Budget cut suggestions include end to leaf pickup

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Town Manager Robert B. Weiss told the Board of Directors Monday night of possible ways to reduce the Public Works budget, including the elimination of the annual fall leaf pickup and reduction in the Saturday hours of the landfill.

The directors did make several tentative cuts, but decisions on some of the tougher choices, such as the elimination of leaf pickup, were postponed.

Weiss told the board that ending the leaf cleanup would save the town about $45,000, mostly in equipment rental and contractual services. An additional $11,000 would be saved in the purchasing of bags needed for cleaning up the leaves, he said.

He also said that closing of the town landfill on Saturday would save $8,000. Some of the board members questioned Timothy O'Sullivan, highway and sanitation superintendent, on the use of the landfill on Saturday.

O'Sullivan said that it is used extensively in the morning hours and that closing the landfill for half the day Saturday would still save about $5,000 through the year.

Jay J. Giles, director of public works, also proposed that the town begin charging a fee for trucks that use the landfill.

Presently, use of the facility is free for any truck that picks up refuse in Manchester. But, Giles said, some persons are taking advantage of the system. They may pick up some refuse in town, but they also are dumping refuse picked up in surrounding communities, he said. He feels that a fee charge for a landfill permit will discourage such activity.

Another $42,000 would be saved in the Sanitation Department budget if refuse pickup was reduced from twice to once a week, Weiss said.

Building inspector

He also told the board that money could be saved in the elimination of an inspector for the Building Department. Weiss, however, does not recommend such a move.

"We are having a busier year in building permits. When people make a call, they expect service," Weiss said. The Building Department has had a vacant position since the retirement of Thomas Monahan.

The manager suggested that the board might seek a Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) employe to fill the vacancy. This would cost the town $2,673 instead of the full $12,673 salary, Weiss said.

Chief Building Inspector Francis J. Conti said this morning that he would be satisfied with a CETA employe as an inspector.

He also said that the department does not need the fourth building inspector.

"With vacations, and if one of us gets sick, we're in trouble," he said. The directors again spent some time Monday night discussing salary proposals for the 1977-78 budget. Some of the board members questioned the concept of giving department heads increases similar to those included in the union contract.

But, Weiss told the board that the salary requests for the town department heads are in line with those of Board of Education administrators.

"You're creating an unfair situation where you don't reject a school contract you won't offer town department heads," he said. "All I'm arguing for is an equitable situation for department heads."

Director Phyllis Jackson proposed a ceiling on such salaries.

"This business of looking at five to eight per cent increases each year is beyond us," she said.

Sweeping reduction
Other possible reductions in the Public Works budget mentioned by Weiss included a lowering of the cost of sweeping Main St. The job is presently done once a week by town crews. O'Sullivan said that the job has to be done in the early morning hours, resulting in overtime pay for the workers.

Weiss said reducing the number of times the street is swept or using an outside contractor might cut the $15,000 annual cost of the job.

Weiss said that the town could save

$12,000 by not requiring immediate pickup of snow on Main St. The job is sometimes now done on overtime pay. Weiss proposed postponing the cleanup until regular work hours for town workers, thus saving in overtime costs.

Other proposals made Monday night included:

- A saving of $6,000 on storm drainage materials.

- The postponement of the purchase of an $8,460 vehicle for the Cemetery Department and a $6,800 van for the Maintenance Division.

- The elimination of the purchasing of almost $6,000 in Park Department equipment.

- The elimination of a couple of proposed capital improvement projects. Director Vivian Ferguson said that there is no need for the town to spend $5,000 for an air conditioning study for the libraries. She said that private firms, interested in bidding for the service, would probably provide the needed information.

- Also, the directors axed a $3,000 proposal to side the old Keeney St. School, which Giles had hoped to use as a carpentry workshop for his crews. The directors suggested that the town consider using the old Spruce St. firehouse, now used as a maintenance area by the Fire Department, as a carpentry workshop.

Court orders equalization of school funding

HARTFORD (UPI)—The Connecticut Supreme Court has thrown out the current method of financing public schools primarily by local property taxes, but left unclear how the situation must be remedied.

The court, in a 4-1 ruling upholding a 1974 Hartford Superior Court decision, Monday said funding schools primarily by local property taxes is unconstitutional because it denies children equal educational opportunity.

It ordered the legislature to correct the situation and more state dollars appear headed for poorer school districts, but the court set no guidelines for lawmakers to follow.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso scheduled a meeting today with legislative leaders to discuss the situation and begin drawing up a plan to comply with the order.

The court said because Connecticut schools are 70 per cent funded by local property taxes, children in wealthier areas have more educational opportunities than those in poorer towns.

"The education they (students in poorer towns) receive is to a substantial degree narrower and lower in quality than that which pupils receive in comparable towns with a larger tax base and a greater ability to finance education," it said.

But the court said "in fashioning a system of financing, precisely equal advantages or absolute equality is not required and cannot be attained."

Proponents of tax reform said the decision pointed to need for a personal income tax to finance educational equalization. Opponents used the clause about complete equality being unattainable to argue overhaul of the tax system was not needed.

The funding imbalance is caused by a wide disparity in wealth in Connecticut, which features the plush New York suburbs of Fairfield County and economically hard-pressed rural areas in the northeast.

The case, "Meskill vs. Horton," was begun by Canton attorney Wesley Horton, who said his son Barnaby, then 6, didn't have the educational opportunities available to children in richer towns.

Thomas Meskill, now a federal judge, was governor when the case was brought and he was named a defendant.

Horton, when he brought the case, said the tax base ranged from $19,000 per pupil in rural Chaplin to $170,000 in affluent Greenwich. The Connecticut Public Expenditure Council said its figures showed West Hartford spent $1,834.29 per pupil compared to $779.22 in Griswold.

A similar case in New Jersey last year led that legislature—grudgingly—to adopt a personal income tax to equalize school funding. But in that case the court set a rigid guideline.

If large sums of cash are needed to finance for educational equalization,

Appeals for public support

Carter opens drive for energy program

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Following up quickly on his call for Americans to accept painful sacrifices and "changes in every life," President Carter met this morning with congressional leaders to line up support for the stiff new energy policy he will unveil Wednesday.

It was the second day of a weeklong presidential campaign to convince the nation and Congress that the energy crisis is real, that it poses a threat as serious as war and that only a policy of strict conservation can pull the nation through.

Carter launched his program Monday night with a somber televised warning to the American people that the alternative to conservation is to risk "our jobs, our environment, our standard of living and our future" in a world devoid of foreign oil "at any acceptable price."

"Our decision about energy will test the character of the American people and the ability of the President and the Congress to govern," Carter said. "This difficult effort will be 'the moral equivalent of war'—except that we will be uniting our efforts to build and not destroy."

The President met over breakfast today with Democratic congressional leaders. Then White House energy chief James Schlesinger held a 45-minute briefing to which between 70 and 80 members of Congress were invited, although only about half that number attended.

Schlesinger said that without conservation the United States will begin to feel a "serious crunch" in the 1980s, when a new CIA study shows demand for oil will surpass supply, and that world oil production will peak no later than the 1990s.

Among those present were Sens. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, Russell Long, D-La., Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., and Reps. Al Ullman, D-Ore., Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., Paul Rogers, D-Fla., Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., Garry Brown, R-Mich., and Walter Flowers, D-Ala.

It was an unsmiling President who, facing a television camera from behind his Oval Office desk, tried to convince Americans Monday night that the whole world faces an energy crisis and that it was not devised by oil company intrigues.

He termed it "an unpleasant talk." Members of the House and Senate generally praised the main thrust of Carter's 18-minute address. The vice chairman of U.S. Steel, Heath Larry, representing the National Association of Manufacturers, said no one has reason now to doubt the crisis is real.

But two congressional representatives of oil states—Sen. Russell Long, D-La., and House Democratic Leader Jim Wright of Texas—expressed concern that too little stress was placed on increasing U.S. production.

Their comments hinted at the opposition likely to surface Wednesday when the President, in the second salvo of a weeklong energy blitz, outlines the admittedly unpopular measures he has devised to cope with the situation.

Carter listed 10 "fundamental principles" that guided him in shaping the proposals he will unveil Wednesday. He said the sixth—conservation—was the cornerstone but the fifth—fairness—also is vital.

No special interest group will be exempt from sacrifice, he said, and "we will not let the oil companies profiteer."

"I am sure each of you will find something you don't like about the specifics of our proposal (Wednesday)," Carter told the nation.

"It will demand that we make sacrifices and changes in every life. To some degree the sacrifices and changes will be painful—but so is every meaningful sacrifice. It will lead to higher costs, and to some greater inconveniences for everyone. "But the sacrifices can be gradual, realistic, and they are necessary. Above all, they will be fair."

The goals he set for 1985 were equally tough—cut gasoline consumption 10 per cent, slash energy growth by more than half to less than 2 per cent a year, cut use of imported oil in half, increase coal production by two-thirds.

Carter acknowledged the skepticism felt according to a recent Gallup Poll, by more than half the nation. Aides said a key purpose of his speech was to win a majority to his view.

"I know some of you may doubt that we face real energy shortages," he said. "But our energy problem is worse tonight than it was in 1973 or a few weeks ago in the dead of winter. It is worse because more waste has occurred, and more time has passed by without our planning for the future. And it will get worse every day until we act."

Cummings responds

Democrats want budget leeway

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Manchester's Democratic Town Chairman Theodore Cummings said today this party is "not about to paint itself into a corner" by setting a fixed mill rate increase at this time for the 1977-78 budget.

Cummings' remarks came in response to a statement released Monday by Republican Town Chairman Thomas F. Ferguson that called for no more than a two-mill increase in the 1977-78 budget.

The proposed budget by Town Manager Robert B. Weiss calls for a 10.6 per cent increase in the budget, which would result in a 9.43 mill increase in General Fund taxes and a 1.23 mill increase in the Fire District tax. The Board of Directors is in the process of reviewing Weiss' proposal.

The GOP has said it wants no more than the two-mill increase. But, Cummings feels it is too early to set such figures.

"It's understandable why the Republicans are making such grand pronouncements," Cummings said. "As the minority party, they have to try to capture the voter's eye."

"However, all the grand political pronouncements don't make a good budget," Cummings said.

He said that members of the Democratic party will approach the budget on a line-by-line basis.

"They (the Democratic directors) are viewing every department individually and every request on its own merits," he said. "Their's is the most sensible approach. They know that a lot of desirable things aren't going to happen this year because there isn't the money," Cummings said.

"We'll do the job. We always have in the past," the Democratic leader added.

He pointed out that the Democratic directors voted down a Republican proposal to return the budget to Weiss before the board began any work on reducing it.

"We accepted it ourselves. It's our responsibility," Cummings said. "We have to face the people in November, the manager doesn't."

No immediate impact seen by local school officials

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

State legislators and the Manchester school superintendent see little immediate impact for the town as a result of Monday's state Supreme Court ruling that Connecticut's system of school financing is unconstitutional.

Those contacted think Manchester will benefit in the long run and gain more state funding proportionally.

Legislation is already under way to increase state financing under the Guaranteed Tax Base (GTB) program. Plans call for an additional $10 million, or a total of $20 million this year, expected to be allocated by the legislature.

State Rep. Ted Cummings (D-12) said if that legislation is passed, it will mean an additional $125,000 to $150,000 for Manchester. He expects it to pass.

School Supt. James P. Kennedy said the school board was not counting on that money and did not include an increase in its proposed budget. The town received $179,000 last year in GTB monies for the schools.

Kennedy added that the GTB monies will be offset by the expected decrease in flat grant payments from the state because of anticipated decline in enrollment in the schools.

Kennedy said he expects the effects of the ruling to be relatively slow, although it should mean greater proportional chance of state funds for Manchester which ranks slightly below the middle in the state in the "ability to pay" scale. Manchester is 108th of 169 towns.

Kennedy said his greatest concern is the increased paper work, reporting and time spent diverting money which will probably result from increased state funding. Some federal legislation has already had that effect, causing local boards to question the benefits, Kennedy said.

He added that the ruling fits the national pattern of more state funding for schools.

Cummings also said he expects the additional funding to be phased in over a period of years to reach a more equitable method of financing. He said he is glad for the decision as he thinks there has been a "great unfairness throughout the state."

In the long run, Cummings said, the decision will be better for the students and fairer for the taxpayers. "It will probably mean an income tax and decrease in the property tax and decrease in the sales tax," Cummings predicted, but he added, not necessarily this year. Cummings is a member of the Education Committee of the legislature.

State Sen. David Barry (D-4) also said he thinks the impact of the decision is "quite a ways off before any radical changes occur."

Barry thinks also that Manchester will benefit in the long run from any changes in the system. He does not think the changes are necessarily tied in with an income tax.

Indian takers

"Red power" is on the march. Passamaquoddy and Penobscot Indians, assisted by a powerful ally, the Great White Father in Washington, are claiming five million acres of land in northern Maine that was wrongfully taken from their ancestors.

The Interior and Justice Departments say the claim is a valid one and have announced that unless an out-of-court settlement is reached by June 1, the federal government, as the Indians' guardian, will sue the state.

As Maine goes, so goes Ohio? Could be. Inspired by their fellow Indians in Maine, the Iroquois are considering suing the federal government for damages over the loss of a vast tract of land in what is now northeastern Ohio.

"We have a historian studying the history of the area around Cleveland and Akron," says Beeman Logan, a Seneca chief in North Tonawanda, N.Y. "We will decide when that is complete whether to take it to court."

He adds that, unlike the Maine tribes, the Iroquois will probably ask for a monetary settlement rather than trying to repossess the land, although one Indian historian has suggested that part of a settlement might include turning over the Cuyahoga Valley National Park to the Indians for their use.

Also unlike the Maine situation, however, any claim by the Iroquois to land in Ohio may have a fatal defect. Their historians will not have to look very far to find that the area in question once belonged to the Erie nation, which the Iroquois were in the process of wiping out at the time the first French explorers arrived in the Great Lakes region.

What tribe the Eries took it from before that, nobody knows. The Iroquois conquest was so thorough that there aren't any Eries left today to tell us. But the whole history of America before European colonization was one of the constantly changing tribal jurisdictions, with one tribe taking over land previously occupied by another, sometimes peacefully, mostly through war. The tribes the first white settlers encountered just happened to be the most recent winners.

Thus if the Iroquois or any other Indian nation has a valid claim to land they took from somebody else by virtue of conquest, it would seem that the same should apply to the latest conqueror, the white man.

Democratic administration criticized by reader

To the editor,

I see by the paper that (town) Director Paul Willhide may not run again. I hope it isn't true for he is by far the best director this town has had and the smartest. Just like Nate Agostinelli was the best mayor we ever had. We never needed a tax increase with him.

Then (John) Thompson and the Democrats took over and every year we have a small increase in taxes. We have built a $300,000 lemon (firehouse) in Buckland and have eight men stationed there for what?

I agree with Mr. Willhide that the budget should be thrown back to (Town Manager Robert) Weiss. What are we paying him $30,000 a year for? He is making a mess of this town just as he did in Windsor. He created big salaries for (department) chiefs there like here.

There is a pay raise for (Jay) Giles $23,000 as public works director. None of his supervisors can give you a decent plow or sanding job. Two men ride around in all kinds of trucks all day and the trucks are always empty.

I've talked to people who have retired or quit and they have said their bosses told them to jump in the trucks and ride around and look busy. There is one in middle manager who comes up Hartford Rd. every morning and reports in at Town Hall and then goes back down to a restaurant and stays until 9:15 every day so he actually starts work at 9:30. We are paying him a big salary. Mr. Giles told me that he has to talk over his work at a restaurant. Imagine a $23,000 a year man giving me that answer?

The Democrats don't want Weiss to cut the budget. They want to, and take the credit for it, as it is election year.

They should really cut the school budget and start by cutting (Dr. James) Kennedy, (Wilson) Deakin and the assistant and the five principals and sub-principals.

What this town needs bad is an efficiency man. They need a new school board. They need a new town manager real bad or the taxpayers are going to be sorry.

They need a good housecleaning in the board of directors.

I only hope Mr. Willhide stays on and Mr. (Carl) Zinsser and Mrs. (Vivian) Ferguson and Mrs. (Phyllis) Jackson do too. The others are all in the palm of Mr. Weiss' hand.

Every good thing Mr. Willhide comes up with that will benefit the taxpayers, they are like little kids and vote against him. Every year they have said no tax increase, no new hiring, etc., but still do it.

Let's have a change in November. W. Jorgensen 22 Gardner St. W. Manchester

P.S. — How come Mr. Weiss said the Penny Project would keep the same tax rate for seven years?

News analysis

Court ruling impact remains unclear

By PETER A. BROWN HARTFORD (UPI) — Poorer towns will get more money as the expense of richer communities as a result of a Connecticut Supreme Court ruling declaring the current system of funding public education unconstitutional.

But because the court Monday did not set a deadline for change and left the matter up to the legislature, everything else is unclear, including how much more or less towns will get.

What lawmakers must decide, under the court's watchful eye, is how much equalization is enough. When the lawmakers make that decision, and calculate how much it will cost, they must raise the money.

On the high side, $425 million may be needed to equalize educational opportunities for all students in the state. Less equality will require less cash.

But even the $425 million figure would not mean a $425 million tax increase. Local property taxes would be cut, but probably not as much as other levies are raised.

The court ordered more money go to poorer schools and a distribution formula — the Guaranteed Tax Base program — is already on the books to do that.

Lawmakers, however, have not spent more than $10 million on it previously, although this year they appear willing to support $20 million for GTB.

If relatively small GTB funding increases over a lengthy period are acceptable to the court — and that is unclear — the state may avert having to overhaul its tax structure to eliminate the heavy reliance on the property tax.

But worth noting is that in 1975 Superior Court Judge Jay Rubinow, who declared the system unconstitutional, said $7 million for GTB did not change his decision.

Rubinow apparently will be the Superior Court judge to decide if legislative action is sufficient to comply with the high court order.

In fact, a few people I spoke to later that evening said I got to commenting on his expanded girth, said, "This is because I read some of the things Betty Ryder puts in 'Your Neighbor's Kitchen'."

Patrons of Caye's Restaurant received an unexpected treat that same night when Anthony Scotti and Carol Toscano, Metropolitan special award winners and stars in Gentile's show, stopped in with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Squillacote, his sister, Mary, and her girlfriend, Cathy Mosely, all of Manchester.

Anthony sang a couple of numbers to the delight of the patrons which ended with a round of "Bravo."

I was disappointed last week to have missed Al Gentile's "Sentimental Journey" at Manchester High School. I understand it was a near sell-out and everybody was pleased with the performances.

My intentions were good. I had gone to Bradley International Airport to pick up a friend coming from Miami and found that the plane was running two hours late.

It seems the pilot lost an engine just a half hour out of Miami and turned back. By the time passengers were transferred, along with their luggage, to another plane, time flew — and then they did. Had it arrived on time, I would have been in the audience.

In fact, a few people I spoke to later that evening said I got to commenting on his expanded girth, said, "This is because I read some of the things Betty Ryder puts in 'Your Neighbor's Kitchen'."

Patrons of Caye's Restaurant received an unexpected treat that same night when Anthony Scotti and Carol Toscano, Metropolitan special award winners and stars in Gentile's show, stopped in with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Squillacote, his sister, Mary, and her girlfriend, Cathy Mosely, all of Manchester.

Anthony sang a couple of numbers to the delight of the patrons which ended with a round of "Bravo."

Among those attending the show and also enjoying the added performance at Caye's were Linda and Steve Winkler and the Daniel Fusco, all of Coventry. They all were greatly impressed with Gentile's big band sound and the vaudeville acts which he presented.

It must have been a memorable night for Anthony (he's married to Carol) when he sang "Old Man River." He sang that number just 20 years ago on stage at MHS where he was a student and repeated the performance Wednesday night. Hope I get a chance to see the show when it's in the area again.

Anthony did tell me he'd let me know when he and Carol are coming to town again to visit his parents, and perhaps we can get together and get a few more details about their fabulous careers.

Picking a winner Judging a contest is always difficult and Saturday night was no exception.

The Anderson-Shea Post of the VFW held its annual dinner-dance at which time a "Loyalty Day Queen" was selected.

The young ladies were just lovely, making the decision even harder. They all had definite plans for their future, came from good-sized families and seemed well aware of their responsibilities as youthful citizens in their communities.

The other judges were Ted Cummings, chairman of the Democratic Town Committee; and Wally Irish of the Republican Central Committee; Pat Marone, hair-stylist with Trees Ohio.

The winner was Linda McCarthy daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McCarthy of 34 Main St., Talcottville. She was escorted by Timothy Berger of Vernon. Runner-up was a peppy young lady named Heidi Graff, Heidi, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Wilson of 88 Hilliard St., has been active in the VFW Junior Auxiliary for a few years, and hopes to be a hairdresser when she graduates in June. Her sister, Lois, was also a contestant, and a very pretty one at that. Jean Marie McCarthy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Faulkner of 380 Lake St., Bolton, was a most ambitious contestant and hopes to become a medical secretary or work with disturbed children.

Incidentally, the "Loyalty Day Queen" has been accepted at a Florida college where she is planning to study fashion design.

8th District authority

To the editor,

In past elections, I voted for town officials whom I thought best qualified and most able to make decisions for the betterment of the town.

If the town directors approve the Baldwin-Concord sewer project, is it or is it not their decision? Nowhere did I read or hear that their decisions were subject to approval by the 8th Utilities District.

Where does this district get the power to determine what is done in another district?

Less dependent This does not mean Castro would tell the Soviet Union to get lost in the foreseeable future, no matter how many goodies trade with the U.S. brought his country. But anything that improves Cuba's economic lot would make it less dependent on the Russians and even, perhaps — as McGovern suggests — make Castro receptive to American influence in formulating his foreign policies.

We do better This, Young said, has not happened in East or West Africa. Then he made an obvious point which mostly is forgotten in this country. "We don't have to fear Communism in the age of economic competition," he said. "We do almost everything so much better than they do..."

No dope, Fidel Castro must find himself in private agreement with Young's assessment of American strength. Pondering this fact of life, he might well decide some day that his own personal power would be enhanced if he stopped militarily meddling in the internal affairs of countries like Cuba and used a commercial relationship with the U.S. to improve his own people's way of life.

Budget is continual process

By SHEILA TULLER
Herald Correspondent

"Budget making is a continual process" said Paul Costello, director of finance for the East Hartford schools, when he recently explained the making of a budget.

Costello is waiting for Town Council approval of the 1977-78 Board of Education budget. Council and school board members will discuss the $20,180,135 budget at a workshop May 4. The Council is expected to take final action late in May.

If the Council approves the proposed budget, Costello can relax a little bit. If it's not approved, Costello and School Supt. Eugene Diggs will have to make adjustments.

The superintendent will then go to the school board with recommendations for allocations of budget money. The Council says how much can be spent but the board has the final say on how the dollars are spent.

Though budget making is a continual process through the year, the biggest push for Costello starts in late fall.

As director of finance, Costello issues a calendar to all staff members involved with budget making.

Principals and supervisors must submit equipment requirements by Dec. 1. Their requests for new and replacement equipment are reviewed by the superintendent in late December.

Before Dec. 1, Costello and the supervisor of physical plants review maintenance projects with each building principal. Costello and the supervisor inspect every building with principals and custodians to see what work needs to be done.

In the meantime, the Pupil Accounting Department is collecting data to project the student enrollment for the following year. The number of students in each grade in each school is needed to figure per-pupil costs for field trips, books and school supplies.

In recent years, big savings have been made by ordering school supplies with other area towns through the Capitol Region Education Council, Costello said.

Alan Desmaris, Costello's assistant, projects costs of all utilities, except telephone. Utilities always take a big chunk of budget dollars.

This year, substantial cuts were made in the utilities accounts," Costello said. The board made cuts in the fuel and electricity accounts.

After the first of the year, Costello begins work on the salary division of the budget. All department and school staffs are checked to see if all positions are filled. Teaching staff positions are forwarded by one salary step.

Personnel cuts or additions to staff are figured in the salary proposals. By mid-January, Costello must have the budget printed ready for staff workshops.

The superintendent's proposed budget goes to the Board of Education during the first week of February. From then until the beginning of March, when the budget is due on Mayor Richard Blackstone's desk, the board holds at least a dozen budget workshops.

Budget committee people, principals and supervisors appear before the board to defend all requests. Costello is at every workshop to field questions from board members as they go through each line item.

After every workshop, Costello adjusts the proposed budget where cuts have been made. He makes sure everything is in place and all line items are correct with each new printout. This year, board approval was finally given to the 15th proposed budget.

Costello credits the board with long hours and hard work.

"Each board member has his own priorities where cuts can be made without hurting the education process. It's a difficult job," he said. He knows. He's been doing it since 1972 and it gets harder each year, despite experience gained. With escalating costs, declining enrollment and fewer employees are not saving dollars, no matter how the budget is handled.

EAST HARTFORD/AREA NEWS

TUESDAY, APRIL 19, 1977 PRICE FIFTEEN CENTS

Board will move pupils

The East Hartford Board of Education voted 4-2 Monday night to send more than 100 students from the Woodland School to the Burnside School in the fall.

The board had voted this winter to close Woodland as an elementary school because there are not enough students. It later voted to house the Synergy School there, along with the school system's administrative offices.

Woodland PTA President Kathy Falletti said most Woodland parents prefer to send their children to the new Langford School north of Woodland. A survey she did bore up her statement.

Burnside school parents have said the real reason for Woodland parents' reluctance has to do with the lower income levels of many of Burnside's students. Burnside is much older than Langford but it has been remodeled. Building age has nothing to do with it, they have said.

Voting for sending Woodland students to Burnside were board members Richard Veltri, Barbara Atwood, Joyce Fuggles and Dorothy Carey. Voting against were Emery Daly and Jerry Ingallina.

Parents of 16 Woodland students have asked that their children be admitted to Langford under the open enrollment program in town. The program allows a child to attend a school outside his district if there is room and the parents supply transportation.

Daly warned that Burnside will be crowded next year.

Eugene Diggs said Burnside can handle 500 students without crowding. Even with the Woodland students, they will only be 464 students in Burnside this fall, he said.

Classes will be kept at a maximum of 27, Diggs said. The art and music rooms at Burnside will remain intact, he said.

In other school news this week, the 400-member East Hartford Education Association met Monday after-noon at Penney to discuss a new three-year contract.

The teacher contract provides for 4 per cent raises for 1977-78, 4.2 per cent for 1978-79 and 4.3 per cent for 1979-80. About half the teachers are now at the highest step in seniority, meaning their only raises would be from the contract. Other teachers would get the raise plus the higher pay of higher steps.

The teachers will vote on the contract Friday.

Senior forum disappointing

South Windsor
A recent forum for South Windsor senior citizens, intended to give elderly residents the opportunity to voice their needs, was a disappointment, according to one local official.

Officials had hoped that many town seniors would attend the forum to lend some insight on what type of services and activities were wanted by the elderly.

Instead, however, only those persons who regularly participate in the programs now available attended the meeting.

Social Services Director Peter Santaripa said he knew most of the persons who came, so apparently the forum did not reach those who don't attend organized activities such as the Nutrition Program or the South Windsor Senior Citizens Club.

"It's discouraging," said one local official, "because we hear complaints that we should do more for our senior citizens but when we're ready to listen only those that are happy with the present services show up."

Elderly project on agenda

Vernon
At its meeting tonight at 7:30 in the Memorial Building, the Vernon Town Council will be asked to set a date for a public hearing and special town meeting on funding an addition to the Grove St. housing project for the elderly.

The $30,881 appropriation is being asked to assure that the contract for the addition can be signed by the May 5 deadline in case expected federal funds aren't available by that time.

The low bid for the project was $454,000 and the Department of Community Affairs (DCA) had allotted $390,000. The council has already asked for permission to transfer $20,000 from community development block grant funds earmarked for sidewalk improvements, for site improvements at the Grove St. project.

However, the town has not received approval from DCA to make the transfers yet and rather than jeopardize the entire project is asking for the special appropriation.

Charles Harlow, chairman of the Senior Citizens Advisory Committee, will report tonight on the committee's recommendation to hire a full-time director for the senior citizen center. Recreation Director Donald Berger now oversees the operation.

In executive session, the council will discuss the proposed agreement between the town and the police union.

Charter agency's action may bring finance unit

By BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter

By agreeing to delete one sentence in a section of the town charter, the Charter Revision Commission, in effect, paved the way for a full finance department for Vernon.

This sentence reads: "The director of administration shall be the finance officer until the Town Council shall determine otherwise."

Although the commission, at the start of its workshop meetings, decided its actions will be informal until all the charter has been studied, members did agree it is time to put the issue to voters.

Right now the director of administration is also the finance officer and the purchasing agent. On suggestion of Seymour Lavitt, commission chairman, the members also agreed that perhaps the "finance officer" should be changed to controller. This person would be responsible to the director of administration, and through him, to the mayor.

Steven Marchant and Joseph Meruzzo, Town Council members, sat in on the meeting for a while and were asked to participate in the discussion.

Marchant said he feels that the mechanics of the hierarchy in the Board of Education business office is better equipped because of the presence of a business manager.

"Therefore I would endorse your proposal," Lavitt, who was instrumental in the consolidation of the town's government and the planning of the charter, said he strongly felt that the sentence in question was a transitional one. He said he feels that the original Charter Commission thought the town would be having a finance department soon.

John Daigle, who also served on the former commission, said he didn't think that was the intent because they knew there couldn't be a finance department right away.

Commission member Stanley Sadak said he feels this would be a matter of economics. Lavitt said it would be more than that; it would also be a matter of qualification. He questioned whether the town could get as qualified a person for a full-time job as it does for the part-time one.

Commission member Fred McKone cautioned that it would not be possible to get a full-time attorney who is qualified for $20,000. Lavitt said, "I would like to know what we would get out of a full-time attorney that we don't get now."

He asked the commission members if they would be in favor of changing this section of the charter and they said, unanimously, "no."

McMahon and Kearney have also collected a total of six doubles and one triple in pacing the offensive. The former is a first baseman who hit several tape-measure drives while with the Eagles while Kearney is a pitcher who is the designated hitter when not working on the mound.

"It's the best one-two punch that we've ever had here," Pat Mistretta, director of athletics, said, adding, "both could play with most state colleges."

Kearney boasts a .333 batting average and McMahon is in the best circle at .306 after 10 games.

Off the cuff East Hartford's entry in the Hartford Twilight Baseball League this season will be sponsored by Hartford Jay-Alai. Mike Lippes will again coach the squad which competed as the Merchants last summer. Lippes is the current Penn High varsity baseball mentor. Gene Johnson, Moriarty's baseball manager, is on the lookout for a catcher for the Twilight team.

Three members of a Talcottville family were charged in connection with the incident, Erwin Drury Sr., 44, was charged with threatening, in-law, interfering with a police officer and assault on a police officer; Erwin Drury Jr., 20, was charged with breach of peace and assault on a police officer.

Police said they were called by neighbors of Pastor Knox. They said apparently he had asked the three to leave his property and they refused to do so and allegedly became abusive.

When police officers arrived, the three men were near their own home on Main St., Talcottville, and they became abusive to the officers. Sgt. John Stodd and Officer Thomas Mair were taken to the hospital, treated and released. Officer William Yetz, who also was at the scene, was injured.

The two older Drury boys were treated and released at the hospital. Erwin Sr. was held at the police station overnight in lieu of posting a $5,000 bond and Erwin Jr. was held over in lieu of posting a $1,000 bond. They were to appear in Common Pleas Court 19, Rockville, today.

Arthur Drury was released on a $250 non-surety bond for appearance in court May 11.

One-two punch Coach Skip Olander's Manchester Community College baseball team this spring has been two Catholic high products, Tom Kearney out of Northwest Catholic and Mark McMahon from East Catholic.

The pair has accounted for nine home runs in MCC's first nine games this season, Kearney stroking five and McMahon four.

The two have also accounted for 23 runs batted in and the first-year players have also tallied a total of 27 runs.

McMahon and Kearney have also collected a total of six doubles and one triple in pacing the offensive. The former is a first baseman who hit several tape-measure drives while with the Eagles while Kearney is a pitcher who is the designated hitter when not working on the mound.

Representatives of the Rec and Legion have agreed to the following participation guidelines regarding Manchester youngsters interested in playing in both programs simultaneously. It is the intent of the Legion to supplement the accomplishments of the Rec by providing added competition. In order for Manchester residents to play on the Legion Junior team, they must be a member of a team in the Rec program. In the event of conflict, youngsters will be expected to fulfill all obligations to his Rec team first.

Manchester youngsters interested in playing for the Legion should register for the Legion program. Thirteen and 14-year olds should register for Alumni Juniors, then attend tryouts for both programs. Fifteen year olds and those who'll turn 16 after June 15 should register for the Intertown League, then attend tryouts for both teams.

Courage profile BOSTON (UPI) — Every runner in the 81st Boston Marathon had a story. For Brinkman's was a profile in young courage.

The second place finisher among a field of seven in the wheelchair division, Brinkman, 25, of Provo, Utah, lost both his legs seven years ago while working with a power company crew.

The six-foot-six former basketball player said his heart stopped when his legs hit the live wire, then actually started again when he hit the ground 25 feet below. "I looked up and said: 'Oh my God, let me die,'" Brinkman recalled.

Now married, Brinkman is looking ahead to plans to become a basketball coach.

He said he owed part of his second finish to the 26-mile run and the 9,685 feet on under three hours, to roadside mechanics.

"Twice along the course, I had to pull into a gas station because one of my wheels froze up," Brinkman said. "The people in the gas stations were better than A.J. Foy's pit crew could ever be. They were just terrific getting me back out on the course."

Bob Hall, 25, of Belmont, Mass., finished first in about two hours and 40 minutes, an average of less than six minutes and 10 seconds for each mile.

Hall held out his grimy hands after the race and revealed a large broken blister on his little finger. His muscular arms hardly bore a drop of sweat and his words came without effort.

Jordan pitches six-hitter as Tribe blanks Fermi

By LEN AUSTER Herald Sports Editor

Five fiery inning runs and Mike Jordan's strong pitching performance powered Manchester High to a 9-0 CCIL baseball victory over Fermi High yesterday in Enfield.

Jordan, junior lefthander, got stronger as the afternoon heat dissipated. He ran into difficulties in the first and fourth frames, the Falcons loading the bases each time with one out, but escaped both occasions without any damage.

Jordan, now 11, struck out 11, walked only three and scattered six hits in leading the Silk Troopers to their second victory in four starts.

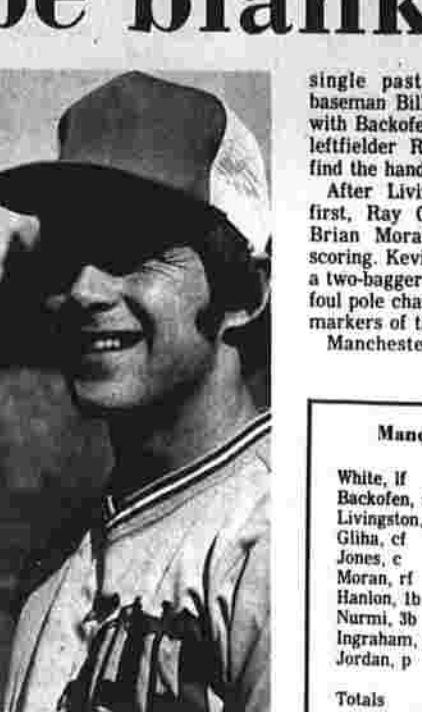

Fermi starter and loser Jim Chevalier, 1-1, allowed the Indians only one safety thru four innings but was struck out by Jordan. Only white and Jeff Backston singled with both runners moving up on a wild pitch.

Frank Livingston then delivered a single past the glove of third baseman Bill Pelton scoring White with Backston also coming home as leftfielder Roger Giguere couldn't find the handle.

After Livingston got picked off first, Ray Gilha, Tom Jones and Brian Moran singled with Gilha scoring. Kevin Hanlon followed with a two-bagger just inside the leftfield foul pole chasing home the final two members of the team.

Manchester's other tally came across in the ninth inning as Livingston scored on an error, stole second and scored on a Jones single to left. The RBI was Jones' sixth of the campaign which gives him the team-lead.

Backston and Jones each had a pair of safeties for Manchester with Stu Sibley getting two scratch infield hits for Fermi, also 2-2 for the season. Jordan abetting his own cause picked two runners off first base.

Red Sox question marks produce

BOSTON (UPI) — It was day when the question marks turned into exclamation points. Young Dutch Hobson, who ousted Rico Petrocelli from a third base job, hit a two-run homer and drove in a third run and Steve Dillard, still trying to prove himself as a big leaguer, hit three hits Monday as the Boston Red Sox tipped the Detroit Tigers, 5-3.

In addition, pitcher Jim Willoughby, who held out for more money after claiming he was a better pitcher than last year's 3-12 record, sailed Boston out of ninth inning trouble by throwing one pitch. Aurelio Rodriguez, a pest to Boston hitters over the years, hit Willoughby's sinkerball into a game-ending double play.

Hobson, a 234 hitter last year, had better success with a sixth inning sinker thrown by loser Fernando Lugo. The drive into the leftfield screen lifted Boston from a 3-2 deficit into a 4-3 lead that gave Ferguson Jenkins his first win.

"Butch went down and dug it out," said manager Don Zimmerman, who handed Hobson the job last July. Hobson also hit an eighth inning sacrifice fly that accounted for Boston's lead.

Dillard, a good hitter who twice-repaired right shoulder has hindered his progress, started at second base for the first time this season. He had three hits, scoring a first inning run and driving in a second inning tally, to offset Ben Oglivie's two-run homer for Detroit in the first inning.

Then Willoughby came in to make his first contribution of the season. It makes me think of 1975 when I made one pitch, got a doubleplay and got a save," said the sidearm pitcher. The pitch was a fast ball down the middle and sinking. I was very conscious of not overthrowing. I wanted to throw it nice and easy.

I threw about 100 pitches in the bullpen to get ready for the one pitch that I had to throw in the game," said Willoughby who was "kind of disappointed with the way my first couple of appearances looked out." Carl Yaztremski, who had three hits for Boston, won his third game against five losses this season. The Tigers are 3-7.

Ray Bare, 0-1, faces rookie Bob Stanley, 0-0, tonight in the second contest of the four-game series.

Cards beginning to flex muscles

NEW YORK (UPI) — Manager Vern Rapp may not be kidding when he says the St. Louis Cardinals are only beginning to flex their muscles.

"We had such a tough conditioning program during the spring that the guys might have been too tired to hit," says the rookie manager. "Now they're getting the chance." Whatever the reason, the Cardinals are producing at the plate this season, have won seven of their first 10 games, are in first place and must now be viewed as potential contenders.

Ken Reitz hit the key blow Monday night — a two-run homer in the sixth inning which lifted the Cardinals to a 3-2 victory over the New York Mets. Reitz's homer came off Craig Swan for Detroit in the first inning. Reitz Simons opened the inning with a single.

Bob Forsch received credit for his third straight victory although he gave way to Al Hrabosky with one out in the eighth. Hrabosky retired the side.

The Yankees also managed only four hits but committed many errors in helping Blue Jays' right-hander Dave Lemaynyk to an easy out-going victory.

Meanwhile, it was announced that catcher Hunter had been placed on the 31-day disabled list.

Skateboarders cautioned on street use dangers
 Police Chief Robert D. Lannan has issued a caution to parents about permitting their children to ride skateboards on Manchester streets. The popularity of skateboards has resulted in increased presence of the boards on town streets, Lannan said, posing not only a hazard to traffic, but most importantly, to the children who ride them. He reminds residents that the Connecticut General Statutes forbids such activity on the roads by a pedestrian. He has instructed his officers to enforce the regulations. Lannan asks the cooperation of parents in putting a stop to this dangerous practice.

UTC mum on takeover plan

HARTFORD (UPI)—Shareholders Monday got their say at the annual meeting of United Technologies Corp. but heard nothing of the firm's proposed takeover of Babcock & Wilcox Co.

UTC Chairman Harry J. Gray told the overflow crowd of 1,400 stockholders that lawyers advised him to keep silent on the acquisition effort which is being opposed by B&W.

Gray also defended his $650,000 yearly salary and heard charges that the board of the giant firm, the world's largest producer of jet engines, discriminated against minorities. UTC has offered to buy any and all of B&W common stock at $42 a share, which would cost about $512 million. George G. Zipf, chairman of B&W, earlier this month called the offer "grossly inadequate" and charged the attempted takeover by UTC is apparently "related to the imminent development of a national policy. We cannot avoid suspicion of anticipatory piracy," Zipf said.

B&W, a major producer of nuclear and coal generating equipment, had $1.7 billion in sales and net income of $53.1 million last year. B&W earlier announced it would seek a federal injunction against UTC and a hearing on the matter before the Ohio Department of Commerce will be held April 25. UTC shareholders were told of a dividend increase from 30 cents to 45 cents a share and strong first quarter earnings gains. The payout represents a 50 per cent dividend increase.

First quarter sales were $1.36 billion and it earned $45.7 million, or $1.40, a share compared to $1.19 billion in sales and earnings of $36.1 million, or $1.23 a share, for the same period last year, Gray said. He also reported that backlog of business stood at a record $8.3 billion. Stockholder Lewis Gilbert commented on an $81,000 increase of Gray's $569,000 salary, and wondered that without a ceiling "it's going to be a million dollars a year." Walter H. Clark said the salary was "more than enough to keep the wolf away from the door" and he asked if morale might be improved if there was a smaller spread between the lowest and highest company paychecks. Gray said morale wouldn't change "if I'm paid $650,000 or $250,000." He said morale did not depend on his salary but rather the employees' own paychecks. Gray is the largest single stockholder of the company, with 145,000 shares. Mary Jane Tocci, called UTC's "all white, all male" board "a disgrace." Ms. Tocci, a member of Education-Instruction, a Hartford-based civil rights group, said above cutbacks and boos that UTC's affirmative action plan "was a drop in the bucket." Gray said the company is considering appointing women and minority members to the board but is "not rushing in just to have a token representative of minority or female."

EDC responds to appeal in Shorts land zoning

The attorneys representing the Manchester Economic Development Commission (EDC) have challenged five of the 11 claims made in the second appeal of zone changes granted for the proposed industrial park.

Atty. Rolland Castleman and Jules Karp filed their answer Tuesday, the answer date listed in the appeal of Suzanne Shorts, who owns a parcel of land that would be divided by a northeast boundary of the park. Mrs. Shorts, who is represented by Atty. Herbert Phelon, has said that a second zone change granted on Feb. 28 for the park would create a split-zone for her 36-acre parcel. This second zone change, for northeast and northwest sections of the park, was granted separately from the park's major zone change, which has also been appealed.

The appeal for the major zone change was denied by the Court of Common Pleas, but the plaintiffs have until Monday to appeal that decision to the state Supreme Court.

Mrs. Shorts is concerned that, if the park does not develop, she will have a parcel of property that is partially residentially zoned and partially industrially zoned. Atty. Castleman and Karp have challenged one of the claims in the Shorts appeal that says the EDC had no interest in the property at the time it applied for the zone change and that Mrs. Shorts had not given her consent to such an application. The appeal also says that the EDC failed to get approval from various agencies, including the town Board of Directors and the state Department of Commerce, for the project plan prior to submitting the plan. This claim has also been challenged by Castleman and Karp. Another claim that is challenged says that the EDC applied for the zone change for the purpose of selling property to the J.C. Penney Co., which would be the major tenant of the park.

The EDC attorneys also deny the appellant's claims that the Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC), which granted the zone change, acted arbitrarily and that the EDC has no legal or equitable interest in the property that was rezoned. The claims that were unchallenged by the EDC attorneys were those that listed the dates of actions by the PZC and EDC, that declared Mrs. Shorts is a Manchester taxpayer, and that the town and Penney had not signed a contract when the zone change was granted.

Karp said this morning that he does not know if he and Castleman will again file a request for an immediate trial for this appeal. Such a motion was filed, and granted, for the first appeal. "We'll see how things go," Karp said. He said that the motion for immediate trial would be sought "if it appears this (Mrs. Shorts') appeal will cause delay."

The word "blight" struck Council again Tuesday night. Councilman James O. Republican, defended his statement two weeks ago that there are at least four areas of town that are blighted. He noted that Richard Blackstone, a Democrat, had said Cordier insulted the working residents of these areas by trying to keep up their homes.

Cordier said, "The hardworking residents are really insulted."

Mayor

"James Daken doesn't know what he's talking about," said East Hartford Mayor Richard Blackstone.

The mayor was responding to comments made by Daken, Hartford city manager, about the town's application for funds under the federal Community Development Act (CDA).

"I don't think Mr. Daken has been here," said the mayor. "I can't have any knowledge of the subject matter."

Daken said East Hartford's application for $440,000 through the act does not meet the intent of the act. He said 60 per cent of the funds will go for public works in East Hartford, not projects to directly help the poor.

Blight dispute hits Town Council again

By MAL BARLOW
East Hartford Reporter

The word "blight" struck the Town Council again Tuesday night. Councilman James Cordier, Republican, defended his statements of two weeks ago that there are at least four areas of town threatened by blight. He noted that Mayor Richard Blackstone, a Democrat, had said Cordier insulted hard-working residents of these areas who try to keep up their homes. Cordier said, "The hard working residents are really insulted by their neighbors and absentee landlords who let their property deteriorate." He admitted the charges made against him by Democratic leaders angered him. He said he was citing the 1970 Purcell report on community renewal in town. The town does have blighted areas, he said. He made a motion the council tour the areas in question and then pass stronger ordinances for dealing with any blight found. Esther Clarke, Republican minority leader, seconded the motion. Councilman Dick Torpey, Democrat, said, "I see no harm in going around looking. But this talk about deterioration is a lot of nonsense. And I dislike all this publicity about blight. It hurts the town." Torpey moved the council table Cordier's motion and discuss it later. Councilman William Dailey, Democrat, seconded the motion. Torpey's motion to table passed 4-3 along political party lines. Cordier said he will not drop the issue. "I received quite a bit of support in pursuing the matter," he said.

Mayor raps city critic

"James Daken doesn't know what he's talking about," said East Hartford Mayor Richard Blackstone. The mayor was responding to comments made by Daken, Hartford's city manager, about the town's third application for funds under the federal Community Development Act (CDA). "I don't think Mr. Daken has ever been here," said the mayor. "He can't have any knowledge of the subject matter." Daken said East Hartford's application for $440,000 through CDA does not meet the intent of the 1974 act. He said 60 per cent of the money will go for public works in East Hartford, not projects to directly benefit the poor.

Blackstone said quality of life for all is his target. Town leaders must take care of all needs. They must insure there are enough jobs, the local economy stays strong, and blight does not creep in, he said. Blackstone said he cannot even guess what the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) will say about the town's application. The town failed to get its first two applications. "I hope HUD will be objective," he said. Despite criticism from Hartford leaders, East Hartford groups have supported Blackstone on this third application. The Human Relations Commission endorsed it although its members rarely agree with the mayor. The League of Women Voters also approved it. The application asks for $166,000 for storm sewers in the Park Ave. and Tolland St. area. It asks for $100,000 for a School St. culvert to control Goodwin Brook. To repair private housing, the mayor is asking for $100,000. It will be given homeowners through loans and grants. Another $50,000 is sought for repairs to the town's 879 public housing units. And $4,000 is sought for a fair housing campaign. The final $20,000 in the application is for a community development coordinator. One of his jobs will be to study the town's needs for day care for children.

East Hartford chamber opposes jobless change

The East Hartford Chamber of Commerce has taken a stand against paying compensation to workers who quit or are fired from their jobs, said John Hornbeck, executive vice president. The state's unemployment compensation system was meant to help people laid off during business slow-downs, he said. It has come to be a welfare system supported by employers, he said.

The benefits are paid solely by a tax on business and industry. These taxes are among the highest in the country, he said. People who leave work voluntarily overload this system, he said. The chamber has contacted the town's three representatives and one senator to urge them to pass the "quits and fires" bill. The bill would stop compensation payments to people who quit or are fired for cause.

Police report

East Hartford
Barney Van Harris, 25, of 1141 Tolland St., East Hartford, was arrested Tuesday and charged with third-degree burglary and third-degree larceny. Harris allegedly stole over $400 worth of meat from the Ramada Inn Monday, police said. Harris had been working at the hotel as a dishwasher. He posted a $500 surety bond for appearance in Common Pleas Court 12 in East Hartford May 9.

Legion resumes game

Bingo will return to the American Legion Post 77 in East Hartford Friday night. A fire March 5 behind a fan in the bar caused heavy damage to the hall at 50 Connecticut Blvd. Fire Marshal John Armstrong cited wiring as the cause.

Rocky Alexander, a legionnaire and local contractor, took charge of repair work. He put in new wiring, new ceilings, paneled walls and more. This week the hall is ready. Bingo can resume Friday nights this week. The early bird special opens at 7:30 p.m.

Police are seeking the maker of very small footprints in a calendar caper. Police found the footprints at the door to Arrow Welding, 15 Nelson St., Tuesday morning. A small hole had been broken in the door by the knob and entry had been gained. The only item missing from the firm appears to be a Playboy calendar, police said.

Lt. Arleigh Christensen, in driver's seat, and men of his command at the Forbes St. fire station pose with their pride, a 1940 pumper still used to fight fires. His men are, left to right, George Crowley, John LeBel and John McGrath. (Herald photo by Barlow)

Old pumper wins prizes

Fire fighters at East Hartford's Forbes St. station took their old Mack pumper to the fire department muster in Broad Brook in April 1976. Despite the rundown condition of the old unit, the men lost first place by only two points. A unit from Crystal Lake took first. "So we decided to fix it up," said fire fighter George Crowley. The men of the station did not restore the pumper. This would have ruined its special antique status. But they did refurbish it. The pumper still has its original paint and brass. The only new items are tires and rubber pieces, likely to wear out often. No other replacements are allowed or it loses its antique status, Crowley said. Lt. Arleigh Christensen, a shift commander at the station, said Chief

Michael Fitzgerald gave the men his full okay to work on the pumper. But the pumper had to remain an on-line unit. Even the old pumper could help the department keep good insurance ratings if it could be considered a usable vehicle. Deputy Chief Edward Heimer, the department's retired master mechanic, worked on the pumper's engine. Town merchants donated services and supplies. One firm did a free brake job, said Christensen. About 16 fire fighters spent hours working over the pumper. Their next parade after Broad Brook came June 12, 1976. The pumper was ready for its second contest, this time in the Manchester Bicentennial Parade. The Manchester parade drew many units from all over the state.

Yet the East Hartford unit and pumper won the prize for "Best Appearing Antique Motorized Apparatus." The fire fighters and the pumper went on last year to more glory. They took top prizes in Bicentennial parades in Simsbury, Broad Brook, Warehouse Point, Ellington and Stafford Springs. Often they won over the same Crystal Lake unit which had beaten them the previous April. Crowley is the man most responsible for getting the project under way and completing it, said Christensen. He kept everyone organized and interested. Crowley said the fire fighters have already planned to enter eight parades this summer. The old pumper is better than ever, he said. They hope to bring home more trophies.

"I hope HUD will be objective," he said. Despite criticism from Hartford leaders, East Hartford groups have supported Blackstone on this third application. The Human Relations Commission endorsed it although its members rarely agree with the mayor. The League of Women Voters also approved it. The application asks for $166,000 for storm sewers in the Park Ave. and Tolland St. area. It asks for $100,000 for a School St. culvert to control Goodwin Brook. To repair private housing, the mayor is asking for $100,000. It will be given homeowners through loans and grants. Another $50,000 is sought for repairs to the town's 879 public housing units. And $4,000 is sought for a fair housing campaign. The final $30,000 in the application is for a community development coordinator. One of his jobs will be to study the town's needs for day care for children.

East Hartford chamber opposes jobless change

The East Hartford Chamber of Commerce has taken a stand against paying compensation to workers who quit or are fired from their jobs, said John Hornbeck, executive vice president. The state's unemployment compensation system was meant to help people laid off during business slow-downs, he said. It has come to be a welfare system supported by employers, he said.

The benefits are paid solely by a tax on business and industry. These taxes are among the highest in the country, he said. People who leave work voluntarily overload this system, he said. The chamber has contacted the town's three representatives and one senator to urge them to pass the "quits and fires" bill. The bill would stop compensation payments to people who quit or are fired for cause.

Barney Van Harris, 25, of 1141 Tolland St., East Hartford, was arrested Tuesday and charged with third-degree burglary and third-degree larceny. Harris allegedly stole over $400 worth of meat from the Ramada Inn Monday, police said. Harris had been working at the hotel as a dishwasher. He posted a $500 surety bond for appearance in Common Pleas Court 12 in East Hartford May 9.

Old pumper wins prizes

Fire fighters at East Hartford's Forbes St. station took their old Mack pumper to the fire department muster in Broad Brook in April 1976. Despite the rundown condition of the old unit, the men lost first place by only two points. A unit from Crystal Lake took first. "So we decided to fix it up," said fire fighter George Crowley. The men of the station did not restore the pumper. This would have ruined its special antique status. But they did refurbish it. The pumper still has its original paint and brass. The only new items are tires and rubber pieces, likely to wear out often. No other replacements are allowed or it loses its antique status, Crowley said. Lt. Arleigh Christensen, a shift commander at the station, said Chief

Michael Fitzgerald gave the men his full okay to work on the pumper. But the pumper had to remain an on-line unit. Even the old pumper could help the department keep good insurance ratings if it could be considered a usable vehicle. Deputy Chief Edward Heimer, the department's retired master mechanic, worked on the pumper's engine. Town merchants donated services and supplies. One firm did a free brake job, said Christensen. About 16 fire fighters spent hours working over the pumper. Their next parade after Broad Brook came June 12, 1976. The pumper was ready for its second contest, this time in the Manchester Bicentennial Parade. The Manchester parade drew many units from all over the state.

Yet the East Hartford unit and pumper won the prize for "Best Appearing Antique Motorized Apparatus." The fire fighters and the pumper went on last year to more glory. They took top prizes in Bicentennial parades in Simsbury, Broad Brook, Warehouse Point, Ellington and Stafford Springs. Often they won over the same Crystal Lake unit which had beaten them the previous April. Crowley is the man most responsible for getting the project under way and completing it, said Christensen. He kept everyone organized and interested. Crowley said the fire fighters have already planned to enter eight parades this summer. The old pumper is better than ever, he said. They hope to bring home more trophies.

Legion resumes game

Bingo will return to the American Legion Post 77 in East Hartford Friday night. A fire March 5 behind a fan in the bar caused heavy damage to the hall at 50 Connecticut Blvd. Fire Marshal John Armstrong cited wiring as the cause. The early bird special opens at 7:30 p.m.

Rocky Alexander, a legionnaire and local contractor, took charge of repair work. He put in new wiring, new ceilings, paneled walls and more. This week the hall is ready. Bingo can resume Friday nights this week. The early bird special opens at 7:30 p.m.

Elderly director urged

Vernon

Transportation and nutrition are two major problems of the Vernon senior citizens and the town should consider hiring a full-time director to meet these needs, Charles Harlow, chairman of the Senior Citizens' Advisory Commission told the Town Council Monday night.

However, due to the illness of Mayor Thomas Benoit, Mayor Pro-Tem Thomas Dooley asked the council to delay action on the report until the next council meeting.

Harlow said senior citizens are split into two factions and "it would take the world's greatest charmer" to heal the split.

The commission, appointed by Benoit in January 1976, conducted a general overview of senior citizen activities.

The forming of the commission led to appointment of a Senior Citizens

Advisory Council to represent the interests of its peers.

The commission explored all areas of concern to the seniors.

Harlow said there is a waiting list of more than 200 in the senior citizen housing projects. He said two new projects are about to be built to ease this problem.

He said the commission didn't have time or resources to go into detail on economic and legal needs. He said the commission is aware there is free legal assistance available.

He also said there are local and state programs available for seniors who wish to work.

In the area of health, monthly general health check-ups are conducted at the Senior Citizens Center and at several of the housing projects. Harlow said preventive health care is weak because of economic problems.

The commission said there are a variety of recreation programs and all are excellent. However, it was noted there are only a few cultural activities, but there should be improvement with the new Arts Commission.

He urged that the town make a tremendous effort to improve the two major problems, transportation and nutrition.

Harlow also said there is a need for more homemaker services and home health care, plus a need for pre-retirement counseling in financial matters.

In recommending a full-time director, the commission said the person should answer directly to the town administrator and have an advisory board to work with.

"The commission has come to the conclusion that the present needs of the senior citizens are not being met in total in the town of Vernon. Part-time efforts will not be successful in achieving the goal of creating a satisfactory environment for seniors," Harlow said.

Dooley noted the split in opinions among seniors. One faction wants the seniors to direct their own activities and run the center. Another group is happy under the direction of the recreation department.

Dooley noted that the Senior Citizens Center is town property. Therefore the town has to provide an official structure for its use. He said town property can't be turned over to any one group.

Area police report

Vernon

Jose Morales, 35, of 32 Park Pl., Rockville, was charged Tuesday with disorderly conduct. He was involved in a disturbance at the Rockville Shopping Plaza, police said. Court date is May 11 in Rockville.

Joseph E. DeLaurentis, 20, of 10 Laurel St., Rockville, was arrested Tuesday on a warrant charging him with third-degree larceny. Police said the arrest involved the theft of a television set from a former employer. Court date is May 11.

Michael Tyler, 21, of West Hartford, and Robert Zapert, 27, of Orchard St., East Hartford, were charged with breach of peace Tuesday. They were involved in a fight in the parking lot of the Faces Cafe, police said. Court date is May 2 in Stafford.

South Windsor

Mark A. Dwyer, 16, of 160 Edgewood Dr., South Windsor, was arrested Tuesday on a court warrant charging him with third-degree criminal mischief. Police said the charge stems from March 13 vandalism at Pleasant Valley Estates. Court date is May 2.

A 13-year-old boy was referred to juvenile authorities Tuesday after police accused him of stealing a bicycle in a Christine Lane garage burglary. The bike was recovered.

Council mulls 'outreach'

South Windsor

The South Windsor Town Council may reconsider its decision to eliminate an outreach worker for the town's senior citizens.

VISTA volunteer Judith Bogatz told the Town Council Tuesday night that the position was necessary to adequately meet the needs of the town's rapidly increasing elderly population.

Mrs. Bogatz said there are more than 600 senior citizens in town, and only about 150 are now being reached.

She will resign her position Friday after two years of work with the town's elderly at the daily Nutrition Program at St. Peter's Episcopal Church.

The council is expected to re-evaluate the outreach worker position at the end of its budget deliberations.

Meanwhile, the council continues to slice and pare the general government budget in hopes of keeping any possible tax increase at a minimum.

Eliminated from the proposed budget this week was the Police Department's request for an extra car, and the lowering of the estimated cost for five other cars — a savings of $10,807 in the budget.

Approved, however, was a new car for Town Manager Paul Talbot, which will cost the town $3,571.

Talbot is now driving a 1973 auto.

The Public Works Department will get its requested $38,000 for backlogs, but the council cut $41,000 from the department's budget for a new street sweeper. The town now needs two street sweepers. One is a 1940 model, according to Public Works Director Allan Young.

The council hopes for a minimum increase in taxes, with one councilman estimating "Maybe a couple of mill increase."

Councilwoman Cleo Decker said Tuesday the council "must decide what the tax rate should be and order dollar cuts from various departments...letting them decide," where the cuts will come from.

Sewer work will resume

South Windsor

Sewer installation on Pierce Rd. — halted several weeks ago because of damage to the roadway — will be resumed, according to South Windsor Town Manager Paul Talbot.

Town Engineer Allan Young told the Town Council the reason the road was not standing up well during the sewer project work is because "the base under the road is probably no good."

The Pierce Rd. sewer project is the first of the $8 million sewer installations approved in a referendum last year.

The Pierce Rd. installations have caused problems for residents along the work path as well.

The 200-year-old home of Roger Smith, located at 3 Pierce Rd., suffered cracked plaster and ceilings.

Smith has appealed to the Town Council for assistance in paying $520 to make repairs, as well as for repair of damage done to the driveway.

Councilman John Mitchell has asked the council to establish some sort of policy for handling such damage claims.

A neighbor of Smith has reportedly also suffered damage to his home, but repaired it at his own expense.

Reported damage is apparently done by severe vibrations caused by a hydraulic machine used in trenching work.

In a letter to the Town Council, Smith said the vibrations were so bad, "the house suffered innumerable cracks in plaster walls and ceilings as plates slid off their shelves and pictures went askew."

The Smith home was built in 1790 and has had a great deal of restoration work done since 1963.

The council has yet to take any action in the matter, but will do so in the near future.

Selectmen hear problems

Bolton

Several Bolton residents with different problems attended the Board of Selectmen's meeting Tuesday night, to suggest the town buy the Bolton Ice Palace for a municipal center; to complain about a driveway permit; and to request signs on Hebron Rd.

H. Virginia Butterfield suggested town consider buying the ice palace. She said it consists of the structure and 18 acres of land, zoned properly. Mrs. Butterfield said it could be used for the solid waste transfer station, proposed firehouse, dog pound, town garage and other future needs.

The selectmen thought the idea was "marvelous" and "excellent."

Selectmen will send a letter to the Planning Commission, asking it to review the proposal with the thought of converting the present structure into a municipal center.

The letter will ask that reconsideration be given to the town plan, which does not permit the suggested uses in that location.

A group of Hollis Hills Trail residents objected to a driveway permit issued to Alan Robbins by Donato Rattazzi, road foreman.

The residents allege the driveway will be used for two dwellings. Robbins is clearing land and there is a question of whether or not he owns the property.

The residents said there is now a road from Camp Meeting Rd. that serves the two houses, but Robbins wants that road closed and wants an entrance from Hollis Hills Trail.

First Selectman David Dreselly suggested the people consult a lawyer, but those people objected to "going into debt" for questions town officials should be able to answer.

One resident said, "I think as taxpayers we are entitled to some answers. I do not see how a town can operate this way."

A letter will be sent to the Planning Commission asking it to review the

Coventry meeting is tonight

Coventry residents will decide whether to buy a 22-acre site on Talcott Hill Rd. and Rt. 31 to house a central town facility at tonight's Special Town Meeting, scheduled for 7:30 at Coventry High School.

The Town Council proposes to build a town garage, police department and parking area for town trucks and school buses on the site, which is in a residential area.

The council recommends that $35,000 in federal revenue sharing funds be used to help pay the $42,000 parcel. Unappropriated cash surplus will be used for the other $7,000.

Other proposed revenue sharing appropriations include $3,602 for a high school safety program, $1,000 for repairs to the Booth & Dimock Library, and $600 to cover financial administration of the federal grants.

Request granted

The Coventry Town Council agreed Monday night to a request from the Coventry Baseball Association for $68 to repair town baseball fields, dugout, bleachers and the refreshment stand.

Members of the association said volunteer workers will help with some of the projects.

The majority of the Town Council meeting was spent with the Sewer Authority. The authority outlined its proposed sewer system.

A public hearing about the regional proposal, which would cost Coventry residents $855,000, will be held June 1.

The proposed system will provide sewers for 700 existing homes and businesses on sections of Rt. 31 near Coventry Lake.

The Town Council will meet tonight after the Special Town Meeting to complete its agenda and continue reviewing the 1977-78 budget.

Vernon police pact set

By BARBARA RICHMOND

A three-year contract for the Vernon Police Department was ratified by the Town Council last night. It becomes effective in July and allows for alternate three and four per cent salary increases every six months until January 1980.

The pact was approved by Local 483, International Brotherhood of Police Officers, last night. It replaces an existing three-year pact which ends June 30.

The council approved the contract in a 10-minute executive session last night. It was explained by Stephen Marchant, chairman of the council's negotiations committee.

The wage scale is in five steps. The starting salary for a sergeant is $7.19 an hour. At the last step, the fifth-year, it is $7.47 an hour, making the minimum salary $14,487 and the top $15,537 during the first year of the contract. This increases to a peak of $8.91 an hour in the final year of the contract.

For patrolmen, the starting salary is $6.86 an hour in the first year, with a peak of $6.75. In the third year, it rises to $8.06.

Police department employees will be entitled to longevity pay for continuous service as follows: After 10 years, $125; after 15 years, $175; for the first year of the contract. Effective July 1, 1978, these amounts will increase by $25. They will be paid in a lump sum on the employee's anniversary date of employment.

The contract allows for 14 paid holidays; the town pays for Blue Cross, CMS, life insurance, and accidental death and dismemberment insurance.

In the current contract the retirement age is 58 if the employee has completed at least 10 years of credited service. This will change to age 57 during the first year of the new contract and to 56 in the third year.

The contract also provides for a clothing allowance of $275 per year. Starting July 1, 1978, this allowance will go up to $300. The town also agrees to pay the cost of cleaning uniforms.

The contract has a "no strike" provision which states that during the life of the agreement "there shall be no strikes."
