like the traction, the ignition, and other faulty items. "It'll take maybe a year to work them out," Groot added.

Groot's car raced up to 118 mph in 12 seconds. But he said it should be done in 11 seconds or less. He says he hopes his professionally built car can attain top speed by next summer.

Hall's car, appropriately displayed beside Groot's, is used as the tow-car for Groot at the end of the race run. Hall built his car from sections of seven other cars.

Pantaleo's car will be entered in drag races next summer.

These three cars are being exhibited for the first time.

"The basics we teach in high school automotive class were applied in building all three of these cars," Groot says. "In fact, we have used my car as a teaching aid, a situation where they can get firsthand knowledge."

It's more than just a pun when Groot says about his students that keeping them busy on cars keeps them on the right track.

The name of Groot's car? "Educator."

Learning at sports clinic

Figure skating for all ages is a new category which was added to the Winter Carnival festivities to be held Sunday, Jan. 30 at Union Pond Annex from 1 to 4 p.m.

The carnival committee set up the new category at its meeting Wednesday night, and also appointed some of the judges.

Judges for the figure skating competition will be Mrs. Joan Vaughan of 226 Ludlow Rd., and two guest skaters not named as yet.

Judges for the snowman and ice sculpture contest are Nathan Agostinelli, Paul Cervini and Burton Pearl.

Judges for the races are Sam Longest, Willard Marvin and John Flynn.

Persons planning to enter the fishing derby are asked to supply their own bait and tackle.

The committee has restricted entries in the carnival events to Manchester residents only. Those wishing to register may do so at the Eighth Utilities District Firehouse, Main and Hilliard Sts.

The event is sponsored by the Eighth District Board of Directors.

Juvenile delinquency

HARTFORD (UPI) — A state report on the latest juvenile delinquency figures available says crime by youths rose almost 20 per cent in 1975, marking the first substantial increase in Connecticut since 1975.

The 1975 annual report of the state's Juvenile Court says there were 15,866 cases of delinquency that year, compared to 12,579 in 1974.

The report said Connecticut's bad economy contributed to rising juvenile delinquency.

Thompson successor list studied

There are eight to ten persons who will be screened by the Democratic party as a replacement for John Thompson, according to Ted Cummings, Democratic town chairman.

Thompson announced Wednesday that he will be resigning from the Board of Directors at the end of February.

The eight to ten have expressed interest in the past year or two in running for town board, Cummings said.

He said that the party's executive committee is talking to these possible candidates.

"We have to find out if that interest is still warm," he said.

He said that he could not, at this time, reveal names of those interested in succeeding Thompson. He did say, however, that none of them has ever served on or run for the board before.

A nominating committee will be selected in the next month to review those most interested in the position. The committee will make recommendations to the full town meeting, which will then make recommendations to the Democratic members serving on the board.

The five continuing Democratic directors — Mayor Matthew Moriarthy, Phyllis Jackson, Pascal Prignano, Jack Goldberg, and Robert Price — will make the final selection, Cummings said.

He said that he expects one or more names to be presented to the Democratic directors by Feb. 28, Thompson's official final day.

Adult school registration nears end

Mail registration for the winter term of the Manchester Adult Evening School ends today.

However, an in-person registration will be held Monday from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

People planning to attend the in-person registration should use the parking lot off Brookfield St.

There are still openings in many of the courses. The winter term will begin Jan. 31 and continue until April 7.

Instead of leaving, the terrorists pulled out guns and started shooting, killing Andreksi and his 36-year-old Mexican colleague, Guillermo Flores Franco.

Members of Andreksi's family left Connecticut for Mexico City Thursday. Before departing, Andreksi's son Robert said he could not understand what happened and doubted his father would try to stop anyone from distributing leaflets because "he couldn't even understand the language."

The slain businessman's firm manufactures epoxy products.

Andreksi's firm, Dur-A-Flex Seamless Floors Inc. of 100 Meadows St., Hartford, has been in operation in Hartford for the past eight years, said a spokesman from the Hartford Development Commission.

They have had less than a dozen employees and marketed the firm's floor products nationally. The firm appeared capable of solving its own problems and the owner, Andreksi, said a few years ago he did not

Other areas which could be added in the new facilities are biology labs, additional kitchen space for the food service program, more dining space, more library facilities and more space for specialty classes. Dr. Denison indicated.

The college is being constantly demolished, Dr. Denison said, by the New England Association for Accreditation for its lack of proper library space. He said there is not enough room in the library for either books or students.

Opinion
Smut crackdown actually backfiring

One of the least persuasive arguments some people have advanced in defense of pornography is that the legal censorship of this form of "expression" could ultimately lead to erosion of the constitutional guarantee of a free press.

History plainly shows otherwise. Even at the height of sexual repressiveness in the Victorian era, this country's press could only have been described as robust. In many respects, it was far more sensational and far less self-disciplined than it is often accused of being today.

Even that arch-foe of smut, Anthony Comstock, who was responsible for getting the Post Office involved in the business of guarding the public morality, never dreamed of inhibiting ordinary political or literary expression.

But if the pornographers can be accused of trying to wrap themselves in the mantle of the First Amendment, there is also something unsavory about the tactics that have lately been adopted by professional smut-hunters. Ignoring as had or worse material that is freely available almost everywhere these days, they have been going after a few highly visible targets.

An example was the conviction in Memphis last year of 11 people, connected with the notorious porno film "Deep Throat" or charges of participating in a "national conspiracy to transport interstate obscene motion picture." If the convictions are upheld, it will mean that a jury anywhere can set itself up as the moral monitor for everyone else in the nation.

Facing a similar "conspiracy" rap in Cincinnati is the publisher of a magazine called Hustler, which goes well beyond the better-known

Price of progress

Cleveland's Cuyahoga River hasn't been in the news since it "caught fire" several years ago. Latest report is that the much-used and much-abused waterway is freezing over — something that was thought impossible because of its heavy load of pollution.

The winter, of course, has been colder than normal, but the major reason seems to be that the Cuyahoga is much cleaner than it used to be thanks to pollution-control efforts. The result is that instead of a dirty river that is open to shipping traffic the year round, Cleveland now has a purer river but one that is subject to the hazards of ice build-up.

Local budget planners upset
States revolt against federal strings

By Jon L. Mills
The love-hate relationship between the federal and state governments is resulting in increasing controversy. While the states love the increased flow of federal dollars, from $2 billion in 1955 to $60 billion in 1976, they often resent the side effects.

First, the federal government has attached more strings and regulations to federal money. Through federal dollars, compliance has been bought where states would have refused permission and where direct regulation would be unconstitutional. Sometimes these strings seem to overreach all limits of federal concern.

In jeopardy
For example, Florida is in jeopardy of losing federal vocational rehabilitation funding, $27 million of its $33 million program, because of administrative reorganization. According to Florida officials, their plan is an improvement which brings administrative control closer to the recipients and saved money. Federal officials claim the plan does not conform to federal guidelines. If the federal government prevails, it will either stifle Florida's experiment in administrative reform or destroy the state's vocational rehabilitation program.

Of course, Florida, or for that matter any state, does not have to accept federal funds if it does not like the conditions. That sort of restraint is difficult, but local officials in California felt that the deferral process "makes a mockery of Congressional intent to address priorities." In addition, planning is reduced to virtual odds-making. One frustrated Pennsylvania official asked "Why should we try to plan?"

Federal promises
State and local officials are no longer relying on federal promises. Responses to funding inquiries result in "we await the country's" according to a California official. Even worse, some state and local governments have apparently put up money in expectation of federal support which did not come. According to a Los Angeles official, that city invested one million dollars in a crime control center in anticipation of a $50,000 grant from the federal government. There was doubt whether the federal funds will ever arrive.

New federalism, revenue sharing and the increased flow of federal funds to and through state and local governments has been both a boon and a burden to them. The burden is so severe that restraint has begun to outweigh avarice and states are refusing to participate in federal programs.

The state-federal budget issues are the chief symptom of the larger questions which are becoming critical to citizens. What are the proper roles of governmental bodies in running the country? Has the federal government gone too far? Should the federal, state or local government provide for welfare, or unemployment, for environment? Power was limited. James Madison felt that "the states governments will have the advantage of the federal government" and that while state powers were "numerous and indefinite," federal power was limited. Time has resulted in a shift of power and influence to the federal government. However, any decisions to shift this power and influence have not been systematic, but rather a result of a growing federal establishment with expanding definitions of "national" interests.

The issue of governmental powers could be resolved by actions of the president in defining the relative roles and promoting cooperation. Without such conscious effort, citizens will suffer because of inefficiency, overlapping regulation, and incredible waste of resources.

programs, is that these same plans call for thorough protection for selected officials, essential production workers and for key military defense personnel.

The data suggests, in fact, that the Soviet Union could survive a nuclear war with sizable powers of recuperation though with a decimated population.

This is not to suggest Leonid Brezhnev and his associates are planning a nuclear war. They have, to date, shown great caution. It is more likely they will use their new strength as an umbrella to give them more leeway in Africa, the Middle East, Asia and Latin America — believing that we will not stand firm if the odds are clearly against our own survival in a showdown.

But in a totalitarian system it is impossible to foresee who will rule next year, or 10 years down the pike. In sum, we don't know what the eventual Russian goal is. But we do know that at present they're building more than they require for purely defensive purposes.

Under Schneller's proposal, the legislature would appropriate $800,000 for the projects. The federal government would kick in an additional $2.4 million in matching funds.

The second legislative measure would provide meals to senior citizens who are not eligible for home-delivered meals under existing programs.

The third proposal would establish a special commission to study and develop a viable transportation program for the elderly and the handicapped so that they could become more mobile.

The third proposal would establish a special commission to study and develop a viable transportation program for the elderly and the handicapped so that they could become more mobile.

"Institutionalization of the elderly, which is so often done without thought to alternatives, is sometimes unnecessary and even detrimental to the emotional and physical health of the individual," Schneller said.

"With proper assistance, many of our older citizens could maintain a sense of independence and well-being in their own homes."

Bloodmobile Tuesday
About town

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Manchester for its monthly operation Tuesday, Jan. 25. The visit is sponsored by Campbell Council, Knights of Columbus, and will be held in the KofC Home, 138 Main St., from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Officials of the Red Cross Blood Center in Farmington report a continued shortage of all blood types, especially O-Positive and O-Negative. All eligible persons in the area are invited to support the blood program by being donors.

With recent technical advancements in processing blood, one pint can now be used to help as many as five patients. However, unless the public continues to give blood, all these efforts will have been wasted, according to blood center officials.

The blood program cannot exist without volunteer donors who care enough to give of themselves to help others.

Anyone in good health between the ages of 18 and 65 years of age may donate blood. Appointments may be made by contacting the Manchester Red Cross office at 643-3111. Walk-in donors are welcome.

Wayne Belanger of Vernon will be at Laiz Junior Museum Saturday from 2 to 4 p.m. for a "Shell Day" program. He will discuss and answer questions about his collection of shells.

Maranatha Christian Coffee House will be open to all teenagers and young adults tonight from 8 to 11 in Fellowship Hall of Calvary Church, 647 E. Middle Tpke. The informal program is free of charge. Refreshments will be served.

Inaugural costs set at $6 million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — How much did the inauguration cost? The bill for the week of fireworks, dancing, parades, concerts, police protection and eventual clean-up comes to somewhat more than $6 million.

So the cost to the American taxpayers is about $2.7 million. It gets broken down even more because about $1.4 million of that will be spent by the District of Columbia on overtime for police, firemen and sanitation workers.

Congress appropriated $825,000 for Carter's inaugural ceremony. The biggest chunk goes for the $550,000 platform on which he took the oath at the Capitol.

The federal government is expected to spend about a $500,000 on military ceremonies ranging from the use of soldiers to clear ice-covered sidewalks along Pennsylvania Avenue to the setting of Gerald Ford to California shortly after he becomes a private citizen.

The issue of governmental powers could be resolved by actions of the president in defining the relative roles and promoting cooperation. Without such conscious effort, citizens will suffer because of inefficiency, overlapping regulation, and incredible waste of resources.

Bayley-Evers

Mrs. Thomas R. Bayley

Charlene Joyce Evers of Manchester and Thomas Richard Bayley of West Hartford were married Jan. 8 at the First Church of Christ Congregational in West Hartford.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Evers Jr. of Wagner, S.D. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Bayley of West Hartford.

The Rev. Charles Gubisch performed the double-ring ceremony. The bride and bridegroom prepared their own statements to each other. Soloists were Val Yaffa of Avon and Karen Dalke of Plainville. Miss Dalke also played the guitar.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore an A-line gown of white satin percale with fitted lace and silk bodice and designed with Victorian collar, long sleeves and a train accented with Venice lace.

A reception was held at the Country Club of Farmington, after which the couple left for the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania. They will reside in Farmington, Mass. The bride's brother-in-law, John C. Bayley of Remington, Va., was his brother's best man.

Engagements

The engagement of Miss Kathleen Carol Anton to Eric J. Simamon, both of Manchester, has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Anton of 171 Brent Rd.

Mr. Simamon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Simamon of 29 Bigelow St.

The bride-elect was graduated from Manchester High School in 1970 and from the University of Connecticut with a B.S. degree in elementary education in 1974. She is a member of St. Bridget Church and is leader of Girl Scout Troop 664. She is employed at Sears Roebuck & Co. in Manchester.

Her fiancé was also graduated from Manchester High School in 1970 and from the University of Connecticut with a B.S. degree in elementary education in 1974. He is a member of St. Mary's Episcopal Church and a member of the Manchester Lodge of Masons. He is employed at Reed's Stationery, Inc. in Manchester.

The couple is planning a Feb. 19 wedding at St. Bridget Church.

Yates-Coslit

The engagement of Miss Rosemary Yates of Kingston, R.I. to Milton Coslit of Long Island, N.Y., formerly of Manchester, has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vance Yates of Kingston, R.I.

Mr. Coslit is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Coslit of Webster, Mass., formerly of Manchester.

The bride-elect was graduated from the University of Connecticut. She will receive a master's degree in resource economics in June from the University of Rhode Island.

Her fiancé was graduated from Manchester High School and from Heidelberg College in Tiffin, Ohio. He is employed as a district manager at ARA Food Services in New York.

The couple is planning an April 9 wedding in Kingston.

Hadassah plans third craft fair

Hadassah of Manchester will hold its third annual Craft Fair on Sunday, June 12 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Manchester Parkade.

Admission is free and refreshments will be available. About 150 craftsmen are expected to display items such as dolls, pottery, leather and woodworking. Only handcrafted articles will be accepted.

Applications are available by contacting Mrs. Barbara Bayer of Manchester at 646-1077.

About town

The Little Theater of Manchester will have a painting and construction workshop tomorrow at 9 a.m. at 22 Oak St.

The Perennial Planters Garden Club will meet Monday at 6:30 for a potluck supper at the home of Mrs. Theodore Chambers, 41 White St. Co-hosts will be Mrs. Leon Leggett.

Following the business meeting, Mrs. Chambers will speak and demonstrate "Plant Propagation."

Child's blood: Link to parents

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently on a television program a man said that a child had to have the same blood type as one or the other of the parents. Is this true?

I am a man 60 years old and was married 38 years and we had three children. Our marriage was fairly good but we had some differences stemming from her previous marriage which resulted in three children.

My blood type is O positive and hers is A positive. Two of my children had my blood type and they resembled me both in looks and make-up. The other child did not follow either my blood type or his mother's but had a rare type of blood (two letters and a negative). He also looked different. Could this mean I am not his father?

This son is married and has four children. I love him, always have and always will and this secret, if it is a secret, will die with me. He shall never know.

My wife has been dead for four years now and I have not and will not marry again. I hold nothing against her in any way and expect to meet her again in heaven. Can you give me any positive answer or literature that would settle this question?

DEAR READER — The problem of blood types and parentage is sufficiently complicated that I think people should rely on their doctor for an explanation. In the first place, we all have two genes to make up our blood type. Your wife, for example, must have been AO not just A. Both of your blood type genes are O. Some people consider type O as a neutral or no blood type. That is because the red blood cells contain no substance for blood typing. A parent transmits only one of his or her genes to the offspring. The O gene is the weak gene. As an AO and BO couple (classified as type A and type B) could have a child with type A, B, AB or O blood. You are talking about the Rh factor. Both you and your wife were Rh positive. Most of the children from such a union would be Rh positive but you also have two genes for the Rh factor. There is a dominant gene (D) and a weak gene (d) and each parent transmits only one of the genes to the child. Hence, if both parents were DD (Rh positive) all the children would be D. If both were Dd (Rh negative) all the children would be dd or Rh negative. The complexity occurs when both parents have Dd (also Rh positive) paired genes. On a chance basis one child will be DD (Rh positive). This is how two Rh positive (Dd parents) have an Rh negative offspring. To give you more information about the standard blood types, Rh factor and blood transfusions I am sending you The Health Letter number 84. Other readers who want this information can forward 50 cents with a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to the care of The Manchester Evening Herald, P.O. Box 226, San Antonio, Tex. 78222. If the information you have given me is correct I would assume your son is either type A Rh negative or type O Rh negative. And he would be your son even though he has Rh negative blood. Love is not based on genes. Parents can and do love an adopted child as much or more than one with their own genes. The important thing in your relationship with your son is that he is a product of your own loving upbringing. Nothing can change that. Knowing that he can have a different blood type than the Rh positive type you and your wife had may help you feel better about your relationship with your late wife.

Carter honeymoon with Congress may not be as easygoing as hoped

By United Press International Jimmy Carter's inauguration has ushered in an exciting time for the nation, but Carter may not have an easygoing honeymoon with the Congress, say three Connecticut congressmen. Rep. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn., said Carter will have to make some tough decisions about the economy. Rep. Tom Mottett, D-Conn., said Carter will have to concentrate on long-term measures concerning energy. "There's a new time in the country, an exciting time," said Dodd. "I think the President is going to have to make some tough decisions about particular policies we'll follow concerning financial constraints."

MCC announces more spring semester courses

The Community Services Division of Manchester Community College has scheduled two new courses — a non-credit course and one a three-credit course — for the spring semester. A non-credit course in bargello begins Monday, Jan. 31, and continues for nine weeks on Mondays from 1 to 3 p.m. Susan Cahalan of Manchester is the instructor. Bargello is a needlepoint craft which requires no previous needlework experience. Students will be taught how to set up a pattern to do one-line repeats, how to make the four-way bargello squares and oblongs, and how to hook a bargello.

PTA to feature discussion of report card system

The Verplanck School PTA will feature a discussion on the Manchester school report card system Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the school. The public is invited. Dr. Alfred Tychoen, assistant school superintendent, will moderate a panel discussion. Panel members will be Edward Timbrell, chairman of the report card committee and principal of the Keeney St. School; Mrs. Marion Plummer, third grade teacher at Keeney; and Robert Visny, sixth grade teacher at Verplanck School.

Arts council given grant for publishing calendar

The Manchester Arts Council has received a $1,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts through the Connecticut Commission on the Arts. The Manchester group was one of the three arts councils in the state that were awarded a total of $65,000 by the Commission. Schools in Ellington were among several other schools in the state to share in a $5,800 grant. Tentative plans for the use of the $1,000 grant by the Manchester Arts Council include the publication of a local arts calendar for community distribution, providing transportation to several arts events for those without such means, a series ticket to a combination of Manchester arts performances at a discount rate, the sponsorship of local artists at senior citizen housing projects, playgrounds and department stores, promotion of the artistic and cultural enrichment of the Manchester community. The Manchester Arts Council was organized last year. The council arranged for musical artist appearances at both Mayfair Gardens and Washill Gardens last summer. The council has published a year's listing of cultural activities in Manchester for 1977, and will list them monthly in The Herald.

CROG official to address chamber meet

Richard Suisman, chairman of the Capitol Region Council of Governments (CROG), has been invited to speak about the organization at a breakfast meeting of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce Directors Wednesday. The meeting, which Mayor Matthew M. Moriarty Jr. and Town Manager Robert B. Weiss have been invited, will be at 8:30 a.m. at the Colony in Vernon. Suisman has been invited to inform the local chamber of the work of the CROG as a regional forum according to Suzanne Flocken, executive director of the chamber. CROG has asked Manchester, and 17 other area chambers, to contribute $500 each to help fund an expanded staff to develop needed regional programs which are not adequately funded by their current revenue sources. The CROG programs are funded principally by federal funds.

Hoop team 7-3 at halfway mark

The Manchester High varsity basketball team completed the first half of its season with a 7-3 win-loss record. This puts the team in excellent shape for a post-season berth. The Indians' attack has been sporadic. They have shown glimpses of greatness by soundly beating Enfield and Penney High of East Hartford, but were sub-par in games versus Windham and Hall High of West Hartford.

The main problem with the Manchester offense has been its inability to create a balanced scoring attack. John Pisch has been averaging 20 points per game, but as of late has been forcing many poor shots. This problem has arisen mainly due to a lack of team movement on offense and the absence of a second consistent shooter.

Scott Hyde has been able to score on occasion, yet he seems to lose confidence as soon as he misses a couple of shots. Center Jeff Kieran has been forced to shoulder much of the rebounding responsibility against the more competitive teams. Unfortunately Kieran has been in perpetual foul trouble throughout many games and his predicament has led to the Indians' suffering underneath the boards. Due to his more aggressive style of play, Kieran's point average has increased significantly.

The scoring and rebounding of the forwards must be more consistent to take the pressure off Pisch, Hyde, and Kieran. Also a versatile third guard is needed to spark the team off the bench.

In the second half of the season, the offense must spread more responsibility to the forwards and the defense must sustain the high pressure that has guided them to seven victories thus far. The second half of the MIS schedule promises to be challenging as the pressure of being defending CCLL champion may take its toll. It is doubtful that the team will be able to catch league leader Penney, unless the forwards, Rich Marshall, Steve McKenzie, and Frank Beaupre play to full potential.

Manchester High girls' basketball team scored a victory over Penney High this week.

Editorial

Greek plays defended

I am writing in response to Chris Jaworski's editorial concerning the Greek plays that are included in the reading material for the Advanced Placement English course. I feel that Christ's attitude toward these plays is narrow.

Although I agree that it is distressing that literature has habitually depicted women so shallowly at best, it is not valid to criticize past authors for not adhering to the non-sexist values we stress today.

There is more to ancient Greek literature than sexism, and to stop there would be to miss some fascinating stories, whose characters and symbols still find their way into the literature of today.

Hopefully, in the future someone will write a truly nonsexist book. Until then, women will have to stop taking sexist literature as a personal insult and start looking for something more in what they read than an ego boost. — Anne Kibbie

Rock review: Boston

A new group has entered the ranks of rock guitar artists. This group, entitled "Boston," appeared at the end of last August, debuting at an amazing number forty-six on the top 100 list of albums in "Record World." The group, whose first album is also entitled "Boston," is headed by MIT graduate Tom Scholz, who obtained his master's degree in mechanical engineering from MIT.

After quitting a $30,000 a year job heading for the top with such names as "Aerosmith," "Yes," and "Led Zeppelin."

Carrying much of the instrumental weight of the group is Scholz, who plays lead, acoustic, and special effects guitars, bass, organ, and percussion. The other members of the band include Brad Delp (vocals, acoustic guitar, and percussion), Barry Goudreau (lead and rhythm guitars), Fred Sheehan (bass), and Sib Hashian (drums).

The style of "Boston" is basically hard rock, however, the musical knowledge of both Scholz and Delp creates the unique fluidity of the album. The LP's strongest songs are undoubtedly "More Than A Feeling" and "Peace of Mind." After hearing these first two songs, the listener can derive a very good idea of the group's style. All of the songs on the album tend to remain consistent with the first two songs, the listener can expect a hard rock style, except "Hitch a Ride" and "Let Me Take You Home Tonight." These two melodies add a slightly softer touch to the album.

"Boston" has definitely put out an impressive debut album. Their style is consistent and extremely accessible to the rock listener. If their creativity is not just in passing, more material from "Boston" will certainly be welcome. — S.C. and J.B.

Parliamentary rules use defended

Mr. Chairman, I am prompted to make this statement because of the relative success in recent meetings of the use of Parliamentary Procedure by the Student Assembly.

Some have said, Mr. Chairman, that the use of Robert's Rules of Order in such meetings is discriminatory and that it perpetuates a "ruling class" that speaks its own language in the Assembly. They say that those people who do not know the procedure will be left out in the cold at Assembly meetings; that they will be cut off from discussions by legalistic tricks from the "clique" in power.

Mr. Chairman, these beliefs are false. The notion that Parliamentary Procedure is discriminatory and unfair to the minority is, in fact, ridiculous. The very purpose of these rules is to defend the rights of the minority. Let me cite some examples.

First, anyone in the entire group can raise his hand and be recognized by the chairman of the meeting. This is not, however, as everyone can have his say in a discussion, and he may talk for as long as he wants.

This is obviously much better than having to speak quickly to avoid interruption by other people, as was the case in past years. The rules allow a speaker to take his time in speaking all of his thoughts—without interruption and with the full attention of all present. Discussion is made orderly and peaceful.

Secondly, if anyone should fail to understand what is being discussed, he may ask for a "point of clarity," whereupon everything will be explained to the questioner's satisfaction. Thus, nothing is voted on if even one listener is confused, and the majority cannot push anything through by a vote before anyone understands its implications.

Parliamentary Procedure also allows for an organized method of changing motions, of discussing problems, of organizing meetings, and even of seeing to the personal comfort of those at the meetings. Thus, while the majority still rules, the minority has its say and is as involved as it wants to be in the organized, smooth disposition of every issue.

As for those people who do not know the rules, there is a simple solution. They can learn them. The rules aren't hard to learn—all one really has to do is raise one's hand and be recognized by the chairman before Speaking. The rules are common sense rules. They involve the order in which problems should be attacked, the methods by which they should be discussed, and the way they should be voted on. After listening to the procedure being used just once, most people would be able to understand it thoroughly. If anyone is still in doubt, he can ask the chairman for clarification. It is, after all, one of the duties of the chairman to explain any questioned proceedings to the members. If anyone is interested in learning the very fine points of Robert's Rules,

Hartford to host skating competition

Figure skating is finally achieving prominence in the ranks of winter sports. It is not requiring skill and imagination as well as endurance and athletic ability. Charismatic and superior skaters like Dorothy Hamill have generated enthusiasm for the sport as an exciting performing sensation in addition to being an individual recreational activity.

Seemingly impossible flips and jumps, done at high speeds on one-quarter inch blades, are mated with fearfully beautiful death spirals, done with arched backs whirling dangerously close to the ice. This is combined with a rigorous adherence to disciplined form and style which creates an awe-inspiring spectacle on ice.

The selection of the Hartford Skating Club as the host for the 1977 U.S. Figure Skating Championships will bring the nation's top amateurs to the Hartford Civic Center from Feb. 2 to Feb. 6. This has been made possible through sponsorship by Travelers Insurance Companies as part of their Physical Exercise Pays Program (PEP). The areas of competition are men's and women's free skating, pairs skating, and ice dancing. The music chosen by the skating pairs creates a mood which they interpret and try to enhance through their skating. A blues dance with flamboyant, deliberate moves, or a march tempo with adroit quickstepping action are examples of the smooth union of music and movement achieved by the skater.

Individual skating includes performing compulsory figures not necessary in other two categories. Long, tedious hours are spent perfecting the deceiving simple-looking figure eights and various other loops and turns. Once this requirement is completed, the skaters' performance is governed solely by his personally

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The clan gathered at my sister-in-law's house for a holiday dinner. Everyone was nice and friendly until Sis turned to me and in a very loud voice said, "Say, what color would your hair really be if you didn't dye it?"

Well, things got pretty hot around there, and now the whole family—including my husband—is furious with me for insulting the hostess.

I don't see why her privacy is any more sacred than mine, but if you think I should apologize, I will.

NOT IRISH FOR NOTHING
DEAR ABBY: Even though she struck the first blow, we were childish and unkind to have struck a lower one. I will restore peace in the family, apologize.

DEAR ABBY: I have always believed in God, and in His goodness, but I am now having doubts.

There are 365 days in every year, yet on my wedding anniversary, the most joyous day of the year for me, God seems to take my beloved mother from this earth. So, instead of celebrating my anniversary, it has become a day of sad and mourning.

Then I had a son. On his 10th birthday, God chose to take my beloved father from me. Again, a happy day was turned into a sad one.

Have you any words of comfort for me, Abby? I feel as though the Lord has punished me, but for what, I do not know.

Another thing. People describe themselves as "God-fearing Christians." I have read the Scriptures and can find nothing in them that says we should FEAR God. So, when people want to describe themselves as "good Christians," why do they say the are "God-fearing" Christians?

HAVING DOUBTS
DEAR HAVING: Read the Book of Job again and restore your faith in the Lord. According to my dictionary, "God-fearing" means "devout."

The Old Testament tells us in Ecclesiastes to "Fear God and keep His commandments."

DEAR ABBY: When letters come to you asking about whether a girl should wear a bra or not, you should take the opportunity to say, "Yes, with a capital 'Y,'" and then explain that girls who have embezzled and failed to support them become victims of Cooper's Syndrome.

To further explain: Native African women whose pictures you see in the National Geographic magazine have never known what a brassiere was, and consequently their breasts are all stretched out and hang precariously to their waists. They are victims of Cooper's Syndrome...of Cooper's droop.

Please tell girls that as soon as they have something to hold up and down and thinking they are liberated, I want to cry. It's too late for me, so sign me...

FLIP-FLOP IN GARDEN CITY

DEAR FLIP: I'll pass your words of warning and wisdom on to my readers. Girls, his is the to a corseteer!

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your ingenuity today is limited. A financial artist could take you to the cleaners and you might even thank him!

Taurus (April 20-May 20) While you might be unhappy about your right today, you're a versatile individual if someone threatens the well-being of those you care about.

Cancer (June 21-July 23) Although it is difficult for you to lean on people today, the only way to getting the job done is to be able to do so. Make orders un-mistakable.

Leo (July 24-Aug. 23) Put it in writing today if the people you're dealing with are unknown quantities. Be doubly sure to expound on all the fine points.

Virgo (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) There are easy ways out for you today, but they are not necessarily the right ones. Your course of action requires the most courage and initiative.

Libra (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) You hold more trump cards than you realize today. Don't abdicate your control in financial dealings when other resources are inferior to yours.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your ingenuity today is limited. A financial artist could take you to the cleaners and you might even thank him!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) While you might be unhappy about your right today, you're a versatile individual if someone threatens the well-being of those you care about.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Friends may make important requests of you today. You'll accede, even though you may doubt their sincerity. Your worries are ill-founded.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Although you prefer to do business with friends as a good standing, today you could be better off dealing with recent acquaintances.

PIESCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your aim is a bit fuzzy today. When the real test comes, you could miss the bullseye.

he was ready to do his thinking, but it was too late. The contract had found its way to that point in space from which there is no return.

Just a little thought before playing from his own hand at trick one and South would see that if he played his ace of hearts there would be a sure entry to dummy.

Then he could lead the king of diamonds, overtake with dummy's ace and lead the jack of diamonds.

West would win with the queen. He could lead a second heart or a spade or a club. It wouldn't make any difference. South would have time to knock out East's king of hearts and wind up with two spades, two hearts, five diamonds and the smile of a Cheesecake cat.

Obituaries

George J. Findlay
George J. Findlay, 52, of New Haven, formerly of Manchester, died Thursday at Yale-New Haven Hospital.

Mr. Findlay was born Sept. 4, 1924 in Manchester, son of Mrs. Martha Hewitt Timmins of Manchester and the late George Findlay, and had lived in Manchester before moving to New Haven 18 years ago. He was a veteran of World War II and served with the Marine Corps in the Pacific Theater.

He is also survived by two brothers, Frank Findlay of South Windsor and Donald Findlay, serving with the Air Force at McGuire AFB, N.J., and two sisters, Mrs. Stephen (Diane) Edwards, both of Manchester.

The private funeral is Saturday at Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St. Burial will be in East Cemetery. There are no calling hours.

Mrs. Charles B. Claffey
VERNON—Mrs. Louise A. Claffey, 56, of West Hartford died Thursday at Hartford Hospital. She was the wife of Charles B. Claffey and mother of Mrs. Patricia C. Peak of Vernon.

She is also survived by two sons, two brothers, a sister, and five grandchildren.

The funeral is Saturday at 8:15 a.m. from the Richard W. Sheehan Funeral Home, 1084 New Britain Ave., West Hartford, with a Mass at St. Bridgid's Church, West Hartford, at 9 a.m. Burial will be in Soldiers Field, Fairview Cemetery, West Hartford.

Friends may call at the funeral home today from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. The family suggests that any memorial gifts may be made to the American Cancer Society, 670 Prospect St., Hartford.

Theodore R. Wochoski
SOUTH WINDSOR—Theodore R. Wochoski, 37, of 259 Benedict Dr. died Thursday at Manchester Memorial Hospital. He was the husband of Mrs. Marie Monesiglio Wochoski.

Mr. Wochoski coached two South Windsor Little League teams, the Mets and the Red Sox. He was employed as a computer operator at the Springfield Sugar and Products Co., Suffield. He was born in Hartford, son of Theodore and Mary Casanelli Wochoski of East Hartford, and had lived in the greater Hartford area all his life. He attended St. Margaret Mary Church.

Other survivors are three sons, Mark Wochoski, Steven Wochoski and John Wochoski, all at home; a daughter, Kim Wochoski, at home; two sisters, Mrs. Frances McCarron and Mrs. Eleanor Violette, both of East Hartford; and his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Eleanor Wochoski of East Hartford.

The funeral is Saturday at 9:30 a.m. from Callahan Funeral Home, 1602 Main St., East Hartford, with a Mass at St. Margaret Mary Church at 10:30 a.m. Burial will be in St. James Cemetery, Manchester.

Managers
The Advisory Park and Recreation Commission Thursday received a new set of rules regarding residency requirements for all adult recreation activities prepared by Melvin R. Siebold, recreation director, and Carl Silver, assistant director.

After initial admonishing of Siebold for releasing the new ruling to the press before the commission reviewed it, the commission members agreed to the majority of the ruling and did not make an alternate recommendation.

A statement by member Dorothy Brindamour requesting a phase-out of non-resident players over a three-year period in the Silk City softball league was read and considered as a formal motion. After an explanation of the thinking behind the rule by Silver, Mrs. Brindamour withdrew her motion. However, she said she does not agree completely with the ruling.

The new eligibility ruling, which applies to softball, basketball and volleyball programs, reads: "Must be a resident of Manchester; or pay taxes to the Town of Manchester; or be a full-time employee for the sponsor of a team paying taxes to the Town of Manchester; or attend a local church that sponsors a team; or a member of a civic or veteran organization that is sponsoring a team, he/she may play for that team only; or be a full-time student attending Manchester Community College, East Catholic High School and Howell Cheney Regional Vocational School." The original recommendation on the ruling made by the Park and Recreation Commission asked that all non-residents be prohibited from playing on teams.

The recreation directors complied with the commission's request for the stiffer penalties for breaking the rules. The new rules state that "no exceptions will be permitted."

Violations of the rule will result in forfeiture of any games in which ineligible players participated. Submission of a falsified roster will result in managers, coaches and players being suspended from participation in the programs.

Silver explained the reasons the schools, churches and other sponsors were included in the ruling. He said

CD fund allocations unopposed

By ALICE EVANS
Herald Reporter

The Citizens Advisory Committee received no opposition to its plans for allocating next year's Community Funds Thursday night at a public hearing at Nathan Hale School and will present its suggestions to the Board of Directors Feb. 1.

The $25,000 originally planned to be used from next year's funds for Globe Hollow pool renovations, will instead be taken from this year's funds so that work on the pool may begin as soon as possible. Next year's funds will not be available in time for the work to be done before the swimming season opens, Alan Mason, coordinator of the Community Development program, said.

The committee proposes to allocate $107,000 of the available $201,000 for a storm sewer, $100,000 for housing rehabilitation, $40,000 for administration including the housing rehabilitation program, $20,000 for enforcement of the housing code, $10,000 for legal aid for lower income families and for a housing study and $19,000 for a contingency fund.

The committee Thursday night also approved a proposed housing assistance plan, which includes rehabilitation of rental units and rehabilitation assistance to home owners.

Frank Vaccaro of the Organization of the Handicapped attended the public hearing, not to offer any opposition but to "find out what the situation is for the handicapped." "There doesn't seem to be any affirmative action in Manchester," he said, "there just seems to be a lot of talk about it."

He told the committee that the handicapped wanted a place similar to the Senior Citizens Center and that the needs of the elderly and handicapped intermesh.

Mason said that the town is proposing to make a section of the Nike Site into a multi-use center, which will be open to the handicapped for a variety of uses.

A contract has been awarded to have the building at the Nike Site ramped, Mason said. However the program won't go too far until the town gets a bus to take the people there, and the town is now seeking a grant for that purpose, he said.

The public hearing was closed and then reopened for Betty Intagliata, president of the League of Women Voters. She said that she was pleased to see that the committee had allocated funds for a number of suggestions made by the league last summer including increased funds for a day care center, measures to increase low and medium income housing, to maintain existing housing and to rehabilitate deteriorating housing, and to allocate funds for storm sewers in the dry brook area.

The committee, which has been asked by the Board of Directors to work on a housing study, invited the league to join them in the assignment.

Chamber sets early meeting
The past, present and future of inter-community cooperation in Greater Hartford is the subject of an "Early Bird" breakfast sponsored by the East Hartford Chamber of Commerce.

The breakfast will be Feb. 8 at 8 a.m. at the Ramada Inn, East River Dr.

Mayor Richard Blackstone of East Hartford and Dana S. Hanson, executive director of the Capitol Region Council of Governments (CROCG), will speak.

CROCG has asked the 19 chambers in the Hartford region to help support the Chamber Tuesday night by attending the breakfast.

The breakfast is open to the public. For tickets, call the chamber at 289-0239.

Paramedic recovering

East Hartford Paramedic Robert Kampman was reported in comfortable condition late this morning in the intensive care unit of Hartford Hospital.

Kampman suffered a heart attack Wednesday night after being struck by an injured man on the highway.

The injured man had reportedly shot himself in the mouth with a .25-caliber pistol while he sat in the bar of the Ramada Inn on East River Dr., police said.

The man survived the incident but his identity and condition were not available today.

Paramedic recovering
East Hartford Paramedic Robert Kampman was reported in comfortable condition late this morning in the intensive care unit of Hartford Hospital.

Kampman suffered a heart attack Wednesday night after being struck by an injured man on the highway.

The injured man had reportedly shot himself in the mouth with a .25-caliber pistol while he sat in the bar of the Ramada Inn on East River Dr., police said.

The man survived the incident but his identity and condition were not available today.

Chamber sets early meeting
The past, present and future of inter-community cooperation in Greater Hartford is the subject of an "Early Bird" breakfast sponsored by the East Hartford Chamber of Commerce.

The breakfast will be Feb. 8 at 8 a.m. at the Ramada Inn, East River Dr.

Mayor Richard Blackstone of East Hartford and Dana S. Hanson, executive director of the Capitol Region Council of Governments (CROCG), will speak.

CROCG has asked the 19 chambers in the Hartford region to help support the Chamber Tuesday night by attending the breakfast.

The breakfast is open to the public. For tickets, call the chamber at 289-0239.

Coventry residents won't play the numbers game

By LINDA LOVERING
Herald Correspondent

Coventry's street numbering system has been in effect for nearly three weeks but only two per cent of the residents are using the system, Postmaster Victor Lombardo said. And 600 numbering mistakes have been reported to the Town Hall, Zoning Agent Ernest Wheeler said. Both officials say there are a lot of problems with the system, which started in 1974. Most of the problems were solved and all residents comply with the system. Lombardo and Wheeler agree that residents are unhappy with the system. Some of the complaints they have received are about odd numbers, even numbers, change of address, high numbers, low numbers, and the need for "a city system in a rural town."

Some townspeople think the whole thing is nonsense and refuse to use it at all. Lombardo and Wheeler support the system despite the complaints. "The system could save lives," Lombardo said. Police have had to call Lombardo in the middle of the night to locate a town resident. In a real emergency, Lombardo said, he has had to come to the post office to find the needed information. "Some residents will receive their mail faster," Lombardo said. Once everyone uses the system, it will be easier and faster to sort and deliver mail. There are 2,452 individual boxes to sort mail into at the post office. "Without proper addresses, the sorter has to find the resident's name among 500 boxes, which is difficult and time consuming," he said. "One man screamed about a letter that was returned," Lombardo said. The resident lived on Rt. 44A and did not use his rural route or box number on the address. There were two people with the same name on the same road. The post office explained why the resident should use the correct address, but the resident mailed letters that day with Rt. 44A as his return address, Lombardo said. Wheeler said 150 of the 600 mistakes reported have been cleared up. Most of the mistakes are numbers left out of the original plan, and there is also a problem with absentee landlords, he said. The unassigned numbers probably resulted from inexperienced persons, with only occasional access to records, not realizing that buildings existed on certain properties, Wheeler said. The landlord problem is a result of out-of-town and out-of-state property owners who received the new number but did not inform the local tenant, he said.

In these cases, Wheeler asks the residents to understand that it takes time to research and assign a new number. Mail service will not be disturbed and emergency services can reach residents, Wheeler said. Wheeler has given the fire and police departments the numbers of every town street junction and the direction and side of the street can easily be located if the numbers are used. "The system will avoid searching for one of our green houses on an unmarked street," Wheeler said. "It will provide faster fire, police and ambulance service when needed, he said. The system is not a new idea, Wheeler said. It took three years to develop. Wheeler found evidence of a street numbering proposal dated 1967 and has been told there were proposals in the 1940s. He said the early proposals probably failed because there was not enough time or personnel to do the job. The work is not over, Wheeler said. All the problems have to be resolved and the system has to be tied in with the town assessor's and tax collector's records. Residents are not using the system, Lombardo said, reminding townspeople to use the "change of address" kits, available at the post office, to notify friends and businesses every time they write. There is also a problem with residents who live in Coventry but receive their mail from another post office, Lombardo said. He said those residents may use their Coventry address if they also add the post office and zip code of the town they receive mail from. Tolland has had the system for over a year and only 30 per cent of the residents there are using the system, Lombardo said. "I hope we have better success," he said.

cluding schedule favors the Silk Towers. Of their final slate, the Indians have four home and four away with two of the road contests at Eastfield and East Hartford with the most likely big headache being a visit Feb. 15 to Forni. Penney on the other hand, has only three of its final eight at home with trips to Hall, Forni and Windham to be made, places where victories by guests are always well-earned. It's a very short drive for Coventry High as it will be the first meeting at Clarke Arena, 63-40. East Hartford is at home with the 2-6, 2-7 Beavers entertaining a potent 6-1, 7-1 Coventry High contingent in Charter Oak Conference play. Don't overlook Windham. The Whippets have won four of their last five, three straight, and have tightened up considerably on the defensive end under new coach John Welch. If anything, Windham is playing a strong defense and the marked improvement in Penney can be attributed to its improved defense. Neither Wethersfield, Simsbury nor Hall can be called a patsy or said out of it in two games in arena. Folks, we got ourselves a genuine horse race. That's absolutely great.

It's a race

Last season after nine games, Manchester High had a three-game lead on the rest of the pack in the CCIL basketball race. It over-all was a dull stretch drive to the finish, which Manchester expectedly won. This year, however, it's different—it's a horse race which should generate excitement around the league and attract some crowds. The Silk Towers and Penney High of East Hartford currently share the top rung, each at 8-2, with Windham

Vernon seeks grant for camp education

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

The Board of Education and the Town of Vernon will apply to the state Department of Environmental Protection for a grant to subsidize a proposed summer environmental education program at Camp Newhoca. The total estimated cost is about $27,410. It is hoped $21,228 will come from federal funds, with the town's contribution to be $6,182. The program is designed to educate Vernon students in Grades 7 to 11 and demonstrate to townspeople the relationship of people to their environment. Participants will study the natural surroundings of an area of the town recently acquired for public use. Financial assistance now will insure the immediate designation of Camp Newhoca as an ecological preserve and prevent destruction of the area due to apathy, school officials said.

ecological preserve within the camp by developing the property from the best ecological aspects, Miss Lucille Kahly, science supervisor, said. Miss Kahly developed the proposed program. Miss Kahly said immediate and long-term benefits in the area include: Developing a natural area for individuals and groups interested in ecology and conservation, to increase the participants' sensitivity to environmental problems and solutions, to provide basic information about the area for the use of other interested groups or government agencies who might use the area, and to develop a resource area for use by teachers for environmental education. Miss Kahly said the camp area is unique in that it includes a forest, a field, a marsh, a lake and floating islands. The proposed staff would include a director at a salary of $1,700; six instructors for total salaries of $9,450; a secretary/bookkeeper, $625; arts and crafts instructor, $625; swim instructor, $1,050, and nurse, $1,050. Other expenses would include office supplies, $400; teaching supplies, $7,000; transportation, $5,610; and audit, $100. AARP plans trip. The Tolland County Chapter of the American Association for Retired Persons is accepting reservations for a trip to Cape Cod March 20 to 22. A deposit is due Monday. High one game back and three others one length farther behind. Hall of West Hartford, Wethersfield and Simsbury each show 6-1 records while still in striking distance is Conard of West Hartford at 5-5. While it probably is too far back to make a run at the title, look out for West Hartford, which has a rebounding Forni of Enfield five. The Falcons, after being beset by injuries and snake-bitten by narrow defeats, began the second half of their league slate with an overtime decision over Hall. Forni might not top the CCIL crown, but it's a good bet the Falcons will have a big say on who does. Only Enfield High and wireless East Hartford can be counted out of the running. They can't be totally discounted, however, as the Hornets Tuesday night lost by only six to Simsbury. Wireless East Hartford might set a record of sorts. The Hornets' football team went unbeaten, winning 11 straight including the first state Class L game. The roundball squad in contrast, has't won in 10 outings and if form holds could go winless. It seems silly, considering Manchester and Penney have the same eight opponents to finish with, but looking at the pair, the con-

The Democratic candidate is the best kept secret in town. Republicans who have told the party chairman of their interest in being endorsed for a town office are: Board of Selectman: Norman Preuss, Ernest Shepherd, Mary Lou Lemaire, Douglas Cheney and Norma Tedford. Town Meeting moderator: Catherine Peterson. Democrats weren't talking about their state of candidates and The Herald was unable to obtain the names of those seeking party endorsement. State environmental officials recommended Thursday the proposed Middletown race track be kept from opening because it would cause too much air pollution in West Haven, a city 25 miles away. The proposed $55 million facility would be the first horse track in Connecticut history. The Department of Environmental Protection's Air Compliance Engineering Section said its preliminary evaluation determined the track should not open because it would attract too much pollution-making traffic on the Interstate 95 interchange at West Haven. Track attorney Harold Keith didn't buy that logic. "It is inequitable and unfair to expect us to solve a situation which is already in violation of pollution standards and which is 25 miles away," Keith said. "If this is the standard the state applies, it will mean the absolute halt to any construction of any kind in the state," Keith said.

Health service adds 2 nurses

The Community Health Service Inc. has appointed two new public health nurses for Hebron. Mrs. Karen Thurber is the new public health nurse at the Gilead Hill School and will provide coverage for the Gilead section of town. She is a graduate of St. John's hospital in Ohio and Salem State College in Mass. She was previously employed by the Marblehead, Mass., Visiting Nurse Association. Mrs. Naomi Turro is the new public health nurse for the Hebron Elementary School and the Amston section of town. She is a graduate of the University of Vermont and was previously employed as school nurse in the Mansfield school system. Physical examinations for Grades 2 and 5 were given this week at the Gilead Hill School. About 30 students who were unable to have exams by their own physicians were seen.

Hebron student elected to rec and park group

Melissa Alden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Alden of Reidy Hill Rd., Hebron, has been elected to the National Recreation and Parks Association Student Branch by the New England Students Recreation and Parks Society. Ms. Alden, 19, is a first-year student at Northwestern Community College, Winsted, where she is working toward a degree in recreation and outdoor education. She was named representative for all colleges and universities in New England, Nova Scotia, Quebec, Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland and New Brunswick, after the association convention at the University of New Hampshire, Durham. She will be required to attend conventions in Illinois in February and in Las Vegas in October. The regional group in Vegas is planning to hold its annual convention in the early stages of organization, and she will pay her own expenses for the trips. She will bring back firsthand information to students about jobs and new ideas and formats for recreation education. Ms. Alden is the lone representative for New England states and the Atlantic provinces because no representatives have been elected from each state and province. She said it will take at least a year to organize and that her participation in the national convention will help. She is looking for local, regional and state groups to donate or help raise funds for going to the conventions. She said she is willing to work for the funds. The association is a nonprofit organization that she feels will benefit the region, its students and residents. Any group or individual interested in the program and in helping a student bring her education back to the people may contact her at her home in Hebron.

The Andover Board of Selectmen said Wednesday the highway crew will not plow two turn-arounds for school buses as requested by the Board of Education. Beatrice Kowalski, school board chairman, said selectmen were asked to plow turn-arounds at the Reed home and at the Hazen home, both on Rt. 6. The selectmen said one turn-around is sufficient. The turn-arounds are within 700 feet of each other. Mrs. Kowalski said safety for children is a major concern of the school board.

Streaks still intact

By EARL YOST
Sports Editor

Two streaks were on the line when the "new look" New England Whalers entertained the division leading Quebec Nordiques last night at the Hartford Civic Center and both were intact today.

The hosts went down to their eighth straight loss while the visitors extended their string to seven with a come-from-behind 3-4 decision.

With 59 seconds left to play, Coach Harry Neale of the Whalers inserted Cap Baeder in the goal. It was a strategy goal but one that many die-hard Whalers fans thought should have been done 59 minutes and one second sooner.

Goalie Christer Abrahamsson had another bad night and despite the fine play of newcomers Dave Keon and Johnny McKenzie in particular, poor play in the nets turned what looked like an easy Whaler runaway, to another disappointing defeat.

The Whalers jumped off to a 3-0 lead in the first 10 minutes before the roof fell in.

Outside of goal tending, it was one of the Whalers' best efforts, perhaps the best since the last win over the Russia Nationals.

Neither Keon nor McKenzie tallied but the two veterans, acquired from Edmonton and the ill-fated Minnesota Saints, performed brilliantly. The Carlson brothers, Jack and Steve, also made their debuts on regular shifts with Tom Webster, Rick Ley and Brad Selwood

The Whaler loss skinned started Jan. 4 against the Nordiques.

"It was the most encouraging loss," Neale said. "We're going to turn it around this season. In six of our eight losses, we've been right in the games up to the final period. I know we're going to be there (playoffs) when it's all over."

No one is going to catch Quebec. The Nordiques boast three of the top scorers and appear to be ever better than pre-season forecasts.

The winning goal came off the stick of Marc Tardif, the No. 1 star of the game, at 7:35 of the final period. He assisted on two earlier scores.

Gordie Roberts scored twice, one unassisted, after Dave Hynes opened the scoring at 2:34 and the Whalers had a 3-0 edge. Real Cloutier at 11:42 and Curt Brackerbury at 12:36 narrowed the edge to 3-2 at the first break.

Christian Boredeau knotted the game at 14:19 but Mike Rogers put the Whalers out front at 15:35 before Paulin Boredeau beat Abrahamsson at 17:25, unassisted.

Tardif's game clincher came while the Nordiques were short-handed.

The Whalers held a 3-23 edge in shots.

ICE CHIPS - Dan Bolduc has been sent out to Providence and Jim Troy assigned to Erie in the North American League as the Whalers got down to their 25-man maximum.

Tardif has scored four goals and 11 assists in his last six games. When the latter tallied the tie-breaker it marked the 10th shorthanded goal he's scored this year.

Finley big fan of Banks

By MILT RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — One of Ernie Banks' biggest fans is Charlie Finley, and like so many others, he felt good reading all those beautiful things Ernie had to say about baseball the other day.

One of Ernie's declarations was simply too much for him, though. Charlie couldn't take it, even being such a big fan of Banks.

The statement in question was made by Banks here Wednesday after he was elected to Baseball's Hall of Fame. Banks had been considered himself to have been a member of the Chicago Cubs 19 years when one newsmen asked him what he would've done if he ever had the same chance to better himself financially as some of today's superstars.

Banks said he wouldn't do. There were other considerations, such as long-time personal associations, which were and still are more important to him than money, Banks said.

"He has one word for that. 'Bigwash!'"

"Ernie Banks is human, the same as anybody else," says the Oakland A's owner. "I understand how someone might say one thing when he's in the ring, and how he may say something entirely different when he's outside the ring."

Finley, who has great respect and admiration for Ernie Banks, but he's the same as anybody else, and if he says he wouldn't go in the face of so much more money, I say hogwash!"

From Finley's experience, it's hard for him to believe any ballplayer would be so loyal to one team that he'd stay with that club despite being offered much more money by another one. Personally, I don't think too many players would. Banks, I believe, would be one of the few who would stay. He REALLY loves the Cubs.

Finley's cynicism isn't that difficult to comprehend. No other owner was hurt as much as he was by players playing out their options. He lost six of his best players that way. Even now, he's awaiting a Federal Court decision in a $10 million case that is a direct outgrowth of players being able to play out their options.

Some of those who have played for him describe Finley in words that would never get by in a family newspaper, and you might think that because so many left him for more money, he might describe them in the same general terms, but he doesn't.

"I don't believe the fans in America should criticize today's athletes," says Finley. "I don't blame the athletes for all these astronomical, unjustified salaries. It was an athlete working for such stupid owners, I would take all they handed out."

"I'm concerned about the future of all sports," Finley goes on. "I was the only person I know to own teams in three different sports. I had the California Golden Seals in the National Hockey League and the Memphis Teams in the American Basketball Association, and I sold them because I saw the handwriting on the wall."

"When I see the World Football League fold; the American Basketball Association go out of business; teams in the World Hockey Association folding and other teams in baseball, basketball and hockey in trouble financially, I don't have to be any genius to know what the score is today and what it's likely to be tomorrow." Finley feels all professional sports are headed downhill, and somehow I have the feeling he's right.

"It amounts," he says, "to this: play hog and you wind up eating corn cobs. There are many owners playing hog today. Joe Fan is paying the freight right now but won't continue to pay it much longer the way things are going. Everybody has a point where he says that's it, and gets off. I don't think your average Joe Fan is far from that point, only some owners still can't see it. The reason they can't is because they're stupid."

Finley loves baseball, enjoys being a controversial sports fan and actually doesn't want to sell his A's.

"I don't want to get out, but I'm sorry to say I may have to," he says. "If baseball continues operating the way it has been with dumb ownership and leadership, it'll drive me out."

Order of day

BOCA RATON, Fla. (UPI) — Love, goosebumps and tennis — in that order — were what people were talking about on the eve of today's first match in the $300,000 Grand Slam of Tennis championship.

Bjorn Borg is here with his 19-year-old Romanian fiancée, but Jimmy Connors is sans sweetheart.

Yankees get Blair to bolster defense

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Yankees, looking for defensive help in the outfield, Thursday traded offensive threat Elliott Maddox and fellow outfielder Rick Bladt to the Baltimore Orioles for speedy center-fielder Paul Blair.

Blair, who will be 33 in February and an eight-time Golden Glove winner, was the Orioles' all-time leading base stealer with 167 steals. He failed to qualify for a Golden Glove last season for only the second time since 1967.

In 1974 Blair shared his team's most valuable player honors, but last year his batting average dipped to .277, the lowest of any regular in the major leagues, and just three homers and 16 RBIs, and the year before he hit just 218.

"I can play in the backcourt but I'm better off at forward because I can freelance better and move without the ball more effectively," said Blair.

The result of the forced shift has been a slowdown in Blair's running game. Maddox, 28, started 303 in 1974 and was batting .307 in 1975 when an injury to his right knee sidelined him for the rest of the season. He has undergone knee surgery twice in the past two years and appeared in only 18 games for the Yankees last season, batting .217 in 46 plate appearances.

After the season, he arranged on his own to have the knee operated on in December, without going through the Yankee office.

"I think I did the right thing," Maddox said at the time. "I had to do for my career and for the rest of my life. I'm sure I will be back 100 per cent."

Bladt, 30 last year batted .285 for the Syracuse Chiefs, the Yankees' top farm club. Except for a 53-game stretch with the Yankees in 1975, he has been with the Chiefs for seven years.

Fred Saunders Celts' answer

BOSTON (UPI) — A swiftness, as the Boston Celtics defined him years ago, is a player who can perform as both a quick forward and a big guard.

The embodiment of the word "swiftness" was John Havlicek, the Celtics' 6-foot-5 John Havlicek. He always could keep up with the switch to forward and the height to play guard.

"I can play in the backcourt but I'm better off at forward because I can freelance better and move without the ball more effectively," said Blair.

East girls roll up easy victory

Showing consistency and putting its best overall effort of the season together, East Catholic High's girls' basketball team won a 74-47 victory over the St. Paul of Bristol yesterday, 58-24.

The success was the seventh in nine starts. Rita Lupacchino established a personal and team high total with 15 in pacing the triumph with Debbie Beaulieu and Rita Lupacchino dropping in 13 and 11 points respectively. Therault paced the Saints with nine.

The winners controlled both boards with Lupacchino coming up with 15.

Sue Freiheit and Lauren Willett starred defensively, alternating assignments on St. Paul's top scorer. The Academy of the Holy Family fell to the East Jayvees, 44-17, with Ellen Pettakits hoping 10 points.

NEW YORK (UPI) — On a night when he was acclaimed as the very best in his field, on an occasion when several hundred friends and fans came to honor him as a man, it didn't seem out of place at all for Julius Erving to share his private dreams.

Erving's dream of leading the Nets to the American Basketball Association championship last season. Shortly after that success, four ABA teams were merged into the National Basketball Association and Erving was sold to the 76ers for approximately $3.5 million when he was unable to reach agreement on a new contract with Nets' owner Roy Boe.

Rich and recognized as a superstar for all times, a handsome, young man whose life is a fairy tale come true. Dr. J. revealed a need that can't be solved by putting a basketball through a hoop. He termed it the opportunity of "doing God's work."

"I think how generous God has been to me, to bless me with big hands, when he was unable to get a body," Erving said Thursday night, when he was honored by Sport Magazine as its Performer of the Year for 1976. "I'm thankful to him and ever more thankful for the opportunities I've had."

The 26-year-old forward, who has an estimated $3 million contract with the Philadelphia 76ers, continued in a serious vein. "I guess I can consider myself someone whose dreams have come true. This is a situation I've always dreamed of attaining. On other days and other nights I've had other dreams. I've dreamed of peace in the world, and of eliminating ghettos, senseless violence and of people hating one another.

"I have a chance to turn these dreams into things more positive, constructive, progressive... doing God's work, promoting family unity and good will."

Erving, who has answered this Thursday by saying, "... It's not that I'm being held back. The first half of the season I had to work myself into condition because I missed training camp. I also had to get to know my new teammates."

Later in the evening, he went a little further. "This is 1977, a new year. I'm seriously thinking of bringing Dr. J. out of the closet for the next 41 games. We'll see what we can do about that."

"I have a chance to turn these dreams into things more positive, constructive, progressive... doing God's work, promoting family unity and good will."

Erving, who has answered this Thursday by saying, "... It's not that I'm being held back. The first half of the season I had to work myself into condition because I missed training camp. I also had to get to know my new teammates."

Later in the evening, he went a little further. "This is 1977, a new year. I'm seriously thinking of bringing Dr. J. out of the closet for the next 41 games. We'll see what we can do about that."

NEW YORK (UPI) — On a night when he was acclaimed as the very best in his field, on an occasion when several hundred friends and fans came to honor him as a man, it didn't seem out of place at all for Julius Erving to share his private dreams.

Erving's dream of leading the Nets to the American Basketball Association championship last season. Shortly after that success, four ABA teams were merged into the National Basketball Association and Erving was sold to the 76ers for approximately $3.5 million when he was unable to reach agreement on a new contract with Nets' owner Roy Boe.

Rich and recognized as a superstar for all times, a handsome, young man whose life is a fairy tale come true. Dr. J. revealed a need that can't be solved by putting a basketball through a hoop. He termed it the opportunity of "doing God's work."

"I think how generous God has been to me, to bless me with big hands, when he was unable to get a body," Erving said Thursday night, when he was honored by Sport Magazine as its Performer of the Year for 1976. "I'm thankful to him and ever more thankful for the opportunities I've had."

The 26-year-old forward, who has an estimated $3 million contract with the Philadelphia 76ers, continued in a serious vein. "I guess I can consider myself someone whose dreams have come true. This is a situation I've always dreamed of attaining. On other days and other nights I've had other dreams. I've dreamed of peace in the world, and of eliminating ghettos, senseless violence and of people hating one another.

"I have a chance to turn these dreams into things more positive, constructive, progressive... doing God's work, promoting family unity and good will."

Blood pressure check in Coventry

Mrs. George Kalber closes her eyes while Joan Andruktis, staff nurse with the Coventry Public Health Nursing Association, checks her blood pressure. The association conducted blood pressure screening this week for members of the Coventry Senior Citizens Club.

Area bulletin board

Andover

The Boy Scouts will have a paper drive March 5 at the First Congregational Church. Residents are asked to bring their papers to the church. Anyone needing pickup may call James Kilduff, 742-8566.

The Andover Rural Music Committee will present pianist Alexander Farkas in recital Jan. 28 at 8 p.m. at the First Congregational Church. Farkas will present a light program consisting of works by Chopin, Liszt and Weber. Farkas is an assistant professor at the Hartt College of Music, University of Hartford. Tickets may be obtained in advance by calling the Town Office Building, 742-7305.

The Columbia chapter of the American Red Cross will sponsor a bloodmobile at the Columbia Congregational Church, Rt. 87, on Jan. 31 from 1:30 to 6:30 p.m. The chapter is comprised of the towns of Andover, Hebron and Columbia. Walk-in donors will be welcome. Persons from 18 to 66 years of age may donate blood. Those age 17 may donate if they have parental permission. Andover Republicans will caucus Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Andover Elementary School Library to choose candidates for the May town election. The Republican Town Committee will meet Tuesday at 7 p.m. to endorse a slate of candidates to present to the caucus. Nominations will be accepted from the floor. Anyone interested in running for an elected office should call J. Russell Thompson, Robert Little, Cynthia Clark or Ylo Anson.

Bolton

There will be a briefing meeting Jan. 27 at 8 p.m. at the United Methodist Church for persons making home calls during Evangelistic Calling Emphasis, Feb. 1 to 13.

Coventry

Only seven of the 16 boards and commissions in Coventry have filed their 1977 meeting schedule. Town Clerk Elizabeth Rychnyng said. She has sent notices to all agencies which haven't filed; the deadline is Jan. 31. An agency may not meet sooner than 30 days after filing unless it calls a special meeting. The eight agencies which have filed their schedules are the Town Council, Board of Education, Planning and Zoning Commission, Inland Wetlands Agency, Zoning Board of Appeals, Sewer Authority and the Committee on the Needs of the Aging.

Ellington

Commission re-elects Bates

Bolton

Stanley Bates has been re-elected chairman of the Bolton Conservation Commission for 1977. He and Wayne Shorey, secretary, were named at a recent commission meeting.

The commission is continuing its discussion of draft regulations on inland wetlands and water courses. The commission expects to be the local regulatory agency.

Commission members have instructed Bates to obtain copies of the proposed state "bottle bill" and environmental education bill. The commission plans to take a stand on each proposal.

Library board

At its last meeting, the Bolton Library Board discussed possible uses for the $1,000 gift from the Savings Bank of Manchester. Suggestions under consideration include shelving for the children's area and reupholstering and painting two chairs.

Librarian Raymond Woollett is preparing a priority list for discussion at the next meeting. Woollett is also meeting with the school librarian to discuss ways of cooperation.

Educators report progress

Bolton

A recent activity period for Grade 1 to 4 students of Bolton Elementary-Center School was so successful that several more are planned, Principal Richard Packman said.

In his report to the Board of Education, Packman also said a career planning survey was administered to Grade 8 students by Janice Spear, guidance counselor. The information will be used to help with course selection in Grade 9.

Packman said local teachers attended a curriculum day in December. The objective for the kindergarten through Grade 6 teachers was to develop and participate in meaningful teaching skill workshops.

The objective for Grade 7-12 teachers was to engage in articulation activities to improve communications between Grade 7 and 8 teachers and high school teachers. Packman said he and Sigmar Blamberg, assistant principal, recommended future in-service workshops using in-school talent.

Superintendent's report

School Supt. Raymond Allen said an evaluation of the Grade 6-12 reading program is being done by Kathleen Reed. Target date for completion is February.

Allen said an evaluation of the state-funded program for disadvantaged children is being done by Dr. Wallace Roby. Target date for completion is March.

Allen said an expenditure approved by the school board for a learning disabilities teacher at Cheney Tech proved unnecessary, because the proposed program will not be implemented until next year.

Allen recently voiced objection to the necessity of an extensive survey for the Office of Civil Rights. He said educators nationally are concerned about the work necessary to complete the survey. Letters have been sent to government officials requesting that the survey be delayed and, hopefully, eliminated.

Resignations accepted

The resignation of Lucille Grzymkowski, a nurse for Bolton schools, was accepted with regret recently by the Board of Education. Mrs. Grzymkowski, who has been school nurse since September, resigned for personal reasons.

The position is being advertised. Anyone seeking information should call the superintendent's office, 643-1569.

Board members were given job descriptions for the learning disabilities teacher, school nurse and nurse's aide. Action is expected in February.

Allen said up to 150 gallons of gasoline have been siphoned from school buses since September. If the thefts keep up, the school board will see a deficit in its transportation account, he said.

Record hop

The Republican Town Committee's "Old Fashion Record Hop" is Saturday from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at St. Maurice Church Parish Center. A limited number of tickets will be sold at the door. For information, call Sonja Kirk, 649-7670.

Bolton schools plan new courses Monday

The spring session of the Bolton Continuing Education program will begin next week at Bolton High School. Courses being offered are beginning typing, Thursday from 7 to 8:10 p.m., beginning shorthand, Thursday from 8:20 to 9:30 p.m., and woodworking, Wednesday or Thursday from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

All courses will end the week of April 4. There is a $2 registration fee for residents and an $8 fee for non-residents. For more information or a registration form, call the high school. Registration will be accepted during the first class.

5th Sunday Event

The Tolland Group Ministries "5th Sunday Event" will be Jan. 30 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Vernon United Methodist Church. The Bolton United Methodist Church is a part of the group. The subject for the get-together is "local social concerns."
