HARTFORD — A change in the state's school aid formula to give more money to poorer towns has been approved by a legislative committee. The Education Committee, by a 22-1 margin, Friday voted to overhaul the Guaranteed Tax Base formula enacted two years ago with the aim of equalizing the ability of towns to finance local schools.

HARTFORD — Environmentalists have gained the necessary signatures to bring a plan to ban throwaway bottles in Connecticut to a vote in the Senate. Because the Senate Environment Committee members refused to approve the bill, it could only go to the Senate floor if 19 to the 36 senators signed a petition. Sen. Wayne Baker, D-Danbury, became the 19th signatory Friday.

HARTFORD — A legislative committee has endorsed by one vote a proposal to give teachers the a limited right to strike, but it faces an uncertain future in the full House.

NEW HAVEN — Yale University's tuition increases, imposed under the institution's closed budgetary process, have brought protests from students who want evidence the hikes are necessary. Yale tuition, room and board will rise to $6,950 for the next academic year.

HARTFORD — The state and its 1,250 corrections department employees Friday reached a tentative agreement on a new contract giving each of the workers an immediate $1,100 raise and increasing their work week an hour and fifteen minutes.

LITCHFIELD — A Superior Court jury heard testimony Friday in a $1 million suit brought by Winston Frederick Churchill Guest, New York socialite and cousin of the late Sir Winston Churchill, against the estate of former Russian Prince George Scherbatoff of Sharon. Guest alleges the money is owed him under contracts he had with the prince.

BOSTON — Massachusetts Gov. Michael S. Dukakis said Friday he will not seek an advisory opinion from the state Supreme Court on whether Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket can retain their House seats under a pending redistricting plan. It is the loss of those seats that had led to the threat of secession by the two resort areas.

CONCORD, N.H. — A bill making the ladybug New Hampshire's state insect has been signed into law by Gov. Meldrim Thomson. Concord's Broken Ground School students plan to ask New Hampshire's congressional delegation to move to make the ladybug the national insect.

BOSTON — The United States government has officially accused the captain of a Soviet fishing boat with breaching the 200-mile fishing limit law and is seeking to confiscate his ship and its cargo of 397-tons of fish.

SAN FRANCISCO — Sara Jane Moore, 47, serving a life sentence for shooting at former President Gerald Ford in 1975, has asked the federal court to dismiss her guilty plea and grant her a trial.

LOS ANGELES — Film director Roman Polanski pleads innocent to the rape of a 13-year-old girl, saying he "cannot wait to be vindicated."

CHICAGO — The national PTA announces a campaign to pressure television networks to reduce the number of violent programs and improve quality.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — The FBI says the "Mormon Will" is a fake — and a poor job at that. But Melvin Dummer is sticking to his strange story of how he came to deliver the alleged will of billionaire Howard Hughes to the church headquarters in Salt Lake City.

WASHINGTON — The anti-jacking accord between Cuba and the United States has expired, but the U.S. believes existing security precautions will deter any would-be terrorists.

KINSHASA, Zaire — Zairean troops clash with insurgents on two battlefronts in the southern Shaba province, breaking a three-week lull in the fighting in the mineral-rich region.

Carter to unfold new energy plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter passed up a weekend with his family at Camp David to wrap up his comprehensive energy policy and deliver the good or bad news involving some 30 water projects on his "hit list."

Carter planned a nationally televised address at 8 p.m. EST Monday to spell out America's energy problems and the need for tough measures to meet them.

He was expected to disclose some of the "disturbing" facts from recent CIA analyses of world oil, and natural gas reserves — no longer "as great as we thought they were."

That address will be followed by another — also televised — Wednesday night before a joint session of Congress on his energy program that's expected to include a graduated gasoline tax increase plus a levy on "gas guzzling" cars among other things.

The President also began telephoning his final decisions to scrap or save some of 30 water projects under study to lawmakers of the affected areas.

Carter told reporters at a news conference Friday he hopes to meet later this year with Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev in the United States to "get acquainted."

He said he didn't want to be under any pressure to reach "dramatic agreements" when they meet — from time to time, he hoped — because it would be "counterproductive." Under those circumstances, Carter said, "I might be inclined to trade away" some things for an agreement.

Carter announced his anti-inflation program at the news conference emphasizing voluntary restraints by government, business and labor, and saying there are "no magic solutions."

He said his goal is to cut 2 per cent from the 8 per cent average inflation rate by 1979 and believes while "government itself can't do it. We can take the lead."

On other topics, Carter said:

- If Congress passes the Republican-sponsored permanent tax cut, he will veto it.
- The new farm bill is "adequate to maintain farmers' income at a break-even point on individual crops. I have never wanted to guarantee farmers a profit."
- He will pursue an international sugar marketing agreement.
- He does not plan to change his two main strategic arms proposals to the Soviet leadership. He said the Soviets prefer a ratification of the Vladivostok agreement while his proposal provides for more drastic reductions in the nuclear arsenals of both sides.

Official pessimistic about Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — British Foreign Secretary David Owen says the United States is a joint partner in the search for majority rule in Rhodesia but warns the chances of success are small.

"I come here with proposals worked out jointly by the United States and myself to listen...to try to reach a consensus," Owen said arriving in Salisbury Friday from Lusaka, Zambia. He planned to meet today with Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith to discuss whether to hold a constitutional conference for possible majority rule in Rhodesia in 1978.

Rhodesia, with 6.1 million blacks, currently is ruled by the country's 275,000 whites.

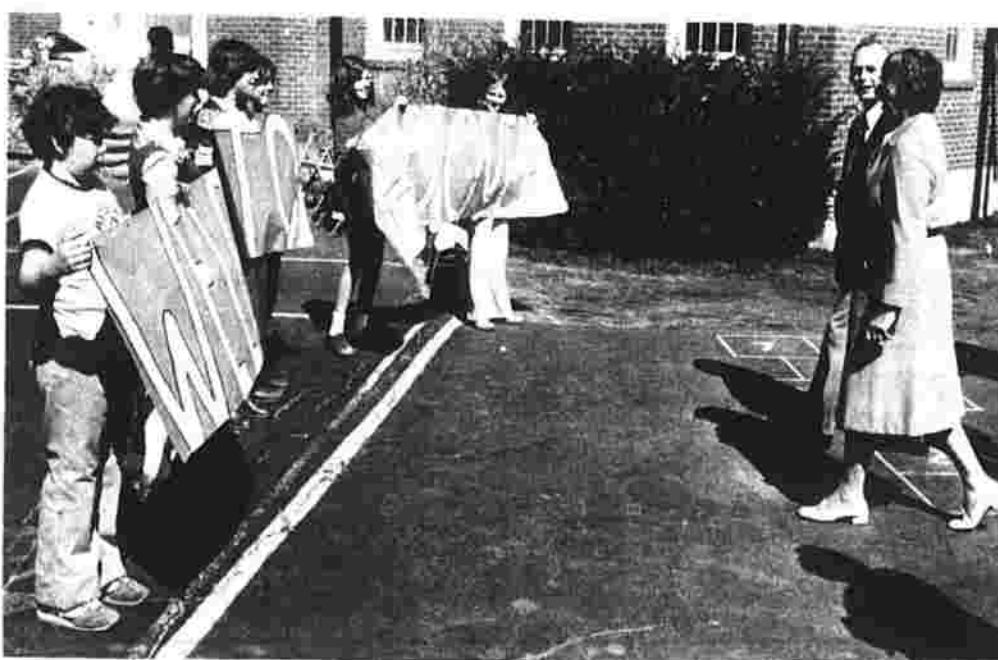

Owen voiced "a bit" of optimism about the chances of holding such a conference, but warned: "I've always rated the overall chances of achieving a settlement not as tremendously high."

representing the Nature Conservancy.

When the program ended, several townspeople followed Mrs. Grasso to Bishop's Lake, on nearby Jurvoty Rd.

The governor tried her hand at skimming a rock across the clear water. She said the site — which the state intends to use as a game management area — would be a nice place for a picnic. She also asked if the fishing was good, and she was told it was.

Nearly an hour had passed when Mrs. Grasso told people she had to leave. From the Andover conservation area, she was traveling to dedicate a new industrial plant in western Connecticut.

Gov. Grasso accepts deed for Bishop's Lake refuge

By DOUG BEVINS

The band was playing, the school bell was ringing and American flags were waving.

Townspeople could hear the helicopter before they could see it, and they were ready with their cameras.

She was a few minutes late, and she couldn't stay long, but nobody seemed to mind. It's not often that the governor of Connecticut visits town.

Gov. Ella Grasso flew into Andover Friday morning to receive the deed to Bishop's Lake and tour the state's new wildlife refuge. Her visit culminated months of effort — and worry — about preserving the unique Andover property.

Townspeople were ecstatic that the land deal finally was completed. They seemed to forget that state red tape almost lost the 528-acre property to a private developer.

"You who live here know how much that land means," Mrs. Grasso told the crowd assembled at Andover Elementary School.

Margaret Jurvoty of Andover, who led the drive for public ownership of Bishop's Lake, was praised by the governor.

"She did so much as a citizen and proud resident of Andover to make this dedication today a reality," Mrs. Grasso said.

And Mrs. Jurvoty summed up the sentiments of Andover when she was asked to say a few words.

"I'm very happy today," she said. "It's a very lovely place."

The deed transfer Friday was from the private Nature Conservancy to the State of Connecticut. The non-profit Nature Conservancy stepped in to buy the property in December when Gov. Grasso said the state couldn't act quickly enough.

The Conservancy bought the land from Robert Fuller, formerly of Andover, for $328,500, and resold it to the state for the same price. The land was appraised at $435,000, and Fuller donated a quarter of its value to the state.

It was difficult to determine Friday whether Andover residents were happier about the land deal or about the governor's visit.

Many adults joined the students of the elementary school to welcome Mrs. Grasso.

The students gave her flowers — "because they grew here in Andover." And she also received an Andover Elementary School T-shirt, featuring the school's mascot, a devil.

The "formal part of the informal program," as described by the governor, lasted about half an hour. Others speaking included Stanley Pac, state commissioner of environmental protection; David Barry, state senator from the Fourth District; David Yeomans, Andover's first selectman, and William Taylor, representing the Nature Conservancy.

When the program ended, several townspeople followed Mrs. Grasso to Bishop's Lake, on nearby Jurvoty Rd.

The governor tried her hand at skimming a rock across the clear water. She said the site — which the state intends to use as a game management area — would be a nice place for a picnic. She also asked if the fishing was good, and she was told it was.

Nearly an hour had passed when Mrs. Grasso told people she had to leave. From the Andover conservation area, she was traveling to dedicate a new industrial plant in western Connecticut.

NBC, reluctant to carry an audience-losing show with no big names, earlier this month postponed the scheduled May 15 broadcast, warning the academy it did not appear to meet its obligations under its contract and giving it until Friday to say whether it "will be able to correct the situation."

NBC-TV President Robert T. Howard wrote the academy's chairman, Richard Rector, as the deadline passed that "we have received no such information and it has now become impossible to have a program meeting contractual requirements."

He said "so few winners of Emmy awards would be present to accept personally that it would be embarrassing, indeed futile, to call the names of the winners with the expectation of their coming to the stage."

He pointed out that the academy owes the network $300,000 advanced to stage the show.

The chapter seceded and the academy revoked its charter.

Many Hollywood personalities mounted a boycott, promising not to take part in the Emmy awards in any way, refusing to be nominated, perform on the show or even sit in the audience. The list included Mary

Ms. Baker is installed church group president

By ALICE EVANS
Herald Reporter

Ms. Barbara Baker of 54 Deepwood Dr. Friday night was installed as president of Manchester Area Conference of Churches (MACC) at its annual meeting and dinner at Concordia Lutheran Church. She succeeds the Rev. Paul Trinquet of the Church of the Assumption.

Other officers installed are the Rev. Newell Curtis Jr., pastor of Center Congregational Church, vice-president; Mrs. Anne Flynn, director of Christian education at Center Church, secretary; and Thomas Tierney, a communicant of the Church of the Assumption, treasurer.

Ms. Baker, a member and parish worker at Concordia Lutheran Church, also heads MACC's Division of Special Ministries. Chairpersons for other MACC divisions are Elaine Holcomb, Christian Unity; and Victoria Jennings, Social Action. A chairperson of the Christian Education Division will be named when it convenes.

Though the 15-member conference started 1976 with only $5,557 in dues from its members, according to the report of former treasurer Joseph L. Swanson, it raised $29,900 in funds and materials for its community projects including the annual Seasonal Sharing Appeal. The value of volunteer services provided to the community would amount to thousands of dollars in working hours.

The finance committee's proposed budget for 1977-78 shows a deficit of $1,733. Expenses have been set at $7,050, and the anticipated pledges total $5,417.

The conference and area Roman Catholic churches have pledged sufficient funds to support a full-time Catholic chaplain to serve with the Rev. Ernest Harris, Protestant chaplain, part of each week at Manchester Memorial Hospital and at the Meadows Convalescent Home for the remainder of the week. Ms. Baker as chairperson of the Division of special Ministries reported.

The Archdiocese of Hartford is seeking someone for this post, and the divisions of MACC, along with the Rev. Mr. Harris and representatives of local Catholic churches involved in the project, are delineating the requirements and purview of the position, Ms. Baker said.

Walter Joyner, who for many years has served unofficially as a patient advocate at Manchester nursing homes, has been invited to serve MACC as a consultant on nursing homes to let the conference know what is going on and what can be done to fill the various needs of the residents.

The past year has been a busy one for the conference, according to Mrs. Nancy Carr, executive director.

"An exceptionally cold winter combined with inflation and high unemployment found the church working through the conference engaged in a real mission to help desperate families keep warm and in their homes. Gifts of food and money from members of the community combined with donations from churches and church-related organizations made it possible for the conference to feed, clothe, shelter and sustain a growing number of families.

"The closest possible working relationship has been maintained between the MACC office, state and town welfare offices and services agencies such as the Public Health Nursing Association during the crisis months," she said.

"The major service projects of the conference continue to fall in the areas of human needs," she said. These include the MACC Human Needs Fund, Seasonal Sharing Appeal, Emergency Pantry and the Interfaith Day Camp, which the conference operates each year for an equal number of children from Hartford's inner city and Manchester.

"The Christian churches who together are the conference, pledge themselves to working together to bring their combined strengths, insights and resources in dedicated service to the people of God. I believe that as they commit themselves to that pledge, they are becoming a beacon of hope to the community of Manchester," Mrs. Carr said.

ECCHS offers 'Carousel'

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter

East Catholic High School students are presenting a musical that is a departure from their usual choice of bouncy, fast-stepping musicals.

Their 1977 annual show opened Friday with the Rodgers and Hammerstein spectacular, "Carousel."

"Carousel" abounds with familiar tunes that range from lively to serious. The dances resemble ballet and folk types.

The major drawback of the play is its long prelude combined with scene setting activity on the stage.

The cast is involved in the various activities that go on in an amusement park somewhere on the New England Coast.

There is no dialogue. And unless a well-trained group of professionals does this scene, it is difficult to continue greeting people informally, barking for the various side-show attractions, riding on the carousel, all mime, without becoming monotonous.

Had the "Carousel" tempo picked up a little more, the opener might be less boring.

Once the story began with the singing principals, the show picked up pace.

East Catholic featured some fine voices and acting in the lead roles. Joan Rataic played Julie Jordan, the young girl who falls in love with Billy Bigelow, played by Frank Perham, a carnival worker who is fired from his job and is a ne'er do well.

About town Rehab project to begin

Great Pocahontas Elizabeth DePaolo and her board of great chiefs will make their official visit to Sunset Council Degree of Pocahontas on Monday at 8 p.m. at the Zipper Club.

The Manchester Assembly, Order of Rainbow for Girls, will attend the 10:30 a.m. service at Community Baptist Church on Sunday in observance of Rainbow Sunday. Members of the assembly will meet at the church at 10 a.m. Members will be hosted at a breakfast at 8 a.m. at the home of Miss April Hellstrom, 625 Vernon St. before the service.

The play takes on a tragic note in the second act after the killing. It is then, after Julie wonders what she will do, that she and the girls' chorus sing the moving "You'll Never Walk Alone."

The play shows Billy Bigelow in the after life, wherever it may be, conversing with a stakepiper, and arranging to return to Earth for a day to see his daughter, now 15 years old. The visit is in time for the daughter's graduation, and is an emotional situation that finds many in the audience reaching to wipe away a tear.

The entire cast closes with a reprise of "You'll Never Walk Alone," ending a delightful show.

The chorus in "Carousel" is to be commended for its well-balanced harmony and interpretation. The dances, including the ballet and hornpipe sequences, are well-orchestrated and choreographed.

One of the best numbers in the show comes from the chorus as they sing "June Is Bustin' Out All Over," led by Gina DeLomonis as Nettie, where they've gathered at a spa on the ocean front.

The student band, two years old, made the performance a total student effort. Although the winds were occasionally not accurately tuned, the orchestra as a whole met the acoustical needs of a big show by means of a cloth barrier fencing in the orchestra from the audience.

"Carousel" plays again tonight at 8 at East Catholic High School and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. Tickets are available at the door.

Poster and essay win awards in hire handicapped contest

Winners in a recent essay and poster contest on "Hire the Handicapped" were honored Wednesday night at Pina's Restaurant in Bolton.

First-place winners were Laura A. Smith of Greenwood Dr., a senior at Manchester High School, for her essay, and Doreen Downham of 78 Foster St., a MHS junior, for her poster.

Other winners were: Essay — Christine Jaworski of 83 Pitkin St., MHS senior, second; Lucy Isenberg of 32 Carpenter Rd., MHS senior, third; Janet Seybolt of 29 Stephen St., MHS senior, fourth; Ann Rohde Fitzgerald of 45 Battista Rd., MHS senior, fifth.

Of these winners, Christine Jaworski placed fourth on the state level, and Laura Smith was fifth. Other winners in the poster contest were: Kyle Doran of 1 Glen Lane, Vernon, ECHS sophomore, second; Dawn McCarthy of Warranville, ECHS freshman, third; Richard DeForge of 30 Earl St., Rockville, ECHS freshman, fourth; Grace Jaworski of 83 Pitkin St., MHS sophomore, fifth. No local poster winners won on the state level.

Miss Smith's essay is printed below.

Essay on hiring handicapped

By LAURA A. SMITH

The handicapped individual is an often neglected element of our society. The level of severity to which his impediment may extend and the degree to which it may subjugate his talents are indicative of the need for his recognition. It is with the intention of affecting this awareness that the Affirmative Action program has investigated anti-discrimination legislation in the area of employment.

Before one may understand those circumstances which result in the plight of employee and employer alike, one must understand the benevolent which accompany employment of the handicapped. Mr. William Sleith, former president of Iona Manufacturing Company, Inc., and former member of the Governor's Committee on the Employment of the Handicapped, cited a number of these benefits. He described the satisfying atmosphere of compassion and cooperation between his regular employees and those who were mentally retarded. Also, the latter were exceptionally efficient at repetitive, mechanical tasks. Once they were indoctrinated into the factory procedures, they performed their work "religiously right." Often, their work attitudes were "superior to regular employees"; they were prompt, had very low absence rates, and were able to absorb financial self-reliance. Mr. Sleith cited one particular instance where a handicapped employee reported to work and informed him that he was quitting. The employee then explained that he had found a better job elsewhere. Mr. Sleith was delighted that this individual had achieved sufficient confidence and self-confidence to be able to say "Keep your job, I've found a better one."

It is apparent, then, that the employment of the handicapped can be a mutually enriching experience for both employer and employee. If this is the case, why does the need for such groups as Affirmative Action exist? Mr. Darward Miller, plant manager of Cheney Brothers in Manchester, may have part of the answer. He believes that, although Cheney Brothers files job openings with the Employment Security Division of the Connecticut Labor Department, a major problem everywhere is communication. He explained how a company may have a job opening which a handicapped person could handle. The company needs an employee immediately, so it hires the most qualified applicant who happens to seek work at that time. A week later, it learns of a handicapped individual seeking work. Mr. Miller consequently suggests a system whereby the needs of the employer and the services of the handicapped may meet. Agencies where interested employers might file their job openings and include a brief description of the nature of the job, and where the handicapped may submit with their names a summary of their limitations and talents, might suffice. Mr. Miller also stressed that the employer must be willing to hire the handicapped. Before he can do so, however, he must be made aware of the value of doing so, and this could only be achieved through communication. One need permit the employer to feel what individuals such as Mr. Sleith and Mr. Miller feel to make him seek the handicapped as potential customers.

Another problem which faces the Affirmative Action movement lies in the acquisition of a definition for "handicapped." Mr. Irving Sobolov, vice-president of Pioneer Parachute (1976 Employer of the Year Award) considers this a difficult but necessary task. He said that "the law is ambiguous as to what qualifies as a handicap." It is a psychological disturbance a handicap in the conventional sense of the word? What about alcoholism? This presents difficulty to the employer when he is compelled to hire the "handicapped."

It would appear that if more employers were aware of the need for recognition of the handicapped as potential employees, and if they could realize the deep sense of fulfillment described, they might well seek to assist the handicapped in exercising their capabilities. To affect this realization is part of the challenge facing Affirmative Action. Another problem was cited by Mr. Millard Pryor, president of Lydall, Inc. (also recipient of an Employer of the Year Award). The following premises best describes his contentions:

Premise 1: The handicapped individual deserves to exercise his capability to its fullest capacity, with the limits of that capacity as his only restrictions.

Premise 2: Businesses operate to secure a profit. That profit is dependent on the capabilities of the people who constitute it.

The combination of these premises inevitably results in conflict. Mr. Pryor explained that the handicapped person defies the second premise because of the great insurance risk that his employer must assume. If the handicapped person were injured on or off the job, and the cause were indirectly related to his handicap, premiums would become exceedingly high. The fact that the individual is handicapped makes the chance for accidents much greater. Mr. Pryor also explained that if the employee were in perfect health and his spouse was handicapped, the same problem would arise. In short, an employee who received "x" dollars a year would become an expense to the company of two or three times that amount. Mr. Pryor feels that employer might better fulfill the contentions of the second premise and of his obligation if he were made exempt from these risks.

It can thus be readily seen that the need for widespread recognition and involvement is necessary if the handicapped individual is to exercise his capabilities to their outermost limits. The participation of Manchester employers has been worthy of note, but involvement must be drastically increased everywhere if the purposes of Affirmative Action are to be achieved.

The sound of music

After several months of on-again, off-again battle, Rep. William Cotter, D-Conn., reports to his First District constituents that the boys choir in the Wethersfield public schools can reorganize. The choir was suspended last fall when some bureaucrat thought its all-male membership was sex discrimination. The school officials buckled in rather than jeopardize the monetary goodies that flow profusely at times from the federal government to schools as long as they follow along with the social-engineering goals that permeate so much of government today. It made a good pre-election issue for Cotter who, according to some, needed one because his record wasn't very exciting. But that is water under the bridge and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare

Rovero favors stronger East Hartford HRC

Dear Sir: If Mayor Blackstone really intends that the East Hartford Human Rights Commission should show more initiative, perhaps he'll allow them to obtain part-time or full-time staffing through Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds. The City of Hartford is the prime sponsor for the Greater Hartford CETA consortium. It is requesting proposals from area organizations within the 27-town consortium to which East Hartford belongs. The purpose is to implement public service employment projects under the emergency jobs program extension of CETA. These projects must be designed to provide temporary employment for long term unemployed recipients of public assistance and recently discharged veterans who meet CETA eligibility requirements. Groups eligible to apply for the Title VI project funds include units of local government and their agencies. The East Hartford Human Rights Commission is an official agency of the Town of East Hartford. Why doesn't the Mayor allow the Commission to use its initiative to seek funding for a technical coordinator and other staffing? By the way, other groups eligible to apply include local education institutions, community based organizations and non-profit agencies engaged in public service. Very truly yours, Aldo J. Rovero, 47 Reschler St., East Hartford

A thought

To the editor, Recently there seems to be a new, I'll use the term, "progressive" movement afoot, an effort to establish a connector linking I-84 with I-86 in East Hartford. The "City of Village Charm," as Manchester dubs itself, surely contains some cute characteristics contributing to the splendor of this portion of tobacco valley. Why? Wasn't it Manchester, which was bestowed with that heaven-sent gem of New England charm, Penney's Industrial Park? (Those unsightly tobacco fields were getting to be a nuisance to gaze at, anyway.) And, now, as if a new industrial complex isn't quaint enough, now we have another major highway running through our little settlement. Gregory O'Rourke, 86 Richmond Dr., Manchester

Almanac

By United Press International Today is Saturday, April 16, the 108th day of 1977 with 250 to follow. The moon is approaching its new phase. The morning stars are Venus and Mars. The evening stars are Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn. Those born this date are under the sign of Aries. Wilbur Wright, American inventor of the airplane, was born April 16, 1867. Actor Charles Chaplin was born on this date in 1889. On this date in history: In 1862, Congress abolished slavery in the District of Columbia. In 1947, more than 500 persons were killed when a French frigate carrying nitrates exploded at the dock in Texas City, Tex. In 1972, Apollo 16 blasted off for the moon with three American astronauts aboard. Also that day, U.S. planes raided the North Vietnam capital of Hanoi.

Yesterdays

25 years ago Gov. John Lodge is expected at opening of Manchester Memorial Hospital's new wing. Manchester High School parents may organize into one group. James H. Sheehey is voted $1,500 for extra service as town manager. This date was a Sunday; The Herald did not publish.

Registration — no cure

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — President Carter's proposal to encourage universal voter registration in future election years certainly can't do any harm. In fact, it undoubtedly will ease the registration burden for many people. But the experience of the handful of states which, in recent years, have implemented a similar system on their own initiative suggests that the White House has vastly oversold the potential of his plan. East and loose Moreover, in its enthusiasm to drum up support for the proposal — to institute election day registration at the polls — the Carter administration is playing fast and loose with non-voting statistics and poll results. Vice President Walter Mondale, who developed the administration's program and unveiled it to the public late last month, noted that his home state of Minnesota, which has used election day registration since 1974, had a turnout in the last election of nearly 72 per cent, the highest in the nation.

That may be because Oregon's 1976 turnout was 62.3 per cent, a respectable showing but three to nine percentage points below the others in the same category. In addition, Oregon's turnout dropped 1.1 per cent after initiation of the supposedly simplified system. (Voter participation in all five states increased only a modest 2.2 per cent from 1972 to 1976.) Also conveniently ignored by the White House were these states which had high turnout rates last year without the benefit of any special registration programs: Utah, second in the nation with 69.1 per cent; and South Dakota, Iowa and Montana, all with 67-69 per cent turnout. Out of context Finally, the White House cited a public opinion poll which found that "about 25 per cent of all nonvoters are not registered for strictly structural reasons." That figure is accurate, but it was extracted — out of context — from a national survey which clearly showed that the principal reasons people fail to register or vote relate to their alienation from government and cynicism about politics. Way down on the list are reasons relating to registration problems.

Carte and Mondale already have gone a long way toward rebuilding trust in public officials. But their highly selective, if not misleading, use of statistics to sell a worthwhile program does little to restore confidence in government — and that's the key to increasing voter participation in the political process.

High before Those three did indeed institute election day registration between the 1972 and 1976 elections, and their turnouts were among the highest in the nation last year. But the White House failed to disclose that voter participation in each of those states was exceptionally high even before the new system was initiated. In Mondale's Minnesota, for instance, Carter and Mondale already have gone a long way toward rebuilding trust in public officials. But their highly selective, if not misleading, use of statistics to sell a worthwhile program does little to restore confidence in government — and that's the key to increasing voter participation in the political process.

Reporters are not physical fitness nuts

WASHINGTON — At an embassy cocktail party the other night, I got to talking to a black African diplomat who was critical of Western war correspondents covering the shot-and-shell unpleasantness between Zaire and Angola. It was the diplomat's opinion that most of said correspondents were not in the proper physical condition to cover even a small war. Their proprietors, he said, should require correspondents to take military-type basic training "for their own safety" and he noted the presence in the front lines of too many "overweight, tired, nervous, overdrinking, unhealthy journalists."

Times have changed Well now, I will not go so far as to depose that there is no other kind of war correspondent. Times have changed, and I suppose there must be one or two newsmen somewhere who are models of physical fitness. Indeed even during World War II I have not known soap and water for two weeks is indescribable in a family newspaper. These days, I suppose some African countries produce their own smelly, similar to those manufactured by Vietnam's casual approach to sanitation. It is the sort of situation that reduces men to the lowest levels of animal cunning. My indignation lingers when I recall the time I hurriedly rented the only bathroom in a small hotel in Etain, France, for 200 an hour. I was in hog heaven as I left to rustle up a piece of soap hidden under what passed for a cushion in my jeep.

Outsmarted When I returned, illness dancing in my head, I found a former friend named John Wilhelm selling baths to a horde of reeking correspondents for $10 per five minutes. I got my bath three days later in a creek outside Verdun.

Once the war became a touch more organized, the press was housed in an assortment of fourth-class hotels all over Europe. These accommodations were heaven after months of camping out, but there were drawbacks. There was seldom any running water and even when a trickle was coaxed out of pipes installed by Charlie Charlie it was cold, muddy, and usually tingling with animal life. Yet, those remain the good old days — an age in which a war correspondent was called upon only to suffer, not qualify for employment by winning the Boston Marathon.

In 1975, the government of Cambodia asked the Communist insurgents for a cease-fire and offered to turn power over to them.

A thought for the day: American writer Charles Warner said, "The thing generally raised on city land is taxes."

Suffering: A time for growth I speak carefully here. Some of us at times presume to interpret for others the meaning of their pain. This is dangerous business. It flirts with an arrogance that presumes to know what is God's will. I think only God knows that. So to tell someone else that his or her pain is something God is giving them as "gift" or "punishment" is, in the least, a precarious act. It is even precarious to do for ourselves. We are often not the best judges of our innocence or guilt. At best, it happens in a loving relationship.

News for senior citizens

By WALLY FORTIN

Hello everybody! Isn't this weather just great! I hope it comes to "bake" in the sun for a while. This is a great weather and we remind you all golfers that come Monday morning the action will start with the formation of this year's Senior Golf League. If you haven't signed up but would like to participate, then just hop in your car and head out to the East Hartford Golf Course. You'll meet the gang and be assigned a starting time. Just get there before 8:30 a.m. Big dinner We had more than 100 members at our Fellowship Circle and was happy for the nice turn out. The group enjoyed just talking up old times and exchanging ideas, and thanks to our two college girls who are putting this group together, Karen and Jane, for taking the time it started. The thought behind this Fellowship Circle is open up the door to all seniors, to give them a chance to meet someone who can help them. It's a great time to get out, so here is a chance to meet someone who can help them. It's a great time to get out, so here is a chance to meet someone who can help them.

Wings of evening

By CLIFF SIMPSON

A churchle in a small congregation in Maine, one of the wealthiest members of the church came every Sunday but invariably went to bed during the sermon. This bothered the young minister, but he hesitated to speak of it lest he offend his parishioner. Finally he got up courage to approach him and asked, "Do you have to fall asleep when I am preaching?" Seeking to justify himself the parishioner answered, "Look, pastor, would I fall asleep if I didn't trust you?"

An Easter prayer
 The message of Easter is not confined to one weekend in our Christian year. It is basic to our faith and never "out-of-date." The joy that came to so many of us last Sunday is a continuing experience. Spring is a joyous time of the year but the resurrection is not confined to one season. Nevertheless, there is a special meaning for the Christian in the emerging life of nature. It is attested to in this poem:

Lord, now that spring is in the world,
 And every tulip is a cup
 Filled with the wine of thy great love,
 Lift thou me up,
 Raise thou my heart as flowers arise
 To greet the glory of thy day,
 With soul as clean as lilies are,
 And white as they.
 Let me not fear the darkness now,
 'Til I hear thee pass!
 Since Life and Light break through thy tomb;
 Teach me that doubts no more oppress,
 No more consume,
 Show me that thou art April,
 Lord,
 And thou the flowers and the grass,
 Then, when awake the soft spring winds,
 'Til I hear thee pass!

God in the spring
 The comparison is often made between the coming of spring and the message of Easter. I marvel at the power of God in nature as I take my early morning walk here in Highland Park. For months the stern rule of winter has governed all of this area. Some days ago I got out my tractor to push up snow into the patches of sun so that it would melt more quickly. Now the lilac buds are burgeoning, the bright green of the sassafras trees shines in the morning sun, the red of the Japanese maple is bursting forth. Everywhere green shoots are pushing up through the soil. All of nature has an upward urge.

Do you recall Robert Browning's words about the plants in mines that never saw the sun but ever climb to reach Him? I remember hearing about John Muir, the famous naturalist who founded the Sierra Club, saying to a group of visiting foresters, "This is why I believe in God," as he carefully reviewed the

 by Eugene Brewer
 While depicting some of the moral conditions of our times, let us not lose sight of the positive signs. Last weekend the three major television networks focused on the central figure of history, Jesus Christ, as they presented epochal movies based on the Bible.

For every person who attends an athletic event, 15 people attend a worship service. National Geographic, Good Housekeeping, Readers Digest, Better Homes & Gardens, and a half-dozen other family publications each has more subscribers than Playboy, the leading print in our citizenry.

30 million couples have been married 10 years or longer without a divorce. More than 20 million teenagers have never been arrested or accused of violating the law. America has much room for improvement, but there are encouraging signs.

Six runs in third net Tech triumph

Pushing across all six runs in one inning, Cheney Tech wound up on the right side of the ledger for the first time this season with a 6-2 decision over winless Bolton High yesterday afternoon in Bolton.

Unearned runs pace Bulkeley win

By LEN AUSTER Herald Sportswriter

As somewhat expected, the interruption didn't help Brasa as Dan Gradante doubled home both runners, Bob Gerena singled Gradante home and Geno Caro's double plated Gerena with the fourth run. All of the runs were unearned.

What precipitated the delay was a catcher's interference (an error if you're scoring) on East's Dave Botaro against Bulldog Steve Haydaz.

Scoreboard for Bulkeley (9) vs East Catholic (4) with AB, R, H, E statistics for both teams.

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a reasonably attractive, well-mannered bachelor in my late 50s who receives many social invitations. I recently turned down an invitation to a dinner party. I frankly told the hostess that I was no longer accepting invitations that did not allow me to bring to go parties alone. Very lately she told me that if I didn't want to go to parties alone I should get married.

Why do so many people think a single person should be eager to accept invitations to go to a party alone? I always feel like a fifth wheel, or else I get stuck with a dateless woman who shares my embarrassment. Am I wrong? SINGLE SIMON

DEAR SIMON: If you'd rather bring your own date than gamble on what the hostess has paired you off with, say so. But most bachelors are invited to parties to provide escorts for the single women. And I'd like to see the dateless woman who would feel "embarrassed" to find her dinner companion a reasonably attractive, well-mannered bachelor.

DEAR ABBY: For a long time I've suspected that my husband had an apartment or room or girlfriend somewhere because he would leave home in a gray suit and come back in navy blue.

When I first called him on this, he tried to make me believe I was losing my mind, his wife, to me. I am sure there is nothing wrong with me, and he is obviously changing clothes somewhere. What do you think of a man like that? ALLENTOWN HOUSEWIFE

DEAR HOUSEWIFE: I think your husband has: (1) more suits than he needs; (2) a closet elsewhere; (3) a very poor memory.

DEAR ABBY: I'm about the most mixed-up bride you've ever heard from. Our wedding date has been set, and the plans are being made, but right now all I want to do is run away. My husband is a wonderful young man and I would be thrilled to get him, but now I'm not sure I ever should have married him. Here are some examples of why I am not sure I want to marry him. My mother says they are childish, so please tell me what you think.

1. All in fun, I threw Jerry in the pool and found out he couldn't swim (I had to rescue him). Abby, shouldn't he have told me that and here's a man who loves to swim and fish.

2. His family likes to hug and kiss me. I'm not a cold person, but I don't like all that hugging and kissing on saying hello and goodbye.

3. Jerry's job will require more and more traveling. I know Jerry likes children, but what if I can't? I'm afraid really afraid of childbirth because of a movie I saw years ago.

What should I do? I really love Jerry. I'm 23, a college graduate, but I don't want to take a job. Is it too late to back out? NOT READY

DEAR NOT: Your solution is in your signature. You are NOT ready for marriage. Call it off, and the sooner the better.

Art exhibits

An open photography exhibition is on display through April 29 in the Stairwell Gallery of Manchester Community College, 146 Hartford Rd.

A display of photography by Yolla Niclas will begin Sunday at Foot Prints, 466 Main St. The exhibit will continue through April 29. The public is invited to a reception Sunday from 4 to 6 p.m. at Foot Prints. For further information, call 643-8953.

At the University of Connecticut in Storrs, "Nicholas Vasilieff Retrospective" is featured in the William Benton Museum of Art through May 29. Other art displays at UConn include an exhibition of works by graduating art department seniors in the Jorgensen Gallery from April 22 through May 22.

At Wadsworth Atheneum in Hartford, the Lions Gallery of the Senses is featuring "Paperworks (Relief Printmaking)" through July 10. It is a special exhibition presenting two-dimensional art for the visually impaired. For information on other exhibits and events, call the Atheneum at 247-9111.

Poetry reading

Award-winning poet Charles Simic, author of "Return to a Place Lit by a Glass of Milk," will present a reading from his works Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Marcus White Lounge at Central Connecticut State College, New Britain.

Born in Yugoslavia and raised in Paris and the U.S., Simic has been an associate professor of English at the University of New Hampshire since 1973. He attributes an early interest in jazz with stimulating his discovery of poetry.

'Brigadoon' this week

The Gilbert & Sullivan Workshop will present its 30th annual production, "Brigadoon," Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. at Manchester High School.

Proceeds from the show will be donated to New Hope Manor, a home for girls with drug-related problems.

Group rates are available for groups of 10 or more by calling 646-6235. Tickets may be obtained by calling Janet Acker, 521-8168. Tickets will also be sold at the door.

Art works sought

The Lions Gallery is seeking works of art by Greater Hartford area artists for a juried exhibition scheduled for September through November.

The primary purpose of the Lions Gallery is to make art accessible to visually impaired people through tactile and aural participation. The gallery's handicapped audience ranges from school children to senior citizens, from totally blind people to those with slight visual impairments. The gallery also accommodates people in wheel chairs and other special groups.

Application deadline is April 20. For further information and special requirements, call Ms. Mulcahy at 278-2670.

'Perils of Pauline?'

Watching "A History of the American Film" at the Hartford Stage Company is a little bit like watching the "Perils of Pauline."

The likeness comes from the adventures of Loretta played by Cynthia Herman as she survives episode after episode with her boyfriend, Jimmy, played by Jerry Zaks.

The episodes portray changing trends in the American dream as reflected by Hollywood. Loretta's introduction to Hollywood is followed by success and disillusionment, one after the other, involving some very funny, side-splitting scenes, and some equally poignant scenes, particularly as the American film's history embraces the World War II era.

Christopher Durang's farce is an unusual theater piece, but nonetheless gripping from beginning to end, even though the second act loses some of the verve of the first act. Maybe that's because the period covered in the second act was a more serious period of time in our lives.

Herman and Zaks effervesce through their scenes to the very end and are complemented by a talented varied cast who portray recognizable characters in the movie industry.

Something different and refreshing, "American Film" plays at the Stage Company during its Hartford premiere through April 24. It should enjoy successful runs elsewhere in the theater world.

— JUNE TOMPKINS

Twentieth Century New Yorkers are curious about the outfits worn by citizens of "Brigadoon," the town they have just discovered in Scotland. Appearing in the Gilbert & Sullivan Workshop production of the Lerner and Loew musical are, from left, Bob Dionne as Tommy, Robert Gordon as Andrew MacClaren, Chris Hand as Meg and Jim Pasquell as Jeff. The show plays Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Manchester High School at 8 p.m. (Herald photo by Dunn)

Cynthia Herman and Jerry Zaks are starring in Christopher Durang's Hollywood farce, "A History of The American Film," at the Hartford Stage Company in Hartford through April 24.

The double bill marks Hartt Opera Theater's 35th anniversary season.

Neumann, baritone, will alternate in the title role with William Arnold. Neumann will sing on Thursday and Saturday. He is a candidate for a B.M. degree in opera at Hartt. He appeared as Dr. Miracle in Hartt's production of "The Tales of Hoffmann" and was featured in "The Student Prince."

He has been a member of the Hartt Opera Company's production staff for several seasons.

Moshe Paranov, president emeritus of Hartt College, is the musical director of the productions, which use more than 70 members in the orchestra, the largest opera orchestra in Hartt Opera-Theater's performance history.

The operas will be performed in Millard Auditorium on the UoffH campus, 200 Bloomfield Ave., West Hartford. For information, call 243-4441.

Paul Elkin as Will Parker, front, and cowboys are shown in a scene from Pine-Brook Dinner Theatre's production of "Oklahoma," playing in Higganum through May 22.

Collectors' Corner

Fair buffs are collectors

By RUSS MACKENDRICK

This "Food at the Fair" brochure is an example of what the World's Fair buffs consider to be a collectible. The picture is a dessert cart at the Festival/65 restaurant in the Gas pavilion at the 1964-65 New York extravaganza.

Other items they look for would be tickets, passes, albums, medals, coins, badges, pins, banks, toys, matches, post cards, magazines, paperweights - anything.

The Society publishes a bimonthly mag, and this latest issue is mostly on the NY Fair because we are approaching the anniversary of its opening on April 22, 1964. Along with the magazine came the above brochure. A nice touch.

They show pictures of the first-day cancellations on the stamp (Scott No. 1244) and the stamped envelope (No. US46), from the World's Fair post office on April 22.

They list the 40-odd medals and tokens of the fair with the issuing agency, size, material, and sculptor.

There are reproductions of newspaper articles and advertising material of the time. (A full-page ad for the General Motors Futurama in one instance).

And there are excerpts from the diary of a man who evidently visited the Fair every day. He would record what entrance he used and what he visited and saw and ate - all with an accounting of expenditures.

There is a map of the Fair that will recall those days to anyone who has walked along the Meridian Road.

The periodical (they call it "Fair News") also has a story about the Expo '81 being planned for the Ontario Motor Speedway near Los Angeles. It will have a 200-foot "Thrillsphere" dome in the amusement area. The theme of that fair is to be "People to People - Pathways to Understanding."

The World's Fair Collectors Society is not a large one - chummy, rather. The serial number given to the latest joiner is 757. The directory has about 350 names and addresses.

An especially interesting part is the Specialty Listing. Here we find the names of 60 people looking for NY 64/65 material and the same number specializing in the Columbian expo of 1893. Next to these are the 57 for the New York 1939 Fair. Some one-on-ones are for the Dallas 1936 and the Australian 1879.

There are 29 fairs spelled out here with the name of their specialists.

The WFCS has a library - some new additions: "Paris - 1900," by R.D. Mandell; "Columbian World's Fair Collectibles," a descriptive price guide, Rossen & Kaduck; "Remembering the St. Louis World's Fair" by M. J. Witherspoon, and "The Illustrated History of the Centennial Exhibition - Philadelphia 1876" by J.D. McCabe.

If tempted by all this, write to the WFCS Inc. 148 Poplar St., Garden City, NY 11530. Or if really turned on, call (516) 741-4884. You will be talking to the president, Michael R. Pender.

Coming events

Members of the Manchester Philatelic Society Inc. will meet at Mott's Community Hall Tuesday, April 12, 7 to 10 p.m. It is likely that the clubroom will be filled with talk of MANPEX '77, as it is nearly upon us - April 23 and 24 are the dates.

Besides the exhibits they will have a 22-dealer bourse, door prizes and free souvenir programs. Also there will be three post offices - United States, United Nations and Canada - the first time here for the Canadians.

Visitors will have a choice of three cacheted covers with the themes: Sound Recording, Lafayette and Lindbergh, and also two souvenir cards. Each day at 3:30 there will be an auction. No one will have to go home empty-handed.

On Monday, April 18, the Israel Numismatic Society of Connecticut and the Israel Philatelist Society, Greater Hartford Area, will sponsor a talk by Dr. F. Don James about the Dead Sea Scrolls. It will be at 8 p.m. at the Hartford Jewish Community Center, 335 Bloomfield Ave., West Hartford. Admission is free.

Coin show Sunday

The Central Connecticut Coin Club of Manchester and surrounding towns will celebrate National Coin Week with its semi-annual coin show Sunday from 10 a.m. The public is invited and there is no admission charge.

There will be 24 dealers from Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York and Rhode Island for buying, selling, trading and appraising coins and currency. "Members of the club will display various exhibits of United States coins, U.S. currency, foreign coins and currency. The miscellaneous category will consist of tokens, medals, wooden money and elongated coins.

Among the exhibits will be an outstanding exhibit of aviation medals, a Bicentennial eagle with a wingspread of 30 inches made with pennies and dimes, Philatelic Numismatic Covers, old type, large-size U.S. currency, and even some wooden money.

The club will give trophies to the winners of the various exhibit categories and all members who exhibit will receive a certificate from the American Numismatic Association for exhibiting during National Coin Week.

The show will be at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 138 Main St., Manchester.

CB Convac

New band in the works

By INK DIPPER

CBers in the U.S. and Canada might not be totally aware of it, but their governments are on the verge of setting up a second citizens band.

Sometime in the next six months the U.S. Federal Communications Commission will release a plan for the new band, which will be placed in a frequency range high above the present one. And at the same time or a little later the Canadian Department of Communications will announce a similar plan.

CBing in the two countries went through a major change this year when both agencies added 17 new channels to those already existing. But what lies ahead is more than just a simple expansion. The new band will require new radios which will operate with less interference and offer the potential for hundreds of new channels.

The U.S. and Canadian agencies face a problem and a deadline. The problem is a phenomenon called skip, which is caused by radio signals bouncing off the earth's atmosphere and landing hundreds of miles away. The bouncing signals cause problems for local conversations. A Vancouver, B.C., CBer might not be able to talk to a friend around the corner because he's over-ridden by another CBer in Montgomery, Ala., who in turn is having trouble because of CBers in Pueblo, Colo.

Skip grows worse every 11 years or so because of sunspots which are explosions on the sun's surface. The explosions send out additional energy, which builds up in the earth's atmosphere and makes the upper part bounce certain types of radio waves. By 1980 we should hit the 11-year sunspot peak.

The new citizens band will be placed on a higher frequency range than the present 27-megahertz range, which is one of the hardest hit places in the radio spectrum when skip starts building. Two proposed places for the new band are in the 220-megahertz and the 900-megahertz range.

The 900-megahertz range is expected to win out. The frequencies around the 220-megahertz area are already clogged with government and amateur (ham) operators, and are also close to some television broadcast frequencies.

Many CB manufacturers have voiced opposition to the 900-megahertz band, saying that radios in the range would be too expensive for the general public. But Motorola, an American manufacturer of two-way radios, has field-tested a potential CB in the higher range, and FCC personnel have been impressed with its performance.

Sources in the FCC and the DOC say the present 27-megahertz band will be kept as it is, since millions of radios now operate on its channels.

If everything goes right, the two agencies should announce their plans by early fall. Then in January 1978, after CBers and other interested parties are given a chance to respond to the plan, final decisions will be made on where and when the second band will be located.

With time allowed for approval of the designs of the new equipment and manufacturing and sale to the public, the second citizens band should be in operation by the beginning of 1980.

Editor's note: Ink Dipper, KYZ-3916, is the editor of the CB Times-Journal.
