Growing Older Is this pill-popping doing any good?

By Harold Blamstein

Are many Senior Citizens becoming "drug addicts"? Do they become "hooked" by using medicines for longer periods or in larger doses than the doctor prescribed?

The spiraling cost of visits to the doctor's office is shocking, so there's that temptation to be our own medical man. However, there are 700 different basic chemical compounds in the prescription drug market.

When getting a prescription remember that elderly people with arthritic hands have difficulty opening medicine bottles with the new safety caps.

Since the doctor diagnoses our ailments, shouldn't he be the one who prescribes the medicines? Yet, I read recently that there's a dispute between New York State's legislators and the state health department whether physician's assistants, who are not licensed doctors,

Meals on Wheels serves 72

Since the Meals on Wheels program was started by the Manchester Homemaker Service, Inc. last July, 56 volunteers have driven 3,397 miles to serve 2,792 meals to 72 clients.

This information contained in a report made to the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Homemaker Service, by program coordinator Virginia Briggs.

Ms. Briggs said 20 of the clients were men and 52 were women. Of the total, 57 were more than 75 years of age.

The full fee for the meals is $3.50 and 28 of the clients paid this and the rest paid adjusted fees as follows: 19 paid $1 or less, five paid $1.50, eight paid $2, and 10 paid $2.50.

The breakdown of referrals was: 21 referred by social agencies, 10 by families, 14 by the discharge coordinator at a hospital, 11 by friends, 3 by doctors, 4 by publicity, and 4 were re-entries.

Ms. Briggs said that during the first part of this new year (through Jan. 14) seven new clients came in.

Carter calls for renewal of U.S. fighting spirit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In his first informal talk to the American people, President Carter called for a renewal of the fighting spirit of World War II to restore a sense of "common interest" that can help save the nation's problems.

Carter also outlined in a "fireside chat" Wednesday night a vigorous agenda for cutting the number of government jobs. He said he has not had a sense of a common national interest, Carter said.

Recalling the unity and spirit of World War II, he added: "I believe we are ready for that same spirit again — to plan ahead.

New storm heads east

By JOHN LESAR United Press International A new winter storm spawned in the Southwest headed for the winter-weary East today, threatening to end the area's brief respite from bitter weather that has idled more than 3 million workers and left more than 75 persons dead.

Blizzards and subzero cold subsided Wednesday but could not ease the crippling pressure on dwindling energy reserves.

President Carter Wednesday night signed emergency legislation to divert vital natural gas from low priority areas to homes, hospitals and other high priority areas.

Carter declared states of emergency in winter-pummeled Indiana and Ohio.

Winter's latest onslaught has left 76 persons dead in the past six days, with New York reporting 31, Indiana 21, Ohio 11, Illinois 10, Georgia 3, Oklahoma 2, and Virginia and Pennsylvania one each.

Power and Light Co. extended their nearly 100 per cent curtailment to large industrial and commercial users, including schools, for one full week.

But Marvin E. White, chairman of Columbia Gas, which serves 56 Ohio counties, said homeowners will have heat. "We are going to win the ball game this winter," he predicted.

New York reported 260,000 workers in the blizzard-stricken city. Some 300 Army regulars were flown in to help clear the snow.

Buffalo Mayor Stanley Makowski, in appealing to Carter for help with described Buffalo as "a city fighting for its life."

The New York State Thruway was reopened between Rochester and the Pennsylvania line but motorists were warned they faced arrest if they ventured into snow-ravaged Buffalo.

The hamlet of Hooker near Waterbury, N.Y., has had 64.2 inches of snow in the past week and 220 inches during the winter.

In Ohio, where some 1.5 million persons are idled because of weather-related energy shortages, Columbia Gas of Ohio and Dayton

Building code revamping a good investment

It is kind of nice from time to time to find out that suggestions made in these columns are shared by others, especially those in state government.

Several months ago, when Manchester officials asked zoning board members to look at zoning rules which might be hampering construction of lower cost housing, The Herald suggested that perhaps the state and local building codes might be re-examined with the same goal in mind.

Last week, state Public Works Commissioner Robert A. Weirnerman told the legislature's State and Urban Development Committee the state building code, set up in 1971, should be revamped to allow changes to cut construction costs, thereby creating badly needed jobs in the depressed building industry. Lower construction costs would also mean lower prices, making more homes available to those with less means. Another fringe benefit, so to speak, of revamping the code would be that Connecticut would qualify for an $800,000 federal grant under the Energy Policy and Conservation Act. "It is impossible to overstate," Weirnerman said, "the need for action with respect to existing buildings and contemplated construction to devise and promote the use of new technology for the conservation of our finite energy sources."

Modernizing of the state building code could provide employment, save energy and provide more housing at prices more people can afford. We think the legislature would be wise to invest the $177,600 Weirnerman estimates it will cost to revise the code and carry out an educational program for design professionals, construction industry representatives and local building officials.

Does punishment have to deter, too?

WASHINGTON — Unfortunately, Gary Gilmore lives on. At a dinner party, one little knot of guests played a guessing game—who would get the role of Gary Gilmore in the movie? So that wretched man was a winner after all. In life a vicious loser, in death he is a cause celebre to more people than I have the stomach to count. Give me Jesse James any time. He was a killer, too, but he spared society the cheap kill-me histrionics that were Gilmore's open sesame to notoriety. In the last days of his life, Gilmore was a cool man who sold the media a gold brick.

Dime-store fun
 Don't tell me Gilmore wanted to die. He knew he had to die, so he decided to have some dime-store fun. In the process, he launched a new argument on the question of whether capital punishment is constitutional or too cruel. The answer, of course, depends on the state of one's glands as well as mind. But I reject use of the phrase

"It is impossible to overstate," Weirnerman said, "the need for action with respect to existing buildings and contemplated construction to devise and promote the use of new technology for the conservation of our finite energy sources."

too cruel." Capital punishment is cruel, period. It is legally packaged, certain death on a certain day, and that is a senseless waste of time. Since most killers are cowards I assume the death penalty inflicts a thousand deaths.

No alternative
 After years of equivocating behind the pious assertion that I didn't want to play God, I now favor capital punishment for certain crimes. Society simply has no alternative. Life imprisonment, no; at least not our society's idea of life imprisonment, which dodges the certainty that a murderer will spend the rest of his life behind bars. Too many murderers are paroled as a reward for what is euphemistically called "good behavior." How else should a killer be expected to behave in prison? Paroling a killer is like awarding a soldier a good conduct discharge because he didn't desert.

The preferable penalty
 So capital punishment seems to me the preferable penalty for taking a human life. After all, a murderer really has no right, constitutional or otherwise, to go on living. He played the judge, jury and the executioner. His victim had no right to appeal, no smart lawyer, no opportunity to plead insanity; he is gone forever, and forever is a particularly long time for the victim who so often these days is a child. Some of my best friends are among those who argue that the death penalty should be abolished because it is not a deterrent. There's no way to answer that question except by saying the penalty deters some people, but not others.

Just punishment
 But aren't we missing the point in discussing the death penalty's deterrent value? To me, capital punishment is just that—punishment. It is society punishing one of its members for breaking society's gravest rule, the rule which says a human life is sacred. We can all hope the death penalty is a deterrent, but the intent must be, first, to punish. Maybe our society is so sick that we turn out murderers like Ford turns out automobiles. But spare me those teary, long-winded charges that society is to blame every time somebody shoots an illegal hole in somebody's head. We may indeed live in an imperfect world, but en masse we are not quite as imperfect as the merchant who peddles murder.

Taylor's response to Mr. Ahearn
 The free press and the sensibility of its readers with inaccuracies and outright libel to further his own political ambitions. I only wish to stress to the residents of Bolton the honest efforts of the Bolton Charter Commission and the fact that no one on the commission knows of the revision to the minority representation law as it pertains to the Board of Selectmen. The simple truth of the matter, is that Mr. Ahearn did not tell me about the change in the minority representation law on June 23, 1976, as he claims, or on any other date. Why didn't Mr. Ahearn tell members of his own party? I would not wish to be the issue brought up then—when something could have been done about it? Not now, seven months after he claimed to have told me and nine months after he voted on the issue in the legislature. Mr. Mahler's preliminary comments to the selectmen do not state the fact that minority representation on the Board of Selectmen was changed. These comments were distributed to the commission members and read at the June 21, 1976 meeting with the understanding that nothing further need be done since Mr. Mahler would present his final comments and discuss them with the commission at a later meeting. The subsequent list of comments submitted by Mr. Mahler and discussed with the commission did not contain any reference to minority representation on the board and Mr. Mahler did not raise the matter.

Today's thought
 The newspapers are full of accounts of injustice—graft in high places, mugging, larceny, cheating in colleges, not to mention the greatest injustice involved in murder. Immediate is our horror, outrage, or simple condemnation, for there is in us a native sense of the appropriateness and even the necessity of justice. This innate aspiration for justice is responsible for the great body of human legislation, for law-courts and jails, for vocations of lawyers, judges and policemen. Justice is the law which God has written on the human heart. Public injustice is one thing, but private morality in this sphere seems to be another. Too often no correlation is seen between the violence of injustice which makes "news" and the lesser but real injustice which

Gardening
 By Frank Atwood
 John Whitman can always start a conversation with a customer who sees his "fishhook" cactus. It is a rounded plant, 16 inches across, growing in a pot that has to be a little larger than the plant. One is advised to approach the cactus with caution. The large spines, curved like fishhooks, are very strong and sharp. It is easy to imagine that the natives of Baja California, where the cactus has its origin, could, as legend has it, use these spines to catch fish. The plant bears a half-circle of yellow fruits near the top. It started with a full circle of yellow blossoms, each later developing into a rounded fruit. Mr. Whitman picked one for me and cut it open with his jackknife. Inside were many small, shiny black seeds and three of them had sprouted into green seedlings inside the pod. This phenomenon has been so interesting to visitors, and to Mr. Whitman himself, that half the pods have already been harvested, sometimes with and sometimes without the owner's knowledge. We turned the plant around so that we would have a good show of pods left for the picture.

How old? Anybody's guess
 Growing a cactus from seed is a long process. Mr. Whitman says he can't guess how old this plant is, but he has had it for a year and the buds, which came before the flowers and the fruit, were already formed a year ago. The Latin name of the plant is Ferocactus, the same word root from which we get "ferocious." To tell another side of the story, the ripe fruits are said to be edible and have been called delicious.

John Whitman calls the room where the fishhook cactus and some of its relatives are displayed the "plant and pottery room." One wall with no windows is devoted to ceramic containers in which plants can be grown. The opposite wall is mostly glass and some light enters at both ends of the room. It was designed to have low light intensity, just about the amount of light that one finds in the living room of a home not built for plant displays. He feels that plants coming out of this environment are already adapted to the conditions in which they will be expected to thrive after the customer takes them home. It is far less light than one finds in a greenhouse.

The floor is gravel, which means that water can be splashed around freely, or spilled by accident, with no harm done. Some not for sale

 Some plants have grown so well and stayed so long that they are larger than most people could fit into their living rooms and they are not for sale. There is a large Schefflera which has been in the room since it was built and is eight feet tall. It is a foliage plant adapted to a room the size of a bank lobby. Another plant that is not for sale is a night blooming cereus which blooms every year. It has had as many as 15 blossoms in one season. "These are mine," says Mr. Whitman. There is a large rabbit's foot fern in a hanging basket which was a gift from a customer. The "rabbit's foot" are roots which grow out along the surface of the soil and have the hairy appearance of a rabbit's foot. A hare's foot fern is similar, but the "feet" are larger. Mr. Whitman makes the point that his business is a nursery and that he sells growing plants, not cut flowers. The busiest month in the year will be May, and he will need extra part-time help as gardeners come in for both perennial and annual plants.

April is the second busiest month and June is in third place. December, when Christmas trees and greens are in demand, ranks in fourth place. Just starting is the slowest month of the year, February. January is only a little better formed cold weather made January particularly slow this year. Manchester native Mr. Whitman grew up in Manchester and his first job as a horticulturist was being chrysanthemums for William Viltner in a field off Sullivan Avenue in South Windsor. He was 14 and this job really taught him to work, he says now. The row was so long that, starting at one end Monday morning, he could just reach the other end by quitting time on Friday. After high school, he went to the University of Connecticut for a degree in horticulture and then had three years in the Army. It was a peace-time Army, after the Korean War and before Vietnam. Home again, he purchased the piece of land where his nursery now stands and started right in to make money selling Christmas trees. He spent $1,100 for trees and took in $1,000.

"That taught me the importance," he concludes, "of inventory control."

John E. Whitman points to seed pods on his "fishhook" cactus in the plant room of his nursery on Rt. 6, Bolton. Common name refers to the spines, very hard and sharp, said to be used as fishhooks by Indians.

State legislators representing Manchester recently commented on three of the more talked-about issues that will be before the House and Senate in 1977.

The "Bottle Bill," which would require the use of returnable containers in the state, is a proposal that was defeated by last year's General Assembly.

Legislation affecting Sunday openings came to the forefront this year following the 1976 court decision that outlawed blue laws, which had previously prohibited Sunday openings.

The third issue is proposed legislation to eliminate price controls on liquor.

Local legislators had these comments to make about the bottle bill, Sunday openings, and liquor pricing.

He recently toured the Embart Industries plant in Windsor, a firm that produces automatic machinery for the glass bottle industry.

Sunday openings— "People around the state are saying, 'Let's get back to Sunday closings.' Personally, that's the way I feel," Mahoney said.

Liquor pricing — Mahoney said that most people he has talked to on this issue are in favor of decontrolling liquor prices. He has received some correspondence from people in the liquor industry, who are concerned about such decontrol.

Rep. Abraham Glassman (D-14th) Bottle bill — Glassman has exempted himself from this issue in the past and plans to continue to do so. He works in the vending business, which presents a conflict of interest with the proposed legislation.

Sunday openings — He has submitted legislation to control Sunday openings. While he did not support forcing businesses to remain closed on Sunday, he also does not support forcing them to remain open.

Sen. George Hannon (D-Third) Bottle bill and Liquor pricing — Hannon is on the Environment and Liquor Control Committees and said that it would be "presumptuous" for him to comment on either proposal before it is discussed in committee.

Sunday openings — Hannon said that he hoped the legislature could reach some "middle ground" on this issue.

"I'd be for some modifications to the present openings," he said.

Sen. David Barry (D-Fourth) Bottle bill — Barry supported this bill last session and said, "I will very likely support it again."

Sunday openings — He said that he is seeking "some restrictions" on the present "wide-open" system.

Liquor pricing — Barry said that his annual "shoebox survey" is "coming in very heavily for repeal of the price controls."

Orford day care renovations expected to cost less than $30,000

Jay J. Giles, director of public works, said Wednesday that the cost of renovating the Orford Village School should be less than the $30,000 budgeted for the repairs.

A town crew has been working at the school, which is the proposal site for the Early Learning Center, a municipal day care center.

Originally, the town had planned on having the renovations at the school done by a private contractor. The work was put out to bid, but only one company, R.A. Alexander of East Hartford, submitted a price.

That price, $54,948, was about twice as high as the town had anticipated.

The town decided in December to assign a five-person crew from the Public Works Department to do the work.

Giles said that the town has subcontracted three parts of the project — plumbing, insulating, and siding — that town workers would not be able to do.

"The quotes that we got were quite good," Giles said of the subcontracting. The town obtained a bid waiver for the subcontracting, Giles said. Thus, the subcontracts did not have to go out to bid, but the town did have to pay $250.

The town has spent $18,300 of the $30,000 budgeted for the project, Giles said. The money spent includes the prices of the subcontracts, but does not include the salaries of the workers, who are full-time town employees.

The major item left to be repaired is the roof, which will be done by the town employees, Giles said. Work done until the roof is repaired on the snow on the roof dis-appears. He also said that interior partitioning has been completed. Giles said. He said that painting, cannot be done until the roof is repaired.

Package store owners rally to save minimum price law

HARTFORD (UPI) — Hundreds of package store owners today converged on the Capitol to fight for retention of the minimum price law, while the chief proponent of change called the current system "price fixing."

The legislative Liqueur Control Committee's first public hearing on whether current laws allowing both distributors and retailers to set minimum price marks should be abolished, brought out emotions on both sides.

"I'm here today to ask your committee to put an end to a colossal daily ripoff of the Connecticut consumer," said Sen. Robert Houley, D-Somers, who has been the legislative driving force behind changing the current system. "I'm here today to ask your help to stop price fixing in the liquor industry."

A spokesman for the industry, bitterly opposed to Houley's effort that could damage their livelihood, said chartered buses from Bridgeport, Stamford, New Haven and Waterbury had brought retailers to the Capitol to show their feelings.

"I think they (package store owners) should be protected," said Richard Goodman of Bloomfield, speaking for the Connecticut Package Stores Association. "This is an industry where the average age of the package store owner is over 65."

Houley countered that he saw no reason to protect package store owners from competition from giant corporations, when there is no similar protection in other businesses.

Houley said the evidence indicated the minimum price legislation was the reason Connecticut has "many more liquor stores than it needs."

Goodman warned changing the system could mean loss of part of the $65 million in liquor tax revenue the state realizes yearly.

Houley and Goodman disputed whether Connecticut's retail liquor prices were higher than those in neighboring states, each saying statistics showed he was right.

Downtown parking promotion signs proposed

(Continued from Page One) precedence over other cases on the court docket, and because of the "substantial public interest," the case should be scheduled as quickly as possible. He also said that commission members should attend the Feb. 7 hearing of the Planning and Zoning Commission, at which the town will present its case for an inland wetlands permit and a zone change needed for two small parcels of the park not included in the first zone change.

The Neighborhood Committee, which is made up of residents living in the area that would surround the proposed park, was also pleased. Okrant said that they did a "fantastic job," and Weiss said that the neighbors support for the park at the Jan. 10 zoning hearing impressed the

Coffee price said linked to Arab oil

NEW YORK (UPI)—A New York congressman has tied rising coffee prices to Middle East oil and predicted that the price of a pound of coffee would reach $6 within months. Rep. Fred Richmond, D-N.Y., charged at a public hearing Wednesday that the coffee-producing countries are "going in."

Correction In Wednesday's story on the possible cost increase for land acquisition caused by the appeal of the zoning hearing, the figure mistakenly came out as $5 million. The figure should have actually been $500,000, or 1/10th of a million. A decimal point was accidentally left out, causing the error. The Herald regrets this error.

The program calls for five five-foot by eight-foot panels, called junior panels by the Reading Sign Co., to be located at different locations, primarily on town approaches. To be effective, the proposal says the ads should run for at least three months at a cost of $804. A six-month run would cost $1,164.80, and 12 months, $2,122.40. The price covers a two-color ad and artwork preparation. In his letter to the Parking Authority, Lesdore Fladding said, "As a concerned Manchester citizen, I am willing to offer an additional panel free of charge on either a six- or 12-month program if the Parking Authority will bear the cost of the additional posters. TPA chairman Robert Gorman read a letter from Town Manager Robert Weiss notifying the group of saleable property at 16-18 Birch St. for $46,900. However, the TPA agreed that first, they couldn't afford it, and second, that the property wouldn't add that much to the downtown parking area to make it worthwhile. The TPA discussed the perilous condition of the Parnall Parking lot since the last big storm which left it immovable frozen snow and ice after a sudden temperature drop. Jurand said that he had spoken to Robert Gioia, owner of the firm contracted by the town for snow removal in that area, and Gioia said he had waited all day of the storm to be called by the town. Jurand also proposed that the TPA examine the downtown parking signs for necessary restoration and replacement.

GOP leader claims proof of patronage

By MAL BARLOW East Hartford Reporter

"I wanted to prove beyond a shadow of a doubt there is patronage being doled out in this town," said Councilwoman Esther Clarke, Republican minority leader. She was referring this week to work she has completed on a list of 176 summer employees of 1976. She got the list from the town only after appealing to the state Freedom of Information Commission in the fall. She found that 75 of the summer employees, many of them high school and college students, were related in some way to town politicians. "This is not right," she said. "It must come to an end." Included among the types of relations she found were Republicans as well as Democrats. They included sons, daughters, nieces and nephews of town employees. The politicians she referred to included leaders on the Board of Education and the Town Council, and members of town boards and commissions. Several mothers of the summer workers were poll watchers for one party or the other. Mrs. Clarke had gone to a class at Penney High School recently to give a talk. She asked the class, "How do you get a summer job in East Hartford?" She said she asked the question just to spark interest in her talk. But the class overwhelmed her with its load

Trying to break a tie

Miguel Guzman lines up a shot he hopes will break the tie in a bumper pool game with Mark Dumont Wednesday night at Penney High School. Diggs' pact renewed

The East Hartford Board of Education voted this week to renew School Supt. Eugene A. Diggs' contract for two more years. Dr. Diggs joined the school system in 1969, replacing Dr. Arnold R. Proteta as superintendent.

Money short for Vernon housing

The Vernon Town Council Tuesday night agreed to transfer $20,000 left in the sidewalk fund to the Housing Authority, but the Housing Authority is still short of the amount it needs to build more housing for the elderly. The units are to be an addition to the Grove St. project. When bids came in they were considerably higher than what the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) allotted for the project. The grant for the project was $390,000. The low bid was $453,394. Francis Pitkat, executive director of the Housing Authority, told the council that ordinarily the project would be rebuilt. He said, however, that about 300 persons are waiting for housing and it's also possible prices would come in even higher. Edwin Lavitt, attorney for the Housing Authority, said the contract can't be legally signed until there is a firm commitment for the full cost of the project. The contract has to be signed by sometime in April. It has already been given a 60-day extension due to the unexpected high bids. Councilman Robert Wheril, former chairman of the town's Permanent Building Committee, said the town crew could do some of the site work to save some money. When asked about federal funds the town already has, Town Planner John Loranger said there is $20,000 in the town's sidewalk budget which could be assigned to the Housing Authority by a very complicated process. He said the town then would have to re-apply for sidewalk funds. Public hearings would have to be held and the process would take about two months. He said if the wheels don't go smoothly it could take longer. Wheril also suggested that the Housing Authority eliminate the contingency fund and use that money Pitkat said the Housing Authority doesn't have control of the budget and the money can't be taken out of the town's budget. Pitkat said he will have to continue to pursue the matter in an attempt to get the remaining amount of money needed. He said something has to be started by June 26 or the town will be in danger of losing the funding.

Funds flow for housing

By MAL BARLOW East Hartford Reporter

Money is beginning to flow in the direction of low and moderate income housing in East Hartford. Monday, Nick Giamalis, executive director of the East Hartford Housing Authority, said the state Department of Community Affairs has awarded $116,500 to the authority. The money will pay for improvements at the King Court and Veterans Ter. projects. Mayor Richard Blackstone announced Monday he has added $50,000 for authority repair projects in the town's third-year application for federal Community Development Act funds. The town has $440,000 coming if the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) approves the application. The mayor also increased the loan and grants program for repairs to owner-occupied housing from $80,000 in last year's application to $100,000 this year. Heating repairs Giamalis said the state grant will go mainly for replacing and repairing heating systems at two of the town projects. Right now, first floor units are heated by tubing hung from the ceiling. "Everyone knows heat rises," he said, criticizing the system. The state funds will help the authority put in baseboard heating and change burners on furnaces. The Community Development Authority could go for a long list of authority projects. Last year, Giamalis gave the East Hartford League of Women Voters a list totaling $350,000. Mrs. Rose Brown, league president, said this morning of the mayor's $50,000, "This is a move in the right direction." However, she said it was her personal opinion the $50,000 was "a mere token to shut us up." The league's human rights committee, chaired by Mary Goodwin, had studied housing and the Housing Authority's needs in 1976. Later the league urged the Town Council and the mayor to do all they could to help HUD. HUD has yet to give East Hartford a penny in Community Development funds. The City of East Hartford has used HUD blocking funds to seven suburban towns, including East Hartford. The basis of the use was the seven towns' failure to offer proper figures on how many low and moderate income people are expected to reside in their towns. Mayor Blackstone has appealed the court decisions blocking the funds.

Jaycees meet tonight on highway connector

The East Hartford Jaycees will meet with Town Council leaders, the Prospect area representatives to the General Assembly and other concerned citizens tonight at 8 in the Town Hall to discuss highways. The Jaycees and others have formed a group called Citizens for the Connectors. Their goal is to connect I-86 with I-84 through Manchester town line and to connect Rt. 2 with Rt. 5 at the Bisell Bridge in South Windsor. The traffic dumped onto East Hartford streets by the failure of these roads to connect has caused many accidents in the Silver Lane area and noise and nuisance problems in the Prospect area. Town Council Chairman George Dagon said he hopes the group can bring pressure to bear on state and federal leaders to work towards completing the connectors. One method is a petition the Jaycees hope will be signed by 10,000 residents. Another way is to ask General Assembly members from East Hartford, all four of them, to do what they can. The meeting tonight is open to the public.

Council okays request to reduce quorum rule

South Windsor The majority of the South Windsor Town Council members have approved a request by the Human Relations Commission to reduce the number of members needed for a quorum. Commission Chairman John Giordano told the council this week that the present seven-member quorum often prevents the commission from conducting business. Giordano asked the council to change the quorum requirements from seven to five, so the Human Relations Commission would be the same as other nine-member boards and commissions. The commission has nine members. Mayor Sandra Bender said she was concerned about the high rate of absenteeism on the commission, but Giordano said no particular member had been derelict in attending meetings. "When you have nine people on a board, you expect all nine to be there," Mrs. Bender said. Deputy Mayor Robert Myette told the council he shared Mrs. Bender's concern about attendance. "I would support a recommendation to unappoint any member if he or she does not fulfill his responsibilities on the commission," Myette said.

A public protector

Lt. Richard J. Lewis of the East Hartford Police Department administration office has been on the local force since Sept. 19, 1957. He helps prepare each year's budget, studies traffic problems and corrects them, and keeps police records straight. He is the only member on the force now who has graduated from the FBI Academy in Quantico, Va. At the school, he specialized in administrative problems including planning and research. Lt. Lewis has been active for many years in the East Hartford Little League program. Last season he made league history here by drafting a girl for the team he coached. "Darlene Bousquet is a good player," he said. Police are still investigating.

Area police report

Tolland Dec. 1. He was held on $500 bond for court today. Peter Ray, 20, of 52 Lakesview Heights, Tolland was jogging on Rt. 30 Wednesday at 8:10 p.m. when he was struck by an oncoming car, state police said. Ray was taken to Rockville General Hospital where he was treated for a fractured knee and released. Hebron State police are seeking a hit-and-run driver who ran over a Rham High School student's leg Wednesday. Richard M. Langley, 17, of Wall St., Hebron was taken by ambulance to Windham Community Memorial Hospital, where he was treated for torn ligaments and cartilage in his left foot. Vernon Charles T. Supernaut, 25, of Hartford, was arrested Wednesday on a warrant charging him with fourth-degree larceny and violation of probation. He was held on $1,000 bond for appearance in Common Pleas Court 19, Rockville, today. Larry Bryant, 16, of Hartford, was arrested Wednesday after a house break on Elm Hill Rd. and charged with second-degree burglary and fourth-degree larceny. Police recovered some canned food and several kitchen knives. He was released for court appearance Feb. 23. Joseph Pranczuk, 21, of 3 West St., South Windsor, was arrested Wednesday on a warrant charging him with second-degree larceny by possession of a motorcycle stolen

Mrs. Leone promoted to assistant town clerk

Town Clerk John Barry said Monday he now has a new assistant, Mrs. Evelyn M. Leone. He swore Mrs. Leone in Friday morning as assistant town clerk. Mrs. Leone is a native of East Hartford and has worked as an assistant registrar of vital statistics in the town clerk's office for the past eight years. She is the widow of the late Dominie Leone, well known market gardener and operator of a roadside stand with his wife on Silver Lane until his death in 1966. Mrs. Leone has been active in many civic affairs and is a charter member and past president of the East Hartford Woman's Club and a member of the League of Women Voters. The promotion means Mrs. Leone is third in command at the office behind Barry and Mrs. Ethel Metcalf, his first assistant.

Hearing set tonight on plans for Bolton

Bolton selectmen will conduct a public hearing tonight at 8 at the Community Hall to discuss items on the agenda for Monday's Town Meeting and the use of anti-recession funds received under the federal Public Works Employment Act of 1976.

At the Town Meeting, residents will be asked their feelings on joining a multi-town health district. Michael Rossetti, chief local health administrator, will explain the district and answer questions tonight.

The district will include the towns of Andover, Bolton, Hebron, South Windsor, Tolland and Vernon. It will cost no more than $1.20 per capita.

Rossetti said a multi-town district health department, organized according to modern health techniques with full-time personnel, can maintain and improve public health standards in each town at a cost each can afford.

First Selectman David Dreselly said the principal advantage of joining the health district now is that it would free the town's assessment inspector to do the planned renovation.

Bolton leaders mull old library, training

Included in Bolton selectmen's discussion of the 1977-1978 proposed budget Tuesday night were a use for the old library and a training program for highway workers.

In discussing the old library, First Selectman David Dreselly and Selectman Leon Rivers seemed to favor putting $7,300 in the police account to renovate the building for use by the resident state trooper and a constabulary.

Selectman Norman Preuss felt the constabulary could use the office now used by the trooper. He said if Bolton has a constabulary, it should patrol the town, not sit in an office.

The selectmen discussed an offer

PTO donates to truck fund Hebron
At a recent Hebron PTO board meeting, it was voted to donate $100 to the Junior Women's Club emergency vehicle fund drive. A donation was requested by Sandy Bocynecki, club president.

PTO Treasurer Anne Boynton reported the status of the account balance. The PTO has collected $1,200. The Halloween Spook Night raised $200; Book Fair, $423; school pictures, $556; and Santa's Workshop, $887.

The resignation of the outgoing PTO officer was discussed. The resignation was accepted. The resignation was accepted. The resignation was accepted.

Thoughts ApLenTy

Lee High of New Haven featuring Sylvester "Slip" Williams, now starring at the University of Rhode Island.

While it's not apparent because of their inconsistent play, maybe the Indians can get at least one step further. John Pisch, daily improving Jeff Kiernan and Scott Hyde will key any success Manchester has in tournament play.

No stranger
There is no way in the world you can get a better idea of a stranger to post-season play. The provincial school has had a varsity hockey program 14 years and has qualified each year.

East at its inception had a long run in state finals but hasn't made the final two in Class 1 since 1972. That year the Eagles defeated Warren Harding of Bridgeport. The latter is defending Class D champ and the Presidents along with Rippowam, Bassick of Bridgeport, Fairlee Prep and South Catholic are early picks. East? The Eagles are up there also but the question is where. No matter — Class L once again will be the most interesting division.

Middletown is Class M champ and there is no one in sight who appears ready to dethrone the Tigers. Reports from the shire say Hand High of Madison will give Middletown a run for its money but seeing is believing.

The Class S Division appears dominated by the parochials. St. Joseph's of Trumbull is defending title and it along with Immaculate of Danbury, St. Thomas Aquinas and Central Catholic of Norwalk talk early line. COC members Cromwell and Coventry are in the S Division and it'll be interesting to see how well they fare.

Discrimination charge filed in local softball

By EARL YOST
Sports Editor

First formal discrimination charge against the Manchester Recreation Department's slow pitch softball program has been filed by the Feline League.

Mel Siebold, Rec director, acknowledged that his office had received the attorney's letter last week from the top women's league in town and it has been turned over to town counsel for disposition.

The Feline League claims that it is unfair for the Rec Department to permit just one league, Silk City, to use as many as five non-resident players on each roster. The Silk City League is the only one of the 10 loops the Rec supervises that allows this practice and has for a number of years.

All other leagues must select their players from town residents or from non-residents who are employed fulltime by a town sponsor.

Last summer there were 74 teams in the Rec membership with 1,200 players.

Six teams made up the Feline League. This was one of two adult women's leagues.

Charges dropped

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — An assault and battery charge against New England Whalers hockey coach Harry Neale, stemming from a fight last November featuring the coach against some spectators, was dropped Wednesday in city recorder's court.

Tricia Duncan, a spectator at the Nov. 25 Whalers-Birmingham Bulls WHA game, consulted with her attorneys and Neale was allowed to leave town after the Bulls edged the Whalers 4-3 Tuesday night.

No quorum prevents decisions in Andover

The Andover Board of Education was unable to take any action at its special meeting Tuesday because it lacked a quorum. Only three of the board's four members attended the meeting. The six-member board has two vacancies because of recent resignations.

Two candidates for the board, Nancy Hegener and John Bell, attended the meeting.

The board discussed its proposed 1977-1978 budget. Beatrice Kowalski, chairman, said the budget, as presented, shows about a $70,000 increase. She said all the items requested will not be accepted.

Snow removal money
At the special Board of Finance meeting Tuesday, members approved an appropriation of $100,000 for the snow removal budget. Residents' approval will be sought at the Feb. 9 Town Meeting.

'Arrived' Cougars win third in row

By GARY GRABOWSKI

"We finally arrived," were the first words voiced by Manchester Community College basketball coach Don Geissler after seeing his quiet surprise Mitchell Junior College, 67-62, last night at East Catholic High. It was the Cougars' third straight success and brought their record to 6-9.

Behind most of the way, MCC's Steve Faulkner swished a 10-foot jumper with 1:39 left giving the locals only their second lead, 63-61.

Moments before the 6:2 Faulkner tied it with an off-balance driving layup. The Pequot had a chance to tie it but a turnover gave MCC possession and Marc Cheney's bucket with 48 seconds left put the verdict away.

The first half saw Mitchell, now 8-5, skirt to a 10-4 lead after the first five minutes. But two hops by Mike Robinson closed the gap and it remained tight with Mitchell holding a 32-30 halftime edge.

An extremely pleased Geissler commented, "It was our best game of the year. We're coming around to our potential."

Robinson led the Cougars with 14 points followed by Faulkner (12), Cheney (12) and Nick DeMarco (12). Graig Thurmond had a game-high 24 points for Mitchell.

In the preliminary contest, Mitchell's women's squad used a full court zone press to swamp MCC, 61-37.

Illing girl hoopsters show plenty of talent

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sportswriter

While there will be an influx from Bennet, the majority of fresh talent for Manchester High's girls' basketball program next season will come out of Illing Junior High.

The Ramettes, under coach George Sultor, had won their first eight outings going into yesterday's play and had done so in impressive fashion.

Illing Monday afternoon using a hotting fast break was big, getting several easy layups off the break.

"We didn't play well the first three games but since we've been playing extremely well," cited Sultor. "The thing with this team is the attitude is very good. They are extremely coachable. You show them something once and they will try to go out and apply it."

Among the leading prospects are guard Sue Roth, an 80 per cent free throw shooter who is averaging 15 points per game, and 5-11 center Mary Neuhel, who according to Sultor "could develop into a devastating player in high school."

Others to watch are Liz Neuhel and Linda Carpenter, two fine set-up guards. Cathy Connors, Melissa Geagan, a good rebounder who only played four minutes as an eighth grader, and Sue Brown. The latter, Sultor notes, is a very good rebounder now and "can hit she plays

Celts hit skids

NEW YORK (UPI) — The defending champion Boston Celtics are in danger of not making the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The Celtics lost to the New York Nets Wednesday night, 99-89, for the sixth defeat in their last seven games and dropped to third in the Atlantic Division.

Fortunately for the Celtics, there are 23 games to go this season. Unfortunately, for them, there is no reason to anticipate a drastic improvement.

Without someone to complement Paul Pierce, the Celtics are unable to play pressure defense and fast-break offense.

The Nets exploited the Celtics' problems at guard, too, spreading out the offense so Bubbles Hawkins and Al Skinner could go one-on-one with White and John Havlicek, respectively.

Surprisingly, Hawkins had tremendous success against White and scored 18 of his 22 points in the second half. He also scored 10 straight points for the Nets in the closing minutes to thwart any possible comeback by the Celtics.

Skinner was the Nets' top scorer with 24 points.

Dave Cowens had 29 points and 17 rebounds for the Celtics in his best

Skating championship opens

Defending senior pair lead after compulsory

HARTFORD, (UPI) — Tai Babilonia, 16, of Mission Hills, Calif., and her partner, Rami Rodriguez, 18, of Los Angeles, showed their national championship form Wednesday night as they swept a first place in the first competition for senior pairs at U.S. Figure Skating championships.

A Colorado Springs, Colo., couple, Gail Hamula, 20, and Frank Swindell, 22, came in second. They were followed in third place by Sheryl Franks, 15, of Lexington, Mass., and Michael Botchell, 16, of Weston, Mass.

The silver dance compulsory was won by Kelley Morris of Columbus, Ind., and her partner Michael Seibert of Carmel, Ind. The team of Felicia Digusto, East Haven, Conn., and Donald Adair, of West Hartford, Conn., was second, followed by Hae Sun Park of Warren, N.J., and Patrick Shannon of Milford, Conn.

The silver dance finals were scheduled for tonight.

Earlier in the evening, Vicki Heatley, 15, of West Covina, Calif., and Robert Wagenhoffer, 16, of Fontana, Calif., became national junior pairs champions.

Second place went to Maria DiDomenico, 13, of San Valley, Calif., and her 18-year-old partner, Larry Schrier of North Hollywood, Calif.

Third place in the junior pairs competition went to Mary Lou Robinson of Rockton, Ill., and her partner, Jay Belmonte, 18, of Evanston, Ill.

The competition for senior pairs will be tonight.

Sandy Leniz of Rockford, Ill., paced the junior ladies opening round with a 22.00 score. She was followed by the start of the 1977 championships.

About 140 skaters from throughout the nation are competing in the four-day event for chances to represent the U.S. in the World Competition at Tokyo next month. Competition in the senior ladies category will begin today.

Miss Leniz was awarded first place in the opening round by four of the seven judges. Clarissa Perrella of Oakland, Calif., received three firsts and two second places.

Others ranked after the first round

Bouca signs extension

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Shortstop Larry Bouca of the Philadelphia Phillies has signed a five-year extension of his contract, through the 1982 season, reportedly worth about $875,000.

The agreement, signed by Bouca Wednesday, is the longest extension of a contract given to any Phillies player. Slugging third baseman Mike Schmidt, who is still unsigned, is reported to be asking for a 10-year pact.

Lloyd top candidate

NEW YORK (UPI) — John Henry Lloyd, a 54-year-old shortstop who played center field for his late 30s, may take his place in the Hall of Fame beside the likes of Satchel Paige, Josh Gibson and Cool Papa Bell.

Lloyd, who died in 1965, at 81, after 37 years of professional and semipro baseball, was considered by the top candidate to be enshrined today in Baseball's Hall of Fame by the Special Committee of Negro Leagues.

Bennett eyed by Falcons

ATLANTA (UPI) — With Georgian Dan Reeves out of the running for the Atlanta Falcons' top coaching job, another Southerner, Len Bennett, a Los Angeles assistant coach, is the leading candidate.

"I'm a Southerner too, and it would be nice to return to that area," Bennett said recently.

Pitt receives trophy

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The 1976 national champion Pitt Panthers football team has received the 19th MacArthur Bowl, awarded annually by the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame as a symbol of college football supremacy.

Torre inks year pact

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Mets Wednesday signed veteran first baseman Joe Torre to a one-year contract in excess of $100,000.

Torre, 36, batted .306 in 111 games for the Mets last season with five homers and 31 runs batted-in.
