Thousands return to jobs

By TIM CODER
United Press International

More than 370,000 workers began returning to work in upstate New York and northern New Jersey today. Ohio Gov. James Rhodes again asked President Carter to declare Ohio a disaster area because of cold weather.

Rhodes also asked the President for a $90 million grant to help needy Ohioans pay higher heating bills. Service men for Pennsylvania's Columbia Gas Co. knocked on doors offering to turn off customers' outside gas lights free of charge. Michigan officials said they will ask Carter to declare several counties — particularly in the southwest part of the state — disaster areas to help meet huge snow-removal bills. Record-breaking cold held on from eastern Iowa to South Carolina and northeast Florida. The Mississippi River town of Dubuque, Iowa, had its 43rd day this winter of zero or below.

Record lows for the date were set at Moline, Ill., 17 below; Indianapolis, 11 below; Charleston, W. Va., zero; Wilmington, N.C., 19, and Jacksonville, Fla., 27.

But the National Weather Service said "relief is on the way." Forecasters said moderating temperatures will spread eastward over much of the nation today and Tuesday.

Thanks to citizen efforts at conserving natural gas and somewhat gentler weather, most of the 220,000 industrial workers and 500,000 school children idled in upstate New York began returning to their normal routines this week.

New Jersey Gov. Brendan T. Byrne decided to allow industries in north Jersey to reopen, permitting more than 150,000 workers to go back to work.

Ohio Development Director James Duerk revised downward from 1 million to between 800,000 and 900,000 the number of persons temporarily unemployed last week because of the gas shortage. Governor Rhodes had placed the number at up to 1.5 million.

The harsh winter claimed more lives in Michigan during the weekend. A man froze to death in Monroe County and a 19-year-old woman died of inhaling gas fumes from a furnace in Burlington, Mich.

Residents in snow-battered western and northern New York dug out enough to piece daily routines together, but a ban on driving in Buffalo threatened the business climate in the state's second largest city.

Carter considers admiral as CIA director

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter met with his Cabinet this morning but did not open the session to news coverage as some reporters had anticipated.

Press Secretary Jody Powell said, "There will be some coverage of Cabinet sessions, but not this one."

The President also was giving "serious consideration" to nominating Adm. Stansfield Turner, a former classmate of his at the U.S. Naval Academy and commander of NATO forces in southern Europe, as head of the CIA. Presidential Assistant Hamilton Jordan confirmed that Turner was "under serious consideration," along with several other possibilities.

Cabinet meetings have traditionally been closed to reporters, but Carter told his Cabinet last Monday that he would like to open the meetings to press coverage on a limited basis.

Powell said Carter wanted to "discuss it further" with members today, and it was speculated that a "pool" reporter might be admitted to Carter's session.

Carter had said national security matters would be discussed in secret, and wondered if open forums would inhibit some Cabinet members. Powell said some Cabinet members thought they would be constrained in their remarks if they knew reporters were present.

Turner, 53, graduated first in his class at Annapolis. Later he earned an M.A. in foreign affairs as a Rhodes scholar at Oxford. He spent most of his time at sea on destroyers.

He went to the Pentagon in 1971 as the Navy's director of systems analysis, and later spent a three-year term as president of the Naval War College in Newport, R.I.

Carter, his family and Mary Fitzpatrick, convicted murderer whose sentence was commuted so she could become Amy's nursemaid, attended Amy's baptism at the First Baptist Church Sunday.

Carter closed his eyes in prayer as Amy, 9, was totally immersed in the baptismary at the front of the sanctuary by Dr. Charles A. Trentham, the senior pastor. Gladys Silo Mbua, 16, from the Cameroons in West Africa, also was baptized.

Schaffer to seek director post

Democratic Town Chairman Ted Cummings today verified a report that Beldon H. Schaffer, of 118 Porter St., is one of the contenders to fill the vacancy on the Board of Director created by the resignation of Deputy Mayor John Thompson.

Cummings said, however, that there are about 10 persons who have expressed interest and are being considered by the town committee's nominating committee for the position. He said the committee is fortunate to have "many good people to choose from."

He also said that Director Pascal Prignano has indicated to him that "it will be very tough" for him to run again. If that is the case, Cummings said, the town committee will respect his wishes, however they would be losing a "very fine person."

The replacement for Thompson will be announced Feb. 21 at 7:30 p.m. at an informal gathering at Manchester Community College of town committee members and persons who have worked for the Democratic Party.

Saudis reject OPEC proposal

KUWAIT (UPI) — A Kuwait newspaper said today Saudi Arabia will not alter its position holding its oil price increase to 5 per cent until after Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's Middle East tour later this month.

"Saudi Arabia will not rescind its decision (to raise its oil price by 5 per cent) because that was basically a political decision prompted by international, particularly, American factors," the newspaper As Siyassa said, quoting informed sources.

Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates were the two members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries who last December decided to raise the prices of their oil by 5 per cent for all of 1977. The other 11 OPEC members agreed to increase prices by 10 per cent on Jan. 1 and by another 5 per cent in July, 1977.

The two-tier price system, which marked the first serious split in the oil cartel, has forced several OPEC members to reduce production levels to counter-balance an increase in the output of lower-priced oil from Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates.

Qatari Oil Minister Sheikh Abdel Aziz Ben Khalifa Al Thani has toured a number of OPEC countries to muster support for a proposal to abolish the two-price system and heal the rift in OPEC.

His proposal was turned down by Saudi Arabia and the UAE Sunday, following talks in Riyadh between the oil ministers of the two countries. Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani and Maneh al Otaibah, respectively.

Missionaries slain by black guerrillas

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Black nationalist guerrillas have killed seven white Catholic missionaries in the worst attack against clergymen of the four-year war, a church spokesman said today.

The spokesman said guerrillas killed three Jesuit priests and four nuns Sunday night at a mission station about 37 miles northeast of Salisbury.

The surviving white priest said the guerrillas rounded up the missionaries and shot them to death, the spokesman said.

He identified the priests as Father

Christopher Shepher-Smith, Father Martin Thomas and Brother John Conway. The nuns all belonged to the Dominican order, he said.

The spokesman said he had no further details of the killing and nationalities and hometowns were not yet available.

Baby tossed to safety

HARTFORD (UPI) — A smoky fire ripped through a 40-family apartment building in 25 degree cold today, but firemen were able to rescue the tenants whose exit was blocked by a back door nailed shut.

Edward Watts, 19, a tenant who fled the building implored a screaming woman in a second floor window to throw her baby down from 20 feet. "I caught the baby in my arms," he said.

The baby, Teneka Freeman, 18 months old, was hospitalized.

Alvin Temple, 21, said he thought the fire started in the basement of the 75 Evergreen St. building in a neighborhood studded with apartment buildings not far from the downtown section.

Officials gave no preliminary cause for the fire.

HARTFORD (UPI) — Leaders of the legislature's Education Committee are planning to look into complaints that the grant formula used to finance public schools is inequitable.

Known as the Guaranteed Tax Base formula, the program is designed to equalize the ability of rich and poor towns to pay for public education by reducing financing disparities caused by a difference in local property tax bases.

Education Committee cochairmen Sen. Richard F. Schneller, D-Exeter, and Rep. Abraham L. Glassman, D-South Windsor, said they will examine some potentially controversial changes in the system.

Help for poorer towns

Such changes would favor the poorest towns with a bigger state aid share, weigh the formula in favor of major cities, and force uniform property tax assessment practices on communities.

"The whole program is so critical, its foolish to just leave it alone," Glassman said. He said once it becomes entrenched "it becomes difficult to make changes. We should find out now if there are inequities."

"We think we should take a look at it to see if some adjustments should be made," said Schneller.

Formula complex

The complex GTB formula was enacted two years ago. It is seen as the possible alternative if the state Supreme Court upholds a challenge to the present formula that derives most of its revenues from local property taxes.

Review of possible inequities of the GTB program is part of an effort to prepare for a possible ruling by the court that the present school funding system is unconstitutional, the two lawmakers said.

The GTB program is currently underfunded, and last year only $10 million was approved. It gave each of the 144 eligible towns only $18.25 per pupil more than the old flat grant system of $250 per pupil.

Officials estimate that for satisfactory equalization of the GTB formula lawmakers would have to allocate $425 million.

Obstacle to regulation

One criticism of the present GTB program is that it prevents progress toward equalization, because all 144 eligible towns get the same $18.25 payment.

Glassman and Schneller say it is possible the formula expected to be appropriated for GTB in the coming year could be changed, so poorer towns would benefit at the expense of the richer ones.

Critics also contend the current formula does not make allowances for the large non-educational expenses, like more police and welfare, in major urban areas.

Changing the formula to alleviate that problem could create a political controversy, because there are many more lawmakers from rural and suburban areas than the major cities.

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso is expected to present a $1.88 billion budget, sprinkled with small spending increases for several agencies, to the General Assembly this Tuesday.

Mrs. Grasso has promised the budget proposal will contain no tax increases, but will include some form of business tax relief.

Mrs. Grasso's proposed spending increase for 1977-78 represents a 4.6 per cent increase over this year's adopted budget of $1.794 billion, which terminates June 30.

Actual spending down

However, since actual spending this year is expected to fall short of $1.75 billion, Mrs. Grasso's proposed increase will really be somewhere above 7.5 per cent.

It was reported Mrs. Grasso will ask for a bonded borrowing package of more than $90 million for a variety of grant and construction projects. According to the paper's sources, this will allow Mrs. Grasso to keep this year's budget below the $2 billion mark.

At her budget-making disposal, Mrs. Grasso has a $35 million surplus from last year's budget. This year's surplus is expected to surpass $50 million.

Increases expected

Program areas likely to receive more funding are consumer protection, the elderly, vocational education, welfare, health and state employe salaries. The judicial system is also expected to receive more funds.

Connecticut's 169 towns and cities are also expected to get some more aid, but not as much as they have asked for.

Mrs. Grasso is expected to propose that municipalities receive a larger portion of federal revenue-sharing funds. Last year, the state received $6 million in those funds, but this year Mrs. Grasso thinks Connecticut will get about $28 million.

Welfare takeover to start

Mrs. Grasso is also expected to propose a gradual state takeover of municipal welfare payments. The state now picks up 90 per cent of the general assistance tab.

She is expected to call for complete takeover of municipal welfare payments and administrative costs over a three year period.

In her budget proposal, Mrs. Grasso will also call for corporate tax relief. She is expected to ask for a gradual three-year elimination of the 3.5 per cent sales tax on business services and new machinery.

Mrs. Grasso is also expected to propose a small scale tax credit plan for industries which invest to create jobs in heavy unemployment areas.

Avocado has plenty of fat

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I should consider that an avocado is mostly a fat food since 85 per cent of its calories are fat. About 20 per cent of the fat in the avocado is saturated fat. The avocado association is correct in saying that it contains no cholesterol — no plant foods do. Cholesterol is strictly an animal product. The primary concern with avocados is great because there are only 264 calories per avocado with not a smidgen of cholesterol. They say nothing, however, about saturated fats, and somehow I find it hard to believe that anything so tasty could be good for my coronary arteries.

Also what do you think of creamy salad dressings made with half safflower mayonnaise and half yogurt?

DEAR READER — The U.S. Department of Agriculture states that a California avocado, about 3 and one-eighth inches in diameter, weighs 204 grams and provides 370 calories. About 37 grams of the entire weight (seeds, skin and all) is fat. This means that over 300 of the total 370 calories in the avocado is fat. I believe it's fair to say then that you limit your saturated fat intake to 10 per cent of your total calories. This does not mean that you can't eat avocados but it does mean that when you use avocados you should further restrict the other fat containing foods in your diet. That means that you would need to rely on fortified skim milk, very lean meats, lean fish and prepared foods without adding fats to them. An avocado begins to fall into the category of a vegetable margarine.

Is the lobby of your bank

just another waiting room?

You can read a book. Take a nap. Maybe even get a haircut, in the time it takes most banks to wait on you.

Or you can move along. And get into Jet Banking at CBT.

We're working hard to make banking easier.

For instance, at CBT there's no such thing as waiting in the "wrong" line. Our Jet Teller line keeps things moving.

And if you're just making a deposit or payment, our Jet Deposit Box means there's no waiting at all.

Ever run into the bank to cash a check? And end up playing the waiting game?

At CBT our Jet Check Cashing Line puts an end to that game. Especially on busy days.

At CBT you can transfer money between your savings and checking accounts with a simple phone call. And we'll do all the paper work. No lines. No waiting. No trouble.

Sometimes tellers make you wait. At CBT you'll meet some of the best trained tellers in Connecticut. They know you have better things to do.

And now you can even save time balancing your checking account. Because our new monthly Combined Statement will have your checks listed in their proper order.

Move into Jet Banking today.

We know changing banks has always been a long and involved process. Well Jet Banking has solved that problem too. Our "short-form" cuts the time it takes to open a new account to a matter of just a few minutes.

Opinion

Good (short term) fuel news

It will do little for the immediate warmth of Americans shivering through the worst winter in living memory and worst fuel shortage in the country's history...

Canadian politicians and attendant boosts in incentives have precipitated an unprecedented drilling boom, reports World Oil.

In Latin America, Africa, the North Sea, the Middle East and Far East — almost everywhere except Indonesia — drilling and production increases are expected.

This is good news for the short-term future — the matter of the next few years or perhaps even the next few decades.

Based on an analysis of operators' plans and industry capability, it predicts 1977 drilling of 42,624 wells and 198.9 million feet of hole — up to 5.2 per cent and 5.7 per cent respectively over last year's totals.

Over-all, more wells should be completed in 1977 than in any year since 1964, and footage drilled should establish an 18-year record.

Internationally, there will be the same stepped-up activity. In Canada, "enlightenment of oil and natural gas supplies in 1977 is bright, says World Oil.

Long before we run out of oil and natural gas, they will either become so prohibitively expensive or so valuable as sources of chemicals that we will no longer be able to burn them in the vast quantities we do today.

This is something we had better begin thinking about before we go through many more winters like the present one.

Uniformly uniformed

There's something about a uniform, even in a country dedicated to the proposition that clothes don't make the man.

The National Association of Uniform Manufacturers happily forecasts that within a decade, 25 million Americans — two and a half times as many as today — will be wearing uniforms as symbols of their occupations.

Law enforcement officers, for example, are no longer men in blue. There are now green, brown, grey, army pink and even maroon uniforms serving as official outfits.

When they are not fighting blazes, firemen are wearing blazers as dress wear or for community relations work. (Naturally, the favorite color is fire-engine red.)

Another group that works in all kinds of weather are letter carriers, who broke with tradition a few years ago when Bermuda shorts were authorized for summer wear.

There has also been an increase in the usage of uniforms in previously nonuniformed fields, says the association — such as bank tellers, insurance salesmen, and, believe it or not, undertakers.

Thoughts

Stealthily, the wintry moon edges the eastern horizon, presaging another frightfully cold night. I fear being cold, vulnerable. Will the pipes freeze again? Another ice storm?

Simultaneously, the embazoned western sky trumpets the day's end. Yes, it was cold day. The fuel stocks are low. But it was tolerable.

The days are lengthening — perceptibly. Winter, Spring, Summer, Autumn, Winter. As the moon returned, so shall the sun, and the moon, and the sun, and... I must fear not the effects of the seasons on man, but man on the seasons. All was good as created. By my works I shall show my faith in a living God who comprehends all — and has compassion for the one.

I need not fear. He knows. He lives, and with Him all may be good again. All is but one eternal round.

'We exist to protect these rights'

Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON — "We exist to protect those rights," said Michael Pancer, and his words should be cut in stone by free men everywhere. And who is Michael Pancer? He is a 35-year-old San Diego attorney and former president of that city's chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU).

Thus, although I take the same dim view of the Klan as I do of those vicious leftist nuts who seek to kill their way to power, I sound a personal trumpet for Michael Pancer and San Diego ACLU chapter.

Well, good for the ACLU. There are times when that outfit drives me up the wall with its seemingly simplistic meanings. But most of us tend to forget that the ACLU's purpose is to help anybody — regardless of ideological coloration — whose basic rights it believes are endangered.

black Marines involved have a case, out it is more popular these days to take by one Samuel Sheats, a judge in the Los Angeles worker's compensation courts. "We are dealing with a black and white issue here and we ought to be very careful about that," said Sheats, a member of the regional ACLU board and past president of the Pasadena NAACP chapter.

Black and white "Black and white issue" indeed! What's that got to do with the price of a pound of liberty? The search for justice is supposed to be color blind. About the Klansmen. Sheats asks: "Why should we allocate our resources to these guys?" The answer, sir, is in the ACLU's charter — its reason for being. The issue is one of constitutional rights, not racism, nor ideology.

So have at it, Michael Pancer. You may be wrong, but that's for the courts to decide. Today, you make live Voltaire's immortal words: "I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it."

So have at it, Michael Pancer. You may be wrong, but that's for the courts to decide. Today, you make live Voltaire's immortal words: "I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it."

Meanwhile, a curious position was taken by one Samuel Sheats, a judge in the Los Angeles worker's compensation courts. "We are dealing with a black and white issue here and we ought to be very careful about that," said Sheats, a member of the regional ACLU board and past president of the Pasadena NAACP chapter.

Black and white "Black and white issue" indeed! What's that got to do with the price of a pound of liberty? The search for justice is supposed to be color blind. About the Klansmen. Sheats asks: "Why should we allocate our resources to these guys?" The answer, sir, is in the ACLU's charter — its reason for being. The issue is one of constitutional rights, not racism, nor ideology.

Reader appeals for funds for more music and art

To the editor: The article concerning the school budget revisions in the February 1 Herald was extremely upsetting to me. To realize that in the Manchester school system, on the elementary level, we have less than half as many teachers of music and art as does East Hartford for the same number of pupils was a shock.

students who play with the orchestra. Why should such programs be limited to the financially privileged? I grew up in a small farming community in Central New York. Our school system, a "centralized" one, had a better music program than does Manchester, in terms of teacher-pupil ratios and also in terms of specific opportunities to learn. I learned to sing in parts before I reached high school, which I understand the children of Manchester do not.

Music and all of the arts play a large part in my life, and I'm thankful for the opportunities I had as a child. I wish Manchester students will be as grateful as I when they've grown up. Mr. Kennedy, revise your budget once again. Help make Manchester better educated.

Bank files foreclosure on Ice Palace building

Bolton
The Hartford National Bank and Trust Co. has filed a foreclosure action, against the three owners of the building leased to the Bolton Ice Palace, in the amount of $700,000. The owners are Theodore Trudon of Hartford, William O'Brien of Manchester and W. Harry England of Coventry. The bank note was due Jan. 1, 1974, and $7,100 was due the first of each month thereafter. The bank claims payments haven't been made since last September. The Town of Bolton also claims to have an interest in the Ice Palace by virtue of liens for unpaid taxes. The total amount of taxes, due July 1, 1976, was $10,619. There are also federal tax liens against the building. Atty. Robert Sattin, representing the bank, said he doesn't see any immediate effect on the operation of the Ice Palace. The papers, filed in Tolland County Superior Court, named as defendants, besides the partnership and each partner individually, 10 other parties including architects, electrical firms and Realtors, each of whom has an interest in the property. Trudon's creditors have filed several foreclosure actions against him. An automobile business owned by him in Vernon was closed last July. It was seized by the Internal Revenue Service for nonpayment of trust fund taxes.

Vernon students upset insect bill was killed

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut legislature's Government Administration and Policy Committee didn't think much of the praying mantis idea, so they dumped it. But for 25 fourth graders in Vernon, it was the most important idea of the year. And now they don't think too much of the committee. Last week, with little fanfare, the politicians quickly killed a bill which would have made the praying mantis Connecticut's state insect. Committee members said they just didn't think much of the praying mantis idea, so they dumped it. But for 25 fourth graders in Vernon, it was the most important idea of the year. Name for Bolton park to be decided tonight

At a Town Meeting tonight at 8 at the Community Hall, Bolton residents will be asked to name the E.J. Holt property. At a Town Meeting last year, residents were given a choice of about 30 names and they objected. The choices they will be given tonight are Bolton Lakeside Park, R.H. Holt Athletic Field, Indian Notch Park and Toomey Park. Residents will also be asked to join a multi-town health district, and adopt ordinances for civil preparedness, massage parlors and sanitary regulations. The council also approved additional street lights for the following areas: Rt. 44A and Trowbridge Rd.; Forge Rd. and Swamp Rd.; South St. and Woodbridge Rd.; Daley Rd. and Bellevue Rd.; Plains Rd. and Flanders Rd.; and Rt. 31 just east of Lisickie Beach.

Leaders' salary hikes on agenda in Andover

Andover residents will consider salary increases for elected officials at a Town Meeting scheduled Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Andover Elementary School. The council also approved additional street lights for the following areas: Rt. 44A and Trowbridge Rd.; Forge Rd. and Swamp Rd.; South St. and Woodbridge Rd.; Daley Rd. and Bellevue Rd.; Plains Rd. and Flanders Rd.; and Rt. 31 just east of Lisickie Beach. Those attending the meeting will be asked to approve a tax exemption for the Bishop's Lake property. The property is being surveyed in anticipation of the state buying it. The survey should be finished this month and the papers, making the state the owner, should be completed in March. The exemption of taxes, for the last six months assessment on the 1975 Grand List, would amount to $1,307.84. Residents will be asked to adopt an ordinance concerning the installation of driveways and appropriate $10,000 for snow removal and sanding.

Tom Gorman tops

Considered the best umpire in the National League before his retirement after the 1976 season, Tom Gorman is also the best speaker among the men in blue. Anyone in attendance at last night's Gold Key Dinner in New Haven can attest to that. The big Irishman from Closter, N.J., was at his best and actually 'saved' the night. Gorman's witty stories about baseball, and his serious comments, left a favorable impression upon all and he had most donors literally rolling in the aisles. Gorman, who completed 25 years last year in the senior loop, will have a dual job with the N.L. this year. He'll be supervisor of umpires and will also be on call to spread goodwill for the front office. He's well qualified for both. Manchester baseball buffs, had an opportunity to see and hear Gorman at a Masquing Sports Night three years ago. Last night several tables of Manchester residents were on hand for the dinner which honored Joe Gargan, Widly Neale and Johnny Egan with the Gold Keys and Willard Williams with the McGinley Award for his contributions to sports over the years.

Mays, DiMaggio No. 1

In between between quips, Gorman said Willie Mays was the best National League player he ever saw and Joe DiMaggio the best in the American. He also said he was in Charlie Finley's corner in his dispute with baseball. After the dinner, Gorman was one of the head table guests and was busy signing autographs as were the other name figures. The setback broke the Cougars' three-game winning streak and left them with a 6-10 mark. They resume action tonight traveling to New Haven to face South Central Community College. Housatonic used rebounding strength and its quick fast-breaking offense to control the contest. An effective press caused MCC into 17 first half turnovers. This enabled 6-5 forward Libby Green and the quick-handed Joe Frazier to exchange assists while canning 14 of 20 shots. Cougar forward Steve Faulkner collected 15 first-half points but it wasn't enough as the Hawks built a 46-28 lead at the intermission. After Steve Zocco hit the first hoop of the second half for MCC, the visitors attempted to play a more deliberate style eventually tying the running game prevailed with Marlow hitting an assortment of jumpers and layups for 10 points in a six-minute span. MCC's Mike Nolen came back with six points the next three minutes but Housatonic maintained its 20-point edge. In a 30-second span Greg Koonce tallied seven markers for a 71-41 bulge. Strong rebounding by Mike Robinson in the latter part of the second half netted MCC with five rebounds and nine points in the half. Housatonic outrebounded the Cougars, 32-31. MCC, which hit 22 of 62 from the field, was led by Faulkner's 17 points, Marlow added 14 in the losing effort. Marlow led all scorers for Housatonic with 20 points followed by Frazier 17, Green 14, Koonce (11) and Dave DeFeo (10). The Hawks were 37 for 68 in field goal

South holds upper hand again against Catholic

By LEN AUSTER Herald Sportswriter
Bouts one and two between basketball heavyweights East Catholic and South Catholic have gone one way but there'll probably be at least one rematch. The Hartford-based Rebels won the first meeting back in early January, 45-43, and a crowd of 900 viewed the elements Saturday night to see it to the University of Hartford to make them make it two straight over the Eagles this season by a 74-62 margin. According to track records, there should be another confrontation. South, on a seven-game winning streak, leads the HCC at 7-0, 15-1 overall, while East, which had a six-game win streak snapped, is second at 5-2, 12-5 overall. But, even if the Rebels win their last three conference outings, the HCC championship, which they are defending champs, won't be theirs. That they'll have to win at the HCC playoffs Feb. 24 and 28.

The playoffs brings together the top four finishers in regular season play with No. 1 playing No. 4 and No. 2 playing No. 3. The winners meet for the title and with South having lost none and East just two, to South, the perennial powers might square off. And they could also meet in the State Tournament depending on the draw. The Rebels jumped to a 14-6 lead

'Thinking second' HONOLULU (UPI) — As Bruce Lietzke stood on the 10th tee of the treacherous Waialae Country Club course Sunday, the thing farthest from his mind was winning the $48,000 first prize money offered in the Hawaiian Open. At that point, the lanky Texan stood one stroke behind Don January, with whom he shared the third-round lead, and Larry Watkins. He said afterwards he was thinking in terms of taking home second or third place money from the $240,000 event. It turned out to be a whole lot different in the end for the man who has been the PGA's most consistent player on this year's winter tour with 16 consecutive rounds of par or better golf.

Two-man show in New Orleans

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mardi Gras may be under way, but Pete Maravich and E. C. Coleman have got a two-man show of their own. Maravich, King Rex of the New Orleans Jazz, scored 43 points Sunday afternoon in a 99-90 victory over the Houston Rockets. But it was Coleman, the team's defensive wizard, who did the real damage. Coleman held Rudy Tomjanovich, Houston's leading scorer to just one point, in a performance that left New Orleans' Coach Elgin Baylor stumbling over his words like a Bourbon Street drunk. "It was really unreal," Baylor said. "What he did was really impossible. I never saw a guy shut out completely like that."
