Losing the fear of difference

Continued from Page 1 sympathetic if not related organization. He was at least in some degree personally responsible for the death of 400 Jews in that country, Dr. Huston said.

"The Holocaust is not an event of some 30 years ago, it is a current, potential incipient reality. There is a new anti-semitism in this country and in others. The political situation in the world encourages a fundamental negative attitude toward the Jews.

"I get into trouble sometimes in speaking to Jewish groups because I insist on applying the same ethical principles to the State of Israel as I do the any other country in the world and because of their history — the history of Christian persecution of the Jews for more than 2,000 years of an incredible story and most of us don't know it. But the Jews know it, and so their reaction is that if you don't support the State of Israel, then you are anti-semitic.

"I refuse to accept that, but I will submit that there are people in our country that demand of the State of Israel a political maturity and spirit of self sacrifice that they wouldn't think of demanding of England or the United States. That is a very subtle form of anti-semitism to expect a country that was created a little more than 25 years ago and was created in a state of tension and has never been free of that tension. Fundamentally, if someone visits the Holy Land and doesn't really see the State of Israel, then he or she is encouraging anti-semitism.

"Anti-semitism goes way beyond painting swastikas on synagogues, it has reached a point where there is so much of it that there is an increasing number of Jews who don't want to talk dialogue with Christians at all," he said.

"The Christian faith never made an effective witness against the Holocaust, and stands condemned for all time, Dr. Huston said.

"I think it is critically important for Christians to sensitize themselves to the fears of the Holocaust being repeated," he said.

After spending 12 years in pursuit of a Church of Christ Visiting, and five of those years as one of the enabling officers in a United Methodist-Roman Catholic dialogue on "Holiness and Spirituality of the Ordained Ministry," Dr. Huston said, "the prize means much to me. The joy is in the struggle and it's better to be vaguely right than precisely wrong."

Power and gas cutbacks and other weather problems idled nearly 250,000 workers in Tennessee, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Georgia, Florida and Mississippi.

The Federal Energy Administration said Monday it will order five refineries to produce more kerosene for home heating, possibly reducing fuel available for airlines.

Gov. Otis R. Bowen declared an emergency Monday in the state of Indiana and Ohio Gov. James Rhodes called the legislature into special session today to deal with emergencies posed by the worst energy crisis in the state's history. The Philadelphia Gas Works said more cutbacks might be necessary despite Mayor Frank Rizzo's belief the city is being "ripped off."

Georgia officials said a worsening natural gas shortage has forced some 75,000 persons from payrolls totaling $30 million a week. The state sought Canadian natural gas and considered possible emergency legislation. The Atlanta Gas Light Co. pleaded with commercial consumers to cut hours of operation and even hospitals were asked to dial down thermostats.

Florida Gov. Reubin Askew sought a federal agriculture disaster declaration. He said the state's citrus crop, which has been wiped out 95 per cent of the vegetable crop and 40 per cent of the citrus crop, leaving 35,000 field workers unemployed. A 10-day embargo on Florida citrus shipments took effect. Some 15,000 West Virginia coal miners were idled Monday due to the cold weather. West Virginia miners have lost some $6.5 million in wages since Jan. 17 and coal owners have lost 1,175,000 tons of coal.

The town well was dry in the Alabama mountain village of Gaylesville because the townfolk pumped too much water to keep their pipes from freezing. The National Guard trucked water to Gaylesville and townfolk hauled it home in jugs and buckets.

New snows in the Southland piled up a half-foot deep in northwest Georgia. Knoxville, Tenn., got an inch — the heaviest fall of the winter and enough to close schools.

The weather

Winter storm warning, snow ending this afternoon with 4 to 6 inches likely. High upper 20s to low 30s. Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday with a low in the teens or low 20s. High Wednesday in low 30s. National weather forecast map on Page 7-B.

Back to the old shoveling grind again

While the snowfall last night and early today was not as heavy as forecast, it still had to be moved from walks and driveways this morning as Francis Hickey of 129 South Main St. is doing here. Hopefully, the brunt of the storm is past and Manchester area residents will get a breather. Local schools did not close, but many in surrounding communities did.

PZC gets views on zone change needed for retirement center

By GREG PEARSON Herald Reporter

A proposed Residence M Zone on Parker St. and a requested change in M zoning to allow housing for the elderly and handicapped attracted about 50 people to Monday night's Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) meeting.

The M Zone amendment is being requested by the Wesley Retirement Center, Inc. of a group that has expressed interest in locating a three-story, 100-unit center for the elderly on Hartford Rd. property owned by the South United Methodist Church.

Monday night's hearing, however, was not on this project, but on the zoning amendment that would be needed before the project could be built.

Debate begins on plans to stimulate economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The AFL-CIO said today President Carter should do much more to create jobs than he has proposed.

The board approved three appointments, including two cancellations of leaves of absence. Mrs. Catherine Gallacher was appointed as school nurse at East Catholic School, effective Jan. 3.

Ms. Patricia Nichols was granted a cancellation of a leave of absence for the school year and will assume the vacancy in the high school COPE department created by transfer of Thomas Rodden to Youth Services Department.

Under the present regulations, an M Zone allows single-family duplexes and apartment housing to be built. The proposed amendment would allow housing for the elderly and handicapped as a special exception in such a zone.

Commission backs MPHNA fund request

The North Central Connecticut Area on Aging (AAA) has received approval from the Manchester Public Health Nursing Association's (MPHNA) application for funds to set up a health screening/home health care program for senior citizens.

Because the program will include a nutrition consultant on a continuing basis, the commission, which has been interested in nutrition for the elderly, Monday night unanimously agreed to recommend that the AAA adopt the proposal as soon as possible.

The MPHNA expected to get a $15,315 grant for this project by December, but Mrs. Lois Lewis, director of the agency was told by J.C.B. Thomas, planner for AAA, that the proposal was written correctly and needs no revisions.

However, the task force is soliciting applications from more agencies, and final decisions will be made in March for funding April 1, according to a statement by MPHNA which was presented to the commission Monday night.

John Dornier of Manchester, a member of AAA, said that the AAA had never received an application for a program like that submitted by MPHNA. It wants either to find some town that has had such a program or to find a town that wants a similar program to see if the project is worthwhile.

Karen Reid, supervisor of nurses for MPHNA, said the agency felt this program would fit in very well with the proposed outreach/friendly visitor program that the Human Services Department will be conducting. The geriatric nurse practitioner and the outreach worker can serve as mutual referral sources to provide maximum assistance to the elderly.

The funding the MPHNA is seeking will cover the salary of a geriatric nurse practitioner, nutrition and social work consultation and some equipment such as a blood pressure cuff and stethoscope. In-kind services that will be provided by the agency will amount to $6,150. The agency, according to its statement, anticipates that the project will generate $1,000 in income, making the total cost of the project $22,465.

When the plan becomes a reality, screening clinics will be conducted weekly on a rotating basis in the town's elderly housing units and at the Senior Citizens Center.

The geriatric nurse practitioner will conduct the clinic and make necessary home visits to the elderly in need of such a service.

The agency hopes the project will be able to identify the needs of about 150 of the elderly through periodic screening. Such preventive measures are often expensive and not covered by Medicare or private insurance, according to MPHNA.

Another goal of the project is to keep a minimum of 50 persons, aged 60 or over, out of institutions and allow them to live independently in their own homes. It hopes to demonstrate that some of the "at-risk" elderly can be maintained at a lower cost than if institutionalized.

The commission also Monday night adopted a program suggested by Dornier to approach the Manchester Area Conference of Churches and ask its aid in approaching various church groups for volunteers to pick up elderly church members in their neighborhood and take them to church for Sunday worship.

Wally Fortin, director of the Senior Citizen's Center, told the commission that the center expects to receive the mini-bus its members have purchased within a few days. He said that since the center opened eight months ago, it has issued 6,475 membership forms, which ask the applicant's need for transportation. Of these, 4,656 members have said they have no transportation, and 1,819 reported they needed transportation. Mrs. Vera Dornier said that membership, situations may have changed and they may need transportation now.

In other action, the commission authorized a letter thanking the Board of Directors for hiring an outreach worker for the elderly and discussed a pre-retirement program for town employees.

G&S workshop to begin rehearsals

The first rehearsal of the Manchester Gilbert & Sullivan Workshop production of "The Pirates of Penzance" will be held at 7:15 p.m. in the auditorium of Highland Park School on Porter St.

Officers and committee chairman will meet at 6:45 p.m. for a business meeting before the rehearsal.

The Council of Center Congregational Church has agreed to sponsor the workshop in its 30th year, according to Mrs. Janet Acker, workshop president. For many years, the group has used the facilities at South United Methodist Church.

Beginning Monday, Jan. 31, rehearsals for "The Pirates of Penzance" will be held at Bailey Auditorium, Manchester High School.

A portion of the proceeds will be used to benefit a local charity. During past years, the G&S group has donated more than $8,000 to charities including the instructors of the Handicapped (IOH), New Hope Manor, Manchester Scholarship Foundation and the Manchester Bicentennial Band Shell project.

"The Pirates of Penzance" will be performed April 21, 22 and 23 at Bailey Auditorium, Manchester High School.

Utility lawyers

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Public Utilities Control Authority is calling unconstitutional a bill to bar utilities from charging ratepayers for legal expenses in court appeals of PUCA rate decisions.

However, State Consumer Counsel David Silverstone said that while the present bill is "too generous," he believes he could support one if it included more specific guidelines.

Consumer groups suing Northeast Utilities have been saying for months utility stockholders, not ratepayers, should bear the cost of defending the utility against consumer rate appeals.

Buckland hearing

Again tonight, the citizens of Manchester have an opportunity to voice their views on the proposed Buckland Industrial Park development.

The Board of Directors is conducting a hearing beginning at 8 on a referendum to acquire land and buildings within the proposed boundaries of the new development which will have as its major tenant the J.C. Penney regional catalog distribution center.

We think most Manchester residents favor the development and will support the directors in the matter.

Up for review tonight is a $15.4 million referendum which has been recommended for a townwide vote on March 15.

Because of the relative nearness of this proposed vote, we think it important that citizens turn out for tonight's hearings.

Regardless of your feelings, the public hearings to date and those yet to come will help

Employment figures: good, bad, confusing

Probably the one problem of most immediate concern to the Carter administration is the persistently high level of unemployment.

It is not that there is any lack of statistics defining the situation. There are, in fact, so many statistics and categories of statistics that one can become dizzy reading them — and use them to prove just about anything he wants to prove.

The Labor Department has just reported that total employment among Americans in December reached a record 88,353,000. Overall gain for the year was nearly 3 million.

Yet at the same time, total unemployment dropped by only 177,000 in 1976 and is still an unacceptably high 7.8 per cent of the labor force, or about 7.5 million.

Sounds both good and bad, and certainly puzzling. But "labor force" includes not only people who have jobs but people who are looking for jobs, and this category has been outstripping the growth of the working-age population for at least the last decade.

Between 1966 and 1976, the working-age population (16 years and over) grew from 131.1 million to 156.3 million — up 19 per cent. However, the labor force (job-holders plus job-seekers) zoomed from 75.7 million to 95.4 million — up 26 per cent.

If the analysts agree on anything, it is that the primary reason for this phenomenon is the great infusion of women into the labor force. Statistics again: male labor force up

Board of Directors agrees on town policy for aiding industrial developers whereby the town and developer would each pay 50 per cent of the cost of road and possibly water and sewer utilities, and at the end of five years, if the parcel produces a sufficient increase in tax revenue, the developer would be reimbursed for all or part of his 50 per cent.

Congress must act soon
Can we save Alaska's wilderness?

By Dan W. Lufkin
Time is running out for the Alaskan wilderness. Our newly elected Congress now has less than two years to vote into being more than 80 million acres of national parks, forests, wildlife refuges, and wild and scenic rivers.

If it does not act, these lands will become poker chips in a high stakes game of development and exploitation. Oil, gas, minerals, timber and other economic interests are waiting to be dealt a piece of the action; everyone seems to be represented at the table except the American Public. But these lands belong to all of us, and what we do with them will be a supreme test of our national wisdom and foresight.

Vast acreage
Some 82 million acres, which could include nine new national parks, the expansion of two others, nine new wildlife refuges, 20 wild and scenic rivers, and three new national forests, are the subject of the Alaska Conservation Act, which, along with eight other bills to protect Alaska's wilderness from exploitation, is now before the Congress.

According to the provisions of Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, whose Section 17 (d-2) authorized that these lands be preserved in the "national interest," Congress must vote them into being by December 17, 1978. After that date, they will go back into the general federal land pool and their future will be up for grabs.

Incredible beauty
Within the boundaries of these 83 million acres is some of the most incredible scenic beauty, most important recreational land on the North American continent. There are caribou and moose, some of the last great herds on this continent; more than 100 million shore and migratory birds, many of which nest nowhere else in the world and which form the base stock for our Pacific and Midwest flyways; incredible mountains, fjords, ice fields, glacial systems, lakes and rivers; the habitats of wolves, Dall sheep, brown bear and grizzlies, whales, seals, sea lions and sea otters.

At Cape Krusenstern, on the Chukchi Sea, are the archeological remains of thousands of years of Eskimo life and culture.

Brooks Range
The Brooks Range, which runs through the proposed Gates of the Arctic National Park — twice the size of Yellowstone — is America's last true wilderness.

The Harding Ice Field is a 700 miles ice cap, an awesome frozen desert. Wrangell-St. Elias is the greatest concentration of mountains over 15,000 feet on the entire continent.

Kobuk Valley is an amazing desert of sand dunes above the Arctic Circle.

The Charley River is one of the purest and cleanest in America. And within the proposed national parks, the d-2 lands, the native peoples who depend on the land for their survival would be permitted to hunt and fish for their own subsistence and would be able to preserve the uniqueness of their culture to maintain the tradition of their ancestors.

Knowing it's there
Many of us may never see the sun setting beyond Cape Krusenstern, or canoe down the Charley River, or back pack into the frozen stillness of the Brooks Range. But just knowing they are there, waiting for us, adds a quality of grandeur, of anticipation, to our crowded, urban lives.

It is to our great benefit that Congress act soon. It must focus on the issue. The number of acres is not the primary concern, nor the precise systems into which the lands are incorporated. What is most important to all of us is the speed and seriousness with which our legislators take their responsibility. This is no small matter. It will tell us much about the courage and the values of those whom we have elected to national office.

Other problems
Other problems, both foreign and domestic, will crowd upon our leaders. Crises and emergencies will occupy their minds, and strain our resources. They may well feel that the timeless land to the north can wait as it has waited all these centuries.

But it cannot wait. The forces of change are already at work on the land and its creatures. As the Alaska coalition has said, "Men and machines are piercing the Arctic; wild country, yet little touched by civilized ambitions, is being eyed with speculative eagerness. For a land which is expected to give so much material wealth to the nation will seek to protect certain lands and wildlife so that a part of this priceless, natural heritage will survive for future generations."

Yellowstone proves need
In 1872, when Yellowstone National Park was proposed, there was an immediate outcry that since few would ever be able to use it, why waste the money? Last year almost 3 million people visited Yellowstone. In the next hundred years, the same is bound to happen in Alaska, in the lands proposed for our great National Parks there — if they are allowed to be born.

We must, in the national interest, urge our legislators to act now on behalf of these proposed d-2 lands of Alaska. It is the chance of a lifetime; a second chance may never come. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: There's only one chance in a million that you can help me with my problem, but I'll try anyway: I am a 26-year-old married woman who had polo as a child. Consequently I was left with one normal foot (size 6 1/2) and one very small foot. (A child's size 2.) Because of this, I've always had to buy two pairs of shoes. Obviously, I am left with two useless mismatched shoes. Maybe someone needs just one shoe. I have a closet full of odd shoes that are of no use to me. Perhaps I can make some kind of exchange with someone who has my problem in reverse. I would be glad to buy the odd shoes that I need.

Thanks for any help you can give me, Abby.

MISMATCHED FEET
DEAR MISS: It's a shoe-hell I have a list of stores that sell (and exchange) odd shoes. Send me a stamped, addressed envelope, and I will send you the list.

DEAR ABBY: For a year I have dated a widower (I am a widow). We have a close, enjoyable relationship. However, he refuses to introduce me to his family, all of whom live nearby. They are not even aware of his dating. He becomes uncomfortable if seen in public with me.

When we go out, which is rare, we go to some out-of-the-way place. They are never far from my apartment three or four times a week and call me every day. He finds it difficult to say "I love you," yet I think he cares for me.

He has said flatly that he would never introduce me to his children and would never marry again.

I know this man is a widower. I read of his wife's death in the paper last year. What do you think the problem is? He makes a great deal to me, but I think something is abnormal.

DEAR ABBY: Recently you ran a letter from THE OTHER WOMAN in which she tells her lover's wife not to worry because she (the other woman) is too "discreet" to take a married man away from his wife and children. Well, I hope you will give equal space to A WIFE who has a message for THE OTHER WOMAN:

I have known about my husband's little affair with you for quite some time, but I don't think I'm going to give him up after 25 years, you are sadly mistaken. I enjoy the prestige of being a doctor's wife.

DEAR MISS: I was once a young nurse (as you are now), so if you're out to hook a wealthy doctor, I suggest you find a younger, unattached one and help him get started, the way I did. Also, I think you should know that on the advice of his attorney, my husband put everything in my name in case he gets hit with a malpractice suit. So think it over, dear. Do you really want a tired, middle-aged man whose assets are in his wife's name? After all, we both know he's not all that great in bed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Uplifting, generous and gentle words and gentle suggestions are a must in dealing with subordinate today. A soft answer turns away wrath.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're unlikely to handle your resources today with the same conservatism your frantically worried relatives would. That probably why he has an air of a real winner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Avoid being too heavy-handed today in areas where you're in charge. Ease up or you'll create a rebellious atmosphere.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Though you'll find it hard to own up to your mistakes today, defending them won't alter the fact that you were wrong. Admit them and forget 'em.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Your indignant intonation and high-toned pleas will go by the boards today when a friend announces you're to do something that's "more fun."

Virgo (Aug. 23-Aug. 22) Don't pretend to be or have more than you are today. Don't play the old game of one-upmanship.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Steering the middle course destroys your effectiveness today. Sometimes it's better to make a stand, even if it's the wrong one, than to be a compromiser before asking favors.

Personas you meet in social situations could be a big asset this coming year. Make sure stand, even if it's the wrong one, than to be a compromiser before asking favors.

The department investigated the apartment on Jan. 14 and then sent the notice to the owner. "It's agreed the work will be done. It's just a question of when," Kraatz said. Neither Kurlowicz nor the apartment's tenant, Anthony Maturio, could be reached this morning for comment.

Roesler also said the outcome of the meeting can be influenced by pressure groups or special interest groups who may not be acting in the best interests of the entire town. Roesler feels the membership of the council, which is now 12, should be cut to seven or nine members. He said minority representation would be maintained. He said a smaller council could streamline the budget process.

Commission member Thomas Dooley, who is also a council member, said all of the councilmen serve on subcommittees. He said there are only 12 councilmen and several subcommittees. Thomas Wolff, a former council member, said he would like to poll present and past councilmen to get their opinion. It was agreed to do so.

Roesler also asked the commission to consider making the term of the mayor four years instead of two. Last week, Mayor Thomas Benoit suggested a full-time mayor for the town. Roesler also said the charter's description of the duties of the director of administration should be revised to reflect the broad nature of the powers and duties delegated to this position.

Roesler said the town needs a personnel director and a finance officer. He was asked by Dooley if he feels the town also needs a full-time attorney. Roesler said, "We have reached a stage where we should consider this." Roesler also made several suggestions for charter making, such as "housecleaning" changes in the charter, such as name changes and adding new commissions.

School board delays new business again

East Hartford
None of the four "new business" items, postponed from last week's meeting were discussed by the East Hartford Board of Education Monday night.

Discussion concerning the election of the superintendent for 1977-1979 and the approval of the contract with paraprofessional personnel were moved to executive session.

Earlier in the meeting, an executive session was requested to discuss a salary increase for the superintendent. According to state statute, the superintendent is elected by ballot. The school board has determined the election shall take place in January preceding the end of the superintendent's term of office.

If the board took no action last night, they can act on the matter Jan. 31. The housing plan for 1977-1978 concerning Synergy School and the pre-engineered units was postponed to another meeting. Board Chairman Larry DePonte asked the board "to let these two items ride," because more thinking is going into future recommendations.

Because South Grammar School will remain open another year, the administration and Synergy staff are investigating other options. Possible alternatives for the alternate high school include housing in one of the high schools, in the east wing of Woodland School, or staying in its present quarters.

Makeup of Bolton board is firm

Minority representation on the Bolton Board of Selectmen can be four to one if the total membership of the board is five. This was the written ruling by Jerome Walsh, town counsel, road Monday night.

Walsh sought clarification from the secretary of the state on one part of the town's recently adopted charter concerning the interpretation of minority representation on the board.

The charter calls for a Board of Selectmen, made up of a first selectman and four selectmen.

Walsh said state statutes are very clear on minority representation and it has been confirmed by his correspondence with the elections attorney of the secretary of the state's office.

"I don't see how further discussion on the matter will change the law so far as the town counsel is concerned," he said.

Legislation passed in 1976 changed the minority representation rule for a five-member board and when Bolton adopted its charter it did so without knowing about the new law.

Marshall Taylor, chairman of the former Charter Commission, said the commission understood that no more than three members of one political party could be on the board. He said, "I am livid this bill passed. At no time was I apprised of this. I am madder than hell."

He said both State Sen. David Barry and State Rep. Aloysius Ahearn voted in favor of the bill.

John Esche, co-chairman of the former commission, said he doesn't think the problem is with the charter commission. "I think it is with the legislation and it should be changed," he said.

Ahearn, contacted after the meeting, said "I remember the bill. I attended committee meetings on it. I told Taylor the state law concerning minority representation was being revised."

Ahearn said he had a heated discussion with Taylor about the language in the charter. Ahearn said there were four attorneys on the commission and a paid attorney to keep on top of the information.

Ahearn said, "This is irritating. One guy makes a goof and blames someone else."

Even though suggestions have been made to correct the situation, there is no solution for Bolton before the May elections.

William Houle said a bill has been submitted to the legislature to remedy the situation. "It won't help us but it will help the towns having elections in November," he said.

Both political parties agree the legislation should be changed. No matter who is to blame, either party could overwhelmingly control the five-member Board of Selectmen for the next two years.

GOP & Dems caucus tonight

Bolton Republicans and Democrats will caucus tonight at 8 in separate locations, to endorse candidates for the May town election.

The GOP caucus will be at Herrick Memorial Park and the Democratic caucus will be at the Community Hall.

Republicans are expected to endorse Richard Morra, former first selectman, for the same office.

Democrats haven't released names of possible nominees, saying announcements before the caucus might discourage participation at the meeting.

Frost fetters funds

The unprecedented cold spell in Florida has far-reaching effects. The Vernon Friends of Music, which conducts citrus fruit sales each year, may have to find some other way to make money this year.

Mrs. Theima Sharkey, chairman of the organization, said there was a successful sale in the fall but she hasn't been able to reach the fruit supplier to find out if oranges and grapefruit will be available for a proposed spring sale.

South Windsor High School's American Field Service Club, which sells citrus fruit to finance a foreign exchange student, doesn't anticipate problems with a sale planned for March. Fruit will come from Texas if not Florida, the adviser said.

Rham High School in Hebron also has a citrus fruit sale each year. This was conducted before Christmas and before the cold weather hit Florida.

Feds report no violations in U.S. Homes complaints

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government says it found no "specific violations" of federal statutes or "serious violations" of regulations in its investigation of alleged shoddy workmanship in eastern Connecticut homes financed by the Federal Home Administration.

The report, released Monday, called for changes in construction contracts to afford homeowners better protection and said FHMA construction inspectors and county office staffs should be trained better.

The investigation was begun at the request of Rep. The South Windsor contracting firm built homes for 64 families provided with about $1.5 million in FHMA money.

Andover

Republicans will caucus tonight at 8 at the Andover Elementary School library. Meetings at the school are usually canceled when school is closed due to weather, but this is not the case for tonight.

The Andover Lake Property Owners Association will hold a mid-winter social Feb. 5 at the Old Town Hall. There will be a social hour at 6 p.m., a potluck supper at 6:30 p.m. and dancing to the music of the Dabaldo Orchestra from 8 p.m. to midnight. Peggy Hohman and Cliff Wederstrom are co-chairmen of the event, which is open to the public.

Study group recommended to improve school quality

South Windsor School Supt. Robert W. Goldman is expected to suggest formation of a committee to improve the quality of "educational experience" at Timothy Edwards Middle School.

The South Windsor contracting firm built homes for 64 families provided with about $1.5 million in FHMA money.

"FHMA personnel should understand that

Money loan

Before each became a millionaire through his ability to trade punches inside the ring, Muhammad Ali was so low on funds that he had to put the touch on Joe Frazier for $100.

"That was back in 1970 and it took me quite awhile to get it back," Frazier said during his visit last week as a special guest at Frank Maratta's Auto Show at the Hartford Civic Center.

The heavyweight fighters are both in the elite financial bracket today. Without any trace of a boast, Frazier admits to owning eight cars, including his every-day new Cadillac.

It was for his name and his passion for custom cars that he was brought to Hartford for the show.

"I've always been interested in cars ever since the days when I was a kid and I hung around in my father's garage. I still like to fix my own cars whenever I have the time," he said.

The former world's champ, who won the honor by knocking out Buster Mathis in the 11th round in 1968, looked like he could climb through the ropes today and hold his own.

"I stay in shape, workout two or three days a week in Philadelphia and help my 16-year-old son Marvin train. He's going to be a champion. He's 6-1 and 197 pounds. By 1980, no one will be able to touch him," a proud father predicted.

Wife disagrees
Man and wife Frazier don't see eye to eye on junior following in his footsteps.

"I hate boxing," Mrs. Frazier said. "I don't want my son to be a boxer." Her better half, however, helps train and manage the boy.

His comeback is not in Frazier's plans at least not at the moment.

When I go to the gym and watch my son work out, I relive moments in my life," he said as his face lit up.

Frazier's most memorable win was a 15-round decision over Ali.

"I've been too busy with my music to think about fighting again. And my family would rather see me pushing a note instead of a right hand jab."

"Fighting was good to me. I have no complaint," the native South Carolina man said.

"Music and boxing are so close. Timing is so important in boxing and you are in trouble singing if you are off key."

Frazier has been cutting records and is reported to have a good voice. His group is known as Joe Frazier and the Knockouts.

"I've always liked music. I always skipped records to music and I always had music in my dressing room," he added.

Is Ali, the man who helped him become a millionaire, a close friend after their stirring ring battles?

"He lives a different style life. I go my way and he goes his way," came the answer.

A motorcycle buff, as well as one interested in cars, Frazier admitted he "rides anything that rolls." He's 6-1 and 197 pounds. By 1980, no one will be able to touch him," a proud father predicted.

Off the cuff
One wonders how much longer the New England Whalers can carry Larry Pleau and Doug Roberts on the roster. Neither has contributed much to the cause this season. There are now 247 colleges in Division I in the NCAA membership, which includes the University of Connecticut, and 160 play football. John Toner, UConn director of athletics, says the UConn athletic program aims to maintain itself in Division I. Nice promotion for Gene Michael, who moved up from the coaching ranks to an administrative assistant post in the New York Yankee front office.

Michael, 38, spent 18 years in pro ball. Different ends of the stick. Manchester High basketball team went unbeaten in CCLL play last season while the football team lost every game. East Hartford High's football team was undefeated last fall and the cagers have yet to win this season.

Bob Lutz
SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Bob Lutz and Bob Hewitt have entered the field of the $50,000 Springfield International Tennis Classic to be held February 7-13 at the Civic Center.

Heini Hemmi
ADELPHI, N.J. (UPI) — Olympic gold medalist Heini Hemmi of Switzerland recorded his third World Cup giant slalom victory on the season Monday when he bested defending World Cup champion Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden.

Hemmi clocked three minutes, 7.94 seconds for the two runs with Stenmark timed at 3:08.73. The second place finish enabled Stenmark to take over the lead in the World Cup standings from Austria's downhill king, Franz Klammer. Stenmark has 199 points to Klammer's 133.

Thompson was the leading vote-getter with 219,947 votes while last year's top vote-getter, Rick Barry of San Francisco, finished third among Jones on the Western Conference squad.

Philadelphia had forwards Julian Eving and George McGinnis and guard Doug Collins named to the Eastern Conference starting team. The 76ers lead the Atlantic Division by seven games.

The All-Star Game is scheduled Feb. 13 at Milwaukee.

Paul Westphal of Phoenix and Norm Van Lier of Chicago complete the Western Conference starting lineup while Bob McAdoo of the New York Knicks and Pete Maravich of New Orleans complete the Eastern Conference team.

The closest race was for the second guard spot on the Western Conference team where Van Lier beat out Slick Watts of Seattle by only 4,200 votes.

The remainder of the conference squads will be selected by the 11 coaches from each conference. The All-Star coaches will be from those teams who have the best conference records after next Sunday's games, virtually assuring it will be Larry Bird of Denver and Gene Shue of Philadelphia.

Indians entertain Eagles tonight at Clarke Arena

Somewhat, either Manchester High or East Catholic, is going to be happy for two reasons after tonight's collision at 8 o'clock on the Clarke Arena hardwood.

First and foremost, a victory in this growing inter-town rivalry is always sweet. Secondly, and maybe most important, a win by either 9-3 Manchester or 8-4 East will qualify the victor for CMC State Tournament play.

The Eagles have never failed to qualify for post-season action in their 11-year history while a win by Manchester would mean three consecutive tournament appearances under coach Doug Pearson.

Also on the agenda tonight, 2-6, 2-8 Cheney Tech entertains 2-4, 2-4 Rham High and 7-1, 8-1 Coventry High visits 8-9, 8-9 Bolton in Charter Oak Conference play.

Elsewhere, 2-5, 3-8 Ellington travels to 3-3, 5-5 East Windsor High in NCCC play and 2-4, 2-9 Rockville High is at 2-4, 5-6 Windsor in a CVC tilt.

MIKE SHERMAN

JOHN MURPHY

Non-conference action pits 7-4 South Windsor High against 10-1 Bulkley High at the Bobcats' Den and 10-2 Fenwick of East Hartford visiting 1-0 Glastonbury.

You can look for explanations, none satisfactory, but the fact of the matter is the Manchester-East tilt is not a sellout and there will be a limited number of tickets at the door according to Manchester director of athletics Dave Wiggin.

Neither Manchester coach Pearson nor East mentor Stan Orogrodnik could ascertain why the tilt is not a sellout in advance. Maybe the reference games are more important but as Orogrodnik notes, "We're not selling tickets for Duhabo under our conference games and neither are they. Maybe the novelty of this is wearing a little bit," he quipped.

Pearson, also searching, stated, "Personally I don't know. East hasn't been drawing well and we haven't—I guess it isn't that big of a game. We're in a rat-race in our league (CCLL) and East is in a race in its league (HCC) and the league titles are more important. Also the game isn't new anymore and maybe because we haven't won."

The series is in its third year with Orogrodnik's Eagles having won four previous meetings, including a 57-49 duke in December. The Indians, searching for the right formula to upend their crosstown neighbors, might go in short-handed.

Third leading scorer Scott Hyde, averaging at a 10.9 clip, suffered a sprained right ankle last Friday against East Hartford. Hyde and Pearson reports, "I'm not sure of his status. The injury doesn't appear to be too serious but if he's at all hurting, he won't play. We have a more important conference game Friday against Hall." The same can be said about East as it Friday combats St. Thomas Aquinas in what will be a battle for second place in the HCC.

Possibly the Manchester-East game is losing some of its attractiveness. But when you have two teams striving for tournament berths and still in contention for league/conference honors it can't be neglected by fans, either.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ken Stabler won the 27th annual Hickok Award Monday as the "Professional Athlete of the Year."

It was one of the closest balloting in the history of the award as Stabler edged baseball star Jim McHugh of the Cincinnati Reds by only seven points. Morgan was the first National League player to win the award, which includes the University of Connecticut, and 160 play football. "He lives a different style life. I go my way and he goes his way," came the answer.

A motorcycle buff, as well as one interested in cars, Frazier admitted he "rides anything that rolls." He's 6-1 and 197 pounds. By 1980, no one will be able to touch him," a proud father predicted.

Off the cuff
One wonders how much longer the New England Whalers can carry Larry Pleau and Doug Roberts on the roster. Neither has contributed much to the cause this season. There are now 247 colleges in Division I in the NCAA membership, which includes the University of Connecticut, and 160 play football. John Toner, UConn director of athletics, says the UConn athletic program aims to maintain itself in Division I. Nice promotion for Gene Michael, who moved up from the coaching ranks to an administrative assistant post in the New York Yankee front office.

Indians entertain Eagles tonight at Clarke Arena

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sportswriter

Somewhat, either Manchester High or East Catholic, is going to be happy for two reasons after tonight's collision at 8 o'clock on the Clarke Arena hardwood.

First and foremost, a victory in this growing inter-town rivalry is always sweet. Secondly, and maybe most important, a win by either 9-3 Manchester or 8-4 East will qualify the victor for CMC State Tournament play.

The Eagles have never failed to qualify for post-season action in their 11-year history while a win by Manchester would mean three consecutive tournament appearances under coach Doug Pearson.

Also on the agenda tonight, 2-6, 2-8 Cheney Tech entertains 2-4, 2-4 Rham High and 7-1, 8-1 Coventry High visits 8-9, 8-9 Bolton in Charter Oak Conference play.

Elsewhere, 2-5, 3-8 Ellington travels to 3-3, 5-5 East Windsor High in NCCC play and 2-4, 2-9 Rockville High is at 2-4, 5-6 Windsor in a CVC tilt.

Michael, 38, spent 18 years in pro ball. Different ends of the stick. Manchester High basketball team went unbeaten in CCLL play last season while the football team lost every game. East Hartford High's football team was undefeated last fall and the cagers have yet to win this season.

Bob Lutz
SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Bob Lutz and Bob Hewitt have entered the field of the $50,000 Springfield International Tennis Classic to be held February 7-13 at the Civic Center.

Heini Hemmi
ADELPHI, N.J. (UPI) — Olympic gold medalist Heini Hemmi of Switzerland recorded his third World Cup giant slalom victory on the season Monday when he bested defending World Cup champion Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden.

Hemmi clocked three minutes, 7.94 seconds for the two runs with Stenmark timed at 3:08.73. The second place finish enabled Stenmark to take over the lead in the World Cup standings from Austria's downhill king, Franz Klammer. Stenmark has 199 points to Klammer's 133.

Thompson was the leading vote-getter with 219,947 votes while last year's top vote-getter, Rick Barry of San Francisco, finished third among Jones on the Western Conference squad.

Philadelphia had forwards Julian Eving and George McGinnis and guard Doug Collins named to the Eastern Conference starting team. The 76ers lead the Atlantic Division by seven games.

The All-Star Game is scheduled Feb. 13 at Milwaukee.

Paul Westphal of Phoenix and Norm Van Lier of Chicago complete the Western Conference starting lineup while Bob McAdoo of the New York Knicks and Pete Maravich of New Orleans complete the Eastern Conference team.

The closest race was for the second guard spot on the Western Conference team where Van Lier beat out Slick Watts of Seattle by only 4,200 votes.

The remainder of the conference squads will be selected by the 11 coaches from each conference. The All-Star coaches will be from those teams who have the best conference records after next Sunday's games, virtually assuring it will be Larry Bird of Denver and Gene Shue of Philadelphia.
