Harsh winter moderates over East

By JOHN LESAR United Press International Millions of Americans east of the Mississippi got a weather break today but forecasters warned them it won't last long.

"moderated to near normal values," the National Weather Service said, and an emergency energy bill opened the valves for fresh supplies of natural gas to flow to the eastern states.

manufacturing, salaries and sales in the past week. Light snow also hit New York City. Brief respite Most of the East enjoyed a brief respite from the bitter cold, but the National Weather Service warned a new round of subzero temperatures was expected in the upper Midwest during the weekend and probably would spread to the East.

Lower temperatures now legal

HARTFORD (UPI) - Connecticut factory workers, apartment tenants and state employees may feel a bit colder today, while patients in hospitals and nursing homes won't notice any change in the temperature.

three degree drop from the existing minimum allowable temperature of 68 degrees could save eight million cubic feet of natural gas and 200,000 gallons of home heating oil daily.

Classes and three major southwest Pennsylvania utilities gave schools a green light to reopen, though maintaining a ban on evening and weekend school activities. But industry was still crippled. A UPI survey of state officials showed some 3,072,000 workers were idled by weather and energy woes in 21 states today.

Board pleased with turnout for school budget hearing

By SUSAN VAUGHN Herald Reporter School Board members and school administration were pleased with the turnout of about 60 parents, teachers and interested persons who came to the board's public hearing on the school budget Thursday night at Robertson School.

Betty Kramer

He concluded by stating, "The budget is too austere. Education cannot be must 'maintained.' It must be 'improved.'"

Specific items the committee is considering for inclusion in the proposed budget include expansion of the Waddell School Media Center, expansion of the program for gifted children, hiring a librarian for Highland Park School, replacement of classroom lighting at Verplanck School, improving the playground at Nathan Hale School.

First full-time woman curate

The Rev. Mrs. Barbara West stands in the pulpit of St. Mary's Episcopal Church where she began full-time duties as assistant to the rector this week. She is the first woman to serve as a full-time curate in the Episcopal Diocese of Connecticut.

The Rev. Mrs. West assumes duties as curate at St. Mary's Church

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

The last thing she wanted as a child was to become a minister, said the Rev. Mrs. Barbara West, who began her full-time duties Tuesday as assistant to the rector of St. Mary's Church. The Rev. Mrs. West grew up in Manchester with the usual Sunday school training. She is the daughter of Mrs. John Field of 211 Bowdler Rd. and the late Dr. Field. She graduated from Manchester High School in 1954. By the time she reached college age, she said, she felt like an agnostic, probably because of her scientific training. She graduated from Colby College, Waterville, Maine, a member of Phi Beta Kappa. She was employed for two years at Harvard Medical School as a research assistant before marrying Robert West.

The Rev. Mrs. West raised a family, her two children, Susan, now 15, and Christopher, 14. They lived in Dallas, Tex. for the past 10 years where her husband was employed with Connecticut General Insurance Co.

Then something happened in 1969 that turned her life around. While trying to help a person who was experiencing serious depression, the Rev. Mrs. West said she "felt a higher power working," helping her in what to do and say to her friend. The Rev. Mrs. West kept the experience to herself for several months until she "felt the holy spirit guide" her to St. John's Episcopal Church in Dallas where she told the rector of her experience. He felt she should be immediately confirmed in the church.

The rector and vestry of St. John's sponsored the Rev. Mrs. West as a candidate for the Holy Orders and was accepted as a candidate by the bishop and standing committee of the Dallas Diocese.

She then enrolled at Southern Methodist University where she was a student in Perkins School of Theology for three years, graduating in May 1975 with a Master of Theology degree and ordained as a deacon.

The Rev. Mrs. West said her three years in school were the most difficult for her family because she spent so much time studying at home. The support of her husband carried her through, she said, and now that the children are older they help out, too.

When people ask her how she manages so much responsibility, she says she is "just like any other working mother." However, she concedes that her "job" is still unique for a woman, although the ministry for women is becoming more common, especially in the southern states. The Rev. West is the first woman to serve as a full-time curate in the Episcopal Diocese of Connecticut.

Her first position, after graduating, was as an associate chaplain at Gaston Episcopal Church in Dallas, which included "extended ministering" at all the hospitals in Dallas and seven nursing homes. In that position, the Rev. Mrs. West said she felt she "brought the church to people who felt alienated from the church in some way. It was very special to me," she said, that her ministry, and the fact she was a woman minister, had an effect on many persons to help them see the church in a new way and seek out the church again.

The Rev. Mrs. West's special concern is for the elderly and shut-ins who are not able to come to church. She feels the church, its lay persons, as well as clergy, should go to them to make them feel a part of the community. Her background seems to fit a need that the Rev. Stephen K. Jacobson, rector of St. Mary's, has felt for a long time. The Rev. Mr. Jacobson said he sees the three clergy on the staff, which includes The Rev. Dr. Alan Broadhead who serves on a part-time basis, as "enablers" who can help the church membership serve in the community.

The Rev. Mrs. West hopes to help mobilize the lay membership, "and their many gifts that are not used." She sees the church's real purpose as including all its membership and the community at large.

The program that the Rev. Mrs. West envisions has been tried on an experimental basis in other churches, she says, and she is not sure how it will develop in St. Mary's. The lay people could get involved on a one-to-one basis with shut-ins or as groups to visit shut-ins or in other ways.

The Rev. Mrs. West's vision is for a new involvement and commitment by lay persons. She feels the church as an institution in our society has become less and less a hub of activity for drawing the community together. She does not feel the church should go back to controlling people's lives, but would like to see lay persons involved in a new way. The clergy

"can't do it alone. It's not our church, it's everybody's," said the Rev. Mrs. West. The Rev. Mrs. West sees the church as a "beehive" where the members return to get replenished to enable them to go out in the community again. She feels there needs to be a joining of all the churches in the community also.

The Rev. Mrs. West sees the roles of the three ministers at St. Mary's to be shared as a team, rather than being defined with certain areas of responsibility. In announcing the Rev. Mrs. West's appointment in November, the Rev. Mr. Jacobson said, "I'm convinced that Barbara West is one of the most able new ministers, male or female, serving in the Episcopal Church today. I believe that she will be an outstanding minister to the people of St. Mary's and that all of us, even those who find it difficult to make the emotional adjustment to a woman will come to know God better through her ministry."

She has a lot to live up to, but the new curate is eager to take on the new opportunities that have opened up for her.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Budget Committee Chairman Robert Giaimo, D-Conn., Wednesday proposed doubling the amount spent for jobs in the first year of President Carter's economic package.

As his committee prepared to vote on Carter's proposal—perhaps later in the day—Giaimo said the extra money for jobs would increase the chances of meeting Carter's goal of reducing unemployment to between 6.7 and 6.9 per cent by the end of this year and perhaps exceed that goal.

Carter's $31.2 billion, two-year proposal includes $1.8 billion in the remainder of this fiscal year in direct spending to create jobs. Giaimo would add another $1.8 billion, bringing such spending to $3.5 billion above the current level.

The congressman proposed concentrating the extra money on job programs for youth, minorities, state and local communities and the construction industry. Giaimo's proposal is significant because the Budget Committee traditionally uses its chairman's recommendations as the starting point in its deliberations. Giaimo called his proposal "a moderate, reasonable package" and said it has wide support in the House. He said constituents of congressmen and mayors across the country have brought heavy pressure for more jobs.

Giaimo proposed spending $700 million more than Carter this fiscal year on job and training programs for youth, minorities, the elderly and other unemployed; $200 million more in aid to state and local governments; $300 million to reimburse localities for waste treatment projects already completed; and $500 million more than Carter in outlays for public works projects.

Giaimo's proposal would leave the total amount of Carter's tax cut and rebate proposals untouched.

validating hiring examinations. "To our knowledge, only the City of Hartford, among all the towns in the region, is validating tests at this time," he wrote to the directors. He noted that last year four towns were recruiting for police officers. Each gave a separate test. "This meant that applicants took as many as four examinations when it could have been possible to give one," Weiss said. "I am particularly concerned with the costs of validating examinations," he said. Because of this, he plans to participate in a future meeting scheduled by CROG to discuss a possible regionalizing of testing efforts.

Weiss to attend meeting on regional job testing

Town Manager Robert B. Weiss has informed the Board of Directors that he plans to participate in a meeting that will discuss a regional testing plan for job applicants.

Weiss said that, at a meeting last week, towns in the Capitol region and representatives from the Capitol Region Council of Governments (CROG) discussed the recruitment and testing of job applicants.

A representative from the City of Hartford attended the meeting and said that the city could provide testing services to CROG or individual towns on a contract basis. Weiss said that area towns were having problems in meeting equal opportunity requirements for

Pedestrians hard to see

Manchester has a lot of joggers on its streets, and what they wear has been cause for alarm.

The Connecticut Safety Commission has had reports from alarmed motorists who say they have barely missed striking joggers, or even pedestrians walking the roads.

Motorists say those people are invisible until the last instant.

Joggers and pedestrians using the roads at night should wear white clothing or reflective material so they can be seen.

The safety agency also reminds pedestrians that sand and ice on many roads add to a car's stopping distance.

Joggers should search for off-the-road run or try to use streets with minimal traffic.

Motorists should also be alert for pedestrian traffic after dark, and especially on roads without sidewalks or where snowbanks have narrowed the road shoulder.

Other editors say:

The Concorde

It was as happy as could be expected. Even with the limited scope available at present, Concorde has notched up a good many successes in the passenger-carrying field. Most encouraging business has been done on the Washington route.

Washington route up to June this year. Determined critics of the aircraft have been voiced in some other large American cities, notably New York, but there is still time for them to change their mind.

Fortunately the opposition to the aircraft in the United States, which seems to have sprung from commercial jealousy as much as from fears about the environment, has not carried the day so far.

There can be little doubt that some of the ideas developed by the Concorde designers and planners will be copied by manufacturers elsewhere in due course.

Music department support urged

The time is at hand again for the school budget to be presented to the town board. I should like to urge the citizens of Manchester to support the portion allocated to the Music Department.

Music is something that everyone of us relates to from the beginning to the end of his life. We turn our radios on to listen to music in our cars and in our homes.

Record sales attest to the major importance that music has in our lives. And yet when it comes to allocating funds to insure that students learn the fundamentals of music, this is relegated to one of the least important places in the funding of the school budget.

Proper education in their chosen field as scientists, mathematicians, or any other field. Unless our schools provide a course of study that will instruct them, these students will be deprived of a chance to develop their potential.

And who are the Trilateralists?

WASHINGTON - When our new United Nations Ambassador, Andrew Young, announced the other day that President Carter would "move forthrightly" to give Communist Vietnam membership in the UN, a wag in the White House pressroom cracked: "The Trilateralists have got to Carter."

And who are the Trilateralists? They are a bunch of 67 corporation executives, academics, politicians, labor union types, and female activists who want the United States to pay more attention to the Third World's demands for social justice and more take-home pay.

Jimmy Carter and Vice President Mondale are members. So is Carter's top national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski (hereinafter to be referred to as ZB). More significantly the Trilateralists were founded by banker David Rockefeller, who likes foreign policy to be run his way.

Meet from time to time. Known officially as the Trilateral Commission, these elite folks meet from time to time and publish assorted books, pamphlets and "white papers." Implicit in most of these publications is ZB's theory that unless the Western democracies give the emerging countries a square deal, these countries will feel forced to "threaten" the West through nuclear blackmail, regional wars, terrorism and such economic blows as the Arab oil embargo.

The Trilateralists are financed mostly by assorted foundations and Big Business and so calm they are independent of Rockefeller, who is said to have made only a "token" donation. But Rockefeller has never been one to let the boys run and play; nobody got into the Trilateral without his approval.

Rockefeller protege Be that as it may, ZB is a longtime

Andrew Tully

Rockefeller protege. And so far he has not rejected the view of an old pal, a Harvard professor named Samuel Huntington, who wrote a report for the Trilateralists that was critical of democracy.

As might be expected from a leading apologist for the Vietnam War, Huntington saw the people themselves as the cause of the upheavals of the past 15 years. Doing so, he absolved the Vietnam War, Watergate, Richard Nixon's deceptions and illicit acts by government agencies from any blame.

"Democratic distemper" Huntington referred to "a democratic distemper," and wrote that "an excess of democracy" threatened the authority of government. He called for the tempering of the people's "credulous passions," lest the United States become ungovernable.

There were anonymous Trilateralist dissents published as an appendix to Huntington's work. We "gully" people, however, can find more comfort in the words of a man who stood up to be counted - Thomas L. Hughes, president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, and former director of the State Department's intelligence branch.

Hughes called for more democracy. He said the Huntington report, "instead of criticizing the last two Presidents for grievously misgoverning the country..." criticized "the country for not submitting to the misgoverning. Recently, we have escaped the excesses of an immoral and unwinnable war and a cynical and criminal President. One might have thought that was the purpose of democracy - to make criminal government unmanageable."

A little leery I am not much for those theories of conspiracy advanced by both Right and Left. I do not believe David Rockefeller or Jimmy Carter's national security chief is trying to take over the country. But Andy Young's statement on Vietnam suggests that the Trilateralist position toward the Third World has been given a cordial hearing by the White House. And I don't want any minority pressure group, even the eminently distinguished Trilateralists, to wield too much influence in the Oval Office.

NO! THIS ISN'T THE HYDRANT! THIS IS JUST A KID IN A YELLOW SNOW OUTFIT!

WASHINGTON - A Russian roadshow plays in San Francisco this week starring three top Soviet scientists as traveling salesmen and a supporting cast that do not doubt will include at least one omnipresent KGB agent. They have just finished performing in Pittsburgh and Houston.

The Trilateralists are financed mostly by assorted foundations and Big Business and so calm they are independent of Rockefeller, who is said to have made only a "token" donation. But Rockefeller has never been one to let the boys run and play; nobody got into the Trilateral without his approval.

Russian technology, added Norris, could boost American employment and help the U.S. solve such problems as "energy, food, environment, materials, water shortages, and better health care." What is needed now, he said, is a "widespread recognition" by Americans that such help is required.

Pepsi a big hit American products already have cracked the Soviet marketplace. Pepsi-Cola, made at a plant near the Black Sea, has been a big hit with the Russians. And the Bendix Corp. is expected to sign an agreement with Moscow this spring that would introduce a second U.S. consumer product by building a $50 million spark plug plant in the U.S.S.R.

The Soviets are short on such desirable consumer products but, justice, or any virtue first. Notorious heroism it may not be, but every virtuous person who says there has been, if anything, "an over-restrictive U.S. trade policy in non-strategic goods between East and West."

Perhaps that is true in some areas. Although the Russians have given us little reason to trust them, there is probably no good reason why we shouldn't trade Pepsi and spark plugs for vodka and factory automation. But the fear lingers that American greed may indeed be selling us down the river along with our prized computers.

Today's thought

Everyone is capable of fortitude but its exercise is dependent upon the fervor with which we espouse the cause of the good, the true, the noble. Everyday, courage is being exercised in unnoticed and unknown ways when individuals place truth, mercy, justice, or any virtue first. Notorious heroism it may not be, but every virtuous person who says there has been, if anything, "an over-restrictive U.S. trade policy in non-strategic goods between East and West."

Solution simple

Now that a discrimination charge has been leveled at the Manchester Recreation Department by David's entry in the Feline League regarding the ban on non-resident players except for the Silk City men's league it may bring to a head the situation which has gotten out of hand in recent seasons.

The solution is simple. One can ban all non-residents from all Recreation Department programs.

Two open all Recreation Department programs to local and non-residents. The Silk City League, one of 10 supervised by the Rec, was the only one given a green light to officially allow up to as many as five non-residents on each roster. Eight of the leagues are for males.

Few, if any, of the 10 leagues complied strictly to the non-resident rule in the past, which erupted into a mild controversy late last season. The discrimination charge was outlined in correspondence to Mel Siebold, Rec. director, from Atty. Kevin O'Brien who represented Dave Woodbury, sponsor of David's Feline League entry.

Kaser headliner on golfing tour

HONOLULU (UPI) — Bruce Lietzke and Tom Watson continue to be the big names on the PGA Winter Tour, but at the $240,000 Hawaiian Open they're being crowded for the headlines.

Lietzke, who won four weeks ago at the Tucson Open, used his solid frame to good advantage over the windswept 7,234-yard Waialae Country Club course to card a pair of eye-opening eagles Thursday for a five-under-par 33-37 and a share of the opening-round lead with Monty Kaser, a non-winner in 10 years on the tour.

Kaser, unlike Lietzke, was in the last throes of the tie and had to battle the tricky tradewinds that swept over the ocean-side course in the afternoon period. His card of 34-33-67 showed a consistent six birdies, with one bogey marring the round.

Watson, hottest name on the tour after winning back-to-back titles in the Bing Crosby and the Andy Williams-San Diego opens, took the early lead with a 32 on the back nine, including a 60-foot eagle on the 13th, but he scuffed a chip shot on the first hole (the 10th for him) and came in with a 68. He was joined there by former Masters champion Charles Coody, Steve Metzky and Larry Ziegler.

One-time PGA winner Al Geiberger was at 69 with Mark Lye, Jerry McGee, Bob Glider, Dale Hayes, Bobby Cole, Mike Hill and Howard Trickey.

George Archer led a field of 12 at 70. Defending champ Ben Crenshaw was among 20 at 71 and Johnny Miller was grouped with 17 others at 72. All told, 65 players completed the round at par or better.

Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer and two former Hawaiian Open winners, Gay Brewer and John Schlee, were among the 26 bunched at 73.

"I just let loose on the par-fives," Lietzke said after going off his card. "I was just hoping of putting on a good swing. On the rest of the holes, I didn't have a whole lot of good shots."

Tops in field

George Ehrlich, WINF's sports director, rates a nod from this direction as New England's top play-by-play radio basketball announcer. Siting next to Ehrlich and listening to his account of the Manchester High-Conard High game Tuesday night at the Clark Arena was a real pleasure in contrast to being the same distance recently from Johnny Most of the Boston Celtics. Ehrlich has been doing college games for better than two decades and is a big leaguer calling the plays. Channel 30 has a new sports caster, Tony Edwards, starting Monday. Gary Palladino, UHartford varsity basketball coach, has already posted the best first year record in that position. Jack Repass reports. The Hawks have already won a dozen games and appear headed for a post-season tourney spot. Wednesday night, East Catholic and Northwest Catholic will share the bill with UHartford in a Hartford Civic Center basketball game.

Doubleheader. UConn's Tony Hanson has accepted an invite to play in the annual Aloha Classic in Honolulu April 7-9.

Off the cuff

Woos at the foul line were encountered by Manchester Community College's women's basketball team this week. The local team swished just 15 of 44 tries yet walked off the floor a 69-37 winner over Tunkis. Skid of the Boston Celtics is one of the biggest flops of the year in pro sports. First the absence of Dave Cowens was given as the reason and now with Cowens back and Charlie Scott out for the year with an arm fracture, the finger is pointed at the Celtics' absence for the decline of the team to third place in the NBA's East. Celtics next game in Hartford will be Feb. 15 against Detroit.

Three weeks from Friday, New England's leading male tennis players will be in town to take part in the third leg of the New England Tennis Stars (NETS) Tournament at the Manchester Racquet Club.

The idea of NETS, which finds the best New England professionals shooting for money, was the brainchild of Ted Hoehn of Burlington, Vt.

The Granite State is one of the pros who will be seen in action shooting for the biggest part of the $2,000 prize.

Hoehn is tournament tested. Five times he has competed at prestigious Forest Hills.

This is the third season for NETS. Proceeds from the local play are earmarked for the Manchester Memorial Hospital Building Fund. The event has been underwritten by eight local businessmen, all of whom will participate in a Pro-Member Tournament.

NETS players will also take on a match in a Charity Challenge. One of the weekend features (matches will be played Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 25-27) will be a free instructional clinic with four pros taking part during the one hour set aside for this promotion.

Repeat CCIL title goal for Indians

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sports Editor

The key is in the lock; all that's needed is a sharp twist of the wrist. While the analogy might not be totally correct, that's the general circumstance for Manchester High's basketball team going into tonight's play.

The defending CCIL champs currently grip a two-game lead going around and a victory by the 11-2 Silk Towners over homesteading Wethersfield High, which shares second place with Fenney at 9-4, would go a long way towards a second successive title.

"No, it wouldn't give us a lock but a win would go a long way," commented Indian coach Doug Pearson, "if we win on the road against a tough opponent, the schedule afterwards appears to favor us."

Cheney Tech, 3-8 in the COC and 3-10 overall, hosts 7-4 East Hampton Hill in the lone home bout for a Civic Center basketball game.

Local favorite East Catholic is idle until Saturday night when it comes bats arch-rival South Catholic at the University of Hartford.

Wetherfield, on a three-game win streak, was not one of the early season CCIL selections but as Pearson remarked, "They have everybody back from last year and right now are playing as well as anyone in the league."

Manchester won the first meeting at Clark Arena, 59-39, hitting 10 of 26 free throws while the Eagles were successful on their lone attempt.

World Team Tennis welcomes Russians

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — One of the most unique cultural exchanges in sports history is now part of World Team Tennis.

An all-Russian squad, to be called the Soviets, officially joined WTT Thursday and will play home matches in a number of American cities.

"Never before has a Soviet team competed in actual league play where the results counted in the standings," said Jim Jorgensen, president of the Pennsylvania Keystone, which will host the Soviet franchise.

"This is sports history in the making and another important step in building a continuing spirit of cooperation with the Soviet Union," he said.

The team will be led by world class stars Alex Metreveli and Olga Morozova. Other players named to the team were Natasha Chmyreva, Teimurzakulua and Vadim Borisov. A third woman player will be added at a later date.

Chuck Knox
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Head Coach Chuck Knox is not going to Detroit.

"We do not plan any changes in our program for Tokyo. We are just going to go out and work harder," Miss Bahlonia said.

"Getting stronger and a step quicker on our legs will be our primary job" for the world competition, Gardner said.

Winners of the Silver Dance competition were Kelley Morris, Columbus, Ind., and Michael Seibert, Carmel, Ind. Second place went to Felicia Digustino, East Haven, Conn., and Don Adair, West Hartford. Third place went to Hae Park, Warren, N.J., and Patrick Shannon, Milford, Conn.

"We fell we had skated well, but it was in the eyes of the judges, and I guess they thought we did the best job," Miss Morris said.

Connecticut favorites Judy Genovese and Kent Weigel finished first in two compulsory dance events

Jerry Sloan
EVANSVILLE, Ind. (UPI) — Jerry Sloan has signed a four-year contract as basketball coach at his alma mater, Evansville College, and will leave the Chicago Bulls as soon as he can "wind up my affairs."

Sloan, a star guard in the National Basketball Association for a decade, has been hunched since January, 1976, after two knee operations. This year, unable to play, he was an assistant coach to Ed Badger with the Bulls.

Leeman Bennett
ATLANTA (UPI) — It doesn't matter how many other former first choice to be their new head coach.

All that counts, so far as the former Los Angeles Rams assistant is concerned, is that he got the job, Thursday — with a five-year contract believed to pay him more money than any other former assistant coach ever got when he moved into a head post.

Guillermo Vilas
SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, former Wimbledon champion Stan Smith and Chile's Jaime Fillo will play in the opening week-long $50,000 Springfield International Tennis Classic.

Those three were top-seeded in a 32-man draw that will begin competition Monday morning. Preliminary games will be played in day and night sessions during the week, with no night session scheduled Thursday.

Bruce Campbell
PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Bruce Campbell pumped in a 12-footer with 32 seconds to play, then grabbed a rebound with time running out Thursday to guide nationally ranked Providence past Rhode Island, 67-66.

In winning their 11th straight game, the Friars had to overcome a 26-point performance by Rhode Island freshman Shy Williams.

Thursday's results show Providence 188-506, Lee Bean 477, Ruth Woodbury 475, Pat Tibodeaux 461.

California skaters tops in pairs event

HARTFORD (UPI) — Tai Babilonia says she knows why she and partner Randy Gardner are the winners of the U.S. Pairs Figure Skating Championships.

Top form

"Because we are such good single skaters it makes us much improved as pair skaters," she said after winning the title Thursday night.

Miss Babilonia, of Mission Hills, Calif., and Gardner, of Los Angeles, built an early lead and swept the pairs event, earning the right to represent the U.S. at the World Skating Championships next month in Tokyo.

The pair will be joined by Gail Hamula and Frank Sweidig, both of the U.S. at the World Skating Championships next month in Tokyo.

Lloyd and Dihigo blacks in Shrine

NEW YORK (UPI) — "I must have been about 13 years old and was a bat boy when I saw him," said former catcher great Roy Campanella of newly elected Hall of Famer John Henry Lloyd.

Early leader

Lloyd, often referred to as the "Black Honus Wagner," and Martin Dihigo, a supremely talented pitcher-outfielder, Thursday became the last two players to be voted into the Hall by the Special Committee on Negro Leagues.

They will be inducted at the Cooperstown, N.Y., shrine on Aug. 8 along with Ernie Banks, the baseball writers' choice, and Al Lopez, Joe Sewell and Amos Rusie, who were voted in by the veterans committee. It also was announced the Special Committee on Negro Leagues would be disbanded.

Campanella, the Brooklyn Dodgers' heavy-hitting catcher who was elected by the baseball writers to the Hall of Fame in 1969, recalled his bat boy days with a smile when he was in the dugout of John Henry Lloyd.

"He was at the end of his career when I was there," Campanella said by telephone from a New York hospital where he is recovering from a successful operation for slurred buttocks. "He was playing first base at the time. But I had heard the name and he was truly a great player and a credit to baseball. God bless him."

Lloyd was 89 when he died in 1965. His career spanned the years 1905-31 and is believed, according to the sketchy records available, to have compiled a lifetime batting average of .365. He was an exceptional fielder, dominating the old Negro Leagues of his day.

Wagner, the Pittsburgh Pirates' superb shortstop with whom Lloyd was often compared, once said: "I am honored they should name a great ballplayer such as John Henry Lloyd after me."

Daytona racing

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — European cars, led by the turbocharged Porsche 930s, took eight of the top 10 spots Thursday in qualifying for the 24 hours of Daytona endurance race.

Jochen Mass of West Germany set a track record of 127.658 miles per hour over the 3.4-mile Daytona International Speedway road course in his Porsche 930. That assured him of the pole position at the start Saturday.

"The intent was to vote into the Hall of Fame such outstanding performers in the old Negro League, who in the opinion of the committee, would have made it anyway had they not been deprived of playing in the major leagues," a committee spokesman said.

Wrestlers defeated

Although valiantly fighting and hanging in tough, the Manchester High wrestlers took it on the chin in recent times with losses to Concord (24-14), East Hartford (28-24), and Wethersfield (27-20). Junior Chris Luz and Senior Tom Jones kept their unbeaten straits intact, while juniors Doug Marshall and Bill Tedford wrestled consistently for the Indians. Doing a superb job, under the circumstances, are junior Jerry Kennedy and senior Joe Downs, filling in for the disabled Mike Scholsky (55) and Tim Wrobel (unlimited), respectively. Both were trying to reach lower weights when Scholsky and Wrobel were struck down, necessitating their giving up a considerable weight advantage. Jerry Kennedy has hustled enough to avoid being pinned by another big bruiser, while Joe Downs pulled a draw and almost beat his Wethersfield opponent while holding out for an agonizing long time against Concord's Marshall Housekeeper, who had 70 pounds on him. Scholsky should be back in action shortly while Wrobel may be back before the end of the season after a severe leg injury.

The East Hartford match was highlighted by quick pins by Senior Tim Cunningham (15 seconds) and Tom Jones (17 seconds) against Wethersfield's Chandler, Tedford, and Luz. Winners against Concord were Brian Colbath, Marshall, Jones and Luz. Jones registered another pin at Wethersfield, while junior Bob Wilson and Marshall and Luz also won.

The meet scores have been much closer this year against schools like Concord and East Hartford than they have been in recent years. This, along with the fact that there are only four seniors regularly occupying varsity slots (Cunningham, Jones, Tim Digan and Downs) should show the potential for an excellent team for the next few seasons.

Brian Colbath is coming along well with a win against Concord, and although sometimes lacks confidence, should develop well for next year.

The next home match is Wednesday, Feb. 9, against Pennington High of East Hartford. The JV's start at 6:30 p.m., with the varsity action an hour later. — Larry Dunn

Students venture to the big city

The Current Affairs Club journeyed to New York City to view the embassies of the Ukrainian SSR, Belgium, and Sri Lanka on Tuesday, Feb. 1. These United Nations missions provided the students with a greater insight into the politics of the specified countries and their respective blocks on the issues of transnational corporations, terrorism, and population. Later in April, the students will use the knowledge gained from this visit and further research to conduct their own mock UN Assembly with other Connecticut schools. Those who have been assigned to committees are as follows: The Ukrainian SSR, Mary Stack, Chairman, Claudia Mann, Jeff Phelon, Jim Kennedy, and Marc Lander, Belgium: Paul Vanbessem, Chairman, Larry Dunn, Peter Courley, Sri Lanka: Susan Launi, Chairman, Wayne Gryk, Lynn Edelson, and Lori Egan.

A tribute to M.L. King

January 14 marked a first at MHS. The birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King was commemorated by a special program. Although most students would have preferred a full day of memoriam, a brief eulogy accompanied by music had to suffice for this year.

The Round Table Singers got into the spirit of the music of the civil rights leader's homeland by presenting "Ride the Chariot." Following this melody was a somewhat universal "Battle Hymn of the Republic." Mr. Gilbert Hunt then gave an eloquent rundown of Dr. King's life and mission. The deceased's "I have a dream" speech was perhaps better delivered than King's original; however, needless to say at MHS it didn't generate as much enthusiasm. Background music was provided by the MHS Band performing Erikson's "Deep River Suite."

The smart tribute paid to Martin Luther King last week at MHS probably meant little to most of you. Nevertheless, it is hoped that the accomplishments of such a great man will generate some reflection on the part of the student body.

MHS profile A look at Susan Launi

If you mention Susan Launi's name to people who don't know her, they tend to conjure up images of an Einsteinian brain and a bookwormish nature. Nothing could be further from the truth. It is common knowledge at MHS that Susan works and studies diligently at her schoolwork, but she is not a one-dimensional person because of this. Susan aims to excel in everything she does, from getting an "A" on her calculus exam to writing beautiful haiku. Susan possesses the perseverance and determination that most of us wish we had but nevertheless lack. I feel that this is the major factor which has put Susan at the top of her senior class; she is constantly working toward a further goal, never giving up.

One of Susan's primary goals in life is to become a lawyer. As president of the MHS Debate Club, Susan has had valuable experience in controlled arguments and public exposure, and therefore enjoys the club immensely. I would caution anyone from starting an argument with her, because she rarely loses. This is one of Susan's less redeeming qualities; her dislike of being proven wrong. Undoubtedly, most other people feel the same way as Susan, although perhaps they won't admit it.

Another activity in which Susan is involved is the American Field Service (AFS). She is a member of the club's joint presidency, along with Wayne Gryk and Rick Tierney. She devotes a large portion of her time to this club, by doing such things as showing slides of her AFS summer trip to Sri Lanka and organizing fund-raising campaigns and, of course, AFS parties.

Susan's other interests are numerous and varied. Here's an accomplished pianist, her favorite type of music is progressive rock, in which she frequently indulges by attending rock concerts and buying many albums. A few of her favorite recording groups include "Yes," "Genesis," and "Emerson, Lake, and Palmer." No article about Susan would be complete without mentioning her trip to Sri Lanka last summer. Many people do not necessarily preclude an orderly meeting. Visit one of the meetings and observe some of the resulting chaos and disgust without very mature charge of congress. The choice of policy regarding rules of order should be in the hands of the majority. After all, we want full participation. That is the idea behind a student assembly rather than a student council. If there should be an assembly of parliamentarians one year, though I seriously doubt it, this assembly should be dear Robert and his rules. It is their choice. But please don't force it on us. — Sue Launi

Editorial reply Student feels rules not useful in assembly

It seems that every year the same conflict arises in Student Assembly meetings: Should Robert's Rules be used. And every year the same discussions ensue with the same results, or put more fully, no results. The question has once again come to the fore as the Assembly of plans to revise the Assembly's constitution. Some have suggested that the use of Robert's Rules be included as a provision of the new constitution. However, there is another side to the story.

First of all, I have seen Robert's Rules in "action" at assembly meetings and they do not guarantee more organized meetings. Many times, discussions have degenerated into personal attacks. Furthermore, those who do not know the rules become frustrated in their attempts to speak. If things are not performed in exact accordance with the rules, very bright, parliamentary scholar jumps with a "point of Order," or perhaps a "move the previous question." The views of this person, the "minority" (remember him?) His rights are supposedly protected by these rules, become lost in a hopeless tangle of verbiage.

Moreover, in actual practice, the majority does not rule the Assembly, the minority does; a minority guaranteed and reinforced by their knowledge of Robert's Rules. Knowing how and when to table discussion or to call a person out of order, they can control the discussion through tactical manipulations thinly disguised as parliamentary rates.

The words "point of clarity" are not in most people's vocabularies. However, the words "I don't understand" are. The point is, why must we be so proper? We are not the United Nations, nor even the Board of Education. We are a group of students trying to organize events and activities for the student body and trying to maintain some kind of liaison with the administration. No more, no less.

We do need order at the meetings, that is very obvious. But the answer is not Robert's Rules. Only the minority know the rules to the exclusion of the majority. Active participation. They serve as a hindrance more than a help in light of the frustration they cause. Their use does not necessarily preclude an orderly meeting. Visit one of the meetings and observe some of the resulting chaos and disgust without very mature charge of congress. Making students smart about economics

The newest, a kit, shows step by step, how to incorporate economic facts, concepts, principles and problems into the American history course. Each unit includes colorful posters designed to turn students on.

Ms. Kathleen McNally, director of research at the Joint Council, said the need for a systems approach to teaching economics in American history courses has been evident for some time.

"To often," she said, "the American history teacher fails to touch on the economic concepts and factors which influence historical events."

"Often the courses are factual and descriptive and teachers lack the grasp of what the student is able to understand the economic and social implications of what has happened in the past, he will better understand the role of economics in current events."

There are 20,000 high schools but only 6,000 kits will be given away. The rest of the schools must pay for theirs.

Weiss answers Auster

As a member of Manchester High School, I vehemently disagree with many points in The Herald's Sports Editor Len Auster's column of Thursday, Jan. 27.

In the portion of column titled "Stop passing buck," Mr. Auster complained about the wetness of the basketball court during the Manchester High-East Catholic basketball game and the lack of supervision by Manchester officials of the spectators. As a solution toward this situation, Auster suggested that next year both Manchester-East Catholic basketball games be played at the University of Hartford.

I believe this suggestion to be totally absurd. Why should Manchester High give up their home court advantage because of minor problems at Clarke Arena? Manchester plays all their important CCLL conference games at Clarke Arena, and there is absolutely no reason why the team should travel to Hartford and play in unfamiliar surroundings.

A second factor which might occur if the move to the University of Hartford became a reality would be rapid decline in the number of fans attending the game. Auster's suggestion further perplexed me on this point because in the past he has always seemed to emphasize and ridicule the poor attendance at MHS games. The fact is that many students would prefer not to drive all the way into Hartford to see the game. A problem would also crop up should there be snow or icy conditions the night of the game. Since Manchester High is much more easily accessible than the University of Hartford to the majority of spectators, Manchester should continue to host East Catholic at Clarke Arena.

As for the rest of Mr. Auster's article about "passing the buck," I think the entire subject was blown away by his own illustrations in this case. Auster's ends did not justify his means. In the future, I would hope that Auster would "clean up his act."

Although he has demonstrated in the past that he is a fine sportswriter, he should not let lapses of cynicism and sarcasm betray him. Mr. Auster must learn that what he writes is widely read by a partisan clientele and that his unwarranted verbal quips only serve to kindle the hostilities of the public. — Robert E. Weiss, HSW sports editor

I agree that students should not have been allowed to walk on the court, yet janitors should have acted to dry the court before the game started. Why didn't the referees make certain that the floor was safe before play began in the second half? I am also surprised that, if the floors were as "disgraceful" as Mr. Auster depicted in his article, the coaches and players did not notice the water while they warmed up and take appropriate measures to insure their own safety and welfare.

A final note pertaining to Auster's article must be sounded in regards to the general sarcastic tone employed. He insultingly wrote, "There was a near capacity crowd, a rarely, at Clarke Arena," and then followed, up with the caustic statement, "Manchester won't have the problem Friday night against Hall. The crowd will be small to begin with, and the game will be a 'false advertising.'" Evidently Auster either consciously or unconsciously made these verbal jabs directly at the MHS fan. These two examples of downgrading remarks add absolutely nothing to Auster's main theme about "passing the buck" but only serve to alienate many Manchester High rosters.

Another illustration of Mr. Auster's hypocrisy was an apparent in his article when he disdainfully wrote "At the half, fans who want to have a telephone number would have sense enough to have a pencil in his hand when he calls? No way. They call us FIRST, and then ask us to wait until they find a pencil. Also when we ask them how to spell a name, they will say, 'I'll know how to spell it, I find it myself!'"

When we do find a number, do they say, "Thank you?" No, they just slam down the receiver. One more thing, Abby. Will you please ask adults NOT to ask their young children to call for them? One thing that drives a telephone operator up a wall is a kid who cannot be heard or understood.

Even if this doesn't make your column, it did me a lot of good just to be able to get this off my chest.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have a dear mother who lives about an hour's drive away. She's blind, but very cheerful and mentally alert. I phone her every day. She lives with a housekeeper and loves to have company.

When she had her sight, she couldn't wait for my children. She sewed for them, bought them gifts and always made sure there were goodies in her house. Now the children are teenagers, and I have to beg them to visit their grandmother because it is so "boring" there, there's nothing to do there, etc.

My husband and I visit her as often as possible. We realize that our kids are involved with friends and activities, so we don't expect them to accompany us on every visit, but it is too much to expect them to visit her once a month?

They read your column daily, Abby. I can bet my bottom dollar that you'll agree with me, but if the kids hear it from Dear Abby, maybe they'll realize that Mom and Dad are right.

DEAR ASKING: Your children are old enough to realize that it's a mark of maturity to do things without whining! That aren't particularly fascinating but are well worth the effort because the pleasure it gives others. Visiting grandparents falls into this category.

A suggestion for youngsters who're visiting elderly relatives because it's "boring": Interview the old folks. Ask questions about relatives who preceded you, how things were back in the "olden days." You'll learn some interesting facts, and you'll find that those visits will be rewarding to you and the old folks.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 17-year-old girl and my problem is I'm flat. My mother thinks that if a girl is flat, she shouldn't wear a padded bra because it's like false advertising. I have a part-time job, so I bought myself one padded bra, and when my mother saw them, she went berserk! She took the bras back to the store, and they were the "wrong kind" and got my money back.

Abby, being flat-ched really bothers me. When I can afford it and I'm on my own, the first thing I'm going to do is get silicone implants. In the meantime, I'd sure appreciate if you would back me up and say that some girls wear padded bras so they'll better in clothes and not as "false advertising."

DEAR PLENTY: I'm on your side. I'm also behind you concerning what you don't have in front of you. Lotsa luck. DEAR ABBY: I am a directory assistance operator in Pittsburgh, and until I started working for Bell Telephone I didn't know there were so many rude, inconsiderate and thoughtless people in the world.

DEAR ABBY: Glad to oblige. It's time someone gave a little recognition to that vast, unseen army of unthankful heroes and heroines.

Single raise helpful bid partner burst into Blackwood. Fortunately for everyone's peace of mind, or at least for North and South's peace of mind, South settled for six "North South did not show a king."

There was no problem in the play. South was the trump hand, played ace and one club showed his hand with the announcement, "I'll ruff my last club."

If North had merely responded with a negative two trump, the clubs are that the partnership would have stopped at just four spades. At least, it would require a decided overbid on someone's part to get past game after that start.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Today's North hand is a minimum raise. Just six high card points, but there are three trumps to the queen and a five-card suit headed by the ace.

The raise worked out nicely well for North and South. Of course, North was decidedly nervous when his partner burst into Blackwood.

If North had merely responded with a negative two trump, the clubs are that the partnership would have stopped at just four spades. At least, it would require a decided overbid on someone's part to get past game after that start.

Bolton leader has chat without fire

By DONNA HOLLAND
Herald Correspondent

Following the first of President Jimmy Carter's "fireside chats," but Dredrely, First Selectman David Dredrely conducted a public hearing Tuesday at the Community Hall to get citizen input and answer questions about Monday's Town Meeting and to learn how townspeople want to spend funds received by the government.

"I wasn't quite the President's 'fireside chat,'" but Dredrely, wearing a sweater and peanut tie, sat comfortably and informally in a warm room. Although there weren't a lot of people at the hearing, there was just enough to prevent it from being held in the Community Hall's fireplace room.

"For the most part, those attending the meeting were members of Dredrely's 'cabinet'—persons serving on boards or commissions and persons seeking to serve on boards and commissions."

Michael Rossetti of the state Department of Health, explained the proposed multi-health district Bolton is being asked to join. He said the experience with part-time health directors is usually less than satisfactory, and the state encourages full-time health service. There are now eight health districts in Connecticut, serving 34 towns with 420,000 people.

"The proposed district would consist of Andover, Bolton, Vernon, South Windsor and Tolland. It will be staffed by a non-medical health director, medical adviser, chief sanitarian, five sanitarians and

Those at the hearing asked if the ordinance could limit where establishments could be located. Some felt the Zoning Commission could regulate the location.

When Dredrely was asked how massage parlors were classified he said they are the same as doctors and dentists. Dr. Robert Butterfield, three are H. Virginia Butterfield, Norma Tedford and Leland

Black historian gives lectures at Bennet

Dr. John Rogers of 1143 E. Middle Tpk., noted historian of black history, participated in a special program Wednesday at Bennet Junior High School. The event was in observance of black history month.

Dr. Rogers spoke with different groups of seventh and eighth grade students throughout the day. The seventh grade social studies curriculum presently covers Africa, discrimination and prejudice, while the eighth grade social studies program currently includes slavery and the Civil Rights issue.

A special all-day showing of the film "Martin Luther King from Montgomery to Memphis," as well as other observances of King Day were held at Bennet in commemoration of the state holiday.

The social studies curriculum has included the television presentation of "Roots," which has been videotaped for a source of study and discussion in the school.

Dr. Rogers talked together about the entire study for the Bennet students.

Developer faces foreclosure because of road deficiencies

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

The Town of Manchester has apparently threatened a local developer with foreclosure, but both sides feel that the problem will be resolved by the June 1 deadline.

A two-page list of needed improvements at the Forest Hills subdivision has been sent by the town to the First Hartford Real Estate Corp., the developer of the subdivision that includes Glendon Kennedy and Grissom Rds.

Town Engineer Walter Senkow, who compiled the list, said that the older roads in the subdivision are lacking "street line monumentation," markings which are needed for land surveying.

Senkow said that a June 1 deadline was set for completion of these older roads, which include Kennedy Rd., Kent Dr., Bishop Dr., and Woodstock Dr. Some of these roads are almost 15 years old, he said.

Town Manager Robert B. Weiss and Director of Public Works Jay J. Giles both said that the town will

Hearing set on band shell purchase

A motion to transfer $3,000 from the Bicentennial Commission budget to help pay for a mobile band shell, was tabled by the Vernon Town Council Tuesday night, but a hearing was set Feb. 15 to appropriate $25,000 from the Swindell Trust Fund to buy the unit.

Councilman Thomas Dowley, noting the matter for a public hearing, said he would propose using any town funds for anything that isn't an emergency.

The $3,000 would make up the difference from the money available in the trust fund and the cost of the mobile unit.

Vernon mulls solar heat tax break

Vernon's proposed ordinance to offer tax breaks to owners of buildings with solar heating or cooling systems will be discussed at a public hearing scheduled for Feb. 15 at 7:30 p.m. in the Memorial Building.

The recommendation to take advantage of state legislation, which permits towns to offer tax exemptions for this purpose, was made by Councilman Stephen Marcham. He said it would be a way of encouraging energy conservation and the use of alternate heating and cooling means.

The ordinance states that "Any building, or

If you are moving into a new home, consult the insurance company that comes with the furnace and air conditioning system. You can save money by insuring the system with the company that installed the system to learn all you can about it. If you are moving into an older home, ask the last occupant of the company if they have any information on the system. Call Alex now!

JOE LOMBARDO thinks this stately Colonial in central Manchester represents excellent value in the mid-thirties. Aluminum storm, screens, and doors, a new roof, and a built-in bookcase complement the tender love and care this home has been given over the years! Circumstances dictate a fast sale. Early occupancy.

JIM FINNEGAN knows that a house built by Wendell Reid offers top quality at a fair price. The 8" insulation, for instance, is a more important plus than ever in this seven room central Colonial. Extras like built-in bookcases, dishwasher, disposal, thermostatically controlled cooling fan, 100 amp service, and two-zone heat all add to the intrinsic value. Low forties price, well worth it.

JIM DEROGIO feels that a solid six room Colonial, "Hounds Tooth" clean and centrally located, priced below thirty-six thousand, is a rare buy on today's market. Add extras like stove, refrigerator, dishwasher, fireplace equipment, and antenna, and you truly have a BEST BUY!
