Joins 10-gallon donor club

John W. Klein of 27 Frances Dr. is presented with a key chain and tie tack from the Red Cross in recognition of his blood donation during the Bloodmobile visit Wednesday at Concordia Lutheran Church. Klein's donation made him a 10-gallon donor. Making the presentation is Mrs. Edith Waterfield of 98 Kennedy Rd., Red Cross volunteer chairman of the day. Klein is a foreman-dyer at Cheney Bros and has given blood regularly for about 25 years.

High court hearing asked in Buckland park dispute

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Attys. Bruce Beck and Anthony Pagano, who represent seven clients, have filed a petition for certification with the state Supreme Court, the first step in appealing the Common Pleas Court decision on the appeal of the industrial park zone change.

Common Pleas Court Judge M. Morgan Kline issued a ruling on April 4 that denied the appeal of the Planning and Zoning Commission's decision to grant a zone change needed for Manchester's proposed industrial park. The appellants are now seeking to appeal that decision to the state Supreme Court.

The petition for certification is a request that the state's highest court hear an appeal of the lower court's decision. The Supreme Court has to rule favorably on the petition before it will hear the appeal.

Beck and Pagano, who represent four homeowners within the park's proposed site and three other clients, filed the original appeal denied by Judge Kline's decision.

The 393-acre park is proposed for a site near Exit 93 of I-86. The J.C. Penney Co. wants to locate a two-million square foot catalog distribution center in Manchester and would be the park's major tenant.

The PZC's decision, issued on Jan. 17, approved a change to Industrial Zone for 245 of the park's 393 acres. The remainder of the park property was already properly zoned or was included in a second smaller zone change granted Feb. 28, which has also been appealed by Suzanne Shorts.

In the 26-page petition for certification, Beck and Pagano concentrated on three issues.

The attorneys said that the PZC failed to allow proper cross-examination at the Jan. 10 public hearing on the zone change. They also said that they were not permitted access to the project plan before the hearing and were given "less than five minutes" to review the plan during the hearing.

"In order to protect the appellants' rights to due process, it was imperative that they have been afforded a full and fair opportunity to cross-examine the witnesses presented on behalf of the applicant," the petition said.

The document also says that the Manchester Economic Development Commission (EDC), which is the planning agency for the park and applied for the zone change, had no authority to request such a change because it did not own the property.

The third issue is that the PZC said the change would have no adverse environmental effects.

This finding "was contrary to and unsupported by any evidence presented at the Jan. 10 public hearing," the petition said.

In seeking the certification for appeal, the attorneys also said they feel the Common Pleas Court "has decided a question of substance in a way probably not in accord with applicable decisions of the Supreme Court."

The attorneys said that three other state Supreme Courts—in Oregon, Washington and Colorado—"have ruled in favor of the issues raised by the appellants."

Beck said that he did not know how long it will take the Supreme Court to decide on the petition for certification.

Town Manager Robert B. Weiss was unavailable for comment this morning, as were Atlys. Roland Castleman and Jules Karp, who represent the EDC.

All have expressed concern that a further appeal of the zone change might delay and endanger the project.

Penney and the town have signed a contract that is contingent upon land being available for development by the end of August.

Living costs rise 0.6% during March

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Higher prices for fuel oil, restaurant meals and coffee spurred the cost of living by 0.6 per cent in March, the Labor Department said today.

The department said the Consumer Price Index has increased at an annual rate of 10 per cent for the first three months of 1977, compared with 4.2 per cent in the final quarter of 1976.

The effect of the price increases along with higher income taxes was to reduce the average worker's buying power by 0.1 per cent from February.

But there was some good news in the report.

Although the 0.6 per cent rise in March was high by traditional standards—including most of 1976—it was lower than the inflation rate of

Carter seeks curbs on energy appetite

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is asking a wary Congress to curb America's big appetite for energy by making gasoline, heating oil, natural gas — and heavy cars — much more expensive.

"Reward those who conserve and penalize those who waste," the President pleaded in his first speech to a joint session of Congress — his second television appearance this week to warn of a "catastrophe" when world oil supplies dwindle in the 1980s.

The Democrats who run Congress welcomed him with a standing ovation but thin applause for his specifics. They promised to give his ideas a fair hearing.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, who supports Carter's program, foresaw a bruising fight. Congress' past differences with Carter over dams and taxes were mere skirmishes, he said: "This is the battle."

Congressional uneasiness was most apparent over a gradual gasoline tax increase of as much as 57 cents a gallon by 1988. Americans burn 7 million gallons of gasoline a day, much of it driving to and from work.

"I am not willing to vote a tax on people who face a real struggle to pay their present gasoline bills," said Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., in a typical comment.

To take the sting from the taxes he proposed — and avoid causing a depression — Carter's plan would reduce the taxpayers the billions collected in new energy taxes.

The money would flow back in the form of tax cuts, rebates and rewards for those who conserve fuel, insulate homes and tap the sun for heat with solar energy systems.

Carter's central points:

— A heavy wellhead tax on domestic oil to bring its price to the world price of over $13 a barrel to encourage conservation.

— Starting with 1978 model cars, those going in showrooms this fall, an attack on the American status symbol — the big V8 — with taxes of from $52 to $449 on gas guzzlers. The tax would reach nearly $2,500 by 1985 on low mileage cars. Rebates of as much as $500 would be paid buyers of cars that get 39 miles to the gallon.

— Standby authority to ration gasoline and creation of a national petroleum reserve of one billion gallons — a 10-month supply — to cope with a new oil embargo.

— A goal of reducing total gasoline consumption through a tax of 5 cents per gallon in 1979 and every year that consumption increases.

— Tax credits of as much as $410 for home owners who install storm windows and insulation and of up to $2,200 for those willing to spend $7,400 or more to install solar heating systems. A 10 per cent tax credit to businesses for investments in conservation measures.

— Reform of utility rates to eliminate discounts to high-volume customers and to offer lower rates to those who use electricity at night, when demand is lowest.

— New emphasis on coal and coal research, with a tax, starting in 1979, on large industries that refuse to switch from oil or gas to coal.

— Continued price controls on oil, but a minimum price for natural gas so gas will not be "cheap" relative to oil.

Carter would retain controls, but encourage conservation by raising prices through the new wellhead taxes with the billions raised returned to consumers through rebates.

For the time being, Carter rejected a favorite proposal of liberals — legislation to break up the oil giants. But he proposed to monitor profits and performances with the government collecting data it now relies upon the industry to furnish.

Governor mobilizes state bureaucracy

HARTFORD (UPI) — President Carter's energy plan drew general praise in Connecticut and Gov. Ella T. Grasso today mobilized the state bureaucracy to help cope with the problem.

The Wednesday night speech was mostly well-received by state officials, legislators and a consumer group, but most said they would oppose a standby gasoline tax.

Mrs. Grasso today directed Lynn Alan Brooks, commissioner of planning and energy policy, to ride herd on the state's energy plans.

She asked Brooks for an analysis of how Carter's plan would affect Connecticut economically and assigned him to work with the state's congressional delegation to safeguard the state's interests.

Brooks was also assigned to work with Deputy Finance Commissioner Anthony Milano to coordinate all energy conservation efforts under way in state government. Included was a directive to make sure plans for new buildings include at least adequate winterization.

The governor also asked Brooks to check with Public Works Commissioner Robert Weinerman on plans to retrofit older buildings with insulation and possibly modernize heating equipment where needed.

Mrs. Grasso also announced in an effort to save gasoline the state was beginning a system of $3 monthly bus pass discounts for its employees in hopes of encouraging use of mass transportation.

"President Carter is calling on all our citizens to join in the all important fuel conservation effort. Our state government will continue to take a leading role in this effort," she said.

Mrs. Grasso said she hopes Congress will increase federal support for public transportation in the energy program it develops based on Carter's energy policy.

Mrs. Grasso said greater use of mass transportation will be necessary to meet the conservation goals outlined by Carter in his address to a joint session of Congress.

The standby gasoline tax was criticized by three members of the Congressional delegation and by the Connecticut Citizen Action Group, the state's largest consumer group.

"It can't pass," said Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn.

"It's a mistake and it could do damage to an otherwise good program," said Rep. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn.

Rep. William R. Cotter, D-Conn., who sits on the House Ways and Means Committee, said, "Like it or not, auto transportation is essential for almost all of my constituents."

Conservation agency opposes library parking lot expansion

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter

The Manchester Conservation Commission is opposed to the proposed parking area expansion at Mary Cheney Library which will jut into the existing Center Park surrounding the library.

The commission met with the library board informally Tuesday night to express its opposition. The commission's chairperson, Mrs. Theresa Parla, also wrote a letter to town officials supervising the project expressing opposition.

The proposed parking area expansion is included in a proposal to construct a ramp for the handicapped behind the Mary Cheney Library.

Mrs. Parla said today that the commission is neither opposed to the ramp or the expanded parking area, only that it will cut into the surrounding park area.

According to an original deed from members of the Cheney family, the parcel on which the library is located appears to have been restricted "for a public park only."

Mrs. Parla called Tuesday's meeting "more of a conference" between the two groups and said no minutes were taken.

Mrs. Parla said that the library board would have a special meeting to discuss revision of its original proposal. Neither John Jackson, head librarian, nor William Buckley, library board chairman, was available today for comment.

"There is plenty of parking space for town employees," Mrs. Parla said, referring to existing parking space at and near the library in the event an existing space at the library be converted to a parking space for the handicapped.

There is a small ramp for handicapped now in use at the rear of the library which leads into the reading room. Frank Vaccaro, chairman of the Organization of the Handicapped, said although the ramp is helpful, it is pitched too steep for a handicapped person to manage a wheelchair alone. A handicapped person using the ramp must ring a bell and a library attendant will come and assist.

Vaccaro suggested building a ramp alongside the present driveway to the front of the building so that it could be seen by the handicapped and others who might use it. Vaccaro also suggested it might be more frequently used by senior citizens and mothers with baby carriages and strollers.

Vaccaro also said a project of this nature should have had a public hearing so that the handicapped and senior citizens of the town could offer their opinions. Vaccaro doesn't think he can approach anyone now on the issue as long as the bids are out. Bids on the proposed project are to be opened Friday.

The proposed parking lot alterations call for nine parking spaces which will replace three existing spaces which will be reserved for the handicapped near the proposed ramp.

Town Counsel Victor I. Moses has been asked to research the legality of the extension into the park. He apparently found no legal hindrance to the project.

"We're going to fight it," Mrs. Parla said, "as long as the proposal for the enlarged parking area at the library continues."

Manchester man blamed for causing fatal crash

The Hartford County Coroner has found Albert J. Stevenson, 50, of 35 Strant St., responsible in connection with a motor vehicle accident last Dec. 10 which resulted in the death of Calvin T. Mahstedt, 37, of 48 Galaxy Dr. The findings are the result of an inquiry hearing March 21 and released today by Henry Ramenda, coroner.

The accident occurred on Silver Ln. in East Hartford, about 5:12 p.m. when the car driven by Stevenson heading east swerved to the westbound lane striking the Mahstedt car broadside, according to East Hartford police. Mahstedt was pinned in his vehicle, extricated with special equipment and taken to Hartford Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival. Mrs. Carol Mahstedt, 35, and her son, Carl, 5, were in the car and both were treated and released after the accident from Hartford Hospital. Stevenson was charged with misconduct with a motor vehicle in connection with the accident. The case has been continued to May 16 in the Court of Common Pleas, East Hartford.

Police said the incident occurred on Rachel Rd. where the youth, Robert Jerry, 13, of 53E Rachel Rd. was playing with a friend. They were teasing stones at a telephone pole when they were asked to stop by Healy, who was sitting in a car nearby. Police said the boys stopped throwing the stones, but Healy got out of his car, picked up Jerry and threw him to the ground. Jerry was treated for the broken arm at Manchester Memorial Hospital and released.

Edward P. Bielecki, 26, of 29 Benton St., was arrested on a warrant Wednesday and charged with three counts of issuing bad checks. He was released on a promise to appear in court May 2.

A homemade rowboat was reported stolen from a backyard of a Lydall St. home sometime during the past month. About $500 worth of clothing, including several coats and jackets, were stolen from a car parked on Cone St. Tuesday night. A planter and plant stand valued at $127 were reported stolen from in front of Dreamland Beauty Salon, 378 1/2 W. Middle Tpke. Tuesday night or early Wednesday.

Opinion

Earth Week

This week many Manchester residents are joining in observing Earth Week. While the emphasis is on spring cleanup, we think perhaps a few moments of thought ought to be given to man's relationship toward the land. Currently, there is political furor concerning water resource development projects, mostly in the West, which some want to eliminate and others want to continue. The issue is not conservation in itself, if you define it as the father of conservation did almost seven decades ago. Gifford Pinchot described conservation as the wise use of a resource. The problem of man and his relationship to the land is not the land, but that man does, hopefully, gain wisdom. This means the conservation criteria of a generation ago may no longer meet the test of being the wisest use of a natural resource. It is extremely important the environmentalists of today remember this, too, because we find they tend at times to think what they have discovered the wisest use - or in some notable instances, non-use - of a natural resource and are inflexible. Many of the projects in the news today are being challenged as uneconomic, en-

Bolton man objects to $80,000 dog house.

To the editor, Those attending the zoning public hearing heard School Supt. R. Allen, representing the school board, oppose the use of town-owned land for a dog pound. He prefers that the taxpayers buy a parcel of industrial zoned land for $60,000. Our selectmen stated that this parcel is now producing a tax revenue on its assessment of $29,000. Its purchase will mean a yearly loss of this tax revenue, the loss of scarce industrial land and the loss of potential tax revenue that industrial use would bring. I add this up, land cost, lost tax revenue and interest, the $15,000 cost of the dog pound construction, brings the first year cost around $60,000 to lay on the backs of the citizens. I urge that our town fathers investigate the leasing of a private suite at the Hartford Hilton for the accommodations of our stray dogs. It must be less burdensome than the school board recommendation. This board also made the claim that the nearby dog pound would endanger the student health and welfare and could attract other undesirable animals to the area. This last section gets me. Are they claiming that a Bolton dog pound will attract hyenas from Africa, bears from Alaska? I also question their claim that parents support this claim. Around my home, a hundred or so

Water Fluoridation opposed

Dear editor: After reading Mr. Edward Wilson's article on fluoride in our water supply, and Mr. Don's opinion, I must admit Mr. Wilson presented some very valid points. In my own case, I have found the water in Manchester has deteriorated to where I cannot drink it. This has not always been so; when I first moved to town, the water caused me no problems, but as time went on, I began to feel sick and my doctor said it might be the water. I do not believe we should put a poison such as fluoride into the water

Politics Pearson
By GREG PEARSON

Although the concept of "instant voting" is not supported by all of Connecticut's registrars of voters, it is backed by Manchester's registrars, Democrat Herbert J. Stevenson and Republican Frederick E. Peck. "We're all for it," Peck said of the proposed change that would set no deadlines for registering to vote. With the new proposal, a person could walk into a polling place on the day of an election and, with proper identification, register to vote. Nancy Tatano of Stamford, who serves as state president of registrars, has spoken against the instant voting concept. The General Assembly's Election Committee has defeated the idea for this legislative session. But the idea is being considered for federal elections. If approved by the federal government and not by the state, it would create a situation where two different voting procedures would be needed in years with both federal and state elections. But, both Stevenson and Peck are hopeful the idea will someday become a reality in Connecticut. "The accessibility to registration should be promoted," Stevenson said. "If it's going to help register more voters, we're both for it," Peck said. Both agreed that the instant voting idea would eliminate one of the most frequent Election Day problems - the person who comes to vote and finds that his or her name is no longer on the town's voter list. This is usually a person who has moved from one voting district to another or has moved out-of-town and then come back without registering again. "It would keep us from getting the last-minute crowds," Peg Lucas, a worker in the registrars office, said of the proposal. Frequently, when the deadline for voter registration nears, the registrars office is flooded with work and requests connected with registering new voters. The registrars have received information from Massachusetts and Wisconsin, two states that have adopted the instant voter registration procedure. Stevenson said that both states have reported about a five per cent increase in the turnout of voters. He does not expect quite that large an increase in Manchester, because local voter turnout has generally been good. But, even with a five per cent increase in Manchester, about 1,500 voters, the town would only need one additional worker at each of the ten polling places, he said. This would

Gardening
By Frank Atwood

Mrs. Robert Bycholski started her avocado tree from the seed that came from a fruit she bought at the supermarket, sticking toothpicks in it to hold the seed suspended, partly immersed, in a glass of water. She planted the large end of the seed at the bottom, correctly. The new roots will start from the bottom, growing from a natural cleft in the big seed. She had to wait six months for the roots to start, which seems an unusually long time. Some people would not have the patience to wait so long. Once the roots appeared, however, it was not long before the green shoot of a new stem appeared at the small end of the seed and it was time to place the growing seed in a flower pot. This avocado grew faster and higher than one should expect. It has been moved into a larger pot several times and now, with the pot standing on the floor, reaches to the top of the living room window. It gets good light here, since the window faces East, and it has had sufficient water and nutrients to keep it growing. When the tip of the plant reaches the ceiling, as seems likely, Mrs. Bycholski will have to decide whether to cut it back, find a new home for it with a higher ceiling, or throw it out. She can always start another one with another seed.

They'll start to grow very soon. A sprinkling of garden fertilizer can be scratched into the soil close to each plant to good advantage. Spraying with fungicide as soon as the leaves show green is a good early-season practice. It is easier to keep the leaves healthy than to try to cure them once they have a disease like black spot.

Big booser blames wife

DEAR DR. LAMB - My husband drinks from eight to 10 beers and sips on a bottle of whisky every day. He works six days a week and drinks after work. He also smokes three packages of cigarettes a day. Some days he drinks lots more.

We have no sex life and I have heard drinking and smoking would cause a man to lose his desire for sex. My husband says I am wrong that the reason we have no sex life is because I have had a hysterectomy and that I am no good. He insists that once a woman has this operation she is not a woman anymore.

I do not feel that the operation had any effect on me. Instead I think it helped and I have more of a desire for sex than before.

This is making me extremely nervous and I find myself turning to eating for some satisfaction. Now I am gaining weight which I don't need as I already have high blood pressure.

DEAR READER - Your husband needs professional help and soon. You may both need some help to improve your marriage. Your husband drinks far too much for his own health. He would be classified as an alcoholic by many. Alcohol is a serious problem. The fourth most common cause of death in the United States is in men between the age of 35 and 54 in cirrhosis of the liver and 60 per cent of these cases are caused by alcohol.

The three packages of cigarettes a day significantly increases the likelihood that he will have a heart attack, a stroke or drop dead - and at an early age. While I can't say what he associates with your hysterectomy, there is no reason such an operation should decrease his normal desire for sex. The Whisky, Gin, Vodka, Rum.

removal of the uterus has no significant effect on the vaginal canal or any other aspect of a woman's ability to be a satisfactory sexual partner.

Women react differently to the operation but there is no physiological reason why a woman should not enjoy sex as much as before the operation. Most women respond as you have. The freedom from the fear of pregnancy often enhances a woman's desire.

Some women state they do not enjoy sex after such an operation but there is usually a psychological not a physiological reason for this reaction.

I cannot say what your husband's problems really are. What role if any you play in this is also important. He may be drinking and avoiding sex for the same basic psychological reasons. These may be related to fundamental aspects of your marital relationship.

Alcohol in excessive quantities decreases the availability of male hormone. It also decreases a man's ability. Chronic drinking can lead to impotence. If your husband is having an impotence problem he may be avoiding you for fear of failure. Or he may be drinking because he has an impotence problem to begin with. It is all too complicated to solve without good professional guidance.

I think you should encourage your husband to seek professional help. He may wish to see his family doctor as a starting place. His habits are harmful to his health and the situation you describe is not normal. To give you more information the harmful aspects of alcohol I am sending you the Health Letter number 14, Alcohol, desire for sex. The Whisky, Gin, Vodka, Rum.

Richard H. Horton, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank H. Horton of 63 Princeton St., has been named to the dean's list at Colby College, Waterville, Maine.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We have been married seven months and our only quarrel has been over my husband's refusal to take my part against his parents when they are in the wrong.

We live in a one-room apartment with a pull-down bed. The church we attend is on the corner of our block. My husband's parents attend the early morning Mass there every Sunday. We attend a later Mass, but his parents have started coming to our apartment right after early morning Mass.

I work six days a week and Sunday morning is the only morning I can sleep a little later, but with my in-laws calling on us before 7:30 a.m., it is impossible. Also I look terrible when I first get up, and I'm embarrassed to receive guests that way.

Last Sunday my in-laws woke me up again. I ran into the bathroom and locked the door. My mother-in-law demanded that I come out and apologize for my "childish" behavior. My husband didn't take my part against his mother. I think he should have.

Another time his father opened some mail, addressed to me, and my husband didn't say a word. When I complain about his folks, he says, "Remember Exodus XX, 12, the Fifth Commandment: Honor thy father and thy mother." IN-LAW TROUBLE

DEAR TROUBLE: Your in-laws are rude and inconsiderate, and your husband should set them straight. And since your husband quotes Scripture, ask him to read Genesis II, 24: "And therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife."

DEAR ABBY: "X" and I were secretly married by a justice of the peace in a neighboring state during our freshman year at college two years ago. Afterward, we never really lived together except for one weekend and a night now and then. Our marriage was very disappointing, and I soon realized it was a big mistake, so we just broke off.

Now I have met someone else and I am serious about him. I've asked "X" for a divorce, but he doesn't want to give me one because he's afraid his parents will find out that he was married, and there will be trouble. He needs their financial help to finish college, and he doesn't want to anger them.

How can this be handled without publicity? We mean nothing to each other now. The marriage was a dumb impulsive idea. SHORT MARRIAGE

DEAR SHORT: You need legal advice. See a lawyer. There is even a possibility that an annulment, instead of a divorce, is in order.

DEAR ABBY: A man from the cemetery has been going around selling lots and monuments. I would like to know if I really have to put the date and year of my birth on the monument. I don't think it's anybody's business. LIKES MY PRIVACY

DEAR LIKES: It is customary to place the dates of birth and death on a monument, but there is no law that compels you to do so.

'Brigadoon' a fine show

By JUNE TOMPKINS Herald Reporter

As an professional scene after Harry Beaton's death, it is beautifully dramatic with their dramatic serious part in the play are Jim Pasquelli as Jeff from the Sphinx Douglas, the other Highlanders.

The assortment of clan plaids worn by men and women, in itself, is an artistic achievement and the result of extensive research by Louise Withey.

The full chorus of songs, "I'll Go Home with Bonnie Jean" and "Come to Me, Bend to Me" is enhanced by an excellent Roger Phelps as Charlie sound system. The Dairymilk, the husband of William Tyler, is never beyond his control and presents some fine intonations from the horn section.

The G&S's splendid presentation of "Brigadoon" is due in large part to the superb direction and choreography of Sarah Ketter.

"Brigadoon" plays tonight, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Manchester High School auditorium. Proceeds will be given to New Hope Manor. Tickets will be sold at the door.

Slowness of budget cutting draws fire from Republicans

BY GREG PEARSON (Herald Reporter)

The Manchester Republican Town Committee Wednesday night, sparked by remarks from its three representatives on the Board of Directors, attacked the proposed 1977-78 budget and the lack of progress thus far on reducing the mill increase included with that budget.

Party members described the proposed $25.5 million budget as "appalling" and recommended more efficiency and more sacrificing by local government.

Carl Zinsner, one of the Republican directors, held up a 1971 Democratic ad that said, "We can do it better for less."

Then, referring to the 9.43 mill hike in General Fund taxes that would be required for the proposed budget, Zinsner asked, "When are they going to get around to reducing that, increase?"

"It's time for them to put up or shut up," he said.

"The problem right now is the manager (Town Manager Robert B. Weiss) runs the board. The board doesn't tell the manager what to do," Zinsner said.

Director Vivian Ferguson said that the town, like all homeowners, must make some sacrifices in tough economic times.

"It's time for a new approach to government—a realistic approach," she said.

Top town spellers named

The second annual townwide school spelling bee for Manchester elementary students produced five winners who made it through what they considered the difficult words.

The winners are: Kristin Gunther of 11 Broad St., Grade 2, Waddell School, who considered all the words "easy"; Karen Irish of 70 Laurel St., Grade 3, Washington School, who said "perhaps" was her most difficult word; Elizabeth Tan of 128 DeLamont St., runner-up for Grade 3, Bentley School, had to ponder on "village"; Todd Zinker of 4 Alice Dr., Grade 4, Buckley School, "seamstress"; Jeff Baskin of 38 Kennedy Rd., Grade 5, Manchester Green School, "loneliness"; David Lamme of 404 Spring St., Grade 6, Martin School, "homogenize."

The committee also unanimously approved a suggestion made by Joseph Swenson Sr. that the party begin an active year-round fund-raising effort. In the past, fund-raising drives have been conducted primarily during the time of elections.

Wallace Irish Jr. also suggested that the party consider sending out a newsletter to keep members informed of recent local and state Republican happenings. Mrs. Ferguson suggested that such a mailing might take the form of a "position paper" concentrating on one major political item.

Town Chairman Thomas Ferguson said the idea might be an expensive one to implement, but it should be "taken under advisement."

The committee named delegates to the May 10 convention to elect representatives to the Republican State Central Committee.

Ellen Zinsner, representing the Republican Women's Club, announced that the group's annual luncheon will be held May 4.

A thank-you note from John Thompson, a former Democratic mayor, was read to the committee by Vice-chairman Elsie Swenson. Thompson was honored last month at a bipartisan testimonial dinner.

The town committee also approved spending $70 to pay half the tuition of four party members who are attending a course in campaign management sponsored by the state Republican organization.

Complacency? "I think he (Weiss) is relying on the fact that people are very complacent," Willhide said.

Other committee members added criticism of the budget. "Don't get me wrong," Don Genovese said. "The people of the Town of Manchester just can't afford it."

Clarence "Bud" Brown said, "This town can be run more efficiently for a lot less money."

In other business, the town committee appointed three new members to fill vacancies. The new committee members are Shirley Bjarkman, of 28 Franklin St., Charles Lucas, of 428 Hilliard St., and Joseph Sheridan, of 211 Homestead St.

Named scholars

Two area high school seniors have been named National Merit $1,000 Scholarship winners. They are Susan J. Launi, of Manchester High School and Timothy J. Oberg of South Windsor High School.

The two students were selected from among 14,000 finalists in the scholarship competition from the nation. The names of the 1,000 winners was released this week by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

The selection of the winners was based on the finalist's academic record, extracurricular attainments, two sets of aptitude test scores, biographical statements and the recommendation of the high school principal.

Miss Launi was an American Field Service Exchange Student in Sri Lanka in 1976 and serves as co-president of the American Field Service Club.

In hearing of the award, Miss Launi said she is very pleased, as the monetary amount will help in her studies at Yale University where she has chosen to continue her studies.

Oberg is the 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Oberg of South Windsor. His major field of study is mathematics and he is a member of the math team at South Windsor High.

Oberg was voted by his class as the "most likely to succeed." He was a 1976 participant in Connecticut Boys' State, a State of Connecticut Scholar and has been named a Capital Area Scholar by Trinity College.

Oberg is also a member of the National Honor Society, the school newspaper, the World Affairs Club and was manager of the basketball team.

Oberg has not yet made a decision on which college he will attend.

HNC accused of violations

Atty. George C. Lessner of Manchester has charged that the Hartford National Corp. (HNC) has violated state securities laws in handling a controversial real estate investment trust set up five years ago.

Lessner charged both the bank and the trust did not divulge information to investors that suggested financial reverses, beginning in 1974, which later proved to be correct. He said, the bank labeled as "a cheap shot and a narrow exposition" a bank analyst's report predicting serious impacts from troubled real estate operations.

Lessner said he was representing a group of shareholders which had brought a merger or some other consolidation.

HNC Chairman Robert L. Newell responded only by repeating HNC's intention to sell off its 31 percent interest in the trust, HNC Mortgage and Realty Investors, Inc.

Newell ended the questioning after about two hours on a motion to adjourn from HNC Director William K. Cole, despite shouts of protest from shareholders.

St. Mary's School is for sale

By MAL BARLOW
East Hartford Reporter

Ten years ago, St. Mary's School at the corner of Main and Stanley Sts. East Hartford had a waiting list of students trying to get in.

In 1973 the school graduated its last class.

Today the school building is for sale.

Anthony Fornabi, member of St. Mary's parish, is in charge of selling the school. Shriveling student enrollments amaze him. He wonders if the church will soon be competing for school customers with the Town of East Hartford which plans to close at least three town schools in coming years.

He is sure of one thing: St. Mary's School is a solid buy for someone.

"It's built like Gibraltar," he said. "It would be expensive to just tear it down. I'd imagine it would take about $100,000. Every floor is concrete."

The school has served as parish center for the church. The Men's Club, Girl Scouts, and bingo players use it. Religious classes are still held here.

"When we sell it," Fornabi said, "we'll have to replace it with a parish center, smaller of course."

The school, built in 1929, has 45,300 square feet of floor space. The north wing would have to be demolished which would prove costly, he said. The same west wing with classrooms has 19,000, and the basement has 17,000.

The building sits on one acre of land. The back is paved for parking. Driveways lead to both Main and Stanley Sts.

Appraisers made reports on the building. Fornabi said he would show them only to serious buyers.

The most likely buyer would be another school, he said. He has spoken to people from the Morse School of Business and the Wetherfield School of Law.

Another use might be apartments for the elderly. More remodeling would have to be done which would prove costly, he said. The same resolution written by Council Chairman George Dagon honoring Mrs. Odessa C. Terry, a member of the council until her death this winter.

Dagon wrote of Mrs. Terry's leading role in setting up emergency medical service. It made East Hartford a model for other towns.

"I'd hate to see that beautiful building used badly," said Reid. "We hope the church can find something compatible with the school's neighborhood."

Fornabi said Wednesday, "This week we may have something. We're hoping."

Mayor won't alter job policy

Mayor Richard Blackstone told the Town Council Tuesday night he will not change the methods used to fill summer jobs in East Hartford.

Eather Clarke, council minority leader, had asked him what his plans are. Would he advertise the jobs? Would he pick from a pool of qualified applicants by lot?

"That's like sticking your arm in a barrel," said the mayor. "There will be no change."

Mrs. Clarke said, "That's a terrible way to pass out summer jobs. It's strictly political patronage. And it's unfair to taxpayers."

Mrs. Clarke charged last fall that the town filled up to half its summer jobs with children and relatives of town politicians and employees. She forced the administration to give her a list of the summer workers and their addresses by getting a ruling from the State Freedom of Information Commission. She used the list to prove her charges.

Penney High School students sparked her study of the jobs when they told her how to get one of them.

"You've got to know somebody," they told her last fall.

Mayor Blackstone denied the patronage charges. He insisted the town tries to hire the best for every job. The town does not advertise because far more people apply than there are openings.

Carnival approved

In other business, the council approved the St. Rose Church carnival to be held July 25 to 30 at 33 Church St.

The council also approved Chamber of Commerce plans for a sidewalk sale run by the Downtown Division June 24 and 25.

They set budget hearing dates. On May 3, they will hold a public hearing on the proposed mini-budget for Anti-Recession Fiscal Assistance Entitlement. The hearing will be at 7 p.m. in the Town Hall.

On May 15, they will hold a public hearing on the full town budget at 7:30 p.m. in the Town Hall.

And on May 18, they will meet at 7 p.m. in the Town Hall to set the budget and the tax rate.

Henry Genga, council majority leader, recalled the council once had an emergency committee. In light of President Jimmy Carter's energy plans, he suggested the council consider reforming the committee. He did not ask for action Tuesday.

Genga also offered to meet with council member James Cordier, Republican, to four areas in town which might be deteriorating.

"Give me a call," he told Cordier.

"That's decent of you," said Cordier.

The council unanimously adopted a

East Hartford police report

Two men carried their dispute into the lobby of the East Hartford Police Station on Tolland St. Wednesday afternoon. They told police they had tailed each other; they had forced each other off I-84 and onto the grass, and finally one had slammed into the rear of the other's car, police said.

"They came in here ready to do battle," said Sgt. Herbert Weeks.

Police arrested both of them and charged them each with reckless driving.

The men are Gary F. Keish, 30, of Neapsic Lake Rd., Tolland, and William J. Scully, 24, of 9 Penfield Ave., Rockville. They are scheduled to appear in Common Pleas Court 12 April 29.

John I. Whittaker, 17, of Glastonbury was arrested Wednesday at the Zayre's store in Putnam Plaza and charged with fourth-degree larceny (shoplifting). He is to appear in court May 2.

A neighbor keeping watch over a University Ave. home while residents are away discovered Wednesday afternoon it had been broken into. Two security boxes had been forced open and the contents taken, police said.

Mr. Sottee at 2 Cedar St. was broken into sometime Tuesday night. A rear door padlock had been popped. Missing are a pocket watch and a bunch of bananas.

Warm weather Vandalism increasing

As the weather warms, attacks on public property by vandals increases. Police Chief Clarence Drumm's report to the mayor's office lists eight incidents:

- On March 24, a park department employee found damaged turf at Labor Field. A four-wheel-drive vehicle had been driven over the soft grass. Damage was estimated at $40.
- A citizen called police March 27 at 8 a.m. to report an open window at the Mayberry School. Police found it had been broken by a large stick.
- On March 28, park workers found turf torn up at Gorman Park. Damage cost about $50.

The same day, motorcycle tracks were found near the music shell in Gorman Park. Damage was $80.

- April 1, police arrested two young men who allegedly smashed 12 windows at East Hartford High School. Their names were given the town's law office to seek repayment. Damage was more than $500.
- March 15, a jeep-type vehicle was seen digging up turf near the music shell in Gorman Park. The vehicle owner is being sought.

The Department of Parks and Recreation also reported to the mayor on the above attacks. It also noted the theft March 29 of a tennis net, valued at $90, from Siye School.

Voters nix facility plan

Coventry residents Wednesday night crushed the Town Council plan to buy a $2.2-acre central facility site at Talcott Hill Rd. and Rt. 31. Residents voted 194 to 27 at a town meeting.

Other residents agreed with Nagy. Robert Farrar recommended repairing the existing garage. Former Street Supt. Michael Pesce said a new garage is needed but he opposed the council plan to buy the land when only seven of the 22 acres would be used.

Bolton woos Rham kids

Bolton will actively seek tuition students from Regional District 8 (Rham) towns of Andover, Hebron and Marlborough, according to Robert Thornton, chairman of the Bolton Board of Education.

Water rate hike sought

The State Commission of Hospitals and Health Care will conduct a public hearing Friday at 10 a.m. on proposed expansion of Rockville General Hospital. A three-member panel will hear testimony at the hearing.

The full commission will make a decision on the $1.8 million project May 10.

Vernon Grange 52 will sponsor a public auction and buffet supper Saturday at the Grange Hall, Rt. 30. The auction will start at 12 p.m. Furniture, plants, food and miscellaneous items will be auctioned. Snacks will be served. The buffet will start at 3 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at the door. No reservations are necessary. Take-out orders will be available.

A request for a 26.5 per cent increase in rates has been filed with the Public Utilities Control Authority (PUCA) by Rockville Water & Aqueduct Co. The proposed increase would bring in $273,701 in additional revenues.

The last increase granted the company was in March 1975. At that time an increase in revenues amounting to $69,400 was granted. The company had requested an increase that would bring in additional revenues of $197,151.

If granted, the rate increase would mean that customers using up to 1,200 cubic feet of water per quarter would pay a minimum of $15.48. The present rate per quarter for these customers is $12.24.

Those using up to 1,800 cubic feet would increase from $18.36 to $23.22.

The proposed increase would also apply to private and public fire protection customers and for water sold to the Connecticut Water Co.

Water company officials said the rate increase is necessary because the company earned only 50 per cent of its permitted net income in 1976. Officials said if the existing rate

The Priars were overly generous, committing six errors with UConn beneficiary of four unearned runs. Giving up runs via miscues, that's definitely not UConn's forte. Many things can be (and have been) said about the UConn Coach Larry Paniera but there are facts which are undeniable. He and assistant Andy Baylock run an excellent program. Their players are well-schooled in the fundamentals. Rarely will you see a UConn team beat itself.

Secondly, and perhaps foremost, if you want to play for Connecticut you better hustle, no dawdlers allowed. You run off the field, you run onto the field. If you don't you sit and that's the way it should be.

For a nine-inning contest, time of game was just a shade over two hours. Just last Saturday the Huskies played a game in 1 hour, 50 minutes. Attend any high school contests lately? If a nine-inning schoolboy lilt gets through in three hours you're lucky.

Why the difference? For one, of course, quality of play. Most importantly though it may be due to much time between innings getting ready. Ever notice? The catcher comes out with his shinguards but forgets his chest protector. He gets that but then he can't find his glove - mask. And by the time he's finally prepared to just warm up the pitcher, five minutes have elapsed.

The bad (shoot of it all) is if an umpire tries to get the kids to hustle out of their positions, all he gets is a wisecracking, "What's the matter, you want to go home early?" Believe it or not, a game which goes faster is much better to umpire and to watch. And better play exists in quicker games as infielders are more alert and tend to make less errors.

Early leaders
Through four games, catcher Tom Jones led Manchester High in batting with seven hits in 15 official plate appearances for a striking .467 average. He also led the Indians in RBIs with six. Brian Moran has five safeties with which he's plated four markers. Pitcher Pete Daigle, who has not made an appearance since the Concord game of April 12, is suspected to have hepatitis. While it hasn't been confirmed, the senior right-hander, who drew and won the opening game assignment against Hall, could be lost for most of the season. His loss would be a damaging blow to the Silk Towners.

Message
The scholastic sports slate of local events has a two-fold purpose. It lets readers know what's going on and lets us at The Herald know what copy to expect the following morning.

Coaches give us schedules with "scrimmages" listed, but don't tell us as such. So we wait for a result, which naturally isn't coming in. Don't do that.

Others insist they can't meet our deadlines, which 99.9 per cent of the coaches can and have not had problems with for years (those years I've been here, anyway).

Results which are turned in late, for any bad reason, will not get published. Those with a decent excuse and within a limited time have a shot. So parents and competitors, don't blame us if your daughter's or son's name isn't in the paper. We gladly print local results. But we have our rules. And they must be met.

Catholic linksmen bow
East Catholic High's golf team saw its hopes of an unbeaten record go by the board as St. Paul took a 3-2 verdict yesterday at Pine Valley Country Club in Southington. The Eagle linksmen are now 3-1, St. Paul 2-2.

Roger Poudrier and Dave McGonigle picked up four points for East but Paul Peracchio and Brian Charlebois were defeated and St. Paul won the medal point by 14 strokes. Medalist honors went to St. Paul's Tom Zaniewski with a 76 with Poudrier firing a 77.

Results: Poudrier (EC) def. Malone 4-2, Tison (SP) def. Peracchio 3-2, Zaniewski (SP) def. Charlebois 6-5, McGonigle (EC) def. Robarge 1-0. St. Paul won medal point, 321-335.

MHS racquetmen outduel Rockville
Manchester High's boys' tennis team ran its winning streak to three with a 6-1 drake over Rockville High yesterday at Memorial Field. The Indians now stand 4-1 over-all for the season.

Jim Kennedy, Phil Valentine and Jon Peck all won straight set decisions for Manchester.

Sophomore Scott Gottlieb playing in the No. 1 slot for the first time played well but was defeated by Rockville's Keith Howland. Rockville is now 1-3 for the campaign.

The sophomore doubles team of Chris Boser-Jon Keller continued its winning ways with victories over the leaders of Mark Caeuette-Tom Donovan and Scott Hyde-Rich Marshall also gaining points.

Results: Howland (R) def. Gottlieb 6-3, 2-6; Kennedy (M) def. Malin 6-4, 6-5; Valentine (M) def. Donovan 6-4, 6-3; Peck (M) def. Taylor 6-0, 6-0; Boser-Keller (M) def. Barton 6-4, 6-5; Howland (R) def. Caeuette-Donovan (M) def. Taylor-Coughlin 6-1, 6-4; Marshall-Hyde (M) def. Tupper-Bankman 7-6, 6-3.

Hanlon fans 17 in Tribe victory

By DAVE ROBACK
Correspondent

Manchester High pitcher Kevin Hanlon walked off the mound after the final out in the ninth against Enfield High with a smile across his face. But inside a host of frustration had to have taken over.

Hanlon, senior right-hander, had just hurled a one-hitter, a blooper by Ken LaPointe, and struck out 17 in leading the Indians to a 6-0 CCIL verdict yesterday at Kelley Field.

LaPointe's blooper fell into short centerfield, finding an empty space in front of diving Ray Gihla. The fifth inning one-out safety was the only one Hanlon, now 1-1, would yield. His pitches seemed to have eyes as they moved down the first eight batters, six by strikeout, before opposing pitcher Tom Arna walked in the third inning. Hanlon retired the last 14 batters in a row.

Manchester, now 3-2, gave Hanlon all the support he needed with three-run first inning. Ed White singled, Jeff Backofen was hit by a pitch and Gihla reached on a fielder's choice. White followed with a bloop. Tom Jones followed with a grounder-keeper home run. His grounder went past the outstretched glove of third baseman John Nolen and proceeded to bounce off left fielder Bill Jakars' head. Jones, with Backofen and Gihla scoring ahead of him, was credited with a three-run roundtrip.

The Indians added a run in the second. With one out, Bob Nurni singled, advanced to second on a Hanlon sacrifice, and scored as White's infield defense and added a measure of stability to Philadelphia's offense.

Before a charged up crowd of 18,276, the 76ers led by as many as 18 in the third quarter. Darryl Dawkins, who asserted himself under the boards and helped contain Boston's Dave Cozzens, provided the muscle for Philadelphia.

The Celtics were topped by 36-year-old John Havlicek with 31 points. Cozzens added 21 while Lynne Tayloring 180-181-54. Robert Blue 452, Joann Lindsay 462, Jean Archambault 463.
