Oil rig capping delayed

STAVANGER, Norway (UPI) — A Phillips Petroleum Co. official said today no attempt would be made until at least Tuesday to cap a runaway offshore oil rig spewing tons of a murky mud and oil mixture into the North Sea.

Charles Lane, regional administrative manager for Phillips at Stavanger, said "nothing has changed" on the rig, which has shot 4 million tons of sludge 120 feet into the air daily since Friday.

Relatively calm winds have slowed the progress of a 100-square-mile oil slick toward the coasts of Norway and Denmark. The blowout of the rig has caused Europe's worst offshore pollution disaster.

Lane said his company's "Bravo" well in Europe's largest oil field was still free-flowing and an American team of oil rig fire experts will "attempt to put the blowout equipment in place" Tuesday.

He minimized the danger of fire on nearby offshore rigs from the slick. "I don't think the oil could be set on fire even if you put a match to it," he said. "The water is so cold it just congeals."

However, natural gas escaping from the well still posed a problem, officials said.

Two oil well fire experts from Houston's famous Red Adair Fires and Blowout Co. — Angsar "Boots"

Hansen and Richard Hatterberg — were flown to the disaster site to handle the tricky job of capping the well.

The two men, plus three Phillips employees from Stavanger, boarded the oil rig Sunday by helicopter as a change of wind helped disperse natural gas fumes that could explode at any time. They left the rig after an hour and flew to a nearby rig where they finalized their plans.

Weather forecasts call for high winds and nine-foot waves within three days, a situation that would expand the slick and make working on the rig extremely hazardous.

The B-14 well of the "Bravo" rig began spewing Friday night when the blowout preventer was removed during routine maintenance. Sixteen other nearby wells immediately were closed.

Phillips Sunday stopped all operations in the field, which normally produces 350,000 barrels daily. The oil is sent via pipeline to the British Teeside refinery 215 miles to the southwest.

A Norwegian ship constantly showered the rig with water to reduce the danger of fire or explosion.

If capping is not successful, a relief well must be drilled to siphon off the pressure from B14 well — but that could take up to two months.

After drilling a relief well, heavy mud and concrete would be forced down the well and it would gradually displace the oil and equalize the pressure under the rig.

Government ministers expressed concern about environmental aspects of the blowout, although a marine biologist said fish did not yet appear to be in danger.

Hussein, Carter meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter and King Hussein of Jordan today began a three-day "working meeting" with a somber examination of the obstacles that lie in the way of a permanent resolution of Middle East problems.

Carter and his wife welcomed the Jordanian monarch in a brief, austere ceremony on the South Lawn of the White House — similar to the other meetings Carter has had with Middle East leaders.

"This year, 1977, is a special time," Carter said. "It's one when we face possible opportunities for major strides toward permanent peace in the Middle East."

However, he cautioned: "It would be a mistake to be too optimistic because of the serious nature of the divisions which have long separated one people from another in the eastern Mediterranean region."

Hussein praised the United States for its role in seeking a permanent peace in the Middle East, and took the opportunity to support the Carter emphasis on human rights.

"You have rejected the cynical notion that morality has no place in the foreign affairs of states," said Hussein. "By so doing, you have demonstrated a breadth of vision and personal conviction that has captured the hopes of people all over the world."

Carter and Hussein then went directly into the White House for the first of three meetings. They sat side by side in the Oval Office. Carter said, "We have a very good group of moderate leaders (in the Middle East) who tremendously want peace."

Shooting victim saved, but condition critical

Mark Sheehan, about 22, of 54 Chestnut St., was still listed in critical condition today at Manchester Memorial Hospital after undergoing emergency surgery early Sunday morning for a gun shot wound inflicted at the Chestnut St. address.

Terry J. Hart, 22, also a resident in the Centennial Apartments at 54 Chestnut St., was arrested immediately after the incident and charged with assault with a deadly weapon. He was being held today in lieu of $20,000 bond for court appearance in Common Pleas Court 12, East Hartford.

Police Chief Robert D. Lannan said the regular patrol was called to the apartments after reports of a disturbance in the building about 4:48 a.m. They found Sheehan seriously wounded in the abdomen and chest. He was taken to the hospital by the Manchester Ambulance Service and operated on immediately.

Chief Lannan and Capt. Joseph Sartor, chief of the detective division, were called to the scene. Hart was arrested on the scene, and a weapon, a small revolver, was taken into custody, Lannan said.

Cause of the incident and further details were still under speculation, Lannan said. Lannan, Capt. Sartor and Det. Lt. John Krinjak are heading up the investigation. The patrol personnel handled the majority of the initial inquiry.

Chief Lannan gave credit to the medical personnel at the hospital for quick and able action.

Many laud Robert Weiss for contribution to town

BY BETTY RYDER

Friends, relatives, co-workers and political rivals joined together in brotherhood Sunday for a breakfast honoring Town Manager Robert B. Weiss.

The Brother in Action (BIA) breakfast, sponsored by the Campbell Council of the Knights of Columbus, the Manchester Lodge of Masons and the Friendship Lodge of Masons, and the Manchester Chapter of B'nai B'rith, was held at the Colony in Talcottville.

James B. Holmes served as master of ceremonies and Phil Rubins, B'nai B'rith president, called the gathering to order.

Rabbi Leon Wind of Temple Beth Shalom gave the invocation.

Among the program participants citing Weiss' contribution to the community were Nathan G. Agostinelli, Dr. John E. Rogers, Fran Mahoney, Mayor Matthew M. Moriarty Jr., the Rev. Clifford Simpson, Judge Frank Monchun, William Sleith, Norman Fendell, Judge William Fitzgerald, Mrs. Vivian Ferguson and Rabbi Wind.

Rubin addressing the group said, "We've come a long way since the BIA was organized 10 years ago."

He cited the groups which comprise the BIA and the display of brotherhood evidenced by breaking bread together.

Judge Fitzgerald noted the many difficulties facing a town manager and said Weiss' patience, skill, tact and judgment have made him a valuable asset to the community.

Judge Monchun of Windsor, a long-time friend and associate of Weiss, recalled when Weiss had first come to Windsor to serve as town manager there.

"We worked closely for more than seven years, I as town counsel, and we hated to lose him to Manchester. Bob did as fine a job for Windsor as he is doing here in Manchester."

Dr. Rogers updated the BIA activities and said, "In the past decade we have contributed more than $750,000 to various community projects."

Rogers, speaking of Weiss' accomplishments, said, "It took a lot of guts to strive to bring J.C. Penney to Manchester."

"A heartwarming gathering" is how Rabbi Wind termed the breakfast honoring the town manager.

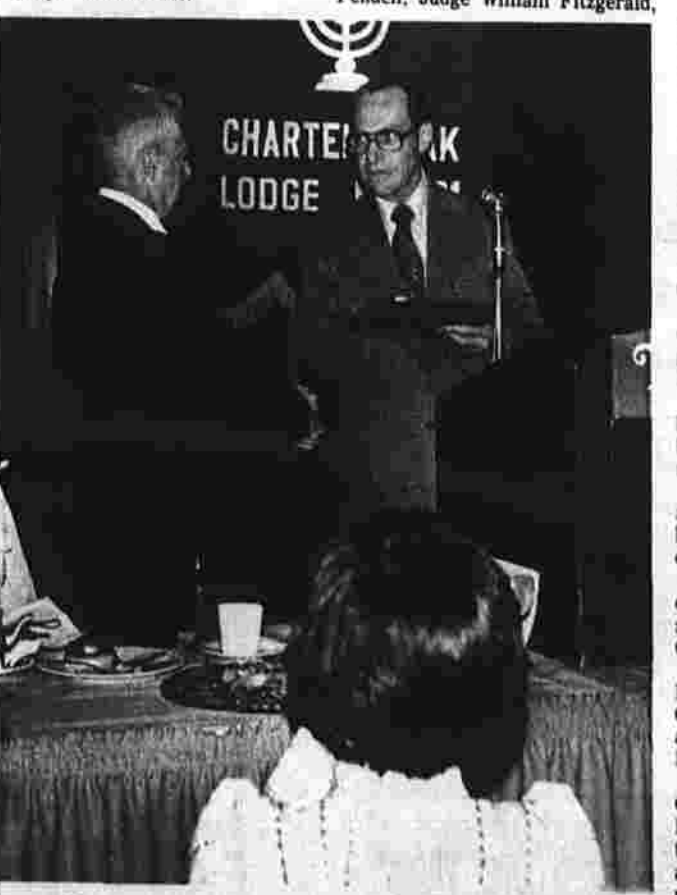

"Bob is active in the Temple; not as active as I'd like him to be, but he has many commitments, and I understand."

He attributed Weiss' success and contribution to the community as stemming from his home, his wife, Gloria, and their three children.

Norman Fendell, director of the Regional Occupational Training Center, lauded Weiss' determination and dedication in helping make the ROTC a reality.

In presenting the B'nai B'rith Community Service Award to Weiss, Rubin congratulated him on his devotion to the principles of brotherhood and said, "Bob has really grasped the need of the people."

In accepting, the town manager thanked those in attendance and especially his family for their understanding and steadfast dedication.

House votes in favor of school fund

The state House of Representatives Friday passed the bill to provide funding for 76 school construction projects, including Manchester's Bentley and Washington Schools. The bill now just needs the signature of Gov. Ella Grasso to become law, so the Town Board of Directors may give the go-ahead this week for the Washington School-West Side Rec project.

On April 12, the directors tabled a request from the Board of Education to approve up to $20,000 in planning costs for the Washington School-West Side Rec work. The board voiced its support for the project, but felt that it could not appropriate town money until state funding is guaranteed for the work.

The directors said that once the bill was passed by the state, they would schedule a special meeting to approve the go-ahead for preparations of final plans for Washington School and the West Side Rec. The Board of Education is anxious to start the work as soon as possible so that considerable progress can be made before the winter months.

At the time of the board's decision, the Senate had approved the bill, but the House had sent it to the Education Committee for a proposed funding amendment. The amendment was defeated, and the House vote Friday now clears the way for signature by the governor to make the bill law.

Gov. Grasso has previously voiced her support for the bill and her signature is expected. A spokesman in her office said this morning that she should receive the bill in ten days to two weeks and then would have up to 15 days to sign it.

Mayor Matthew Moriarty said, "If the House has passed it, I would say we (the directors) will act on it. We're very happy to hear it has passed."

Youthful anglers make rainy catch

Top winners in the Manchester Lions Club Fishing Derby held Saturday at Saulters Pond were Stuart Heavisesides, Stephen Bogli and John Enright. There were 340 youngsters entered under rainy conditions in what's hoped to be an annual event.

Heavisesides hauled in a 15-ounce pickerel for the largest fish caught. Bogli reeled in a 13 1/2-ounce bass while Enright pulled in a 13-ounce perch.

Jack Bilson III won first prize for total weight of total fish caught for youngsters five years and younger. Jennifer Zanlungo hauled in the largest catch for those 6-8 years old. Water took honors for those 9-10 years old and Zajac for those 11-12 years old (first names were not noted). Mosser (first name also not noted) won a prize for largest fish caught while Mike Tomkunus won a prize for largest trout caught.

Jack Bilson, derby coordinator, reports $1,000 in fishing tackle and gifts was distributed with 26 contestants walking off with prizes.

Despite the all-day rain, Lions Club officials were pleased with the turnout.

Chief judge was Margarey Nichols, assistant managing editor of Field & Stream.

The first 50 youngsters to record catches received various fishing tackle items and the first 300 who registered received gold plated souvenir fish hooks.

Financial support came from the Keebler Co., Richard Late, A&B Sport Shop, Nassiff Arms, J.B. Bait, Farr's, The Eighth District emergency medical technicians were on hand as well as members of the Civil Defense unit and the Park Department.

Cluster zone foes see interest conflict

By GREG PEARSON Herald Reporter

About 25 residents who are opposed to a proposed cluster subdivision on the Lenti Farms tract off Gardner St. met Saturday afternoon and raised several concerns about the development, including the possibility of a conflict of interest for the developers.

The meeting, held in the garage of a Tuck Rd. home, was called to discuss the proposed 79-home development, which would be a Residence AA Cluster Zone. A cluster zone for the near 40-acre tract would permit the developer, Stone & Goldberg, to build all of the 79 homes - Residence AA zoning permits two homes per acre - on 75 per cent of the tract's acreage.

The neighbors have expressed concern that the smaller lots would be out of character with the existing ones in the area.

One ZBA member, Clarence "Bud" Brown, recently criticized the meeting as he said that the meeting was held as soon as possible to discuss building inspection procedures and iron out any concerns that the board has about the department.

Francis J. Conti, Manchester's chief building inspector, has sent a letter to the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) and requested a meeting between his office and the board.

Conti has asked that the meeting be held as soon as possible to discuss building inspection procedures and iron out any concerns that the board has about the department.

The Town Charter prohibits town officials, including members of the EDC and Board of Directors, from having a financial interest in any "transaction" with the town. It defines transaction as "the purchase, sale, leasing or other transfer of any property."

But, Goldberg said that he does not feel such a conflict exists. "Clearly, I think neither Bob (Stone) nor myself would have entertained the notion of submitting a map if we felt there was a conflict of interest," he said.

He also said that the map division regulations and that neither he nor Stone had any intention of taking advantage of their positions in town government.

The question was raised at Saturday's meeting not as an accusation of the two developers, but strictly as a technical question concerning the charter.

The neighbors also expressed concern about the 25 per cent of the property that would be deeded to the town. The town-owned area would be used as a temporary drainage area during rainy periods, but would be dry at other times.

The detention area is expected to hold water for a couple of hours after rainy periods. But, residents raised questions about possible flooding or other problems.

Mandamus sought in FOI conflict

Atty. Gen. Carl R. Ajello has been ordered to appear in court on Tuesday, May 3 to explain his reasons for not representing the Freedom of Information (FOI) Commission in its attempt to get information about communications between Tax Commissioner Gerald J. Heffernan and the J.C. Penney Co.

Heffernan appeared before the FOI Commission in February and refused to answer questions about discussions between his office and the Penney company, which would be the major tenant in Manchester's proposed industrial park.

The tax commissioner said that state laws protect the confidentiality of such discussions. But, the FOI Commission ruled that Heffernan should answer questions and requested that Ajello, who represents the commission, pursue the matter.

But, the attorney general said that such an action by his office would have represented a conflict of interest. Thus, the FOI Commission decided to hire an attorney on its own.

That attorney, Atty. Gary Gold of Hartford, has asked the court to issue a temporary order of mandamus that would require Ajello to answer questions about discussions through a special assistant attorney general. The action also asks that Gold be named a special assistant attorney general.

Ajello's court appearance is scheduled for May 3 at 10 a.m. in Hartford's Court of Common Pleas.

Dillon bid lowest

Dillon Sales and Service, of 310 Main St., is the apparent low bidder for two Town Fire Department vehicles. The bids for the vehicles were opened Friday. Dillon submitted a price of $4,800 for a four-wheel drive pickup truck, the lowest of four prices that were submitted.

Dillon was the only firm to bid for a station wagon for the Fire Department. The company submitted a price of $4,600 for the vehicle. Both prices include the trade-in of vehicles presently owned by the department.

Opinion

The code of silence must be broken

The third annual report of the Care Line, a program of the Connecticut Child Welfare Association, Inc., has some sobering and disturbing statistics for Manchester. During the first two years of the program, 43 and 45 incidents of child abuse were reported; but in the third year this figure jumped to 112. Now we know some of the increase can be laid to increased public awareness that help is available to the abused child and, very importantly, to the child abuser. But this more than double rate increase does indicate that the child abuse problem is much greater in Manchester than most of us would like to think. There is something about this society of ours that enables us to get up in arms if we see a man abusing a dog or some other dumb animal; but, let us rationalize that whatever happens in a family is their own business. We think the figures show a long-overdue breaking of this code of silence that has protected abusers of children until it is too late and a child is dead or physically and mentally handicapped for life. This growing awareness

Skateboarding park urged by reader children to ride skateboards on Manchester streets. This leaves possibilities for the thousands of skateboarders in Manchester. Since skateboarding is restricted to paved areas, where can kids skateboard? There is one park in Rhode Island, but that is too far for most people to get to. Skateboarding is very popular and becoming bigger everyday. There is an obvious need for a public skateboarding area in Manchester. May I take this opportunity to again request your consideration of this proposal? My offer to serve as a contact between the Town Recreation Committee and Manchester's skateboarders still stands. Very truly yours, Stephen Robert McKenzie, 177 Gardner St., Manchester

Thought

Spring is upon us. That glorious season of renewal that we all anxiously await after a long, cold winter. The splendor of God's creation once again begins to bud and bloom, and the laughter of birds and children fills the gentle air. But what of you? Are you God's crown of creation, are you taking part in this spring renewal? Have you heard the call of spring? The call to shed the winters of past unhappiness and broken dreams; the call to lift up your eyes to a new day? Emanuel Lutheran Church

Six ways to help children learn

Literacy decline laid to parents

By Dr. William H. Nault
The U.S. Office of Education recently released the shocking fact that 23 million American adults cannot read or write well enough to function in today's world. And, the release went on to say that an additional 40 million possess just the minimal skills for "survival." It's a startling report, but true. And the situation is getting worse. How can an advanced country like the U.S. have nearly one out of three people barely able to write or read — a country with the highest standard of living, the most schools, and the best trained teachers?

Learning gap
The problem is not basically the learner. The problem is learning itself. America has a serious learning gap. Television is part of the problem. Instead of reading, too many children spend hours in front of the tube watching programs with little or no educational value. In fact, in many instances the learning is actually negative, as violence and anti-social behavior are glorified daily on television. The Nielsen index shows that the average American child views over 15,000 hours of television by the time he or she graduates from high school, compared with only 11,000 hours of formal classroom instruction. The present condition of our schools also plays a role. Education budgets have been cut. Access to up-to-date learning materials has decreased. And perhaps most damaging is the breakdown of order in our schools — particularly in central cities. Gap contributes There's a little doubt that television has contributed to America's learning gap. But there's still one place where learning can and should go on. It's the most important learning environment — the American home.

Common sense

WASHINGTON — This writer has just returned from a reassuring 3,000-mile drive through the South. Reassuring because I visited so many small towns reminiscent of the one in Idaho where I grew up — towns brimming with friendliness, common sense and real purpose. The temporary absence from Washington — a city where these important qualities too often are lacking — was frankly therapeutic. Such occasional absences, in fact, should be mandatory for all Washington journalists, politicians and federal bureaucrats who, together, tend to contract a disease known as Potomac Fever from prolonged residency here. Potomac Fever was once defined by commentator Ben Meyers, former press secretary of Lyndon Johnson, as a disease whose victims suffer such symptoms as "myopia, which blurs their vision of things afar; and the tiger-in-the-tank syndrome manifested by supercharged reaction to criticism, justified and unjustified."

Reflections

Lee Roderick
The Herald's Washington Correspondent
An equal opportunity
It is my view that the Wetherfield School District should be able to sponsor or maintain all-male or all-female school choirs. An official of HEW's Office of Civil Rights told Cotter, "...although girls must be offered an opportunity to participate in a similar activity." An aide to Cotter said the school district has indicated it will indeed reinstate the boys' choir starting this fall. The Wetherfield case would be bad enough if it were isolated. Unfortunately, it isn't. A similar ruling hit the fan last summer when HEW said it was illegal for Scottsdale, Arizona's public schools to continue their traditional mother-daughter tea and father-son banquets. Scottsdale was fortunate for its case aired during a presidential campaign. President Ford — undoubtedly in one of his most popular public acts — promptly suspended the ruling, saying that if HEW persisted he would "immediately seek an amendment to the law."

Help your child
Help your child roll over, crawl, stand, and walk. This develops muscle control. Let your child explore. Provide safe play objects such as boxes of different sizes, blocks, scraps of cloth with different textures, spoons, and pans. Help your child learn that he or she is a part of a family group. Include your child in planning family activities. Give encouragement and praise when it is merited. Control your child's television viewing. Search out better TV programs for children and share them with your child. Talk about the programs. Correct any misconceptions that may have developed from the programs. Read to them. Most importantly, read to your child. If you can, read everyday, even when he or she is in the crib. And read in a way that will make the experience enjoyable. It's been shown that children who are taught the joys of reading at an early age learn to read quickly and with little difficulty in school. Listen. Listen to your child. Pay attention to what he or she is saying. Call attention to sounds. Listening and attaching meaning to sounds are essential skills that must be acquired before a child can read or succeed in a classroom environment.

Don't nag
There's a lot you can do to help your child learn. There are also things you shouldn't do. Don't nag your child to achieve or compare him or her to other children. Learning should be a pleasant and positive experience, an ongoing process that's encouraged and praised. The tragedy of 23 million American adults unable to function in today's world might have been avoided. All it would have taken was a personal commitment to a child's intellectual development — a few hours a day that could influence a lifetime. It's a commitment that every parent should make. And if the latest statistics are accurate indicators, there's never been a better time to start than now. DR. WILLIAM H. NAULT is editorial director and executive vice president of The World Book Encyclopedia.

This is a Jubilee Year in the British Empire, and Queen Elizabeth II celebrates her silver anniversary as her. Her birthday is April 21, but the official celebration is June 13, because of England's April weather conditions. That celebration is one of the great tourist attractions in England, and it's called Trooping the Colours. We witnessed Trooping the Colours in 1972 on the parade grounds in Whitehall. We also saw Bermudians in their observance of the queen's birthday in 1955. We'd like to tell you about the tradition and the pageantry in England, and how we came to get choice seats to see the rehearsals of Trooping the Colours. In 1971, the First Company Governor's Foot Guard celebrated its 200th anniversary. We were invited to help swell the Soudaphone section of the band for that celebration in Hartford. Many of you probably saw that parade on Oct. 2, 1971. The Band of the Grenadier Guards of England came over to help the Foot Guard celebrate, and they presented a concert in the Bushnell Memorial Hall on Friday, Oct. 1. We heard that concert, and then went back to Foot Guard Armory on High St. for refreshments and to mingle and talk with members of the Grenadier Guards. During conversation with George V. White, a cornet player and the sergeant-major of the band, we learned that we shared a common interest. When we told him we would be visiting London in May 1972, he wanted to know when — it was May 13 to 20. "Great!" he said. "You will be there for the rehearsal of Trooping of the Colours, and I'll see that you get tickets for it." We were in constant communications with him from that time on, and we still communicate with one another. We'll see him again in London. There is a period during the spring in England that the band of the Household Division call the "Silly Season." It means that those bands who are on duty in London play secondary concerts in one of the many parks that dot London. The Grenadier Guards played in a small park about five blocks from our hotel while we were there, and many of us in that charter group went up to hear the band; George White knew we would be there. How nice it was when, in the middle of the concert, we were recognized by Capt. Peter Parkes, director of the band. He explained to Englishmen in the outdoor audience that we had been acquainted with them on their visit to Hartford for the Foot Guard celebration. As a courtesy to us, Capt. Parkes closed the program with John Phillip Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever." We have since learned that Capt. Parkes considers Sousa to be the greatest composer of band marches. The Trooping of the Colours was for Saturday, May 20, the day our charter group was to fly home; but that would be later in the afternoon, so we had time to see the great pagantry that started at 10 a.m. and lasted until past midnight. George White had provided four tickets for the rehearsal of Trooping of the Colours — for me and for Bill Forbes. He delivered them to our hotel after that outdoor concert. We had a grand time renewing acquaintances — so much so that the afternoon wore on to the point where we called by, his wife, and had her join us for a farewell dinner. We shall do that again soon. Trooping of the Colours could not possibly be covered in this column. It deserves a separate column next week.

FANCY THAT

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The widow of a physician complained because two years after her husband's death, his unpaid bills totalled $11,000. Your suggestion was: "It's a wise device who collects his fee while the tooth is still aching—in other words, payment in advance. This would limit health care to those who can afford it."

An example of how unfair that would be is the case of the woman who was refused admission to four hospitals just south of the U.S.-Canadian border because she was on welfare. The poor woman finally gave birth in a cab.

Under a government health plan, as we have in Canada, doctors submit bills to the government, so when he refuses to bill the government, he is not billing the patient. In this world, no one owes him anything for health care. Your refusal to bill would probably entail all the bad things (mostly untrue) that you've heard about government health care.

In Manitoba we don't even pay premiums, so only the taxpayers pay for health care—according to income. Unfortunately for the U.S., such plans are labeled "communism" (again untrue), so the poor of your country will continue to go untreated adequately, and dedicated physicians like the widow's husband will go unpaid.

DEAR CANADIAN: You make socialized medicine sound ideal. But whenever private enterprise is replaced by a government institution, incentive is thwarted and the quality of services usually deteriorates.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a person who at age 28 has his last NAME legally changed? When I asked him why he changed his name, he said, "For business reasons."

N.Y. READER

DEAR READER: Yes. It's HIS business.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for constantly reminding your readers to have their dogs and cats neutered in order to keep them from running wild, being killed by the streets or reproducing at such a rapid rate that thousands of unwanted animals are destroyed each year.

I enclose some recent figures from the Orange County Animal Shelter:

Total live animals received at their shelter annually: 52,000
Total cats destroyed: 12,000
Total dogs destroyed: 23,000
Total animals destroyed: 17,400
Have a nice day.

NANCY IN SAN CLEMENTE

DEAR NANCY: I'd try to have a nice day, but my night may not be so nice. Those figures are shocking. You've performed a much needed humanitarian service by reminding me to remind my readers once more to neuter their pets!

EVERYONE HAS A PROBLEM. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

MACC news

At the MACC annual meeting and dinner several weeks ago, delegates from the churches accepted annual reports and approved an operating budget for 1977. The budget is quite small, totaling $7,050. Out of this $7,000, we set aside $3,500 which pays for administrative salaries for myself and Nancy Gutreich, our secretary and $2,000 seed money toward a chapel. The remaining $1,550 pays for all other operating expenses of the office i.e. postage, office supplies, program supplies and costs, etc.

Since the annual meeting, a number of people expressed surprise that so much can be done. (a most flattering comment), leading me once again to believe that no one reads the financial report of an organization except at annual meetings.

Since so many of you are in one way or another a part of the total work of the conference, we would like to share with you our own "miracle of the loaves and the fishes."

We can accomplish so much with so little because everyone shares. The people of St. Bartholomew offer us free utilities and space for the MACC office. Concordia Lutheran Center Congregational and St. Bartholomew offer the use of their office machinery and their secretaries (beautiful people, church secretaries, you should take yours to lunch), offer their time and services in running off all the many MACC materials. Center Church offers us free space for the Emergency Prayer and volunteers staff it. My secretary works twice as many hours as she's paid for and all the rest of the work is done by volunteer secretaries, Elsa Conley, Ena Prentice, Mary Ellen Winter. For that matter, the only paid members of this whole conference are my secretary, the chaplain-to-be, and myself. All the rest of the work is done by good people who care about others.

Although our operating expenses are minimal and largely supported by member church donations (the churches have pledged $4,417 this year, the rest will hopefully be made up through individual contributions and the Evening of the Performing Arts), the total funds, materials generated through community and church response to MACC programs is considerably larger.

The funds and materials given by you through MACC projects in 1976 are estimated as follows:

MACC Human Needs Fund, $3,100; Human need assistance (professional services, clothing, bedding, household goods, furniture, appliances), $4,300; MACC emergency pantry, $2,200; aid to fire victims, $330; Operation rice bowl, $2,900; MACC Interfaith Day Camp, $1,950 plus value of donated food/materials, $250; Town Meeting '76, course amount to thousands more dollars in work donated.

These impressive signs are given by you not to MACC but through MACC to help and support one another. It gives us great pleasure to share the results of your generosity with you.

EAST HARTFORD/AREA NEWS

Teachers approve contract

"It's the best we can do, times being what they are," said Mrs. Elaine Case this weekend.

Mrs. Case, president of the East Hartford Education Association (EHEA), was commenting on the EHEA vote to approve a new, three-year teacher contract.

The contract will give the teachers a 4 per cent raise for 1977-78, a 4.2 per cent raise the second year, and a 4.3 per cent raise for the third year.

Next the contract goes to the Board of Education and then to the Town Council.

Vernon budget almost ready for townspeople

The Vernon Town Council will wrap up its budget workshops at a special meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Memorial Building.

The recommended budget will be presented to a public hearing Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Vernon Middle School, Rt. 30.

One of the recent workshops reviewed the Parks Department budget. A motion to cut it to zero, made by Councilman Donald Edens, was defeated; another motion to reduce it to $43,819 failed, and a motion to cut it to $48,510 passed.

The original budget recommendation of Mayor Thomas Benoit was $97,000, but this included Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) funds for two laborer positions.

This is consistent with action taken in other accounts where amounts for CETA workers were included. CETA legislation expires Sept. 30 and it was felt that any new legislation wouldn't become effective until after the town budget is adopted.

Councilman Stephen Marcham, who made the final motion that passed, said the figure eliminated the CETA money, gave the budget a six per cent general increase and allowed $5,000 to buy a new tractor.

Mrs. Jean Pearsall, director of Vernon's social services department, also appeared before the council last week to defend her budget requests.

In the area of "general assistance," a budget of $465,000 was recommended. She said $60,000 would be more realistic.

She said while her department keeps an extremely tight rein on expenditures, the assistance figures for the past three months show an outlay of about $5,000 for January and February and almost $6,000 for March.

Mrs. Pearsall said that when she first started in her position eight years ago, her monthly caseload was 24, involved 72 persons and an expenditure of $1,391. Now her caseload is about 56 with an expenditure of about $6,000.

The council approved the total department budget at $87,750 as recommended by the mayor.

The Engineering Department budget was increased by $250 more than the mayor's recommendation, a total budget of $20,227. The department budget is $102,253. The current budget is $53,010.

Leonard Szeczeny, town engineer, said the town's purchase of the Vernon Water Company caused the major increase in his budget. The budget also included $40,000 for an engineering survey of the Bolton Lakes area but the mayor reduced that to zero.

The council also approved the mayor's recommendation of $1,500 for the newly created Arts Commission. The request was $4,900.

The budget for the Cemetery Committee was approved at $15,000 as recommended by the mayor. The request was for $21,500.

Bolton spending plan cut

By DONNA HOLLAND
Herald Correspondent

The Bolton Board of Finance has made tentative cuts of $115,000 from the town government budget for 1977-78 and $24,000 in the Board of Education budget.

The finance board, at a special meeting Friday night, approved an additional $10,000 cut from the school budget and $7,200 from the town government budget. But the money was returned to the budget appropriating funds from the capital and noncurring account.

The finance board will meet Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Town Hall to finalize the budget to be presented to townspeople May 16.

Finance board chairman Gerald Hassett said that the tentative cuts are incorporated into the final budget, there will be a tax increase of 2.25 to 3.25 mills. The present tax rate is 6.14 mills.

Had there been no budget cuts by the finance board, there would have been about a 9-mill increase. One mill generates about $23,000 in tax revenue.

Finance board members arrived at the $24,000 cut in the school board budget in a unique manner. Five of the six board members said how much they felt the budget should be cut.

The five figures were added and the total was divided by five. William Riley suggested a cut of $32,000; Gary Mortensen, $42,000; Shirley Potter, $15,000; Sidley Saiter, $10,000; and Hassett, $22,000. Morris Silverstein didn't suggest a figure for the average.

The vote to cut the budget by $24,000 was three in favor, (Riley, Hassett and Saiter), two opposed (Silverstein and Mortensen) and one abstention (Potter).

After the vote was taken, Silverstein said he felt a minimum of 2 mills ($47,800) should be cut. "It's ridiculous to give a figure when you are thinking 2 or 3 mills and other board members are thinking in the $10,000 range. We weren't even close," Silverstein said.

"The school board doesn't listen anyway. They spend what they want, where they want and when they want. The legislature gives it the power," he said.

Silverstein said that when the school board is asked where its budget can be cut, board members say it can't be.

"For them (school board members) can't cut a penny from their $1.5 million budget is an insult to my intelligence," Silverstein said.

Finance board members agreed to delete from the 1977-78 budget the 1 mill ($22,500) which is usually set aside for the capital and noncurring fund.

Other tentative cuts include $533,000 for $50,000, assessor's building; $23,100, town garage; $800, Insurance Advisory Board; $2,300, park commissioner; $17,520 ($12,000 communitarian); $23,740, general grantsmanship; Board of Selectmen; $4,700, snow and ice removal; $25,412, police protection (contingent); $23,740, general highway; $2,100, community hall maintenance; and $400, treasurer.

Coventry taxes may be cut

A budget proposal which would reduce a one-mill tax drop in Coventry will be finalized tonight by the Town Council. The council has called a special meeting at 7:30 at the Town Hall.

The tax rate is now 71 mills and the budget, if approved by Town Manager Frank Connolly and the Board of Education, would mean a 4.5-mill increase.

The Town Council, which has been revising the budget for two weeks, has cut $35,000 from the general government budget and $40,000 from the education budget.

State and federal revenue sharing funds will be applied to the budget to offset taxes.

PZC meets tonight

The Planning and Zoning Commission will meet tonight at 7:30 to conduct public hearings to review proposed sign regulations and a drainage modification request for the undeveloped section of Coventry Hills.
