HARTFORD — State officials say they aren't worried by a New York City campaign to entice Union Carbide to reconsider its plans to move from there to Danbury. The firm plans to move its 4,000-employee corporate headquarters next year, but the NYC Mayor's Office of Economic Development is reportedly trying to block federal funding participation in a $14-million highway interchange in Danbury that is part of the inducement to Union Carbide to relocate.

HARTFORD — A legislative committee has unanimously approved the first major collective bargaining agreement with state employees in Connecticut's history. The pact covers 30,000 workers belonging to the Connecticut State Employees Association. In a related matter, legislative leaders estimate an additional $8 million may be needed to fund the collective bargaining agreements with state workers.

HARTFORD — The federal government has approved a $220,000 federal grant to help Connecticut study ways to change its system of funding education, Gov. Ella T. Grasso said Friday. This week the state Supreme Court struck down the present system of paying school costs mostly through property taxes by local government as unconstitutional.

MANCHESTER, N.H. — Hillsborough County Superior Court Judge William Keller has denied motions to dismiss pornography charges against a local pharmacy and its distributor in connection with the sale of Penthouse magazine.

DEDHAM, Mass. — A Superior

Court judge has ordered members of the Hare Krishna organization to stay away from a young Massachusetts woman and her mother, who have filed a $2.5 million civil suit against the group for physical and psychological harm they claim both suffered during the three years the daughter belonged to the group.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Convicted felon William Bailey's future — jail or a seat in the legislature — hinges on two Rhode Island Supreme Court rulings that could come at any time. One concerns Michigan's desire to extradite the 40-year-old black who faces two to four years in jail for a 1973 larceny and the other is the separate matter of whether or not he can be denied his House seat.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — A writer, who brought the Marx Brothers to Hollywood for their first movie, Nat Perrin, has been named temporary guardian of Groucho Marx, replacing Erin Fleming, the long-time companion accused of violently mistreating the aged, ailing comedian.

TRENTON, N.J. — A young woman goes through with an abortion despite a court order against it obtained by her boyfriend. The boyfriend now threatens a lawsuit on behalf of the aborted infant.

EL TORO, Calif. — The bodies of 121 victims of history's worst aviation disaster — the collision of two 747 jets on a runway in the Azores — have arrived for burial in a mass funeral. All were burned and torn beyond recognition.

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. — A General District Court judge has ordered Herman L. Harris, a 20-year Navy veteran, held without bail in connection with the shooting deaths of his mother, sister and an elderly boarder at the Easthampton, Mass., home.

CHICAGO — Allan Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau, says the salaries of all elected federal officials should be frozen until the federal budget is balanced.

WASHINGTON — Andrew Young, whose pronouncements on foreign affairs have boomeranged at times, had reason to be cautious as he addressed a State Department luncheon attended by 400 policy experts and scores of retired ambassadors and high-ranking officials, but when it was all over and Young had explained his style and ideas, he won a standing ovation.

GENEVA, Switzerland — The Red Cross has ruled that guerrilla fighters captured by the enemy must be treated as prisoners of war and not as terrorists.

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union flailed out at both East and West, calling President Carter's human rights policies a "provocative-demagogic campaign," and broke a truce with China by accusing its leaders of raising tensions.

MADRID, Spain — The Spanish government has ruled that labor unions — outlawed and replaced for 38 years by government-controlled "syndicates" — will be legal again starting next Thursday.

April showers dampen eastern half of nation

By United Press International

April showers covered the eastern half of the United States from New England and the Great Lakes through the Mississippi Valley and parts of the Gulf states today.

Three days of hard rains ended Friday in Louisiana, but flooding continued in scattered parts of the state.

Flood waters receded in southwestern Louisiana at Carencro and Crowley, where dozens of residents were forced out of their homes Thursday. All 14 Red Cross shelters, which had been providing temporary housing, were closed, but several were placed on standby alert in case the waters rise again.

The National Weather Service said the Arnie River would crest eight to nine feet above flood stage late today or Sunday at Denham Springs, just east of Baton Rouge, where some flooding persisted in low-lying areas Friday.

"The weather is pretty right now — it's sunshiny. But the river stage is at 30 feet right now," said Don Cowitt of the Denham Springs police department. "They're just standing by, watching it real close."

The Louisiana National Guard was activated at Gonzales, in Ascension Parish, where dozens of families were flooded out, and 60,000 sandbags were used to help protect areas in Ascension and Livingston parishes.

About 60 families in Prichard, Ala., sought shelter with friends and relatives after five inches of rain caused flooding Friday. National Guardsmen and Coast Guard officials evacuated several persons by skiffs from homes surrounded by the flood waters.

Showers and thunderstorms were expected to continue today from the Atlantic Coast through the Ohio River Valley and the Mississippi River Valley. Mild temperatures were expected to prevail across most of the nation, with unseasonably warm temperatures in the Pacific Northwest.

Early morning lows ranged from 34 degrees at Craig, Colo. to 79 at Fort Lauderdale, Fla. New highs of 88 degrees were set Friday in Allentown, Pa., Baltimore and Boston.

'I can't believe She would do this'

DETROIT (UPI) — Diana Volpina stared at the drenching heavens and said, "I can't believe She would do this to us."

Pat Mira huddled her baby daughter close to her under an umbrella in the driving rain.

"She's our littlest feminist," she said. "I didn't plan on it raining but it's all right."

The rain poured down on more than 1,000 feminists from across the country who marched through downtown Detroit Friday at the start of the National Organization for Women convention.

The women — and a smattering of men — marched six blocks chanting "ERA all the way" and "Hey, hey, what do you say? Ratify ERA."

The central issue in the three-day meeting was drumming up support for the faltering Equal Rights Amendment.

Since it was introduced in 1972, 35 states have ratified the ERA but three more are needed — for a total of 38 — by March 1979 for the amendment to become part of the U.S. Constitution.

ERA has faced growing opposition recently, with six states either rejecting or tabling it this year.

"ERA will pass and nobody can stop it," Coleman A. Young, Detroit's mayor and NOW member, told the rain-drenched crowd. "Let's keep on marching together for ERA and we shall overcome."

Outgoing NOW President Karen DeCrow said that as the 55,000-member strong organization enters its second decade, it is "demanding" the ratification of ERA.

"Not just now, but immediately," she shouted amid loud cheers and applause.

Former Michigan congresswoman Martha Griffiths said that "by standing here in the rain, we are proving to everybody that we will not stand aside, that we will have equal rights."

Coventry youth dies in auto accident

A 17-year-old Coventry resident was killed Friday night in a three-car accident on I-94 in Manchester.

Thomas J. Bendell, of Alice Dr., Coventry, was fatally injured in the 9:42 p.m. accident, a spokesman for the Colchester State Police troop said. Bendell was dead on arrival at Manchester Memorial Hospital, according to a hospital report.

The State Police troop of Colchester, Manchester Police, the Town Fire Department, and the Manchester Ambulance Service all responded to the accident, which occurred in the westbound lane in the vicinity of Wyllys St.

State Police reported that Bendell's vehicle was in the outermost westbound lane behind two vehicles in the middle lane being operated by Rebecca Newell, 20, of Glastonbury, and Thomas P. O'Conner, 18, of 18 Gorman Pl.

O'Conner's vehicle pulled out into the third-lane to pass the Newell auto, police said. When this occurred, both operators said that they noticed the Bendell vehicle approaching from the rear at a high rate of speed, police said. Police said that Bendell moved into the middle lane to avoid striking the O'Conner vehicle, but struck the Newell car, which in turn collided with the O'Conner vehicle.

Bendell's car then drove off the north end of the highway and flipped over, police said.

Police reported that Bendell suffered extensive internal injuries.

A passenger in the O'Conner car, Ellen Rich, 17, of 164 Green Manor Rd., was also injured. She was treated and discharged at Windham Hospital.

Get me to church on time

The Right Rev. Msgr. Edward Reardon, pastor emeritus of St. James Roman Catholic Church, checks the timing mechanism of the church's carillon which summons parishioners to worship. He is changing the clock as all Manchester residents should as most of the nation goes on Daylight Saving Time at 2 a.m. Sunday. Clocks must be moved one hour ahead or you might be late for church. Quitclaim deeds establish 'residency' for players

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

The sponsor of a team in Manchester's top women's softball league has quitclaimed partial interest in a parcel of property to eight out-of-town residents listed on his team's roster.

The move was made to permit the eight women to play on the David's team in the Feline League, David C. Woodbury, sponsor of the team, said Friday.

Carl Silver, of the town Recreation Department, said Friday that the department has turned the matter over to Town Counsel Victor I. Moses, who said he will try to rule on the matter by early next week.

Because of concerns raised last year about some town softball teams using too many nonresident players, the Recreation Department specifically detailed rules concerning the use of out-of-town players and said that penalties for not obeying the rules would be strictly enforced.

The rules say that players, except in the men's Silk City League, must be Manchester residents or taxpayers or must be employees or members of the sponsor of the team. The quitclaim deed, which lasts until Oct. 15, would apparently qualify the eight under the taxpayer provisions of the rule.

The deed is for property at 527-529 E. Middle Tpke., which is owned by Woodbury. The one-half interest in that property was quitclaimed to Michele Howard, Christine A. Swenson, Francis S. Massolini, all of Coventry; Mary E. Muszynski, of Simsbury; Ann Marie Pralson, of Meriden; Blair G. Fisk, of West Simsbury; Joan M. Krogh, of East Granby; and Katie D. Graham, of East Hartford.

Woodbury said that all are listed on his team's roster for the upcoming softball season.

Earlier this year, Woodbury had filed a sex discrimination charge against the town in an attempt to allow the Feline League, the top women's league, to use out-of-town players. Under the Recreation Department rules, the Silk City League, considered the top men's league, is allowed to use up to five nonresident players per team. This helps make the league's teams competitive in statewide competition.

Woodbury sought the use of non-residents for his league because women's teams also have competed in state tournaments. He dropped the discrimination charge, however, when Recreation Department officials indicated that the final result could be elimination of out-of-town players for the men's league, which Woodbury said he did not want to see happen.

"I have a commitment to girls sports," he said. He mentioned that he has sponsored an awards banquet for female athletes at Manchester High School and is also trying to line up awards for women participants in the annual Thanksgiving Day five-mile road race and in the upcoming soap box derby.

He said that the property transfer "wasn't done in an effort to thumb my nose at the town."

There are not enough women softball players in Manchester to compete on the level that is sought in the Feline League, Woodbury said.

He did advertise for tryouts for his team. A total of 51 women, about two-thirds of them from Manchester, contacted him, he said.

He said that most, however, did not have the experience or ability to compete in the Feline League. The team's roster lists 15 players, he said, and more may be added before the season begins.

Woodbury also said that his team is in the process of buying a parcel of Manchester property for a practice area. This purchase was originally expected to be completed in time for this season, thus qualifying all members as taxpayers. The deal, however, was delayed, and Woodbury then used the quitclaim approach to qualify his out-of-town players.

Back to the draft?

Military conscription, which lasted through the long World War II-Cold War-Korea-Vietnam period, was an aberration in American history. Only twice before, in the Civil War and in World War II, had the nation relied on the draft to fill its military manpower needs, and then only briefly.

The ending of the draft and the return to an all-volunteer Army in 1973 was really a return to the old American belief that except in time of overriding national emergency, a person's body belongs to himself, not to the state.

But the days are long gone when America, secure behind thousands of miles of ocean on either side, could make leisurely preparations for war, mustering its yeoman farmers and mechanics while a small professional army and navy held the line. The next war, we are told, will begin with a massive Soviet invasion of Western Europe which, unless we can throw it back or contain it with conventional forces, will escalate into general nuclear war and the destruction of our cities. Either that, or we will have to capitulate.

Not only has the all-volunteer Army failed to provide the defense strength in depth needed to prevent a nuclear war, say its critics, but it has become so costly that it is draining funds that could be used for research and development of new weapons and equipment modernization.

Since 1964, military pay has nearly doubled and now accounts for 60 per cent of the defense budget. The Army plans to spend $60 billion this year to recruit 5,000 additional soldiers, or about $12,000 each, and is not sure it will get even that small number.

currently 80,000 men short of their peacetime level and the shortage will reach 250,000 by the early 1980s as the last of the Vietnam-era reservists finish their tours of duty, warns Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga. Another criticism is that volunteers have come predominantly from poor, uneducated and minority groups who have not been able to find work in civilian life. Blacks now make up 24 per cent of Army personnel, more than their percentage in the general population.

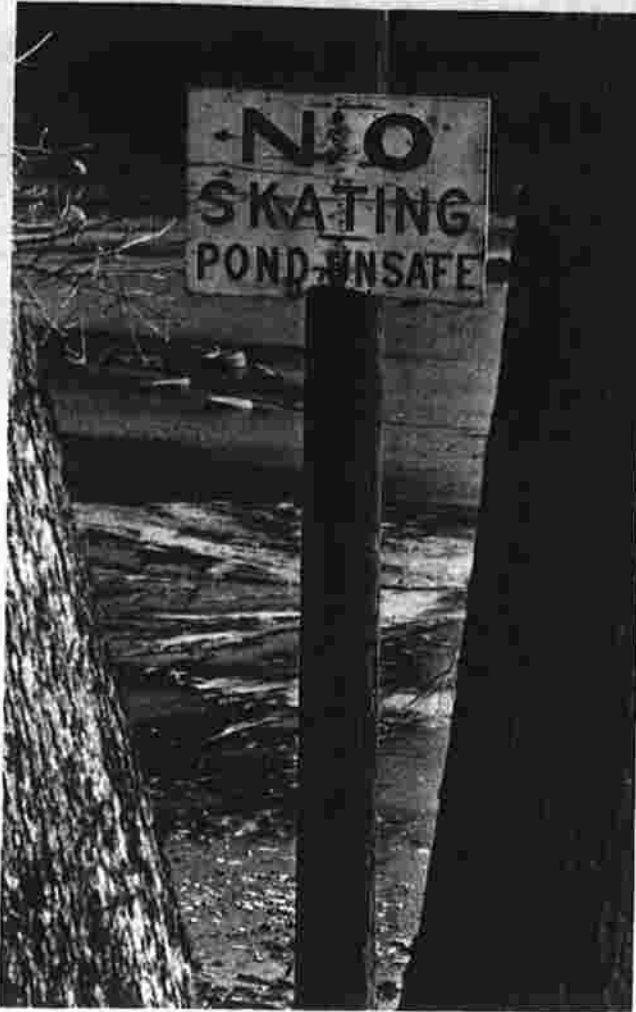

Unfortunately, the volunteer Army has not attracted across the board our whole social spectrum in this country," says Sen. John H. Glenn, D-Ohio, "so I think we have to seriously consider going back to some form of draft."

One form of draft that has been suggested is a truly universal system in which all youths would be called upon to perform a year or two of service either in the military or in organizations like the Peace Corp or Vista.

But this would still be coercion and would still go against the grain of American tradition. There is also the fear, thanks to the Vietnam experience, that the existence of conscription, even on a stand-by basis, would constitute a "blank check" enabling an adventurist president to involve the nation in little wars around the world.

One alternative to the revival of the draft, which has in fact been suggested by Army secretary Clifford Alexander, is a restoration of GI Bill education benefits as a recruiting incentive. Other suggestions are the use of more civilians in certain categories now filled by soldiers and the recruitment of more women.

Until and unless the critics of the all-volunteer Army can prove their case that the country's defense is in jeopardy, Americans will likely opt for exploring every alternative before resorting to the draft. But they will have to accept the fact that it can't be done on the cheap. Whatever we do it will cost billions.

Primaries progress

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The politicians who never have been notably enthusiastic about popular participation in the process of selecting the two major parties' presidential nominees have some new, but not necessarily valuable, ammunition.

It comes in the form of a study of "Participation in American Presidential Nominations, 1976," written by Austin Ranney and just published by the American Enterprise Institute, a Washington research organization.

Ranney is a highly respected academician and a past president of the American Political Science Association, but his study unnecessarily denigrates the state-wide primary election as a means of selecting delegates to the two parties' presidential nominating conventions.

No fewer than 30 states conducted presidential primaries last year, with much of the new-found popularity for that process a direct result of the program of institutional reform which the Democrats initiated in 1968 and which now has affected both major parties.

Low 28 per cent But the proportion of the voting age population which participated in those primaries was an abysmal 28 per cent, far lower than the shameful 54 per cent of the electorate which turned out for the general election for president.

Citing that low turnout in primaries, Ranney concludes his study with this negative view of the process: "Whether nominations made by these special primary electorates will achieve the goals claimed for them of more representative conventions, more legitimate nominations and greater general popular support for our system is still an open question.

Five Manchester residents work for an arm of the General Assembly that has great input into the laws that govern the State of Connecticut. The five comprise a high proportion of the 19 member staff of the Office of Legislative Research.

They are: Carl D. Frantz of 57 Cushman Dr., director; Janis R. Laibman of 103 Lakewood Circle, a group leader and research specialist for the Government Administration and Policy and the Regulations Review committees; Dennis Meltzer of 470 Woodbridge, a group leader and researcher for the Labor and Industrial Relations and the Public Personnel and Military Affairs committees; Lawrence K. Furbush of 69 School St., research specialist for the Human Services and Humane Institutions committees; and Kevin R. Guernier of 110 New State Rd., research specialist for the Regulated Activities Committee.

The Office of Legislative Research is an invaluable adjunct to the General Assembly, charged generally with providing detailed information to legislators concerning proposed legislation.

The office and the services it provides are non-partisan and the members are prohibited from engaging in political activity, except, of course, the right to vote and to belong to a political party.

The office reflects the theory that a central research facility is the most equitable way of assuring equal service to all legislators — whether

Andy Young shoots from the lip

Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON — Given a choice between entertaining a bull or Andy Young, the prudent china shop proprietor would opt for the bull. Our United Nations Ambassador is in the mold of the late Mayor Big Bill Thompson of Chicago who threatened to punch Britain's King George V in the nose.

Young takes seriously Jimmy Carter's pledge of an open government. That's what his mouth always is. He's a barrel of fun for media types because he is seldom caught lying before speaking. Everybody agreed he's a smart guy, but his public utterances bypass his mind.

Ice land hasn't been heard from yet, but in the three scant months since he set a record for making foreign countries mad. He catches shooting from the hip; he fires from the tongue. Ask him a controversial question and he'll give you a colorful answer. There may be substance to the rumor that the President prays daily for a reporter who will ask Young to comment on motherhood or apple pie.

Young seldom lets a few facts interfere with a good story. He told the Associated Press that the white racist South African government is illegitimate. Had Young taken time to check, he'd have discovered that his own United States has always recognized the legitimacy of that regime and has opposed moves to invoke sanctions against it or to expel it from the UN.

Carter must have winced. Carter must have winced when he heard of Young's "illegitimate" remark, but he continued to defend his UN envoy. Carter said he had never asked Cabinet members to restrain themselves, and added he wanted policy debates to be "extended outside the Congress and the White House into the public domain."

Young is doing that, all right. He also said, before he was named to the UN post, that as the first black ever to head the U.S. delegation he'd have

Wings of evening

John Ma, the minister, has kept in touch with me since then. His recent letter includes this paragraph: "In this age of change, where moral values are constantly assailed by new attractions and new modes of behavior, it is the church's first duty to guide our young people to the initiative in their thinking, discriminating in their judgment and constructive in their action."

The Bible Speaks by Eugene Brewer. 'He's so heavenly minded, he's of no earthly good.' Is a complaint that might be lodged against some True Christians as we set their affections on 'things above'.

Indians nip Hornets in error-filled game

By LEN AUSTRER Herald Sports Writer. It looked more like kickball than baseball as the teams, Manchester High and East Hartford High, made a bundle of early errors.

Three teams drop out of softball leagues

The Recreation Department has lost three softball teams for the coming town softball season, but none of the teams were lost because of the new residency rules set up earlier this year, according to Carl Silver, assistant recreation director.

Silver told the Park and Recreation Commission Thursday night that a total of 71 teams have signed up for the department's summer softball program. It is a net loss of three from last year, he said.

Silver said the registration is proceeding on schedule, with all the team rosters and registration fees coming in this week. He said he thinks the new procedure has tightened up quite a bit. "I hope this is the answer" he said, "to the problems the department has encountered over residency in previous years."

He said all the rosters and fees will be in before the season officially starts on May 2.

Silver said that two teams from the Silk City left the program because they no longer wanted to play two nights a week. The other team lost was from the Women's Feline League, however the other women's league has been expanded by two teams. The Silk City League is the only one which allows non-resident players.

Melvin Siebold, recreation director, reported that Globe Hollow swimming pool will not open on Memorial Day as in previous years because of work being done on the swimming area. The work on the recirculation system at the pool has been delayed because the monies for the $30,000 project, which are part of the Community Development Funds, will not be received until May 20, Siebold said.

ZBA member respond to building inspector

Clarence "Bud" Brown, a member of the Manchester Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA), has written a response to Francis J. Conti, the town's chief building inspector, regarding a recent dispute about the Building Department's efficiency.

Brown criticized the department earlier this week because he felt that it was not helping town residents as much as possible. His remarks were apparently triggered by two recent applications to the ZBA where the applicants said that they were granted a building permit and then later told of problems with the proposed work that would require zoning variances.

Conti and Ernest Machell, zoning enforcement officer, both defended the Building Department and suggested that further requests for information be provided in writing to avoid misunderstandings. Both also said that Brown should hear both sides of the story before making formal complaints about the department's work.

Brown, however, in a letter to Conti, wrote, "For the record, I checked the facts in both of those applications prior to making my public statement. You should have done the same prior to issuing permits for those two people."

He also questioned the suggestion that the public write out requests for information.

Jennifer Sullivan, Mark Sutcliffe, Brian Toland, Andrew Wickwire, Kristine Youell, Mark Zinker.

"Certainly, when a person applies for a building permit, it is in a written application form. If that form does not provide enough information for your department to make an intelligent, informed decision on whether or not they comply with all regulations, then the form itself should be amended by your department so that it does contain sufficient information," Brown wrote.

The ZBA member also said that a representative of the Building Department should attend ZBA meetings if there is some question about information being provided to the board.

"The burden should be on you to come forward with information in these situations," Brown said.

He also said that he plans to continue his obligation as a ZBA member.

"If this requires muddying the waters and speaking out if I feel there are abuses or carelessness, I intend to continue to do so," he said.

"Let me conclude by saying that I hope that this will not cause the Building Department to take an even more abrasive approach in dealing with the public and will not create more senseless red tape within our town government," Brown wrote.

More lean meat for your money with our new "Young Beef"

More and more families are switching to Stop & Shop's new "Young Beef" ... for a lot of good reasons. Because it comes from grain-fed young cattle, it's tender and mild in flavor. And, because these USDA inspected young cattle have very little fat covering and little marbling, "Young Beef" steaks and roasts are very lean. Better still, "Young Beef" costs less than mature beef because "Young Beef" is so young, tender, mild in flavor, and, has so little fat, it requires less cooking time than mature beef. You will have to adjust your recipes to avoid overdone steaks and roasts. If you haven't tasted it yet, try one of these lean, delicious steaks or roasts... on sale this week.

MCC gives 'Barefoot'

Richard Dana of 173 Spruce St., freelance writer, script writer for radio and television personalities and director, will direct Manchester Community College's production of "Barefoot in the Park" by Neil Simon Wednesday through Saturday in MCC auditorium on Bidwell St. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

Dana's extensive background includes a career studded with experiences which brought him in contact with prominent figures in various fields.

He taught playwrighting and was a writer and remote producer on the CBS network. He wrote scripts for such people as John Barrymore, Wendell Wilkie, Eleanor Roosevelt, Judy Garland, Henry Cabot Lodge and others from all sides of the news. He has authored many scripts for such shows as the "Kate Smith Show," "Gangbusters," "Harvest of Stars" and "March of Time."

The list of stars he has been in contact with during his profession reads like the attendance list at the Hollywood Oscar Award ceremony.

Dana has written three novels and six plays as well as the lyrics for many songs. His wife, Mildred, is a drama coach at MCC. They have a daughter, Barbara, an actress in New York.

Cast in "Barefoot in the Park" are Danielle Pelletier as Corie, Leo Tetreault as the telephone man, Jerry Schwartz as the delivery man, Chris Ambrose as Paul, Valerie Sterople as Corie's mother, and Bernie Shanley as Victor.

"Barefoot in the Park" marked the first major success of playwright Neil Simon when it was originally produced on Broadway in 1963.

LTM announces cast

The Little Theatre of Manchester has announced the cast for its next production, "Solitaire, Double Solitaire" by Robert Anderson.

The play will be performed May 4 to 7 at East Catholic High School. Curtain time May 4 and 5 is 8 p.m., and May 6 and 7 at 8:30 p.m.

Cast in the double role of Sam Bradley and Charley is Steven A. Otfinoski. Jayne Newirth is also double cast as the wife in "Solitaire" and as Barbara in "Double Solitaire."

Others appearing in the cast are Toni Fogarty, Bob Martel, Betty Lundberg, Alan Coe, Pat Finocchiaro, Charles Lankford Jr., Thaddeus Kowaleski, Ann Kibbie, David Bunce and Karen Hjalmeer.

The play is a serious piece of theater which shows Anderson's talents as he comments on today's life and society. Anderson has also written "Tea and Sympathy," "I Never Sang For My Father" and "You Know I Can't Hear You When The Water's Running."

The Little Theatre of Manchester is inviting new residents to attend "Solitaire, Double Solitaire." Letters have been sent out containing a coupon which will admit two people for the price of one to any of the performances. Any new resident who has not received notification of this offer may call Mrs. Milton Adams, Cole St., for further information.

Advance tickets may be purchased at Liggett's in the Parkade, Exposure Gallery at 474 Main St., or by calling Mrs. Adams. Tickets will also be sold at the door.

Christian rally

The Jacobs Brothers Quartet of Dillsburg, Pa., will be guest artists a Christian rally Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at South United Methodist Church.

Proceeds will benefit Christian broadcasting on cable television and radio. Rick Carlton of Manchester is director of Christian broadcasting in the Manchester area.

Other groups participating on the program are Praise, a local singing group, the Teen Choir of the Church of the Nazarene and the Phelps Family.

The program will be presented on cable television at a future date.

The Jacobs Brothers Quartet of Dillsburg, Pa., will appear Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at South United Methodist Church in a gospel music program with other guest artists.

Art events

A photography exhibit, currently at the Stairwell Gallery of Manchester Community College at 146 Hartford Rd., will remain on view through Friday.

At Real Art Ways, 197 Asylum St., Hartford, a group of East Coast artists will display a selection of works of a self-reflective nature from April 30 to May 6. For information, call 525-5521.

Foot Prints Gallery at 466 Main St. is presenting a photography exhibit by Yolla Niclas through April 29. For further information, call 643-8953.

At Wadsworth Atheneum in Hartford, information about current events and exhibitions is available 24 hours by calling 247-9111.

The Wadsworth Atheneum will hold a tag sale April 30 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Prospect St., Hartford. Proceeds will be used to reframe pictures in the Atheneum's collection, restore other frames and to aid the museum's operations.

Free symphony concert

The Hartford Symphony Orchestra, Arthur Winograd, director, will present a free concert at the Glastonbury High School, 320 Hubbard St. in Glastonbury, Sunday at 7:30 p.m. Eleven-year-old violinist Kurt Nikkanen will be the soloist.

The program will feature music by Wagner, Brahms and Bruch.

Nikkanen appeared recently with the Manchester Civic Orchestra.

Dinner theaters

The Pine-Brook Dinner Theatre in Higganum is showing "Oklahoma" through May 22.

At the Chateau de Ville Dinner Theatre in East Windsor, Frankie Laine, singer, performs through Sunday.

The Coachlight Dinner Theatre in East Windsor is presenting Rodgers' and Hart's "Pal Joey" now through June 5.

At the Bushnell

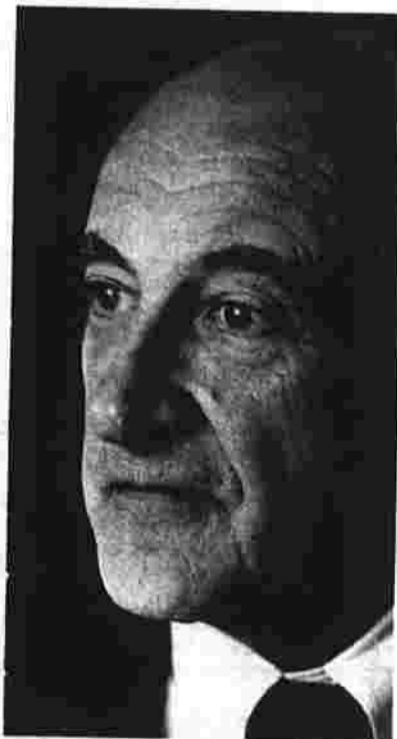

The New York City Ballet with Patricia McBride and Jean-Pierre Bonnefous will perform Sunday at 8 p.m. at Bushnell Memorial Hall in Hartford. The company was previously scheduled to appear in March. All tickets for March 20 will be honored on this April 24 date.

Tuesday at 8 p.m., the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra will perform music by Mendelssohn, Stravinsky and Wagner. Kenneth Schermerhorn directs.

Friday at 11 a.m., Kitty Carlisle is the guest of the Bushnell Lecture Club. Membership includes free coffee hour, baby-sitting and shuttle bus to downtown parking lots.

Friday, April 30 and May 1, the Bushnell Travelogue Series presents "Chambers of the Sea," 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, and 2 and 5 p.m. on Sunday. Stanton A. Waterman gives a fascinating view of the undersea world.

For information and reservations, call 246-6807.
