

Church marks 110th year

By BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter
The first building of the Talcoville Congregational Church was dedicated just two years after the close of the Civil War.

Construction on the first church, at the site of the present church, on the corner of Elm Hill Rd. and Main St. in Talcoville, was started April 9, 1866.

The Rev. George A. Oviatt was installed as the first pastor of the new church. This building was used until 1868 when it was destroyed by fire. For about six years after the fire, services were conducted in a makeshift chapel in a hall over the general store.

Construction on the new building was started in June 1872 and it was dedicated one year later. The Rev. Francis Bachelor was installed as pastor of Talcoville Church from 1848 to 1850 when he was succeeded by the Rev. W. W. Wadsworth.

To find God's will

How do we find God's will for our lives? First of all, let us be humble about our "findings" lest we blind ourselves else to the reality that God has already found.

Waiting on the Lord

I believe that God has a plan for every person, and that it is possible to read the Bible which contains the Word of God.

Manchester police report

Police reported that Samuel Turkington of 127 Henry St. was assaulted shortly before noon Friday while walking to the Eighth Utilities District firehouse.
 According to police, Turkington was taking a short cut from the N. Main St. shopping center along the railroad tracks to the firehouse. While at the rear of the shopping center, Turkington reportedly heard someone calling to him.
 Police said Turkington walked toward where the voices came from and was hit from behind and knocked out. He awoke when the noon whistle sounded, police said.
 Turkington said he did not see anyone, and did not recognize the voices.
 Police said Turkington had a bloody nose and that his right eye looked like it had been hit. Police checked the track area where the incident occurred, but said they found nothing. Turkington refused hospitalization.
 An Oak St. residence was broken into Friday sometime between 4:30 and 9:45 p.m. The owner found everything ransacked but didn't notice anything missing, police said.

There were no signs of forced entry, police said.
 A residence on Conway St. was broken into according to police. The property was entered by breaking a windowpane in the door, police said. Bureau drawers and kitchen cabinets were left open, but it is not known if anything is missing, police said.
 Police reported a forced entry to property on Russell St. Contents from a strongbox had been emptied on a bed, but the victim did not notice anything missing, police said.
 Police also reported one of three custom-made garbage cans missing from property on Judith Dr. on Friday, and early this morning a broken window at a florist shop on Birch St.
 A grass fire in the Farm Dr. area about 7 p.m. on Friday was extinguished quickly by the Town of Manchester Fire Department. Deputy Fire Chief Griffin said he felt the fire was set as the area is a frequent gathering place for youths living in the neighborhood, according to police. It was the second fire reported in the area within two hours.

About town

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Burgess will serve as host and hostess Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. at Lutz Junior Museum, which is open to the public free of charge.

 A devotional service and fellowship is scheduled for Monday at 1:45 p.m. in Herrmann Hall of Westhill Gardens. The Rev. Kenneth Gustafson, pastor of Calvary Church, will speak. Joseph Moriconi will lead a hymning. Refreshments will be served. All residents of Westhill Gardens are invited.
 Loyal Circle of King's Daughters will meet Tuesday at 7:45 p.m. in the Federation Room of Center Congregational Church.
 Reservations for Manchester Lodge of Masons annual dinner-dance March 19 at Mama Mia's Restaurant, Tolland Tpke., close Monday evening and may be made with Bob Silva, 643-9068. The event is open to members and friends.

CB message leads to arrest

A driver who says she was nearly forced off the road by another car used her CB radio to contact police who investigated and charged a Rocky Hill man with driving while under the influence of alcohol.
 The driver contacted Manchester React which in turn notified police of the incident.
 Ernest Verdone Jr., 34, of 1800 Silas Deane Highway, Rocky Hill, was charged and is scheduled to appear in court at East Hartford March 29.
 In an unrelated case, Jeffrey Bantley, 32, of 370 Main St. was also charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol. Court date in East Hartford is March 29.

State GOP schedules bi-weekly luncheons

The Republican State Central Committee has scheduled a series of bi-weekly luncheons beginning next Tuesday at Hartford's Holiday Inn.

Man accused of gambling

EAST HARTFORD (UPI) — A restaurant owner has been arrested on multiple charges of professional gambling. Police said they based the charges on evidence gathered from court approved wiretaps.
 William F. Grant, 34, of East Hartford was charged with three counts of professional gambling, three counts of using a telephone to transmit illegal gambling information and one count of conspiracy to violate the state's antigambling laws, police said.
 Grant is the owner of a chain of fast food restaurants, one of which is Augie and Ray's on Silver Lane.

Several support MCC appeal

Several persons appeared at a public hearing of the Joint Education Committee of the General Assembly Thursday speaking in favor of authorizing $18 million for a permanent campus for Manchester Community College.
 Six of the speakers were designated representatives of the college, two were local legislators and others went to the hearing on their own.
 The college has been operating in temporary facilities for the past seven years and has been turning away up to 1,500 students each year. The college has a full-time enrollment of about 7,000 students.
 In addition to the bonding request, the several speakers indicated support for improved facilities and adequate operating budgets relating to the college's accreditation. MCC received only a two-year accreditation, instead of the normal five years, last spring from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges because of the state's inaction in providing funds.
 Speakers included State Sen. David Barry (D-4) and State Rep. Francis Mahoney (D-13), James F. Cary, director of the State Real Estate Commission and a member of MCC's Regional Council.
 The six representatives from the college and community included Ronald H. Denison, college president; Gloria DeFillipo, president of the MCC student senate; Arthur G. Girouard, member of the regional council; John Alberghini, professor of physics; and Matthew Moriarty, mayor of Manchester. Also speaking with the six was Scott Gray representing Robert Charnas, president of radio station WINF. Gray presented a petition with 3,500 names of persons in the area who support the budget requests.
 E. Steve Pearl, president of the Connecticut Taxpayers Association and a Manchester resident, surprised the legislators with a request that they spend money on the project.
 James Nakos, chairman of the regional council, was also among the speakers.

 Dr. Denison said Friday he has no indication of the possible success of the bonding request, but is "hopeful."

Two arrested for violations of home solicitations act

The Economic Crime Unit of the chief state attorney's office announced Friday the arrest of Don Bynum 30, of Orlando, Fla. and Sheron Wades, of Washington, D. C. Both were charged with violation of Connecticut's home solicitations sales act.
 Bynum and Wades represented Educational Publishers Service, Inc. and were members of a sales team of 50 who were selling magazines in the Hartford County area.
 Both were released on $250 bonds and their cases were continued to March 23 for appearance in Court of Common Pleas 13, Windsor.
 Bynum is a director of Educational Publishers Service, Inc. The corporation is located in Orlando. He allegedly headed a team of some 50 youths who were peddling magazine subscriptions throughout the Greater Hartford area.

 According to the affidavit, the youths were instructed not to give the buyer written notice of the right to cancel the subscription within 72 hours. This is required by Connecticut law.
 According to the complainant, the salesman stated that savings of 40 to 60 per cent could be realized by purchasing magazines through the Educational Publishers Service compared to buying single issues at the regular retail price.
 The complainant paid a total of $24 for 21 issues of a magazine which could have been bought on the news stand, a single issue at a time, for $21.

Forum of the arts

Help with dialect

While preparing to start rehearsals for Manchester Gilbert & Sullivan Workshop's spring production of "Brigadoon," the director, Sarah Ketter, discovered that there was a difference of opinion on what Scottish dialect would sound authentic and still be intelligible to the audience.

Research was done and a part of Scotland was designated as the likely location of the imaginary Scot town of Brigadoon.

Through the efforts of some of the cast members, an Andover resident was located who was willing and able to teach the proper inflections to those with speaking parts in the play.

During the early rehearsals of the play, Beth Campbell has been coaching all the principals in their dialogue sessions. She played the role of Meg Brockie in the same show presented by the Podium Players several years ago.

Beth came to this country about 15 years ago from Kirkintilloch, which is near Glasgow. Carrying on native tradition, her son, Lachlan, 19, plays the bagpipes and was the youngest member of the Manchester Pipe Band when he joined the group.

When the family returned to Scotland a few years ago for a visit, Lachlan was invited to play in the BP Band sponsored by British Petroleum Corp. in Grangemouth, Scotland.

Beth is a trained bookbinder. She completed her high school equivalency requirements recently and expects to receive not only her diploma, but also her U.S. citizenship this year. She also has three daughters.

"Brigadoon" will be presented April 21, 22 and 23 at Manchester High School auditorium.

Exhibit at bank

Doris Baumann of East Hartford will exhibit a selection of her paintings in the main office of First Federal Savings, 1137 Main St., East Hartford, through March 23.

She is a well known New England oil artist. Her favorite subjects are rustic Connecticut, countryside landscapes and Maine seascapes.

Mrs. Baumann spends her summers on the Maine coast. Many of her works are shown there.

She is a member of the East Hartford Art League and the Glastonbury Art Guild.

At the Bushnell

A travelogue tracing the colorful history of Hawaii through the migration of settlers up to today's modern society will be shown at Bushnell Memorial Hall, Hartford tonight, at 8 and Sunday at 2 and 5 p.m.

Wednesday, the Young People's Concert is scheduled for two performances at 9:40 and 11:10 a.m. The program is sponsored by the Hartford Symphony Orchestra for area students. For information, call 278-1450.

March 19 at 8 p.m., the Connecticut Opera Association presents Verdi's "Othello" conducted by Anton Guadagno and featuring Peter Glossop, Gilbert Py and Theresa Zylis-Gara.

March 20 at 8 p.m., the Stars of the New York City Ballet features Patricia McBride and Jean-Pierre Bonnefous and company.

For reservations, call 246-6807.

At the Civic Center

Coming events at the Hartford Civic Center include:

- Tonight and Sunday, Aetna World Cup Tennis Tournament.

- Tuesday through March 20, Connecticut Home Show.

- March 18, Whalers vs. Calgary, 7:30 p.m.

- March 25, Fleetwood Mac in concert, 8 p.m.

At the Atheneum

The Wadsworth Atheneum in Hartford is reviving its cinema schedule with a presentation of "Cousin Cousine," a French film with English subtitles. The current production will continue through March. It is the longest running film in the Atheneum's history, having opened there in January. For information, call Michael Nozik at the Atheneum.

Kenya set looks a little fishy

By RUSS MACKENDRICK

Here are some lively game fish from the Republic of Kenya. (Or, officially, in Swahili, from "Jamhuri ya Kenya").

To satisfy everybody, each fish is named three ways. The 50-cent stamps shows a Nile perch, also called mbota, and biologically, Perca nilotica. This and the next one, the tilapia, are fresh-water fish found in Lake Rudolph. The tilapia, a table delicacy, is locally a ngege, and in Latin, Tilapia nilotica.

The next two come from the Indian Ocean: The sailfish, or sulisuli (forget the Latin on this one!), and finally the black marlin, nduero, or Markaira indica.

This set, "The Game Fish of East Africa" also has a souvenir sheet with all the stamps plus a picture of a sport fishing vessel and the sea floor.

Kenya, named for its Mt. Kenya (the Mountain of Whiteness), is slightly smaller than Texas and has some 13,000,000 people of various races. It straddles the equator but its mile-high capital of Nairobi has an average temperature of only 45 to 80 degrees.

Nairobi is the safari center of the world. More than 400,000 tourists a year come to Kenya and probably most of them pass through this place. No mud huts — it is a modern cosmopolitan city of 600,000, and still is "within a lion's roar" of a national park where this animal and giraffes, wildebeest, impala, zebras and other large fauna roam free.

Another of their many nature preserves and sanctuaries, the Tsavo National Park, covers 8,000 square miles. (Twice the size of Connecticut). It is known as an elephant stronghold, and is also the home of black rhinos, lions, leopards, cheetah, Cape buffalo, hippos and whatever other creature that cares to give it a try.

Of all these, the buffalo is the most dangerous to man. They lurk around waterholes just looking for trouble. A full-grown bull is a match for anything in the jungle. (To see one on a stamp — Scott No. 26, issued 1966-9).

Nairobi has its safaris, but fishing parties set out from either Mombasa, an important seaport of 300,000 people, or Malindi, famous for its beach with three miles of white sand. Or perhaps from Lamu of which they say "Sinbad the Sailor slept here."

One can hire a boat and crew to go out for the sailfish or marlin, and also tunny, kingfish, bonita, dolphins and wahoo. (This last is just another fish and not an exultation).

Calendar of events

No Second Sunday Stamp Show at Meriden this month — they had it on the first Sunday.

There will be a Philatelic Literature Fair and Stamp Bourse at the Cardinal Spellman Museum, Weston, Mass., March 19 and 20.

MIDPEX '77 at the Sons of Italy Hall, 74 Church St., Middletown, on March 20th.

April 23 and 24 will be the dates for this year's MANPEX. The goal is set for 200 frames of exhibits. Chairman Jerry Caron invites all collectors to have a whirl at it. No restrictions as to subject. For details: Gerard A. Caron, P.O. Box 31, South Windsor, 06074.

Moral Choices 8: Law and morality

Editor's Note: This is the eighth of 16 articles in the series, "Moral Choices in Contemporary Society." These articles, which explore the controversial moral dilemmas that perplex Americans today, were written for Courses by Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. By LON L. FULLER

Law and morality, to varying degrees, regulate human interaction in society, sometimes reinforcing one another, at other times imposing contradictory obligations. But there are also many laws that have little to do with the larger issues of moral conduct — with securing justice, equality, or such other forms of "good" as may be deemed desirable. These laws are, rather, pragmatic regulations for facilitating or making possible orderly relations between people. Still other decisions affecting the conduct of society are not guided even by these pragmatic regulations. Such decisions cannot be reached through the application of impersonal, objective rules; indeed, the basis for them cannot be found in either law or morality, and yet they are binding on the individuals concerned.

To understand these issues, I suggest we examine some of the actual operations of a legal order and the ways in which legal rules and processes are employed to shape and control human behavior.

The rule of the road

I should like to begin with a body of laws regulating vehicular traffic and known as "the rule of the road." Over most of the world the rule is that you pass the oncoming vehicle on the right and overtake on the left the vehicle moving ahead of you. A minority of countries, including Great Britain, have an opposite rule — you pass on the left and overtake on the right. Though the rule is now practically everywhere embodied in written statutes, it took its origin in unwritten customary practice, which helps to explain how there came to be two rules, each serving the same function within its own territory. "The rule of the road" would seem to present little in the way of tensions between law and morality. The man with consideration for others and an ardent desire not to do harm to them will as a driver follow the rule of the road. If he is morally indifferent to the fate of others, he will nevertheless be likely to observe the rule of the road, not only to avoid being brought into court, but to save his own skin. There are problems however. Even in ordinary traffic, rules of the road depend upon a sense of responsibility toward the other fellow and some perception of the problems he faces. The law of traffic is thus not merely punitive; it is essentially facilitative. It lets the driver know, with some assurance, what he can expect, not only from the traffic officer, but from other drivers as well. This matter of knowing what to expect is basic in any functioning legal order. In his book "The Law of Primitive Man," Adamson Hoebel writes that a visitor to the Musk Ox Eskimos in Canada learned that all 15 adult males in the community in the early 1920s had been either a principal or an accessory in a murder. Hoebel reports: For each of them "the motive was invariably some quarrel about a woman." In part, the Eskimo difficulties are enhanced by the lack of marriage and divorce rituals which might demarcate the beginning and the end of a marital relationship. Marriage is entered into merely by bedding down with the intention of living together; divorce is effected simply by not living together any more. There may be a certain irony in comparing a marriage ceremony with a highway stop sign, but the analogy is not

If, after discussing with the husband and wife their conceptions of the problems that have caused their marriage to fail, the judge grants a divorce, this does not mean that the standards that have guided him to that conclusion can properly be categorized as either "moral" or "legal." Neither party may have acted immorally or illegally, but their divergent dispositions may have made a successful marriage impossible.

Relaxing the rules

In our complex and densely populated societies there are many decisions that have caused their marriage to fail, the judge grants a divorce, this does not mean that the standards that have guided him to that conclusion can properly be categorized as either "moral" or "legal." Neither party may have acted immorally or illegally, but their divergent dispositions may have made a successful marriage impossible.

Regulations of this sort can often be relaxed on a showing of a special need to make an exception in the case at hand. The request for a relaxation of a particular restriction will be brought before an administrative agency, which in deciding whether to grant the relaxation will proceed in a manner much like that of a court of law. But what may be lacking is the guidance of formal rules stating with some precision under what conditions the normal restraints may be lifted. On what basis, then, is an exception to the regulatory law to be granted? The householder may have an expensive radio and may ask to be given the privilege of extending his antenna to a height above that normally allowed. He may rest his request on any number of claims tending to establish that his situation is a special one: He is working on an invention affecting radio transmission that requires a higher antenna, he is a physician who wants to give advice to patients who have radio sets, but no telephones, since they live in a somewhat distant mountain range.

Who goes to jail? Let me conclude with another hypothetical case that may not be readily decided either by rules of law or familiar principles of morality. Two men, strangers to one another, are charged with committing identical crimes. Both admit their guilt. It happens that the only available prison is so packed with convicts that there is only a single cell with room for one more. The judge cannot send both men to prison; which one shall be sentenced? It would hardly be befitting for the judge to suggest that the convicted men throw dice to see which one of the two goes in and who stays out. Suppose that one of the convicted parties has over the years been convicted of 10 different crimes and served a term of imprisonment for each. The result is that jail has become for him almost like a home and he has no special dread of serving another term. The other man has never before been convicted of a crime and serving a term in jail might or might not put an end to his incipient criminal tendencies. The judge cannot send both men to jail; which one shall be sentenced?
