HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso's husband will accompany Connecticut's commerce commissioner to Italy this week to attend a world economic conference, the governor's office announced Wednesday.

Dr. Thomas Grasso and Edward J. Stockton will represent Connecticut at the five-day conference in Turin.

"I regret not being able to accept the personal invitation to the Turin conference because of the press of legislative business in this adjournment period," she said.

Vietnam to send remains of 20 American MIAs

PARIS (UPI) — Vietnam and the United States ended their second two-day round of talks today with an announcement by Vietnam that it is sending the remains of 20 more missing Americans to America.

The remains of the 20 missing Americans were returned while Woodcock was in Hanoi, 2 more were announced by the Vietnamese at the last round of Paris talks ending May 4 and an additional 20 were announced today, bringing the total to 34.

Assistant Secretary of State Richard C. Holbrooke, the chief American delegate, said, "This is a positive action on the part of Vietnam."

Holbrooke said the two rounds of talks — May 3-4 and June 2-3 — have been announced by the Vietnamese at the last round of Paris talks ending May 4 and an additional 20 were announced today, bringing the total to 34.

Turnpike residents oppose four-lane traffic plan

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

About 70 residents who live on or near W. Middle Tpk. have signed a petition stating their opposition to plans for making the road into a four-lane highway and posting no parking restrictions on both sides of the road.

The petition was delivered to the town manager, William C. Castagna Jr., of 692 W. Middle Tpk., and copies have been given to the town directors, chief of police and state highway department.

Reconstruction on the main thoroughfare, which has been part of the Urban Systems Project, is nearly complete. Paving work was completed last week.

The residents state four major objections including:

- It will become more of a speedway than it already is.
- It will become more difficult than it is now for one to exit one's driveway.
- The residents will have no parking facilities for visiting guests.
- Many people at the present time do not have adequate parking space for family members living at home since all driveways have been shortened.

At a hearing held at the Town Hall, residents were informed that the road would not be four lanes for traffic and there would not be any parking restrictions.

The petitioners also state that the section of Middle Tpk. in question, which is from New State Rd. to the Manchester Parkade, is a town street in a residential area where

HUD requests two CD changes

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

The federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has requested two changes in the number of low-income housing units in the town of Manchester's application for HUD approval of the three-year Community Development Plan.

The town expects to meet both requests, including an increase to 229 in the number of low-income houses projected as a result of the proposed industrial park, Alan Mason, the town's Community Development coordinator, said this morning.

The town's action should "clear the way" for HUD approval of the three-year grant of the Community Development funds, he said.

A letter from HUD's area director, Lawrence L. Thompson, said that the town has satisfied two other concerns of the agency — A more detailed report on two items, storm sewer construction and a legal aid service, which would be funded by the three-year grant.

But, Thompson also expressed concern that the town's Housing Assistance Plan, which is part of the Community Development application, did not include calculations for housing needs that would result from the proposed industrial park.

Thompson said that since the J.C. Penney Co., which would be the park's major tenant, plans to complete construction by 1980, its effect on local housing should be calculated.

Mason said that a total of 658 lower-income households in Manchester will result from the Penney catalog distribution center, which will employ about 2,000 persons.

The low-income housing figure is based just on the type of jobs and

MCC to award diplomas to 740 students Sunday

Helen Bradshaw of South Windsor and Shari Schaffer of Manchester have been named valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively, of Manchester Community College's class of 1977. Commencement will be Sunday at 2 p.m. at the new Bicentennial Bandshell on the main campus of the college.

Graduation ceremonies for the 740-member class will be Sunday at 2 p.m. in the bandshell on the main campus of the college.

Mrs. Bradshaw was enrolled in the accounting and business administration transfer program at MCC. She plans to transfer her credits to the University of Connecticut where she will begin work this fall toward a degree in accounting.

She gives much of the credit for her success to the support she received from her family, all of whom encouraged her and helped with household chores. Her family is composed of her husband, John, and her sons, Jack and Jim.

Mrs. Schaffer was enrolled in the Liberal Arts and Sciences program. She will attend Wesleyan University this fall to study history. Her long-range goal is to earn a doctorate degree and to teach on the post-secondary level.

Besides her studies, she performed in college theatrical productions and tutored other students in several subjects, including languages, history and science. She was assistant to MCC's Dr. John Sutherland, director of a local, oral history project.

Mrs. Schaffer is married to Frederick F. Schaffer III. She has three daughters, Marta, Sarah and Rebecca, and two sons, Eric and Christopher.

Because both women had perfect grade point averages of 4.0, each was named valedictorian or salutatorian according to the number of credits she had earned. Mrs. Bradshaw earned 14 credits. Mrs. Schaffer had 6 credits.

Red will be a predominant headgear in Manchester Saturday when Sphinx Temple Shrines here for their Spring Ceremonial here.

That's the color of the fez worn by the Shrines.

During the Spring Ceremonial, Shrine units will parade from lower Main St. to Manchester High School; there will be ritual work in Clarke Arena and candidates will be initiated into the Shrine.

Illustrious Potentate Hal Turkington of Manchester said a class approaching 100 will be initiated, and more than 300 will be from the Manchester area.

The parade is at 1:30 p.m.

Today's edition of The Herald includes a 20-page supplement dedicated to the Shrine.

House, Senate at odds on formula

HARTFORD (UPI) — The big cities won in the Senate and the small towns carried the case of Representatives. Now the boys in the backroom will probably have to go to work. The issue is who gets how much of the $20 million educational equalization pie. With Lt. Gov. Robert K. Killian casting the deciding vote, the Senate Thursday rejected a plan approved in the House by lawmakers from suburbs and small towns. Instead, the upper chamber adopted a formula favoring cities. The Senate version has $1.1 million more for cities than the House plan. The Senate's action forces the educational equalization plan back to the House where small town lawmakers hold the reins. If the House again approves the

Layoffs proposed

HARTFORD (UPI) — School Superintendent Edythe J. Gaines Thursday proposed layoffs of 251 school employees, including 29 teachers and two elementary school vice principals. The layoffs would reduce the 3,145 current public school employees by about 7.5 per cent. Mrs. Gaines' proposal came after the City Council cut $3.8 million from the Hartford Board of Education's budget request for $48.6 million. "It is not a pretty picture," said Mrs. Gaines. "The superintendent proposes it to you as a reasonable way to deal with an unreasonable situation."

Opinion

Korean uncertainty

It is difficult to see what is to be gained by President Carter's plan to withdraw American troops from South Korea over the next four or five years, except for some possible savings in the defense that would quickly be swallowed up elsewhere.

Only the U.S. military presence in Korea, currently at some 38,000 combat-ready men, has kept the peace there for the past 24 years, a peace punctuated by recurring "incidents" along the 38th parallel truce line.

For once we are in agreement with the generals, one of whom was so opposed to the plan that he publicly differed with his Commander-in-Chief. American withdrawal could lead to another war with North Korea, warned Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, chief of staff

U.S. forces in Korea. For his pains, he was recalled home and "reassigned."

Singlaub is no Douglas MacArthur, of course, and South Korea is far stronger militarily than it was in 1950. But it was the mistaken belief of the North Koreans in 1950 that the United States no longer considered South Korea to be within its sphere of concern — a belief encouraged by our own State Department — which helped bring about the invasion and the war that has never really ended.

In the absence of any evidence that the North Koreans have abandoned the dream of completing their frustrated conquest of the South — every indication, in fact, points to the contrary — we could well be inviting history to repeat itself.

Score one for fair trade

High marks for economic diplomacy are due the Japanese and American negotiators who forged the just-concluded agreement limiting exports of Japanese color television sets to this country.

For President Carter, who has been accused of all style and no substance in the accomplishments so far, the agreement was a happy combination of both that bodes well for the course of relations with all our other trading partners — and the term "partners" is the correct one.

At stake was and is nothing less than this country's commitment to the principle of the freest possible international trade with the fewest possible artificial barriers and restrictions. The government had long been under pressure from the television industry, and continues to be under pressure from shoe, textile, steel and other industries, to raise or impose tariffs or establish quotas to stem the flood of foreign products.

On the one hand is the undeniable fact that cheaper foreign imports have cost thousands of American workers their jobs — an estimated 70,000 in the television industry alone — and forced many manufacturers out of business (though at the same time giving American consumers better bargains than they would otherwise have had).

Utility rates and ratios

High electric utility rates may often be a case of too many chiefs and not too many comms. The fewer the number of commissioners on a public utilities commission and the largest its staff, the more effective the commission is in regulating the cost of electricity to consumers, says a Cleveland State University political scientist.

Assistant professor Thomas M. Pelsoci bases that conclusion on a statistical study of 49 state regulatory agencies. While factors such as the cost of fuel and labor have a great influence on rates in any given area, he found that "the best way to reduce electricity rates, at least from my study, is to reduce the number of commissioners and add staff."

Highpriced eradication of poppy field

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The campaign to eradicate Mexico's poppy fields with an armada of herbicide-spraying helicopters is undoubtedly the most expensive and highly touted federal program currently under way to eliminate the source of illegal heroin coming into this country.

The State Department has poured at least $60 million into the effort during the past six years and expects to spend about $10 million annually in the next several years. The Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) has assigned scores of agents and technical experts to its Special Action Office for Mexico.

Although the United States provides much of the financing and technical assistance for the massive military-style operation, most of the aerial reconnaissance to locate the poppy fields and aerial spraying eradicate them is done by Mexican officials.

Genier's analysis noted that the Mexicans may have been using the wrong type of chemicals, were paying outlandishly high prices for one herbicide and were working with another chemical compound which is highly toxic.

It is my understanding that the Department of Transportation, State of Connecticut, conducts a study of traffic patterns within a given area, and from the results of their study a traffic control point is constructed and the resulting traffic flow is more efficiently established. I say traffic control points in Manchester. Assuming there are about five stop lights at each point, this would equal 310 stop lights. This figure does not include the new lights going into operation at the Adams and W. Middle Tpke. complex or those contemplated in the near future; in fact, it is becoming a nuisance just to all. Most of Genier's observations were made from an air flights over the rugged, sprayed populated areas on Mexico's west coast, where illegal poppy production is centered. On one occasion when his plane landed, he found herbicide damage to foliage more than a quarter-mile from a targeted poppy field.

Ecological impact
Clearly concerned about the possible danger of wide-scale defoliation, Genier in his report raised the question of the long-term ecological impact of the eradication program.

The Holy Spirit is like the Wind — Invisible but real. In Psalm 147:18 are these words "He causeth His Wind to blow."

The Holy Spirit is with us all the time, waiting to fill us again and again if we are ready to let Him. The words of the song make it clear — "Holy Spirit, come a come. Let Thy work in me be done. All that hinderers shall be thrown aside, Make me fit to be Thy dwelling."

Dredging bids are opened

Bids opened Wednesday for the dredging of Center Springs Pond came in much higher than Town of Manchester officials had expected.

Only two firms bid on the project and the apparent low bid of $48,750 was much higher than the $30,000 the town had anticipated.

GOP chairman criticizes Carter foreign policies

HARTFORD (UPI)—Republican National Chairman Bill Brock says impropriety and lack of experience in the diplomatic kitchen — have resulted in lack of a coherent foreign policy.

Brock told reporters Thursday while attending a GOP function.

Conflicting statements on various foreign policy issues by members of the administration was caused by "hopefully a lack of experience and maturity," Brock said.

Asked to clarify his statement, Brock said he meant the new administration lacked "political experience and governmental maturity."

"Most of them come from Georgia and they've never heard of South Africa before," Brock said, noting that many members of Carter's administration are newcomers to Washington.

Brock, however, said he thought "the administration deserves a little time to work into a coherent foreign policy. This is a brand new administration dealing in areas (in which) they have inadequate experience."

He said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young and National Security Advisor Zbigniew Brzezinski were confusing other countries about American policy by sometimes saying conflicting things.

He said they gave the impression the United States has three secretaries of state.

"You might say we have a fourth because the President has tried to run foreign policy by press conference," Brock said.

He apparently was referring to Carter's appeals for human rights which critics claim have made negotiations difficult with the Soviet Union.

Brock, a former Tennessee senator, said foreign nations cannot be blamed if they are unsure of where the United States stands on particular issues because of the different spokesmen.

Brock also said he thought Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., "had to be taken seriously" as a potential candidate for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination. Weicker is soon expected to form a campaign committee to begin his quest for the nomination.

Training center goals discussed by panel

A meeting of the Businessman's Advisory Committee was held recently at the Regional Occupational Training Center in Manchester.

Gerry Kelley, an ROTC vocational instructor, said, "ROTC's primary goals are to develop sufficient vocational and social skills for its students, aged 14-21 years. The school has already placed some of its students on a part-time basis, in the food service area.

"Students have also become involved in community service by aiding the elderly and homebound. They offer a food shopping service for same. The students also regularly visit Green Lodge, Holiday Home and Manchester Manor to assist in recreational programs," she said.

"This companion aid program has become extremely popular with both residents of the homes and the students," she concluded.

Suggestions by the Advisory Board for future activities included such programs as planting trees, picking berries and weeding the yards of the homebound.

Board members are: Jerry Bellman, Green Lodge; Sam Crispino, Supreme Foods; Rhoda Goldstein, Reeds Inc.; Vivian E. Ladabouche, Connecticut State Labor Department; George Marlow, Marlow's Department Store; Norman Fendell, ROTC director; Helen O'Neil, school social worker at ROTC; and Mrs. Kelley.

The board will meet again in the fall.

Verplanck teacher retires

Mrs. Dorothy Hughes, teacher at Verplanck School, looks at a scrapbook filled with pictures of her various classes she has taught during the past 25 years at Verplanck. Making the presentation are Craig Woodward, left, James Kibbie and Mark Cyenas, all members of her sixth grade math class. Mrs. Hughes was honored upon her retirement Wednesday at the school by her students and the PTA. She taught in Cromwell and Wethersfield before coming to Manchester. # Occupational fair now under way

Gwen Jasper and Robert Turney, students, look over job opportunity materials at the occupational fair at the Regional Occupational Training Center (ROTC) on Wetherell St. In the background is a display of jobs that the ROTC clients are trained to do. That and other displays, including bulletin boards and scrapbooks showing jobs available to handicapped persons, were prepared by the clients at ROTC. The fair tells the story of student activities during ROTC's first year of operation. Many of the projects are under the direction of Mrs. Fran Panaita, teacher of academic and special skills. The fair is open to the public Monday through Friday through June 16 from 8:30 to 1:30 p.m. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Special tests are Saturday

Students who have registered to take the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or the College Board Achievement Tests Saturday at Manchester High School are reminded that the doors will open at 7:50 a.m. Students will be assigned to testing rooms on a first come, first served basis. The latest possible arrival time is 8:30 a.m.

Students should bring their ticket of admission, identification, and two No. 2 pencils.

Parking will be in the student parking lot off Brookfield St. Students are reminded to enter the building through the entrance to the cafeteria lobby adjacent to the student parking lot.

Potter-Irwin

Barbara Ann Irwin of Manchester and Frank E. Potter of East Windsor were married May 1 at South United Methodist Church in Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Potter

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Elvira Irwin of 24 Glenwood St. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Florence Potter of Linwood, Mass. The Rev. George Webb of South United Methodist Church officiated at the candlelight, double-ring ceremony. The church was decorated with white gladioli, white roses, and white snapdragons. Robert Penn of South United Methodist Church was organist and Mrs. Jay Martens of Manchester was soloist. The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, John Calve Jr. of Manchester, wore a gown of French Chantilly lace designed with scalloped fitted bodice trimmed with sequins, scooped neckline, long tapered sleeves, full hoop skirt with embroidered lace back terminating into a court train. Her elbow-length veil of silk organza tiers was attached to a crown trimmed with pearl drops and sequins. She carried a white prayer book with a small cascade bouquet of white roses and baby's breath. Miss Cheryl Estrella of Vernon was maid of honor. Mrs. Chris Calve of Manchester, the bride's cousin, was bridesmaid. Marc Lemay of South Windsor served as best man. Harry Barrett of South Windsor was usher. A reception was held at Fiano's Restaurant in Bolton, after which the couple left for Hawaii. For traveling, Mrs. Potter wore a French blue silk shantung pantsuit with matching shoes and an orchid corsage. The couple is residing in East Windsor. Both Mr. and Mrs. Potter are employed at United Technologies Corp. in East Hartford. (Hedeler photo)

VOL. XXXIV - NO. 25

FRIDAY, JUNE 3, 1977

Gluhosky named SA president

The Manchester High School student body has found new leadership in the person of Mark Gluhosky. Mark, a 16-year-old junior, was elected Student Assembly president in a close election last week. His two opponents, John Longo and Deanna Mardock, should also be commended for excellent run campaigns.

Mark's campaign platform consisted, in part, of his plans to hold less formal, in-school meetings. He felt that people were "turned off" by the very structured and formal meetings. It is his hope to begin the year informally in order to involve more people.

When asked what after people are involved, they can learn about the Rules and conduct the meetings accordingly. The idea of reinstating in-school meetings has not yet been approved by the school administration, although Mark feels that the administration is in favor of this change. The meetings would be conducted during one school period every two weeks.

If a student attends the first three meetings, he will receive a pass to leave his scheduled class during meeting times for the remainder of the year. With informal, in-school meetings Mark hopes to attract many new people, along with the old, to the Student Assembly.

Mark's platform also outlined ideas for next year's SA sponsored activities. He believes that more community involvement is very important to improve the school's "reputation." Bike and/or walkathons for charity, car washes,

Guidance offered sophomores

Attending MHS is quite an experience. Of, nothing out of the ordinary occurs until the first day of school. Normally, one would expect the teachers to be kind and outgoing, considering the layoff during the summer, but as soon as first period rolls around you have homework.

From here on the precedent has been set and homework can be expected consistently. This idea is one of the first encountered by a student, and his hints at three tough, but fantastic years ahead.

During the first week of school, the morning announcements bring pleas for membership to many enjoyable clubs. Soccer, Debate Table, Math, Chess and Round Clubs are only a few of the many enjoyed by the students. All of the clubs are run by us and are advised by some able-bodied (sometimes stubborn) advisors who throw in their suggestions occasionally.

Unfortunately many people find that there aren't enough hours in a day and find themselves up to their neck in activities. This is not necessarily bad, but one finds that meals are missed and homework hampered. Another great activity is a job on the High School World Staff.

As the school year wears on many new friendships are made and the Hitting-Bennet rivalry wears off. Each person finds his/her activity whether it be academic, a club, or one of the many sports teams. Through these activities people get involved in the school and when this happens the school is bettered for the entire community.

MHS is really a great place. It offers so much and allows its students to broaden their interests and their experiences. This is really fantastic and you'll love it; definitely get involved! - Peter Krupp

Medical Club ends successful year

The Medical Club concluded its first year this week with a demonstration of the principles of the Medical Techniques. Two EMTs from Manchester Ambulance Service, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bennett conducted an excellent display in the Manchester Memorial Hospital's parking lot.

The Medical Club was re-created this year with the help of principal George Emmerling, and advisors Miss Andrea Deary and Mrs. Anne Kichar.

The Manchester community was very receptive to the Medical Club. A special thanks should go to the Public Relations Department at MMH. They accommodated the club with a conference room in which to conduct their meetings. The Manchester Medical community was also very accommodating.

Seniors face hectic times

Upon publication of this article, there will be a mere three days of regular classes for the MHS graduating class of 1977. Between now and the graduation night of June 21, seniors will be involved in an onslaught of activity designed to ensure and/or enhance graduation.

Lines are beginning to form at the counter in the main office of the high school. Emphasis is on paying of book bills that will enable formerly indebted seniors to receive diplomas. Rentals on formal wear are booming as the guys prepare themselves (remember the scout's motto) for the June 10 Senior Prom.

If you haven't gotten yours yet, you're stuck with a black or grey mourning suit. Come on, guys. You only have a week left. And don't forget the flowers, boys. Does a corsage, a wristlet, a nosegay, a dandelion? ...

Girls with prom gown material and a pattern should start cutting and sewing. If you haven't yet bought your gown, consider going out of state if you mind wearing a duplicate of someone else's dress. The grapevine says that all of the extra copies are bought. Do you also have enough wallet sized copies of your yearbook picture?

The closing banquet of the French Club was May 26, in the filling Junior High School cafeteria. Although attendance was not quite as large as expected, all who attended had an enjoyable evening.

A buffet style dinner was served, with traditional French desserts of mousse au chocolat and crepes concluding the meal. Entertainment followed, consisting of a French skit performed by French Club members Richard Walden, Sue Thulin, Paul Vanhesse, Aimee Trabitz and Marc Lauffer. Also a selection of French songs was presented by Mary Toland and Sandra Bellone.

The audience of parents and friends found this entertainment amusing. To the surprise of Paul Vanhesse, the AFS student from Belgium, the members of the French Club presented him with a birthday cake and gift, in celebration of his birthday the following day. To close the banquet, interesting and exciting slides of the trip to Quebec were shown. Friends were made, although all who attended the banquet seemed to enjoy the evening. - Mary Toland

The girls varsity tennis team ended its season on a high note last Friday in crushing E.O. Smith of Mansfield, 6 to 1.

After a slow start, Cherie Dow, playing No. 1 singles for Manchester, easily defeated Mary Taylor by 6-3, 6-0. Cherie was impressive in her domination of Taylor throughout the match.

Manchester won all of its singles matches with fine performances by all, but deserving of special recognition was senior Gwen Froh. Gwen finished her high school career in style by thrashing Linda Berger by 6-2, 6-1.

Sophomores Diane Whitaker and Kathy McCon stopped Linda Sandberg and Wendy Wyant in their opening doubles match by 6-0, 6-2. The girls finished a fine season with a record of 7-2 in the CCIL and 11-3 overall, and will be looking for your support in the upcoming season. - Mike Wilson

The Dawn Dance is in the MHS cafeteria from 1 until 4 a.m. Music will be provided by "Nemisis." This will be sponsored by the Rotary Club

Mrs. Berk selected for summer program

Mrs. Elaine Berk, social studies teacher at Nathan Hale School, will be participating in a Presidential Classroom for Young Americans forum July 17-30 in Washington, D.C.

She and the other 50 teachers, administrators, government employees and university students from all parts of the country will attend daily seminars led by federal officials from all three branches of government.

Emphasis will be placed on establishing an active dialogue between participants and key Washington officials to help promote a greater understanding of government operations.

Plans for this year's forum call for on-site briefings at the Pentagon, the State Department, the Goddard Space Flight Center and at Capitol Hill.

Mrs. Berk will receive graduate credits from the University of Virginia for the course.

Seniors face hectic times

Upon publication of this article, there will be a mere three days of regular classes for the MHS graduating class of 1977. Between now and the graduation night of June 21, seniors will be involved in an onslaught of activity designed to ensure and/or enhance graduation.

Lines are beginning to form at the counter in the main office of the high school. Emphasis is on paying of book bills that will enable formerly indebted seniors to receive diplomas. Rentals on formal wear are booming as the guys prepare themselves (remember the scout's motto) for the June 10 Senior Prom.

If you haven't gotten yours yet, you're stuck with a black or grey mourning suit. Come on, guys. You only have a week left. And don't forget the flowers, boys. Does a corsage, a wristlet, a nosegay, a dandelion? ...

Girls with prom gown material and a pattern should start cutting and sewing. If you haven't yet bought your gown, consider going out of state if you mind wearing a duplicate of someone else's dress. The grapevine says that all of the extra copies are bought. Do you also have enough wallet sized copies of your yearbook picture?

The closing banquet of the French Club was May 26, in the filling Junior High School cafeteria. Although attendance was not quite as large as expected, all who attended had an enjoyable evening.

A buffet style dinner was served, with traditional French desserts of mousse au chocolat and crepes concluding the meal. Entertainment followed, consisting of a French skit performed by French Club members Richard Walden, Sue Thulin, Paul Vanhesse, Aimee Trabitz and Marc Lauffer. Also a selection of French songs was presented by Mary Toland and Sandra Bellone.

The audience of parents and friends found this entertainment amusing. To the surprise of Paul Vanhesse, the AFS student from Belgium, the members of the French Club presented him with a birthday cake and gift, in celebration of his birthday the following day. To close the banquet, interesting and exciting slides of the trip to Quebec were shown. Friends were made, although all who attended the banquet seemed to enjoy the evening. - Mary Toland

The girls varsity tennis team ended its season on a high note last Friday in crushing E.O. Smith of Mansfield, 6 to 1.

After a slow start, Cherie Dow, playing No. 1 singles for Manchester, easily defeated Mary Taylor by 6-3, 6-0. Cherie was impressive in her domination of Taylor throughout the match.

Manchester won all of its singles matches with fine performances by all, but deserving of special recognition was senior Gwen Froh. Gwen finished her high school career in style by thrashing Linda Berger by 6-2, 6-1.

Sophomores Diane Whitaker and Kathy McCon stopped Linda Sandberg and Wendy Wyant in their opening doubles match by 6-0, 6-2. The girls finished a fine season with a record of 7-2 in the CCIL and 11-3 overall, and will be looking for your support in the upcoming season. - Mike Wilson

Departments list cutbacks needed to meet budget

The Building Department will be unable to fill a vacant inspector position. The town has found that some pre-emptive Employment Training Act (ETA) funds will not be available to pay for such an employee. The assessor post has been vacant since the retirement of Thomas Monahan.

Weiss said that the Sanitation Department budget will be sufficient if charges for using the landfill are instituted. The Board of Directors is expected to act on such a proposal at one of its June meetings.

In other areas, the budget for the controller's office falls $4,600 short of paying for salaries of present staff. Weiss has recommended a $4,600 transfer from the budget's Contingency Fund to pay the existing staff during 1977-78.

The collector's office will require an additional $2,228 for operating expenses and $6,750 for the pre-processing unit recently approved, Weiss said.

The directors will hear a request at the June 7 meeting to increase the operating budget for both departments. The board originally cut the requested operating budgets for both in being building up reserve funds.

In the Highway Department, Weiss said that layoffs can be avoided if labor negotiations result in only one worker being needed per snow plow. The issue is a major one in the contract negotiations between the town and the union that represents highway workers. The union hopes to retain two workers per truck; the town wants the number reduced to one.

The Park Department budget provides funding for only one-half of the year for a light equipment operator. Two summer help positions will also be eliminated, Weiss reported.

Other cuts in the Public Works Department include the elimination of one engineer-in-training in the Engineering Department. The position had been filled by a work-study college student.

Wholesale prices up in May

The decline in unemployment from 7 percent in April was almost insignificant, since the number of unemployed Americans remained virtually unchanged at 6.75 million.

May's 6.9 per cent unemployment rate marked the lowest it has been since the early days of the recession in November, 1974.

Joblessness last month also was 2.1 per cent below the recession peak established in May, 1975. More than 1 per cent of that decline occurred over the past six months.

The Wholesale Price Index stood at 192.3 in May. This means goods costing $100 in 1967 now cost $192.30 - nearly a doubling of prices over the past decade.

Industrial prices rose a moderate 0.4 per cent in May, the smallest increase in five months. Prices of processed foods and feeds also moderated, rising 1.8 per cent.

Fuel and power prices continued to rise, but prices were down sharply for farm products including grains, eggs, green coffee, cocoa beans, tea, soybeans, poultry and vegetables.

The trends in wholesale prices and unemployment provided encouraging news for Americans. Wholesale prices eventually affect prices in retail stores.

Most of the increased employment occurred in factories, which hired an extra 65,000 persons in May. The biggest gains were in the fabricated metal, machinery and electrical equipment industries.

Charter change proposed

South Windsor will vote Saturday

By JUDY KUHNEL
Herald Correspondent

The long battle over South Windsor's form of government will be settled Saturday when voters have their chance to vote on a proposed charter change from council-manager to council-mayor.

Myette has said all the petition signers don't necessarily favor a change in government but simply want to bring the matter to referendum.

South Windsor now operates under council-manager government. Voters elect a nine-member council, which selects a council chairman, or mayor.

Panel representatives indicated that the major difference between council-manager and council-mayor is in the type of person heading the town.

Officials split on Bolton's budget

By DONNA HOLLAND
Herald Correspondent

Most Board of Finance members and the town political chairman are urging acceptance of Bolton's $2.2 million budget.

The school board said the $31,316 cut by the finance board was too large because the school board had only asked for a five per cent spending increase.

appointed in the cuts in the general government budget.

Morris Silverstein also recommends adopting the budget. He said rejection would be an indication to restore some money to general government.

Bolton voters will go to the polls Monday to decide the fate of the 1977-78 budget recommended by the Board of Finance.

The school board said it needs at least $2,000 restored to its budget, and it emphasized that the town may receive $7,000 in state grants which aren't included in revenue estimates when the spending plan was prepared.

Five other members of the finance board are urging residents to accept the budget. They each would interpret a rejection of the budget differently.

Robert Morra, Republican town chairman, said he favors acceptance of the budget, but he said he would have given more money to general government.

The polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Community Hall.

Two other town officials - Selectman Leon Rivers and finance board member Sid Sattar - also urge rejection of the budget.

What goes up doesn't come down

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

What goes up doesn't necessarily come down. At least not when you are talking about prices.

The school board now has a lengthy list of standing committees for just about every subject pertaining to education. It has made full circle in 20 years.

In case anyone has any doubts about how costs have risen in the past 20 and 30 years, here is an eye opener. In Vernon in 1957, the town report says the Board of Education budget was just $746,435. The budget approved for 1977-78 is slightly over $9 million.

Indians explode in 11th inning, score five times to down Staples

Brian Moran

Mike Jordan

Wreckers came back with a rally in their half of the 11th but fell short as Indian hurler Mike Jordan, who went the distance, fanned

Staples had Livingston in a rundown but he made it back to third. The Wreckers next went after pinch-hitting Dale Wahmoff for the final out.

Dale Wahmoff

Manchester took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first as three consecutive free passes by Staples starter Jeff Burton, the last to DeClanias, forced in a run. Staples retaliated quickly in its half playing two on four hits.

An infield hit, walk and double by Jon Blanc in the seventh knotted it for the home team. Staples' Sean Duffy attempted to steal home with a two-strike count on Rodriguez but Tribe catcher Tom Jones made a fine play getting around Rodriguez who was impeding his progress, to make the tag on a sliding Duffy.

The locals regained the lead in the fifth. With the bags jammed and one out, Hanlon lofted a fly to medium deep centerfield. Livingston on third went down the line but held up. Gliha on second, however, didn't see this and sped to third.

Manchester had 13 hits, three by Livingston who also scored three times. Hanlon, Moran, Jordan and Gliha chipped in with two apiece, the latter running his consecutive game hitting streak to 14. Moran had four RBIs.

Jordan notched his sixth apiece, the latter running his consecutive game hitting streak to 14. Moran had four RBIs.

NO DISTRACTIONS — Shut off the radio, TV, or stereo. Let the salesman and the prospect be free from such disturbances.

KEEP PETS OUT OF THE WAY — Some people actually fear animals.

DON'T APOLOGIZE for the appearance of your home.

A FRESH LOOK HELPS the sale. Clean carpets, walls, and you may need a little freshening up with paint. This will help improve the chances of selling at the price you want.

Keep these tips in mind if you are selling or thinking of selling your home. See you next week with a few more.

 cidents with far more serious injuries resulting to both the drivers and home dwellers."
 The petition charges the town management with being "more concerned with an uninhibited flow of customers to the Parkade merchants than they are with the safety of their citizens and the depreciation in the value of these residential properties."
 The petition also notes the many students from East Catholic High School and Cheney Technical School who walk along the street and the danger of crossing the street.
 Castagna could not be reached for comment today on the hearing mentioned in the petition.

According to the Department of Transportation, a hearing on the project was held at Waddell School on Sept. 12, 1974 and officials were not aware of another hearing.
 Plans of the project, dated 1975, at Dep. Police Chief Richard Sartor's office show the "no parking" restrictions on both sides of the turnpike from New State Rd. to the west exit of the Parkade. It also shows that the road was planned as four-lane.
 One of the reasons for the road construction was to help the traffic problems on the street, Sartor said.
 Police Chief Robert D. Lannan, who also serves as the town's parking authority, is on vacation, but plans to review the situation when he gets back Monday, Sartor said.

HUD requests

 the market wage-rates for those positions," Mason said.
 For the Community Development application, Mason will estimate that half of those low-income households will be persons already residing in town. Thus, the other half, 229, are expected to be new low-income residences.
 The other change in the application is connected with 50 "family-type units" of section 8 Housing construction that the town had targeted for its three-year plan. HUD has recommended that the 50-units be included in the present-year plan.
 Section 8 Housing provides federal subsidies for renters who meet certain guidelines. The housing is provided for two groups — elderly/handicapped and low income.
 Mason said that the town may look to private contractors to build the 50 units. The contractors can obtain federal monies for such construction, work, he said. The town already has Section 8 Housing in privately owned units.
 Mason said that the change to the present-year plan means that the town will begin planning for the construction of the units this year rather than in the three-year plan that the town had proposed. It will still be at least a few years before the Section 8 Housing is built, he said.
 He said that the increase in the low-income housing estimate would alter the town's goal in trying to meet such needs.
 "If we don't show good faith in trying to produce this housing, then, down the road, we could be in trouble," Mason said.
 He did say that the 229 figure is a "guesstimate."

Local PTA workshops slated

The Manchester PTA Council will have an evening of workshops for incoming and retiring members Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Manchester Green School. The public is invited.
 The program will consist of five workshops as well as an introduction and general group discussion.
 Mrs. Emily MacKenzie, council president will lead the workshop for PTA presidents and vice-presidents. A workshop for treasurers will be led by Mrs. Mary Mahoney with Mrs. Kathy Spohn and Jack Carlson.
 The other workshops and leaders include ways and means by Mrs. Carolyn Woodward, program by Mrs. Shirley McCray with Linda Massaro and fine arts by Mrs. Jan Gemballa.
 The latter workshops are for persons who have worked and are planning to work in those areas next year and for other persons interested in those facets of PTA.
 PTA presidents are asked to bring a list of their officers and executive boards for the coming year, number of members in their PTA's and summary of events and financial-dispersements for this year.

Girl injured in explosion

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — A series of explosions today injured at least one student and forced evacuation of the Wilbur Cross High School on Mitchell Drive, police said.
 Fire officials said the explosion occurred about 11 a.m. on the second floor in an area of chemistry classrooms but the cause was undetermined.

Sphinx Temple Spring Ceremonial

SUPPLEMENT TO
THE MANCHESTER EVENING HERALD
FRIDAY, JUNE 3, 1977

Omar Shrine Club color guard and marching unit parade along Main Street.

As American as apple pie

This is the story of an organization that is as American as Apple Pie, despite its name.

Don't let the name mislead you. The major resemblance of the Mystic Shrine of North America to any possible prototype existing in the Middle Eastern Europe back in the 6th Century is in its selection of names for its Temples; its glamorous pageantry; its colorful ceremonial and parade costumes and trappings, and its return to early history for its ritualistic lessons.

We know why, how and where the mystic Shrine was actually founded, but what we don't know is where to place the dividing line between fact and fiction as regards a possible early-day namesake organization in the Middle East.

We do know that considerable showmanship is necessary in the establishment of any secret order. It lends importance and attractiveness; it causes people to desire and to seek membership.

We know that the cofounders of the Mystic Shrine were more than passing good showmen. Actor Billy Florence was reared to regard the world as a stage and all the people as actors. Dr. Walter M. Fleming could have earned a good livelihood as a juggler and magician.

These two men did most of the preliminary work of the new fraternal order.

The Shrine is called "A Playground for Masons." It is devoted to pure, clean fun—the funnier the better. Shriners, though, never forget that they are first Masons. Each Potentate is held responsible for the decorum of his own Temple, and must impress upon his officers and workers under his administration that nothing of an obscene, vulgar, profane, irreligious, or objectionable character will be permitted in any part of the secret rites of the Shrine.

Dr. Fleming was completing his higher degree work in Masonry right after the Civil War. In New York, he found himself in the midst of a "Thirteen Craze." Everything went by thirteens, and Mr. Fleming met Billy Florence at a Masonic luncheon at which there were 13 present.

Dr. Fleming, in his quest for relaxation, had an urge to establish a playground for Masons—one in which only Masons who had completed their Scottish Rite or York Rite would be eligible.

And so, the Shrine was formed in 1870.

Those 13 members who attended that Masonic meeting in New York became the first Shriners, and later Dr. Fleming communicated the work to 17 others. The first Temple, Mecca, was formed on Sept. 26, 1872.

A second Temple—Damascus—was formed in Rochester, N.Y., in 1875, and in 1876 Mt. Sinai was formed at Montpelier, Vt.

The parent body—Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine—was created and today is called the Imperial Council. It meets annually, and this year the Imperial Council Sessions meet in New York the week of July 4.

Sphinx Temple was granted its charter on June 24, 1896.

There are now 180 Shrine Temples throughout the United States, Canada and Mexico. There is a Temple in Hawaii—Aloha—and there is a Shrine hospital there, too.

The 179th Temple to receive its charter is Tunis of Ottawa, Ont., Can. Its charter was granted at the Imperial Council Session in Kansas City last July.

Its charter Potentate was John Diefenbacher, the 81-year-old retired prime minister of Canada.

NOVICE
ROUND UP TIME

Tomorrow is Shriner novice roundup time

Tomorrow is novice roundup time for the Shrine in Manchester, and a caravan will be formed to travel the hot sands of the desert.

That's Shrine language, and it means only that candidates for the fraternal organization will be initiated in ceremonies.

A novice is a candidate; he is a beginner. When the day is through, he will have been initiated, he will know the ritual of the degree, and he will be eligible to wear the red fez of a Shriner.

Those candidates have previously been instructed about the Shrine, what it stands for, its philanthropy, and its dedicated to Fun, Frolic, and Good Fellowship, ever mindful of the needs of others.

Candidates have been shown a film about the work of the Shrine at its hospitals. Tomorrow's candidates will report to Manchester High School at 8 a.m. for registration, and then they will be taken by bus to the Springfield Unit of the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children for a tour.

"I want our candidates to be fully aware of the obligations of the Shrine; I want them to know that never does a Shriner stand so tall as when he stoops to help a crippled child; I want them to have that in their hearts Saturday afternoon when they repeat that obligation," said Hal Turkington, illustrious potentate.

Omar — the Potentate's Club

"Omar Shrine Club — the Potentate's Club."

That's the identification on an Omar Shrine Club membership card for 1977, because the potentate of Sphinx Temple is a past president of Omar Shrine Club.

Bob Petersen of 46 Hillside St. is president of Omar for 1977. His associate officers are Wilbur M. Chadwick, first vice-president; Randall Brown, second vice-president; Herbert Kingsbury, secretary, and Stanley N. Baldwin, treasurer.

Members of the board of directors are John Rieg, Bob Ledoux, Walter Tedford, Milton Turkington, Roger Chadwick and Fred Schleicher.

Petersen is the 28th president of a club whose origin dates to 1949; the first three presidents served for two years.

Shrine Clubs were adopted by the Shriners right after World War II, under authority granted by the Imperial Council. It was a method of keeping Shriners in a given area closely associated for social and fraternal fellowship.

There are 10 Shrine Clubs under the jurisdiction of Sphinx Temple. Omar serves the Greater Manchester-Rockville area.

Other clubs are Alhambra, serving Bristol, New Britain, Plainville and Farmington areas; Arabian, the Greater Meriden area; Bedouin, serving New London County; Caravan, serving Middlesex County; Kaabans, serving the Greater Waterbury area.

Also, Moslem, serving Windham County; Oasis, the Greater Hartford area; Tehran, serving North Central Connecticut; and Zem Zem, serving Litchfield County.

Quarry Club

The Quarry Club of Manchester was the forerunner of the Omar Shrine Club. It was organized in 1947 when several Manchester Nobles decided to meet once a month. It became known as Omar Shrine Club when it later was officially affiliated with Sphinx Temple, in 1949.

Who were the prime movers of Omar Shrine Club? They are familiar to many old-time Manchester residents: Walter Joyner, the first president; Harold Barnsley, the second president; George Waddell, the town's first general manager; Tom Rogers and Bill Thornton Sr., both state representatives to the General Assembly; Earl Trotter, the first secretary; and Herb House and Burt Pearl, Manchester merchants.

The Granddaddy of Omar is the late Dan Reed, who was potentate of Sphinx Temple in 1947 and helped Omar organize as a Shrine Club. The late Francis Stancliff, recorder, was called the Daddy when he assisted in the formation.

Early meetings of Omar were held at the Masonic Temple and later upstairs over the former Murphy's Restaurant, no longer in existence. It was near Maple St., on Main St. The club has met at several locations during the years, and more recently at Willie's Steak House.

In the accompanying photos of Past Presidents, all were taken during the year they were presidents.

Initiates called vanZelm Class

The 1977 Spring Ceremonial Class that the Shriners from Sphinx Temple will initiate tomorrow will be known as The Henri B. vanZelm Class.

Noble vanZelm was the illustrious potentate of Sphinx Temple in 1956. He died on April 14, 1976.

Noble vanZelm conducted his Spring Ceremonial in Manchester. He is called the great-great-grandfather of Potentate Hal Turkington of Manchester in Sphinx Temple because the potentate can trace his Shrine lineage to vanZelm by appointment to the line of officers.

The vocal group of Sphinx Temple — the Chanters — were organized by Noble vanZelm in 1956. He himself had a booming bass voice.

Shriners perhaps best remember Noble vanZelm because of that booming voice; he did, for many years, deliver the "Inspired Charge" to the candidates, and often conducted the installation ceremonies for Wyllys Lodge of Masons in West Hartford, of which he was a past master.

Band No. 1 in Northeast

Sphinx Temple Band is No. 1 in the Northeast. It won that title during the Northeast Convention last fall at Montreal, Canada.

It long has been considered one of the finest bands in Shrinedom, and best band in the Northeast for many years.

In 1974, the band won the national championship during the Imperial Council Sessions parade in Atlantic City, N.J.

Its musical director today is John Hefferman who for 23 years was a member of and an associate conductor of the Coast Guard Band at New London.

Ken Barrett is in his sixth year as band manager; while he lives in Bloomfield now, he has strong connections with Manchester and was graduated from Manchester

High School in 1947.

The band is the Potentate's Unit, because he came from the band to an appointment on the Temple Divan. He has played tuba with the band for 21 years and was an assistant conductor of the band for two years.

Honorary parade marshal

Former Mayor Harold A. Turkington is the honorary parade marshal for the Shrine Ceremonial Parade in Manchester tomorrow. Here he congratulates his son, Harold E. (Hal) Turkington, on his election as the illustrious potentate of Sphinx Temple at the annual meeting of Shriners in January. The former mayor has been a member of the Masonic fraternity for more than 40 years.

Bermuda Masons weekend guests

Visiting Masons from Bermuda will enjoy an honored position in the Shriners parade Saturday.

They will ride near the head of the parade, and then will review the parade at the reviewing stand on E. Center St.

The Masons are from Atlantic Phoenix Lodge No. 224, Grand Registry of England (GRE). They are here on a fraternal visit to Friendship Lodge of Masons, arriving Thursday night and departing Monday.

Tonight, the Bermuda Masons will confer their British Master Mason degree at Illing Junior High School to an audience of about 400 Masons.

The fraternal visit is an exchange for one that Friendship Lodge conducted in 1969 when Hal Turkington, now potentate of the Shrine, was worshipful master of Friendship Lodge. He took Friendship to Bermuda for a visit; a return trip by Friendship in 1974 was a fifth reunion.

Many of the visiting Bermuda Masons were involved in that first Friendship trip of 1969. Frank Gamble was the worshipful master of Atlantic Phoenix Lodge then, and he will be in the cast of officers tonight. Sandy Powell and T. A. Hollis, both past masters, are cochairmen for this visit. Charles Mann will be received tonight as the grand inspector for the Grand Lodge of England; he is the ranking GRE officer in Bermuda and will read the disposition which allows the lodge to perform its work here.

Shriner's Creed

- I am a Shriner because.....
- It is the fulfillment of my devotion to the principles of Freemasonry through the prerequisite degrees of Shrinedom.
  - It extends to me, in great numbers, the warm hand of fellowship and brotherly love—the priceless ingredients of man's quest for happiness.
  - It furthers my Masonic adherence of love of God, love of country and love of freedom.
  - It enables me to participate in one of the world's great monuments to humanitarian devotion—Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children—that of caring for our crippled and burned young, regardless of race or creed.
  - Through fellowship and service, it strengthens my soul and adds inner-meaning to my life. It thus spreads a glow of joy through my entire family.

Omar has yearly date at hospital

Visiting days at a Shriners hospital are at a premium. Take the Springfield Unit, for example.

There are 17 temples in New England and upper New York State with a responsibility to the Springfield hospital. Each one of them has clubs and units, and it is not possible for all of them to get visiting dates at the hospital to entertain the children there.

But Omar Shrine Club of Manchester has had a date at Springfield for nearly every one of its 28-year history.

This year it goes to the hospital on Sunday, July 10; it has been going there on the second Sunday in July for several years.

Harold Barnsley, the second President in Omar's history (1951-52), is chairman emeritus of the hospital visit. He arranged the trip for many years, provided the entertainment, and coordinated twin visit with Moslem Shrine Club.

The job this year is under the cochairmanship of John Rieg and Fred Gaal; Rieg handles the food and gifts for the children while Gaal provides the entertainment.

For many years, dancers from the Trudy Tyler School of Dance performed at Springfield, and their music was by Tony O'Bright and his band. The late Mr. O'Bright annually brought his band to Springfield, and he always refused to accept remuneration.

In 1967, at its annual meeting, Omar Shrine Club presented to O'Bright a green fez with shamrock for his contributions to Shrinedom and the hospitals. It was only the fifth green fez ever presented to someone outside the Masonic and Shrine fraternity for their interest and support of the hospitals.

Entertainment provided by Omar in recent years has been varied. The Jane Hart Dancers have been there; Weird Harold and his Hog Hollow Hooters; magicians like Tomanick the Great; and the puppet shows put on by the Junior Womens Club of Manchester.

If the weather is kind, the program is held on the patio at Springfield and there is a cookout. Shriners grill hot dogs and hamburgs with all the fixings, soda, and ice cream cones or sundaes.

Shriners' wives assist in serving the children.

Everyone pitches in to wheel beds from the hospital wings to the patio, or assist those mobile patients.

If the weather is poor, the show goes on in the school room and auditorium.

There have been lots of "love affairs" sparked from those visits. More often than not, a Shriner or his wife will become a "favorite" of a patient, and the parting can be such sorrow.

One visit will swell the pride of a Shriner; he knows what the slogan means which says "No one stand taller than he who stoops to help a crippled child."

Those novices will find that out tomorrow morning, when they visit the hospital before they are initiated into Sphinx Temple in the afternoon.

Ritual cast members wear Oriental costumes and turbans.

Motor Patrol performs a drill on parade.

Basic principles

A few basic principles of the Shrine—

- It supports the government.
- It requires of its members a belief in God.
- It is not a religion.
- It is totally American.

Some believe the Shrine must be a religion—Islamic.

It is not, but it does practice quasi-religious rites that are just as secret as the passwords that admit members to official ceremonies and serve as a form of communication understood only by Shriners.

During rituals, its officers wear ornate Oriental robes, gowns and medals. Their meeting halls are called temples or mosques.

The crescent was adopted as the jewel of the order. In forming the crescent, the claws of the Royal Bengal tiger were united at their base and form a frame for the head of the sphinx on the back of which was a pyramid, urn and star.

The jewel bears the motto in Arabic, "Kuwat wa Ghadab," the English translation of which is "Strength and Fury."

The crescent was chosen because it has been a religious emblem for all ages in the Orient, and had political significance in Turkey and Persia.

The salutation which is in use today among Shriners—Es Salamu Aleikum—means "Peace be with you." The response is "Aleikum es Selamu"—"With you be peace."

Freemasonry in Connecticut and the nation resembles two sets of stairs that begin and end together, as this chart of Masonic structure shows. A Mason's first step is to become an Entered Apprentice. He climbs to the Symbolic third Blue Lodge step where he becomes a Master Mason. If he wants to go on in Masonry, he petitions either the Scottish or York Rites.

In the Scottish Rite a Mason climbs 30 steps, or degrees. The title he assumes during each degree appears on each step in the chart. Some of the historic figures a Mason meets in Scottish Rite ceremonies stand on the steps (from the bottom): King Solomon, King Cyrus, acolyte, George Washington and Sultan. Each degree dramatizes a moral lesson. To earn the degree the candidate participates in or witnesses a ceremony dramatizing it. In the Scottish Rite the 32nd Degree is the last a Mason can obtain by initiation or petition. The 33rd Degree is awarded by the Supreme Council, ruling body of the Rite.

The Structure Of Freemasonry

A Mason in the York Rite advances ten degrees, known by name and not by degree numbers. On the chart are figures a candidate meets at each degree or the symbol of the degree. Figures shown are temple workman, Past Master (Virtual), Israel tribesman, High Priest of Jews, King Hiram of Tyre, Knight of Malta and Knight Templar.

Under the arch are shown some of the organizations allied to Freemasonry. Among others, Master Masons are eligible for Freemasonry. Girls with a Mason in the family can join the Rainbow Girls; boys with a Master Mason's recommendation can join DeMolay; women (wives, sisters and daughters) may join the Eastern Star. Scottish Rite 32nd Degree Masons and Knights Templar can petition for Shrine membership. Wives of Shrine and Grotto members can petition for membership in allied women's organizations.

Most important of the many Masonic symbols are the open Bible with the square and compass on it (left); Solomon's temple (below the Bible); and the letter G with the all-seeing eye inside (upper right).

The Highlanders are the bag pipers of Sphinx Temple.

Public invited to join 100 Million Dollar Club

What is the 100 Million Dollar Club? It's a Shrine Club membership open to anyone who contributes $100 or more or making a provision in their will for $100 or more to the Shriners Hospitals for Crippled and Burned Children throughout North America.

Now the general public is welcome to join the 100 Million Dollar Club; it has been opened up because of a desire from the public to become contributing members in the Greatest Philanthropy of the World.

The 100 Million Dollar Club was started in 1972 when the Shrine began its second century. Opening the membership to the public should make it possible for the Shrine to fully endow its 22 hospitals in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Those who join the club receive a membership signed by the Temple Potentate and the Imperial Potentate of the Shrine of North America.

For more information about the 100 Million Dollar Club, see the next page. Those wishing to join the club may contact Recorder William O. Gadd, Sphinx Temple, P. O. Box 207, Hartford, Conn. 06101.

Artificial skin brings new hope

Artificial skin may bring new hope to burn victims.

This historic breakthrough of man-made skin was achieved by surgeons of the Shriners Burns Institute at Boston and engineers at Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) in 1976.

Dr. John F. Burke, who discovered the miracle with Dr. Ioannis Yannas of MIT, said that the new skin will actually grow into the patient's own tissues as the wound heals.

Ugly scars could be completely covered virtually unnoticed by a sheath of skin without having to borrow chunks of skin from other parts of the body.

The man-made skin is made by taking collagen fibers, otherwise known as protein fibers, from animal tissue. It can be taken from any mammal.

Tests are still going on. Dr. Burke hopes that, in the future, artificial skin can be taken from a central bank. He said all shades, tones and coloring of skin can be matched up.

The discovery came after years of tests and experimenting with protein fibers, but it has been a rewarding bit of team work, said Dr. Burke.

Objective has made the Shrine

Some time ago, a thoughtful Noble expressed an opinion that is worth recalling.

He said, "Shriners justly brag of what we are doing for crippled children. We are changing them, by thousands, from creeping, crippled little kiddies of sorrow to upstanding boys and girls of mirth and joy. We are changing their entire future from that of objects of charity to self-supporting, self-respecting members of society. For that we have a right to brag."

Then he said, "But let's look at the other side of the picture. What have the crippled children done for the Shrine?"

Answering his own question, he continued, "Until the advent of the crippled children objective, the Shrine was like Moses with the Children of Israel wandering in the wilderness. But, with the Crippled Children's Hospitals idea, the Shrine reached the Promised Land. It found itself and a real objective.

"The joy of living and the great joy of giving that always exist in the heart of every true Noble was released in the crippled children's idea. It awakened us to the fact that supreme happiness comes from making others happy. It brought us realization that real enjoyment comes only from helping others. That is what the crippled children have done for the Shrine."

Generous Noble-Noble Colonel Harland Sanders of Oleika Temple recently contributed $30,000 to Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS... About the 100 Million Dollar Club

- Q. How can I become a member of the 100 Million dollar Club?

Shriners parade at drop of a hat

Someone has said, "The Shriners will parade at the drop of a hat."

Well, within reason, they do. There are some parades on the annual calendar. One is the Spring Ceremonial parade tomorrow. Others are the Imperial Council Session two parades. This year they are in New York, on Monday, July 4 starting at 9 a.m. and on Thursday, July 7, at 7 p.m.

Then there is the Maple Sugar Bowl football game at Hanover, N.H., on Saturday, Aug. 13, where funds are raised for the hospitals by an all-star high school football game that annually attracts about 15,000 people.

There are 17 Shrine Associations, and Sphinx Temple belongs to the Northeast Shrine Association. They meet twice a year — in March for business meetings and in the fall for a weekend convention. This year, the fall convention will be at Portsmouth, N.H., Oct. 14-16.

Fourteen temples make up the Northeast, which includes the New England States, and parts of Canada: Connecticut: Sphinx at Hartford and Pyramid at Bridgeport.

Rhode Island: Palestine at Cranston. Massachusetts: Aleppo at Boston and Melha at Springfield.

Vermont: Cairo at Rutland and Mt. Sinai at Montpelier.

New Hampshire: Bektash at Concord. Maine: Kora at Lewiston and Anah at Bangor. Canada: Karnak at Montreal, Luxor at St. John, New Brunswick, Philae at Halifax, Nova Scotia, and Tunis at Ottawa.

Sphinx will host that convention, which attracts about 8,000 Shriners, in 1979.

You will often see Shrine units in other parades: Last year, many Sphinx Temple units paraded with the Masonic Division of Manchester's Bicentennial Parade.

You will see them in the Tall Cedars parades; unit can receive special permission to parade in other events, like the Shad Derby parade in Windsor, fire department parades, the Mums parade in Bristol, the Loyalty Day parade, in civic parades for Memorial Day, Veterans Day and major events like the Rose Bowl parade, the Cotton Bowl parade, the Orange Bowl parade, and others.

Those units who receive most invitations to parade are the Drum Corps, the Motor Patrol, the Cycle Unit, the Arab Patrol, and the Sphinx Band.

The "Cat Act" is a highlight of any Shrine circus.

Circuses, football games synonymous with Shrine

Circuses and football games; they're synonymous with the Shrine. Shriners throughout North America sponsor circuses and football games to assist them in "The World's Greatest Philanthropy" — the operation of orthopedic and burns hospitals.

There are few sports fans who are not aware of the granddaddy of all Shrine football games — the East-West Shrine Game at San Francisco in December.

Just revived last December was the North-South Shrine Game, in the new domed stadium at Pontiac, Mich., the home of the Detroit Lions. That game had previously been sponsored in Miami.

Shriners sponsors about 50 football games a year.

In New England — or the Northeast Shrine Association, as it is called in the Shrine — the name of the game is the Maple Sugar Bowl Game, and it is played annual during August at Memorial Stadium of Dartmouth College at Hanover, N.H.

That game brings together the top high school graduating seniors from Vermont against New Hampshire. When that game is played on Aug. 13 — a Saturday — it will be the 24th annual game.

The sponsoring temples are Cairo of Rutland and Mt. Sinai of Montpelier in Vermont, and Bektash of Concord, N.H.

Three Shrine hospitals benefit from that game — the orthopedic unit at Springfield, Mass., the research unit at Montreal, Que., Can., and the burns institute at Boston, Mass.

Sphinx Temple supports that game; some of its units take part in the pre-game parade. The parade goes off at 11:30 a.m. this year and the game is at 2:30 p.m.

Last year, that game raised more than $61,000 to split between those hospitals.

There are probably more than 100 Shrine Circuses every year, some inside and some outside.

Some circuses are for two days, others a week; in Chicago, the circus ran for 23 days in March.

Sphinx Temple Circus was in February this year, at the Hartford State Armory. It was the 45th annual circus sponsored by the temple.

Other temples use such vehicles as carnivals, track and field events, and charity balls.

First Imperial parade was held in Omaha, Neb.

The first Imperial parade of the Shrine was held in Omaha, Neb., in 1892, and was described by the Omaha paper as a glittering pageant from start to finish:

"Noise! Shriners! Dress Suits! Noise! Red Fire! Shriners! Sky Rockets! Camels! Elephants! More Noise! More dress suits! More fezzes!"

"And that was the grand parade of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine last evening, and it was one of the most unique sights that has been seen in Omaha in years. There were 2,600 Shriners in the line, marching 3 abreast, and they made a fine display in their dress suits and red fezzes."

In New York on July 4, people will watch the Shriners parade for probably six hours or more.

The longest parade was in 1963 in Chicago, which required nine hours to pass a given point. Sphinx Temple was in that parade, and its only Imperial Potentate, Harold Close, was installed at that convention.

Hal Turkington of Manchester, the potentate of Sphinx Temple today, wrote special lyrics to "Hey, Look Me Over" that was a part of the pageant at the installation of Noble Close. It was played by the Sphinx Temple Band and sung by the Sphinx Temple Chanters.

Song identified with Shrine

"I'm forever blowing bubbles, Blowing bubbles in the air."

That's a popular song long identified with the Shrine. It goes back to an Imperial Council Session when a group of conventioning Shriners, in the early morning hours while celebrating, were singing and playing the song. It was about 1918.

A baritone player thumped out the melody and his friends were strong in voice-singing the words.

They were right under the hotel window of W. Freeland Kendrick, an Imperial Council officer. He reasoned that the Shrine needed more than a tune in order to survive.

In 1920, when he was imperial potentate, Kendrick told the convention meeting in Portland, Ore., about that night, and the vision that came to him which finally resulted in what the Shrine has today — the "World's Greatest Philanthropy."

He submitted a resolution to establish Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children. His resolution was adopted unanimously.

The first Shriener hospital was founded Sept. 16, 1922, at Shreveport, La. Today there are 18 orthopedic hospitals and three burns institutes.

Those hospitals serve crippled and burned children without regard to race, creed, or ability to pay; in fact, treatments are free.

'Taps' written by a Shriener

A Shriener wrote "Taps."

That Shriener was A.F.M. Custance, who was the first chief musician of Aad Temple at Duluth, Minn. He was appointed to that position in 1906.

Custance served as grand organist for the Scottish Rite in Minnesota, and wrote the Masonic music for the Duluth Scottish Rite degree work.

He went into history as the composer of "Taps," which is the official conclusion of all United States military memorial and ceremonial functions, as well as being "lights out" for millions of servicemen and women down through history.

16 units, 10 clubs in Sphinx Temple

Sphinx Temple has 16 units and 10 clubs under its jurisdiction. Units consist of musical and marching groups. The clubs serve Shriners in cities and towns within the jurisdiction.

Clubs

Omar Shrine Club is the host club for the 1977 Spring Ceremonial. It serves the Greater Manchester and Vernon areas.

Alhambra Shrine Club serves the Bristol New Britain, Plainville and Farmington area.

Arabian Shrine Club serves the Greater Meriden area. Bedouin Shrine Club serves New London County.

Caravan Shrine Club serves Middlesex County. Kaabans Shrine Club serves the Greater Waterbury area and has its own clubhouse in Plymouth.

Moslem Shrine Club serves Windham County. Oasis Club serves the Greater Hartford area.

Tehran Shrine Club serves North Central Connecticut in the Thompsonville area.

Zem Zem Shrine Club serves Litchfield County. Most clubs meet once a month, and many of them move their meetings around their jurisdictions when serving a vast area.

Some clubs have units within their clubs; Omar has its color guard and marching unit, and its new "floating" fez. Bedouin usually comes up with a gimmick, like a portable two-holer it had in the 1972 parade in Manchester.

Units

The band is the oldest unit in Sphinx Temple, dating to 1891; it claims to be the oldest Shrine Band in continuous existence. It rehearses every Monday night at the Mosque in Newington.

The Arab Patrol meets at the Mosque for business the first Thursday of each month and conducts its marching drills every Tuesday for several weeks before a ceremonial at the American School for the Deaf.

The Drum Corps rehearses every Wednesday at the Mosque with the exception of the third Wednesday, which is the temple monthly meeting night.

The Directors Association, which directs initiation of candidates, meets the second Friday of each month, in different localities.

A built-in police department, called the Temple Guard, meets the first Friday of the month at the Mosque.

Medical Directors meet generally three times a year, at the call of the president.

Motor Patrol members have a business meeting on the fourth Tuesday of every month, but they often meet on Tuesdays anyway to work on their cars.

The Chanters rehearse at the Mosque at 6 p.m. each Wednesday.

Funsters are Sphinx Temple keystone cop clowns, and they meet the fourth Thursday of each month at the home of the captain.

The Cycle Unit meets at the Mosque the first Tuesday of each month.

Sachems, the Sphinx Indians, have their own wigwam at Mystic, and they meet the last Wednesday of each month.

Highlanders are the Sphinx bag pipe band, and they rehearse every Wednesday at Orange Hall in Manchester.

The Ritual Cast, which is responsible for the degree work, meet the third Tuesday of the month, generally at the Kaabans Club in Plymouth.

Circus Associates meet the second Thursday of each month at the Mosque; they are responsible for much of the work at the annual circus.

The Mounted Sheiks meet only on call of the president.

Past Masters' Club is open to any Shriner who is a past master of a Masonic Blue Lodge; it meets four times a year on call of the president.

Mounted Sheik greets children.

Omar's jeep transports past presidents who should have been marching!

This was the 1934 Shrine parade here

(Ed. Note: This story is reproduced from a Herald story of 1934 when the Shriners held its Ceremonial here. The illustrious potentate of Sphinx Temple was Nathan B. Richards of Manchester, the only other Manchester Shriner to have been elected potentate of Sphinx Temple.)

Despite the discouraging weather conditions which prevailed Saturday afternoon, Shriners from Massachusetts and Connecticut, numbers over 2,000, with bands, patrols, mounted patrols, chanters, and other Shrine dignitaries, assembled in Manchester in the midst of one of the heaviest rainstorms this year. Just before the vanguard of Nobles arrived for the fall parade and ceremonial, low-flying clouds scudded out of the south and southwest, heavy with swirling clouds of rain which swept across the town like a driving summer shower.

Parade in shower

Its fury spent, the rain stopped at 2:15 p.m. just before the big 12-car train, carrying the noted Aleppo Band and Drum Corps from Boston arrived at Manchester Depot. Intermittent showers continued throughout the afternoon but the big Shrine parade, headed by Marshal Harry B. Bissell and staff, headed south on Main St. on schedule in the midst of a final shower, which ended before the marchers arrived at Middle Tpke.

All through the parade, which lasted for a full hour, people in groups and in cars lined the streets watching the spectacle which was regarded by all as one of the most colorful affairs held here in years. Humor was injected into the parade as the marchers sang to the accompaniment of the bands, "It Ain't Gonna Rain No More" and "How Dry I Am." Patrols, many draping the bright colored uniforms under rubber ponchos, performed drill after drill the length of Main St. in the principal business section.

250 Aleppo members

Sphinx Temple of Hartford, headed by Potentate Nathan B. Richards of this town, was host to five temples — Aleppo of Boston, Palestine of Providence, Melha of Springfield, Bedouin of New London, Pyramid of Bridgeport, and other smaller groups from other temples.

(Ed. Note: The story is incorrect, in that Bedouin of New London is a Shrine Club under jurisdiction of Sphinx Temple.)

Aleppo of Boston, with 390 members including the famous band of 150 members under the leadership of Bandmaster Walter Smith, in a natty all-white uniform, was the largest unit in the line of march. Aleppo Band was led by Drum Major Louis Carpenter and the musical unit was followed by the crack drill patrol composed of four platoons.

The mounted patrol of Aleppo Temple with Oriental uniforms of many stripes and colors was one of the features of the Aleppo division. Edward J. Holl, mounted aide, was assigned to this section. There were 23 horses in this section.

The crack band of Palestine Temple of Providence also elicited praise along the way, the striking uniforms of the band and patrols lightening the drab day as the units swung along in perfect alignment south to the terminus.

Other patrols

Other patrols which drew praise along the way were George White of Tolland beats bass drum for drum corps.

Melha of Springfield, Bedouin of New London, Pyramid of Bridgeport, and the host temple, Sphinx of Hartford.

The principal float in the parade, a miniature operating room and hospital scene, depicted children under treatment for various injuries and deformities. This work is one of the chief objects of the Shriners.

The "Gay City Patrol," a pony-drawn gig directed by a hefty, in the person of Robert V. Treat, and the old hack carrying three soubrettes labeled the "Potentate's Harem," followed the marching units, accompanied by the usual small boys. "Chappie" Pentland was the dignified coachman, and John Olson, the driver of the bus.

Highlights of 1934 Manchester parade

Band concert

The parade was dismissed at the Center and with rain threatening again, the massed bands played two numbers in front of the post office and were dismissed, tired and leg-weary. The scheduled solos by Walter Smith, Aleppo band leader, were postponed due to rain and darkness. Several thousand people were in attendance at the Center and applauded the bands in their hurried joint offerings. Walter Smith directed the bands at the Center.

After the parade was dismissed, the units went to their designated stations in the Armory and Masonic Temple. Dinner was served to 680 in the Masonic Temple and 850 in the State Armory. Chef Urbano Osano served a chicken supper with the usual accessories.

The visiting bands gave concerts in the State Armory during the early evening and Walter Smith, cornetist of Aleppo Temple, rendered several solos in a masterly manner. Smith is one of the leading cornetists in the country and the fact that weather conditions and darkness prevented the Center exhibition disappointed many.

Ceremonial in evening

A colorful ceremonial was presented by Aleppo Temple of Boston assisted by Sphinx Temple of Hartford at the armory from 8 until 10 p.m. The candidates were given degree work by the fraternal degree teams.

At the close of the ceremonies, the visiting nobility were given a luncheon and entertainment in the State Armory.

While weather detracted much from the color and spirit of the parade and shortened the planned concert at the Center, members of the committee were pleased with the success of the visitation and are grateful to all who helped make it the success it proved to be.

Mr. Richard issued a statement of thanks to The Herald this morning as follows:

"To the societies and individuals who by their efforts and courtesies made it possible to hold our ceremonial in Manchester, I wish to express my appreciation. It would not have been the success it was without your support."

did not leave their cars until the order was given by Fred E. Bolton, potentate of Aleppo Temple.

Fred Carpenter, drum major of Aleppo Temple, was one of the tallest men in the unit. He appeared much taller in his shaggy, black shako. Walter Smith was dressed in a natty white uniform and white military cap, and military boots. Many of the Aleppo bandmen were grey-haired, but how they could hike!

One of the two renditions of the band at the Center was "Semper Fidelis," the United States Marine Corps march by Sousa. Several ex-Leathernecks were noted standing on the sidewalks at attention as the band played their old favorite, played around the world, wherever Marine s are stationed. The other number was the famous "National Emblem" march.

Did you get caught in the electric jack-in-the-box? The electric box of cigars passed along the way caused no end of fun.

Bedouin Shrine Club's two-holer.

A tired but happy bunch of Aleppo Temple tumbled into the cars on the special train at the Manchester depot at 12:15 Sunday morning after ten hours of hiking, eating, singing and general good time.

If you don't think our local Shrine Club, the Quarry Club, was pleased when the rain stopped at 2:30, you've got another guess coming. Two months preparation seemed doomed to despair at 2 o'clock when one of the heaviest showers of the late fall flooded the town. Then the clouds opened, magically, in the southwest, heavy black clouds opened up and the big show was on.

Close to 2,000 Shriners testified that the Manchester parade and ceremonial was one of the best ever, everything considered. Nate Richards, potentate of Sphinx, was given unstinted praise for the large amount of work done by him and his committee.

The women of the Shriners party were well taken care of in the cozy Center Church house, entertainment and luncheon provided by wives of local Nobles.

Omar Photo taken in 1949

The picture on the facing page was taken at an Omar Shrine Club meeting during its first year in 1949. The place is the banquet room above Murphy's Restaurant at 991 Main St., in the block now housing Nassiff Arms.

Many in the photo are no longer living; there are still active with Omar.

The picture belongs to Elmore "Binky" Hohenthal, and even he could not identify all in the photo. Perhaps others can.

At the right table are Dr. Amos Friend, Earl Trotter, Francis Prichard and Dave Mills.

Standing behind the head table, you will find Stuart Wasley, Harold Barnsley, Hohenthal, Alex Cole, Joe Prentice, Bob Calvert and Preston Sage.

Educators work to trim budget

By SHEILA TULLER
Herald Correspondent

Members of the East Hartford Board of Education Thursday night labored four hours over their budget. The main results of the night's work are:

- South Grammar School will stay open one more year.
- The maximum class size next year will be 28 students.
- Program expansion was cut by $23,750, the largest single cut made.
- School Supt. Eugene Diggs' strong proposals, to drop up to 15 more teacher positions, were rejected.

The educators have to find a total of $199,700 to cut from their proposed $20,180,135. This is the amount the Town Council cut when it set the board's budget at $19,980,435 in May.

Mayor Richard Blackstone suggested the board cut large sums from the custodial accounts. Dr. Diggs rejected his suggestions and made five of his own.

Dr. Diggs urged maximum class size be set at 30, not 27 as set by the board earlier this year. Also, he suggested the Synergy School be in South Grammar, not Woodland School, and the maintenance service center be in the east wing of the Woodland School.

The board members decided to find their own path to balance the budget. They set the Thursday night budget workshop as a first step.

Thursday they approved cuts of $5,358, deleting a staff assistant; $985, inter-school mail account; $3,200, dues to the Connecticut Association of Boards of Education; $500, staff recruiting; $2,000, prepurchased supplies; $1,897, security; $8,000, temporary custodians account, and $12,436, cover maintenance including site work at the Willowbrook School parking lot.

The high school principals, John Callahan and Donald Cramer, said savings could be made in athletic supplies. They cut both athletic budgets by $5,000.

Board member Joyce Ruggles suggested the class size change to a maximum of 28 and the board agreed. This will cut about eight teaching posts and may save about $80,000. The eight will probably not be tenured teachers, according to recent statements by Dr. Diggs' staff.

Dr. Diggs told the board, "I'd like to see all these cuts put through the computer for a more refined picture of the budget."

"When you get a printout, you may change your feelings on (three of his main recommendations)."

Those recommendations are for elementary classes to be removed from South Grammar, Synergy to take their place, and the maintenance center to go to Woodland. The board has already agreed to remove elementary classes from Woodland next year. They are to go to the Burnside School.

The board will meet again Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Penney High School. There it will look over the computer printout.

One more possibility they considered is to cut another principal post. They discussed it but took no action.

Youth job plan said a success

By MAL BARLOW
East Hartford Reporter

Erva Burhans has more than 200 applications on file in her Youth Employment Service (YES) office from young people eager to work.

They range in age from 14 to 25. She has been able to find nearly 50 jobs for them and is canvassing town businesses for more.

An example of her work is the placement of John Plabst, 18, of 117 Plain Dr., as a worker at the Friendly's Restaurant at 629 Burnside Ave., East Hartford. He and his mother live alone, he said. He was not able to land any kind of job until a friend suggested he apply to the YES office, which is in the Youth Services Office (YSO) on King Court.

Ms. Burhans got him an interview with Thomas Czaja, manager at the Burnside Friendly's.

"We needed a male worker age 18 or older," said Czaja. "Younger workers can't work till closing (about midnight)."

The job is called "service worker," which means Plabst does everything needed in the restaurant except run the grill. His hours are about 9 p.m. until the restaurant is fully locked up at night.

"He's a hard worker," said Czaja. "He's always working on the floor. And he's good to the customers, always smiling."

Plabst is now a junior at East Hartford High School. He is using some of his money to pay for car insurance and is saving the rest.

Ms. Burhans said most of her job placements so far have worked out well also. For the younger workers, she offers yard work, babysitting and other temporary jobs.

Czaja told Ms. Burhans Thursday he needs to add more workers to his staff of 24. He is interviewing next Thursday. Did she know anyone else like Plabst?

East Hartford police report

Jonathan Eckstein, 16, of 33 Holmes St., East Hartford, was arrested Thursday on court warrants charging him with two breaks into homes April 2 and 10.

The charges are first-degree burglary, second-degree burglary, third-degree larceny and fourth-degree larceny. He was released for appearance in Common Pleas Court 12 later this month.

Melissa Garrett, 27, of Colchester, was arrested Thursday at the Zayre's store at 15 Main St. and charged with fourth-degree larceny (shoplifting). She is to appear in court June 13.

Constance A. Brown, 46, of Windsor was arrested Thursday at the Bradlee's store in Charter Oak Mall and charged with third-degree larceny (shoplifting). Court date is June 27.

House, Senate at odds on formula

HARTFORD (UPI) — The big cities won in the Senate and the small towns carried the vote of Representatives. Now the boys in the backroom will probably have to go to work.

The issue is who gets how much of the $20 million educational equalization pie.

With Lt. Gov. Robert K. Killian casting the deciding vote, the Senate Thursday rejected a plan approved in the House by lawmakers from suburbs and small towns. Instead, the upper chamber adopted a formula favoring cities.

The Senate version has $1.1 million more for cities than the House plan. The Senate's action forces the educational equalization plan back to the House where small town lawmakers build the reins.

If the House again approves the Layoffs proposed

HARTFORD (UPI) — School Superintendent Elyse J. Gaines Thursday proposed layoffs of 250 school employees including 29 teachers and two elementary school vice principals.

The layoffs would reduce the 3,145 current public school employees by about 7.5 per cent.

Mr. Gaines' proposal came after the City Council cut $2.5 million from the Hartford Board of Education's budget request for $46.4 million.

"It is not a pretty picture," said Mrs. Gaines. "The superintendent proposes it to you as a reasonable way to deal with an unreasonable situation."

Layoffs proposed

HARTFORD (UPI) — School Superintendent Edythe J. Gaines Thursday proposed layoffs of 251 school employees, including 29 teachers and two elementary school vice principals.

The layoffs would reduce the 3,145 current public school employees by about 7.5 per cent.

Mrs. Gaines' proposal came after the City Council cut $3.8 million from the Hartford Board of Education's budget request for $46.5 million.

"It is not a pretty picture," said Mrs. Gaines. "The superintendent proposes it to you as a reasonable way to deal with an unreasonable situation."

small town plan, which lawmakers feel is probable, a House-Senate conference committee will be convened to work out a compromise.

Such compromises are usually worked out behind closed doors and then presented to the legislature.

Lawmakers have until next Wednesday's adjournment to act.

As long as one plan or the other is adopted, both the big cities and the little towns will get more school aid than they have in past years.

The state budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 adds $10 million to the school aid program, called the Guaranteed Tax Base program. But if no new plan is adopted, the extra $10 million will sit untouched in state coffers.

The legislature's Education Committee approved the Senate formula, but when the bill got to the House, rural and suburban lawmakers prevailed.

Lt. Gov. Robert K. Killian, who said he was "born and raised in Hartford," cast the deciding vote

Thursday as Senate president, making it 19-18 against the House plan.

"I feel the greatest need for aid lies in the state's major population centers," said Killian. "The smaller towns would not swap their troubles for those of Hartford, Bridgeport and the other big cities."

The GTS program is aimed at making sure students from poor communities get as good an education as students from richer ones.

Opinion

Korean uncertainty

It is difficult to see what is to be gained by President Carter's plan to withdraw American troops from South Korea over the next four or five years, except for some possible savings in the defense that would quickly be swallowed up elsewhere.

Only the U.S. military presence in Korea, currently at some 38,000 combat-ready men, has kept the peace there for the past 24 years, a peace punctuated by recurring "incidents" along the 38th parallel truce line.

For once we are in agreement with the generals, one of whom was so opposed to the plan that he publicly differed with his Commander-in-Chief. American withdrawal could lead to another war with North Korea, warned Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, chief of staff of

Singlaub is no Douglas MacArthur, of course, and South Korea is far stronger militarily than it was in 1950. But it was the mistaken belief of the North Koreans in 1950 that the United States no longer considered South Korea to be within its sphere of concern - a belief encouraged by our own State Department - which helped bring about the invasion and the war that has never really ended.

In the absence of any evidence that the North Koreans have abandoned the dream of completing their frustrated conquest of the South, every indication, in fact, points to the contrary - we could well be inviting history to repeat itself.

Score one for fair trade

High marks for economic diplomacy are due the Japanese and American negotiators who forged the just-concluded agreement limiting exports of Japanese color television sets to this country.

For President Carter, who has been accused of all style and no substance in the accomplishments of his administration so far, the agreement was a happy combination of both that bodes well for the course of relations with all our other trading partners - and the term "partners" is the correct one.

At stake was and is nothing less than this country's commitment to the principle of the freest possible international trade with the fewest possible artificial barriers and restrictions. The government had long been under pressure from the television industry, and continues to be under pressure from shoe, textile, steel and other industries, to raise or impose tariffs or establish quotas to stem the flood of foreign products.

On the one hand is the undeniable fact that cheaper foreign imports have cost thousands of American workers their jobs - an estimated 70,000 in the television industry alone - and forced many manufacturers out of business (though at the same time giving American consumers better bargains than they would otherwise have had).

On the other hand is the equally inescapable fact that the erection of trade barriers by one country inevitably leads to protections countermeasures by others in a process from which nobody benefits. All countries must trade to live, some more than others, and one country's temporary advantage over another - whether because of artificial barriers or superior technology or lower labor costs - can ultimately be self-defeating.

That the Japanese recognized this is shown by their voluntarily agreeing to reduce their exports of complete and partially assembled TV units to the United States from last year's 2.96 million to 1.75 million over the next three years. This is a substantial reduction, better than 40 per cent.

Concurrent with the signing of the agreement was the announcement by the Japanese government that it will encourage its electronic manufacturers to invest in plants in the United States - which means more jobs for American workers.

With the agreement in hand, the Carter administration will now undertake to persuade other countries to sign similar voluntary agreements limiting their exports. For their best interests and others, it is to be hoped that the U.S.-Japan accord becomes the model and standard for the future.

Utility rates and ratios

High electric utility rates may often be a case of too many chiefs and not enough. The fewer the number of commissioners on a public utilities commission and the largest its staff, the more effective the commission is in regulating the cost of electricity to consumers, says a Cleveland State University political scientist.

Assistant professor Thomas M. Pelosci bases that conclusion on a statistical study of 49 state regulatory agencies.

While factors such as the cost of fuel and labor have a great influence on rates in any given area, he found that "the best way to reduce electricity rates, at least from my study, is to reduce the number of commissioners and add staff."

check complicated accounts and records on which rates are based, he says. But the more commissioners there are, "the more political careers are involved. They tend to displace staff recommendations and make decisions based on other considerations."

Pelosci's study also disputes the notion that the popular election of utilities commissioners leads to lower rates. On the contrary, he found that those states with elected commissioners have higher rates than those with appointed commissioners.

The reason, he theorizes, is that elected commissioners are more responsive to the utility industries than the public because of campaign contributions from the industries.

Highpriced eradication of poppy field

By Martha Angie and Robert Walters

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The campaign to eradicate Mexico's poppy fields with an armada of herbicide-spraying helicopters is undoubtedly the most expensive and highly touted federal program currently under way to eliminate the source of illegal heroin coming into this country.

The State Department has poured at least $80 million into the effort during the past six years and expects to spend about $10 million annually in the next several years. The Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) has assigned scores of agents and technical experts to its Special Action Office for Mexico.

Genier's analysis noted that the Mexicans may have been using the wrong type of chemicals, were paying outlandish high prices for one herbicide and were working with another chemical compound which is highly toxic.

"Areas assigned to spray teams are often ambiguous," Genier said in the report the State Department tried to suppress. "These ambiguities sometimes result in multiple treatments or no treatment at all." Most of Genier's observations were made from the air on flighted areas on Mexico's west coast, where illegal poppy production is centered. But on one occasion when his plane landed, he found herbicide damage to foliage more than a quarter-mile from a targeted poppy field.

Ecological impact of the possible danger of wide-scale defoliation, Genier in his report raised the question of the long-term ecological impact of the eradication program. "We don't want to create another Vietnam," he said in a telephone interview with us.

In another case, Genier found that the Mexicans were using two different types of a herbicide known as 2,4-D, but apparently were unaware that one compound was twice as strong as the other.

His report also cited the "extreme hazards" of using another chemical called paraquat. Originally sprayed on poppies, paraquat now is reportedly applied only to marijuana in a separate eradication program not in volving the United States. Deaths possible has caused more deaths, both purposefully and unintentionally, than any other herbicide I know of," Genier said in a telephone interview. Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., reportedly is investigating the use of that chemical in Mexico.

The importance of the Mexican eradication program is highlighted by DEA Administrator Peter B. Beninger who noted that as recently as early last year Mexico was the source of 85-90 per cent of all heroin entering the United States.

That figure now is down to about 70-75 per cent, and the State Department says many of the problems cited in the Genier report have been corrected in recent months. But Genier's previously unpublished findings suggest that the operation has not been as efficient or as effective as the federal government claims.

Stop signs, lights proliferate too fast

To the editor, I should like to state my observations and thoughts regarding the traffic light and stop sign explosion in the Town of Manchester. The proliferation of traffic stops in town has gone beyond reason, and defies common sense.

Presently, there is in operation 62 traffic control points in Manchester. Assuming there are about five stop lights at each point, this would equal 310 stop lights. This figure does not include the new lights going into operation at the Adams and W. Middle Tpke complex or those contemplated in the near future; in fact, it is becoming a nuisance just to drive to the Manchester Parkade! It is my understanding that the Department of Transportation, State of Connecticut, conducts a study of traffic patterns within a given area, and from the results of their study a traffic control point is constructed and the resulting traffic flow is more efficiently established. I say "efficiently" because I can remember not too many months ago when a similar in-depth study indicated a large paved parking lot would be beneficial in the middle of our Charter Oak recreation area. Thank God we were able to send that study to the museum. I have had occasion to observe what happens when traffic lights are out of order at some of our busy intersections; traffic flow is increased, there are no backups, no cars are stopped for long periods with their engines running, which, incidentally, adds up to wasted fuel and air pollution, and save untold gallons of gas in the process.

We are responsible drivers and should be treated as such and not be made slaves to a multitude of blinking senseless lights.

Respectfully, Edwin J. Wilson 17 Falkner Dr.

Defends special efforts for the handicapped

I must respond to the comments made by Barbara Brewer in the Today's Light column carried by your paper on May 27, 1977. She seems to be against special efforts being made to help the physically and mentally handicapped. This is an important question for our community. Certainly there are variations in achievement potential. But what Mrs. Brewer has in mind when she says, "Seeking to regard the less gifted person equally with the one with superior endowments will discourage the latter and create a euphoric sense of equality in the former."

If she is objecting to the financial commitment our community must make the programs for the physically or mentally handicapped, I wonder how she squares that attitude with the teaching of Jesus who said, "I tell you, indeed, whenever you refuse to help one of these least important ones, you refused to help me."

(Matthew 25:45) Interestingly this teaching comes immediately after the Parable of the Talents Mrs. Brewer cites to support her incredible position. Undoubtedly there are differences in our natural endowments. In a barbaric community, these differences are met with resignation and the observation that nature's way is the survival of the fittest. But in a civilized community, one informed by the Judeo-Christian tradition, differences in ability are perceived as opportunities and responsibilities; opportunities for the handicapped to maximize their human potential, and responsibilities undertaken by the community to see that opportunities exist even for "these least important ones."

Very truly yours, Monica Maneri 14 Nyes St. Manchester

Former mayor opposes strong mayor proposal

To the editor, I would like to urge the voters to vote "no" in the special referendum on Saturday, June 4. In my opinion, the mayor's responsibilities without any administrative duties can easily amount to a full time job. There is a constant stream of meetings requesting the mayor's attendance. The importance of being at these meetings cannot be overlooked.

For example, the mayor represents the town as the chief elected official at the Capitol Regional Council of Government. The regional government has full control of federal spending affecting the region on many grants such as a roads and housing. They are also involved in determining regional policy on social problems.

Government has become extremely complex. It is not a simple matter to find capable people willing to run for public office knowing that their livelihood is on the line in two years. It would take almost two years of on the job training before an "elected" town manager or strong mayor could learn how to work with the federal and state bureaucracies. This could mean loss of funds and services to our town.

We are no longer a small family. Instead, we are a middle-aged community interdependent on others in the region where politics is big business. A mayor is a legislator, policymaker and a politician. He is not a bureaucrat. Let the town manager run the store and the mayor represent the community and the Town Council as its chief elected official.

Thoughts

The Holy Spirit is like the Wind - Inseparable but not seen. In Psalm 147:18 are these words "He causeth His Wind to blow."

The Wind does not blow of its own accord. In Acts 2:3 we find these words "And suddenly there came a sound from heaven, as of a rushing mighty Wind."

The Holy Spirit was given "when the day of Pentecost was fully come (and when they were all with one accord, in one place.)"

Dredging bids are opened

Bids opened Wednesday for the dredging of Center Springs Pond in Manchester. The town officials had expected only two firms to bid on the project, and the apparent low bid of $48,750 was much higher than the $30,000 the town had anticipated.

The apparent low bidder is Superior Paving Inc. of Glastonbury, according to Maurice A. Pass, director of general services. The only other firm to bid, The Mather Corp. of Bloomfield, submitted a price of $111,550, according to Pass.

The bid includes the price of transporting the 25,000 cubic yards of silt to the town landfill. The transportation cost apparently caused the difference between the town estimate and the actual bid price. The town had considered transporting the silt with Highway Department equipment. The project will probably be rebid or the amount of silt to be removed will be reduced.

GOP chairman criticizes Carter foreign policies

HARTFORD (UPI) - Republican National Chairman Bill Brock says immaturity by the Carter Administration—and too many cooks in the diplomatic kitchen—have resulted in lack of a coherent foreign policy. "This nation has no foreign policy and that which we see lacks coherence," Brock told reporters Thursday while attending a GOP function. Conflicting statements on various foreign policy issues by members of the administration was caused by "hopefully a lack of experience and maturity," Brock said. Asked to clarify his statement, Brock said he meant the new administration lacked "political experience and governmental maturity."

Training center goals discussed by panel

A meeting of the Businessman's Advisory Committee was held recently at the Regional Occupational Training Center in Manchester. Gerri Kelley, an ROTC vocational instructor, said, "ROTC's primary goals are to develop sufficient vocational and social skills for its students, aged 14-21 years. The school has already placed some of its students on a part-time basis in the food service area. 'Students have also become involved in community service by aiding the elderly and homebound. They offer a food shopping service for some. The students also regularly visit Green Lodge, Holiday House and Manchester Manor to assist in recreational programs,' she said.

Vance, United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young and National Security Advisor Zbigniew Brzezinski were confusing other countries about American policy by sometimes saying conflicting things. He said they gave the impression the United States had three secretaries of state. "You might say we have a fourth because the President has tried to run foreign policy by press conference," Brock said. He apparently was referring to Carter's appeals for human rights which critics claim have made negotiations difficult with the Soviet Union. Brock, a former Tennessee senator, said foreign nations cannot be blamed if they are unsure of where the United States stands on particular issues because of the different spokesmen. Brock also said he thought Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., "had to be taken seriously" as a potential candidate for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination. Weicker is soon expected to form a campaign committee to begin his quest for the nomination.

Gluhosky named SA president

The Manchester High School student body has found new leadership in the person of Mark Gluhosky. Mark, a 16-year-old junior, was elected Student Assembly president in a close election last week. His two opponents, John Longo and Deanna Marlock, should also be commended for excellently run campaigns.

Mark's campaign platform consisted, in part, of his plans to hold less formal, in-school meetings. He felt that people were "turned off" by the very structured and formal meetings. It is his hope to begin the year informally in order to involve more people.

He thinks that after people are involved, they can learn Robert's Rules and conduct the meetings accordingly. The idea of reinstating in-school meetings has not yet been approved by the school administration, although Mark feels that the administration is in favor of this change. The meetings would be conducted during one school period every two weeks.

If a student attends the first three meetings, he will receive a pass to leave his scheduled class during meeting time for the remainder of the year. With informal, in-school meetings Mark hopes to attract many new people, along with the old, to the Student Assembly.

Mark's platform also outlined ideas for next year's SA sponsored activities. He believes that more community involvement is very important to improve the school's reputation. He likes and/or walks for charity, car washes.

Mark hopes to improve SA, especially since, according to him, this is "an experimental year" and that the assembly's future structure from stake. With help and support from the student body as a whole, Mark hopes to make his presidential term one to remember. — Marc Laufer

Seniors face hectic times

Upon publication of this article, there will be a mere three days of regular classes for the MHS graduating class of 1977. Entertaining now and the graduation night of June 21, seniors will be involved in an onslaught of activities designed to ensure and/or enhance graduation.

Lines are beginning to form at the counter in the main office of the high school. Emphasis is on the paying of book bills that will enable formerly indebted seniors to receive diplomas.

Rentals on formal wear are booming as the guys prepare themselves (remember the scout's motto) for the June 19 Senior Prom. If you haven't gotten yours yet, you may be stuck with a black or grey mourning suit. Come on, guys. You only have a week left. And don't forget the flowers, boys. Does she have a corsage, a wristlet, a nosegay, a dandelion?

Girls with prom gown material and a pattern should get cutting and sewing. If you haven't yet bought your gown, consider going out of state. You may mind wearing a duplicate of someone else's dress. The grapevine says that all of Manchester and surrounding town malls are cleaned out.

Preparation for the Wednesday, June 15 senior quadrangle party are in order. Did you order your Southerns? Yearbook signing will play a big role in the party. If not, better see Ms. Salvo quick before all the extra copies are bought. Do you also have enough wallet sized copies of your yearbook picture?

The closing banquet of the French Club was May 26, in the Illing Junior High School cafeteria. Although attendance was not quite as large as expected, all who attended had an enjoyable evening.

A buffet style dinner was served, with traditional French desserts of mousse au chocolate and crepes concluding the meal. Entertainment followed, consisting of a French skit performed by French Club members Richard Walden, Sue Thulin, Paul Vanhesssen, Aimee Tralitz and Marc Laufer. Also a selection of French songs was presented by Mary Toland and Sandra Bellone. The audience of parents and friends found this entertainment amusing.

To the surprise of Paul Vanhesssen, the AFS student from Belgium, the members of the French Club presented him with a birthday cake and gift, in celebration of his birthday the following day. To close the banquet, interesting and exciting slides of the trip to Quebec were shown. Friends were made, and all who attended the banquet seemed to enjoy the evening. — Mary Toland

Vietnam to send remains of 20 American MIAs

PARIS (UPI) — Vietnam and the United States ended their second two-day round of talks today with an agreement to send the remains of 20 missing Americans to America.

They said the talks would be resumed at a time and place to be announced later.

Vietnamese Deputy Foreign Minister Phan Hien said the remains of a total of 22 additional Americans have been sent to the United States since President Carter's special representative, Leonard Woodcock, visited Hanoi in March.

Twelve bodies were returned while Woodcock was in Hanoi, 2 more were announced by the Vietnamese at the last round of Paris talks ending May 4 and an additional 20 were announced today, bringing the total to 24.

Assistant Secretary of State Richard C. Holbrooke, the chief American delegate, said "This is a positive action on the part of Vietnam."

Holbrooke said the two rounds of talks — May 24 and June 2-3 — have been "useful and fruitful."

Both Holbrooke and Hien said differences remain to be discussed in future talks.

"You are well aware" of these differences, Holbrooke told reporters, referring to Vietnam's other position end to make progress toward understanding.

Asked if the two countries are making progress toward their announced goal of establishing diplomatic relations, Holbrooke told reporters, "After two countries have been at war for so many years it takes a long time to explain each other's position end to make progress toward understanding."

Holbrooke said "We view this action as positive."

Asked if the congressional prohibition on U.S. aid to Vietnam had hindered the talks, Holbrooke said, "I would prefer not to discuss this matter. It is a fact that exists and must be taken into account."

The families are being informed starting very soon, he said.

Turnpike residents oppose four-lane traffic plan

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

About 70 residents who live on or near W. Middle Tpk. have signed a petition stating their opposition to plans for making the road into a four-lane highway and putting no parking restrictions on both sides of the road.

The petition has been delivered to the town manager, by William C. Castagna Jr., of 692 W. Middle Tpk., who has asked the town directors to send the petition to the state highway department.

Reconstruction on the main thoroughfare, which has been part of the Urban Systems Project, is nearly complete. Paving work was completed last week.

The residents state four major objections including:

- It will become more of a speedway than it already is.
- It will become more difficult than it is now for one to exit one's driveway.
- The residents will have no parking facilities for visiting guests.
- Many people at the present time do not have ample parking space for family members living at home since all driveways have been shortened.

At a hearing held at the Town Hall, residents who will try to make the final decision on where the road would not be four lanes for traffic and there would not be any parking restrictions.

The petitioners also state that the section of Middle Tpk. in question, which is from New State Rd. to the Manchester Parkade, is a town street in a residential area where many young children and quite a few elderly citizens live.

"A major highway in front of our homes poses a threat to the safety of our children and elderly citizens," the petition states.

The petition says that a number of serious accidents have occurred in the past on the section of Middle Tpk. and that the combination of a 35 mph speed limit and four lanes of "speeding cars, motorcycles and trucks insures us of many more accidents."

HUD requests two CD changes

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

The Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has requested two changes in the Town of Manchester's application for $301,000 in third-year Community Development funds.

The town expects to meet both requests, including an increase to 229 in the number of low-income houses projected as a result of the proposed industrial park, Alan Mason, the town's Community Development coordinator, said this morning.

The town's action should "clear the way" for HUD approval of the third-year grant of the Community Development funds, he said.

A letter from HUD's area director, Lawrence L. Thompson, said that the town's major tenant, plans to complete construction by 1980, its effect on local housing should be calculated.

Mason said that a total of 698 lower-income households in Manchester will result from the Penney catalog distribution center, which will employ about 2,000 persons.

The low-income housing figure is "based just on the type of jobs and sewer construction and a legal aid service, which would be funded by the third-year grant."

But, Thompson also expressed concern that the town's Housing Assistance Plan, which is part of the Community Development application, did not include calculations for housing needs that would result from the proposed industrial park.

Thompson said that since the J.C. Penney Co., which would be the park's major tenant, plans to complete construction by 1980, its effect on local housing should be calculated.

Mason said that a total of 698 lower-income households in Manchester will result from the Penney catalog distribution center, which will employ about 2,000 persons.

Guidance offered sophomores

Attending MHS is quite an experience. It's nothing like the ordinary occurs until the first day of school. Normally, one would expect the teachers to be kind and outgoing, considering the layout of the summer, but as soon as first period rolls around you have homework. From here on the precedent has been set and homework can be expected consistently. This idea is one of the first encountered by a student and hints at three tough, but fantastic years ahead.

During the first week of school, the morning announcements bring pleas for membership to many enjoyable clubs. Such as Huskin, Round Table, Math, Chess and Debate clubs are only a few of the many enjoyed by the students. All of the clubs are run by us and are advised by some able-bodied (sometimes stubborn) advisors who throw in their suggestions occasionally.

Unfortunately many people find that there aren't enough hours in a day and find themselves up to their neck in activities. This is not necessarily bad, but one finds that meals are missed and homework hampered. Another great activity is a job on the High School World Staff.

As the school year wears on many new friendships are made and the Illing-Bennet rivalry wears off. Each person finds his/her activity whether it be academic, a club, or one of the many sports teams. Through these activities people get involved in the school and when this happens the school is bettered for the entire community.

MHS is really a great place. It offers so much and allows its students to broaden their interests and their experiences. This is really fantastic and you'll love it; definitely get involved! — Peter Krupp

MHS profile: Aileen Scholsky

If you don't know Aileen, you've probably seen her in the hallway between classes or during a free period talking to a friend, but if you know her you know she is a very outgoing, friendly person. If you so much as catch her glimpse she will say "Hi" to you, even if you don't know her. She loves to meet new people. She is fun to be with, frequently getting her company laughing and enjoying themselves once she gets going, but you always sit and have a good talk with Aileen. If you were to talk to her you would find out she will talk about you or someone else and not too often about herself.

Aileen's schedule is so that you wonder where she gets time for all she does. However, she copes with this and is fortunate enough to be graduating with honors from Manchester High School. After graduation she plans to attend either St. Joseph's College or the University of Connecticut. Over the years Aileen wanted to become a teacher but she's been thinking lately of going into Geriatrics. She feels it would be a very rewarding job working with old people and plans to get her degree eventually in social work.

Whatever Aileen finally decides to do with her life, I feel it will be working with people because she has such a keen interest and genuine feeling for other people. — Michael Scholsky cheerleading and working 20 hours a week. She feels Manchester High School has so much to offer to anyone willing to take advantage of its fine programs.

Aileen is a music lover, she herself accomplished in playing the piano, but wishes she had some time to devote to music. She finds it very difficult with her rigid schedule of school work. She also loves to travel, meeting new people and seeing new places.

A few years back she spent the summer in Ireland in her grandmother's cottage on the farm. She spent a lot of time traveling around

Senior prom theme set

The class of 1977 is preparing for the annual Senior Prom, "A Time For Us."

This year's prom is being held at the Howard Johnson's Red Coach Grill in Windsor Locks, on June 10, from 8 p.m. until midnight, featuring the band "Odyssey."

Girls tennis ends season

The girls varsity tennis team ended its season on a high note last Friday in crushing E.O. Smith of Mansfield, 6 to 1.

After a slow start, Cherie Dow, playing in singles for Manchester, easily defeated Mary Taylor by 6-3, 6-0. Cherie was impressive in her domination of Taylor throughout the match.

Manchester won all of its singles matches with fine performances by all, but deserving of special recognition was senior Gwen Froh. Gwen finished her high school career in style by thrashing Linda Berger by 6-2, 6-1.

Sophomores Diane Whitaker and Kathy McCoan stopped Linda Sandberg and Wendy Wyand in their opening doubles match by 6-0, 6-2. The only loss by Manchester was suffered by Senior Mary Busky and Sophomore Ingrid Jacobson, by scores of 4-6 and 3-6.

The squad will feel the loss of all of the graduating seniors, but can look ahead to the return of such promising juniors as Lori McCurry and Laura Burnett and of sophomores Diane Whitaker, Kathy McCoan, Ingrid Jacobson, and Gwen Froh.

The girls finished a fine season with a record of 7-2 in the CCIL and 11-3 overall, and will be looking for your support in the upcoming season. — Mike Wilson

Guidance notes

A job seeking workshop was held for interested seniors June 1, at the Community Room at First Federal Savings.

A general discussion of the job seeking process, the resume, and preparing for the application was held by Mrs. Vivian Ladabochie via video tape.

Charles Crissey, former MHS COEP teacher, reviewed with seniors the completion of applications. Students completed applications for imaginary jobs and these were critiqued by Crissey.

Mock interviews were conducted by Mrs. Irene Thorpe of Robert T. Burr Associates. She also gave seniors some tips on how to prepare for the interview.

Graduation ceremonies for the 740-member class will be Sunday at 2 p.m. in the bandshell on the main campus of the college.

Mrs. Bradshaw was enrolled in the accounting and business administration transfer program at MCC. She plans to transfer her credits to the University of Connecticut where she will begin work this fall toward a degree in accounting.

She gives much of the credit of her success to the support she received from her family, all of whom encouraged her and helped with household chores. Her family is composed of her husband, John, and her sons, Jack and Jim.

Mrs. Schaffer was enrolled in the Liberal Arts and Sciences program. She will attend Wesleyan University this fall to study history. Her long-range goal is to earn a doctorate degree and to teach on the post-secondary level.

Besides her studies, she performed in college theatrical productions and tutored other students in several subjects, including languages, history and science. She was assistant to MCC's Dr. John Sulherland, director of a local, oral history project.

Mrs. Schaffer is married to Frederick F. Schaffer III. She has three daughters, Marta, Sarah and Rebecca, and two sons, Eric and Christopher.

Because both women had perfect grade point averages of 4.0, each was named valedictorian or salutatorian according to the number of credits she had earned. Mrs. Bradshaw earned 74 credits. Mrs. Schaffer had 66 credits.

Medical Club ends successful year

The Medical Club concluded its first year this week with a demonstration on Emergency Medical Techniques. Two EMTs from Manchester Ambulance Service, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bennett conducted an excellent display in the Manchester Memorial Hospital's parking lot.

The Medical Club was re-created this year with the help of principal George Emmertling, and advisors Miss Andrea Deary and Mrs. Anne Kiebar.

The Manchester community was very receptive to the Medical Club. A special thanks should go to the Public Relations Department at MMH. They accommodated the club with a conference room in which to conduct their meetings. The Manchester Medical community was also very accommodating.

A number of lectures, discussions and tours were conducted by the following medical people in their fields: Dr. Martin Rubin, General Medicine; Dr. Martin Dale, Cardiology; Dr. Ellen Marmar, Child Cardiology; Dr. Walter Heimann, Radiology; Dr. Harvey Kahamer, Ear, Nose, and Throat; Dr. Arnold Kilpstein, Gastroenterology; Dr. Harvey Pastel, Surgery; and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bennett, EMTs.

The members of the Medical Club would like to thank their officers: President Marc Laufer, vice-president Mary Toland, and secretary Paul Turek. Hopefully next year will be as successful, with a greater attendance. New members are invited and to participate in the informative experiences in medical-related fields next year.

Charter change proposed

South Windsor will vote Saturday

By JUDY KUEHNEL
Herald Correspondent

The long battle over South Windsor's form of government will be settled Saturday when voters have their chance to vote on a proposed charter change from council-manager to council-governor.

The issue was forced to referendum by a petition circulated last year demanding the form of government be decided at the polls.

The petition was spearheaded by Deputy Mayor Robert Myette, although Myette has repeatedly insisted he has not taken a stand on the form of government but rather on the voters' opportunity to decide the issue themselves.

Myette has said all the petition signers don't necessarily favor a change in government but simply want to bring the matter to referendum.

South Windsor now operates under council-manager government. Voters elect a nine-member council, which selects a council chairman, or mayor. The council hires a town manager, a person trained in aspects of public management.

In a council-governor government, the mayor is directly elected by the voters and is a full-time employee of the town.

Last month, the local League of Women Voters sponsored a forum to inform voters of the various aspects of the two forms of government. The forum was sparsely attended.

Panel representatives indicated the major difference between council-manager and council-governor is in the type of person heading town affairs.

In the council-manager form, the manager is trained in government management with experience in handling the many facets of a governmental organization. A strong mayor, however, is a town citizen who may or may not be a good administrator.

Those in favor of a strong mayor system argue that a mayor is more responsive to desires of citizens because he could be voted out of office at the next election.

Council-manager proponents feel that a manager, hired for an indefinite period of time by the council, can look to the long-range needs of the town and is not pressured by politics.

The South Windsor Town Council and both the Republican and Democratic Town Committees oppose a change to strong mayor.

Voters may cast their ballots at any of the regular voting places. District 1 will vote at Pleasant Valley School; District 2, Ellsworth School; District 3, South Windsor High School; and District 4, Timothy Edwards School.

The polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. The question will read, "For a proposed charter change from council-manager to council-governor." The voters will cast a ballot for "yes" or "no."

Officials split on Bolton's budget

By DONNA HOLLAND
Herald Correspondent

Most Board of Finance members and the town political chairman are urging acceptance of Bolton's $2.2 million budget. Meanwhile, the Board of Education and the teachers' association are asking townswomen to reject the spending plan.

The school board said the $31,316 cut by the finance board was too large because the school board had only asked for a five per cent spending increase.

The school board said it needs at least $22,000 restored to its budget, and it emphasized that the town may receive $7,000 in state grants which weren't included in revenue estimates when the spending plan was prepared.

Two other town officials — Selectman Leon Rivers and finance board member Sidnie Sattar — also urge rejection of the budget.

Rivers said he has mixed emotions because he is concerned with the cuts in the general government budget. He mentioned cuts in the proposed constabulary, roads and grantsmanship.

Sattar said he recommends rejecting the budget because the Town Meeting supported rejection. Sattar said a rejection would mean townswomen want more in the school budget.

First selectman David Dresely said everyone should go to the polls and make their feelings known. He said he was disappointed in the cuts in the general government budget.

Farmers must report acreages

Anticipating changes in farm legislation, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) is asking Tolland county farmers to report their corn, wheat, barley, grain sorghum, broom corn and shade tobacco acreages for 1977.

The polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Community Hall.

A May 16 Town Meeting rejected the budget and recommended $22,000 be restored to the school budget. The finance board met after the Town Meeting and voted to resubmit the same budget.

William Riley, recommending adoption of the budget, said rejection would mean townswomen want more in the school budget.

First selectman David Dresely said everyone should go to the polls and make their feelings known. He said he was disappointed in the cuts in the general government budget.

Robert Morra, Republican town chairman, said he favors acceptance of the budget, but he said he would have given more money to general government.

Judith Miner, a leader in the petitioning for a referendum, said, "Bolton residents are being given an opportunity to go to the polls and make their feelings known, or let the minority decide next year's budget." She urged people to accept the budget.

The Bolton Education Association, the teachers group, is asking townswomen to reject the budget. It feels the cut is "unwarranted and would adversely affect education in Bolton."

The finance board will meet immediately after Monday's referendum to set a tax rate if the budget is approved or to submit a new plan if the recommended budget is rejected.

The proposed budget would increase the town's tax rate about half a mill. The present rate is 61.4 mills.

Vernon budget history

pick and choose — there is always a long waiting list of teachers.

The school board now has a lengthy list of standing committees for just about every subject pertaining to education. It has made full circle in 20 years.

The 1977 report lauds the fact that the board abandoned standing committees regarding these matters are brought directly to the board from the superintendent. "Committees are appointed as the need arises and dissolved when they have served their function," the report states.

Dr. Ramsdell said in his report that the school enrollment had leveled off that year, but before that enrollment had increased by about 200 students a year.

That was the year the need was seen for another elementary school. ### What goes up doesn't come down

By BARBARA RICHMOND

What goes up doesn't necessarily come down. At least not when you are talking about prices.

In case anyone has any doubts about how costs have risen in the past 20 and 30 years, here is an eye opener. In Vernon in 1957, the town report says the Board of Education budget was just $746,455. The budget approved for 1977-78 is slightly over $9 million.

Dr. Ramsdell said in his report that the school enrollment had leveled off that year, but before that enrollment had increased by about 200 students a year.

Love in tennis not with wife

By EARL YOST
Sports Editor

Love in tennis means a score of zero - and that's how I score when I play doubles with my wife, Adelle.

Poling players, both male and female in different age brackets in recent weeks on the subject, the consensus among those married was that it was fun to hit - or practice - with your spouse but not to get into any form of competition as partners - to avoid arguments.

From a personal standpoint, I can offer tips to many, and they listen and seem to appreciate the advice, but when I suggest anything to my wife, all I get is a scowl and words are not needed to describe her inner feelings.

I have suggested she bend her knees, bring her racket back and follow through, but I am quickly reminded, and rightfully, that I do not follow the proper techniques to the letter either which make for a good tennis player.

We do agree on one thing - tennis is fun, as long as we are on opposite sides of the net.

Any love in tennis with my wife of nearly 35 years as a playing partner is in the score only.

Hard-hitting blonde Greer Stevens, a 20-year-old fireball on the tennis court, will team with Martina Navratilova tonight against Blithe Jean King and Virginia Wade at the Hartford Civic Center when the Boston Lobsters host the New York Apples.

The 20-year-old Stevens will also team with Mike Estep in mixed doubles in one of the five World Team Tennis matches which start at 7:30.

Tony Roche, No. 1 singles player on the city circuit, will be out to avenge his only loss to the Apples' Sandy Mayer in the men's singles feature.

McDaid to defend 12-mile laurels

By EARL YOST
Sports Editor

The 1977 MCC New England Relays will again have an international flavor as Irish Olympic marathon runner Danny McDaid announced he will travel from his home in Donegal, Ireland, to defend the title he won last year.

McDaid will run in the featured 12-mile race Saturday, June 25, at 1 p.m. on the campus of Manchester Community College.

The race is for the Connecticut AAU 12-mile championship and offers separate divisions for Open, Sub-masters (35 to 40 years), Masters (40 years and over) and Women runners. A three-mile race will start simultaneously, with divisions for Open Class Men; Open Class Women; High School Men and Women; and Junior High School Boys and Girls.

Last year, McDaid, had more difficulty getting to the finish line than to the start. The 35-year-old marathon arrived late and had to start the race in position just before the gun. Unaware that three-

Yankees watch scoreboard

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — New York Yankees' Manager Billy Martin admitted Thursday night that it's tough not to look at the scoreboard to see how his American League East rivals are doing.

"You can't help it. I want to win it all and you have to be in first place to do that," said Martin.

"We got it untracked tonight," Martin said after the Yankees battered the Minnesota Twins 19-3 to split a two-game series. "I think we're getting it together and we'll be okay."

Meanwhile, in another corner of the New York Yankees' dressing room, Lou Piniella, the Yankees' batting star in the romp, was announcing his approval of Yankee owner George Steinbrenner, who has been involved in a few disputes with Martin.

"George is all right," said Piniella. "He is very intense and he wants us to play well and you really can't fault anyone for that."

Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch wasn't ready to put the Yankees in a class by themselves despite the fortune Steinbrenner is spending to win the pennant.

Dow in semifinals of tennis tourney

Only two steps stand between Manchester High's Cheria Dow and the Class L-Division girls' tennis championship after yesterday's results at Hall High in West Hartford.

Dow advanced to the semifinals with two relatively easy victories. The tourney's No. 1 seed, off a 14-0 record, topped Nancy Lob of Ludlowe High of Fairfield in a 45-minute third round match 6-0, 6-1 and bested Dede Seeber of Warded High at Fairfield in the quarterfinals 6-0, 6-1. That match took an hour-and-a-half.

Dow's semifinal round opponent will be Kathy Collins of Norwalk. In the other bracket, Greenwood's Kathy Moore will oppose Hall's Sherri Slobin. Slobin moved into the round of four with a 7-5, 6-4 triumph in the quarter-

Rangers get shot and nip Red Sox

By EARL YOST

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Rangers, fighting desperately to break out of a lethargy streak on the field and battling an image of unrest in the front office, are in need of every break they can get these days.

They got one Thursday night — a 3-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

"Maybe it was an omen of things to come," said the Rangers' beleaguered manager Frank Lucchesi. "I was amazed that we finally got a break. I'm glad we took advantage of it."

The Rangers and Red Sox had battled to a 1-1 standoff through 7 1/2 innings Thursday night, with Toby Harrah's homer accounting for a Texas run in the second and Bernie Carbo tying it with a solo blast in the seventh.

Ferguson Jenkins had given Texas only three hits through seven innings and it took little imagination to think the Rangers were headed for their fourth straight loss.

But Texas put runners on first and second with two out in the eighth and up came Willie Horton, who had struck out three times. Jenkins, who had been giving Horton nothing but down-and-away sliders all night, fed him another one and Horton popped it up in foul territory near the Boston bullpen.

Shortstop Rick Burleson called for the ball, and dropped it. Given another opportunity, Horton doubled into the left-centerfield alley and two runs scored.

"That was a big win for us," said Horton. "I couldn't believe Burleson dropped the ball, but I sure am glad he did. It gave me one more shot."

Archer leads Kemper golf

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — If it hadn't been for last year's Sahara Invitational, first-round leader George Archer would not be playing in this week's Kemper Open golf tournament.
The lanky California native underwent surgery for a torn tendon on his left wrist in 1975 and was disillusioned with his recovery. He had decided to enter the Sahara last fall as his final tournament before taking a year off to recover fully.
Weiskopf came in at 67 to share second place with big Jim Dent and struggling Barney Thompson.
Chi Chi Rodriguez led a group at 4-under-68 which included Kermit Zarley, Don Iverson and Charles Coody.
Seventy-six of the 156 golfers came in at par or better over the soggy Quail Hollow Country Club course.
" My game is getting better and I'm getting my distance back," Archer said after a 6-under-par 64 gave him a one-stroke lead going into today's second round of the $250,000 Kemper.
" I feel after the last round in Atlanta (65) I'm starting to play the golf I'm capable of playing," Weiskopf said. " I'm playing with more confidence and am able to concentrate now."
Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino, two of the biggest names in the field, stayed in contention. Trevino was in a group of 12 golfers at 2 under par and Palmer was in a group at 1-under 71.

NO DISTRACTIONS — Shut off the radio, TV, or stereo. Let the salesperson and the prospect be free from such disturbances.

According to the Department of Transportation, a hearing on the project was held at Woodlawn School on Sept. 12, 1974 and officials were not aware of another hearing.

The petition charges the town management with being "more concerned with an uninhibited flow of customers to the Parkade merchants than they are with the safety of their citizens and the depreciation in the value of these residential properties."

The petition also notes the many students from East Catholic High School and Cheney Technical School who walk along the street and the danger of crossing the street.

Castagna could not be reached for comment today on the hearing mentioned in the petition.

The market wage-rates for those positions," Mason said.

For the Community Development application, Mason will estimate that half of those low-income households will be persons already residing in town. Thus, the other half, 229, are expected to be new low-income residents.

The other change in the application is connected with 50 "family-type units" of section 8 housing construction that the town had targeted for its three-year plan. HUD has recommended that the 50-units be included in the present-year plan.

Section 8 housing provides federal subsidies for renters who meet certain guidelines. The housing is provided for two groups — elderly/handicapped and low income.

Mason said that the town may look to private contractors to build the 50 units. The contractors can obtain federal monies for such construction work, he said. The town already has a contract with a private contractor to build the 20 units.

Mason said that the change to the present-year plan means that the town will begin planning for the construction of the units this year rather than in the three-year plan that the town had proposed. It will still be at least a few years before the Section 8 Housing is built, he said.

He said that the increase in the low-income housing estimate would allow the town to meet its goal in trying to meet such needs.

"If we don't show good faith in trying to produce this housing, then, along the road, we could be in trouble," Mason said.

He did say that the 229 figure is a "guesstimate."

Energy agency bill needs ironing out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House and Senate have passed conflicting versions of a bill creating President Carter's Cabinet-level Energy Department — an agency that consolidates dozens of scattered federal energy activities.

Now they must resolve the differences in the two bills, and the President veto power over those changes.

Energy chief James Schlesinger, in line to head the new department, hopes to see a compromise bill along the lines of Senate-passed language to let the head of the Energy Department propose natural gas and electricity price changes and to give the President veto power over those changes.

Asked Friday what he would do if the House version, which denies those powers to the President and the secretary, Schlesinger said: "This is a very significant matter and we make our views known... strongly."

He was most opposed to a House provision that does not allow the President to veto pricing actions on oil and gas prices made by a board or commission within the department.

The House bill — passed Friday — would put exclusive power to set the wellhead price of natural gas in a five-member independent Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. The Senate language puts authority for wellhead gas and oil pricing with a three-member board, but also grants the President veto power over rates.

The House bill, approved 310 to 20, also gave the department only a five-year life, adopting a "sunset" amendment mandating a Dec. 31, 1982 expiration date, unless Congress re-authorizes it.

Rep. James Brophy, R-N.C., who authored the amendment, cited the $10.6 billion cost of the department and 20,000 employees.

"The Congress does a very good job of setting up different offices, agencies, and departments of the federal government," Brophy said "but the Congress does a very poor job of reviewing the activities and the track records of those agencies."

Included with the regulatory groups in the framework of the House and Senate versions comes responsibility now held by the Federal Power Commission, Federal Energy Administration, and Energy Research and Development Administration.

—Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus reassured members of the House Ways and Means Committee Friday he will present an aggressive program of offshore oil and gas drilling, but "consistent with the President's environmental goals."

—A House Commerce subcommittee on energy also continued making some changes in Carter's proposal for utilities to help homeowners improve the energy efficiency of homes.

House expected to tackle controversial bills today

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut House of Representatives was scheduled today to tackle some controversial items — including the bottle bill — today in an unusual Saturday session.

The session was called in order to help clear the crowded House calendar before Wednesday's constitutional mandate adjournment.

Among the possible topics of debate were proposals to give legislators a 77 per cent pay raise and to enact a system of mandatory sentences for habitual criminals.

Also, proponents of the controversial bottle bill were hoping to get a final chance to push through their measure. They hoped to offer their bill as an amendment to legislation that would tax businesses for the cost of a little cleanup campaign.

The bill, which is aimed at banning throwaway beverage bottles and flip-top cans, won approval in both the House and Senate earlier in the session, but in slightly different versions. Opponents used the variations to snarl final passage with parliamentary technicalities.

Supporters were not sure if their amendment strategy would work.

The mandatory sentence bill was killed in committee earlier in the session, but resurrected when more than half of the members of the House signed a petition ordering its revival.

Even if it is passed by the House, the bill faces an uphill fight in the Senate.

The bill to hike the salaries of lawmakers and top elected state officials, except the governor, faces stiff opposition from Republicans in the House.

But most observers feel some sort of pay hike will be approved by the legislature before adjournment.

Penney says its planning for center is on schedule

By GREG PEARSON

Herald Reporter

The J.C. Penney Co. Friday said that it is on schedule for its planned catalog distribution center, which would be the major facility in Manchester's proposed industrial park.

In related matters, an interdepartment memo from the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) has raised some questions about the park's effect on surrounding environment, and a second summary review by the Capitol Region Council of Governments (CROG) has repeated some of that agency's recommendations.

The Manchester Economic Development Commission (EDC) met Thursday morning and some members were concerned that Penney had made minimal progress in recent weeks on work connected with the park.

Representatives from the firm, in fact, were supposed to attend the Thursday meeting to discuss the park with EDC members. But, the firm asked to postpone the meeting until June 21 to allow it time to complete preparations for the presentation.

Sylvia Dresner, director of corporate press relations for Penney, said that the original date for the session (Thursday) "may have been optimistic." She said that the firm is completing its work and would be ready for the June 21 EDC meeting.

She also said that the firm has not fallen behind in its plans to open the catalog distribution center in Manchester. The firm is seeking to break ground this fall to complete work by 1980.

"The project is on schedule," Ms. Dresner said.

The DEP interdepartment memo, dated May 23, was part of the evaluation process for the department's summary review that was included in the Department of Commerce's final environmental assessment package. The summary in the package said that DEP had some concerns about the effect of traffic to and from the park on air quality. Penney has applied for an indirect source permit, which requires DEP to evaluate the traffic's effect on air quality.

The interdepartment memo raises other factors not mentioned in the summary, including storm water runoff and the effect of the park on a nearby aquifer.

Development of the park will include buildings, roads, and parking lots, all of which will cut the natural infiltration of water.

"The capacity of the proposed on-site detention, particularly in the west drainage area, should be examined closely," the DEP memo said.

DEP said that some localized flooding on-site and downstream might occur because of development in the park area.

"It might be feasible to evaluate a higher storm design capacity on the proposed detention areas or evaluate other means of detention on the site to delay the entry of storm water into Whipple Brook and ultimately into the Podunk River," the memo said.

The department suggested that the water volume impacts and runoff caused by the development "be more fully addressed."

The memo added that salt, oil, and other road chemicals could effect surface and ground water.

The memo also suggests that mass transportation to and from the park be encouraged, a suggestion that was mentioned in the environmental assessment package.

It also said that to meet traffic increases for the park "major capacity improvements would be required in a number of areas." This is apparently in reference to highway improvements, some of which have been planned.

The CROG review was prepared as part of the town's application for federal funds to pay for park construction.

The council said, as it had in an earlier report, that the town should pursue "reverse commutation," permitting Hartford-area residents to use commuter buses to Manchester. This recommendation had also been made previously by CROG.

Alan Lamson, town planner, said that this CROG report, like other prepared by the council, is "advisory."

President begins tax reform talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, attempting to lay the groundwork for an overhaul of the complex tax system, called his economic advisers to the White House today for a discussion of tax reform.

A White House spokesman said the process was in its initial stages, and said chances of any final decisions being made at the meeting were "highly unlikely."

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal headed the list of fiscal experts in attendance.

Blumenthal said the main objective will be a simplified tax form, closed loopholes and incentives to increase productivity.

In action Friday, Carter signed a bill appropriating more than $1.6 billion for the non-nuclear energy programs of the Energy Research and Development Administration.

The President also served notice to Congress that he will fight for his energy program, but not by being high-handed or going "over their heads" to the people.

In a White House meeting with members of the House Ways and Means Committee, Carter "emphasized the need to keep the energy program basically intact," Press Secretary Jody Powell said.

Manchester police report

Milton J. Smith, 21, of Hartford, was arrested on a court-issued warrant Thursday charging him with second-degree larceny in connection with an auto accident in February.

Police said Smith was involved in a minor accident with another car driven by Donna Rogalski, 27, of 107 Hemlock St. Because Smith had no insurance, he offered to take Mrs. Rogalski's car to repair the damages, police said.

Smith took the car in mid-March, but has not yet returned it.

He was released on a $250 nonsurety bond for court June 13.

Anthony J. Rocco, 48, of East Hartford, was charged with fourth-degree larceny Thursday in connection with a shoplifting incident at the A&P Food Store on Tolland Tpk. He was released on a promise to appear on court June 29.

Timothy I. Kehler, 40, of 90 Ridge St., was charged with breach of peace Thursday night in connection with an incident at his home. Police said Kehler threw a box at a police officer and struggled with officers who were there on another matter. Kehler was being held on $150 bond for appearance in court today.

Other arrests included John E. Laroche, 40, of Boxboro, Mass., charged with operating under the influence of liquor. He was released on a $100 nonsurety bond for court June 21.

Elaine Burke, 35, of 46 Conway Rd., was charged early today with speeding and operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license. She was released on a $150 nonsurety bond for court June 14.

A break and entry was reported at St. Mary's Church on Park St. Thursday. A showcase was broken and several items of jewelry of an undetermined value were taken, police said.

Volunteers honored by Meals on Wheels

About 50 persons attended a tea Thursday honoring the volunteers of the Meals on Wheels program sponsored by the Manchester Homemakers Service. The event was hosted by Mrs. Frank Sheldon of 35 Meadow Lane. The volunteers, who deliver meals to homebound persons unable to prepare their own meals, were given identification buttons with Meals on Wheels printed on them. Morris Lambert, a volunteer, has topped the delivery service by driving 45 times and delivering 344 meals since the program began last July. There have been 75 volunteers, but 66 are active. Since July, they have driven a total of 6,253 miles and delivered 5,835 meals. There have been 110 different clients since the program began. The average daily delivery includes 25 to 30 clients. During summer vacation, the delivery schedule is often upset by volunteers who go on vacation. Any person or group who wish to volunteer for the Meals on Wheels program during the summer may call the Manchester Homemakers Service at 643-9511.

News for senior citizens

News for senior citizens
Hil The first bit of news is that a good number of our seniors are well on their way toward Nova Scotia, and I hope the weatherman treats them alright. Meanwhile, business goes on as usual with our programs going full steam ahead. The only thing different is that for a couple of weeks we won't be serving any meals. However, starting on June 27 and until the end of July, we will be serving summer meals again, and this means a few cookouts. Last Tuesday, some of our seniors spent the evening at Fenway Park. I went along for the ride, one of the few in the group being avid Yankee fans; I sure didn't have very much to yell about. It was a good game and even a Yankee fan must give credit when it's due, and when pitcher Reggie Cleveland could keep the super stars to hit the ball on the ground, you know they aren't going to score too many runs. By the way, here's a date to remember, Thursday, Sept. 1, because I already have 90 tickets for the Red Sox vs. Cleveland game. The seats are in section 18, which is located just near home plate on the Red Sox side and is an afternoon game. Later on we will tell you more about it.

Democrats set vot on Penny nomination

Democrats set vot on Penny nomination
Manchester's Democratic Town Committee will meet Thursday night to vote on the recommendation that Atty. Stephen T. Penny fill the vacancy on the Board of Directors. The meeting will be held Thursday at 8 o'clock in the Municipal Building's Hearing Room, Theodore Cummings, Democratic town chairman, said. Penny was unanimously recommended by the board vacancy by the party's Lein-meyer Nominating Committee. The vacancy was created when Jack Goldberg resigned from the board in May. Goldberg, a local developer, resigned because of a conflict of interest with a housing development he is proposing for the Lenti Farms tract off Gardner St.

Political games in Ohio

A lesson in politics at its naked worst is offered by current goings-on in Ohio. Democratic majorities in both houses of the state's General Assembly steamrolled through a bill to permit instant (and permanent) election-day registration of voters, similar to the plan proposed by the Carter administration and already adopted by a couple of other states.

As one statehouse observer, UPI reporter Lee Leonard explains it, the idea — shared by both parties — is that there is a "great, untapped source of Democrats" in Ohio who are too lazy to bother to register or re-register to vote under the present system. If they can be brought out on election day, the Dems see themselves achieving a permanent lock on the state government.

That is but the bare beginning of the Byzantine business. Now comes the strategy of the Republicans. Since they could not prevent passage of the registration bill nor prevent a Democratic override of an expected veto by Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes, their plan was to start a referendum drive to collect enough signatures among Ohioans to place a repeal petition on the ballot.

This would put the registration law in suspension for an initial 90 days, the time allowed for collection of the signatures. There would be another interval of 60 days after the end of the drive before the referendum could, by law, be placed on the ballot, which would be the next general election in November.

The hope was that if things could be stalled long enough, the vote on the referendum would have to be postponed to November 1978, which could mean that the voter registration law would have been in limbo for a full year and none of the provisions designed to bring hordes of Democrats to the polls would yet be in effect. The Democrats pulled a surprise end run around this tactic, however, by inserting an amendment in the registration bill prohibiting a popular vote on the controversial issue. But they may have been too clever for their own good. The entire referendum amendment is of doubtful constitutionality and may require a ruling by the Ohio Supreme Court — another delay that could play into Republican hands.

Just in case, the Democrats rushed to bill to Gov. Rhodes' desk to give him time to override the veto, start the clock running on the 90-day signature collection period and force a vote on the referendum this fall.

Their reasoning is that the earlier election would give them their best chance of defeating the referendum because the public would not have had time to become disenchanted with the idea of instant registration. (The Republicans are already painting pictures of truckloads of Democrats being dumped at the polls on election day.)

For their part, the Republicans would just as soon have the referendum come to a vote this November. Their reasoning is that since it will be an off-year election, this might give them their best percentage chance of repealing the registration law. Again according to the conventional wisdom, off-year elections bring out the habitual voters — Republicans, people opposed to instant registration.

And around and around it goes. It would all be very amusing if it weren't for the fact that the future of the Republican party in Ohio could very well hinge on the outcome of the battle over instant registration, if not its future in the political life of the country at large.

Even if it doesn't, the spectacle in Ohio provides something less than an edifying example of how politicians, work in these United States.

Troubled profile of the American family today

Lee Roderick

The Herald's Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON — Nearly one of every two American children born in 1977 will spend a "significant length" of time as part of a one-parent family before the age of 18.

That estimate by the U.S. Census Bureau was revealed the other day in Chicago by Paul C. Glick, senior demographer of the Bureau's population division. Few citizens need to be told that the traditional nuclear family is in trouble. Many, however, may be startled at the extent of the trouble, as outlined by Glick.

Spending to this report recently, Glick noted, for example, that the U.S. marriage rate per 1,000 populations was 9.5 per cent in 1966 and 9.9 per cent in 1976. The divorce rate doubled in that 10-year span, however, going from 2.5 in 1966 to 5.0 in 1976.

A parallel noted
Instances of juvenile crime have paralleled divorce trends: 24 of every 1,000 youngsters between the ages of 10 and 17 committed crimes in 1964, 34 of every 1,000 in 1974. Experts in juvenile delinquency estimate that, if current trends persist, one in nine youths born today will be in court before they're 18. Rates of child abuse, drug abuse and juvenile alcoholism also are on the rise.

In a paper presented at the National Conference on Social Welfare in Chicago, Glick painted a profile of the changing American family — a profile which undoubtedly helps explain such disquieting social trends. Of the projected 45 per cent of children born today who will be members of a one-parent family in the next 18 years, Glick explained: Longer lives
"About 10 per cent are expected to live for a year or more with their mother who bore them before marriage; an additional 27 per cent are expected to live with a divorced parent; another 50 per cent with a separated parent; and 3 per cent with a widowed parent."

Half of the nation's 19-year-old single women are sexually active, said Glick. Although 14 per cent of all children born in 1975 were premarital births, 39 per cent of those to teenage mothers were premarital. "Even among married mothers in their 20s," says Glick, "nearly one-third of their births were premaritally conceived."

Informal living together
"Delay in marriage during recent years has occurred along with a sharp increase in the amount of 'informal living together' among young adults," Glick continues. In 1970, nearly 2 per cent of all couples living together were unmarried — and Glick suggests that over a lifetime, as many as 5 per cent of all adult couples might consist of unmarried persons of the opposite sex.

"In the light — or darkness! — of this evidence," says Glick, "the obvious fact emerges that much of the behavior that was formerly expected to be conducted only within marriage is no longer being done in that manner."

An encouraging word
Is there an encouraging word for the traditional American family? In the "misery loves company" category, Glick reports that, whatever ill the 2 per cent of unmarried couples bode for the strength of our society, it is far below the level of 12 per cent reported in Sweden.

Also of more than passing interest is the great increase in the number of "childfree" years experienced by couples today compared with couples of decades ago. During the early years of the 20th century, says Glick, most couples had about 3 such years together: one and one-half years married life before the first child arrived; another one and one-half years after the last child's marriage and before one spouse — usually the husband — died. In between were about 32 years of childrearing.

Today, couples still have about one and one-half years before the first child arrives, but nearly 13 years after the last child leaves home before one spouse dies. In between are 30 years of childrearing.

"For well-adjusted couples," notes Glick, "this period of being child-free) can be really the golden years of life." But for couples with various differences of outlook and with both the husband and wife self-supporting, this period with no children to serve as a binding principle can become a prime source for future increase in divorce.

Some leading family experts are pessimistic about the potential for soon reversing the negative trends outlined above. Whatever that chance, a great majority of Americans no doubt would still agree with author Mary Jo Bane who wrote recently that: "Family ties, it seems clear, are not archaic remnants of a disappearing traditionalism, but persisting manifestations of human needs for stability, continuity, and nonconditional affection."

An open letter to Bolton taxpayers

I find myself in the undesirable position of having to ask you to support a budget which, at first, I did not support myself. But it is the lesser of two evils. The total proposed budget on the Monday, June 6, 1977, referendum is higher than what I think it should be. But if the budget is rejected again, the Board of Finance would probably have to restore some of the monies to the Board of Education portion and the total budget would be even higher than what is now proposed. So a YES vote on June 6 would keep the figure at the lower amount.

My initial objections to the proposed budget were several. First, MORE monies should have been cut from the education budget. Second, approximately $14,000 for the constitutional should have been left in the Town Proper portion, and third, with an increase in the grand list of over $800,000, it was not necessary to spend as much money as was proposed, in total, so that our taxes could have been lowered, or at best, kept the same. But there are not enough votes on the Board of Finance to accomplish this. So I've compromised my position by coming UP to the proposed budget as it is now. To those of you who would like to have the total budget cut even more than what is now proposed, or in some other areas, please recognize that there are not enough votes on the Board of Finance to support that position. Therefore, a YES vote on Monday, June 6 would be your second best choice.

It is unfortunate for the town as a whole, that the Superintendent of Schools and the Board of Education stacked by the May 16 Town Meeting which rejected the proposed budget and caused the referendum. To cause the people of Bolton to go to the expense and bother of a referendum over such a petty amount is unacceptable. To say that an additional $22,000 (1.54 per cent) of a total amount of $1,425,976 is absolutely necessary and vital to fund the educational needs of our town, when HOW the $1,425,976 is spent is solely within the discretion of the decision makers, defies believability.

To get the good people of Bolton all worked-up and bent out of shape, causing many to speak from their hearts rather than from their heads, causing neighbors to think unkindly of, and cast disparaging glances upon, other neighbors, one wonders, why? It cannot be the money because, relatively speaking, the amount is so small and insignificant.

In my view, it is the desirability of public attempting to force their will upon the Board of Finance, that is, people promoting their own cause. So the education area is just another special interest group, looking for favorite treatment. They are a part of the town, just like any other group, and I try to treat them as fair and square as I do others. They obviously do comprise the largest segment, and in dealing with them, I feel like David facing Goliath.

Yes, Mr. Sheridan, I heard the votes at the May 16 Town Meeting. But we on the Board of Finance are not supposed to let the tail wag the dog. We have the responsibility of running a budget for a town of 4,000, not just for 19, 50, or 64. We have to take the blinders and look at the budget and tax rate as a WHOLE. You are obviously concerned with the education area, but our concerns are much broader and encompass all segments of the town in regards to budgeting and taxing matters. If monies are due to the town from the State, then ALL taxpayers should share in it EQUALLY, not just one segment.

Fortunately, some citizens in town were courageous enough to circulate a petition for referendum. Hopefully,

Bills that are proposed in the state legislature — even those that fall — take several months to be processed, discussed, and approved or rejected.

An example is a simple bill proposed this session by Rep. Francis Mahoney (D-13th). The proposal would have permitted the Probate Court to grant a change of name, a belief "I do you".

The bill was killed about two weeks ago on the State Senate floor. The death came more than four months after the bill was first proposed.

The first draft of the proposed legislation was referred to the Joint Judiciary Committee on Jan. 17. On Feb. 8, the committee drafted the bill, and two days later, the final version of the bill was submitted to the same committee.

The committee then set a public hearing for March 15, and the proposed legislation was filed with the legislative commissioner more than a month later, on April 18. Then, the bill was reported out of committee on April 27. The House of Representatives passed the proposal, but it was sent back to committee by the Senate, thus killing the bill for this session.

Mahoney said that he was disappointed in the defeat, and plans to submit the bill again next year. The fee in Probate Court would be less than that in Superior Court and a lawyer's fee would not be necessary, Mahoney said.

"You can see it drags out for a long time," he said of the bill process. "That's normal for most run-of-the-mill bills — it takes a long time," he said.

Transbus: What and why

By Martha Angle and Robert Walters (First of two related columns)
WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The Transbus decision produced barely a ripple when it was announced here recently, but it eventually could be as significant a landmark for the nation's 6.4 million handicapped people as the 1954 Supreme Court decision outlawing segregated schools was for the country's blacks.

Racial discrimination in the public schools didn't come to a halt until many years after the high court's ruling, but that decision had both immediate and long-term psychological effects which probably were as important as the physical act of desegregation.

The Holy Spirit is like a Word — invisible but real.

In the Gospel of John 1:1 we find the following "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God."

In the beginning of our spiritual life we recognize God as the Word.

In 1 Peter 1:23 we find this "Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible by the Word of God, which liveth and abideth forever."

The Word of God implanted in our hearts will change our lives.

The lines of an old church gives us this testimony and challenge — "I believe in the Word of God, Every promise is true, I believe it, do you? I believe in the Word of God."

Senate okays driver bill

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state Senate has approved a bill aimed at helping safe drivers in Connecticut avoid the skyrocketing cost of auto insurance.

The bill, passed Friday, would require that any person who has not had an accident or been convicted of a moving violation in the last three years be charged standard market rates if they are forced to get insurance through the assigned risk pool.

The assigned risk pool is made up of drivers whose records are such that firms do not want to insure them voluntarily.

Town picks Boston firm for water network study

The Town of Manchester has selected Weston & Sampson, a Boston engineering firm, to do a study of the town's water distribution system.

Director of Public Works Jay J. Giles announced Friday that the firm had been selected to evaluate the town's distribution system and to recommend options for improvements.

Weston & Sampson completed a similar study of the town's water treatment system last December. A Water Study Committee, appointed by the Board of Directors, is presently reviewing the firm's report, which includes 11 options the town could use to improve water treatment.

It is expected that the water treatment and distribution improvements will be part of a bond issue referendum that the town will have to approve.

The firm recommended that the town build one water treatment center at Globe Hollow, a proposal that would cost over $7 million. Giles said that he does not know what improvements to the distribution system will cost.

The entire water system needs to be upgraded to meet standards established in the Safe Water Drinking Act, which goes into effect this month. The town is seeking an extension, because it will not be able to meet the standards until the improvements are made.

Giles said that the cost of the distribution study will be a maximum of $30,000. He expects it will be completed by December.

The firm can begin work immediately on information gathering and studying of the town's system. It will have to wait for the Water Study Committee's recommendation on water treatment improvements before it gets into a detailed study of

Bill passed combining drug-alcohol agencies

The State Senate has approved a bill, sponsored by Manchester Rep. Theodore Cummings (D-12th), that would combine the alcohol and drug councils into one agency.

The bill has already been passed by the House of Representatives and now requires just the governor's signature to become law.

"For me, it makes the entire session very satisfying," Cummings said.

The bill proposes that one agency handle the matters previously cared for by the separate alcohol and drug councils. The new agency will have an executive director appointed by the governor, and the Department of Mental Health will control the budgetary matters of the body.

"I believe that this will improve the treatment of alcoholism and drug abuse. It provides a much stronger council," Cummings said.

Cummings said that the proposal to combine the councils was developed after three months of negotiations between the departments and employees involved. He said that he is confident that the governor will sign the bill.

Contract ratified

After six weeks of negotiation, members of the Manchester Memorial Hospital Nurses, Unit 26, of the Connecticut Nurses Association (CNA), overwhelmingly ratified their fourth collective bargaining agreement Friday afternoon.

Hospital officials and CNA members said they were happy with the new agreement.

A unit spokesperson said the unit is happy with the hospital's willingness to accept the role and responsibility of the staff nurse which is based on the Nurse Practice Act and the American Nurses Association Standards of Nursing Practice.

The contract will probably be signed sometime next week, the spokesperson said.

A hospital spokesman said the contract includes improvements in vacation benefits, participation in the hospital's dental insurance plan, improvements in on-call pay for the operating room staff, life insurance benefits, changes in contract language concerning scheduling, and improvements in the tuition reimbursement program.

Town asks for bids

The Town of Manchester is seeking bids for the patching of town highways and the installation of a fence at the highway garage, 263 Olcott St.

The town is seeking bids per square yard for the patching work. Jay J. Giles, director of public works, said that the bid is primarily for the patching of utility trenches. The bid might also be utilized to do regular road repairs frequently done by the Highway Department, he said.

The other bid is for 500 feet of chain link fence, which will be added to an existing fence at the highway garage site.

Both bids will be opened on June 17 at 11 a.m.

DEAR DICK: I believe it was in the early '60s, when a singer by the name of Gale Garnett recorded a hit song, "We'll Sing In the Sunshine." I thought she was great. What ever became of her? DEAN LILLY, Logan, W. Va.
She was great and so was the song which she wrote. Last I heard, Gale was in Toronto, Canada, where she was producing records.
DEAR DICK: I'm an Alice Cooper fan and would like to know his real name and age. Can you help me? Diane McClelland, Fallington, Pa.
Sure, why not? Alice is really Vincent Furnier, and his age is a secret but he's generally believed to be somewhere in the vicinity of 30. He comes from Phoenix, Ariz.

Ask Kleiner
By Dick Kleiner
DEAR DICK: I would like to know if MGM could ever sell the movie, 'The Wizard of Oz.' And could you ever buy Popeye movies or the Peanuts movies? TED SMITH, Canastota, N.Y.

The thing about movies is that they are all covered by copyrights and the studios won't sell anything that is copyrighted. There are film pirates who somehow get copies of these and other films and sell illegally pirated prints, but the movie industry is cracking down on them now. Some films have gone into P.D. - Public Domain - and are available from reputable film libraries that sell or rent copies. One such is Thunderbird Films (P.O. Box 65157, Los Angeles, Ca. 90065) and you might write for their catalogue. They have many old features and shorts, including some Popeye shorts.

DEAR DICK: Some years ago, Richard Cressa of All's Fair starred in a program that involved a state legislature. The program began with a statement or quotation that pertained to democracy. It began something like: "Democracy is not the best form of government," etc., etc. Could you please furnish the quotation, the author, the source. ROBERT W. SMITH, Landis, N.C.

DEAR DICK: How do they get the audience and participants so charged up on The Price Is Right? Explain also canned laughter and what shows use it. CONRAD BLAIR, Levittown, Pa.

I put your question to the producer of The Price Is Right who said, "They come into the show charged up." But that's only half the story. Like all audience participation shows, this one has a warm-up man (Johnny Olsen) who works on them to get them excited. There are also people on stage who exhort them to cheer and yell and applaud. Canned laughter is a sound track of people laughing and, on many comedy shows, they play that soundtrack to make it seem as though there was an audience there, laughing its head off. Even on shows where there is a real audience present, they often "sweeten" - heighten - the real laugh track with a dose of canned laughter here and there.

WHAT'S UP

A capsule view of tastes, interests and attitudes

... in the census

Although there are still plenty of wide open spaces in the U.S., don't look for them in the Northeast. According to The World Almanac, the states with the greatest number of people per square mile in 1970 were:

State	Density
1. N.J.	953.1
2. R.I.	905.5
3. Mass.	727.0
4. Conn.	623.7
5. Md.	396.6
6. N.Y.	381.3
7. Del.	276.5
8. Pa.	262.3
9. Ohio	250.0
10. Ill.	199.4

By comparison, for each square mile of Nevada there were 4.4 people, while each square mile of Alaska housed only one-half person. The overall U.S. figure was 57.5. Despite all the talk about shortages of heating oil, these cozy Northeast states should have no trouble staying warm in the energy crisis ahead (provided the whole population doesn't run off to Florida).

... in business

The only list the corporate executive really cares about, in addition to his own profit sheet, is the annual Fortune 500 list of the largest industrial corporations. The newest list, recently published, shows ranking by sales, assets, net income, equity, number of employees and other yardsticks. Here's the top ten for 1976, ranked by sales, in billions of dollars.

Rank	Company	1976 Sales
1. Exxon		$48.8
2. General Motors		47.2
3. Ford Motor		28.5
4. Texaco		26.4
5. Mobil		26.1
6. Standard Oil of California		19.4
7. Gulf Oil		16.4
8. IBM		15.3
9. General Electric		15.7
10. Chrysler		15.5

This amounts to about $218 billion. In contrast, the entire midwest of an energy crisis, you federal government spent might note that among the top $365.7 billion in 1976 - $65 ten industrials, only one corporation more than it was pany - IBM - has nothing budgeted to take in. Which directly to do with the development, manufacture, distribution is interesting.

... with consumers

In a survey commissioned by Sentry Insurance, Louis Harris asked a number of questions concerning the consumer movement. Here's one, asked of business executives, consumer activists and the general public:

"Which of these industries do you think the consumer movement should give most of its attention in the future?"

Area	Total Public	Consumer Activist	Business Executive
Food manufacturers	45%	64%	25%
Hospitals	44	53	43
Medical profession	42	63	39
Oil industry	39	55	24
Car manufacturers	38	57	19
Electric utilities	37	73	12
Pharmaceutical industry	34	56	16
Garages and auto mechanics	32	44	44
Food stores, supermarkets	29	32	6
Advertising industry	28	63	25

Other "targets" included insurance companies, credit loan companies, telephone companies and lawyers. Virtually nobody wanted to investigate small shopkeepers and airlines.

... In salaries

Although it has been said the only way to earn the really big bucks is to own your own business, at least a dozen - there are many more - employees aren't doing too badly. Here's a list of the highest paid business executives in 1976, from Business Week computations.

... In cities

Although many of our major cities have lost population in the last 20 years, they are still considerably larger than they were at the turn of the century. Some, in fact, grew incredibly - a reflection of the industrialization of the nation. Here's how they grew, according to The World Almanac.
