Some 7,000 book marks showing a jubilant Mike Shine, silver medal winner spontaneously embracing gold medal winner Edwin Moses following the final of 400 meter hurdles in 1976 Olympics will also be available to students as a reminder of the joy in brotherhood team work.

Surplus applied to state debt

Grasso seeks new job funds in $1.88 billion state budget

HARTFORD (UPI)—Gov. Ella T. Grasso today presented a $1.88 billion budget, which increased funding for most programs, does not raise taxes and uses an accumulated surplus to begin paying off the massive state debt.

Mrs. Grasso, while extolling the virtues of fiscal restraint, asked for creation of 1,154 new jobs, mostly lower level positions. The new jobs for the budget year beginning July 1 will be sprinkled throughout the state bureaucracy.

She recommended lawmakers use $8.2 million in surpluses to put a dent in the state's more than $2 billion debt. This brings her total budget program to $1.88 billion.

The budget gives small amounts of new money to most programs, with state employees, consumers, the elderly, businessmen, welfare recipients, hospitals and vocational education schools among those targeted for increased aid.

But none of the groups got the amounts they requested. Mrs. Grasso, facing re-election next year, apparently sought to spread the increase around to as many groups as possible.

Her proposal represents a 4.1 per cent increase in spending over the level she recommended last year. The increase is virtually the same as those proposed during the last two years when Connecticut was in the throes of an austerity program.

But because state agencies are expected to spend only about $1.77 billion of this year's $1.79 billion budget, the actual increase in state spending could be more than 5.5 per cent over the present year. If the debt payments are included, the increase is 8.8 per cent.

The biggest change from her previous two budgets is in capital building, before only a meager sum, but this year budgeted at more than $94 million.

The teacher retirement system would get almost $17 million in new money under the new budget.

Under Mrs. Grasso's proposed budget, 40,000 state employees would receive a $31 boost in pay raises and increments. This works out to slightly more than $750 a year per worker.

This marks the first year that state employees are negotiating their contracts through collective bargaining. Mrs. Grasso's figure is only an indication how much the state plans to offer. Union leaders had asked for a $100 million raise.

Mrs. Grasso also kept a promise she made in her "State of the State" speech last month to increase programs for the elderly and consumer protection by slightly raising department budgets.

GOP budget praise restrained

HARTFORD (UPI)—Republican legislative leaders today were a little restrained in their praise of Gov. Ella T. Grasso's proposed budget for next fiscal year. Democratic leaders said they were pleased with it.

Senate President Pro Tempore Joseph J. Fasulis, D-Hartford, and Senate Minority Leader Joseph Lieberman, D-New Haven, issued a joint statement which also focused on the budget's job creation incentives.

"We are particularly pleased over her programs that will help put the state's residents back to work," the statement said. Gov. Grasso proposed the state hire 1,154 new state employees. She proposed paying a $500 tax credit for each employee hired by some businesses, within certain limits.

"The governor's speech clearly signals that the full restraint imposed by fiscal crisis can be eased. Her proposals point out that tensions have been reduced and the state can move forward to solve some of its basic problems," they said.

FOI officer rules against Heffernan in J. C. Penney case

A hearing officer from the Freedom of Information Commission (FOI) has ruled against state Tax Commissioner Gerald J. Heffernan in a matter involving his department's communication with the J.C. Penney Co.

Herbert Brucker, a FOI commissioner, ruled Monday that Heffernan's refusal to discuss meetings with the Penney firm should be "turned over to appropriate authorities for prosecution."

Brucker heard the case involving Heffernan and his discussions with the J.C. Penney Co., which would be the major tenant of Manchester's proposed industrial park. The complaint against Heffernan was filed in December by Atty. Bruce Beck and Anthony Pagano, who have since filed an appeal of a zone change needed for the industrial park.

Storm water control will improve under industrial park changes

By GREG PEARSON Herald Reporter Plans for Manchester's proposed industrial park will improve storm water control in the area, Walter Fuss, consultant engineer for the park, told the Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) Monday night.

The PZC conducted public hearings on two items needed for the park — an inland-wetlands permit and a zone change for two small parcels of property.

The zone change from Rural Residence to Industrial, is needed for an 18-acre parcel in the northwest section and a six-acre parcel in the northeast section. These changes, because the parcels are within 500 feet of the South Windsor town line, required approval from the Capitol Region Council of Governments (CROCG).

Democratic speaker cites need for more women in politics

By BETTY RYDER
Herald Family Editor

Sen. Audrey Beck of the 29th District, keynote speaker at the Democratic Women's Club annual banquet Monday night, cited the many accomplishments of Gov. Ella Grasso's administration and emphasized the need for more women in politics.

Addressing more than 50 club members and guests at Mama Mia's in Manchester, Sen. Beck said, "Balancing the budget, saving thousands of jobs, and the ability to develop long range capital planning, are all contributions of the Grasso administration."

"We, as Democrats, tend to take for granted a lot of things. We fall to realize that we have a tremendous amount of integrity."

"The creation of the new Department of the Aging has to be one of the greatest achievements of the Grasso administration."

"Looking ahead, there is going to be a reorganization of state services. Those of us who are committed to the Democratic party have to help people do together what they cannot do alone."

"We also will be doing more for consumer protection, more for the Department of Commerce, and vocational education."

"It's been quite an experience to work with Gov. Grasso. She's a tough person to work with, but she works hard."

Sen. Beck, who is assistant Senate majority leader and Senate co-chairman of the General Joint Finance Committee, stressing the need for women in politics, said, "We have 13 Democrats (women) in the House of Representatives and 3 in the Senate. There are 18 Republican women in the House and 2 in the Senate. It means that still, today women have to work harder than their colleagues. Ella and Gloria (Gloria Shafier, former secretary of state who lost her bid for the Senate to Lowell Weicker) work hard. Everything that has happened took an enormous amount of work.

"We should be able to have average women, women with families, those who work in offices in government in politics. Our role is to see that women get a good start in early life in politics. To do it, you need respect in your community, a certain amount of willingness to lose, the ability to lose and come back again."

Sen. Beck urged the club women to work on the "gray" issues, and the great elections, but to start that help at the local level.

"We have to have young people. I believe they care about children's issues and human issues because they are with them more. We must see to it that women get involved. After all, we (women) are the other 50 per cent."

Stopping in at the meeting to update the club women on the need for support of the March 15 referendum to secure funds to purchase and develop the Buckland properties for the proposed J. C. Penney facility, Town Manager Robert Weiss sought the membership's help in passing the referendum.

Citing the many advantages the new facility would bring to the Manchester area, Weiss said, "It would be a tremendous boost to Manchester's economy, provide many jobs, and serve as a satellite to the new businesses which may occupy the proposed industrial park."

"The project started when J. C. Penney began looking for a site for a catalogue distribution center. They have one in Columbus, Ohio; Milwaukee; Atlanta, Ga.; Kansas City; and Reno, Nev."

Sue Penny, a member of the Economic Development Commission reported on his recent trip to the Penney facility in Columbus and attested to the attractive construction of that facility, its landscaping and general appearance.

"It is a completely automated facility that processes 180 items a minute, and processes 180,000 orders in one day."

"Weiss commented on the turmoil and confusion emanating from the neighborhood closest to the proposed distribution center and said the options were using the property for either a junkyard or a highway."

"The Economic Development Commission is trying to do everything in a first-class manner. If you have concerns, let us know."

In conclusion, Weiss said, "I feel this would be a sound investment for the town. We need your support at the polls, in letters to the newspapers, and from your friends and neighbors. The present status of the proposal is up in the air. We have three property owners and two outside of the area in disagreement with the facility's location. I would hope we can resolve their concern soon."

Irene Pisch, club president, welcomed members and guests. Seated with her at the head table, which was decorated with a Valentine's Day motif, were Frances Merola, first vice-president; Phyllis Jackson, second vice-president; Mary LeDuc, chairman of the banquet; and Sen. Beck.

Good news

The selection of the vacant Forbes and Wallace building in the Manchester Parkade last week as the site for Common Pleas Court 12 is good news to the area served by the court.

Containment is most we can hope for

"Even if we are not to speak of the direct danger of a nuclear catastrophe the arms race in itself is a waste of material and spiritual resources so needed for combating hunger, disease, illiteracy and for solving social, economic, raw material and ecological problems..."

But the West's posture towards the Soviet Union is based not on strategic considerations alone. In the final analysis, it springs from our perception of the nature of the potential adversary - and nothing has happened since the darkest days of the Cold War to give us reason to change that perception.

But actions speak louder than words, and if we can believe the claims of the professional Kremlinologists, the Soviet Union is bending all efforts to achieve not just military parity with the United States but overwhelming superiority.

At the same time, there are some who say that the initiative for ending the arms race must come from the United States. One of them is former diplomat George Kennan, who as author of the theory of "containment" to check Soviet expansionism after World War II, can scarcely be accused of softness, or softheadedness, toward communism.

Some employment benefits can be anticipated also. But the big potential of the site is for a modern and spacious court where the ends of justice can be served without the hindrances of lack of space as in the present court, and was also the reason for abandoning the court occupancy of the Manchester Police Station a year ago.

We hope that the state and the building's owner can reach a mutual agreement so that we can look toward an early opening of Common Pleas Court 12 in the site it desires.

We hope that the state and the building's owner can reach a mutual agreement so that we can look toward an early opening of Common Pleas Court 12 in the site it desires.

York Review of Books, Kennan calls on the Carter administration to announce a unilateral 10 per cent arms cut.

The West has failed to change with the times, he says. We continue to suffer under a conviction that the Russians are dying to attack Western Europe, and that if it were not for our nuclear weapons they would long since have done it.

It is his view that there has probably never been a time since 1948 when the Russians seriously contemplated an invasion of Western Europe.

"They have enough troubles at home. They have troubles with the areas which they already control in Eastern Europe; I don't think they want more."

Now Kennan may be quite correct in his assessment of Soviet military intentions. It is even possible to believe that Brezhnev means every word he says about the wastefulness of the arms race.

But the West's posture towards the Soviet Union is based not on strategic considerations alone. In the final analysis, it springs from our perception of the nature of the potential adversary - and nothing has happened since the darkest days of the Cold War to give us reason to change that perception.

In short, there remain certain fundamental and irreconcilable differences between our two systems.

If the Soviet Union were to begin to honor the guarantees concerning human rights signed with such a fanfare in Helsinki in August, 1975, if it were to accord its own citizens and those of its satellites only a fraction of the freedoms we take for granted in the West, this would be a more significant gesture towards true disarmament than any arms cut either side could make.

This, of course, the Soviets cannot do without conspiring in their own ultimate demise. And why the most we can hope for - although it is no small hope - is, to borrow Kennan's word, the "containment" of the arms race, but not an end to it, not in our time.

Today's thought

Like an artfully balanced and delicately positioned cob web, my life is sustained at three points: my family, religion and profession. Ordinary stresses are easily accommodated by the mutual support of the three, but let one point fail and it is high impossible to prevent the dissolution of the whole. It becomes increasingly obvious that each point must of itself be secure if the entire is to endure. Wendell K. Walton, Bishop of Manchester Ward, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints

Television violence and the 'family hour'

WASHINGTON - What has changed on the tube since a federal judge in California ruled in November that television's family viewing policy is unconstitutional?

Not much, according to both federal and private TV watchdogs. That is both good and bad news for the three-fourths of Americans who say there is excessive violence on television. Good because there continues to be a relative lack of sea and violence on programs shown on the three major networks between the hours of 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. (6 and 8 p.m. in some time zones). But bad because the blood begins to flow with a vengeance at 9:01.

"The amount of violence on television has remained relatively stable from last year," said Lee Roderick, The Herald's Washington Correspondent.

Although the school's report measuring violence in the current season's programs won't be issued until spring, Gross, an associate professor, said it's a safe prediction that the amount of mayhem now being shown "won't change much" from last year.

"I'm sorry, Mr. President, I can't see the future until the present thaws out."

You can't say no to the census man

WASHINGTON - In 1970, when Congress authorized the first United States census, it also assumed the enumerators would have collection problems.

Citizens in the young nation were not easily parted with personal and private information. So Congress decreed census cooperation on pain of criminal penalty.

The mandating law has not been used much over the years. The Census Bureau believes there were only four cases in the courts following the 1970 count. And too, the law is not as severe anymore; last year Congress revoked that part of the statute dealing with imprisonment, and only provisions for fines remain.

But the intent of the law, little known and seldom debated, still stands. Citizens do not have the right to refuse census information. If the form asked how many toilets one has, one had damn well better count them. It takes time, some of it seems stilly, but the alternative to comply with the law is to pay a fine.

This is somewhat unjust. And yet the only test of the law in recent memory ended in failure. Defendant was one William Rickenbacker, the writer son of the legendary World War I pilot. It was 1960 and Rickenbacker was among the select Americans who received not one, but two, census forms. He refused to fill out the second.

Rickenbacker had no quarrel with the first form. He said it was a fair extension of the constitutional insistence that Americans regularly counted, so that seats in the House of Representatives may be apportioned according to population. A conservative, Rickenbacker feels the will do it again.

Today Rickenbacker remembers that the final admonishment was the most ironic moment of his trial. It was because he was educated, and because he was responsible that he refused to cooperate fully with the census. "I'm for liberty," he says, adding that if he gets the longer census form in 1980 he'll ignore it again.

Undoubtedly many Americans agree with the Rickenbacker view. Millions have refused to cooperate with some census questions in the past, and there is some early suggestion the numbers may grow in 1980. Recently, as example, enumerators held a test census in Tavis County, Texas, and nearly 30 per cent of the residents refused to be questioned. The same thing has happened in a test at Camden, N.J.

Not only were many of the test citizens unenthusiastic about counting their toilets, they were in-fruriated when told that their cooperation was mandatory. Far from being cowed, hundreds of citizens in Travis County instead complained noisily to Congress; one enraged fellow ran an enumerators off his property with a shovel.

Preview of 1980? Census officials will say only that they are looking closely at test results. Meanwhile, other government data seekers are also coming along of the new mood; at the insistence of one angry plaintiff, a court has recently ruled that bureaucratic safety inspectors must now have warrants to do their duties.

And so it may be time, while there still is time, to listen to that dangerous felon, William Rickenbacker. He believes the census should be voluntary, and that greater use of extrapolation procedures be made to assure accuracy. Why not? As of next decade the census will be held every five years - and we may find a government request at least as productive as a government demand.

during the last year or two," said Larry Gross of the Annenberg School of Communications, University of Pennsylvania, in a telephone interview. Gross is a leader of Annenberg's acclaimed continuing study of television violence which has resulted in annual reports on the subject since 1969.

Although the school's report measuring violence in the current season's programs won't be issued until spring, Gross, an associate professor, said it's a safe prediction that the amount of mayhem now being shown "won't change much" from last year.

Yet such public and private groups are as divided on what to do about TV violence as they are undivided in their opposition to it.

Although the groundswell of public hostility to TV violence (and, to a lesser extent, TV sex) made itself felt in Washington, Richard Wiley, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, in November 1974 summoned to his Washington office the presidents of the ABC, CBS and NBC networks. What resulted several months later was the introduction of television's family hour.

It was the Wiley meeting that Federal District Judge Warren J. Ferguson of Los Angeles especially noted in his scathing ruling last November that the family viewing policy is illegal. Judge Ferguson's contention - hotly denied

Stirred a hornet's nest

The Annenberg report issued last April stirred up a hornet's nest with its conclusion that, despite the recently instituted family hour, TV violence remained constant overall.

Violence decreased during the prescribed two early evening hours, it said, but "late evening violence shot up on all three networks in the past two or three years," accompanied by a "sharp increase" in violence in weekend daytime programming for children last season.

From every indication, the nation is concerned as never before over such gratuitous violence that is filtered into our living rooms daily. Leading institutions - notably the 8.5 million-member National Parent-Teacher Association which is now conducting a series of public hearings on the subject - are clamoring for more uplifting programming.

Committee approval of bonding bill cheers school board

By SUSAN VAUGHN Herald Reporter

News of quick approval of a bill providing $87 million in school construction funds to local school boards, including two projects in Manchester, met with a happy response by local school officials.

The bill, approved by the state legislature's finance committee last Friday provides for direct loans to finance school projects, instead of the usual bonding. The new method of financing school construction was devised by a study committee last year.

The public hearing on the bill has been set for Feb. 14. The bill must also get the approval of the appropriations committee before being acted on by the General Assembly.

Police report

Police arrested Donald F. Costello, 27, of 20 Edison Rd. Monday on a warrant containing three charges in connection with a fire in a car parked in the driveway of a 52 West St. home on Jan. 27.

The charges are first-degree criminal mischief, reckless burning and first-degree reckless endangerment. The police report indicated the car was destroyed in the fire.

Costello was released under a $2,500 nonreturn bond for appearance in Common Pleas Court 12, East Hartford, Feb. 28.

Edward W. Jasitis Jr., 31, of 70 Buckingham St. was charged with evading responsibility Monday in connection with an accident Saturday at Spruce and Maple Sts.

Bids sought on two projects

The Town of Manchester is seeking bids on two major projects—the Love Lane sewer line and the Globe Hollow Pool work.

The Love Lane project is being put out to bid for the third time. The first bid opening in July produced a low bid of $127,584, well above the $70,000 the town had projected for the work.

A second bid, with some changes made in the work, also came in high, but the town allocated unused funds from the Foley Brook work to cover the cost.

The transfer of funds, however, was not done quickly enough to satisfy the contractor, and he decided not to do the work.

The third bid, which will be opened Feb. 23, includes installation of a sewer-gravity line, a pump station, and a water line to cover about 1,300 feet on Love Lane.

The Globe Hollow Pool work is expected to improve the circulation problems at the swimming area. The town has designed a plan for recirculating water in the pool, to provide more thorough water movement.

The State Department of Health recommended that changes be made to improve the quality of the pool's water.

Music department 'on the move'

By SUSAN VAUGHN

Herald Reporter
Michael Orfitelli, chairman of the schools' music program, Grades K-12, described the department as "on the move" for several members of the school board at a meeting of the board's curriculum and instruction committee Monday night.

Orfitelli said he, with the 14 other music teachers in all the schools, is in the process of "reevaluating, reorganizing and reuniting" the entire program. Orfitelli became department chairman last September and has already revamped many of the guidelines for the program which he said were not clear-cut.

The guidelines for the music department for Grades K-9 should be complete by September, Alfred B. Tychsen, assistant superintendent for curriculum said.

Orfitelli said the teachers have "tried to work within the budget" they now have, but he said approval of a vocal music teacher for next year would help in one very critical area on the elementary level.

The other pupils in Grades 1-4 have made music pupils, who now only have two weeks, could have it weekly. The other pupils in Grades 1-4 have made music pupils, who now only have two weeks, could have it weekly.

considered priority, but not funded in the superintendent's budget. Orfitelli noted that an instrumental teacher would help the program, particularly for those interested in string instruments. He said he was "surprised at the people interested in a string program" which is not currently available at the elementary level, but he is looking into possibilities for a string program, perhaps with the use of volunteers.

Several parents spoke for an expanded music program at a public hearing of the board of education's public hearing Thursday.

Orfitelli is optimistic about all aspects of the music program and expects increased response to it. For the first time next fall, he said seventh graders will have the option of taking general music band or choir. Band and choir will be part of the regular school day for the juniors high for the first time, Orfitelli said.

He said about 45 per cent of the junior high students elected to participate in music last year, but because of scheduling and other problems, only 30 to 35 per cent actually took music classes.

The music program is in the best position it has ever been, said Tychsen, but it still does not compare well with neighboring school districts. He noted that Vernon has nine music teachers with about 3,500 students, West Hartford has 23 music teachers for 4,822 students and East Hartford has 15 music teachers with a comparable number of students to Manchester. South Windsor has seven music teachers with less than half the students of Manchester, according to a comparison chart compiled by Tychsen.

Thermostats turned down
Thermostats in the Municipal Building will be turned down to reach an average temperature of 65 degrees, Town Manager Robert B. Weiss said today.

The temperature had previously been set at 68 degrees, but the state Legislature last week approved a bill to lower the minimum temperature from 68 to 65 because of the fuel crisis caused by the severity of this year's winter.

Teacher gets pottery grant
The Connecticut Commission on the Arts has awarded a teacher's project assistance grant to Joan Cole, art teacher at East Hartford's Synergy School.

The award is for her pottery class project "Firing without Wiring." The goal of the project is to build a series of temporary kilns and, in the process, reconstruct the evolution of the kiln from open to raku firing.

A central idea behind the project is for the students to run the pottery projects. In most cases, the firing is done by professionals. The idea of the students doing it is part of the school's belief in learning by doing.

Ms. Cole will be assisted in the project by professional kiln builder Fran Comau.

The project is one of 21 chosen by the commission from 122 applications throughout the state.

South Windsor
South Windsor High School students, under the direction of Robert Myette, assisted Collier Inc. with the recent inventory of stores in Manchester and Vernon. This is the first area school to use this opportunity to give students first-hand information about taking inventory. The students were paid for the service.

The annual installation and membership luncheon of the South Windsor Democratic Women's Club is scheduled Saturday at Civic Restaurant, Rt. 5. A cocktail hour will start at 11:30 a.m. and will be followed by installation of officers. Lunch will be at 1 p.m. Mayor Sandra Bender will speak on "The State of the Town." Reservations can be followed by contacting Mrs. Claire Niziankiewicz, 3 Alpine Dr.

Town ordinance revision to be completed by June

By MAL BARLOW
Herald Reporter
Work on East Hartford's ordinances may be complete by June, said East Hartford Town Council Chairman George Dagon. A council ordinance committee has been working to revise and streamline the ordinances since last summer. It appropriated $10,000 to the task, but most of the work is being done on a volunteer basis by council members and by town officials, he said.

"Many towns have outdated, useless laws on their books," Dagon said. "East Hartford is no exception." A mild example, he said, is the town's law on trash. It specifies the size of the metal container and rules out use of anything else.

But the town and many residents now prefer to use plastic bags, he said. This means the town is encouraging residents to break a town law. When the council is done revising the ordinances, a new system of maintaining them will also be set up, and referring a few to the town's corporation counsel for review. They voted to keep a law to prevent store window displays of guns. McPherson said the risk of someone breaking the window and arming themselves is too great.

They revised the town curfew law for people under age 16. The hours are now 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. They proposed to make them 10 p.m. to 5 a.m.

"I've got a 15-year-old daughter who takes our dog out for a walk every night," said council member Henry Genge. "Nine is not realistic," agreed Dagon.

An ordinance on unloading of coal was kept because some council members felt the town may return to home delivery of coal. Parade laws were dropped at McPherson's suggestion because the state regulations on parades are good enough, he said.

Al Prandi, canine control officer, who came to the session with McPherson's suggested changes in the town's ordinances on animals. Many concern the keeping of cows and pigs.

"We're a little New England town," said Councilwoman Esther Clarke. Prandi urged the wild animal laws be rewritten to allow a zoo or circus in town. He also urged new laws on guard dogs.

"I want to know where every guard dog is kept," Prandi said. Police have often responded to burglar alarms and been confronted with a vicious dog after they entered the building, he said.

Laws on the keeping of poisonous snakes should be lighter than the state laws, he said. One of the next subjects for the ordinance committee concerns conflict of interest laws. Councilman James Cordier has proposed many changes to toughen the local restrictions.

Bolton votes to participate in regional health district

By DONNA HOLLAND
Herald Correspondent

The Town of Bolton will join a proposed regional health district as long as it has a population of 45,000 and costs no more than $1.20 per capita.

The less than 50 residents attending Monday night's Town Meeting voted unanimously in favor of Bolton joining the district.

Other towns considering joining are Andover, Hebron, South Windsor, Tolland and Vernon.

Dr. C. Wendell Wickersham, Bolton's health director, spoke in favor of Bolton participation Monday night.

Area police report

Bolton
Warren W. Besch, 47, of Baton Rouge, La., was charged Sunday with driving while under the influence of liquor or drugs. He was involved in an accident with a Town of Bolton snow plow.

The driver of the plow was Richard G. Sauer, of Rt. 6, Andover.

Police said Besch was driving east on Camp Meeting Rd., east of Birch Mountain Rd., and his car collided with the right side of the plow, which was clearing snow at an intersection.

Besch was held at the Hartford Correctional Center Sunday night when he was unable to post a $150 bond.

These are some of the thoughts conveyed to the Charter Revision Commission Monday night by former Mayor Frank McCoy, Police Chief Herman Fritz, and the two fire chiefs, Donald Maguda and William Johnson.

McCoy, who served three terms as mayor after the town governments were consolidated, said he feels the charter is a good one.

He said he thinks it can be left as it is with one big "but" — the annual town meeting.

McCoy said when this matter has been discussed in the past, he defended the town meeting because it was a paid department when he was unable to post a $150 bond.

Maguda said a paid department would increase the tax rate by eight mills.

Police Chief Herman Fritz said he believes the town needs a public safety coordinator. He said many changes are being mandated by public demands and by legislation.

He said there is a lack of a comprehensive planning among the emergency services agencies.

He said the Vernon and Rockville rescue vehicles have different procedures. He said all the groups are doing a fine job but he thinks a coordinator could do some "fine tuning" for smoother operation of the services.

Chief Fritz also agreed that the town meeting should be abandoned.

Concerning a controversy about inter-departmental budget transfers, Chief Fritz said the town should consider a maximum or percentage on accounts. He said a department head should have a little leeway in deciding where money is needed.

Next Monday, the Charter Revision Commission will hear from the director of public works, the recreation director and the heads of the health and welfare departments.

Speakers favor Vernon as it is

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

The town Charter is a good one, the town budget meeting should be eliminated ... the town needs a public safety director ... the fire departments shouldn't be consolidated.

McCoy also said he doesn't think the Planning Commission and the Zoning Commission should be merged although developers would like it. He said he feels the separate commissions have better control and have additional checks and balances.

Donald Maguda, chief of the Rockville Fire Department, and William Johnson, Vernon fire chief, while not openly saying they are against consolidation, indicated the town would have to go to a paid department if the department were combined.

They said they are now working toward the same goal. They said they held joint meetings and drills and consult each other when equipment goes out to bid.

Maguda said a paid department would increase the tax rate by eight mills.

Hailed in many circles as the greatest boxer pound for pound who ever lived on a pair of gloves, Willie Pep rode up on the elevator with our party to the reception room at the Galey Key Dimmer in New Haven Sunday night.

The former world's featherweight champion was decked out in his best attire, a light blue suit with matching vest. He made the rest of us, Howie Holcomb, John Kershaw and Len Auster look like second raters.

Pep is featured in a full page ad in the current edition of Sports Illustrated, minus any hint as to who he is. The ad mentions famous people who stop at a Hartford hotel.

Reason to scream

If Dave Gavitt, Providence College basketball coach, blew a fuse after his club dropped a 68-64 decision to seventh ranked Louisville last Sunday, he had good reason. Not once did Louisville go to the line in the full 40 minutes to attempt a free throw.

Louisville hit on eight of 12 charity tries for its winning margin. The game was played in Louisville. When the New England Whalers traded off Danny Arndt and Brett Callaghan recently the number of players residing in Manchester was reduced to three. Gordie Hangers, George Lyle and Alan Hangleben.

With the addition of Bill Butters and Mike Antonovich the Whalers now have seven former members of the Minnesota Saints and ex-Saint coach Harry Neale in Hartford. The Whalers are still struggling and the red-hot Winnipeg Jets, with the top scoring goalie in the WHA in Anders Hedberg will be in Hartford Thursday night.

All kinds of help

Basketball officials had to contend with help from only one coach on each bench during games a few years ago. Then each bench had two coaches and this season a number of instances, on both the scholastic and collegiate level, three coaches on each side were observed helping the men with the whistles. Officials have not been consistent in clamping down on coaches who get off the bench and object to their calls. The reason referees have been following the rule book but the newcomers are reluctant to assess a two-shot technical on a coach. One of the biggest routers of the Whalers here in Manchester is veteran Main St. barber Norm Poulin, a hockey fan for many years. "Walt Nadzak, new variety football coach, has left a most favorable impression on everyone he has met in his short stay in Connecticut... Bob Farrell, former football official, was stricken on the weekend and is hospitalized.

Bennet quintet talented, cop nine of 10 outings

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sportswriter

You don't like to apply pressure on youngsters too early but there appears to be a pack of Bears—Bennet Junior High basketball fans—who show great promise on the hardwood.

One key reason Bennet won nine of its first 10 outings, the lone setback an overtime decision to Penney's freshmen, is in the ingredient of height. The Bears' frontline is all over 6-2 and most importantly with talent. Talent which has drawn the interest and attention of Manchester High varsity coach Doug Pearson and assistant Dave Flanagan.

Tallest of the Bennet contingent is 6-7 1/2 John Haslett who teams with 6-2 Rick Koepsel and 6-2 John "Bucky" Wilson up front. Wilson is cited by Bennet veteran coach Fred Lennon as a "fine defensive player" with the Bear mentor adding, "these people can handle the ball and go to the basket. They are very agile... This is the best group I've had in five years. I have mobile big men."

The backcourt of 5-9 Ed Kennison and 5-8 Jeff Lombardo shouldn't be shortchanged either. Kennison is noted as an "excellent point guard" but he's been used as a swing forward with Lombardo taking care of most of the ballhandling chores.

In the first-round action Monday third-seeded Vijay Amritraj of India and fourth-seeded Balazs Toroczy of Hungary won their matches. Amritraj eliminated Chico Hagey of La Jolla, Calif., 7-6, 6-2, and Toroczy downed John Feaver of Australia, 6-3, 6-7, 6-4.

In other matches, American Gene Mayer, whose brother Sandy won the Arkansas Classic last week, was among the first-round winners.

Mayer, 22, of Wayne, N.J., won eight straight games on route to a 5-1, 6-3, victory over Australian John James. Mayer accomplished the victory despite strained stomach muscles that affected his serve.

Indians, Cheney play here tonight

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sportswriter

Now with only one game lead in the CCL, Manchester High will hope home cooking works in its favor tonight taking on Simsbury High at Clarke Arena in a key league encounter.

The Silk Workers, 11-3 in league play and 11-5 overall, set the pace for 10-4 Watersfield while 9-5, 10-5 Simsbury is two games back in the standings. Cheney Tech, 3-9 in Charter Oak Conference tilts and 3-11 overall, has the unenviable task of hosting conference leader 13-0, 14-0 Cromwell High. East Catholic is idle until Wednesday night when the Eagles oppose Northeast Catholic at the Hartford Civic Center with a 7 o'clock start.

The schedule tonight lists 9-5, 11-5 Penney High at 7:17, 8-7 Hill High in CCL play, 2-13 Rockville High hosting Plainville in a non-conference clash and 2-8, 3-12 Ellington High being visited by 3-8, 5-10 Somers NCCAC action. Also CVC pacemaker 8-0, 11-4 South Windsor High is at 3-6, 7-8 Windsor, 0-13, 0-14 Bolton High hosts 7-4, 8-5 Bacon Academy, 1-1, 1-1 Coventry High visits 2-1, 2-13 Rocky Hill and 4-7, 4-9 Rham High travels to Middletown to oppose 5-6 Vinal Tech in CCEC engagement.

Defending CCL champ Manchester could've all but locked up a second straight title last Friday but instead saw its advantage be sliced to one game by Watersfield. Now it's a race again and the Indians will need a victory over the Trojans to stay in front as Watersfield has taken control of the race by winning against cellar-dwelling 11-3 Ellington High. Simsbury dropped the first high to Manchester, 55-49, Wednesday night when Anders Hedberg will be in Hartford Thursday night.

Cougars celebrate birthdays in win

By DAVE ROBACK
Correspondent

It is a nice gesture when your teammates give you a birthday present and two members of Manchester Community College's basketball team, Steve Zocco and Mike Robinson, celebrated theirs in fine fashion as the Cougars upended South Central Community College, 89-54, last night at Wilbur Cross High in New Haven.

The victory lifts the Cougars' record to 7-10, 3-6 in the CCAA. The Cougars' venture to Middletown Wednesday night to face Middlesex Community College.

As in the first meeting when the Cougars prevailed, 83-48, the squad started quickly and never relinquished the lead. Nick DeMarco connected for the first hoop and then MCC relied on Central's turnovers to form its offensive attack.

With 12 left in the first half MCC had a 19-16 edge. But this was the closest that the Ravens, 1-16, would come to victory as the fast-breaking Cougars led by the outside shooting of Steve Faulkner and the board control of Zocco and Robinson built a 50-30 halftime spread.

The spinning gyrations of Mark Cheney in the latter part of the half put the contest out of reach with the freshman backcourt performer collecting eight points in a two-minute span.

South Central (5-1) — Osborn 2-0, 4, Lucas 6-22, 14, Fiasconaro 4-4-6, 12, Bergman 6-0-1-2, Ward 1-0-0-2, Balzano 5-0-0-10, DeLuca 0-0-0-0.

Smith, Vilas play today

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Top-seeded Guillermo Vilas and second-seeded Brian Gottfried were seen in action today as play resumed in the $50,000 Springfield International Tennis classic.

Vilas played unseeded Ferdie Taygen from Framingham, Mass., while Smith went against his doubles partner Erik Van Dillen.

In first-round action Monday third-seeded Vijay Amritraj of India and fourth-seeded Balazs Toroczy of Hungary won their matches. Amritraj eliminated Chico Hagey of La Jolla, Calif., 7-6, 6-2, and Toroczy downed John Feaver of Australia, 6-3, 6-7, 6-4.

In other matches, American Gene Mayer, whose brother Sandy won the Arkansas Classic last week, was among the first-round winners.

Mayer, 22, of Wayne, N.J., won eight straight games on route to a 5-1, 6-3, victory over Australian John James. Mayer accomplished the victory despite strained stomach muscles that affected his serve.

Costly fire

CHICAGO (UPI) — The cost of replacing the fire-damaged grandstand-clubhouse building at Washington Park would be as much as $30 million, a racetrack spokesman said Monday.

Thomas Rivera, a representative of the track owned by the Madison Square Garden company, said it is too early for a decision on whether the track facilities will be rebuilt. Fire swept the grandstand and the clubhouse Saturday night.

Goalie recalled

Dade, 25, was the leading hitter in the Pacific Coast League last year. The Indians chose him in the draft from the California Angels along with pitcher Wayne Garland, who earlier signed a 10-year contract believed to total $2 million.

Through shuffling

BOSTON (UPI) — Tom Henonish is through shuffling the Boston Celtics lineup and hoping his pat hand will be good enough to move up in the NBA pack.

Henonish has played five-man draw with his starters all season in an effort to get the running game flowing. His latest combination, which puts forwards Curtis Rowe and Fred Saunders in the starting lineup and utilizes Sidney Wicks off the bench, has resulted in two straight wins for the defending champions.

Escape with win

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — One thing Fred Shero doesn't like is dull hockey games but that's not the reason his Philadelphia Flyers went flat in the second period to make it interesting Monday night against Atlanta.

The Flyers raced out to a 4-0 first-period lead but went to one goal back before goals by Don Slesaku and Harvey Bennett in the final period enabled them to escape with a 7-4 victory over the spunky Flames.

Swingman wanted

BOSTON (UPI) — Free agent Fred Saunders is proving what the Boston Celtics suspected about him nearly three years ago.

Saunders, who has stepped up Boston's running game after earning a starting berth in mid-January, might be the swingman the Celtics long have sought to replace aging John Havlicek.

In South Windsor Tree cutting opposed

Main St. residents, concerned about the pending destruction of 12 diseased maple trees, have asked the South Windsor Town Council to get an opinion from a tree surgeon before the trees are taken down.

Local Tree Warden Jan Zajac agreed to hold a public hearing on the matter before taking any further steps to remove the trees "unless according to Zajac, maple trees deteriorate very fast and the trees on Main St. are estimated to be about 80 years old.

Protesting residents, including Marshall Lamoza and Nancy Calfyn, both of Main St., suggested the town consider an ordinance restricting the cutting down of trees "unless absolutely necessary and when there are no alternative measures to be taken.

Councilman Leonard Suroscak said he would look into the possibility of adopting an ordinance protecting the town trees.

He said, however, that he had looked into the possibility a few years ago, but some council members were opposed to the question.

Area fire calls

Feb. 27 at 7:30 p.m. has been set as the time for a public hearing on the change in the number of personnel needed for a quorum for the Human Relations Commission.

John Giordano, chairman of the commission, has asked the council to drop the number needed for a quorum from seven to five persons.

He told the council the commission is sometimes unable to conduct official business when the necessary seven members are not present. He asked the council to reduce the number to five, which would be in keeping with the number needed for quorums of other town commissions.

Coventry's $12,000 insurance account shortage has been reduced to $3,000, Leonard Benjamin, Insurance Advisory Committee representative, told the Town Council Monday night.

The Travelers Insurance Co. has agreed to pro-rate the term of the policy until July, Benjamin said. Reducing the term of the policy will save the town $5,000, and remain on the agenda until it is resolved, the Council decided.

The Council appointed James Lacoek, independent, as a Planning and Zoning Commission alternate.

Fruit sale is still on

The annual fruit sale sponsored by the Vernon Friends of Music will go on in early spring as scheduled.

Mrs. Thelma Sharkey, chairman of the fund-raising group, said she has been told by the Florida fruit supplier that there will be citrus fruit available.

Due to the severe spring frost hit the southern state, it was thought it might kill all of the trees. Suppliers now say they feel fruit now on the trees will be alright. If there is not enough fruit available from that source, the group will be able to get fruit from Texas.

Mrs. Sharkey said the fruit will be offered for the same price as it was during the group's November and December sale. Proceeds go toward the summer youth music production and expenses of the school system music departments such as trips.

Providence heads poll

BOSTON (UPI) — Having weathered their toughest week of the season with two wins and a loss, Providence College is again rated the top Division I basketball team in New England.

Fourteen of the region's 16 Division I coaches voted the Friars first, while the other two chose Holy Cross as the No. 1 team. Providence finished with 76 of a possible 90 points and Holy Cross received 65 points.

Providence's record stands at 18-3 following a seven point win over tournament-bound St. Bonaventure's, a one-point victory over rugged Rhode Island and a four-point loss to fifth ranked Louisville.

The Providence-Rhode Island game already has been called by one of the best college games in New England history. The changed hands 26 times and the biggest lead for either team in the second half was two points.

It was a humdrum game the way it was played. Providence coach Jack Kraft. "If that game didn't do something to boost the image of New England basketball, I don't know what would."

Holy Cross, which plays at Notre Dame Wednesday, registered three more wins last week to advance its record to 18-2.

Massachusetts, with wins over Boston College and Pittsburgh and a loss to West Virginia, wrestled third place from Connecticut. The Minutemen, received 32 points while Connecticut earned 31.

Rhode Island, 8-9 was fifth with 20 points. The Rams play Massachusetts twice this month, including a Saturday night game at Amherst.

Fairfield, was sixth with 14 points. The Stags, 12-6, were the only other team receiving points.

Points are awarded on a descending scale, with a first place vote worth five points.

Ready for Sunday hoop exhibition

Not taking any chances, the Rev. Dave Rinas handcuffs officer Gary Wood while the Rev. Earle Custer takes the ball away. The annual basketball exhibition game between the Cops (Manchester Police) and Robbers (clergy) takes place Sunday night at the Clarke Arena at 8. Proceeds will go to local charities. Preliminary starts at 6:30.

USF remains No. 1 five

NEW YORK (UPI) — With less than a month remaining to the regular campaign, the University of San Francisco stays as approaching nifty-gritty time in its dual bids to capture the national basketball championship and complete a perfect season.

The Dons added two more victories to their list last week, routing St. Mary's, 103-77, and Nevada-Reno, 98-81, to remain the only unbeaten major college team with a 23-0 record through games of Feb. 5. They have only seven games remaining.

Despite doing as much as it possibly can on the basketball court, San Francisco actually lost ground in the latest UPI ratings released today. The Dons remain No. 1, but lost six points from the previous week and had their margin over runnerup UCLA reduced from 99 points to 35.

San Francisco drew 31 first-place ballots—the same total as last week—from the 42 members of the United Press International Board of Coaches, but lost support elsewhere to wind up with a total of 396 points.

UCLA, a winner of three games last week to raise its record to 18-2, was No. 1 choice of eight coaches and had a total of 381 points.

Louisville, which won its only game last week for a 18-2 record, jumped from seventh place to third with 320 points, two more than Michigan (17-2). Kentucky (16-2) is fifth with 211 points, followed by Wake Forest (18-1) with 179, Marquette (14-2) with 170, Nevada-Las Vegas (15-2) with 87, Atlanta (17-1) with 86 and Tennessee (16-3) with 82.

Strong South Windsor trounces East girls

Once-beaten South Windsor High had too much firepower, placing four performers in double figures, topping East Catholic, 64-34, in girls' basketball action yesterday in a makeup tilt in South Windsor.

The triumph for the Lady Bobcats was their 15th against the one loss while the Eaglesites now sport an 8-4 record.

South Windsor led after the first quarter, 21-10, and upped the margin to 39-20 at the half. The Bobcats with a 17-3 advantage in the third stanza held a most comfortable edge going into the final eight minutes.

Tracy Fidler topped the Bobcats with 16 points followed by Margaret Tracy (11), Laura Callahan (11), and Jill Snyder (10). Gail Imanocco and Debbie Beaulieu had 10 and eight respectively for East.
