Wickham Park trustees will oppose I-291

The trustees of Wickham Park plan to express their opposition to the state's plan to take a portion of the park for construction of a segment of I-291 at a public hearing on the highway proposals Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Nathan Hale School.

The 200 acre park in both Manchester and East Hartford is in a trust held by Hartford National Bank which administers the park under the supervision of the probate court in Manchester.

The trustees are disturbed at the nearness of the proposed highway, and with the noise and visual disturbances the highway will cause, according to Probate Judge William Fitzgerald.

The Department of Transportation proposes taking 6.5 acres of the extreme northeast corner of the park. The highway would be about 1,000 feet from the park's tennis courts.

The trustees are already on record in writing with the DOT, opposing the land takeover, Robert Johnston, trust officer for the bank for the park, said today. He said the trustees knew about the proposed takeover of the park land about two months ago.

The plans for the highway have been recently changed to accommodate Manchester's new industrial park on Tolland Tpk. The highway plans were moved south which included the portion of Wickham Park.

Students to conduct interviews

Interviews will be made of residents in 38 rural towns in Connecticut in June and July by rural sociologists at the University of Connecticut.

Dr. Thomas Steahr, associate professor and project director, said that the results of the survey will be used to determine the quality of life in rural Connecticut in a two-year study funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Assisting Dr. Steahr in the interviewing will be Jack Wright and Ms. Jennifer Brown, project coordinators.

Dr. Steahr noted that the project will explore two basic factors known to be related to people's assessment of the quality of life in their community.

First is the degree of social integration of residents into the local town - church participation, involvement in civic associations, neighbor visitations, and other community activities.

The second factor concerns the general feeling of safety of the community as indicated by the degree of fear of crime reported by the residents. This will be evaluated by questions on how likely residents feel they might be

Seabrook okayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Environmental Protection Agency chief Douglas Costle today rejected environmental arguments and approved a cooling system for the Seabrook, N.H., nuclear plant, clearing the way to lift a construction ban.

In his 48-page decision and accompanying statement, Costle noted the plant had become the national symbol for opposition to nuclear power since 114 protesters were arrested over the May Day weekend for occupying the plant site.

"However," Costle said, "the decision before me... was an extremely narrow one."

He said his sole duty was to determine if the record of past hearings on Seabrook showed that heated water discharged by the plant would not harm ocean life and that the proposed cooling water intake "reflects the best technology for minimizing adverse environmental impacts."

Costle said he had relied on the expertise of EPA scientists in reaching his decision.

"I have determined that the record is adequate to reach a decision that the proposed cooling system does meet the test set forth in the law," he said.

Costle's ruling overturned a November, 1976, decision by the EPA regional administrator in Boston, who halted plant construction because he felt there was too little information to judge the ecological impact of the plant's hot water discharge.

Today's decision is certain to draw a sharp protest from the Clamshell Alliance, a coalition of environmental groups that opposes the plant and that organized the occupation of the plant site last month.

Seabrook - a twin-reactor, 2,300-megawatt power plant on the New Hampshire coast is designed to suck in 1.2 billion gallons of seawater from the ocean floor each day to cool its reactors. The water will be returned to the ocean 39 degrees

Past year's achievements recounted

Norman Fendell, director of the Regional Occupational Train Center, briefly reviewed the past year of the facility and its plans for the coming year as part of the school's first graduation in its new facility at 655 Wetherell St., Manchester. He praised the people in the community who played a major role in bringing the facility into being and said he hoped the graduation Thursday night was the beginning of a tradition for the school. Seated center is Dr. James P. Kennedy, superintendent of Manchester schools, who awarded the graduation certificates, and Allan B. Chesterford, right, director of student personnel services. Proponents outnumbered at DOT hearing on I-291

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Manchester residents Thursday night expressed opposition to the loss of Wickham Park property and other environmental problems that they said would result from the proposed construction of I-291.

About 75 people attended the Thursday night public hearing on the route, which would connect I-91 in Windsor and I-96 in Manchester.

Five members of the Conservation Commission, including Chairperson Theresa Parla and Dr. Frederic Spaulding, a long-time opponent of I-291, spoke against the proposed route at the hearing, which was held in the Nathan Hale School cafeteria.

Another Conservation Commission member, Jacqueline Aronson, said that she works in Windsor and would be considered one of those who might use I-291.

"It takes me 20-25 minutes through a scenic route that I don't mind traveling. I should look forward to your highway proposal, but I don't, she said.

Representatives of the state defended the highway proposal.

John Drake, a director of planning with the state Department of Transportation (DOT), said that the highway is not planned to generate more traffic, but to "balance" the traffic that is now using existing roads.

"It's a demand-type project. These people are making the trips now," he said.

He also said that the state is taking steps to improve mass transit, including the buying of bus and rail services that are going out of business.

Others who spoke at Thursday's hearing included three administrators of the Wickham Park property - Probate Judge William E. FitzGerald and Hartford National Bank and Trust officials Robert Summa and Robert Johnston. All expressed concern about the loss of the park land to the park.

Left L.A.

Thomas Strangan, a resident of 118 W. Middle Tpk., across from Wickham Park, said, "I hate to see those acres sliced off."

He also said that he is originally from Los Angeles.

"I sort of don't like to go home anymore. They've paved over most of the good reasons for going there," he said.

Strangan said that if I-291 is built,

Agostinelli eyes GOP race

Nathan G. Agostinelli, a Manchester resident and former state comptroller, said Thursday that he is considering running for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Agostinelli served as comptroller from 1971-1975 under the administration of then-Governor Thomas Meskill. He was the party's nominee for lieutenant governor in 1974, when Meskill was defeated by present Governor Ella Grasso.

His interest in the party's nomination for the 1978 gubernatorial post adds another name to the field of those who have expressed interest in the position.

Only one party member, Sen. George Gunther of Stratford has announced his candidacy. But, several other candidates are expected to formally announce their candidacy for the state's top elected position.

The list includes House Minority Leader Gerald Stevens of Milford and former state Department of Environmental Protection head Dan Lufkin.

Agostinelli is the president and chief executive officer of the Manchester State Bank and has long been active in the local Republican party. He is a former Republican Town Chairman.

He has also been involved in several community activities, including serving as co-chairman of the Bicentennial Committee.

He resides at 144 Delmont St.

Barn burns off Silver Lane
East Hartford fire fighters train-jets of water on burning hay in this Silver Lane barn about 10:30 a.m. today. The partly dismantled barn was reported to the fire department by a resident along with a ladder truck and a rescue truck, all under the direction of Deputy Chief Tim Kelleher. High court favors employers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled 7 to 2 that employers need not discriminate against some of their workers merely to accommodate the religious needs of others.

Justice Byron White, speaking for the majority in a Trans World Airlines case, said the seniority system in a contract with the company, in itself, represents "a significant accommodation to the needs, both religious and secular, of all of TWA's employees."

The seniority system represents a neutral way of minimizing the number of occasions when an employee must work on a day that he would prefer to have off, White said.

Federal civil rights law since 1972 has required employers to make "reasonable accommodations" to workers' religious desires. Firings or refusals to hire for religious reasons must be justified by a company on the basis of undue hardship to the business.

But White said Congress did not mean an employer must "deny the shift and job preference of some employees as well as deprive them of their contractual rights in order to accommodate or prefer the religious needs of others."

The ruling came in the case of Larry Hardison, a member of the World Wide Church of God, who refused to work on Saturday, his Sabbath.

He eventually was fired from his job in a TWA's overhaul base at Kansas City International Airport, which is manned 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decided the company should have done more to help Hardison. TWA and the International Association of Machinists appealed to the Supreme Court.

The company and the union argued that the federal law unfairly favors a worker who wants Saturday off to attend church over one who just wants the day off to go to a football game.

Case against bilingualism

Spanish-speaking kids learn
"substantially less" in school
than their English-speaking white counterparts, though on the average they do learn more than blacks.

Writing in Harper's magazine, John R. Silber, president of Boston University,
points out that until recently
the United States was unique in the world as a very large nation covering a great land mass that maintained a single national language.

This is the finding of the first national appraisal of the educational performance of American students with a Spanish or "Hispanic" heritage, recently released by the federally financed Education Commission of the States.

White Hispanic students make up only about five percent of the national student population, the study could have far-reaching impact. It was partly on the basis of similar findings regarding the disadvantages suffered by black children that the U.S.
Supreme Court promulgated its landmark decision outlawing segregated schools.

Just as that decision led to things nobody dreamed of in 1954, such as forced busing,
the intervention of the courts
on behalf of Spanish-speaking students - intervention that is more than likely, given the social activism of our judges - could also have unforeseen consequences.

Moreover, he says, the bilingual movement patronizes the Hispanic culture by implying that it cannot survive coexistence with English language. And it has racist overtones suggesting that Spanish-speaking American citizens cannot be expected to acquire the same level of competence that was acquired by immigrants from Germany, Italy, Russia, Poland, Greece and many other countries."

A straw in the wind is the commentary on the Education Commission study filed by Jose Martinez, a California
state bilingual education specialist: "The data strongly suggests that Hispanic students do not receive equal benefits from the education system of the country. The mere availability of public education is simply not enough."

Silber emphasizes that such
"ill-advised notions" are not to be confused with thoughtfully established programs of bilingual education designed to induct children into the use of the national language. These programs are, in fact, a burden that ought to be assumed by our society as a logical consequence of having a national language in the first place.

Now it would be one thing to require the schools to make special efforts to assist students for whom English is a foreign language. No one should argue with that,
anyone than any decent person argues with the rightness
of the Supreme Court desegregation decision.

But no doubt Silber and others who warn of the perils of the movement toward bilingualism or multiculturalism, just as those who honorably oppose school
busing or racial quotas as unwise extensions of the desegregation decision are labeled as racists.

Carter losing clout on Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON - (NEA) - In warfare or in politics there is no better advice than the ancient maxim cited with approval centuries ago by Machiavelli: "divide and rule."
But President Carter, in threatening to veto not one but three major spending bills now wending their way through Congress, seems to have forgotten this lesson in his zeal to promote his own reputation as a tight-fisted guardian of the public purse.

Democrats have been forced by repeated Republican vetoes to trim various appropriations bills below the levels originally voted. They had expected to make up some of that lost ground when Carter took office.
At a recent private White House
dinner, House Speaker Tip O'Neill conveyed the dismay of his charges to Carter and delicately reminded the new president that none of his Democratic predecessors had ever vetoed the sorts of bills Carter is now challenging.

A massive new farm bill contains price supports for corn and wheat well above levels Carter considers reasonable. A public works measure includes money for water projects he views as wasteful. And the huge Labor-HEW appropriations bill may exceed his budget estimates by as much as $1 billion.

As O'Neill admitted when he dined at the White House, Carter could probably get away with vetoing the farm bill and the public works legislation - although an override is more likely if he refuses to sign the Labor-HEW bill.

Each of these spending proposals
has a distinctive constituency

But Carter's sole concern is his own political popularity, he can antagonize Congress all he wants and probably climb even higher in the public opinion polls.

favors of patronage and pork barrel

home and teen-age crimes are examples.

But if the President wants to put his own imprint on federal programs, to accomplish substantive goals in this first administration, then he will need the cooperation of the Democrats in Congress. His chances of getting it are receding, not growing, with every passing week.

How to face the crisis
in our lives
One of life's most beautiful things
is a close and happy family.

What is to be done? How to preserve our families?
We can not dismiss the Bible principles. The Bible outlines the roles and responsibilities of all family members. Let us restore the family according to God's will and we will find peace and happiness again in our homes.

Is it in our family today? We all know that there is a serious family crisis in our country. Growing

Mayor Matthew Moriarty's decision not to seek re-election in November means that Manchester
will have its third mayor in just over two years.

John Thompson served in the role,
which normally goes to the majority party's top vote-getter, from 1971 to 1976, the year Moriarty led the party ticket. Now, with the mayor not running again, the position will be up for grabs in November.

There will, of course, be other effects resulting from Moriarty's decision. The most obvious is that there will be one more vacancy on the Democratic party ticket for the fall election.

Two party members - Thompson and Jack Goldberg - have resigned from the board in the past four months. Two other present members
- Pascal Frignano and Robert Price are expected to soon announce their plans for November. Neither is expected to seek re-election.

If this is the case, the Democrats will have only one candidate in November who was serving on the board at the beginning of the year, Phyllis Jackson.

Beldon Schaffer and Atty. Stephen Penny, who replaced Thompson and Goldberg, respectively, on the board, can be expected to run along with Mrs. Jackson.

At the Democratic Town Committee meeting when Moriarty announced his plans, it was apparent that the party is grooming two candidates for November.

Moriarty's announcement surprised most of those in attendance at the Democratic Town Committee meeting last week.

The mayor said that he had written the resignation letter about a month ago, but had submitted it to party leaders just before he made his formal announcement.

The mayor explained his reasons
for not running again in a two-page letter that cited family and business obligations. He called the matter
"the toughest political decision that I have faced to date."

ROTC students spook director in skit

An entertaining part of the Regional Occupational Training Center's graduation program Thursday night was Modge Podge, directed by Fran Panaia, which used a "This is your life" approach to recounting the trials and tribulations of the center's first year in its new facility and climaxing with the presentation of a glass of seltzer to Norman Fendell, director, seated. Taking part were, from left: Charlie Reilly, Sheba Ward and Greg Chisholm. (Herald photo by Larson)

Bloodmobile to visit here
next Tuesday afternoon

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Manchester Tuesday from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. at Temple Beth Shalom, 400
E. Middle Tpke.
With the coming of the summer vacation period, many additional blood donors will be needed not only to replace those who will be away,

but also to give their blood to help those who will be involved in accidents and undergoing surgery.
There is no substitute for human blood. No amount of miracle drugs can be administered to save a life when blood is needed. The only source is the donor who cares enough for others to give blood.
There will be volunteer baby sitting offered from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.
for mothers who must bring their children along.

Correction
The Manchester HomeMaker Service, Inc. is changing its name to River East HomeMaker-Home
Health Aide Service, Inc. to comply with federal regulations concerning Medicaid services, not Medicare as previously announced.

The need for blood takes no vacation. Donors are urged to keep their appointments for the Bloodmobile.
Walk-in donors will be welcome.
Appointments may be made by calling the Red Cross office at 643-5111.

PUCA says rate hike bid
was improperly filed

HARTFORD (UPI) - The Public
Utilities Control Authority has told Northeast Utilities to try again with its latest rate hike request.
The PUCA ruled Thursday the utility's $80 million rate hike request
- the largest in state history - is "deficient" because it was improperly filed. But the authority refused to throw out the rate request altogether, opting instead to give Northeast five days to correct its filing mistake.

Earlier this week, state consumer counsel David Silverstone asked the PUCA to rule that the utility's rate request was improperly submitted and therefore invalid.

The authority gave Silverstone half of what he wanted.
Northeast asked that the rate hike take effect May 20, which would mean consumers would be charged higher rates for the entire month of May if the request was approved.

The PUCA, ruling in Silverstone's favor, said Northeast must refile its request making the effective date
May 31. That means the utility's 850-000 customers would not have to pay the new rates until June.

HEALTH

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 28-year-old mother of three children. Recently I lost 10 pounds and do hope to keep it off. I would like a diet to stick with so I can eat properly each day. My doctor said to stay around 1400 calories a day and I wouldn't gain back my weight loss. I do gain weight easily.

Also if I drink socially
how many calories should I stay with? I don't eat very much when we are going out that evening.
I usually have three drinks the entire evening
but was curious.

DEAR READER -
Although three children
may keep you pretty busy,
if you can program a nice walk into your daily routine it will help you
keep your weight down.
Being busy and frustrated with too much to do is not the same thing as healthy physical exercise that you need to use calories.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 47,
Weight Losing Diet, as you requested. You can use this plan as a basis for a regular diet for yourself.
It contains about 1200
calories and you can add these basic foods whatever you like as long as you don't eat so much you start gaining weight again.

Alcohol frequently
destroys a good fat control program. If you estimate that one ounce of alcoholic beverage is used to make cocktail there will be about 75 calories from the alcohol alone, plus calories
from whatever mix you use. If it is water it is nothing, if fruit juice, it is a lot.

Language arts program attaining its goals

By SUSAN VAUGHN Herald Reporter

The conclusion reached by school board members, Mrs. Carolyn Becker, after a year and a half of visiting 50 language arts classes, is that the language arts curriculum is carrying out the goals of education in Manchester schools as set forth by the Board of Education two years ago.

She also noted the variety of courses offered in the high school language arts department and the writing awards which have been won by Manchester students on the state level and beyond.

Becker made note of a superior teacher in a junior high school who did equally superb jobs of teaching both high and very low ability students.

Becker said, "One can easily understand the need for funds for books, films, workbooks, ditto paper." Teachers also expressed the continuing need for money for field trips and newspapers.

Sun shines on EHHS graduates

By SHEILA TULLER Herald Correspondent The sun shone brightly on the 311 young men and women of East Hartford High School's Class of 1977 as they marched proudly onto the school field for graduation ceremonies Thursday night.

Miss Prior reminded her classmates of the times they shared together as a group. "Our achievements, good times, and disappointments are all lessons to apply as we go in different directions."

She also told the gathering, "Tonight is the last time we'll be together as a group and tonight we're very much together."

And together the class recalled the past four years as they sang "The Way We Were."

She also urged the graduates to "reach for the heavens and hope for the future."

By doing all we can instead of staying the way we are, we can be the most promising class to leave EHHS," she said.

Class of 1977 resembles '52

By SHEILA TULLER Herald Correspondent The 311 students that graduated from EHHS Thursday night resembled the graduates of years past in their traditional blue and white caps and gowns.

And like other EHHS graduating classes, the groups' professional was to the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance," played by the school band.

Looking back to another EHHS graduation 25 years ago, one finds tradition has prevailed and few things have changed.

Probably as in 1952, Vice-Principal Howard Goding greeted arriving guests. Many of the parents who stopped to shake hands Thursday night were members of the Class of 1952.

There are still more girls graduating than boys. In 1952, 125 of the 217-member class were of the fairer sex. Thursday night at EHHS, 176 girls outnumbered the 135 boys.

Most of the girls are still named Mary, with eight married in the Class of '52. Surprisingly, Linda, Susan, Cathy and Joan followed Mary in popularity in this age of cute names.

Besides the ever-popular Mary, the Joans, Jeans, Janets and Jackies were the most popular in 1952. Coincidentally, Principal John Callahan presented several Joans for diplomas Thursday night. In 1952, it remains the most popular boy's name as it was in many classes of the past.

However, only a few Joans graduated in 1952, and Principal Stanley Lorenzen called only one Stanley to the podium in a class with seven Ronalds and several Roberts and Williams.

Under the traditional graduation gowns, many 77 boys were comfortable in casual corduroy and sneakers. Many girls wore pants outfits unbeknownst to the 50s.

In 1952, suits with white shirts and ties were required for the boys. White linen suits and spike heels had been the fashion of the day for the girls.

Recalling the styles, the same suits, shirts and ties were "in" for class pictures, while the girls were pictured in the Janes (yearbook) in sweaters with pearls.

Levasseur new Whaler

HARTFORD (UPI) — The New England Whalers completed a deal Thursday for goaltender Louis Levasseur by trading goalie Dave Dryden to the Edmonton Oilers.

To get Levasseur, the Whalers relinquished rights to Brett Callighen, gave the Oilers a fourth round pick in the 1977 amateur draft and three in an unspecified amount of cash and "future considerations."

When he was with now-defunct Minnesota, Levasseur was the top-ranked goalie in the league, with a 15-11-2 record and a 2.73 goals-against average. His record dropped to 6-12-3 when Minnesota folded and he went to Edmonton.

Jack Kelley, director of hockey operations for the Whalers, said, "The most important problem I had starting in the face was obtaining a goalie we could help in the season with. We got him. Louis is going into the season with us."

Levasseur said he's happy about the deal. "I've always liked Hartford," he said. "I remember at the

We are all trying to save energy, even in the summer. Did you know:

AIR CONDITIONING: 78 degrees is a perfectly adequate inside temperature during the summer-time. You can help cool air inside by closing the drapes on the sunny side of your house, and by keeping the majority of your storm windows up all year long.

SHADE: Leaf shedding trees planted on the south, east, and west sides of your home help shade the sun's heat in the summer, and allow heat from the sun's rays to enter through windows in the winter after the leaves have fallen.

Dear Abby By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 15-year-old girl with lots of friends, and my problem is that guys are always hounding me because I don't want to have sex. Some of my girlfriends say if I don't do it before I'm 16, I'll wind up being a lesbian. I can't say I'm afraid of getting pregnant because I could get the Pill or I could use some other method. Please give me some reasons that they will listen to. Thank you.

DEAR ABBY: I saw an ad in a New York newspaper that read as follows: 'Marjuna cannot be sold through the mails, but you can. Send $5 for a full quarter-ounce.' I sent a $5 bill together with my name and address, and I received in return a quarter-ounce of LAWN CLIPPINGS! This is clearly a fraudulent scheme. How can I get my money back?

DEAR ABBY: Our 14-year-old son is our problem. He has always been a good boy and a good student, but he is an introvert. He has no friends and claims he doesn't want any. He is sarcastic and arrogant, shows no affection and seems to want none. He could be very good-looking, but over the years he has gained so much weight he now refuses to wash himself. He pretends he doesn't care how he looks, and he continues to grow fatter. We have begged and bribed him, but he doesn't listen. He's our only child, and it's breaking my heart. Please help me.

DEAR DETROIT: An obese child is an unhappy child who is asking for help. He's built a wall of fat around himself to keep others from getting close enough to discover his imperfections. We all have them. I need a professional help. Start with your family doctor, and don't put it off.

Win at Bridge South overcomes trump lead

East had done his best to avoid this by throwing the right of club to the third trump lead so as to keep that fifth heart in his hand, but this did him no good at all. When East led that fifth heart, South just checked his singleton club. Now if East led a diamond, South would lose just one diamond trick. If he led a club it would set up dummy's king and again South would lose just one diamond trick. Either way, South was sure of 10 tricks.

High court favors employers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled 7 to 2 that employers need not discriminate against some of their workers merely to accommodate the religious needs of others.

Justice Byron White, speaking for the majority in a Trans World Airlines case, said the seniority system in a union contract with the company, in itself, represents "a significant accommodation to the needs, both religious and secular, of all of TWA's employees."

The seniority system represents a neutral way of minimizing the number of occasions when an employee must work on a day that he would prefer to have off, White said.

Federal civil rights law since 1972 has required employers to make "reasonable accommodations" to workers' religious desires. Firings or refusals to hire for religious reasons must be justified by a company on the basis of undue hardship to the business.

But White said Congress did not mean an employer must "deny the shift and job preference of some employees as well as deprive them of their contractual rights in order to accommodate or prefer the religious needs of others."

The ruling came in the case of Larry Hardison, a member of the World Wide Church of God, who refused to work on Saturday, his Sabbath.

He eventually was fired from his job in a TWA's overhaul base at Kansas City International Airport, which is manned 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decided the company should have done more to help Hardison. TWA and the International Association of Machinists appealed to the Supreme Court.

The company and the union argued that the federal law unfairly favors a worker who wants Saturday off to attend church over one who just wants the day off to go to a football game.

Case against bilingualism

Spanish-speaking kids learn "substantially less" in school than their English-speaking white counterparts, though on the average they do learn more than blacks.

This is the finding of the first national appraisal of the educational performance of American students with a Spanish or "Hispanic" heritage, recently released by the federally financed Education Commission of the States.

While Hispanic students make up only about five percent of the national student population, the study could have far-reaching impact. It was partly on the basis of similar findings regarding the disadvantages suffered by black children that the U.S. Supreme Court promulgated its landmark decision outlawing segregated schools.

Just as that decision led to things nobody dreamed of in 1954, such as forced busing, the intervention of the courts on behalf of Spanish-speaking students — intervention that is more than likely, given the social activism of our judges — could also have unforeseen consequences.

A straw in the wind is the commentary on the Education Commission study filed by Jose Martinez, a California state bilingual education specialist. "The data strongly suggests that Hispanic students do not receive equal benefits from the education system of the country. The mere availability of public education is simply not enough."

Now it would be one thing to require the schools to make special efforts to assist students for whom English is a foreign language. No one should argue with that, anymore than any decent person argues with the rightness of the Supreme Court desegregation decision.

The great danger, however, is that it would not stop there but would be one more step in a process leading to the eventual establishment of Spanish as an official language of the United States. Already, some Hispanic organizations are agitating for just that.

Writing in Harper's magazine, John R. Silber, president of Boston University, points out that until recently the United States was unique in the world as a very large nation covering a great land mass that maintained a single national language. The fact that a nation of such ethnic diversity has not been torn apart by intercommunal violence is almost certainly related to its having a single language, he says.

"Unlike Canada, Belgium and other nations with explosive language problems, the United States has been able to sustain its diverse culture within the context of one official language. Recent attempts to require bilingual ballots erode the position of the national language by assuming that it is possible to be a citizen even if one is literate only in the language of one's ethnic group."

Moreover, he says, the bilingual movement "patronizes the Hispanic culture by implying that it cannot survive coexistence with English language. And it has racist overtones suggesting that Spanish-speaking American citizens cannot be expected to acquire the same level of competence that was acquired by immigrants from Germany, Italy, Russia, Poland, Greece and many other countries."

Silber emphasizes that such "ill-advised notions" are not to be confused with thoughtfully established programs of bilingual education designed to induct children into the use of the national language. These programs are, in fact, a burden that ought to be assumed by our society as a logical consequence of having a national language in the first place.

But no doubt Silber and others who warn of the perils of the movement toward bilingualism or multilingualism will be accused of linguistic or cultural chauvinism, just as those who honorably oppose school busing or racial quotas as unwelcome extensions of the desegregation decision are labeled as racists.

To the editor,
After the beautiful graduation exercises at St. Joseph's Cathedral our son invited the class to our house for a party.
Almost all of the graduation class plus turned out! They really know how to party and have a good time!
Even though the weather forced the party to be inside all night, there was absolutely no rowdiness or any destruction.
There were also many offers to help clean up afterwards. My husband and I were tremendously impressed and think that this has to say something for the parents and ECHS.

Carter losing clout on Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — In warfare or in politics there is no better advice than the ancient maxim cited with approval centuries ago by Machiavelli: "divide and rule."
But President Carter, in threatening to veto not one but two major spending bills now wending their way through Congress, seems to have forgotten this lesson in his zeal to promote his own reputation as a tight-fisted guardian of the public purse.
A massive new farm bill contains price supports for corn and wheat well above levels Carter considers reasonable. A public works measure includes money for water projects he views as wasteful. And the huge Labor-HEW appropriations bill has exceeded his budget estimates by as much as $1 billion.

Distinctive constituencies
Each of these spending proposals has a distinctive constituency on Capitol Hill: farmers, Westerners, urban Democrats.
Had just one of them been challenged, the president might have been able to enlist support from legislators who have no special stake in the chosen target. Urban Democrats, for example, could easily be persuaded to accept lower farm price supports if they knew their own pet projects in the Labor-HEW bill were safe.
But Carter has attacked all three measures, thereby uniting the disparate interest groups on Capitol Hill and leaving the president in a less than ideal position to veto the bills.

Repealed Republican votes to trim various appropriations bills below the levels originally voted. They had expected to make up some of that lost ground when Carter took office.
At a recent private White House dinner, House Speaker Tip O'Neill conveyed the dismay of his charges to Carter and delicately reminded the new president that none of his Democratic predecessors had ever vetoed the sorts of bills Carter is now challenging.
In particular, Capitol Hill Democrats are incensed by the threat to veto the Labor-HEW bill, which contains funds for a whole herd of sacred cows ranging from school aid to the National Institute of Health.

Reflects Democrat cause
"No bill better reflects what the Democrats like to think they stand for," one House leadership source told us, ticking off the programs — health, education, labor, welfare — financed by this biggest of all appropriations measures.
From a personal political standpoint, Carter may well enhance his popularity with the voters by attacking what he sees as excessive spending by the Congress.
But his stance, coupled with his refusal to deliver the usual minor favors of patronage and pork barrel projects that other presidents traditionally use to build up chiefs on Capitol Hill, has left him without leverage in Congress.

What is to be done? How to preserve our families?
We can not dismiss the Bible principles. The Bible outlines the roles and responsibilities of all family members. Let us restore the family according to God's will and we will find peace and happiness again in our homes.

Both men, Stephen Cassano and Atty. Joseph Sweeney, had applied to fill the vacancies created when Thompson and Goldberg resigned. At the meeting, Cassano and Sweeney were praised as solid candidates for the board and thanked for their interest.
If these two are selected by the party, it leaves one more vacancy for the board on the Democratic ticket. The Republican picture is not so clear at this time. Vivian Ferguson is expected to run again. Carl Zinsser and Paul Willhite are still undecided.
Several persons have expressed interest in running for the board, but there are no definite, or even near-definite, choices yet, according to party members.
Moriarty's announcement surprised most of those in attendance at the Democratic Town Committee meeting last week.
The mayor said that he had written the resignation letter about a month ago, but had submitted it to party leaders just before he made his formal announcement.
The mayor explained his reasons for not running again in a two-page letter that cited family and business obligations. He called the matter "the toughest political decision that I have faced to date."
He also left word that he may return to politics.
"I intend to seek public office in the future when I feel that it is timely for my family, my party and myself," he wrote.

Bloodmobile to visit here next Tuesday afternoon

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Manchester Tuesday from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. at Temple Beth Shalom, 400 E. Middle Tpke.
With the coming of the summer vacation period, many additional blood donors will be needed not only to replace those who will be away, but also to give their blood to help those who will be involved in accidents and undergoing surgery.
There is no substitute for human blood. No amount of miracle drugs can be administered to save a life when blood is needed. The only source is the donor who cares enough for others to give blood.
There will be volunteer baby sitting offered from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. for mothers who must bring their children along.
The need for blood takes no vacation. Donors are urged to keep their appointments for the Bloodmobile.
Walk-in donors will be welcome. Appointments may be made by calling the Red Cross office at 643-5111.

MPOA opposes I-291

At a recent meeting, the Manchester Property Owners Association (MPOA) expressed its opposition to the proposed I-291 highway. Dr. Frederick Spaulding, long an opponent of the road, spoke to the group.
"The discussion centered on the question of whether or not we need such a massive road construction to serve such a small part of the population. The MPOA feels that the federal government should have a consistent policy toward energy conservation and direct this money into mass transit," John Tucci, the group's secretary, wrote.
MPOA did voice support for the I-94, I-86 connector. It supports a design proposed by Spaulding, which is smaller and less detailed than the one proposed by state officials.
The association also discussed a proposal to tax vehicles using the town landfill. The town is seeking such a tax to limit abuses of the landfill by out-of-town vehicles.
The MPOA feels the tax is "very discriminatory" toward business, since businesses do collect their own trash. It proposed a sticker for Manchester vehicles at its annual visitation of assembly

HEALTH
Dear Dr. Lamb - I am a 28-year-old mother of three children. Recently I lost 16 pounds and do hope to keep it off. I would like a diet to stick with so I can eat properly each day. My doctor said to stay around 1600 calories a day and I wouldn't gain back my weight loss. I do gain weight easily.
Also if I drink socially how many calories should I stay with? I don't eat very much when we are going out that evening. I usually have three drinks the entire evening but was curious.
Dear Reader - Although three children may keep you pretty busy, if you can program a nice walk into your daily routine it will help you keep your weight down. Being busy and frustrated with too much to do is not the same thing as healthy physical exercise that you need to use calories.
I am sending you The Health Letter number 47, Weight Lossing Diet, as you requested. You can use this plan as a basis for a regular diet for yourself. It contains about 1200 calories and you can add to these basic foods whatever you like as long as you don't eat so much you start gaining weight again.
Alcohol frequently destroys a good fat control program. If you estimate that one ounce of alcoholic beverage is used to make a cocktail there will be about 75 calories from the alcohol alone, plus calories from whatever mix you use. If it is water it is nothing; if fruit juice, it is a lot.

Vernon plans disaster

By BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter

A major disaster will occur in Vernon June 25. That's not a prediction; it's a plan to test all emergency equipment in the tri-town area of Vernon, Tolland and Ellington.

The "victims" will be eight Vernon junior firemen and 12 Rockville junior firemen.

The incident will be staged at Legion Field, West St. and Legion Rd. at 8 a.m. Spectators should be at the field prior to that time, Capt. Bundy said.

Camp Hemlocks to open

Hebron

An active two-week camping program of boating, fishing, swimming, and arts and crafts begins Sunday for physically handicapped adults at the Hemlocks Outdoor Education Center in Hebron.

The camp has 20-acre lake for boating and fishing, an indoor swimming pool, a nature trail through spruce pine trees, and modern camping accommodations — all specially equipped for handicapped persons.

The EAST organization, an emergency technical group, will make up the victims. Vernon Police Explorers Post 800 will handle parking of the cars of spectators and crowd control at the site.

We are all trying to save energy, even in the summer. Did you know?

AIR CONDITIONING: 78 degrees is a perfectly adequate inside temperature during the summer-time. You can help cool air inside by closing the drapes on the sunny side of your house, and by keeping the majority of your storm windows up all year long.

SHADE: Leaf shedding trees planted on the south, east, and west sides of your home help shade the sun's heat in the summer, and allow heat from the sun's rays to enter through windows in the winter after the leaves have fallen.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 15-year-old girl with lots of friends, and my problem is that they are always hassling me because I don't want to have sex. Some of my girl friends say if I don't do it before I'm 16, I'll wind up being a lesbian. I can't say I'm afraid of getting pregnant because I could get the Pill or I could use some other method. Please give me some reasons that they will listen to. Thank you.

HASSLED DEAR HASSLED: What's wrong with the truth? Tell them you do not want to get into sex now. And please don't feel that you have to explain or make apologies for your decision. MANY girls your age and older choose NOT to indulge in sex because they feel ill-equipped to handle it emotionally. I am, good for them. The poorest reason for doing something is because you're afraid of what others might think. (P.S. And your friends who say, "If you don't have sex before you're 16, you'll wind up a lesbian" don't know what they're talking about.)

DEAR ABBY: I saw an ad in a New York newspaper that read as follows: "Marijuana cannot be sold through the mails, but grass can. Send $5 for a full quarter-ounce." I sent a $5 bill together with my name and address, and I received in return a quarter-ounce of LAWN CLIPPINGS! This is clearly a fraudulent scheme. How can I get my money back?

"HAD": FIRE ISLAND DEAR HAD: I think you would be wise to write it off as a "cheap lesson." Don't expect to find an honest dealer in a crooked deal.

DEAR ABBY: Our 14-year-old son is in problem. He has always been a good boy and a good student, but he is an introvert. He has no friends and claims he doesn't want any. He is sarcastic and arrogant, shows no affection and seems to want none. He could be very good-looking, but over the years he has gained so much weight he now refuses to weigh himself. He pretends he doesn't care how he looks, and he continues to grow fatter. We have begged and bribed him, but he doesn't listen. He is an only child, and it's breaking my heart. Please help me.

DEAR DETROIT: An obese child is an unhappy child who is asking for help. He's built a wall of fat around himself to keep others from getting close enough to discover his imperfections (We all have them). He needs professional help. Start with your family doctor, and don't put it off.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "PLEASELIVING PLUMB AT THE BANK" Your normal weight at age 25 should be your weight for the rest of your life. How does that grab you?

Win at Bridge South overcomes trump lead

East had done his best to avoid this by throwing the eight of clubs on the third trump lead so as to keep the fifth heart in his hand, but this did him no good at all. When East led that fifth heart, South just checked his singleton club.

By Orville & James Jacoby The trump lead made it impossible for South to ruff two hearts in dummy. Every card was wrong in the side suits, yet South found a play for his contract in spite of the bludgeoning of clubs.
