Hostage charges denied by Amin

By United Press International
President Idi Amin of Uganda accused the United States today of "putting words into his mouth" by saying that the 200 Americans he barred from leaving Uganda were being held hostage, Radio Uganda said.

"This has never crossed his mind and he has never thought of making any of them hostages," the official radio said. "It is the U.S. imperialists who are putting these words into his mouth."

Although there have been no official American statements about hostages, there have been reports in some Western newspapers that the United States had let it be known through diplomatic channels that it would not accept the treatment of the American citizens as hostages.

Ugandan officials assured the United States Friday that Amin's order summoning the Americans to a meeting in Kampala Monday and closing Uganda's borders to Americans wanting to leave the country is "no cause for alarm."

A high-level Cuban military delegation has arrived in Uganda to discuss supplying Amin with arms and personnel, news reports in Nairobi, Kenya said today. The reports said 1,000 Cubans already are in Uganda.

The White House said Friday the assurances were "helpful in allaying concern," but diplomatic officials—including Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young — planned meetings today in Washington to discuss the potentially explosive situation.

One State Department official said: "Of course we have plans in case things don't work out the way we hope. It is the refusal by the U.S. Special Working Group in the State Department Operations center was formed Friday within minutes after Amin instructed border posts and airport authorities not to allow Americans to leave the country. He also ordered the Americans to appear in the Ugandan capital of Kampala Monday."

White House press secretary Jody Powell said Friday "it is safe to presume the President will do whatever is necessary and proper to save American lives."

Carter said Friday night "the situation looks good now" and "I think it's going to be all right," but gave no details.

There are 175 to 200 Americans presently living in Uganda, most of them missionaries, oil company workers or employees of Uganda airlines.

In his order Friday, Amin told government officials to draw up lists of resident Americans and all their possessions, including "chickens, goats, pigs and other animals" and to ask them whether they wanted to in Kampala, the West German embassy, which has handled U.S. interests there since the American embassy was closed in 1973, said it was a Ugandan minister, accused of being involved in a plot to topple Amin.

In Nairobi, diplomatic observers said Amin's action apparently was in response to recent U.S. criticism of Uganda, notably Carter's statement Wednesday that developments in Uganda in the past few weeks "have disgusted the entire world."

The criticism followed the mysterious deaths of Anglican Archbishop Janani Lumumba and two government ministers, accused of being involved in a plot to topple Amin.

Religues reaching Tanzania and Kenya said they had seen the persecution of two predominantly Christian tribes in the Ugandan army.

In Washington, acting Ugandan ambassador Paul Chepkwuri, who was summoned to the State Department Friday, said there was "no cause for alarm" over Amin's latest presidential retreat.

"He wants them to know that he has appreciated the work they have done and he wants them to continue," Chepkwuri said.

'Amin is not insane'

By JANE ANDERSON
HARTFORD (UPI) — The 175 captive Americans in Uganda will be used by President Idi Amin to try to keep President Carter from criticizing his regime, a former Ugandan official predicts.

The Americans have been ordered by Amin to meet with him Monday in Kampala, apparently in response to sharp criticism of Amin by Carter, U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young, and the American press.

Andrew Lutakome Kayiira, the superintendent of prisons in Uganda until a year ago, differed Friday with those who say Amin is unpredictable because of his bizarre behavior.

Amin uses hostages

He said Amin has used hostages in similar situations to relieve pressure from England, France and Russia.

"The international news media has claimed that Amin is insane. I know Amin personally and I know that he's not insane. He's a predictable man. A crazy man is unpredictable," Kayiira said.

He said Amin is a soldier trained to kill, not to think, with no sense of right or wrong; a man who sees the world in simplistic terms; a ruler whose actions "are in response to an enemy, whether that is an imagined enemy or a real one." He compared Amin to Adolf Hitler.

Kayiira, 32, an assistant professor of criminal justice at the University of New Haven, made his comments in a telephone interview with United Press International.

French incident

Kayiira said when documentary, "Amin," was released in France, "Amin called the French nationals in Uganda and ordered the French ambassador to prepare to evacuate them until the French government apologized to him. Then he changed his mind two hours before departure and allowed them to stay."

"During the Angolan war, the Russian ambassador went to Amin and told him not to support the western-backed faction, which Amin was supporting. Amin took it personally and said the Russians were trying to run his country."

"He ordered them to leave within 24 hours. At that time, the Russians had brought planes in for Uganda which they were assembling. The Russians dismantled them. Then Amin asked the Russians to apologize. The Kremlin apologized through a letter and again Amin got what he asked for."

Pressure predicted

Kayiira also predicted Amin will pressure American officials to order news reporters to stop writing and talking about Amin's persecution of Christians and violence in Uganda.

"The British government told him the British press was free to print what it wanted to print but the government negotiated with the BBC (British Broadcasting Corporation) to take a different stand."

"So far as Amin is concerned, the American government has the power to stop the American press. If Amin is told the American press is free, he won't believe it. After all, the British said the same thing," he said.

Liquor price law may be invalid

HARTFORD (UPI) — Opponents of laws that artificially force up liquor prices are branding a legal opinion that such statements are unconstitutional and Gov. Ella T. Grasso's lawyer says they have a solid argument.

The lawmaker leading the fight to repeal the laws Friday produced a legal opinion claiming they were unconstitutional and promised a court challenge unless the legislature repealed them.

Sen. Robert Houley, D-Somers, and University of Connecticut Law School professor Leonard Orland told a Capitol news conference a federal law that took effect last year made the state's liquor pricing statute "price fixing."

"Strong indictment!" Jay Jackson, her legal counsel, called the opinion a "strong indictment" of all price regulation and said the governor would review her support of some controls and opposition to others with that in mind.

"For nearly a year, we have found Connecticut's liquor price fixing law has been in violation of the basic federal antitrust law and therefore is unconstitutional and invalid," Houley said.

Orland said Connecticut laws allowing fair trade prices set by distributors and prices set by retailers under minimum markup law are "both equally unconstitutional."

Houley, the most vocal critic of the present system, said he would file a federal court suit over the issue unless his colleagues repealed both fair trade and minimum markup. He said he did not have the money to personally finance such an effort, but expected to raise the money through public donations.

Orland based his argument on the 1975 repeal of a law which had allowed states to set some legal price fixing despite the Sherman Antitrust Act, a 19th century statute aimed at stopping the industrial robber barons of that day.

He said since the repeal of the exemption Connecticut and federal statutes on the subject were in complete disagreement.

"No valid basis"

"Since the repeal there is no valid basis" for Connecticut's liquor pricing statutes, Orland said. "The state is permitting what the federal law prohibits."

Orland said the U.S. Constitution clearly stated that in disputes between national and state laws the federal statutes has supremacy.

Carter keeps tabs on Uganda

THURMONT Md. (UPI) — President Carter, exhilarated by the birth of his second grandchild, monitored developments in Uganda today in an upbeat mood from his mountaintop presidential retreat.

The concern evidenced Friday when Ugandan President Idi Amin barred any Americans from leaving his country, gave way to optimism later in the day.

Carter twice visited Bethesda Naval Hospital Friday — the last a dramatic late night helicopter ride from Camp David to see his new, black-haired grandson, James Earl Carter IV.

Carter told reporters at the hospital the Ugandan situation "is going to be all right. The situation looks good now." Then asked for a reaction to Amin's latest moves as he returned to Camp David, Carter smiled and said, "He's so predictable."

The President was expected to devote a considerable amount of his weekend stay here on preparations for his energy department proposal which will be submitted to Congress on Tuesday.

The Carters were clearly thrilled by the birth of their 7th-born grandson

Flash fire damages hotel in Moscow

MUSKOW (UPI) — A Soviet doctor says the death toll could rise to more than 50 from a fire that flashed through the world's largest hotel Friday night.

Flames raced through the corridors of the 6,000-bed Hotel Rossiya for more than five hours, trapping hundreds of foreign tourists and other guests.

At least 18 persons were known dead. None of the known victims was American.

A Soviet emergency first aid doctor estimated the death toll would rise to between 50 and 60.

The Carters have two grandchildren, Jack Carter, 29, and his wife have an 18-month old son, Jason. As for the latest addition to the Carter clan, the President described him as "perfect... he's a real boy."

News for Senior Citizens

By WALLY FORTIN

Hi everyone.

It seems hard to get back to the routine after spending a gorgeous week at St. Lucia. It was unreal the first morning to wake up to the birds and the sounds of the ocean, the temperature being about 80 degrees with a beautiful breeze. You soon forget about the cold and snow and drift right into a lazy relaxing life.

Tuesday was a busy day trying to catch up with all the mail on my desk. We had a ceramics class in the morning. In the afternoon the bowlers were knocking the pins down at the Parkade Lanes with the following getting the high averages: Men, Class A (over 130 average) high triple, Al LaPlant 533; high single, Joe Dupont 210; Men, Class B (130 average and under) high triple, Tom Riddell 476; high single, Harding Carrier 184; Women, Class A (over 100 average) high triple, Sue Purcell, 594; high single, Helen Sumford, 554; Women, Class B (100 average and under) high triple, Kay Nettleton, 353; high single, Lee Steinhilber, 134.

Pinochle winners

Wednesday in the morning we had 11 tables of pinochle with the following winners: Gladys Seelert, 630; Esther Anderson, 607; Michael Haberen, 606; Vincent Borello, 589; Nadine Malcom, 585; George Last, 574; John Gally, 558; Ernestine Donnelly, 556; Al Gates, 555; Grace Moore, 555; Martin Bakston, 548.

In the afternoon, the bridge games were being played upstairs and the top scorers were: Nadine Malcom, 3530; George Last, 3260; Irene Foley, 3100; Marjorie McClain, 3100.

Meanwhile, my arts and crafts class was meeting downstairs and were busily making costumes for our upcoming show. It's great, the talent in this class and the willingness to help.

Paul Ryan dropped in to talk to us about the cruise to Nassau and Bermuda. He is coming next Thursday so show us a film: Send in your deposit to O'Keefe Travel by March 7 if you are planning to go. Flyers are still available at the office.

Sugar price support

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Carter administration is preparing a proposal that would force consumers to pay more for sugar, a source said.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland next week is expected to ask cabinet officials and the White House to review a plan to adopt a new price support program coupled with a reduced 4.2 million-ton import quota to 4.2 million tons — slightly below last year's import total of 4.2 million tons and this year's predicted total of 4.6 to 4.8 million tons.

Dancers entertain

Entertainment for the afternoon started out with the Burton's School of Dance students putting on a marvelous performance for a number of guests.

The following students participated: Tommy and Scotty Joyce, Alpha Mehta, Debbie Gorman, Paula Lent, Luci Fontaine, Almee Cormier, Julie Daleoso, Pam Soliminter, Corin Goodman, Fatty Gregory.

This program was followed by two outstanding Brazilian artists, Gerardo Parente, pianist, and Wascyl Simoes Dos Anjos, oboist. These artists are outstanding performers and have been honored by their country, Brazil. We thank our good friend Reggie Pinto for bringing this great talent to our town and to our Center. Hopefully our mini-bus will be ready for passengers next week.

Guests next Thursday

Next Thursday we will have as guests Town Manager Robert Weiss, Director Vivian Ferguson, and Stephen Penny, member of the Economic Development Commission. They will discuss the planned Industrial Park and give you the story on what it really is all about and why they feel it is so important that J. C. Penney Co. locate in our town. Paul Ryan will also show a film on the S.S. Rotterdam's cruise to Nassau and Bermuda. This entertainment will follow a roast chicken dinner.

On Sunday at 1:30 p.m., our variety show "Lambing Time" will be repeated. Then at 3 p.m., all the specialty numbers and skits will be rehearsed. After that, we'll take a break, which means everyone must bring their own snack to munch on, and then around 5:30 p.m. everyone in the show must be on hand.

On Thursday about seven people were here at noon. I began to get a little panicky because we had an excellent program planned. It seems that we don't have a big attendance when we don't serve meals. Maybe for the spring vacation we should try a potluck luncheon on Thursday.

YWCA offering varied programs

The Nutmeg Branch of the Hartford Region YWCA will present several programs for the month of March.

Commentary

Straight answers from Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — You don't have to be a "big shot" or a "seasoned observer" to ask President Carter a question and get a substantive answer.

You can be an eighth-grader from West Chester, Pa., or a person far down in the ranking of governmental employees. You may be a tourist who bumps into Carter on the street.

If you ask, you will get an answer. "That's the way he is by nature," White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said this week. "It has meant that reporters must listen carefully whenever Carter speaks, even those times when presidents typically have offered only small talk. Carter himself made this clear when talking to a small group from the White House press corps last week. 'What appears to be an offhand statement because of my demeanor... is really a carefully considered statement,' he said. 'I'm very cautious about what I say. I do not make flippant statements.'"

Carter had been in office less than a week when West Chester junior high school students came to the White House and they gathered in the East Room to ask some questions.

Surprisingly, the questions were tough. "Are you going to cut funds for the B1 bomber and other military expenditures?"

Carter treated the question as seriously as if a top cabinet officer, in answering the lead, the President made fresh disclosures.

He said that before he decides on whether to build the B1, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance would go to Russia and he personally would meet with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev and, "I can see how much they are willing to cut back on their defense capabilities."

Carter gave the same sort of fresh, meaty headline-making answers during the visits to the federal departments that a new president traditionally makes.

In a crowded cafeteria at the Department of Housing and Urban Development, an employee asked about tax credits for home mortgage payments. Carter apparently misunderstood the question, but responded with what may be the heart of his long-promised comprehensive tax reform package later this year.

"Surely," Carter said, "one of those proposals will be a standard credit on your income tax to be paid, and not the standard deductions."

Tax deductions, which are used now, are more valuable to wealthy persons. Tax credits, which are subtracted from the actual taxes owed, are relatively more valuable to poor persons. Carter's remarks were significant.

Members of the West Side Old Timers Committee will meet Sunday at 7 p.m. at Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., to pay respects to the late Horace Bissell, whose brother is a member of committee.

Reservations for the dinner planned by the Manchester Historical Society on March 16 are still being accepted through March 6. The dinner, open to the public, will begin at 6 at Waddell School.

Operation Rice Bowl features potato soup

Those participating in Operation Rice Bowl during Lent will eat a sacrificial meal each Wednesday and the money saved will go to help the world's starving.

The menu for Wednesday is potato soup served with whole wheat bread, either plain or toasted, and a beverage.

Potato Soup
3 tps. margarine
3 chopped onion
3 cups potatoes diced
5 tps. water
2 tsp. salt
dash of pepper
1/3 cup instant mashed potato flakes or grains (or 1/2 cup cooked mashed potato)
1/2 instant non-fat milk powder
Saute onion in margarine until soft. Add potatoes, water, salt and pepper, bring to boil. Lower heat and simmer 20 minutes. Add instant potato and milk powder and heat for 5-10 minutes. Top each serving with paprika. This makes six regular or eight sacrificial servings.

Prayer
Father, help us to know that it is only as we minister to people as individuals that we come close to You. Bless the small gifts that we set aside today, multiply them with other gifts that together we may show Your love to those whose lives are poor. Amen.

Happy family myth

The American family is beset from all sides. Rising divorce rates, more abortions, and fewer children, more women leaving the home to work, declining parental authority and the anchorless sexual mores of our time, the "depersonalizing" effects of modern urban living — these and other phenomena are putting severe strains on the family as an institution and suggest to some that it may be in its last days.

Yet the family may be a stronger and more resilient force than we think. At least, Wellesley College sociologist Mary Jo Bane makes a good case that it is in a new book, the fruit of a research study sponsored by the Carnegie Corporation.

For one thing, she finds that the historical evidence does not support the view that the family's demise is imminent. Indeed, the happy family of days past, as we usually picture it, never really existed.

We never had extended families with helpful grandparents and maiden aunts. The nuclear family — just parents and children — has always been the norm. According to the nation's first census in 1790, the average household had 5.8 people, too small to fit the definition of extended family.

The idea that our communities were more stable in the old days is another illusion, she writes. For example, in Boston between 1840 and 1850 and between 1850 and 1860, only 34 per cent of the population lived there for an entire decade.

Neither did earlier families inhabit warm, small communities. In 1880, 57 per cent of Americans lived on farms or in large cities, environments often called socially isolating. In 1970, two-thirds of us lived in small towns and suburbs, where relationships may be more easily established.

Death rates in the past were almost as high as divorce rates today. The proportion of children affected by what sociologists call "parental disruption" has actually gone down over the last century.

A divorce rate reaching close to 40 per cent of marriages is cause for concern. But because remarriages are running practically neck and neck with divorces, it is not marriage itself but the specific marital partner that is rejected, says Bane. Despite the high rate of family breakups, more children today are living with at least one parent than ever before.

The working mother is another new phenomenon we sometimes view with alarm. Less than 15 per cent of mothers held paying jobs in 1940, but today some 45 per cent do. Yet studies have shown that the difference in the amount of time working and nonworking mothers spend with their children is "surprisingly small."

Rather than threatening the family, many of the recent changes in family life have been positive, or can be positive, Banes argues.

Can't parents with fewer children do better by them? she asks. Can't marriages that endure voluntarily and not because divorce is socially unacceptable or economically infeasible be more satisfying?

Her own answer to these and other questions concerning the future of the American family is summed up in the title of her book: "Here to Stay."

Don't count on House code of ethics

WASHINGTON — Now that our habitually pusillanimous Congress has given itself a salary raise of $12,800 to $37,500 a year by sneaky nonaction, something called the Citizens' Committee for Restoring Public Trust in Government is dreaming.

In a full-page ad in The New York Times, this respectable outfit demands that Congress now enact a strict "Code of Public Conduct" for all three governmental branches — Executive, Legislative and Judicial. Mostly, the proposed code would restrict outside income, end conflicts of interest, and require public disclosure of an official's financial affairs.

It is possible Congress will crack down on the Executive and Judicial branches. Its members enjoy polling other people. But forget about Congress itself going straight. All one need do is examine Congress' record of the past month. It had before it a presidential commission's recommendation for pay raises for its members, certain high-level Executive officials, federal judges, Cabinet members, the Vice President, and the Speaker of the House. Under the law, those increases would become effective barring a negative vote by either the Senate or the House. The Senate had the chops to vote for the raise. Its members at least stood up to be counted. The House leadership took the cowardly way. It simply wouldn't let the membership vote on any of several resolutions which would have excluded Congress from the bandwagon.

Some tried. Give credit where it is due. Members who argued that the House should have the courage to vote on a Congressional pay raise won a 224 to 189 vote that would have required the House to meet an extra day to consider the issue. But Rep. William D. Ford, D-Mich., vowed he would be "here to object to a vote until the cows come home." So the House adjourned for one of its many four-day weekends.

Andrew Tully

At any rate, there were some would-be heroes, led by House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz., and Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala. And Rep. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., asked the Supreme Court to declare unconstitutional the authority by which members of Congress can get a pay hike without voting for it.

Rhodes was particularly impressive. He sought unanimous consent to bring to the floor a resolution blocking the raise. Under House procedure, any member could kill that consent, and Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Calif., promptly did so.

But before Wilson's self-serving move, Rhodes tried to press a little honesty on his colleagues. His motion, he said, "represents the last possible course of action for those of us who believe strongly that Congress has an obligation to go on public record on the subject of our own pay." He noted that a CBS poll showed that 310 House members favored voting on their pay raises, and only nine members were opposed. Regardless of the merits of the pay raise, Rhodes addressed himself to the ethics involved and the issue's effect on the electorate. "We have to have a greater respect for the intelligence of the American people than to believe they will not see through this charade," Rhodes said. "We must have a greater respect for the dignity of this body."

Greater respect needed

Nuts, replied House Speaker Tip O'Neill, that graduate of Massachusetts' machine politics. O'Neill could have forced the Rules Committee to permit a vote because he controls the committee. But he favored the raise and admitted a House vote would kill it. So he sat back on his well-upholstered behind and did nothing.

So that's that. Forget the technicalities. In effect, Congress did indeed give itself a pay raise bigger than the annual wage of the average American. In pressing such charlatans to enact a "Code of Public Conduct," that new committee is asking heaven for the biggest miracle since the loaves and fishes.

"Unstoppable talking head?"

Today's though

By ROBERT WALTERS
WASHINGTON — The brief but revealing exchange came one day last week while White House Press Secretary Jody Powell was holding forth at his regular news briefing, announcing yet another symbolic gesture apparently designed to endear President Carter to the American people.

Powell was in the midst of offering the press details of a memo Carter sent to all Cabinet members proclaiming that he "will hold them personally responsible for reducing the burden" imposed by the growing demands of federal paperwork.

Reader backs referendum

Dear editor:
I am writing this letter in support of the J.C. Penney move to Manchester on which there is going to be a voter referendum March 15, 1977. I feel it is very important for all Manchester residents to go out and vote to reinforce the position that we, indeed, want them in Manchester. J.C. Penney, with their new warehouse, will create many jobs and also pay a substantial amount of money to the town in taxes. Bob Weiss, town manager, tells me the project will pay for itself in five years. The reason for this is that the net cost to the town will be four to five million dollars after the land is sold and the state aid is taken in.

Yesterdays

During this time, approximately $1,000,000 in taxes will be paid to the Town of Manchester annually and, therefore, the cost will be absolutely zero to the town at the end of five years.
Also, during this period, J.C. Penney will not increase Manchester's mill rate. After the initial five years, Manchester will be receiving substantial income from tax dollars generated from this project.
The state has made a tremendous commitment to Manchester and to J.C. Penney in trying to locate it here and it is my feeling that we, as a town, should support this and turn out for this March 15 vote.
Sincerely,
Gregory S. Wolff
71 Shepard Dr.
Manchester

But despite all that casualness, contrived or otherwise, Carter's press secretary is once again proving that the White House generally has such complete control of the flow of information that it can tell the press and public only what it wants them to know.

Full repertoire
Like all of his recent predecessors, Powell has a full repertoire of non-responsive replies to questions the administration doesn't want to answer. Some examples, all offered in the space of less than one hour at a single briefing:

"It would be inappropriate for me to comment on that at this time...I'd suggest that you address that question to the State Department...I really don't have anything to add...I'd hate to inject myself into anything like that...I think the situation is difficult and complex enough without me making it more difficult by commenting upon it."

Ironically, the man in the administration with the loosest tongue may well be Carter himself. During a supposedly routine visit to the Agriculture Department, he blurted out details of his position on diplomatic recognition of Cuba. Answering an employee's question at the Department of Housing and Urban Development, he revealed a previously undisclosed tax reform plan.

Talked freely
On his first trip back to Georgia since his inauguration, Carter sauntered down the streets of his home town of Plains while freely answering reporters' questions on all manner of foreign and domestic issues.

"We're dealing with an unstoppable talking head," grumbled one irreverent reporter who probably personifies a White House press corps famed for its griping — about "secrecy" when not enough information is forthcoming and about being overworked when too much is available.

A technician
First and most important, Powell has shown himself to be a first-rate technician in his role as the President's chief spokesman. That is no easy task because it requires the job-holder to be both totally faithful to the President and his policies while also retaining the confidence and respect of a press corps known best for its highly competitive nature and jaundiced view of the world.

Symbolic gestures
Like Carter, Powell frequently relies on symbolic gestures and actions to endear himself to his constituency, the White House press corps. His briefings are marked by a constant stream of light patter and he freely banters with reporters.

On the day in question, Powell showed up for the briefing jacketless, shirtless rolled up and vest unbuttoned. He chain-smoked throughout the briefing, casually flicking cigarette ashes into a nearby styrofoam cup.

Human rights

The Russians now say sometimes shamefully furiously that Mr. Carter is interfering in their internal affairs, and that he could jeopardize talks on arms control and other aspects of detente. There are serious issues behind this dispute, but to reach them it is first necessary to clear away a good deal of nonsense.

In the first place the Russians have no right in principle to complain if the West gives moral support to their dissidents and calls for the observance of internationally recognized standards, or of agreements which the Russians themselves have signed.

They have a perfect right — of which they make free use — to give financial support to our dissidents, to champion their causes, and to invite them to Soviet embassies abroad or on paid trips to the Soviet Union. Western activity in the other direction is surprisingly and restrained. If the Russians feel that even this display of activity threatens the fabric of their societies they should ask themselves why their societies are so vulnerable.

President Carter is clearly right to enhance the role of human rights in his foreign policy. America's influence in the world depends not only on military and economic strength but also on her power to influence men's minds.

It is possible to accept diversity in political systems while still appealing to universal values by which all societies, including our own, can and should be judged.

Whether Mr. Carter will prove able to make the necessary compromises with the imperfections of a world he cannot control remains to be seen, but so far he has done no harm by putting his aspirations on show. — The London Times

Pistol red hot, hoops 68 points

NEW YORK (UPI) — Imagine how many points Pete Maravich might have scored if he were healthy.

Before the referees humbly put "Pistol Pete's" gun into safety Friday night, the National Basketball Association's leading scorer had talked me into wearing the new one.

"Actually, I didn't feel very well," said Maravich. "I had a new shoe on my left foot and it wasn't very comfortable. But I had a rip in my old shoe and 'Magic Fingers' here talked me into wearing the new one."

Magic Fingers is the nickname Maravich and his teammates have given trainer Don Sparks. "He wanted me to wear the new shoe so I wouldn't sprain my ankle," said Maravich. "If I had had the old one on, I might have fouled out in the first quarter."

Maravich also credited another man on the New Orleans bench, who had once done even better. "I have to give credit to Elgin," said Maravich, referring to Jazz coach Elgin Baylor. Baylor once humiliated the Knicks on their home court with a 71-point shooting, he and Wilt Chamberlain, who seven times scored as many as 68 points, including his famous 100-point game, also against the Knicks, at Hershey, Pa., are the only players to score more than Maravich.

"He rested me at the end of the first quarter and that was the momentum I needed late in the game," Maravich erased Jerry West's 63 points for the highest total in the NBA. Bob McAdoo's 28 points led

Hot dispute mars meet

NEW YORK (UPI) — All the ingredients were there for your typical AAU indoor track and field championships—a spectacular mile victory by Filbert Bayi and a spirited boycott led by Dwight Stones and the Pacific Coast Club.

Bayi, the world 1,500-meter record holder, staged a gutsy last lap surge to overtake Niall O'Shaughnessy at the finish for his third straight AAU mile title. And prior to that, Francis Lambe pulled a perfect indoor season-to-date record by doubling a rare mile-two-mile double in the AAU mile event.

But, as has been the custom at these annual AAU gatherings, it took the Pacific Coast Club and Stones, the world high jump record-holder, to provide the fireworks.

In previous years, the PCC has been known to boycott the nationals because of frequent disputes over travel expenses. Tom Jenkins, PCC president, who now competes unattached, has made most as many headlines with his verbal blarney as he has with his record performances.

So, it was almost anti-climactic when the usual front-running pace was passed up by O'Shaughnessy, who from 218 yards of the Arkansas State track, jumped into the lead, and then came back a half lap to win. It looked like O'Shaughnessy would hold on to the lead, but in the final 100 yards, he was overtaken by a half-stride in 3:59.

"Niall's a very good runner," said Bayi. "I wanted him to take the lead a lot earlier, but he nobody can lead for 11 laps which is why I don't like running indoors." Lambe, meanwhile, completed her unbeaten indoor season by winning the two-mile in 9:58.2 over a long-time rival Jan Merrill and then came back a half hour later to take the mile in 4:43.

Nicklaus in lead after two rounds

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (UPI) — The only person who seems to be worried about Jack Nicklaus' confidence crisis is Nicklaus himself.

I took a step in the right direction toward regaining my confidence today," Nicklaus said Friday after charging to a 66 and a four-shot lead going into today's third round of the Jackie Gleason Inverrary Golf Classic.

"But it isn't where it should be," Nicklaus' two-round total of 126, compared to 120 for Masters champion Raymond Floyd, Jerry McGee and Don Pooley. Floyd had a 68 Thursday. McGee matched Nicklaus' 66 and Pooley carded a 69, his best round in 14 months on the tour.

I know it sounds funny, but my game is nowhere near I want it," said Nicklaus, who is making only his third start of the year. Golf's all-time leading money winner also said he could not explain why he specifically why he plays the par-72, 7,127-yard Inverrary course so well. Nicklaus won here twice when the event was held in conjunction with the Tournament Players Championship, and before charging to a 66 and a four-shot lead going into today's third round of the Jackie Gleason Inverrary Golf Classic.

"Obviously I play the course well," he said. "I enjoy the golf course. It's not the type of course where you can just go out and shoot 65. But again, it is possible to shoot a 65 if you're playing well." "I guess that makes it a pretty good golf course," Gary Fayer, another veteran supervisor who led after the first round with a 68, was still in the chase with a 73-141.

Tom Partner, who won the Los Angeles Open last week shot 74 and missed the cut with 153. Lee Trevino, playing his first event since an everging major back surgery last November, was 72-141. Two-time winner Tom Watson also needed a good round to qualify and came up with a 67-146.

Willimantic faces mutiny by firemen

WILLIMANTIC (UPI) — Vandalism and little response to fire alarms has fire officials worried today their department is in a stage of mutiny.

Public Safety Director John P. Hussey said he issued an order Friday to all firemen to "remin" them they are supposed to be on 24-hour call.

The problems in the department are an apparent reaction to a city order, issued Thursday, calling for wide-ranging changes in work rules.

On Thursday, only nine of the city's 25 firemen showed up to battle a blaze and the city had to call on volunteer fire departments from surrounding towns to help.

A white substance, apparently sugar, was found at the mouth of a fire engine gas tank, police said. Broken glass was found under the wheels of another truck and trash was dumped on the desk of the fire chief.

Hussey called the incidents "very serious."

The firemen's last contract with the city expired Dec. 1, 1974.

Youth accused of burglary

Manchester Police have arrested a 19-year-old Manchester resident in connection with a theft early this morning from the B.D. Pearl Appliance and Furniture Center at 649 Main St.

William F. Shaia, 19, of 801 Main St., has been charged with one count each of third-degree burglary and second-degree larceny, police said.

Off. David Ragonese was patrolling Main St. at about 2:30 a.m. today when he noticed two men standing near Pearl's store with a box, police said.

A short time later, one of the men was seen carrying the box into the apartment building at 801 Main St., according to police.

Off. Ragonese, along with Off. Craig McDonald, went back to the Pearl store and found a portable television set hidden behind bushes near the store.

At 4:55 a.m., Ragonese, McDonald, and Sgt. James Sweeney made the arrest of Shaia, a resident at 801 Main St. building.

Police said that a stereo in the man's apartment was new, and he had no proof of ownership.

Two stereo sets, a new television set, and a used iron and television were found missing from the store. B.D. Pearl, the owner, was contacted, and identified the items as belonging to his store, police said.

The merchandise was returned to Pearl.

Court date for Shaia is March 14.

Suspect arrested for robbing carriers

Manchester Police have made an arrest in connection with the Thursday night robbery of three Hartford Courant delivery boys.

Robert T. Mulcahy, 17, of Rockville, has been charged with second-degree robbery and fourth-degree larceny, police said.

Police said that the three newspaper boys were robbed of a small amount of cash about 7:30 p.m. Thursday. One of the boys was also "roughed up a bit," according to police reports, but he did not require hospitalization. The incident took place in the Garden St. area.

The boys told police that they were stopped by two white teenage males. From the descriptions given and a discussion with one of the boys' mothers, police arrested Mulcahy. A second suspect is still being sought, according to police.

Court date for Mulcahy is March 7. A cash bond of $7,500 was set, but was later reduced to a written promise to appear, police said.

Savings bank robbed

An armed robbery Friday night at the Spencer St. branch of the Savings Bank of Manchester resulted in the theft of an undetermined amount of money.

A man, reportedly armed with a shotgun and wearing a stocking mask, and a woman entered the bank at 244 Spencer St. shortly after 6 p.m. Friday. The bank had just opened for evening hours.

The two left the bank with the money and drove away in a vehicle that was occupied by a second man. The car drove toward East Hartford.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents were called to the scene and arrived around 6:30 p.m.

Guest violinist

Kurt Nikkanen, 11-year-old violinist from West Hartford, is the winner of the recent competition for string players sponsored by the Manchester Civic Orchestra. Dr. Jack Heller, music director, announced that the youth has won the privilege of playing a string concerto with the orchestra on March 6, as well as a $100 cash prize.

Young Nikkanen has studied the violin for eight years, starting as a Suzuki pupil with Elizabeth Koster at Hartt College of Music of the University of Hartford. He has also studied with Ken Sarch at the West Hartford School of Music. He studies at the Sibelius Academy in Helsinki, Finland, during the summer.

Presently, the boy is studying with Roman Totenberg as part of the Young Artists Program at Boston University, where he studies performance and chamber music, and attends master classes.

Nikkanen has played as soloist with the Hartt Youth Orchestra and has performed for various civic groups, churches and recitals.

For the Manchester Civic Orchestra's spring concert, he will play Saint-Saens Third Violin Concerto in B minor. Other works to be performed are Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition," Copland's "Fanfare for the Common Man," and the Prelude to the third act of Wagner's "Lohengrin."

Ask Kleiner

By Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: I read your column every week and I would like to ask a question. Was Barbara Walters ever a Miss America? C.R., Manchester, Conn.

That's like asking if Don Knotts was ever a defensive tackle for the Oakland Raiders. No, Barbara was never a Miss America. Probably not even a Miss Lower Saskatchewan.

DEAR DICK: I have heard a rumor that the singer, David Bowie, died of an overdose two weeks ago. Please set some people straight and tell them if it's true or not. A BOWIE FAN, South Shore, Ky.

Untrue. Bowie is still with us, like it or not.

DEAR DICK: I saw Switch a few weeks ago and in it Robert Wagner had a three-inch deep cut above his left eyebrow with stitches. The following week there was no scar. Please explain. I'm puzzled. MARK ARMAS, Stockton, Ca.

You people just will never learn that TV and movies are make believe, will you? In the first episode, Wagner got knocked in the head with a lamp and wore a bandage. That was a story point. Next week, new show, no scar. They never carry over a story point like that, unless the star really gets hurt, in which case they write in something to explain it.

DEAR DICK: I always read your column as does an old chum. Over coffee the subject came up as to who was Mia Farrow's mother. And how old she is now. Hope you can be of help - I'd hate to lose a coffee buddy. CAROL NEWMAN, Aptos, Calif.

Miss Farrow is the daughter of actress Maureen O'Sullivan and the late director, John Farrow. Miss O'Sullivan is presently 65.

DEAR DICK: I would like to obtain a copy of the theme from Charlie Brown, by Vince Guaraldi. So far, my efforts have been to no avail. Is it printed as piano sheet music, and if so, where could I obtain a copy? K.C., Cordale, Ga.

The people who make the Charlie Brown specials tell me that there is no theme, as such. Guaraldi writes the music for the show, but none of it has been published.

DEAR DICK: What has happened to Western stars Tim Holt and Tim McCoy? What are they doing today? PATRICK BOUSQUET, Simi Valley, Calif.

Holt died in 1973. McCoy, last I heard, was still living but, at 84, the presumption is that he doesn't do much any more.

DEAR DICK: How old is Jaclyn Smith of Charlie's Angels, and is she married? TIM ANTOLOVIC, Wyandotte, Mich.

The beautiful Miss Smith is 29. At the moment, she is single, divorced from actor Roger Davis, who was once on the old Alias Smith and Jones series.

DEAR DICK: Are the actresses Pippa Scott and Jacqueline Scott sisters? One of them played John St. John's girl friend in the TV series, Jigsaw John, but I can't remember which one. J.R., Bakersfield, Ca.

Pippa and Jackie are not related. It was Pippa who was on Jigsaw John. Jackie just finished a big part in the upcoming film, "The Empire of the Ants."

DEAR DICK: About three years ago, I was told that Bob Denver had died when his radio fell in his bathtub. Now someone told me he had just made a movie. Is he or isn't he dead? J.K., Mission, B.C., Can.

He isn't dead.

Politics: The domestic power struggle

Editor's Note: This is the sixth of 16 articles in the series, "Moral Choices in Contemporary Society." These articles, which explore the controversial moral dilemmas that perplex Americans today, were written for Courses by Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

By ROBERT W. TUCKER

Is there any relation between morality and politics? Or is politics the realm of amoral—or worse, immoral—action? These questions are asked with no less persistence, and provoke no less disagreement, today than in the past. They are not easily answered, but they will not go away.

The moral problem in politics responds to the distinctive nature of politics. In its central preoccupation with power, politics is set off from other spheres of human activity. The exercise of power over others—whether it is sought only as an indispensable means toward the achievement of some distant goal or as an end in itself—is the characteristic and distinguishing feature of politics.

Moreover, the instruments by which the power of government is exercised are not limited as is the "politics" of any number of private organizations. When it is aimed at controlling the state, politics seeks to command an institution that asserts the right to exercise a monopoly of coercion—above all, physical coercion—over society.

It is the means characteristic of the pursuit of power that raises the moral issue at its most fundamental level. The primary function of morality in politics may be defined as the acceptance of restraints on the modes of group conflict in societies where, because of a scarcity of goods (wealth, power, status, etc.), men cannot fulfill all of their desires. Thus one definition of morality in politics deals primarily not in terms of the ends men seek (however noble or base) but in terms of the restraints they observe in seeking these ends.

Admittedly, this manner of looking at the moral dimension in politics cannot be reconciled with the revolutionary fervor for whom the ends of politics are everything, or very nearly so. It is at the polar extreme from the view expressed in Lenin's dictum: "Morality is a function of the struggle of the proletariat."

It is instead articulated by James Madison in "The Federalist Papers" (No. 51). "If men were angels," Madison wrote, "no government would be necessary. If angels were to govern men, neither external nor internal controls on government would be necessary. In framing a government which is to be administered by men over men, the great difficulty lies in this: You must first enable the government to control the governed; and in the next place oblige it to control itself."

The first purpose of civil society is not to improve men but to restrain them, and not least of all to restrain the governors themselves.

Politics of restraint

If this view appears to many as too narrow, it is because we commonly overlook the relative novelty of a "politics of restraint." It is, after all, only since the late 17th century that Western societies began to observe that most elementary of restraints in politics, the forbearance from killing or physically mistreating those who have lost out in the struggle for power.

Throughout much of the world today this restraint, the beginning of constitutionalism, is not yet observed with any regularity. Even in Western societies it was fully consolidated only quite recently. American history affords notorious examples of groups—the Indians and the blacks—excluded in practice from a "politics of restraint" when daring to oppose, however peacefully, a status quo they found unbearable.

Once the moral restraints of constitutionalism are accepted, the relation between morality and politics varies greatly in modern societies. The American concern over morality in its domestic political life has always been something of a puzzle to Europeans. But this preoccupation has been with us from the beginning. The Puritan impact on the early development of American political institutions was a heavy one, and the American Revolution was, as the late political scientist Clinton Rossiter has written, "reached from the pulpit." From Cotton Mather to Ralph Nader, moralists quite different forms of corruption in politics. The one, personal gain, is the more readily recognized by the public, and it is the one that codes of ethics adopted for public officials commonly aim to eradicate. The other, aggrandizement of power, is less easily comprehended—as the 1974 impeachment proceedings demonstrated. Yet it is the aggrandizement of power that many political theorists have seen as the supreme danger to a free society.

American pragmatism

We remarked earlier that Europeans have commonly seen Americans as a nation of moralists in politics. There is another side to the American character, though, and it is marked by suspicion of the dogooder in the political arena.

The roots of this suspicion may be traced in part to the prevailing American view of politics, which is clearly pragmatic. In part it may also be traced to the conviction that politics is a special realm, a "lower calling" that attracts only the "second best." While this view is altering today, its force is far from spent, and it has not been eliminated by public acceptance of the need to improve the moral level of political life.

But we remain today, as in the past, quite ambivalent about the proper role of morality in politics. A passion to infuse politics with moral purity is coupled with a certain skepticism about the appropriateness of linking these separate spheres of life. As Americans painfully discovered in the case of Prohibition, efforts to promote morality through governmental action may have the effect of debasing rather than purifying the political process.

Moreover, in their voting behavior, Americans have always evidenced a certain fondness for pragmatists as political leaders. Given their idealistic tradition, Americans still tend to respond positively to a political leader who summons them to embark on a great crusade. Politics is, after all, still something of a morality play in the United States.

But the people are only likely to follow such a leader with their votes if—like Franklin D. Roosevelt or Dwight D. Eisenhower—the crusader is perceived as having practical skill and judgment.

The views expressed in Courses by Newspaper are those of the authors only and do not necessarily reflect those of the University of California, the National Endowment for the Humanities, or of the participating newspapers and colleges.

Issues from Dominica feature seashells

By RUSS MacKENDRICK

Slowly now — these are seashell stamps from the island of Dominica. (Say it like Domineeka, Johnny, and no, it is not the same as the Dominican Republic. That is a nation that shares a border with Haiti).

Stamps and coins

Little Domineeka, down in the Lesser Antilles near Guadeloupe, has only 290 square miles and some 70,000 people. Four thousand of them are the last survivors of the Carib tribe that once ruled the roost and gave their name to the Caribbean Sea.

Shells like these, or the beasties that wore them, are used for food, musical instruments, tools, currency, artwork and dyestuffs.

The one-cent stamp shows a Flame Helmet — "Cassia flammea," which is a five-inch heavy shell with two different-colored layers that can be carved to make a cameo. A similar one that had an elaborate depiction of Phoebus, God of the Sun, in a chariot, was presented to the American Museum of Natural History by J.P. Morgan. It was sculptured in Italy — a copy of Guido Reni's painting, "Aurora."

The 40-cent stamp shows one of the most highly prized of all univalves. It is the famous West Indian Fighting Conch. I don't know what it fights, but it is always spoken of as "famous."

The three-dollar stamp has an Apple Murex that can be used to make red and blue dyes. Something like this produced the Tyrian purple of antiquity.

You can find the addresses of many seashell stamp collectors in the American Topical Association Directory. The ATA publishes two handbooks on these stamps, and if you have some years-back Topical Time magazines, they are written up in Nos. 112 and 113.

Dominica, along with seven other places in the area, put out a nice four-dollar copper-nickel coin in 1970. One side says "Inauguration of the Caribbean Development Bank" and the other, "Grow More Food for Mankind."

Stamps by machine

The straight stuff from the USPS is that a new vending machine booklet will be ready for the opening of the NYC INTERPEX '77 on March 11. It will have seven flag-and-capitol-design 13-cent stamps and one nine-cent stamp, adding up to an even dollar.

The nine center will be an improved color combo for the present ghastly green-on-gray Scott No. 1591. (A canny observer suggests hanging onto a stash of the new nines as there won't be all that many).

Real first-day cancellations may be obtained by going down there and standing in line. (Or perhaps get them from T.J. in the local stamp club).

Linn's for Feb. 21 tells, at length, how to procure an after-the-fact FDC. It will look the same but you will always have a funny feeling about it.

FRESPEX promoted

Every page or so of that same Linn's seems to have a plug for the FRESPEX '77 — the annual exhibition and bourse of the Fresno Philatelic Society, March 5 and 6. They will salute the 70th anniversary of the Scouting movement with a ribbon-cutting ceremony (by Scouts) and a USPS special cancellation on souvenir covers.

They will show Mafeking Siege issue stamps. That is where it all started: Col. Baden-Powell outfitted some kids during the Boer war and called them the Mafeking Messenger Corps. Years later the idea grew into scouting as we know it.

Also at this FRESPEX, the apostal History Society will show Disinfection Seals. "Letters from the plague-infested Near East transmitted via overland routes to Venice passed through the lazaretto in Semlin." There the letters were opened, "disinfected," somehow, then resealed with wax. The exhibit will have the earliest known dated one: Aleppo to Venice, Oct. 28, 1735 "SIBIL: CONSIL SANITAS" (Seal of the Health Authority) encircling the two-headed coat of arms of Austria-Hungary. Yuk.

Coin club to meet

The Central Connecticut Coin Club will meet at the KofC Hall, 138 Main St., Manchester, Tuesday, March 1, at 7:30 p.m.

Will the farmers get a channel?

By INK DIPPER

Old McDonald, the farmer in the song, had a pig, a cow and a barnyard full of other things that made noise. His modern counterpart may have all those animals, but he's got one other item that makes noise — his CB radio.

CBs have become important tools for many farmers. They can contact their homes, the local fuel distributors or a tractor driver plowing up the South 40.

Farmers in three states are now trying to drum up support for a CB channel just for farmers and agricultural businesses. The concept of a reserved channel isn't new to CBing. Channel 9 is the official emergency channel and Channel 19 is the unofficial channel for truckers and motorists. The farmers would like Channel 8 for their own.

Farm organizations and agricultural extension workers in Illinois, Iowa and Louisiana have proposed setting aside Channel 8 as an agricultural channel. Beside the convenience of having his own channel, the farmer would also be a little safer. He would know that all of his CBing neighbors were listening to the channel and he could call them in an emergency.

Dale Hall, on the staff of the Iowa State University extension department, tells the story of one farmer who had a chemical accident and probably saved his eyesight by using his CB radio.

"The man let anhydrous ammonia (a fertilizer) get into his eyes when a line ruptured. He was alone in a field and blinded to the point that he couldn't drive. He needed prompt medical attention.

"Luckily he had a CB radio in his pickup truck, and he called his wife at their home. She rushed him to a doctor," says Hall, who has headed the farmer's channel campaign in Iowa.

Hall and extension workers in Illinois and Louisiana have asked CBers for reaction to the idea, and a common fear expressed by some CBers is that farmers using Channel 8 would interfere with emergency transmissions on Channel 9. A CB radio can sometimes interfere with nearby radios on adjoining channels by "bleeding over" part of the signal to the other channels.

Hall and others maintain that most farmers operate their CBs away from major highways and towns where most Channel 9 monitoring stations are located.

A consideration for the farm channel supporters is whether to have Channel 8 declared an official reserved channel or try to make it an unofficial farmers' channel by common use, just as Channel 19 has become the traditional highway frequency. The Federal Communications Commission could set aside Channel 8 for farmers, just as it allocated Channel 9 for emergency use.

FCC approval of an agricultural channel might mean penalties against any city folks who used it. Whether the FCC would go for the idea depends a great deal on how much interest the farmers can attract.

Quality Features:
- Non-Stick Finish: The (hard-to-clean) enamel makes the most of heat distribution and low-heat cooking helps retain natural food flavors.
- Vapor-Seal Rim: Specially designed rims allow cooking vapors to form an invisible seal between pan and cover.
- Self-Heating Covers: snug fit seals in nutrition and flavor. Vapors condense at the center of the cover and drop directly into the food, heating them in natural juices.
- White Teflon II for Easy Cleaning: No sticking, no scrubbing, makes clean-up a breeze.
- Vapor-Seal Rim: Sandwiched between two layers of stainless steel is a special inner layer that spreads heat fast... not only across the bottom but up the sides. It wraps everything in even heat.
- Cool-Touch Handles: Handles and knobs are specifically made to remain cool to the touch during cooking. One-piece construction is ovenproof to 375°.

Stack or hang versatility.
The most convenient cookware ever. Covers invert and nest in the pan for easy storage in a cabinet or on a shelf. Handles have holes for easy wall-rack storage.

Please Note:
The 1-quart covered saucepan available this week only, Feb. 27 thru March 5 with any food purchase of $5 or more. All other items limited only on weeks specified. 1 with each $5 food purchase, 2 with each $10 food purchase, 3 with each $15 food purchase and so on.
