Energy program needs an energetic Congress

In reviewing the action on the energy program to date, we can only conclude the following:

One third of the Congress is afraid some oil company is going to make an unearned nickel.

One third of the Congress is afraid free enterprise, if given a chance, might work out the solution.

And one third of the Congress is sitting on its hands, as they always have.

The problem is not Carter's plan—impractical as it is—but the fact that we are expecting the same people—bureaucrats and politicians—who got us into the mess try to get us out.

Price controls haven't worked—but too many in Congress won't accept this fact because they have been committed too long to the idea that controls work. No amount of evidence to the contrary will change their minds.

So there will be a time when American-produced oil will be cheaper than foreign oil—but will there be any to buy?

Which leads to the question. Is it really in the American self interest to pay whatever price the foreign producers of oil demand, which we are doing in increasing amounts, and at the same time piously condemn American producers by trying to regulate them to the point where they won't make any more profit at all?

If the Congress spent more time trying to figure out ways and means to encourage domestic production at a fair profit and less time worrying about somebody making an extra nickel on a barrel of oil already produced, we might begin making strides toward getting out from under the ever-increasing dependence on imported oil.

This leads us to that second third of Congress which seems to be obsessed by the idea that any success by free enterprise reflects as a failure of government. These congressmen seem committed to protecting the government flanks first and solving the problem second.

The only hope is the third, that is sitting on its hands, might get off their duff and turn the thing around.

Someone has to do it. We are not going to solve the energy problem with a morass of government red tape aimed at making political hay or by government being the monkey on the back of the industry.

Taxing gas guzzlers, appeals to efficiency, rebate schemes, investigations, regulations, etc. are only compounding the basic problem—which is how do we make the most efficient and orderly transition from a petroleum-based society to an alternate fuel-based society?

It won't be painless, it won't be without some mistakes, and it won't be without some changes in our lifestyles.

But unless we act with boldness and some degree of faith in American ingenuity, we will still be nit-picking in the Congress as our economy slowly grinds to a stop.

The vested interest keeping us from solving the problem is not the big bad oil companies but a political philosophy that doesn't know where it is at, where it has been or where it is going. It only knows it is not going to do anything that might upset the status quo—which at this stage of the game is doing nothing in the loudest and most headline catching way you can.

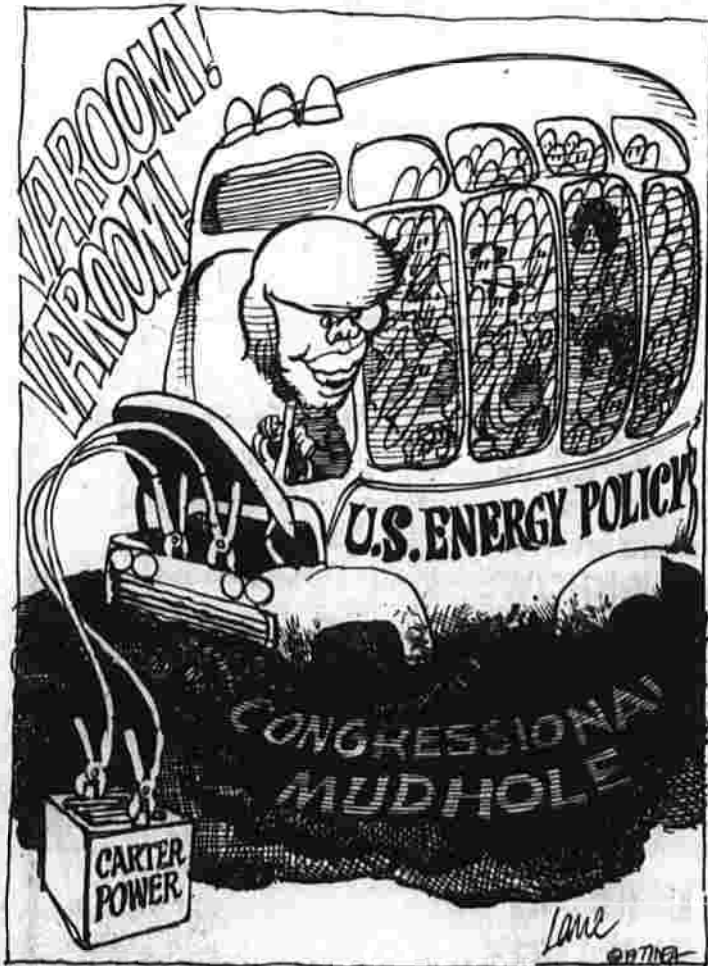

Trashing the language

Would you believe this bit of bureaucratism that is making the rounds from a report by a sewage treatment commission?

"The purpose of this report is to provide information as to the status of a major project by listing a summary of sub-project status for those sub-projects in the main project."

Nothing personal, but someone ought to send it back for secondary treatment.

"Now all we gotta do is drive out of here!"

Open forum Bottle bill struggle reviewed by advocate

To the editor: Bottle bill advocates, who have waged an intensive struggle to pass the measure for at least six years, came tantalizingly close in 1977.

The collection of grassroots groups supporting the bill is resting and regrouping for next year's fight. Now while the dust is still settling it is a good time to review this year's events.

What exhilaration to see the bill pass both houses of the General Assembly for the first time! Our legislature had finally responded to the wish of the public as reflected in the polls, most of which show support for the bill by a four-to-one margin. It was painful to see the bill finally die because of parliamentary maneuvering by a few skillful opponents.

Those of us who followed the going-on at the Capitol were amazed at the number of highly paid, imported industry lobbyists. They even came with their own proposal—the "anti-litter bill"—that would give the appearance of fighting litter but allow the industry to sell as many containers as before, wasting energy and natural resources, and filling up our shrinking landfill areas.

This summer, we should take time to thank our bottle bill friends and express our disappointment in those elected officials who let the public down. Area legislators who supported the bill are: Senator Barry, and Reps. Bertinsson, Cummings, Walsh, and Yacovone.

Those who opposed it are: Sens. Hannon and Houley, and Reps. Mahoney, Miller, Morgan, Moynihan, and Willard. Rep. Miller did, however, sign a petition to free the bill—her small contribution. Citizens should make it clear to their legislators that Connecticut is ready and waiting for the bottle bill, and we want the General Assembly to get down to business and pass it.

Glass recycling urged

This country, as everyone knows, is running out of everything. Yet we continue to waste. We could do so many little things and save our resources, reduce pollution and stop burning so much fuel.

A person concerned with pollution, saving energy and our landfill space could save their glass and do themselves, their children and the country a service.

Tomists with better recycling for cans can even do more. It is such a small sacrifice.

Derby sponsors commended

As parents of a Soap Box Derby participant, we would like to commend the Manchester Firemen, Local No. 1579, for sponsoring a superb race on Father's Day, June 19th. As a first time effort in 30 years, they should be commended for the hard work, time and effort put into this race.

Batching it can be expensive

WASHINGTON—Once again I find myself batching it in the ancestral manse while my live-in relatives whoop it up at a beachside pleasure dome, and once again I have discovered it is cheaper to eat out than

At home. I am weary of paying an airline pilot's ransom for a chunk of meat into which I must try to cook a little tenderness, meanwhile manufacturing a pile of dirty dishes that would drive the meekest KP to desertion. I find myself checking the savings account before committing my purse to a $5 strip of steak or an anemic chicken, and even think twice before picking up a head of Boston lettuce.

Not good enough. Jimmy Carter may think he's doing his best about inflation, but it is not good enough for us peasants whose coupon-clipping is confined to entering contests that guarantee the winner $1,000 a day for life.

To help the economy, I'm willing to make do with my 1972 model linen suit and clothe my feet in bits of rags, but eating well, often and lots is absolutely necessary to the health not only of my not uncommonly body but my psyche. Dish up three squares a day or I wither on the vine, and also go hungry.

Thoughts

The Pentateuch-Deuteronomy The Book of Deuteronomy consists of the final messages which Moses imparted to his people as he was nearing the end of his life.

The burden of these messages was that God had been good to them since He took them out of Egypt. He gave them civilizing laws by which to live as individuals and as a nation and He guided them safely during their forty years of wandering in the Sinai desert.

And if they will remain true to God and to His laws, they will prosper and live long on the land which they were about to enter.

"I call heaven and earth to witness this day, that I have set before you life and death, the blessing and the curse; therefore choose life, that you and your offspring may live; to love the Lord your God, to listen to His voice and to cleave to Him; for that is your life and the length of your days. (Deut. 30:19-20)

To choose life, to affirm it and to promote it is the eternal call to man. And the way to life is through the laws of humanity and morality which religion considers to be of Divine origin. The laws of truth, justice and love lead to life, to happiness and to peace.

Thus, for the remainder of my term in solitary I was switching to local hash houses because the financial strain is much easier even on the la carte side of the menu, and in some joints there is even the possibility of dancing girls leaping out of a pie. The grub in these bistros may not be distinguished, but it is edible, somebody else cooks it, and the crockery is not deposited in my kitchen sink.

Cafe society bum Of course, there is always the possibility I will become a cafe society bum and get my name in the chorus for associating with fun-loving swingers. If so, blame it on the economy, just like you blame the murder of several small children on the fact that their killer was depressed by the overflowing ash tray in his Cadillac. What is wrong with the economy is that we don't have a program for the relief of starving, working Americans. We are still feeling, for free, people all over the world on the grounds they continue to suffer from the ravages of assorted wars, earthquakes, famines and the like, so how about an item in the budget to provide some cheap chow for us peace-tron Yanks?

If the court pleases I grudge not the food bought for the real poor, but if the court pleases I submit a brief on behalf of the necktie salesman who is trying to send two boys to Yale and keep a chorus girl, while spending half his income on vittles.

People who work for a living get as angry as those who don't, although most of the professionally unemployed—especially those who somehow can afford plane fare to assorted gimme conventions—indicate they have considerably more blubber to nourish.

Time to abdicate Possibly it is time we abdicated our twin roles of at once saving the world and buying color TV sets, mesaline, and water beds for every brawny 22-year-old who can summon the strength to drop in on the neighborhood welfare office to sign up for the dote. That way, there might be enough food in the country to give supply an even break in its race with demand and an employed citizen could buy a pork chop without hocking the family fiatware.

As for me, don't call after 3:30 p.m. Come eventide, I'll be toying with a cullet from the family hearth by the holdup men at the Safeway.

Political justice as usual

By Martha Angle and Robert Walters WASHINGTON (NEA) — The furor over President Carter's recent dismissal of the U.S. Attorney in Michigan will fade to insignificance if the administration proceeds with its dubious plan to replace the federal prosecutor in New Jersey. During the past eight years, the U.S. attorney's office in that state had been headed by a trip of men of distinguished integrity and dedication to the prosecution of corrupt public officials and leaders of organized crime has been unmatched anywhere in the nation.

Power abused By tradition, senators of the president's party from a specific state are the most influential individuals in selecting a federal prosecutor from that state. And all too often senators have abused that power by making recommendations based not on merit but on friendship, past political support or bar association politics.

But after Republicans gained control of the White House in 1968, Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., one of the most distinguished and respected members of Congress, began a search for the best federal prosecutor he could find for his state.

Top choices He selected Frederick B. Lacey, who served as U.S. attorney until mid-1971 when he was elected to a judgeship on the U.S. District Court. Succeeding him was another man who satisfied Case's demand for outstanding qualifications, Herbert J. Stern.

Stern served until 1973, then also moved up to a federal judgeship. His equally capable successor was Jonathan L. Goldstein, the man who holds the job today.

The list of successful prosecutions initiated by Lacey, Stern and Goldstein reads like a who's who of the seamy side of New Jersey politics. Crime's who's who

Among them were Hugh J. Adonizio, a former congressman and mayor of Newark; Cornelius Gallagher, another congressman; John V. Kenney, the powerful political boss of Hudson County politics, and Thomas J. Whelan, the mayor of Jersey City.

Several members of Newark's city council, Hudson County's police chief, Atlantic City's mayor and dozens of public officials from smaller communities met a similar fate.

Most of those convicted were Democrats, but that's more a reflection of the source of most official corruption in New Jersey than the Republican involvement in the selection of the prosecutors.

GOP doesn't escape In fact, Lacey, Stern and Goldstein conducted investigations which led to the indictment of no less than three New Jersey secretaries of state, one of them a Republican. They also packed off to prison Nelson Gross, the state's Republican party chairman.

Now a Democrat is in the White House and the key man in the selection process is Sen. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J. He has sent the Justice Department a list of seven men, several of them with unimpressive backgrounds and none of them as distinguished as any of Case's choices.

All U.S. attorneys technically hold a four-year appointment, and Goldstein's term does not expire for another year. But the president has the power to summarily dismiss a federal prosecutor at any time.

Dismissed by Carter That's exactly what Carter did last month to Philip Van Dam, the U.S. attorney in Michigan, after he refused to submit his resignation to allow replacement by a Democrat.

During last year's campaign, Carter offered this firm pledge: "All federal judges and prosecutors should be appointed strictly on the basis of merit without any consideration of political aspect or influence. We can no longer afford to treat the administration of justice as political patronage."

We won Compare that lofty language with Attorney General Griffin Bell's explanation of why Van Dam was fired to make room for a Democrat: "We had an election last November and a Democrat won. You can use your imagination on that."

Independent observers suggest that Van Dam was good but not great, thus not worth a major fight to remind Carter of his campaign promise. But the administration's indefensible scheme to dump Goldstein could become a national cause celebre.

Cops in parks on motorcycles
 East Hartford Police Department's three motorcycle patrolmen rest for a moment on their machines in Martin Park off Burnside Ave. They are, left to right, Donald G. Marston Jr., Thomas McDermott and Mark J. Simmons. Chief Clarence Drumm said Marston's success last summer patrolling town parks on a motorcycle prompted the purchase of two more. McDermott said they are making friends with the park's most frequent users. Marston rides the department's older Harley Davidson motorcycle. The two new ones are smaller Yamahas, each costing nearly $1,000 and paid for through a Capitol Region Council of Governments (CROCG) program. (Herald photo by Barlow)

Wings of evening

Now he will find out Many prophets never have a chance to find out if their predictions are true. Some time ago Werner von Braun wrote:
 "Science...tells us that nothing in nature, not even the tiniest particle, can disappear without a trace. Nature does not know extinction, all it knows is transformation. And everything science has taught me...is that the universe is my belief in the continuity of our spiritual existence after death. Nothing disappears without a trace."
 (quoted in "Take Off your Shoes" — Mark Link, S.J.)
 Recently this famous scientist died. Now he will find out if what he believes is true.
 The value of discontent If you are discontented with yourself and with the life you are leading, do not be discouraged. Your discontent may be god-given. He may be urging you into another way of life. Phillips Brooks, the famous preacher wrote:
 "Bad will be the day for every man when he becomes absolutely contented with the life that he is living, with the thoughts that he is thinking, with the deeds that he is doing, when there is not forever beating at the doors of his soul some great desire to do something larger, which he knows that he was meant and made to do because he is still, in spite of all, the child of God."
 (quoted in the magazine "Alternative")
 The Rev. Clarence Macartney writes about one of his Presbyterian church officers who had been unsuccessful in his business enterprises. When he suddenly failed in one of them he reacted with these words:
 "I am glad that I failed, for I was getting away from God."
 The thorn in the flesh St. Paul has some physical problem. No one knows exactly what it was but scholars have guessed that it might have been blindness or epilepsy. He gives us one way to approach adversity in his second letter to the Corinthians:
 "And to keep me from being too elated by the abundance of revelations, a thorn was given me in the flesh, a messenger of Satan, to harass me, to keep me from becoming too elated. Three times I besought the Lord about this, that it should leave me; but he said to me, 'My grace is sufficient for you, for my power is made perfect in weakness.'" prayer meetings "violates their freedoms of religion, speech and assembly."

 Many of you are familiar with Joey Adams. Did you know that his adversary, He didn't deny it. It was a messenger from Satan. Second, he prayed about it, not once but three times. All that happens to us we can lift to our heavenly Father. Third, he used it in a positive way.
 Two women face tragedy I recall, years ago, reading about two mothers who lost their sons about the same time. Both loved their boys. Both prayed that they might live — but they died. One mother became bitter, shut herself up in her house, and withdrew from life in self-pity. The other grieved just as much, but she took the sunshine and she was her son's education, established a loan fund for the village, and enabled other young people to go to college.
 Adversity comes to all of us in some form. The depth of our faith will determine how we meet it.
 (2 Cor. 12:7-9)
 This text almost writes itself a sermon. First, Paul admitted his adversary. He didn't deny it. It was a messenger from Satan. Second, he prayed about it, not once but three times. All that happens to us we can lift to our heavenly Father. Third, he used it in a positive way.
 Two women face tragedy I recall, years ago, reading about two mothers who lost their sons about the same time. Both loved their boys. Both prayed that they might live — but they died. One mother became bitter, shut herself up in her house, and withdrew from life in self-pity. The other grieved just as much, but she took the sunshine and she was her son's education, established a loan fund for the village, and enabled other young people to go to college.
 Adversity comes to all of us in some form. The depth of our faith will determine how we meet it.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reggie Jackson, $350,000 per year superstar, sat on the bench while the Yankees opened a crucial set with the first-place Boston Red Sox Friday night. That's a very expensive way to keep a bench warm.

Reggie had his eyes dilated yesterday and he couldn't even read the numbers on the wall, said Billy Martin explaining why his moody slugger was benched.

Well, Reggie had no problem seeing the right field wall in the 11th inning when he almost knocked it down with an RBI single that gave the Yanks a come-from-behind, 6-5 victory over Boston. Jackson again played the silent scene in a happy Yankee dugout when reporters wanted to know why he didn't bat.

"If they (Martin and Paul) didn't tell you then I can't comment," he said with a shrug. "I've learned that much. If you'd live in my waters for a week you'd understand why."

In other games, Cleveland bopped Detroit 4-2. Milwaukee clipped Seattle 7-1. Minnesota edged Chicago 7-6. Toronto nipped Baltimore 5-4. Kansas City blanked Oakland 3-0 and Texas topped California 1-0 in 11 innings.

Andre Thornton raised his season batting average against Detroit to .444 and hit his fifth home run and drove in his 12th run when he hit the right field upper deck to tie the score.

Willie Randolph hit a fly ball to the left center that Carl Yastrzemski seemed to misplay into a triple. Roy Halladay bopped Detroit 4-2. Milwaukee clipped Seattle 7-1. Minnesota edged Chicago 7-6. Chris Evert 'froze' before latest win

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Chris Evert, the Florida tennis machine, is human after all.

The seemingly ice-cold queen of Wimbledon confessed Friday she "froze" when she faced her image of eight years ago in the shape of Tracy Austin, the 14-year-old Californian prodigy.

The 22-year-old defending champion beat Austin, 6-1, 6-1, to join six other Americans in the list of the women's singles in the Wimbledon Championships.

Austin, the youngest player to appear at Wimbledon in the 100-year history of the world's oldest tennis tournament, looked like Little Orphan Annie when she stepped onto the famous center court in front of a capacity crowd of 15,000 and watched eyes of millions of TV viewers.

"I was nervous to go on center court for the first time, but as soon as I started to play it was okay. I wish I could do it over," said Austin, who gave the champion a far more testing 40 minutes than the score would suggest.

She had the encouragement of winning the opening game, but once Evert settled into her rhythm, Austin's lack of experience proved fatal. Austin had four break points all told, but failed to break through on any of them in a match dotted with long rallies.

"I know she was very good. I was really impressed, particularly with her ground strokes," the champion said. "I was a little tough on my own because I really did not want to lose the match to Tracy. I was not just playing her — I was playing a lot of people."

In today's action, Jimmy Connors takes on Stan Smith in an all-American repeat of last year's fourth round clash which Connors won in straight sets.

On the eve of Sunday's Pocomo 500 mile auto race, both parties brandished verbal weapons over fiery issues.

Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Chris Evert, the Florida tennis machine, is human after all.

The seemingly ice-cold queen of Wimbledon confessed Friday she "froze" when she faced her image of eight years ago in the shape of Tracy Austin, the 14-year-old Californian prodigy.

The 22-year-old defending champion beat Austin, 6-1, 6-1, to join six other Americans in the list of the women's singles in the Wimbledon Championships.

Austin, the youngest player to appear at Wimbledon in the 100-year history of the world's oldest tennis tournament, looked like Little Orphan Annie when she stepped onto the famous center court in front of a capacity crowd of 15,000 and watched eyes of millions of TV viewers.

"I was nervous to go on center court for the first time, but as soon as I started to play it was okay. I wish I could do it over," said Austin, who gave the champion a far more testing 40 minutes than the score would suggest.

She had the encouragement of winning the opening game, but once Evert settled into her rhythm, Austin's lack of experience proved fatal. Austin had four break points all told, but failed to break through on any of them in a match dotted with long rallies.

"I know she was very good. I was really impressed, particularly with her ground strokes," the champion said. "I was a little tough on my own because I really did not want to lose the match to Tracy. I was not just playing her — I was playing a lot of people."

CHICAGO (UPI) — The champagne flowed in the Houston Aeros front office as the World Hockey Association might be merged into the National Hockey League in time for next season.

The details of the merger plan announced by newly elected NHL President, John Ziegler were inconsequential. Aeros Vice President Harrison Vickers said, "We will qualify for the Stanley Cup playoffs and our players will qualify for the NHL All-Star game."

Tentative okay given for more rental units

The Manchester Housing Authority has received tentative approval for an additional 22 rental units under the Section 8 federally subsidized housing program, according to Louise Hunter, administrator for the program.

Ms. Hunter said the authority applied for 25 units and recently received notice from the federal department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) with the tentative approval for 22 units.

The additional units, if approved, will add to the present 90 units that HUD subsidizes. Of the 90, 77 units are rented under the program, Ms. Hunter said.

She said there is a list of 177 applicants waiting for the housing subsidies, in both elderly and nonelderly categories.

The additional 22 units include 10 one-bedroom units, 5 two-bedroom units, 4 three-bedroom units, and 3 two-bedroom units in a building with an elevator.

Ms. Hunter explained that a separate category is needed for the units with an elevator because those apartments have a higher fair market rent. One apartment building with an elevator in Manchester has expressed interest in participating in the program, Ms. Hunter said.

The Housing Authority still has to submit more information required by HUD as well as make out the annual contribution contract, which will be a five-year contract with HUD for the program.

Ms. Hunter said she is not sure how long it will take to get final approval for the units.

Two murders baffle Connecticut police

Connecticut police today are baffled by the murders of eight-year-old Renee Freer in Monroe and a 36-year-old widow in nearby Shelton. Police said Friday an autopsy showed the youngest died from two massive blows to the head from a large rock. Her body, clothed in a blouse and shorts, was found by police in a wooded area near her home at 10:20 p.m. Wednesday night, about 3 1/2 hours after she was reported missing by her mother.

The girl, who lived with her mother and a younger brother, was a third grade student at the Stephy Elementary School, in Shelton. The body of Mrs. Janet McKenna, who lived alone, was found at 7:15 a.m. Thursday in the driveway of a residence on Shelton Avenue. Medical Examiner Dr. Oscar Rhoton said an autopsy showed she had been stabbed to death. The bodies were found about five miles apart but police said Friday there appeared to be no relationship between the slayings.

Miss Freer was last seen about 6:30 p.m. Wednesday night when she delivered home-grown strawberries to a neighbor. Her mother, Felicia Freer, told police she and neighbors began a search of the neighborhood about 8 p.m. then notified police about an hour later.

The blood-stained rock believed to be the murder weapon was turned up in a section of the area off Williams Drive and Patterson Road, and was sent to a police laboratory.

State police joined Monroe police and used bloodhounds to search the area for clues.

The discovery of Mrs. McKenna's body was reported to police by Shelton alderman Willard Nicholas, who operates a service station on Shelton Avenue. He said a customer who pulled in for gasoline saw the body directly across the street in the driveway.

Governors vote to close NERCOM office in Brussels

DIGBY, Nova Scotia (UPI) — New England governors have deferred voting on a resolution that would have supported a portion of the Carter administration energy plan deleted by the House Ways and Means committee last week.

The governors also voted Friday to close the Brussels office of the New England Regional Commission (NERCOM), saying the experiment in international trade promotion failed.

The commission voted, 4-1, to decide Monday on a resolution by Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso to urge the regional congressional caucus to seek reinstatement of a rebate on the crude oil equalization tax for home heating oil.

Maine Gov. James B. Longley asked for the deferment so he could consult his office of energy resources on the issue.

Vermont Gov. Richard Snelling opposed the both the deferred vote and the resolution because he said it singled out the Carter energy plan, instead of treating it as a whole.

Gov. Meltrim Thomson of New Hampshire, although not present for the vote, made his opposition to the resolution clear before leaving the meeting.

The NERCOM Brussels office, originally opened to attract European investment in New England, recently lost its director and is now operating chiefly as an information center, a NERCOM spokesman said.

NERCOM had been paying $120,000 a year to maintain the office. The governors voted to redistribute most of the savings to individual states to promote international trade.

They also voted to maintain their international trade office in New York, which study the possibility of adding staff to that office.

Slimastics for adults will be Tuesdays from 9 a.m. and is free to rec members.

Registration and classes are at 110 Cedar St., the West Side Rec building, Mel Sebald, director, said.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that most "plain" women seem to have the best marriages, and most outstanding beauties are divorced, married again, divorced again, and can't make a success of a marriage? Even with the advantage of having been born beautiful they can't seem to find happiness. Why is that?

WONDERING DEAR WONDERING: Believe it or not, natural beauty can be something of a handicap. Some beauties rely entirely on their "looks" to get them everything they want, and they neglect to develop the more durable and important qualities.

A girl may be able to "capture" a man with her beauty, indeed she can capture more than one, if she so desires. But unless she knows how to give him more than the pleasure of just looking at her, she won't keep him long.

DEAR ABBY: My best friend (I'll call her "Thelma") met a very handsome dealer in Las Vegas two years ago. (I'll call him "Ken.") Well, Thelma and Ken flipped for each other and have been practically living together ever since. Ken told Thelma from the start that he and his wife had been separated for about 10 years, but that she was Catholic and would never give him a divorce.

Thelma gave up all her friends and devoted all her time and attention to Ken, who gave her the best of everything. She had to devote two nights a week to his story about how he had to divorce his wife. So Thelma is all torn up because she has no longer wants to share Ken with this old friend. Is there a solution?

PUZZLED DEAR PUZZLED: I am puzzled as to why you are trying to help Thelma work out an audacious dilemma with a two-limiting dude like Ken. As I see it, all Ken lives for is his appetite for variety. So tell Thelma that she can't win in this game because Ken is holding all the ace, plus two queens. He's probably got the deck stacked and is dealing from the bottom, too.

DEAR ABBY: When I married my wife 10 years ago I had a moustache. I kept it for two years, and she never complained about it. Then I shaved it off, and she told me to please leave it off because she never liked it. Okay, so I left it off, but here's the problem: Every year I go through the same thing. It takes me three weeks to get my moustache grown out, and I wear it for a month because I want to be one of the guys and I enjoy it.

As soon as I start growing the moustache, my wife refuses to kiss me, love me or have anything to do with me as a husband. Well, seven weeks is a long time for a fun-loving healthy guy like me to go without a kiss. Any suggestions?

MISSING SOMETHING DEAR MISSING SOMETHING: I kept it for two years, and she never complained about it. Then I shaved it off, and she told me to please leave it off because she never liked it. Okay, so I left it off, but here's the problem: Every year I go through the same thing. It takes me three weeks to get my moustache grown out, and I wear it for a month because I want to be one of the guys and I enjoy it.

Win at Bridge

Cool play cinches 3NT

defense and any combination of adverse cards. East can't afford to win this first diamond because South can continue by leading a low diamond, ducking in dummy and winding up with four diamonds, three hearts and two spades.

So East must duck that first diamond. Now South has one diamond trick. He can abandon diamonds, go after clubs, and make three clubs, one diamond, two spades and three hearts.

Suppose diamonds break 3-1. South is now going to make four notrump. He will lead a second diamond and go after clubs after the defender with the ace of diamonds ducks, as he must.

By Donald & James Jacoby

South wins the heart lead and sees that his contract will be a cinch if diamonds don't break. What's even better is they won't even tell you.

Four hurt in crash

Four persons were treated and released from Manchester Memorial Hospital after the car in which they were riding on I-86 Friday about 8 p.m. struck a guard rail and rolled over.

The driver of the car, Lois F. Latina, of 270 Hill St., East Hartford, suffered bruises, according to state police at the Hartford barracks. The three children in the car received minor injuries. They were Catherine Foley, 7, of 266 Hill St., and Antonia Yost, 7, of 123 O'Connell Dr., both East Hartford, and Debra Lancaster, 10, Delphi Rd., Staffordville.

State police said the car was traveling west on I-86, east of exit 94, and struck a guard rail and hit nine posts before it rolled over. Cause of the accident was attributed to a steering linkage failure. The car was demolished. There were no charges.

Fire fighters from Manchester's Eighth District Fire Department and the Vernon Fire Department responded to the call. The Eighth District fire fighters removed the victims who were trapped in the car and applied first aid. The Vernon Fire Department ambulance transported the victims to the hospital.

She is Lauraine C. Page, charged with second-degree larceny, threatening, and fourth-degree larceny (attempted). She was processed at Manchester Police Headquarters and transported to the women's detention center in Hartford.

Police said O'Rourke was involved in a fight with an unknown male when they arrived. She was uncooperative and started to strike out at the police officer attempting to stop the fight. The two men tried to get involved in the incident, according to police.

All three were released on written promises to appear in court July 11.

Fluckiger was being held today on $5,000 surety bond for court in Rockville Monday.

East Hartford

Patricia J. Cosgrove, 30, of no certain address was arrested early today on a warrant charging her with third-degree larceny.

DEAR DICK: Could you tell me the ages of Charlie Rich and Doris Day? DEBBIE BORES, Stratford, Wis. Yes - Rich is 43 and Doris is 52. It is a curious combination, but that's your business.

DEAR DICK: What was the name of the TV show where the father got frozen in Alaska and when he thawed out he was younger than his own son and caused quite a few problems. MRS. JEANNE ANDERSON, Tuscaloosa, Ala. I can understand you forgetting that one - it was one of TV's most forgettable shows. The name was "The Second Hundred Years," starring Monte Markham and Arthur O'Connell.

DEAR DICK: Whatever happened to movie star Lizbeth Scott? I had heard she died many years ago. She was one of my favorites back in the '40s. B.C.T., Tucson, Ariz. Lizbeth is still living, but hasn't been active in show business in some years. I see her occasionally at Hollywood affairs and she still looks stunning.

DEAR DICK: Has there ever been a book written about Miss Jane Pittman (Cicely Tyson)? If so, where can I find one. Also is she still living? MRS. I.M. JACKSON, Corsicana, Tex. I'm not sure if you're referring to the character or the actress who played the part. The memorable TV film, "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," was based on a book by that title, written by Ernest J. Gaines. It was fiction, so Miss Pittman was never alive. Miss Tyson, who played the part, is still living, but there has not been a book about her.

New York precancels are explained

By RUSS MacKENDRICK

Here we see a "New York Pearl." It was made with a precanceling device that is found only on postage dues used in New York City. They are all on the Scott D1 design that came out in several values in the years 1879 and 1887.

The stamp is a regular-sized one shown enlarged here to get a good look at the "NY." It is not just like that, though; the N is upright but a cowpoke would say that the other letter is a Lazy Y. The stem of the Y can be seen at the right hand margin about midway between two pearls. The branches end at the middle of the zero in the "30."

This is the clearest example of the necklace, N and Lazy Y that was shown by Richard Hooper in his grand award exhibit at this spring's MANPEX. (A Historical Survey of Precancel Styles and Methods of Application).

The cancellation was evidently applied with a rubber roller. The pearls appear to be in an oval but it is believed that they were really circular and the design stretched out in the process of inking-in.

The July meeting of the New England Precancel and Stamp Club will be at Mott's Community Hall on Saturday, July 9, from 10 to 3. Visitors are welcome.

Precancels will rise again! In 1940 there were seven clubs in New England, and now just this one. Interest is picking up noticeably since many of the U.S. issues have gone out of sight and the same thing can be had in a precancel at a third the cost.

Many collectors start with getting all the precancels from their home town then expand to the whole state. Others try to track down items of history — research is continuing on the New York Pearls to get the whole story as to the designer, period of usage and so forth. And there are dozens of other avenues to explore in the precancel area.

The national organization is the Precancel Stamp Society Inc., 12045 Hickory Hills Court, Oakton, Va. 22124. Dues are $7 a year. They have a monthly publication, "The Precancel Forum."

Society officers

The Manchester Philatelic Society has elected the following members to office for the club year just beginning:

Francois Gamache of Willimantic, president; Harry C. Cion of Manchester, vice-president; Maurice Landry of Ellington, corresponding secretary; Richard Embser of Manchester, recording secretary; Walter Pollak of Rocky Hill, treasurer, and Mary B. Mullaney of Manchester, executive board.

Coming events

The second quarterly meeting of the Connecticut Postal History Society will be tomorrow at the Valley Railroad Museum in Essex. The Valley Railroad is a working museum where many of the historic trains of the area have been refurbished and are now in operation.

The members hope to hold their meeting in one of these — perhaps a railway mail car, where Mr. L.P. Leonard will speak on the transportation of mail by railroad. (An ex-railway mail clerk, one of the Goulds of Maine, started to write a book called "A Million Miles Standing Up," but was too tired to finish it).

The Valley Railroad Museum can be reached from Rt. 9 and I-95. It is on Rt. 153 at the junction of Rt. 9.

U.S. maker wants a CB trade tariff

By INK DIPPER

There may be a CB storm brewing.

So many CB units are manufactured in Japan that no one, even the industry experts, knows for sure what percentage of the total annual production is imported.

It is estimated that somewhere between 5 and 15 per cent of all CB units are made in this country. E.F. Johnson, one of the major manufacturers, accounts for the vast bulk of this production. Most other manufacturers either get all their units from the Orient or they import parts and assemble them here.

What has happened is this: Johnson's president, Richard Horner, wants to get relief for the domestic CB market from the flood of CB imports which the television manufacturers marketed several months ago.

Johnson has tried to get other CB makers to join him in filing an import-injury claim with the federal government. Reports from the trade indicate that even those who are semi-domestic producers won't join him.

Horner's contention is that, since there is no home market for CBs in Japan and that Customs Court rulings on countervailing duties do not apply to CBs, Section 201 of the Tariff Act, which makes it possible for the federal government to restrict trade, is the only realistic protection for manufacturers of CBs in the United States.

Horner hasn't been too successful in lining up support. Some have said they'd join in a limited way, but very few have made a wholehearted commitment. Motorola, too, produces all its units in the United States, as do some others, Hy-Gain uses imported parts and subassemblies for final production in its plants in Puerto Rico.

The main theme of the arguments against the filing is that the United States manufacturing process must be competitive with that of other countries, or arrive at some cost accommodation, such as importing.

As a CBER, it seems to me that the consumer is best served by competition, and least served when competition is restricted or lessened. Prices of CB units over the past few years have gone up and down like a yo-yo. When there was a shortage as millions of newcomers discovered Citizens Band radio, prices were superhigh. Then a lot of manufacturers jumped into the business, and, as their production increased, prices began to reflect this competitive environment.

Whether the unit comes from Japan or the United States should be of no consequence because the CBER benefits in many ways, in this CBER's view. His selection availability, as well as quality of the product is enforced and expanded through competition.

It will be interesting to see what happens should the Johnson effort get off the ground and the filing with the federal government become an actuality.

Some time in July or August, the FCC is planning to publish a consumer handbook entitled "How To Identify and Resolve Radio-Television Interference." The book will include color photographs of typical interference patterns and tell how to identify the various types. It will also list remedies.

The reason for the book is that the FCC had 80,000 complaints about interference last year, and most of them evidently were CB related. It expects to have more than 100,000 squawks this year.

Incidentally, along with this book, the FCC says it is proposing to issue CB rules "in plain English." That's got to be interesting, if it can be achieved, coming from a government agency."

Manchester High School's recent commencement activities will headline the third in a series of locally-produced news programs.

"Manchester Profile," a weekly newsmagazine sponsored by the Town of Manchester, is in its second summer season. "Profile" has already covered such events as the Manchester Community College graduation, I-291 informational sessions and the arts in Manchester.

Future programs will deal with vandalism, Recreation Department activities and local government and community issues.

Grasso to cut health care costs

HARTFORD (UPI) — A point program aimed at cutting billions of dollars in health care costs for consumers was proposed by Gov. Ella T. Grasso.

Mrs. Grasso, in remarks for delivery in Washington, said any program must rest on the shoulders of health care providers to force health care providers to control their skyrocketing costs.

She said the program "keyed toward using the vast resources of public dollars as creative alternatives to the health care system."

She spoke before the Leadership Conference on Health Care Costs and Quality of Care, which is a group's goal should be to
