Opinion
It isn't just the money

While there was little or no agonizing over the ethics of accepting a $13,000 a year pay raise without voting on it, a story in the Wall St. Journal indicates many congressmen are upset over proposals to limit outside income.

Both House and Senate ethics proposals are considering some percentage limit on outside income. The problem is that while almost all agree that some limit is not unreasonable, the method of determining a fair limit is almost impossible to formulate because of the divergent sources of outside income.

For example, the Journal reports House Republican leader John Rhodes of Arizona draws $32,000 a year from a life insurance company in which his family is the largest shareholder.

Rep. Morgan Murphy of Illinois moonlights as a lawyer and earns $40,000 to $60,000 a year. Sen. John Heinz of Pennsylvania collects roughly $400,000 in dividends, interest and other income from the family pickle business.

It is because outside income for legislators is more than 25 varieties that it is difficult to arrive at a fair way to limit it.

Limit it too much, critics say, and you discourage many who feel they can only serve if allowed to keep reasonable incomes from farms, businesses and investments they may have spent many years creating.

By limiting some types of income and not others, you might make the Congress a rich man's club.

But perhaps the drafters of the ethics code are too close to the problem.

The answer, now that the pay is a husky $57,500 a year, is not in limiting outside income but perhaps in requiring a minimum amount of time, say 40 hours a week on the job of being senator or representative.

The ethical problem with outside income is not the amount earned but whether or not the earning of it has short-changed the constituents.

By requiring full disclosure of the amount and source of outside income and the time devoted to its acquisition, the voters will know whether or not they are getting the $57,500 worth in a senator or representative.

For $57,500 a year, the voter has a right to first claim on a legislator's time and talents. After all, he asked for the job knowing well what the pay and working conditions would be. As long as the needs and concerns of his constituents come first, let him moonlight all he wants to as long as his ability to serve his constituents is not impaired.

This in essence is what true conflict of interest is all about.

Heroes of the moment

Jack B. Weinstein, a federal district judge in Brooklyn, decided last week that there hasn't been enough environmental paperwork—only 4,043 pages—on the sale of federal oil and gas leases off New Jersey last August. So he voided the $1.1 billion deal.

A few days before, Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, an Idaho environmentalist, canceled the sale of oil and gas leases in the lower Cook Inlet of Alaska. He plans an environmental and geological "review" of this and five other lease sales scheduled by the previous administration.

If we go back a little further, there is the injunction granted against completion of a $116 million TVA hydroelectric project on the Little Tennessee River by a federal judge in Cincinnati on grounds that it threatened a little fish called the Tennessee snail darter.

And before that there was the $2 billion Seabrook nuclear power project in New Hampshire, first approved by the government and then held up by an EPA man in Boston over some implied threat to clam larvae, and still pending in Washington.

Then there was the proposed $700 million Dickey-Lincoln hydroelectric project on Maine's Upper St. John River, stalled by a controversy over environmentalists' claims that it would threaten 30 specimens of a plant called the Furibush lousewort. And before that, Appalachian Power's proposed New River hydroelectric project in Virginia and North Carolina were scotched when the U.S. declared the river a "wilderness" area.

Then there are those oil shale projects in Utah and Colorado. They may not have

Diplomatic immunity should be restricted

WASHINGTON — As a practicing part-time curmudgeon, I have long held that some of the more unsavory, second-rate creeps on American soil can be found in the diplomatic colonies of Washington and New York.

I refer to the scoundrels in figurative striped pants who can commit all variety of petty and serious crimes—including, so far as I know, burning the Capitol to the ground—without risk of prosecution. They are protected by something many Americans have discovered to their sorrow—diplomatic immunity.

Full immunity

That means the United States, unlike most other nations, grants full immunity from criminal, civil and administrative jurisdiction to everybody from the foreign ambassador and his family to his servant, whether they are on official or personal business.

We should all, then, welcome the effort of Rep. Joseph L. Fisher, D-Va., to do something about a situation that has brought grief, financial loss, serious bodily injury, and even death. A year ago a Virginia man, while working with a road repair crew, was struck and killed by a car driven by a chauffeur for the Senegalese Embassy.

No insurance

The chauffeur, of course, enjoyed diplomatic immunity. Moreover, the car carried no liability insurance. Members of foreign diplomatic missions are not required by U.S. statutes to do so.

Guiding children through TV's wasteland

HARTFORD — "Our main business is not to see what lies dimly at a distance, but to do what lies clearly at hand."

Since Thomas Carlyle lived and died a century ago he obviously wasn't talking about what we can do to control one of the most pervasive influences on modern life—television. Yet the more one studies the many-faceted problem of coping with the black box, the more one is persuaded with Carlyle that the solution to this problem too largely lies "clearly at hand."

Take Susie

In the case of Susie Richards, for example, Susie (not her real name) is a normal, bright four-year-old who lives in New Milford. Recently, however, her unusually quiet, passive nature caused enough concern that her mother agreed to participate in a television experiment sponsored by Redbook Magazine.

Susie's mother, along with 14 others, put her child on a "TV diet," cutting Susie's viewing to one hour a day over a four-week period. During the first week Susie—very much a loner—had temper tantrums at home over missing Batman. At nursery school she became more moody and withdrawn than ever.

Unusual things

By the second week, unusual things began to happen. Susie started asking her mother if she could invite a friend over—a rare request in the past. Her nursery teacher reported the youngster began playing more with other children and appeared "happier and more talkative." By the end of four weeks Susie seemed a different child to both her mother and teacher: Happier, more creative television, adds that one million children under 12 watch television as late as midnight even on weekdays. So much for TV's vaunted "family viewing time" which ends at 9 p.m. or even 8 p.m. in some parts of the country—as the answer to sanitizing the screen.

What is the answer? Witness after expert witness at the marathon hearing here, sponsored by the 6.6-million member PTA, started where Susie Richards' mother stopped—by urging parents to guide and control their children's access to television.

No spartan society

We should remember that the ideal that didn't make room for some "bubble gum of the mind" as TV has been called. But the question is of proportion. Most 18-year-olds today have spent 11,000 hours in the classroom and 16,000 hours before the tube. In the latter process they saw an estimated 15,000 murders and were assaulted themselves by 325,000 commercials.

Television, it is widely accepted, has a unique power to teach either pro-social attitudes or to help instill aggression, hostility and even a tendency to violence. And industry disclaimers notwithstanding, the equality appears to be worsening for our children.

Every two minutes

The Media Action Research Center in New York, for example, reports that during the 1975-76 season an act of aggression occurred an average of every two minutes on Saturday morning TV (A time period tellingly called the "kid vid ghetto" by the industry itself). A year earlier the ratio was every three and one-half minutes.

A.C. Nielsen, the guru of American

Today's though

Brotherhood Week

What with Valentine's Day and Brotherhood Week both coming in February, I have been thinking of love relationships. It has occurred to me that they are, perhaps, (St. Thomas Aquinas notwithstanding) separate entities—an "us" and a "she-ness" we recognize in the best of love relationships. And it is the spirit of this "us-ness" which helps us to begin, just begin, to realize the Spirit of Love, who is God.

We reach out in loving to others every day. And if there is a response it feels so good we find ourselves "in love with loving." In fact we enjoy it so that we stretch even further to be what the other wants. Only we find, to our amazement, that what is wanted by the other is our "selves."

Carter backs off on wage monitoring

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) - President Carter has backed off on his promise to monitor wages and prices. He said he will not force labor to swallow a distasteful anti-inflation program for monitoring wage increases, according to Meany's aides.

Meany received private assurances from the President this week after he announced labor will not cooperate with the administration's suggested program for overseeing wage and price increases. Carter later made his pledge public.

Asked if Meany took credit for forcing Carter to back down on the matter, an aide smugly replied: "We're too smart for that." But he indicated Meany was pleased by the message he had received from the White House.

In Washington, administration economist Charles Schultze Wednesday continued to defend the need for an anti-inflation program. Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns, meanwhile, struck a rare note of accord with Meany.

Burns told a congressional committee the government should avoid discussing any anti-inflation mechanism at this point because it could generate a lack of confidence in the economy.

Surplus sharing urged by House GOP leader

FAIRFIELD (UPI) - Distribution of half of Connecticut's projected $48 million surplus to cities and towns on a per capita basis was called for today by House Minority Leader Gerald F. Stevens, R-Milford. Stevens said he would push for enactment of the proposal by the legislature before May 1, with payment of the surplus to be made by Oct. 1.

"Although the governor has called for no tax increases in his budget message, it is quite apparent that most municipalities throughout the state will have substantial mill increases in their property taxes," Stevens said in a prepared statement he was to read at a meeting of the Fairfield Board of Realtors.

"This is a one-shot return of surplus tax dollars to the people," Stevens said, "which should be enacted prior to the budget deadline for most Connecticut municipalities (May 1)."

Speakers added for seminar

The Town of Manchester's Health Department has scheduled additional speakers for the upcoming seminar on air quality.

The seminar will be held Saturday, March 5, from 9 a.m. to noon in the Regional Occupational Training Center. It will offer town residents an opportunity to hear speakers and ask questions about present air quality and possible future effects of the proposed industrial park.

Dr. Alice Turek, director of health, said speakers will include: Peter Kenny, an air pollution control engineer for the state Department of Environmental Protection; Steve Soumerai, program manager of the Connecticut Lung Association's air conservation committee; J. Eric Potter, town planner; and William Massei, chairman of the Manchester Transportation Commission.

Dr. Turek also said that two speakers from the state Department of Transportation should attend the seminar, but those speakers have not yet been named.

The seminar will be divided into three parts - "Existing air quality," "Development - the decision-making process," and "Transportation - the decision-making process."

Wayne D. Miller, 24, of Stafford, was charged with breach of peace Wednesday in connection with an incident at the site of the former Bon Ami Corp. on Hilliard St. Miller was one of the workers on the demolition of the building. He was released on a promise to appear in court March 14.

Three persons were treated and released from Manchester Memorial Hospital Tuesday night after they suffered minor injuries in a two-vehicle accident at E. Center and Pitkin Sts.

Police said a car driven by James P. Lombardi, 21, of Hartford, collided with a pickup truck driven by David J. Embser, 21, of East Hartford. Lombardi's car was making a left turn onto Pitkin St., police said. He was issued a summons for failure to yield right of way.

Lombardi, Embser and Christine Guadino, 18, of 118 Waukele Rd., a passenger in Lombardi's car was also examined and released from the hospital.

Theft of equipment with a total value of $600 was reported at Carter's Express, 95 Hilliard St. The theft occurred sometime between last Friday and Tuesday, police said.

A break was reported at a Sycamore Lane apartment Wednesday, but nothing was to be missing. Several windows were reported smashed at the Manchester Memorial Co. on Harrison St. Wednesday. Rocks were found inside, police said.

Needed to set appeal hearing

PZC transcript nearly complete

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter
The transcript of the Jan. 10 zoning hearing should be completed by Monday, Alan Lamson, assistant town planner, said today.

The transcript has to be completed before a court date can be set for the appeal of the zone change granted for the town's proposed industrial park.

The Jan. 10 hearing was conducted by the Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) for a zone change needed for 45 of the 300 acres included in the proposed industrial park site.

The change, from Rural Residence and Business Zones to Industrial Zone, was granted by the PZC one week after the hearing. That decision was appealed on Jan. 26 by seven plaintiffs, represented by Atty. Bruce Beck and Anthony Fagnano.

Atty. Jules Kapr and Roland Castleman, who represent the Manchester Economic Development Commission, the planning agency for the park, filed an answer to the appeal on Tuesday, the answer date set on the appeal.

Work on the transcript of the Jan. 10 hearing is being done by the planning office, Lamson said. The hearing lasted five hours, and the transcript, when completed, will probably be about 100 pages long, he said.

Castleman said that once the transcript is filed, he can go to the Hartford Court of Common Pleas, where the case will be heard and ask that the case be scheduled at the earliest date possible.

"I know the case is a matter of great public interest and great public concern," he said. "I would hope that the court would recognize this and schedule the trial as soon as possible."

The major tenant for the proposed industrial park, the J.C. Penney Co., has said that it would like to begin construction by June of this year. The firm has announced plans to locate a two-million-square-foot catalog distribution center in the park.

Giles pleased with bids on Love Lane project

Jay J. Giles, director of public works, was generally pleased this morning with bids opened Wednesday for the Love Lane sewer and water installation project. Frank Kapsia & Son of Glastonbury is the apparent low bidder for the installation of about 1,300 feet of sewer lines. The firm priced the work, which includes a pump station installation, at $88,515. Giles said that he has about $50,000 reserved for the sewer work, but this was expected to cover provisions for emergency power sources for the pumping station and a well. The installation of the emergency sources was not included in the bid. A bid for the installation of about 1,300 feet of water lines was very good, Giles said. The A. Dren Construction Co., of 743 N. Main St., submitted the apparent low bid of $28,936.25.

Area police report

South Windsor
Two South Windsor police officers were injured early this morning while arresting a Sullivan Ave. youth, police said. Officer Thomas Field suffered a broken nose and mild concussion and Officer Stephen Farham had 12 stitches to close a laceration over his left eye. Both were treated at Manchester Memorial Hospital and discharged. Michael C. Winegar, 17, of 1366 Sullivan Ave. was charged with driving while his license was suspended, disorderly conduct, two counts of interfering with a police officer and two counts of assault on a police officer. Police said Winegar was seen driving on Sullivan Ave. by an officer who knew his license was suspended. He was followed to his home and police said he became abusive when they attempted to bring him to the police station. He was held on a $10,000 bond and was to be presented in Common Pleas Court 12, East Hartford, today. James Bellucci, 17, of 54 Orchard Hill Dr., South Windsor, and David Kenny, 18, of 199 Adams St., Manchester, were both charged Wednesday night with disorderly conduct. The arrest followed the investigation of a complaint that someone was knocking over garbage cans on Pine Tree Lane. Police said a 15-year-old boy was charged and referred to juvenile authorities. East Hartford
Stephen A. Johnson, 22, of 184 Westerly Ter., East Hartford, was arrested Wednesday at the Warehouse Foods store at 467 Main St. and charged with fourth-degree larceny (shoplifting).

Hartford loses round in fight against suburbs

HARTFORD (UPI) - Hartford has lost a round in its attempt to keep the federal government from freeing $3.25 million in federal funds for five suburban towns. The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development was expected to file a request today or Friday to dissolve a court injunction keeping the money from Enfield, Vernon, West Hartford, Glastonbury and Farmington, according to HUD Area Director Lawrence Thompson. Hartford claimed in 1975 seven area suburban towns weren't planning increases in median-income housing in January, 1976, U.S. District Court Judge M. Joseph Blumenfeld blocked the towns from receiving the money, saying they didn't consider obstacles to persons who work in the towns, but reside elsewhere, in planning for federally-funded housing.

Then East Hartford joined West Hartford and Glastonbury in an appeal of Blumenfeld's decision, but lost the case last December. They appealed a second time, asking for a review by the full, nine-member U.S. Second District Court of Appeals. The review is pending.

Town officials responded cautiously to Wednesday's decision. "It's better news than bad news," said West Hartford Town Manager Richard Custer.

Some town officials say what's at stake is Hartford's attempt to control suburban federal grants. Vernon Mayor Thomas Benoit echoed Custer's sentiments and added it would certainly be very welcome if the money does come forward.

Vernon plans to use the $25,000 block grant to do development work at the town-owned Camp Newcomb on Bolton Lake. The town is planning to do some minor work on its own but won't be able to improve parking facilities without the federal funds.

U.S. appeals court backs tieless teacher

NEW YORK (UPI) - The Second U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ordered a new hearing for an East Hartford high school teacher who wouldn't wear a tie as a means of showing students he was "not tied to establishment conformity." The federal court Wednesday suggested a public school teacher is constitutionally entitled to teach without wearing a tie and may even be more effective in a turtle neck sweater or open necked sports shirt. "Teenagers, who are often rebellious against authority," the court said, "may find a tieless teacher to be less remote, a more contemporary individual with whom they can more easily interact and to whom they are better prepared to listen with care and attention."

"Freedom to teach in the manner of one's choice," Oakes said, "is a form of academic freedom, that has been accorded significant respect in cases involving public school teachers."

Meskill countered, arguing "We do the court a grave disservice when we enforce, in the name of the Constitution, the pet educational theories of the federal bench, whatever they may be."

The three-judge court, in a split decision, made the suggestion in the case of Richard Brimley, a teacher of English and film-making at Penney High School. Brimley challenged the constitutionality of a teachers' dress code requiring a tie on the ground he wants to present himself to his students as a person "not tied to establishment conformity."

The ruling, reversing Chief Judge T. Emmet Clarke of the District Court in Connecticut who dismissed the complaint, sent the case back to that court for a hearing on the merits.

In supporting Brimley's position as "reasonable," the majority opinion, written by Judge James Oakes, said: "It is a truism that long after a student's substantive knowledge has been forgotten, it is the character of a teacher's dress code which appearance and style are inevitably a part - that is most remembered and that continues to inspire."

In his dissent, Judge Thomas Meskill, a Republican former governor of Connecticut, said "if the sound doctrine of local control of public schools is to have any meaning, it is necessary that the federal courts refrain, in most instances, from interfering with the decisions of school authorities."

Hospital saves on energy

Vernon

The energy conservation program, under the direction of Jack Beatty, chief maintenance engineer, began in 1975. At that time, measures such as lowering water temperature, sealing off steam leaks, covering pipes with insulation, and closing off more than 150 square feet of "heat leaks" cut the fuel oil expense considerably, Boardman said.

He said additional savings were realized by engineering changes to the heating system itself, to reclaim heat through water and warm air. Boardman said, "While patient-care areas must be heated at all times to a state mandated 70 degrees, storerooms, medical records and dietary departments' thermostats are lowered each day from 8 p.m. to 5 a.m.

In addition, the heating system is scrutinized hourly by the maintenance personnel, keeping it under semi-automatic control for early detection of unnecessary heat loss, Boardman said.

He said in 1975 the hospital's fuel oil expense was $83,619 for 245,928 gallons of oil, while in 1976, 177,607 gallons were burned for a cash outlay of $60,386.

Boardman said 1977 also promises to be one of prudent energy usage, with an approximate savings of 12,000 gallons over 1976 even though the degree days will increase by about 500.

Beatty commented that the achievements are underscored by the significant fact that no one has complained about being cold.

Following the public hearing (this year, April 12), the Town Council may cut or recommend changes in the dollar figure.

At the Annual Town Meeting (this year, May 13), townspopularly determine the actual dollar figure for education for the following school year.

The Board of Education may make some adjustments in the program and then approve the operating budget for the year.

The school board will discuss and change the proposed $2,880,790 budget tonight at 7:30 at the high school. The budget is up 10 per cent over last year. This year's proposed increase reflects the needs met with last year's 2.8 per cent increase, the lowest in more than 10 years, Elman said.

Other areas absorbing the increase are salaries, transportation, insurance and tuition costs, Elman said.

Preparation for a new budget the day after the Annual Town Meeting, said Dr. Arnold Elman, superintendent of Coventry schools, because the school system knows what programs did not receive money.

In November, teachers submit reports of their requirements to maintain existing programs and build new programs for the coming year.

Elman assembles the reports and prepares a first draft for total assessment of the school system's needs, coordination of programs, a total monetary figure, and its impact on the town.

Elman then cuts the monetary figure and the school principals revise the budget to conform.

Elman prepares a second draft during Christmas vacation, and in January, the final draft is prepared for presentation to the Board of Education at its first meeting in February.

The school board reviews and changes the budget in public session, in consultation with the administration. The board approves the adjusted budget and submits it to the

Rham-Bolton survey due

Survey forms have been sent to parents of Rham High School students, as well as prospective Grade 6 parents, regarding the possibilities of sending Rham students to Bolton High School.

G. Robert Couillard, assistant principal at Rham, said the Regional District 8 Board of Education is investigating several options about the possibility of sending district students to Bolton.

A subcommittee of the Rham Board of Education has been created Grade 6 parents, regarding the possibilities of sending Rham students to Bolton High School.

The questionnaire asks which town the person lives in the Rham district, what grades children will attend next year, and whether the parent would be interested in sending students in Grades 7 to 12 to Bolton High School on a voluntary basis.

The survey also asks whether more information on the plan is desired, and the option of checking "no opinion at this time" is also available.

There is also space on the survey form for comments on the proposed plan. Parents are requested to return the forms to Rham High School or to the local elementary schools by Friday.

School board may be 5-2

Bolton

The recent resignation of William Vogel from the Bolton Board of Education could result in a majority of five Republicans on the seven-person board after the May 2 town election.

Had the resignation not occurred or had it not occurred under the new charter went into effect, the most either party could have would be a majority of four members.

At election time there will be three members on the school board whose terms expire June 30, 1979. By law, the school board will fill the present vacancies with a Democrat until the town election. At the election both the political parties can run a candidate to fill the vacancy and the high voter-getter will be the winner.

The remaining three seats for the school board will be filled either by two Republicans and one Democrat, or two Democrats and one Republican.

If the Republicans win the vacant seat and two regular seats, the school board will have a five-to-two majority of that party.

Town Clerk Catherine Leiner verified the information with Henry Cohn, of the elections division of the Secretary of the State's office, and Town Counsel Jerome Walsh. A written explanation has been sent to the chairman of both town committees.

Conservation priorities set by Andover agency

Top priorities of the Andover Conservation Commission are to work closely with school students and to develop a town-wide environmental plan, Steven Fish, commission chairman said.

Fish has lived in Andover two years and was appointed chairman last October. He said when he went on the commission it had "no chairman and no direction." He said since he was elected chairman the commission has been "getting its act together."

He said, "We want the community to know we exist and know that we are doing something."

He said the group is now brainstorming and researching past work of the commission to avoid any duplication.

In April the commission members will coordinate their research and decide their direction. Fish is employed by the Manchester Board of Education as a teacher-naturalist, teaching environmental education to students in Grades K-12.

Bristol Central girls eliminate MHS, 65-60

By LEN AUSTER

Herald Sports Writer

What would've been... That will somehow be a lingering thought for Manchester High's girls' basketball team after dropping last night's Class LL Division playoff tilt to Bristol Central, 65-60, at Wilcox Tech in Meriden.

The sub-ranked Indians, who bow out -10, had snapped a 30-30 half-time time and were leading, 39-34, with three minutes gone in the third stanza when disaster struck. Junior guard Cindy Formica, who had added stability to the lineup, went down at 5:14 with a twisted ankle and never returned. Whatever momentum Manchester had went out the window.

Central, seventh seed and now 18-3, closed the gap to 41-40 with 2:56 left. From there, fine-looking left-handed dribbling, right-handed shooting junior guard Wendy Guite took matters into her own hands canning five straight hoops with only two free throws by Nancy Downing centering for Manchester. This streak gave the Ramettes a 50-43 edge going into the final period.

Guite led all scorers for Central with 25 points with Debra Kempton adding 13 and Coughlin 11 markers. The Ramettes were 28 for 48 (43 per cent) from the floor with 31 turnovers.

Downing paced Manchester with 19 points and a bundle of rebounds with Ellen Donadio (18) and Strand (14) also hitting double digits. The Indians were 22 for 65 (33.8 per cent) from the field with 27 turnovers.

Bristol Central (65) - Coughlin 13-11, Guite 11-14-23, Kempton 6-12-13, Mandino 1-0-2, Smith 3-2-4, Lutz 0-0-0, Matthews 0-0-0, Formica 2-3-3. Totals 28 9-17-6.

Manchester (60) - Rice 1-0-2, Lemieux 1-5-3, Downing 8-5-19, Strand 2-0-4, Strand 6-2-14, Donadio 4-10-18, Ferguson 0-0-0, Formica 0-0-0. Totals 22 16-27-60.

Pro tennis weekend

Manchester's first professional tennis tournament is scheduled this weekend, starting tomorrow afternoon and continuing Saturday - day and night - and Sunday afternoon.

The site will be the Manchester Racquet Club.

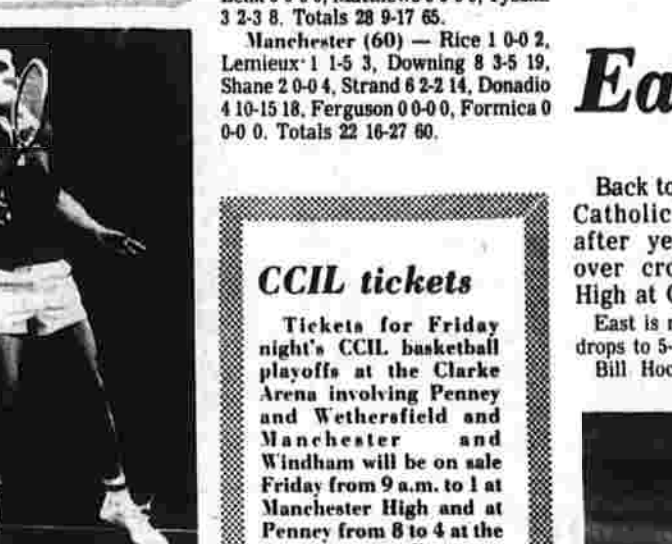

The players, 16 in all, will be members of the New England Tennis Stars (NETS) on the $20,000-10-city tour.

Sponsors will be seven groups, Charles Boggin Co., Crispino's Foodland, First Hartford Corp., J.D. Real Estate, Multi-Circuits, Pop Shoppe and Ridgecourt.

It's because of the aforementioned groups that the necessary $2,000 was raised to bring the tournament to Manchester. All expenses have been underwritten and proceeds will enter the Manchester Memorial Hospital Development Fund.

Charlie Boggin, Sam Crispino and Merrill Whitson, three of the sponsors, will take part in the Pro-Am which starts Saturday morning. Eight of the pros will take an amateur partner in the fun portion of the play.

All three are red-hot amateur players and are reported at the top of their game. Crispino, like Boggin, a former baseball player of note, has caught the 'bug' so hard that he had an outdoor court installed at his Manchester home last summer.

CCIL tickets

Tickets for Friday night's CCIL basketball playoffs at the Clarke Arena involving Penney and Wethersfield and Manchester and Windham will be on sale Friday from 9 a.m. to 1 at Manchester High and at Penney from 9 a.m. to 1 at the Penney main office.

Each school has been allotted 400 tickets.

Penney plays Wethersfield at 6:30 and Windham and Manchester square off at 8:30.

East grapplers pin Tribe

Back to the 500 level is East Catholic's wrestling team after yesterday's 32-20 win over cross-town Manchester High at Clarke Arena.

East is now 8-4 while Manchester drops to 5-9 with the setback. Bill Hoch, Mark Hopper, Roger Poudrier, Pete Shannon, Bill Grondin and Emilie Fournier gained wins for East while Bob Wilson, Doug Marshall and Tim Wrobel were victorious for Manchester.

Results: 101 - Caveon (EC) WBF, 102 - Wilson (M) dec. Corey 11-5, 115 - Hoch (EC) dec. Chandler 5-2, 122 WBF, Unlimited - Wrobel (M) dec. - Bixby (M) drew with Faust 4-4, 129 Dean 17-7.

Money main goal

While the amateurs will be playing for fun, the 16 pros, including Bob Jack Redmond, will be shouling for money. The singles winner will receive $50 and the top doubles team will divide up $300.

Bailey Brown has perhaps the biggest name of the 16 NETS, the high point man in the first year of the group, but he's winless after the first two 1977 staps.

Brown, former University of Penn player and No. 1 in New England, has been one of the East's top players for a decade. The 33-year-old Bob Stater was with the Boston Lobsters in World Team Tennis competition last year and is a former Pan-American teammate of Arthur Ashe. He was once ranked No. 21 in the U.S.A.

He's seeded No. 2 in this weekend's play behind Bill Drake, who is off to a great start in NETS play with victories in the first two tournaments. Drake was No. 1 in points last season.

It will be interesting to see what the spectator reaction will be. There are hundreds of tennis players in Manchester. The feeling here is that tennis buffs would rather play than watch, but we shall see what develops.

Bleachers, to accommodate 600, will be erected on one court which will be next to the championship surface that will feature the singles and doubles competition.

Two clinics are slated for ticket holders, the first Friday afternoon at 2 with Ted Hoehn and the second Saturday afternoon at 4.

It's not the Aetna World Cup but for a good cause.

DAVIS OUT

OAKLAND (UPI) - Golden State Warriors forward Dwight Davis was placed on the injured reserve list Wednesday and the NBA club signed free agent Larry McNeill, who played three seasons with the Kansas City Kings and started this year with the New York Nets.

Davis underwent surgery for a torn tendon above the right knee Wednesday. A team spokesman said Davis would be lost to the Warriors for the remainder of the National Basketball Association season.

MHS swimmers win finale

Manchester High's swimming team finished its first year under coach Ted Brindamour at 5-4 with a 103-66 victory over Windham High yesterday in Willimantic.

Dave Beckwith was the lone double winner for Manchester copying the 200 and 500-yard freestyles. Bob Tanner won the 100 free, Dean Wilkie the 50 free, Mike Wasyluk 200 individual medley, Wayne Smith the 100 back and Jeff Greenberg the 100 fly for the Indians.

Tennis, hockey talents blended

Hockey and tennis apparently go together. At least they have in the past for two of the 16 pro tennis players who will be in the New England Tennis Stars (NETS) Tournament at the Manchester Racquet Club starting Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Mike Britton, out of Farmington, and Bill Cashman from Madison, starred while in college in both sports.

Britton, now of Weston, Mass., was the No. 1 net player for four years at the University of Connecticut, winning the Yankee Conference singles and doubles titles in his junior and senior years when he served as captain. He was also a UConn varsity hockey team star.

Cashman learned in both sports at American International College in Springfield, playing goal in hockey.

Returning to the area after being sidelined with an arm injury, Paul Gerken has been tabbed the dark-horse in singles play. At one time Gerken was the 16th ranking player in the United States.

Eight singles matches Friday, four each at 5 p.m. and 8:30, plus four doubles matches at 8:30 will comprise the opening rounds.

Pairings and complete weekend schedule appear elsewhere on this page.

Top singles seeds are Bill Drake and Bailey Brown with Doug Crawford and Rich Bray top-seeded

Three school marks set in track loss

Sorrow and joy were felt by Manchester High's indoor track team as it dropped a 58-30 verdict to defending state champ Xavier High of Middletown but set three school records. Manchester wins its indoor campaign 7-2 while Xavier has won all four of its starts.

Both relay teams set new standards. The 4 X 1-lap foursome of Joel Malinowski, Mike Presti, Rich Telgeier and Steve Dawson were timed in 3:17.3 while the 4 X 2-lap quartet of Bob Lyon, Glenn Flodford, Telgeier and Wes Fedorchak turned in a 7:34.5. The other mark set was by Flodford in the two-mile run as he took third place with a 9:49.6, breaking the previous barrier set by Fedorchak last week.

Dawson, by winning the 600 and taking second in the 300 and third in the 90, upped his season total to 1194 points which sets a season mark (indoor) for points gathered.

Results: 4 X 1-lap: 1. Manchester 3:17.3, 2. Xavier (X), 3. Dawson (M), 4. Perrotti (X) 34. 60 hurdles: 1. Post (X), 2. Drenzik (X), 3. The Kjellison (M), Malinowski (M) 38.3. 4 X 2-lap relay: 1. Track robbed

YONKERS, N.Y. (UPI) - Robbers who hid in a bank basement and got away with at least $1.3 million in receipts from the Yonkers Raceway harness track may have a hard time trying to spend much of it.

FBI Agent Robert Besley, who heads the bureau's nearby New Rochelle office, said Wednesday a "substantial" portion of the loot stolen from the Hudson Valley National Bank was in non-negotiable checks made out to Yonkers Raceway.

Six assigned

CHICAGO (UPI) - The Chicago Cubs Wednesday added six signed players to their roster, leaving six still negotiating contracts.

Inductee Steve Oltiviers, obtained from the San Francisco Giants in the Bill Madlock trade, has not signed a contract but has agreed verbally to terms offered. Still unsigned are Bobby Murcer, Jerry Morales, Joe Wallis, Bruce Sutton, Buddy Schultz and Scott Thayer.

Signed contracts were received from pitchers Bill Bonham, and Steve Renko, Bill Buckner, Gene Clines, and Ivan De Jesus, who was part of the Rick Monday trade.

Haywood returns

NEW YORK (UPI) - New York Knicks forward Spencer Haywood, who has missed the last 20 games with a knee injury, was reactivated Wednesday by the NBA club.

Haywood, who will work out on his own could be ready to play against Indiana Saturday night.

Cougar five ousted

By DAVE ROBACK
Correspondent

The words 'Good evening ladies and gentlemen and welcome to community college basketball' will be echoed in the rafters at East Catholic's gym from now on as Manchester Community College succumbed to Mattatuck Community College, 80-74, last night in the season finale.

The Cougars end the season at 10-13, out of consideration for the COCAA tournament. Mattatuck, 9-11, with the victory will now face Tunxis in a playoff with the winner advancing to the tournament.

MCC led for most of the first half and the first seven minutes of the second. But it soon relinquished the lead as Don Garre hit a three-point shot and Kevin Lamay and Brian Dayton combined to jump-give the Chiefs a 51-47 advantage with 12 minutes remaining.

Three top of the key shots by Steve Faulkner in a two-and-a-half minute span gave MCC a 55-54 lead. The Cougars held on until Lamay hit a jumper from the baseline giving the visitors a 69-68 lead with 4:50 that, Mattatuck changed its runs and gun philosophy to a more deliberate style as Garre, Dayton and Lamay hit a series of hoops and free throws to ice the contest. Faulkner hit 12 second-
