All of us are looking for love, but ask for it in different ways.

By Frank Atwood

A trip to South Africa, halfway round the world, is in the future plans of Wayne and Karen Goetz. They want to see the country where their favorite plants, the "living stones" or Lithops, grow wild in sandy desert areas.

It will be necessary to wait, they are sure, until the racial conflict in that country is resolved so they will not find themselves involved in a war, but they hope that day will soon come and are saving their money for what is bound to be a costly trip. In the meantime, they have 11 kinds of Lithops growing in small, carefully labeled pots in their home on Barbara Rd. in Vernon. From the books they have read, they know there are a few more varieties not in their collection and they have applied to the U.S. Department of Agriculture for a permit to import

The plants they have now were surchased from a grower in the American Southwest and they have not found a plant center or greenhouse that can supply the plants in this area. Lithops do not thrive in the usual greenhouse atmosphere because it is too humid. They are lesert plants and can store all the water then need for long periods.

The plants shown in our picture have been given no water all winter but as summer approaches they will be watered sparingly. Only rain water will be used. In late summer or early fall some of them, or perhaps many, will bloom. One of them plossomed last year, sending up a bright, daisy-like flower on a short Have no leaves

The Lithops have no leaves. Light penetrates to the interior of the plant through "windows," or translucent areas of a slightly different color tone and the light reaches cells within the plant that contain chlorophyll, enabling the plant to make new growth.

Each of the pebble-like "heads" divided by a cleft and as the plant grows, the cleft widens and new small "heads" appear in the center The outer skin of the old "head" shrivels, dries and falls away. The plant then may have two, three or more "heads," and become a

From the same cleft, when the plant is ready to blossom, comes the stem and then the flower. At this time the plants are vulnerable to animals which may eat the blossoms or the entire plant. Without the blossoms, the plants, looking like the pebbles among which they grow, are camouflaged and hard to see.

The PZC also denied the application by Wilfred Chicoine for a zone change from residential to ousiness on an acre at 351 Silver Lane. The PZC tabled the request by Alvin R. An unusual family

Thirteen-year-old Lee Schiavetti of Bolton shows off unique family of lambs, now just about two weeks old. The mother sheep, "Belle" (not in photo), gave birth to the triplets last month, a rare occasion. But it was Belle's and Duke's (the father's) second set of triplets. BIII Butler 872-9145

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old man who is in Rutland, Vt., doing 30 years to life for second degree murder. I killed a 15-year-old girl. No reason. I just went off my rocker. Now the problem: I read in your column that a lot of people need kidneys. I know that kidneys have been trans ple need kidneys. I know that kidneys have been trans-planted successfully, and I want you to put me in touch with someone who needs one so I can donate one of mine. I don't mean after I'm dead. I mean right now. I know a person can live with only one kidney so if I could give one of mine now maybe I could sleep better.

I realize I can't bring back that poor little girl whose life

I took, but I could give some other person life. It won't bal-ance the scales, but it would give some meaning to my life. which is practically useless now. This letter was not written in haste. I've thought about it for a long time. I'm not very religious, but God knows this is a sincere request. Can you help me get it granted, Abby?

GEORGE H. DEAR GEORGE: I don't know the laws covering such a donation, but if you're sincere (and I believe you are) tell the chaplain of the correctional institution what you've told me, and he will advise you. God bless.

DEAR ABBY: A friend has asked me to play "Dear Abby" and mediate a fuss between her and her husband, and I honestly don't know what to tell her. It seems that her husband is bugged because she is always doing knitting, needlepoint or some kind of handiwork when they're watching TV or just visiting. He says she has all day to do whatever she wants, and when he comes home, she should give him her undivided at-tention. He wants her to look at him while they're convers-

She says she can hear every word he says, and she DOES look at him almost constantly, so he has no legitimate beef.

I can see his point, Abby, but I can also see hers, Do you think he has the right to ask her to quit doing needlework in his face? And should she - just to please him

DEAR IN: He hasn't the right to ask her to quit. Handi work for many (men as well as women) is therapeutic. It's relaxing and relieves tension. Tell her I said she should

DEAR ABBY: I have a small but annoying problem I need help with. It seems that whenever I telephone a friend I haven't spoken to for some time, his or her first words are omething like, "Well, I don't believe I am actually hearing from you," or, "My goodness, I thought you'd dropped off the edge of the earth, etc..." (I'm sure you get the idea. It irks me to be put down with such a negative reception, when I have finally taken the initiative and called someone, as though it were MY obligation to do so.

It's the same kind of guilt some elderly folks or shut-ins y on those who haven't been around to see them for a while. In other words, how does one cope with people who make you feel guilty?

DEAR IRKED: No one can make you feel "guilty" unless you've earned the guilt. (Irritated, put down and even out-raged perhaps, but not guilty.) There's no way to prevent others from needling you. Develop a tougher hide.
