Woman optimistic

CHICAGO (UPI) - A suburban housewife who Sunday became the first married woman in the United States to fulfill all academic requirements for the Roman Catholic priesthood predicts she will be ordained in the next 10 or 15 years.

"I think it will happen faster than most people realize," said Rosalie Muschal-Reinhardt, 48, a mother of four, who lives in the western suburb of Downers Grove.

The two barriers holding Mrs. Muschal-Reinhardt back from cracking a 2,000-year-old tradition in the church are her marital status and sex.

"Today has been a very proud and humbling moment for me," said Mrs. Muschal-Reinhardt, who graduated cum laude with a Master of Divinity Degree from Chicago's Jesuit School of Theology. "It was a proud moment not only for me and my family, but for all women - my sisters."

Hopes for the ordination of women were dashed recently when Pope Paul VI affirmed the church's position on the all-male Roman Catholic priesthood.

Scout retreat weekend set for early April

The eighth annual Boy Scout Retreat Weekend will be April 1, 2, and 3, at the Holy Apostle College and Seminary, Cromwell.

The retreat is sponsored by the Algonquin District Catholic Committee on Scouting, and is organized by members of the committee with Frank Keegan, chairman, assisted by Joseph Downs, camp director.

Deacon Eugene Bowski of Holy Apostle College will be retreat master. He has worked with scout retreats for the past seven years, and assisted the retreat master last year.

The retreat is open to all Boy Scouts in the Algonquin District. The scouts will camp in tents by troops on the college grounds. Six or more scouts usually attend as a troop with troop leadership. However, smaller numbers of scouts can camp as a provisional troop with leadership provided by the retreat committee.

The retreat commences with registration at 4 p.m. Friday, April 1, followed by supper. All meals from Friday supper through Sunday breakfast will be prepared by the college chef and served in the college dining room.

The chef is assisted by volunteers from the Manchester Chapter of the Holy Family Retreat League. Joe Czerwinski, Retreat League state president, will recognize all scouts who have made four or more of these retreats. Last year seven scouts received this presentation.

The cost of the weekend is $7 and applies to both the scouts and their leaders who spend the weekend. Information concerning the weekend can be obtained from scoutmasters, or from Keegan, 427 Parker St., 649-2740.

Stemming the tide of federal paperwork

One of the major complaints of businesses, next to excessive government regulations, is the tremendous amount of paperwork required to comply with those regulations. The paperwork burden on business, the public and the government itself is currently estimated at $40 billion a year.

In October 1975, Congress established the Commission on Federal Paperwork to study the problem and make recommendations, giving it a life of two years. Inevitably, the commission began generating new paperwork of its own, but it has also scored some notable achievements in stemming the paperwork tide.

According to a status report by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the commission has taken more than 300 anti-paperwork actions, including: — Elimination of approximately 50 million separate forms confirming government contractor adherence to equal employment regulations; — Assisting the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in developing a single application form for 41 federal and state welfare and income security programs, with a potential savings of $6 billion yearly.

One of the commission's legislative recommendations, which Congress has enacted, requires detailed wage reporting annually instead of quarterly for Social Security purposes, saving employers more than $250 million a year. The commission has also set up an ombudsman's office to receive complaints from the public. In one case, a small mushroom grower in California was frustrated by duplicative information requests from the International Trade Commission and the Department of Labor. He estimated that compliance with these requests would cost him at least 90 hours of an accountant's time.

The ombudsman contacted the two agencies, examined the forms and recommended that only one agency collect the information and share it with the other.

When he was in the White House, President Ford also gave a firm push to paperwork reform. A 12.5 per cent reduction in the number of executive branch forms was achieved by July 1976, with an additional five per cent reduction ordered by September 1977 and a further 15 per cent by September 1978.

The Internal Revenue Service has cut out 724 forms, a reduction of 31 per cent. The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms cut 25 per cent of its report forms and the Civil Aeronautics Board eliminated 26 per cent of its forms. Unfortunately, while all this progress was being made, more was added to the federal paperwork flood by recent legislation.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development Uniform Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA) and the Department of Labor Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) have alone added over 6.4 million hours to the paperwork reporting chore, says the Chamber of Commerce.

Letter corrected

To the editor, Following a letter to the editor by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bolin of 80 Carpenter Rd. expressing concern about snow and ice control in the Green Manor-Forest Hills area, a letter was sent to the "Letters to the Editor" Column of The Herald in which the name of Mr. and Mrs. Myers was inadvertently used instead of the name of Mr. and Mrs. Bolin.

Subsequently, the Town met with Mr. and Mrs. Myers relative to the general problems of snow removal and ice control in the Forest Hills area and, as a result of these conversations, steps are being taken to improve procedures. The Town regrets any embarrassment to the name of Myers name may have caused by virtue of our letter to the editor. We have found these citizens very understanding and cooperative in attempts to improve service to the public. Town of Manchester

Business is good for Benny the Bookie

Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON — "Shortage what shortage?" asked Benny. "Business is good."

Benny runs his bookie operation out of a little grocery store hardly out of the White House. Receipts were up for January, although Benny admits "Some of those creeps are afraid to walk a couple of blocks in the cold to get down their bets."

In fact, the country seems to be in pretty good shape if a working stiff doesn't mind paying his right arm for a furnace-full of natural gas — because of the shortage.

Count our blessings. There's no shortage of booze. No addict has to resort to the black market to buy cigarettes. You don't hear kids whining that their friendly neighborhood supplier has run out of candy bars. We've got plenty of $200 dresses, television sets, deodorants and aftershave lotions that make males smell like the dame across the street.

Automobiles? Good night nurse, a body doesn't take a stroll for fear of being attacked by hordes of Ford, Chevy and Mercedes salesmen. Cars are coming out of our ears in such quantity that dealers are offering $200 and $400 "bonuses" if you'll take one of their models off their hands.

We only live once. What a keeper has got to be is shameless. He's got to ask 10 or 15 cents for a nickel candy bar and 10 bucks for a jug of five-dollar Scotch and three bucks for a pound of coffee. And he can get away with it because, as is well known, such commodities have become necessities in our jolly, fun-loving society. Of course it takes energy to produce these items, but we only live once don't we?

Anyways, the storekeeper and the cloak and suiters get their price, and that's why there's no shortage of these necessities. If I hock the family jewels, I can buy a pair of economy-type shoes for $85, and no waiting in line. Shops do not run out of $300 suits. There is no scarcity of $65 permanent waves or French champagne at $25 a bottle. In Washington, you can buy an edible dinner at any one of the city's two dozen or so fancy hash houses for a mere $60.

The 110% way of life. In short, when the profit margin is high enough, there are lots of goods on the shelves and in the showrooms. That is the great 110 per cent American Way of Life. (Put that in lights, Manny.) We used to have a "shortage" of gasoline. It ended when prices were doubled. Today, filling station jockeys even clean your windshield and say thanks.

And so to the subject of natural gas. There is a shortage, and also there isn't. There are ample reserves of natural gas to meet all the country's needs for as long as we burn the stuff. But "readily available" gas is in short supply because producers have failed to develop adequate new supplies while interstate gas sales were regulated. They admit they won't dig the holes in the ground until they're assured of bigger profits.

That may be naughty, or irresponsible, but it is in the great American tradition of free enterprise. The candy bar hustler and the booze peddler are getting theirs, so why shouldn't the natural gas producer get his? After all, although we journalists like to think of ourselves as pure of heart, I've never encountered a colleague who turned down a raise.

Alas, none of us is perfect. Better not hang by your thumbs waiting for a shortage of greed.

Four-point plan could save 25,000 yearly

Highway death toll can be halved

By Richard C. Peet

What are the greatest legacies that President Carter can bequeath to the American people following his tenure in the White House? Preserving world peace? Of course. Preventing the indiscriminate spread of nuclear weapons? Certainly. Keeping the nation strong and prosperous? Naturally. Putting people to work again? You better believe it.

But in addition to these and other areas which the pundits tend to focus on, there is another which offers the prospect of yielding huge dividends for the nation and for hundreds of thousands of individual Americans as well.

We have the means. We now have it within our grasp, through means already known, to slash the highway death toll — which each year kills almost 50,000 Americans — by half. In addition, we can reduce serious injuries by ten times that number and property damage by billions of dollars.

Put another way, we know how to prevent as many people from dying on our highways each year as lose their lives by murder (20,500), in industrial accidents (12,600), or in the home (25,500). Indeed, we can save as many as the combined total of those who lose their lives in drownings, falls, by firearms, in fires, on trains, plane crashes and all other types of public accidents.

How can these savings be realized? To reach them will require dedication, energy, imagination and commitment. Specifically, it will demand:

1) The selection of individuals to administer highway safety programs who possess the knowledge and persuasive powers needed to succeed.

2) The reorganization of the highway safety complex within the Department of Transportation to enable it to perform its task more efficiently and effectively.

Research. The upgrading of research to further develop and refine the means and methods for achieving these aims. The enhancement of the already established partnership with the Congress to assure that needed programs will be approved and funded.

The full mobilization of private sector energies and resources in pursuit of these ends.

A concentration on those programs which offer the prospect of yielding significant reductions in the slaughter.

scourge of America's highways. Figures suggest that alcohol is involved in 50 per cent of all fatal accidents; 60 per cent in the case of young people. That is a distressing figure.

We don't know how to cure the disease of alcoholism. But we do know how to identify most problem drinking drivers. Yet, as a nation, and as a people, we are not prepared to make the hard decisions necessary to get them off the road. Sweden and the United Kingdom have done so with encouraging results.

Ways of coping. There are ways of coping. And research is turning up promising new approaches. Through them, we can prevent a minimum of 5,000 deaths a year, provided we extend and expand our efforts.

These then are the "big four" potential lifesavers. To focus on them does not mean we should slight or slacken other programs. But it does mean that we can realize bumper safety gains at affordable costs through intensive efforts in these areas. To neglect to do so with such at stake would ill serve the country — and ourselves.

During the campaign, candidate Carter declared his intention of becoming the "top consumer advocate in the country." And now his chance has come.

As governor of Georgia, he was a strong advocate of highway safety. It is his becoming its champion as president, and if Mrs. Carter makes it her cause as well, there can be no doubt that policies and programs can be well-launched within four years, and sufficiently implemented within eight, to bring us to, or at very least, within striking distance of, these lifesaving goals.

All in all, highway safety is a good investment for America — one that will produce a legacy of life by a caring President Jimmy Carter for the American people. The question is: Will he recognize the opportunity — and seize it?

Dial-a-plant

We've heard about talking to your plants, but talking about your plants appears to be the new going trend.

The New York Telephone Co. recently launched a new service called "Dial-a-Plant" which, via a daily recorded message, gives information on everything from holly to humbird.

Better yet, the same kind of free information on caring for your plants is available elsewhere throughout the nation by calling your state Horticultural Society or Association. There are 30 such organizations in this country. For the name of the one nearest you, consult your phone book.

The eyes have it, and before buying a new pair of sunglasses, make sure you try them on in front of a mirror.

If your eyes are clearly visible behind the lenses, they won't adequately screen out glare, ultraviolet or infrared rays.

Two killed in crash

Two Windham residents were killed in a two-car crash on Rt. 6 and 4A in Bolton this morning. Carol M. Tokarz, 24, was the driver of the car and Kenneth L. Tokarz, 28, was a passenger.

The driver and the passenger in the other car were both taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital by the Manchester Ambulance. Carmelo L. Rivera, 36, the driver, suffered a broken knee cap and the passenger in that car, Aleja Peres, (no age given) suffered a broken wrist. Both are from Wintimatic.

State Police said the Tokarz car was eastbound on Rt. 6, skidded out of control on the slippery road, needed for the weathered lane and struck the Rivera car broadside.

Both cars had to be towed from the scene. The accident happened at 7:15 a.m. No other details were available. Bolton's resident trooper Robert Peterson is investigating.

The top ten items recommended for improvement items in order of priority were expansion of ROTC program, position of volunteers, coordinator, program for gifted students, a reading teacher, a vocal music instructor, expansion of the early childhood program, an instrumental music teacher, a librarian (at Highland Park School), art and physical education teachers and the industrial arts equipment.

The board's capital improvement requests which are not included in the total board's budget, but part of the town budget, were also changed. The increases also included an unanticipated $80,000 in Blue Cross payments and $12,500 for anticipated fuel increases. A total of $30,000 was subtracted from the superintendent's

Commission reaffirms opposition to I-291

By ALICE EVANS

Manchester's Conservation Commission, historically opposed to the construction of Interstate 291 from Windsor to Manchester, reaffirmed its position on the proposed highway.

Commission members unanimously opposed the "concept of construction of I-291 from Windsor to Manchester," and will so notify the Board of Directors, Gov. Ella Grasso and the Department of Transportation.

Dr. Frederick Spaulding, who recommended the abandonment of the highway, said it was unacceptable environmentally along with the proposed industrial park and extension of I-86.

This unwanted segment of the highway "leads to where and other segments are in dispute. I see no redeeming value in I-291," Dr. Spaulding said. The proposed highway, which has been pushed south of its originally planned route, will have interchanges which will involve both the Hockanum River Linear Park and Wickham Park, he said.

The estimated 126 tractor trailers and 2,000 cars entering the proposed industrial park each day will create a noise and pollution corridor, and when there is a west wind, it will make the area unbearable, he said.

Philip Morneau, a federal soil conservationist, told the commission that 80 per cent of the land in the proposed industrial park site is prime agricultural land. Some of the land is good agricultural land and some "could go either way." He also reminded the commission that Connecticut produces 30 per cent of its food products.

Morneau said that he had no idea how large an area of impervious surfaces are being planned for the industrial park, such as rooftops and parking lots. He said the soil in the area is well drained, and the larger the impervious surfaces are, the more of an increase there will be in water flow to the retention ponds, which will retain the water and let it out at a controlled rate.

When grade cutting for the highway starts it could expose hardpan, which would mean more run-off. All these new projects would mean more run-off and more soil in the water, he said.

The commission Monday night also decided to request plans for the work scheduled at the Globe Hollow swimming area and to notify state representatives and senators from the Manchester area, that the commission is backing the Bottle Bill.

The mayor gave copies of his proposals to the council members last week. They include details of the five items he hopes can be funded by the $400,000 set for East Hartford by the federal Housing and Urban Development (HUD) office. The largest item is $170,000 for storm drains. Next is $100,000 for a School St. culvert. The mayor also asks for $100,000 for loans and grants to homeowners for repairs.

A new item apparently listed in response to requests made at public hearings is $50,000 to be spent on repairs to units of the town's Housing Authority.

The final item is $20,000 for a CDA project coordinator. The "expected to reside" figure is $74,000.

concerning the number of low and moderate income people expected to want to live in East Hartford is 374 in the mayor's grant proposal. The "expected to reside" figure has been the focal point of law suits which have blocked both the first two years' grants of $400,000 each set for the town.

HUD's formulas dictate a figure of 928. The mayor has refused to give up this formula and has used his own "hard evidence" to reach 374.

The report also said in some cases rats suffered lesions in the central nervous system and growth in the end ducts and mammary glands."

Board won't change school closing plans

By SHEILA TULLER

Herald Correspondent
The East Hartford Board of Education Monday night upheld its decision to close Woodland School and to transfer Hockanum School sixth-graders to O'Connell School this fall.

The board was deadlocked late in the meeting when voting to reconsider its January motion.

Board Chairman Larry DePonte voted to support the administration's recommendation, ending the hearing for a large number of Hockanum parents and teachers.

DePonte recessed the meeting for five minutes after the tie vote to judge the merits of the parent's presentation.

When the meeting reconvened, DePonte commended Peter LaRosa, the parents' spokesman, for a fine presentation, but said, "I have to vote nay (to change the earlier decision) because of the value of a true middle school program."

LaRosa suggested transferring students from other schools to O'Connell or Pitkin to bring the enrollment up in one of these middle schools. He suggested closing the other middle school instead of using the middle school grade students out of Hockanum.

Board members Emery Daly and Richard D'Alay agreed LaRosa's plan had merit and urged other board members to favor Hockanum as a middle school for students in the southwest section of town.

Barbara Atwood, Robert Bannon, Dorothy Carey and Joyce Ruggles voted against reconsidering the January motion.

At an earlier hearing, Woodland School parents failed to convince the board to reconsider. After listening to the parents' arguments to keep the school open, the board didn't even move to take a new vote.

Newly seated board member Jerry Ingalliera moved to reconsider the vote. Board member Joyce Ruggles suggested the rules of order be consulted.

The rule book stated, "A member of the prevailing side of the first motion must make the new motion to reconsider."

Ingalliera was not a member January 15 when the board voted 6-2 to close Woodland School. He was just sworn in last Monday night to complete Walter Miles' term.

Later in the meeting, Emery Daly asked the superintendent to consider splitting the area so a portion of Woodland's students would go to the same as it was the other night. Woodland School remains closed.

Ed Montovani and Joan Waldron, members of the parents' steering committee, discussed the parents' feelings regarding future plans for the building, financial costs, traffic, and parking.

The steering committee proposed restricting to add members to Woodland. However, Burnside School parents objected to disrupting their children.

The Woodland group presented figures showing Langford School's declining enrollment and suggested combining Langford and Woodland students in 1980-1981.

Dr. Eugene Diggs, school superintendent, said the original plan three years ago was to close Woodland and send the children to Langford, but parents objected.

Area police report

Vernon
Louis Poulin, 47, of 18 Village St., Rockville, was charged Monday with disorderly conduct. The arrest was made after police were called to investigate a domestic disturbance at that address. Poulin was released on a $100 non-surety bond for appearance in Common Pleas Court 19, Rockville, March 9.

He also said that the chamber has made commitments for the bumper sticker portion of the campaign, which will cost about $500. Money for the stickers "will probably come from private sources," he said.

He also said that the chamber may also turn to private sources to raise the additional $1,500 expected to be needed for the campaign. "But, there's nothing definite yet," he said.

The EDC, as the town's planning agency for the proposed park, is in charge of distributing monies in connection with planning for the park. At a meeting earlier this month, the commission voted to spend $2,000 for a publicity campaign to promote the March 15 referendum on a $15.4 million bond issue to finance the park's construction.

Hebron

The Board of Education of the Hebron District's Central Office Committee (COC), office of the superintendent, has reviewed a budget of $93,345 for the 1977-1978 school year. The budget represents an increase of $4,017 over the 1976-1977 budget.

Increases for the three towns are broken down as follows: Hebron will pay $24,828; Andover, $8,877; and Marlborough, $20,433.

The salary account totals $57,500, including a $1,000 increase for Supt. David Cattanch and the assistant superintendent. Noncertified personnel totals $12,725, an increase of $600; Social Security, $880, an increase of $54; medical and life insurance, $3,895, an increase of $1,236; and workmen's compensation totals $180, a decrease of $20.

Other expenses include legal services totaling $3,300, an increase of $300; travel, conferences and other reimbursements, $3,080, an increase of $220; and capital outlays, $1,800, a new item.

The COC voted that evaluation of the superintendent's position would take place in two stages. The rating schedule would be completed by January and the goals and objectives would be reviewed in June of each year.

Each in the Board of Education would make an individual evaluation of the superintendent. A complete set of the evaluations would be given to the chairman of each board, with the original put in the superintendent's personnel file.

Supt. Cattanch presented the procedure package to the COC for review and will rewrite the proposal to include the terms of evaluation and the location of the document.

The revised procedures will be presented to the four boards for review and will be returned with the COC representatives for final approval.

A final audit figure revealed a surplus of $2,302 for the 1976-1977 audit, which will be returned to the district member towns.

Hebron will receive $527; Andover, $231; and Marlborough, $500. The Regional District 8 Board of Education for Rham High School will receive $952, which is 41.2 per cent of the total surplus. The refunds to the towns will go into the general funds.

Zanini resigns post

Hebron

Richard Zanini, assistant superintendent of schools for Regional District 8, has announced last week he will resign his post for the schools of Hebron, Andover and Marlborough effective April 1.

The resignation, which surprised some Board of Education members, was accepted by the Central Office Committee (COC) with deep regret. COC Chairman Robert Nikette of the Hebron Board of Education said selection of a candidate to fill Zanini's position will be made by School Supt. David Cattanch.

The COC, however, did not vote on the matter before going into executive session Saturday morning.

Zanini is resigning to accept a similar post with the Wethersfield school system. He has served as assistant superintendent for Regional District 8 and Rham High School since November 1972.

Coventry

Angry residents living near the proposed 22-acre town facility site at Rt. 31 and Talcott Hill Rd. aired their grievances before the Coventry Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) Monday night.

Dr. Robert Linstone, assistant superintendent of schools, presented the proposal to the board Monday night. It outlines the system's goals for providing instruction in these areas.

The program guidelines were set by Saul H. Dulberg, state coordinator for career education. As a result of the program, the school system administrators helped develop the guidelines.

Dr. Linstone said the goal of education in Vernon is to educate all students to their fullest ability so that they will contribute to our society.

He said in fulfilling this goal "we recognize the invaluable contribution career and vocational education can make."

He said career education shouldn't be seen as an additional subject but should be fused into the existing curriculum.

It also calls for: Involvement of all areas of school staffs and the students; that the statement be officially adopted by the school board; that it designate the party responsible for its implementation; and provides for periodic review in the future.

The statement prepared by the administration says that the school system will provide students with the program's master plan for self-awareness, career education, and career preparation.

Those registering must be at least 16 years old and each class is limited to 12 members. For more details call the recreation office, 872-7319.

A course in Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) and a standard first aid course will be offered March 3 and 4 from 9 a.m. to noon at the Lotte Fisk Building. Classes will run from 7 to 9 p.m. and 8 to 9 p.m. for those 16 or older.

He also said through working with diabetics or their families, through a clinic-type of operation, he is trying to change people's eating habits. He said diabetics are fed the proper diets while they are in the hospital but it is important to teach them to eat properly after they return home.

People other than employees are also allowed to eat in the hospital cafeteria. Even with paying a surcharge, the meals are far less expensive. Even though the hospital does not promote the idea of outside visitors, they do have several in the course of a day.

Vernon to expand language program

By BARBARA RICHMOND

Herald Reporter

Northeast school proved very successful. "Each child is demonstrating a greater understanding for written and spoken language than ever before," he said.

Dr. Raymond Ramsdell, superintendent of schools, said he feels the educational needs of children can be more than adequately met in the Vernon system. He said the parents of the child now outside the system could refuse to bring the child back, but if the state Department of Education terms the program good, which he feels it will, then the child will be brought back or the parents will have to take over responsibility.

Behind the three children at Northeast and the one outside, three other children in the system have been identified as needing the special program.

If all seven were to be outside placements, it would cost the town $2,800 a year. The total annual cost for the program would be $20,175. Of this, $11,850 would be for the Northeast program and $8,325 for Sykes.

Bowman said, "As the main objective of the program is to return the child to the mainstream, we are able to control the curriculum that is offered, thus facilitating this goal."

The clinician for the Sykes program is already under contract. The salary therefore will be split between the language program and an itinerant clinician at Sykes and the Middle School.

Mrs. Garabedian said language disorders take on many aspects and the cause and diagnosis is complex. The subject area for the program includes 50 minutes of language class each day to teach speaking, writing and listening skills; a 30-minute reading class with one-to-one instruction; and oral reading plus speech therapy.

Board members Robert Dubeau and Harold Linstone said they would approve the program if they were assured the child would be brought back. The town pays $7,543 a year for tuition and transportation for the child.

The state mandates that the school board either provide the special program for the students or send them to another town.

Mrs. Garabedian said the parents of the student could not be asked to bring the child back until the board approves the program.

Richard Bowman, speech clinician and teacher for the language program, said the program at the Review set on hospital expansion

By BARBARA RICHMOND

Herald Reporter

A proposed modified expansion program for Rockville General Hospital will be reviewed by the North Central Health Systems Agency (HSA) executive board Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Ellington Town Hall.

An original expansion proposal which would have cost $3.2 million was turned down last year by HSA and the state Commission on Hospitals and Health Care.

The original plan called for expansion of emergency and outpatient facilities plus expansion of the pediatrics and in-patient facilities.

The HSA and the state commission both objected to the latter two improvements, but the expansion of the emergency and outpatient areas. The latter two are in the new $1.8 million proposal.

A lot of controversy arose concerning the way the HSA and the commission turned down the original proposal.

Ralph Pollack, executive director of the HSA, said the group was new then and Rockville's proposal was the first to be reviewed. He said the procedural problems, which caused much of the criticism last year, have been corrected and he doesn't anticipate any problems with the new proposal.

A formal hearing on the proposal will be conducted March 8 at 7:30 p.m. at the hospital on Union St. This week's meeting will be informal but the public will be allowed to ask questions of hospital officials.

Each patient, after being admitted, receives a menu catering to his or her particular type of diet. McElvein said there are six basic types of diets - regular, bland, soft, diabetic, low sodium and low fat.

Each meal there is a choice of three or four entrees, vegetables and desserts and the menus go in 14-day cycles so patients rarely have repeats.

How much does it cost to feed so many people? About $3,000 a week, McElvein said.

Where else can you still get a cup of coffee for 10 cents? Yes, that's still what it costs in the hospital cafeteria.

However, McElvein said with the coffee prices rising all of the time he wrote a poem to warn the employees that this good thing might have to change.

"Early to bed and early to rise. Unfortunately your morning cup price is no longer a surprise. As much as we hate to change your cup, the price will soon have to go up. The java that has for so long been a dime just can't keep up with the ever-changing times."

McElvein has the responsibility of purchasing specifications, ordering and quality control for the cafeteria. He said he takes care of the physical aspects of running the cafeteria and works hand-in-hand with the dietitian. He also spends time with women who attend the pre-natal clinic at the hospital. He said these women need a lot of consultation concerning foods they should or should not eat.

Rec adds skiing courses

Several new activities are being added to the program schedule of the Vernon Recreation Department, including the new craze among skiers - cross country skiing.

Two cross country skiing courses will be offered. One started last week and the other will start Thursday. Each class will consist of six hours of instruction plus one day on the trails, either in Massachusetts or Vermont.

This course will consist of nine hours of instruction and the standard first aid course will consist of eight, three-hour sessions starting Feb. 24.

A macramé class will start Thursday from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. for five weeks.

A 10-session course on guitar playing will start Feb. 22 at the Lotte Fisk Building. Classes will run from 7 to 9 p.m. and 8 to 9 p.m. for those 16 or older.

Women buy rescue radio

The Women's Auxiliary of the Bolton Volunteer Fire Department has voted to buy a 12-channel UHF radio for the department's emergency medical communications.

Radios now in use by the department have the capability to communicate with other departments and ambulance services in Tolland County, but not with the Manchester Ambulance Service, the primary source of ambulance service for Bolton.

Bolton Fire Commissioners, the Board of Selectmen and the Ambulance Committee have agreed that a UHF radio was needed to improve emergency services in town.

Roger Talbot, president of the Manchester Ambulance Service, and Bruce Marcus, president of Marcus Communications of Manchester, said they would donate part of the radio's cost to improve coordination of medical emergencies in Bolton.

The Women's Auxiliary decided to buy the radio, which was valued at $1,200, for just $750. It is to be delivered within six weeks.

Cooper rated honor

News on the weekend that the latest group of former basketball greats approved for admission to the Hall of Fame at Springfield, Mass., included Charles Cooper rekindled memories of this great basketball star of the 1930s.

Old time basketball buffs in Manchester can recall the times Cooper appeared in town with the New York Renaissance as a member of the Rec Five at the East Side Rec. The Renaissance was the Globetrotters' day except that their opponents were not set-ups.

Cooper, called Tarzan because of his tremendous size and strength, was the center with the Renaissance. He was the first big man that I recalled who could hold a basketball (which was larger in those days than the present one in use) in the palm of one hand.

There was no such rule limiting a player three seconds in the foul line and Cooper would get in that spot and was practically unstopable because of his size, both in height and in width.

Whenever the Renaissance came to town, usually once a year, the Rec would be sold out and the New Yorkers never went home a loser.

Ty Holland, Hank McCann, George Slavitsky and Wardy Waterman were a few of the Rec players who ran up against the Renaissance.

The Rec gym, at the time, had four rows of bleachers on each side and a large net was dropped once play started. Fans overflowed the ends onto the court when the Renaissance played. Hundreds of fans rimmed the race track and some even shook the basketballs when opposing players attempted to score.

The Renaissance never needed any help. They were the best traveling team of their time.

Cooper played 11 years with the Renaissance and helped manager Bob Douglas win 1,303 games against 203 losses. During one span, the Renaissance won 88 straight and in 1939 won the world pro title.

Other members of the Renaissance cast included Cappy Hicks, a sure-handed outside shooter and Fat Jenkins, as good a guard as ever played here. The Renaissance were 20 years ahead of their time as all six or seven men, all of them, could have played NBA ball by today's standards.

If any black player before the arrival of the Basketball Association of America, now known as the National Basketball Association, deserved a spot in the Hall of Fame, it was Tarzan Cooper. He was the best big man of his time.

If you have any doubt, ask Hollard, McCann or any of the other local players who went up against the Renaissance.

Those were the good old days when a half dollar was the price of an adult admission.

Coach lauded
Co-captains John Haslett, Rich Koepsel and Ed Kemniss, writing for the Bennett Junior High basketball players, feel coach Fred Lennon was a super salute for his efforts this season which produced an 11-1 record.

Long overlooked for years by local groups for their contributions to sports in Manchester are Tom Conan and Jeff Koelsch. The former has been active in Little League baseball, Midget League football and Elks activities for years while Koelsch is always on the go pushing one project after another, usually in the ticket field, after long years as a sports promoter. Jan Merrill will compete in the mile and two-mile runs in the USA-AAU track meet Feb. 25 at Madison Square Garden.

No doubt UConn's basketball team got the short end of the stick from the officials in the overtime loss to Manhattan last week in New York City. The team was on the other end of the stick from the officials in some of Referee Larry Mitchell's calls.

Vacancy filled
When the Barons dropped out of the Rec Businessmen's Basketball League the vacancy was filled by Irish Insurance, sponsored by Wally Irish. The latter was one of several interested parties willing to sponsor a team for the balance of the season.

"I thought Stacom played his best game for us against the Knicks," in scoring 12 points and playing aggressive defense, Heinsohn said. "Now, if we can work Wilson in with Havlicek and Jojo (White) a rest, then we can have those two fresh at the end."

Cashman, a graduate of American International College, where he was the No. 1 player for three seasons, will be one of the 16 pros in the New England Tennis Stars Tournament here.

The Madison resident advanced four spots from eighth to fourth place in the final standings. NETS plays the first two years of its existence on the singles ladder.

Besides starting in tennis in college, Cashman also lettered in hockey a goal and was recently honored as AIC's outstanding athlete in the past 10 years.

Teamed with Drake, the pair has been labeled the "team to beat" in doubles play. Cashman will play in the singles competition in the first pro tourney ever staged here.

Benevolent will be the Manchester Memorial Hospital Building Fund. The $2,000 prize money was hand-drawn by eight local businessmen.

Bleacher seats will be set up on one of the courts. Tickets are now available at a number of local outlets.

Fermi stands in way of Indian title hopes

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sports Editor

No matter where the lines are drawn, Fermi will be a mini-Cop in Enfield when he stands in the way of Indian title hopes.

This vital CCIL engagement highlights tonight's schoolboy basketball slate which begins the final full week of regular season play.

For Fermi, the tilt means life or death. The Falcons, off to an injury-riddled 0-4 start, have won seven of 10 to stand at 7-9 in the league and over-all and they must be victorious for any hope of qualifying for the State Tournament.

For Manchester, present co-leader of the CCIL with Wethersfield High at 12-4, it needs to win to at least maintain this status. Wethersfield, on a six-game win streak, draws relief tonight with the Chieftains also a hot club, winners of four of their last five.

"I've said it before; for them it is the biggest game of the year," stated Manchester coach Doug Pearson. "Fermi also considers this game a grudge match. But this game I feel is more important to us—or it should be. We're defending championship and we're going after another title."

Cheney Tech is the only other local quintet in action, East Catholic closing out regular season play Friday. The Beavers of coach Gerry Blanchard, 4-10 in the COC and 4-12 overall, travel to Colchester to face 8-5 Bacon Academy.

Pemey High, still with a shot at CCIL honors, puts its 11-13, 13-5 overall mark up against woeful 1-15 Enfield High in East Hartford. East Hartford High, 2-14, meanwhile looks to Williams to combat 9-7, 10-7 Windham High.

Also, 10-1, 12-2 South Windsor High entertains 3-7, 4-11 Glastonbury, while 2-9, 2-15 Rockville High visits 8-3, 9-8 Bloomfield in CVY play, 4-8, 5-12 Ellington High hosts hapless NCCC.

of 0-11, 0-16 Stafford and 4-9, 4-11 Rham High entertains 0-15, 0-16 Bolton in a COC bout. Finally, unbeaten 15-0, 16-0 COC leader Cromwell High entertains 14-1, 15-1 Coventry High. The Patriots lose with a one-point decision to Cromwell.

The first time Manchester played Fermi, the Silk Towners won a disputed 83-82 match at Clarke Arena with a technical foul on the Falcons. They returned to play at Fermi, along with junior guard Jim Boudreau, will be back next year. That pleases three-year leader Blanchard. One disconcerting note is that senior Jim Violette, who has made great strides including earning a starting nod tonight, won't return.

point per game clip followed by Hyde (11.8) and Kiernan (11.4). Hyde, 6-4 junior forward, has been in double figures the last five times out while Kiernan is the leading rebounder with an 11-per game average.

Two of Cheney's three leading scorers are underclassmen. Senior George Prasser leads at 12.1 points per game with junior Kevin Tyler (9.2 ppg) and sophomore Dave Guntamachir (9.1 ppg) right behind. They earned top honors in Massachusetts and Rhode Island would also cut into profits.

Edward Keelan, president of the board, also pressed for legislation to allow matinee and evening racing programs held on the same day to be taxed separately.

The tax on both is now taxed as if it was from one event, which hurts operators because the state share is based on a sliding scale. Under the percentage of the take increases as the earnings increase.

Rep. Richard Mercier, D-Plainfield, also the town's first selectman, said he agreed more money for his town would be a blessing. Without specifically backing the proposal, he said he wanted the track's profits to be insured so as not to hurt the economic help in new jobs and increased property taxes its presence has brought to his community.

Ending its four-game losing skid, Manchester Community College's women's basketball team registered a 61-43 come-from-behind win over Post University last night in Waterbury.

Post led at the half, 24-19, with the hosts building the advantage to 34-27 with nine minutes left. But the Cougars caught fire with Marianne Pemberton scoring four points on offensive rebounds and Laurie Christiana contributing 14 of her game-high 22 markers.

Best for the losers, now 2-3, were Paula Kordis and Cindi Tiscia with 13 and 10 points respectively. Betsy Mayshar and Ginny Peterson each had 16 rebounds for the Cougars, now 4-7.

Unps to meet
First meeting of the season for Manchester members of the State Board of Approved Baseball Umpires will be held Thursday night at 7 o'clock at the Community Center.

At the core, Grant, who worked his way up from a hotel room clerk to being what he is today, is a sensitive individual. Deeply sensitive.

Waiting for the elevator at Shea Stadium one day, he noticed another man also waiting with two little boys, obviously his sons. One was a Mets' cap. One of the boys had trouble with the Yankee cap, "is a little shy. There was something wrong with his legs."

"You have a divided family," Grant joked with the father, noticing the different caps on the boys.

"You must have a tug of war at home."

Grant asked the boys and their father whether they'd like to go into the clubhouse and meet some of the players. They couldn't believe it. Inside they visited with the players and then Grant took them over to Dr. James Parkes, the Mets' physician.

"I was a young friend of mine," he said to Parkes. "This boy is going to have an operation on his legs tomorrow."

Parkes talked with the boy about his handicap, had him walk across the room and then talked with him some more, telling him how to turn his toes, how to help himself and how to walk more naturally. He also talked with the boy's father and said to him, "if he were my son, I wouldn't have him operated on tomorrow."

That was a few years ago. The boy never had that operation. He walks fine now.

UConns ranked fourth
BOSTON (UPI) — New England college basketball coaches agree on one thing this season: There are six good Division I teams and 10 also on the schedule against Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Back at the top of the pack, Providence rolled up two more victories last week against DePaul and Long Island University to register its eighth straight 20-game-winning season. The Friars, 20-3 with 13 of the 15 first-place ballots cast and a total of 73 points.

Holy Cross, waylaid at Notre Dame last week, garnered the other two first place votes and finished with a second place total of 62 points.

The biggest obstacle was the working out of an arrangement for the present majority owner, Mel Swig, to sell his interest, or part of it, to a group headed by Sandy Greenberg, owner of the Coliseum in which the Barons play.

The NHL Board of Governors met Monday to discuss the Cleveland situation. Both Swig and Greenberg met with the financing committee, as well as meeting for one hour with the governors.

Plainfield track after bigger cut

HARTFORD (UPI) — Owners of the Plainfield dog track want to take a bigger cut of gambling revenues, at the bettor's expense, because they claim the facility now is operating at a loss.

In testimony Monday before the legislative General Law Committee, the owners claimed they faced serious financial problems unless the law was changed to give them a tax break.

The officials estimated their firm earned $670,000 in 1976, but said it lost money in the last six months of the year when the novelty of the track, which opened last January, wore off. The profit estimate is an unadmitted figure.

The representatives of Connecticut Yankee Greyhound conceded profits would have been higher if corporation officers had not been paid substantial salaries.

The officials complained the firm lost $30,000 last month and said unless the law is changed the track will face serious financial difficulties.

"If we do not get some type of tax relief it is my belief we will have a substantial loss in 1977," said Alphonse Spadaro Jr., of the Woodbridge accounting firm of Levitsky and Berner, representing the track owners.

Connecticut Yankee also backed a proposal to cut the share of gambling receipts returned to bettors in prize money from 83 to 82 per cent.

Under that system, municipalities would have their share of the handle doubled from one quarter to one half of one per cent.

Spadaro said under the proposal the dog track would take in another $1 million in revenue annually from the increase. The dog track officials were among a number of legalized gambling operators who asked legislators to help increase profits by changing the track's chief executive officer, and from the way he's being publicly pilloried, you'd think he was George Eastman.

They wanted proposed facilities in Massachusetts and Rhode Island would also cut into profits.

Edward Keelan, president of the board, also pressed for legislation to allow matinee and evening racing programs held on the same day to be taxed separately.

The tax on both is now taxed as if it was from one event, which hurts operators because the state share is based on a sliding scale. Under the percentage of the take increases as the earnings increase.

Sidewalk repair data prepared for presentation to directors

By GREG PEARSON

Herald Reporter
Jay J. Giles, director of public work, will present information to the Manchester Board of Directors on how other area towns handle sidewalk repairs.

Giles is working on ordinance changes that would affect sidewalk repairs.

He requested information from other towns on how they handle sidewalk repairs, how much the homeowner and town pay for the work, and how long the town allows for the problem to be corrected.

"It's really surprising how many towns assess the homeowners for the total cost of the repair," Giles said.

Walter Senkow, town engineer, said that some towns identify the problem and then require the homeowner to have the problem fixed on his own while also paying the full cost of the work.

At the other end of the spectrum, Giles said that repairs done by the town usually cost about 30 per cent more than bi-tuminous repairs. Carl Zinsner, a member of the board, led the direct opposition to the bi-tuminous option. He criticized the attractiveness of the bi-tuminous repairs, and suggested the ordinance change.

The sidewalk ordinance is also in conjunction with a recent suggestion by Priscilla Prangan, a member of the board who recommended a referendum for needed sidewalk repairs.

Giles is attempting to draw up a plan for paying the cost of the repairs. He favors a system where the town and homeowner divide the cost of the work, rather than having just one party pay the entire price.

But last March, a new trial was ordered when a judge said a grave injury to Senkow said of the needed repairs. Giles has told the board that there are between $2-$3 million in sidewalk repairs in Manchester.

"There is a multi-million dollar investment program out there," Giles said. "It's in cement concrete, and paying the added cost if concrete is used."

Giles said that repairs done by the town usually cost about 30 per

Overcharges alleged on auto insurance

HARTFORD (UPI) — According to state Rep. Rosalind Berman, R-New Haven, city dwellers are being overcharged by auto insurance companies and the situation remedied.

"We must adopt legislation that will establish uniform automobile insurance rates for all Connecticut residents," Mrs. Berman said Monday. "It is unfair to the citizens who live in our major cities to be charged more for insurance because of their choice to remain in the urban areas."

"Automobile insurance rates can be properly based on one's driving record, but one's home address is hardly a reasonable basis for additional charges," Mrs. Berman said.

Daly rejects suggestion he quit his state job

HARTFORD (UPI) — T.F. Gilroy Daly says he will not resign from his job as state insurance commissioner to concentrate on the Peter Reilly case.

A Republican lawmaker Monday called for his resignation, but Daly said the request was "a lot of nonsense" and emphasized he had no intention of stepping down from his state post.

Bozzuto raised the Reilly issue when Daly's appointment to the insurance post was confirmed by the Senate.

"It is obvious that Mr. Daly is still spending a great deal of time on his private law practice and that the state is subsidizing him," Bozzuto said Monday.
