

Lenti Farm findings challenged

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Jay J. Giles, Manchester's director of public works, has questioned some of the findings of an engineer who was hired by neighboring residents to study detention ponds in the proposed Lenti Farm tract subdivision. Giles also said that maintenance of the detention facility will cost the town at least $1,000 per year.

The four-page report was submitted to the Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) Monday night.

The 40-acre tract off Gardner St. is the proposed site for a planned 75-unit Residence AA Cluster subdivision.

The development has been proposed by Robert Stone and Jack Goldberg, but has drawn stiff opposition from surrounding residents.

The neighbors have said that the cluster zoning, which permits Residence A zone-size houses and lots, would be out of character with surrounding homes, which are zoned predominantly Residence AA.

Another major concern has been the two drainage detention ponds that would be located on the ten acres that the developers would deed to the town as open space under cluster zoning requirements.

A group of residents hired Wilson Alford, an engineer from Windsor, who raised questions about the design of the drainage facilities as planned by Griswold & Fuss. Alford said that the ponds were planned for a 25-year storm when most drainage areas are actually planned for a 100-year storm, a storm that in one year has a 1/100 of a chance of occurring.

Giles, however, said that the 25-year plan is in keeping with the town's Public Improvement Specifications and with the Department of Transportation requirements for watersheds of less than 1,000 acres. (The entire watershed area is 176 acres, Giles said.)

Alford also said that the earth berm for the dike would not survive the 100-year storm causing flooding problems.

But, Giles wrote, "In fact, the earth berm has been designed to act as a spillway capable of passing the difference in flow between the 25-year and 100-year storms without erosion."

One concern raised by residents was that the ponds would cause an increase in cost to the town because they would have to be maintained regularly. Giles asked for a study on this matter from Timothy O'Sullivan, highway superintendent.

O'Sullivan estimated the yearly cost at $4,900 per year, but Giles felt that some of the cost estimates in the report were high. He said that yearly maintenance costs would range between $1,000 and $2,000.

Giles also discounts a proposed alternative to the detention ponds—the installation of a larger drainage pipe from the subdivision. The pipe would be 72-inches, he said.

Giles said such a drainage setup "would create a potentially dangerous situation that does not exist with the proposed detention facilities."

Researchers find trampoline good exerciser for elderly

AMHERST, Mass. (UPI) — Bouncing on a small trampoline may be fun for kids, but it's also a good way for elderly people to exercise, according to a former Olympic athlete and exercise expert.

Gideon Ariel, founder and director of research of Computerized Biomechanical Analysis Inc., says the trampoline may be one of the best forms of exercise for the nation's growing numbers of elderly people.

A dream company

Ariel is an exercise scientist and his company analyzes human motion. "We're selling ideas. We're a dream company," he said.

"We just developed an exercise machine called a TRAMM for elderly people. There are 30 million people over 65 in this country who don't have a way to exercise. So we developed a machine that looks like a little trampoline that will prevent shock. You use the same amount of energy as you do when you run, but your heart rate doesn't go high," he said.

to exercise," said Ariel. "For example we can develop some equipment on a Disney World idea. Instead of riding ordinary weights, a child could open the Big Bad Wolf's mouth 10 times and a card would come out saying 'congratulations'."

"We can also take into consideration safety factors and evaluate what the potential for damage or injury is and modify the equipment before it ever arrives on the playground," said CBA President Ann Penny.

Another idea for children's exercise is to incorporate exercise with television video games.

"Who says the lazy games, like TV Ping Pong, have to be so easy?" said Ariel. "Why not combine an exercise device like a bike with one of the games? Say you decided to go to Sweden on the bike. There could be energy problems on the screen for you to overcome. You could have exercise with video feedback."

Power loss makes NYC a ghost town

NEW YORK (UPI) — A sudden power failure enveloped 9 million metropolitan citizens Wednesday night, sparking wholesale looting and turning the nation's largest city into a daylight ghost town.

The city was virtually shut down. More than 12 hours into the blackout, Con Edison, the main electrical utility, had restored service to only about 1,000,000 customers.

Con Edison estimated all service would be restored later today.

A weary Mayor Abraham Beame, citing "widespread looting," declared a state of emergency and urged citizens to stay home, conserve water, keep calm and await instructions.

Beame and Gov. Hugh Carey said there would be a special investigation of the blackout, the second since 1965 when a power failure blacked out the entire Northeast.

Beame told a news conference "it will not be possible to operate normal businesses" until power is restored.

Commerce was brought to a halt. Stock exchanges closed. Major businesses shut their doors. Subway and commuter systems were halted.

The city's streets, normally hectic and chaotic, were quiet. Tunnels were blocked, service stations could not pump gasoline.

Hospitals operated with emergency power. A baby born during the outage was nicknamed "darkness" by the nurses.

Under cover of dark, bands of thieves roamed city streets, completely clearing out stores, including gun shops. More than 2,000 people were arrested.

"You see people running down the street with cases of liquor, cartons of shoes," said Patrolman Louis Angelon.

He watched looters rip down a steel door of a gun shop in Brooklyn and carry off guns and ammunition.

"There was a mob of them," he said. "I heard shots."

Beame said "hundreds of looters and vandals have preyed" on the city's riot police patrolling the streets and repeated looting even after daybreak.

A spokesman for the city's 17 municipal hospitals said there was a "heavier concentration" of stabwounds and shootings during the night.

"I heard shots," he said.

Voluntary hospitals reported a similar increase in the treatment of victims of violent assault during the night.

The massive power failure hit the city at 9:34 p.m. Wednesday, when lightning struck a utility substation north of the city and knocked out power lines already overloaded on one of the hottest and muggiest days of the summer.

Beame blasted Consolidated Edison, the major power supplier, saying the utility had promised a power failure the magnitude of the one that blacked out the entire region.

Blackout events summarized

NEW YORK (UPI) — Following are some events leading to the blackout that darkened the nation's largest city.

Shortly before 9 p.m. a thunderstorm, moving eastward, entered Westchester, Rockland and Dutchess counties north of the city.

According to Charles Luce, chairman of the board of Con Edison — the utility responsible for supplying power to most of the region — shortly after 9 p.m. lightning struck a transmission line between utility substations in Millwood in Westchester County and Pleasant Valley in Dutchess County.

Bert Schwartz, Con Ed vice president for planning, said an automatic load shedder, a device installed after the blackout in November 1965, did not function.

He said the device can cut off up to 50 per cent of the power in the event of an overload.

But Schwartz said events proceeded so quickly the power network "shut itself down" before the system could be activated.

At 9:34 p.m., the lights went out.

Lightning and rain storm causes power outages

Lightning bolts accompanied by heavy rain caused power outages and some damage in Manchester and surrounding areas Wednesday night.

Shortly after 9 p.m., lightning struck a tree at 64 Wyllys St. The debris from the tree smashed through a cellar window at that address.

At 87 Wyllys St., the lightning blew a transformer and a line to a burglar alarm. There was some smoke.

High tension wires were downed on New Bolton Rd. to the Bolton town line.

The Eighth Utilities District Fire Department reported that the fire alarm on the firehouse roof was temporarily out of order because of a blown fuse.

In the state's central region, there were 25 main line outages resulting from the electric storm according to George Nelson, public relations representative of HELCO. Included were four in East Hartford and two in Manchester. The outages involved many private customers.

In East Hartford, wires were reported down on Maple St. and Arbutus St. The East Hartford Fire Department also reported some fire alarm malfunctions caused by the storm.

Nelson said that most of the electrical problems were cleared by 4:30 this morning except for a few individual problems. He said there were 15 crews out working to repair power failures.

HELCO began getting service calls about 8 a.m. Wednesday when the storm approached the Granby area, Nelson said. The calls increased as the storm moved southerly through the Hartford area.

There were about 300 telephone disturbances of which about 50 were cleared at or late this forenoon. These repairs were made mostly in the Manchester, Bolton and East Hartford areas, according to Merritt Cleaver, manager of the SNET office in Manchester. He said that about two-thirds of the telephone breakdowns are in the Rockville-Vernon area. One of the difficulties, he said, is that there are individual line troubles requiring individual house visits.

"We should have all service restored by Friday or Saturday," Cleaver said.

Traffic Services Bureau reports a decrease in vehicle accidents

Gary Wood, shows the decrease in motor vehicle accidents for May and June from the previous two years, but an increase for the month of April.

That fact may show even more the effects of the bureau, because both officers in the bureau at that time, Wood and Officer John Marvini, were at a training school for the month of April. The overall 6 per cent increase in accidents for the recent quarter may be attributed to that and also to the increase in major patrol areas from 9 to 14. Wood said. The overall area of work has also increased for the bureau from 32 per cent previously to 39 per cent for this quarter.

The report shows that Center St. is highest in the number of accidents with the areas of concern at its intersections with Broad St., Adams St., Love La., New St., and Church St.

Main St. was the second highest accident area in the past quarter at its intersections with Center St., Middle Tpke., N. Main and Park St. The third and fourth highest accident areas were W. Middle Tpke. and E. Center St.

The four areas contribute 60 per cent of the total accidents in the 14 high-accident areas, the report shows.

The total number of motor vehicle infractions arrests for the three-month period was 1,194 compared to 1,015 in 1976 for the same period. The 1976 reports were comparable with 500 for 1977 and 475 for 1976.

The total motor vehicle accidents for the recent quarter was 468, compared with 520 in the same period in 1976 and 523 in 1975.

Wood said at the traffic bureau.

Officer Gary Schwartz of the Manchester Police Department's Traffic Services Bureau points his radar speedgun at a passing motorist while on patrol Wednesday at one of the 14 high-accident areas on which the bureau concentrates. Schwartz is one of two new officers who were added to the special bureau which is funded by a state grant. Evaluations show that the number of accidents has been reduced considerably since the bureau started patrols in 1975 with two officers. The town has had three fatal accidents this year so far compared to 10 last year. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Festival to feature ethnic life styles

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — John Henry Nobles got his nickname back in 1911 when he picked up some ribs bones of a cow and started making music.

Now "Bones" Nobles is a regular at Mama's Worry, a tavern in Beaumont, where he plays the bones behind such old-time blues and folk singers as Sonny Boy Williams and Gatemouth Brown.

Nobles was 9 years old in 1916 when his preacher father moved from Georgia to Texas. Already he was a master of the bones.

"It was a fad," the 75-year-old Nobles said, "Just like yo-yos for later generations and skateboards today. Back then, parents couldn't afford to buy toys, so we just made do with what we had."

Calvin Smith, director of Lamar University's Spindletop Museum, said Nobles playing bones for a group of children back in 1975 and it was inevitable he would wind up at the Texas Folklife Festival.

Bones will be among 5,000 Texans throughout the state, who will perform at the giant festival Aug. 4-7 on a 13-acre site at HemisFair near downtown San Antonio. Nobles stands the oddity of bone playing. Nobles stands little chance of stealing the show as the festival gets bigger and better every year.

The folklife festival, in its sixth year, combines representatives of the 30 ethnic groups that settled Texas, and their food, music, art and dancing are samplings of all the state's other major festivals, artisans and craftsmen.

Officials are predicting a record 80,000 persons will tour the festival this year to listen to German oompah music, Mexican mariachis and Cajun bands; sing gospel songs under a brush arbor; watch Russian Cossack dancers; or munch Lebanese tabouleh (health salad), Czech kobniskies (sausage rolls), Swiss quiche (cheese pie), Polish chlodnik (cold soup), barbecue, jam pie and homemade ice cream.

"We try to make sure that every folklife festival participant is representative of the very best in the field that can be secured, whether it is traditional or modern," said executive director Jack Maguire of the Institute of Texan Cultures-sponsored festival. "The festival should help visitors know Texas a little better and, perhaps, love it a little more."

For those who have never been to Quintana, Texas and imagine there is nothing there but horses, oil and cowboys, a Shell oil well pump near there seems to confirm what is imagined. A.A. Glueck and J.W. Worley decorated the pump arm with a plywood horse's head and a cowboy on top. When the pump arm moves, the cowboy's arms swing to and fro and he rocks in the three-foot-long ears. ### Saccharin sales proposal clears Senate committee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Human Resources Committee Wednesday approved a bill blocking the Food and Drug Administration from implementing its proposed ban on saccharin sales for 18 months.

The bill approved Wednesday would require all products containing saccharin to carry a label reading: "Warning. This product contains saccharin which causes cancer in animals. Use of this product may increase your risk of developing cancer."

The Senate bill is stricter than a measure pending in House committee that imposes the same 18-month moratorium on the saccharin ban but carries no requirement for warning labels or restrictions on advertising.

The legislation would block that action unless new test evidence during the 18-month period shows saccharin to cause a substantial risk to public health.

The bill, passed 11 to 3, now goes to the Senate Commerce Committee which has agreed to act on it by July 27 and move it to the floor for consideration. The Commerce Committee's review will deal only with proposed restrictions on print and broadcast advertising of saccharin products during the ban period.

A cheap shot

Some misguided members of the House of Representatives took what appears to be a cheap shot the other day at Vietnam veterans whose less-than-honorable discharges are being reconsidered by presidential decree.

By a margin of 2 to 1 (273 to 136), the House approved a motion by Rep. Robin L. Beard, R-Tenn., to withhold all GI benefits from the thousands of veterans whose "undesirable" discharges are being upgraded on a case-by-case basis.

The move to deny benefits is attached to a bill dealing primarily with housing and therefore has a good chance of being dropped from the final legislation. Some of those who voted for it probably did so knowing this would happen.

But that doesn't make the action any more acceptable. To begin with, the upgrading of discharge papers after wars is not an unusual practice. Men who received bad conduct or dishonorable discharges, or committed crimes of violence in the service, are not being considered.

The presidential order gives special preference, in fact, to men who were wounded in action, decorated for valor or served honorably in Vietnam before getting into trouble with drugs or drinking or some other personal or family problem.

One of the House members who had the political courage to defend these veterans was Rep. John P. Murtha, D-Pa., who was twice wounded in Vietnam as a Marine major 10 years ago.

"I think if we pass the amendment," said Murtha, "we are slapping the man in the face who has served in combat, been wounded in combat and is going to have his discharge upgraded."

"I do not know that there is one other person in this House that has served with the ground forces in Vietnam and saw the tragedy and suffering these young fellows went through, while everybody back here in this Congress were in their air-conditioned offices telling these soldiers what to do."

Don't buy the Brooklyn Bridge without a title

WASHINGTON — Way back in 1972, Richard Nixon went to Communist China. There emerged from his trip the Shanghai Communiqué. Nixon tried and failed to get Premier Chou En-lai to promise in that document that Red China would never use force to "liberate" Taiwan.

Since then, Nixon, President Carter and practically everybody but the State Department janitors have emphasized that the U.S. is bound by treaty to guarantee Taiwan's freedom.

Deal in the making
At a recent press conference, however, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance again committed the Carter administration to seek "full normalization" of relations with Peking. That would seem impossible in view of Red China's refusal to renounce the possibility of using force to seize Taiwan. But a deal may be in the making, so it is instructive to review a little recent history.

Treaty cited
Candidate Carter, on Oct. 6, 1976: "We are bound by a treaty to guarantee the freedom of Taiwan. I wouldn't go back on the commitment that we have had to assure that Taiwan is protected from military takeover."
Secretary Vance, Feb. 3, 1977: "I believe that normalization of relations with the People's (Red) Republic of China should be our ultimate goal. I further believe that we must also consider the issue of the security of the people of Taiwan."
Chi Teng-kuei, vice premier and member of the CPC Politburo of Communist China, May 15, 1977: "China will not normalize relations with the United States unless it has a free hand to take over Taiwan by 'military liberation' if necessary. The Chinese position is based on three conditions. First, withdrawal of American troops from Taiwan; second, abolition of the U.S.-Taiwan defense treaty; and third, an absolute break in U.S.-Taiwan diplomatic relations."
Carter again
President Carter, May 12, 1977: "We have espoused, and I have renewed my commitment to the Shanghai Communiqué, which says there's just one China — we didn't say which one and neither did anyone else... We don't want the Taiwanese people punished or attacked..."

How do we do it?
So how does the U.S. go about normalizing relations with Peking? Given Vance's determination, on Carter's behalf, to do so, and his hope that there will be "a peaceful settlement of the Taiwan question by the Chinese themselves," the Carter administration seems to be proceeding in the belief that we don't need an official Peking promise not to invade Taiwan.

Or, as one Vance aide put it: "You know, a lot of those warlike statements uttered by Communist leaders are just blather, for domestic consumption."

That sounds like Richard Nixon in his second interview with David Frost aired on May 12, 1977. Nixon was asked if he had a tacit assurance that Red Chinese would never use force on the issue of Taiwan.

No assurance
"Oh no, I would not say that we had," Nixon replied. "We certainly did not have an express assurance... (so) I would say I did not feel we had a tacit assurance. But, China's internal problems are so great, and the external threat, that they face in the Soviet Union is so immediate... the Chinese do not want to become involved in military action even on an issue as sensitive as Taiwan."
In short, don't worry, folks. Even if Peking keeps threatening to take over Taiwan by force, American leaders assume it will never do so. I hope they're right, but I have always refused to buy the Brooklyn Bridge from anybody who told me I didn't need a title thereto.

The Herald is seeking to encourage reader viewpoints on current issues and in inaugurating a new feature called Springboard for discussion.

Periodically, a topic of interest will be selected and readers are invited to comment on it. After a reasonable time to respond, those received will be published on the Editorial Page.

The first topic will be: Should the South United Methodist Church use its property for the site of a church-sponsored, federally funded, retirement center? Readers should keep their comments to 250 words or less in order to permit as many people as possible to express their views. The editors reserve the right to edit any letters.

Comments should be directed to the issue selected, and personalities should not be discussed. Letters must be signed and carry an address.

The deadline for letters to this Springboard for discussion topic is noon Monday, July 18. Responses are scheduled for publication Wednesday, July 20.

Doctor is key to cutting medical costs

WASHINGTON — Connecticut, a pioneer in attacking the problem of soaring medical expenses, discovered the difficulty involved after it clamped a budget increase lid of 8.3 per cent on the state's 35 nonprofit hospitals in 1975.

"During this period," explained Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso at a national cost-control conference here recently, "Connecticut Blue Cross filed rate increase proposals in excess of 15 per cent and other insurers sought similar large increases."

"The (state health cost control) commission found that actual hospital revenues increased in 1975 by 15.8 per cent — almost double the budget spending increases which had been approved by the commission. In other words, the commission had succeeded in controlling hospital spending, but not hospital revenues — the number of services performed and the prices paid for them."

A loophole
Connecticut's hospitals drove a money truck through the loophole, generating $17 million in excess revenues not authorized by the commission. The major cause was special services such as x-rays, drugs and laboratory work — some of which went 100 per cent over budget.

The medical costs challenge in Connecticut — where hospital patient revenues have increased five times since 1965 — is a microcosm of the challenge facing the entire country. Ninety per cent of hospital bills in the U.S. are paid by third parties — private insurance firms, Medicaid, and Medicare. Studies strongly indicate that this system, which encourages surgery and other curative treatment rather than prevention, and in-patient rather than ambulatory care, is enormously wasteful.

Empty hospital beds
"One hundred thousand empty and unnecessary hospital beds in organize health resources more effectively, distribute health care benefits more equitably, emphasize prevention and primary care, and establish a fair and effective system of national health insurance."

The potential benefits of such fundamental changes in the nation's health care priorities are well-documented. In Illinois, for example, the average daily charge for out-patient services is $33.56 compared $121 for in-patient care.

Four hospitals in Philadelphia succeeded in cutting stays as much as 13 days by discharging patients to home under limited professional care. In Boston, a comprehensive health care program for the poor, in just two years, cut total in-patient admissions to Boston City hospital by 84 per cent.

For such encouraging cost-cutting steps to become widespread, however, it is clear that a huge selling job will have to be done on the nation's private medical community — as well as on many citizens who are accustomed to ordering costly services with no heed to the insurance-paid expense.

The physician remains the key to America's health care jigsaw puzzle. Operating in a virtually non-competitive market, he is the one who tells the patient what medical tests, medications, surgery, or other care is required and where it will be administered. HEW's Callifano estimates the physician is the "central decision-maker" for more than 70 per cent of such services.

Federal officials also estimate that each physician brings a lifetime demand of some $9 million on the U.S. health system, including the multiplier effect of his activities.

Given their pivotal role in the health care system, there is no doubt that the enlightened cooperation of America's physicians is essential if the nation is to find its way through the medical costs maze.

Scripps League Newspapers 1977

Lee Roderick

America cost the consumer at least $2 billion every year," charges Jerry Wurf, president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. "That amounts to an average $75 extra tacked onto every patient's bill. The evidence is clear that, as hospital beds multiply, doctors in the nation are cutting stays as much as 13 days by discharging patients to home under limited professional care. In Boston, a comprehensive health care program for the poor, in just two years, cut total in-patient admissions to Boston City hospital by 84 per cent."

Reclamation is a big hit

By Martha Angle and Robert Walters
WASHINGTON — (NEA) — After a decade of nationwide handwringing over desertion of the environment, senseless waste of limited energy reserves and depletion of valuable natural resources, there finally is some good news to report.

It comes from the aluminum industry, which has established a little noticed but highly successful reclamation and recycling program that already is producing an ecological and economic bonanza.

Lots of cans
According to the Aluminum Association, the industry last year recovered more than 4.8 billion used beer and soft drink cans — a figure which represents at least 25 per cent of the entire 1976 output.

Moreover, the success of the program during the past 10 years indicates that the industry may soon be able to recover and recycle 50 to 60 per cent of its annual can production.

In California and Texas, the reclamation rate already has reached 40 per cent.

That's more than just a trade association claim. Even the environmentalists who have been most critical of waste and inefficiency in the packaging industry now acknowledge that the aluminum manufacturers have attained a significant level of resource recycling.

Promising performance
"The economics of recycling aluminum do seem to be somewhat promising," one tough-minded environmentalist admits. "We still think that the refillable bottle makes better over-all sense, but the aluminum people have made more progress than expected."

One particularly significant aspect of the program is that it relies heavily on citizens to gather and bring to collection centers the empty cans as well as lawn furniture frames, house siding, pots and pans, pie plates and other aluminum products.

835 million
Housewives, school children, civic clubs, church groups and other participants are paid 17 cents a pound. Last year, about $35 million was paid out by the nation's three principal aluminum producers — Aluminum Company of America, Reynolds Metals and Kaiser Aluminum & Chemicals.

The growth of the reclamation program has been truly phenomenal. The first recycling center was opened by Reynolds in early 1967 at a Miami, Fla., location. Five years later there were 675 locations in 31 states.

Today there are more than 2,300 reclamation points scattered throughout all 50 states, ranging from beer distributors' warehouses to shopping center parking lots. The number of cans recovered has soared at a similar rate.

Profitable
Last year, 313 million pounds of aluminum were reclaimed by the industry — enough to produce the

Higher education figures

Educators talk dimly about the financial woes of colleges and universities, but the latest figures on the subject seem not to support their complaints.

The National Center for Education Statistics in Washington reports the number of colleges, universities and branch campuses increased from 3,056 to 3,075 during the school year just ended.

The number of public colleges increased by 13. The number of private colleges — many of which are said to be struggling — increased by seven. Which seems to show that higher education may not be quite as anemic as we've been led to believe.

Zeroing in on aliens

The latest warning against illegal aliens comes from Zero Population Growth, a group that hopes to end population growth in this country by the year 2008.

ZPG points out that unless something is done there will be an additional 25 million illegal aliens in the United States by the year 2000 and additional 55 million by the year 2025.

There are differences of opinion, of course, on whether ZPG's no-growth goals are realistic, or even desirable. But there's not much doubt that illegal immigration is a serious social and economic problem.

It's a problem that won't be solved until Congress and the Carter administration find some way to prevent illegal aliens — many of them Mexicans — from crossing the border and going to work for American companies without challenge or restrictions of any kind.

Gardening

By Frank Atwood

Lilies have been blooming beautifully and bountifully in the hot weather of early July and one of the most spectacular lilies I have ever seen grew at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hills.

Mrs. Hills and I identified it as a regal lily. Mr. Hills concurring after we had read a description in a book on exotic plants. The lily matched the details in the book, point after point. There was the tall, straight stem, which has to be sturdy to bear the weight of a splendid bouquet of trumpet-shaped blossoms.

There were the gleaming white petals, curved back at the tip, with a yellow throat and bright gold anthers. The buds, before they opened, were pink to a pale purple and these shades held over on the outside of the opened petals.

There could be said the book, from 3 to 15 blossoms. This lily, at the peak of bloom, had 12 buds and blossoms, although a few of the first flowers to open had faded and had been removed before we took the picture. Short, narrow green leaves matched the printed description. The book said the lily would be fragrant, and it was.

We learned, also, that the regal lily originated in western China and that it is reliably hardy in our climate. Mrs. Hills has had her lily several years and it grows a new stem and puts out more flowers each summer from the large bulb under the ground. The lily was a gift to Mrs. Hills from her next door neighbor, Mrs. Thomas Olander.

Plant in fall
To start lilies in your garden or to give lilies to a friend, wait until fall, the recommended time for planting. Some mail order houses send bulbs to arrive at the best time for the variety chosen. With the right choice of varieties, it is possible to have lilies in bloom from June until early September.

We had reports from home gardeners at more than one location in town that Easter lily bulbs, set outdoors after they had been purchased at a florist shop for bloom in the house at Easter, have blossomed nicely. Mrs. William Leone of Timrod Rd. showed me an Easter lily in bloom for the second year outdoors. It had six white trumpets on a single stalk. Another Easter lily, set out this year after the leaves had died back, showed a tuft of new green growth just coming through the ground.

Mrs. Vernon Greene of Henry St. showed us a lily on a heavy six-foot stem that had seven open trumpets and five buds. The identifying label had disappeared sometime in the three years the lily has been in the garden but it seems to be a close relative of the regal, with the characteristic wheel of blossoms on a tall stalk. It grows taller and has more blossoms every year, Mrs. Greene said.

She had other lilies growing on shorter stems, one pink, one red and one yellow.

Mrs. Greene called attention to the house finches and house sparrows coming to one or another of the five bird feeders she keeps supplied all year round and gave the birds full credit for keeping her yard and garden free of beetles. Four of the feeders offer sunflower seeds and the fifth one a mixed bird feed for the sparrows.

Gave iris for church sale
Mr. and Mrs. Hills are both gardeners. Mr. Hills is responsible for the vegetables and Mrs. Hills for flowers. Mrs. Hills has recently dug her iris roots and set out some new ones after giving her harvested roots to be sold in a bazaar at St. Bridget Church. There were five bushels of roots and stems, she said. Flower colors were pink, blue, purple, bronze, white and peach.
Her roses, shasta daisies and forget-me-nots were making a good showing and she is watching the progress of a new thistle, from Vermont, given her by a relative. It is a cultivated plant that will bloom soon with ball-shaped blue blossoms. The spines are not as fierce as those on our wild thistles.

Mr. Hills, retired three years as coordinator at the Travelers data processing center in Windsor, had onion sets nearly ready for harvest, tomatoes starting to bear fruit, green beans to be ready in a few days, and sweet corn three weeks from harvest. He is experimenting this year with cucumber vines planted where they can climb a fence. Cabbages are starting to form heads.
Both Mr. and Mrs. Hills said they have cut the size of their gardens as a concession to retirement and have fewer square feet to cultivate and weed, but more lawn grass to mow.

Officials to enforce tag sale sign rules

Ernest Macell, Manchester's zoning enforcement officer, said Wednesday that he will be strictly enforcing town regulations governing signs for tag sales and roadside stands.
Macell said that town regulations permit one sign on the property of the site of a tag sale. Signs erected on the side of the road, on telephone poles, or at other off-site areas are not permitted, he said.
Those signs that are posted frequently stay up for several weeks after the sale has ended, he said. Anyone seeking to post more than one sign for a tag sale must go to the Zoning Board of Appeals.
Macell also said that town regulations permit one family to conduct tag sales for only five days per year.
He also discussed the signs for roadside stands.

Bigger payout urged

WETHERSFIELD (UPI) — A member of the state gaming commission said Wednesday the payoff in the daily lottery should be increased. Also, the commission voted to require all licensees to disclose their ownership more fully.

He expects the addition of two officers working at staggered hours from 6 a.m. to 3 a.m. daily, to have an even greater impact.
The bureau is now able to cover the high-accident time from 7 p.m. to 3 a.m. with the concentration on the accidents in which "under the influence of alcohol" is identified as a contributing factor. The bureau hours were expanded specifically to include an hour after the bars close, according to Dep. Chief Richard Sartor.

Chowchilla: One year later

By WILLIAM P. COLEMAN
CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (UPI) — Two girls and a boy got off the school bus near their farm homes and Ed Ray closes the doors and pulls back onto the two-lane road.
The scorching sun, moving toward the western horizon, casts shimmering reflections on the road as several boys in the back of the bus roughhouse and two girls whisper and giggle in their seat near the front.
It is a typical home from summer school run on Ray's bus, just like the one he will run the next day.
Bring back memory
The only thing to distinguish this run is the memory it brings back of one year ago Friday when a similar trip began an ordeal which captured national attention and left an everlasting mark on the lives of Ray and 28 children and their families.
It was July 15, 1976, and Ray had dropped off 14 of his 40 passengers when three masked men armed with rifles and pistols forced his bus to stop in the middle of the road. They forced Ray to drive the bus into a gully and then loaded him and the 26 children, ranging in age from 5 to 14, into three vans.
30-hour ordeal
That began one of the most bizarre kidnappings in recent memory and a 30-hour ordeal for Ray, the children, their families and law enforcement officers throughout Central and Northern California.
Ray and the children were driven 100 miles north and then entombed in a moving van buried in a rock quarry near Livermore, Calif., a San Francisco suburb.
They spent 16 hours in the buried van before Ray and two of the older children managed to dig their way out and lead the other children to safety.
Three suspects
The three suspects, brothers James and Richard Schoenfeld and Fred Newsham, Woods, all of whom live in the San Francisco Bay area, are still awaiting trial in Oakland, where the case was transferred because of its massive publicity.
"I don't think about it much any more," Ray said. "Once in a while it comes to mind but not often anymore."
A quiet, shy man who looks younger than his 56 years, says he con-

Main-N. Main walk light adjusted

Police Chief Robert Laman has announced that a walk light at Main and N. Main Sts. has been adjusted to allow senior citizens at the Mayfair Gardens elderly housing project longer time to cross the intersection. The residents had complained that the existing walk light time was not sufficient for them to cross the busy intersection. Some of the seniors had started crossing N. Main where there was not a crosswalk, Laman noted, which is a dangerous practice. He also said the children seeing the adults do this makes them think it is all right to cross away from the intersection. The Department of Transportation authorized the change in the walk light cycle time. A meeting has also been scheduled next Tuesday at 12:30 p.m. in the Community Center to explain the new system to the residents. Phyllis Laman, registered nurse in the Manchester Public Health Nursing Association and James McCoop, community relations officer for the police department, will speak to the seniors.

Health plan coming

The program was explained in Ellington last night at a meeting of the Health Systems Agency (HSA) of Subarea E, by Bernard Crowley, executive director of the North Central Connecticut HMO. It's assurance instead of insurance," he said. He described HMOs to be a viable alternative and so far, the only alternative to purchasing and receiving care in the "disorganized health care delivery service we now have." Persons belonging to HMO would sign a contract which would be legal and binding. A charge of about $80 a month would be what a person would pay for a family plan and there would also be simple and double plans for an individual or man and wife. The proposed program would start with 4 1/2 physicians scheduled to work 32 1/2 hours. There would be doctors on call on weekends. The grant from HEW would end the day the doors of the facility open, HMO must price itself competitively so income meets expenses. The plan has the support of the Greater Hartford Labor Council, several other union groups, the State of Connecticut, Aetna Insurance Co., Southern New England Telephone Co., the City of Hartford, Hartford Federation of Teachers and the Connecticut Federation of Teachers, Connecticut Nursing Association, Gerber Scientific and many other large employers. The 27,000-square foot facility will accommodate more than 18,000 subscribers. This is a figure that is considered the break-even point. In essence, HMOs are formed to provide those who are dissatisfied with the existing system with an alternative method of purchasing and receiving medical and health care services for themselves and their dependents," Coleman said. He admitted that such a program is not suitable for everyone. He said one of the disadvantages is that it tends to restrict the patients' free choice of a physician and hospital. He added, however, that the program does give assurance of emergency services when they are needed; immediate selection and access to a family physician on the primary care team; the availability of specialists; lab and treatment services in one location; and 24-hour, seven-day-a-week coverage.

Cummings criticizes GOP leader's charges

Theodore Cummings, Manchester's Democratic Chairman, has criticized Republican Town Chairman Thomas Ferguson for making "sensational but unsubstantiated charges" against Democratic Director Phyllis Jackson. Cummings also said that the Democratic party has refrained from making similar charges in the past when "Republicans or their friends in sensitive positions have gone before our zoning boards." He criticized the local Republicans for muckraking. Cummings also said that the Democratic executive committee met Wednesday night to continue review of candidates for November. One of those who met with Cummings was Mrs. Jackson, he said. Cummings said that the committee and Mrs. Jackson had a "candid" discussion but, no final decisions were reached on her or any other potential candidate, he said.

Police chief defends town-paid luncheons

Robert D. Laman, the Town of Manchester's Chief of Police, Wednesday defended his department in its practice of sometimes charging lunches to the town. The practice is permitted when town business is conducted at a lunch, but Town Manager Robert B. Weiss said in a memorandum to department heads suggesting that some savings might be made in luncheon and other expenses that are billed to the town. A study of lunch vouchers in the treasurer's office showed that the Police Department had more such expenses than any other department.

Police chief defends town-paid luncheons

The fact was verified by two employees of the treasurer's office. The department, for instance, spent $268.61 in two major areas residents during 1975-76 fiscal year. "We calculate more business over lunch than any other department," Laman said. He said that other town officials, such as Weiss and Controller Thomas S. Moore, at some watchdogs over such expenses and would inform him of any problems. Weiss said that his letter to department heads was not aimed at any one department, but as a general budget-inflating procedure.

Area chamber won't move

Instead of moving its office from Lafayette Square (Rt. 30), the board of directors of the Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce decided Wednesday to see if signs can be put up for identification. The recommendation to move the office to a store front location was made by a board member, Folicman William Yetz, who had made a survey of business people at Vernon Circle, in the center of Rockville, and along Rt. 83. He said most people didn't know where the chamber office is. He said the move would bring in new members. At Wednesday's meeting, Steve Diana, who studied the proposal, said the reason for it was to increase the visibility of the chamber, which serves Vernon, Tolland and Ellington. He suggested the board consider asking the owner of the building housing the existing office to allow erection of a sign. Board member Daniel Wright also suggested that signs of identification and direction be put at Vernon Circle and other highway exits. Joseph Capposella, another board member, said that wherever the of-

South Windsor

Board of Education member Marion Morrissette, a Democrat, has said she will not seek re-election in the fall. Mrs. Morrissette, a professional artist, said she wants to devote more time to her painting, which she said has suffered because of the many hours she has devoted to the school board. "I love being on the board," she said, "but I love painting more. I gave two years and now I would like to get back to what I really want."

Mrs. Morrissette was elected to her first term two years ago. She polled more votes than any other candidate for the Board of Education. Immediately after the election, she was nominated for board chairman. She withdrew her name, however, saying she was not experienced enough to fill the position. Later during the term she was elected vice-chairman.

Rezonating approved - The South Windsor Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) has approved rezoning on nine acres on Pleasant Valley Rd., allowing smaller lots on the property. One of the owners, Grace Case, said the zone change was requested to allow the sale of two 100-foot lots. The remainder of the land was leased to a farmer and there are no plans to build, she said. The property, owned by Alfredo Case, Grace Case and Porter Blinn, is near Tudor Hill Rd. and Northwidge Dr.

Some residents opposed the change, contending that the area was becoming too congested. Also approved by the PZC this week was a rezoning of 19 lots on Chapel Rd. The rezoning allows developer Jean Jacques to begin the third (and final) phase of the Chapel Hill subdivision. Tim Wentzell was granted permission to keep horses on 4.3 acres of farmland on Governor's Highway, allowing him to build a barn and fences around the property. Scholars named - Two South Windsor youths who graduated from high school this year are among eight Greater Hartford high school students who have been named Capital Area Scholars by Trinity College, Hartford. Donato Rattazzi, son of Mr. and Mrs. Linwood W. Oberg, plans to major in mathematics at Trinity. He managed the basketball team for three years and wrote for the school newspaper. He was also a member of the National Honor Society and served in the Model United Nations program for two years. He was also on the high school math team. Eric John Woodard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Trewhella, was captain of the varsity football team in his senior year and also ran varsity track. He was a member of the school's swim team and served on the Student Council and was a member of the National Honor Society. Recipients of the scholarships, worth a total of $125,000, will receive financial aid over the four years of college.

Dems hear platform ideas

Coventry

Coventry Democratic Town Chairman Richard Cromie has suggested that his party carry a platform plan in the upcoming municipal elections to "support a 10-year program to have the town take over maintenance of all roads."

He said the program could be financed through an increase in the tax rate. State Rep. Robert Walsh supported the suggestion, but wondered about the town's liability if it maintained private roads. Town Councilman Jack Myles said there are about 100 miles of town-owned roads and that the proposition would add another 30 miles. Former Town Council Chairman Ross Fowler speculated that such a program would cost the town "tens of thousands of dollars."

assistance to the Coventry Industrial Park on Rt. 31, which is owned by a private corporation. Member Daniel Manley protested that it would be a misuse of public funds to enhance the economic status of a few stockholders. Walsh said other towns were using public money to benefit the private sector, "which also benefits the community at large." A motion by George Bolduc to strike this as a Democratic stand was defeated. Cromie also advocated hiring a full-time recreation director for the town. He said his recommendations were preliminary to the formation of a platform committee for the fall election.

New tests show inn water okay

Water from the well at the Alpha-Omega Inn on Bolton Lake is "perfect and has absolutely nothing wrong with it," Calvin Hutchinson, sanitarian, said he spoke with Dr. Benjamin Cozenza, operator of Coe Laboratory in Storrs, who tested a sample of the water taken Tuesday. Cozenza is certified by the state to do water analysis. Hutchinson said three more water samples were taken Wednesday from the inn and brought to Coe Laboratory for more extensive testing.

Hutchinson said in talking to Dr. Cozenza he learned if a water sample is taken after a rainfall, it would very likely show a high bacteria count. Cozenza said water samples should not be taken for several days after a rain. Cozenza told Hutchinson as soon as there is a period without rain, he will take samples of the lake water and do extensive tests on it for the Alpha-Omega Inn. Hutchinson will take samples from various locations around the lake and bring them to the state Department of Health for testing. Samples of water taken from both the lake and the inn, taken June 30, were tested by the state Department of Health and were declared unsafe for bathing and drinking. Hutchinson took the water samples properly was raised. The reason why the water samples taken June 30 showed a high bacteria count has baffled everyone involved. Hutchinson said the question of whether or not people should be swimming in the lake is unanswerable at this time.

Lake people want hearing

Atty. Daniel Harris of Vernon Tld.

Bolton, has asked the state Liquor Control Commission to schedule a hearing so complaints against the Alpha-Omega Inn may be registered formally. Harris said three individuals have observed the sale and consumption of beer outside the building, Harris said he and three other Bolton Lake residents are preparing to testify to noise generated from concerts at the inn. Harris said, "I would appreciate swift action in order to enjoy the remainder of the summer in peace." A date for the hearing has not yet been set. Town Atty. Jerome Walsh told the Board of Selectmen it would be best to complain to the liquor commission about the sale of alcoholic beverages. He said, "If their license conditions the sale of beverages within the confines of the building, the sale of such beverages outside the building could be handled by that agency as a violation."

Walsh said several steps could be

Bolton board was busy

The Board of Selectmen Tuesday heard Calvin Hutchinson need help with his work, a report on the condition of town roads and a repair schedule, settled a disagreement between the town treasurer and superintendent of schools, received a request for adoption of a noise ordinance, and took action on several other matters.

Hutchinson, who is assessor, building inspector and sanitarian, said, "We just need some help, as simple as that." Hutchinson said the best solution would be for the town to hire a part-time sanitarian to help with the work. He said clerical help is also needed. The selectmen will investigate the matter. School Supt. Raymond Allen attended the meeting to request the town treasurer submit a report to the school board on a monthly basis. He said his office now receives a report every three months and it's very confusing. Treasurer Catherine Peterson said the special accounts are forwarded and hooked and they are the only ones with balances. She said other revenues are for bookkeeping purposes only.

Mrs. Peterson said state statutes do not require a monthly report, but the school business office could get one anytime it wanted to. Ryba said the board would hear and consider the ordinance. The selectmen went into executive session to discuss appointments. After the executive session, Carl Press was appointed to the Board of Fire Commissioners and Linda Chamberlain to the Board of Library Directors.

Rattazzi said a Town Meeting of Sept. 24, 1949, "voted that the roads located in the North Cemetery, Center Cemetery and Bolton Elementary School yard are hereby included as part of the town highway system." The selectmen discussed the fact the cemetery roads are not included in the town receives state aid for, but it appeared no one ever applied for the funds. The selectmen will investigate the matter. Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: You told COULD there is no such thing as a "frigid" man. This is true in too many cases. But, Abby, please note that this is a conclusion reached only after other possibilities are ruled out.

DEAR SHIRIN: Generalizations are dangerous and unfair I admit, but my mail tells me that only men found fault with this generalization. Women write in great numbers to applaud my reply. For example:

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to COULD BE was short but truly soul-satisfying. "No frigid-dear" - only clumsy men!

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing in reference to SHOCKED, whose soon-to-be-married daughter informed her family that she should please telephone before coming over.

DEAR ABBY: There's no reason to be interrupted by the telephone, either. Take the phone of the book until it's convenient for YOU to answer.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing in reference to SHOCKED, whose soon-to-be-married daughter informed her family that she should please telephone before coming over.

Lisa Abell participating in cross-country tour

Lisa Abell, 14, of 25 Butler Rd., is a member of United Synagogue Youth (USY) which is sponsoring a cross-country summer tour.

Six husbands of young people and chaperones departed from New York City on June 27 to begin their journey on the USY on Wheels program.

They will travel for about six weeks through the United States, Canada and Mexico. While en route, the USYers pray three times a day, observe Shabbat, and Kashrut, and participate in daily study sessions.

Their itinerary includes cities like Montreal, Chicago,

Colorado Springs, and New Orleans. Visits to national parks include Mt. Rushmore, Yellowstone, Grand Canyon and Yosemite. Disneyland is also on the itinerary.

Sometimes the travelers will be accommodated and hosted by various Jewish communities where they stay with the families of local Conservative Congregations.

Lisa is in the ninth grade at Manchester High School and attends Temple Beth Shalom.

Porno bill signed

HARTFORD (UPI)—Involving minors in the production of pornography in Connecticut after Oct. 1 will be punishable by 20 years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso signed the bill, which also sets the same maximum penalty for parents who allow their children to be used in pornographic ventures.

The legislation, part of a national drive to eliminate so-called kiddie porn, would make such acts a felony and would apply to children under 18 years of age.

The legislation does not affect the distribution of such pornography, only its production in Connecticut.

New plan for health is coming

By BARBARA RICHMOND

On July 25 at 7 p.m. in the East Hartford Town Hall, plans for a Health Maintenance Organization (HMO) for East Hartford, Manchester and 14 other area towns will be explained.

If all plans follow through, the proposed 27,000-square foot facility to carry out the program will be built in East Hartford on land on Ash St. in the Connecticut Blvd. redevelopment area.

An application will be filed with the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) for a loan of more than $1 million to get the program under way. HEW defines HMO as an organized system of health care, providing comprehensive services for enrolled members for a fixed, prepaid annual fee.

The program was explained in Ellington last night at a meeting of the Health Systems Agency (HSA) of Subarea E, by Bernard Crowley, executive director of the North Central Connecticut HMO.

Six hospitals would be involved in the consortium—Mt. Sinai, St. Francis, Hartford, New Britain, Manchester Memorial and the Institute of Living, Rockville General would not be in it.

John R. Coleman of Vernon, consumer representative of HSA's Subarea E, presented a position paper at last night's Ellington meeting.

While noting that the HMO idea is not new, Coleman said it wasn't until 1971 that the federal government provided legislation and financial support for the organization. It was in 1973 that the HMO Act was signed into law to provide technical expertise and monies to form 400 to 500 HMOs by 1979.

Coleman said now there are about 180 such organizations in operation.

"In essence, HMOs are formed to provide those who are dissatisfied with the existing system with an alternative method of purchasing and receiving medical and health care services for themselves and their dependents," Coleman said.

He admitted that such a program isn't suitable for everyone. He said one of the disadvantages is that it tends to restrict the patients' free choice of a physician and hospital.

He added, however, that the program does give assurance of emergency services when they are needed; immediate selection and access to a family physician on the primary care team; the availability of specialists; lab and treatment services in one location, and 24-hour, seven-day-a-week coverage.

"It's insurance instead of insurance," he said.

He described HMOs to be a viable alternative and so far, the only alternative to purchasing and receiving care from the "disorganized health care delivery services we now have."

Persons belonging to HMO would sign a contract which would be legal and binding. A charge of about $60 a month would be what a person would pay for a family plan and there would also be single and double plans for an individual or man and wife.

The proposed program would start with 4½ physicians scheduled to work 2½ hours. There would be doctors on call on weekends.

The grant from HEW would end the day the doors of the facility open. HMO must price itself competitively so income meets expenses.

The plan has the support of the Greater Hartford Labor Council, several other union groups, the State of Connecticut, Aetna Insurance Co., Southern New England Telephone Co., the City of Hartford, Hartford Federation of Teachers and the Connecticut Federation of Teachers, Connecticut Nursing Association, Gerber Scientific and many other large employers.

The 27,000-square foot facility will accommodate more than 18,000 subscribers. This is the figure that is considered the break-even point.

If plans move along without any snags, the facility could be in operation by December 1978.

Do residents understand zone rules?

By SHEILA TULLER
Herald Correspondent

Do you own a utility shed? Many East Hartford residents do, to store garden tools, lawnmowers or lawn furniture. Did you know such sheds must be placed according to East Hartford's zoning regulations?

Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) Chairman Walter Forrest said 90 per cent of these sheds are properly placed. But how many East Hartford residents know there is a zoning regulation specifying where these sheds can be?

In its effort to simplify zoning regulations for homeowners and have a tighter rein on business, the PZC met Wednesday night to discuss possible areas of change.

The discussion and suggestions made are intended to give direction to Town Planner David Juliano and a zoning consultant, William Donahue, who is collecting data on zoning during July and August to prepare for rewriting the regulations.

Concerns of PZC member Dominic Scipione are zoning in the Silver Lane area from Forbes St. to Clement Rd. and the Prospect St. area from Governor St. to the railroad crossing north of Orchard St. Before the commission makes any zone change in the Prospect St. area, Juliano suggested waiting until the planned highway is built.

PZC member Irene Cagney suggested changing the zoning on the north side of Chapel St. to coincide with Connecticut Blvd. zoning from Main St. to Ward St. She said most of the property owners on the south side of the Boulevard own the Chapel St. land.

"Both should be in the same zone," she said.

PZC members agreed clarification of all definitions is a must.

There was lengthy discussion concerning special permits for locations and sizes of restaurants which sell alcoholic beverages.

PZC member Anthony Kaiser proposed classifying restaurants by putting those with more than 3,000 square feet in one class and those with less than 3,000 square feet in another class. Kaiser would waive the distance requirement for the larger restaurants.

PZC member Jack Davis said he fears the PZC would be saying "big is better," when small eating places can offer fine food.

"We have to make the regulations equitable," he said.

Miss Cagney urged the commission to look to the future and include regulations concerning solar heat. It was also suggested that regulations be written restricting any building that would cut the sun off from a neighbor.

The PZC members said they recognize there can be inequities in the regulations. They want to find a way to rewrite these regulations.

The PZC's ideas were turned over to Juliano and Donahue this morning.

Davis said, "We're saying, 'here are our problems.' We're looking for advice and possibly better ideas (from the consultant)."

Area chamber won't move

Instead of moving its office from Lafayette Square (Rt. 20), the board of directors of the Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce decided Wednesday to see if signs can be put up for identification.

The recommendation to move the office to a store front location was made by a board member, Policeman William Yetz, who had made a survey of business people at Vernon Circle, in the center of Rockville, and along Rt. 83. He said most people didn't know where the chamber office is. He said the move would bring in new members.

At Wednesday's meeting Steve Dana, who studied the proposal, said the reason for it was to increase the visibility of the chamber, which serves Vernon, Tolland and Ellington.

He suggested the board consider asking the owner of the building housing the existing office to allow erection of a sign.

Board member Daniel Wright also suggested that signs of identification and direction be put at Vernon Circle and other highway exits.

Joseph Coppola, a board member, said that wherever the of-

New tests show inn water okay

Bolton Water from the well at the Alpha-Omega Inn on Bolton Lake is "perfect and has absolutely nothing wrong with it,"

Calvin Hutchinson, sanitarian, said he spoke with Dr. Benjamin Cosenza, operator of Coe Laboratory in Storrs, who tested a sample of the water taken Tuesday. Cosenza is certified by the state to do water analysis.

Hutchinson said three more water samples were taken Wednesday from the inn and brought to Coe Laboratory for more extensive testing.

Hutchinson said in talking to Dr. Cosenza he learned if a water sample was taken after a rainfall, it would show a high bacteria count. Cosenza said water samples should not be taken for several days after a rainfall.

Cosenza told Hutchinson as soon as there is a period without rain, he will take samples of the lake water and do extensive tests on it for the Alpha-Omega Inn.

Hutchinson will take samples from various locations around the lake and bring them to the state Department of Health for testing.

Samples of water taken from both the lake and the inn, taken June 30, were tested by the state Department of Health and were declared unsafe for bathing and drinking.

The question of whether or not Hutchinson took the water samples properly was raised.

The reason why the water samples taken June 30 showed a high bacteria count has baffled everyone involved.

Hutchinson said the question of whether or not people should be swimming in the lake is unanswerable at this time.

South Windsor
Board of Education member Marjorie Morissette, a Democrat, has said she will not seek re-election in the fall.

Mrs. Morissette, a professional artist, said she wants to devote more time to her painting, which she has suffered because of the many hours she has devoted to the school board.

"I love being on the board," she said, "but I love painting more. I gave two years and now I would like to get back to what I really want."

Mrs. Morissette was elected to her first term two years ago and polled more votes than any other candidate for the Board of Education.

Immediately after the election, she was nominated for board chairman. She withdrew her name, however, saying she was not experienced enough to fill the position. Later

Building values up

South Windsor
June was an active building month in South Windsor, with a total building permit value of $1,290,920 compared to $447,500 recorded for the same month last year.

Seventeen dwellings were recorded, compared to houses valued at $346,000 a year ago.

Dems hear platform ideas

Coventry
Coventry Democratic Town Chairman Richard Cromie has suggested that his party carry a platform plank in the upcoming municipal elections to support a 10-year program to have the town take over maintenance of all roads.

He said the program could be financed through an increase in the tax rate. State Rep. Robert Walsh supported the suggestion, but wondered about the town's liability if it maintained private roads.

Town Councilman Jack Myles said there are about 100 miles of town-owned roads and that the proposition would add another 30 miles.

Former Town Council Chairman Rose Fowler speculated that such a program would cost the town "hundreds of thousands of dollars."

Cromie also proposed that Democrats support state and federal

Lake people want hearing

Bolton
Atty. Daniel Harris of Vernon Rd., Bolton, has asked the state Liquor Control Commission to schedule a hearing so complaints against the Alpha-Omega Inn may be registered formally.

Harris said three individuals have heard the sale and consumption of beer outside the building. Harris said he and three other Bolton Lake residents are prepared to testify to noise generated from concerts at the inn.

Harris said, "I would appreciate swift action in order to enjoy the remainder of the summer in peace."

The plaintiffs are asking for zoning regulations amended and adoption of a municipal noise regulation.

Owners of the Alpha-Omega Inn were summoned to appear in Tolland County Superior Court this morning to answer complaints by several Bolton Lake area residents.

The plaintiffs are asking for a temporary and permanent injunction prohibiting the loud noise and controlling the conduct of customers when they leave the premises. They also seek $50,000 in damages.

Town Atty. Jerome Walsh told the Board of Selectmen it would be best to complain to the liquor commission about the sale of alcoholic beverages outside the building. Harris said he and three other Bolton Lake residents are prepared to testify to noise generated from concerts at the inn.

Harris said, "I would appreciate

Bolton board was busy

The Board of Selectmen Tuesday afternoon in the town's office building, with his work, a report on the condition of town roads and a repair schedule, settled a disagreement between the town treasurer and superintendent of schools, received a request for adoption of a noise ordinance, and took action on several other matters.

Hutchinson, who is assessor, building inspector and sanitarian, said, "We just need some help, it's as simple as that." Hutchinson said the best solution would be for the town to hire a part-time sanitarian to help with the work load. He said the elementary school yard area needs to be resurfaced, and that the school business office on a monthly basis. He said his office now receives reports every three months and it's very confusing.

Treasurer Catherine Peterson said the special accounts are forwarded immediately and they are the only ones with balances. She said other revenues are for bookkeeping purposes only.

Ms. Peterson said state statutes do not require a monthly report, but the school business office could get one anytime it wanted to.

Allen said his office doesn't need time to go after a report.

Selectman Aloysius Ahearn said the selectmen hope the different town offices can work amicably.

Selectmen don't want any bickering, he said.

The selectmen asked the treasurer submit a monthly report to the school business office. First Selectman Henry Ryba opposed the motion.

Ryba said he hoped feeling from previous boards were not being carried over to this one. "I hope with the new board things will be smoother, easier and on a friendly basis," he said.

Mrs. Peterson agreed to submit a monthly report even when there wasn't anything to report, but she told the selectmen it was not in agreement with Mr. Allen, not mine."

The selectmen will refer the matter to the Board of Finance.

Allen asked the selectmen to name a co-signer of checks in case of an emergency in the absence of the treasurer. The same request has been turned down in the past.

Mrs. Peterson said she believed the reason the request was turned down in the past was because of the cost of the bond for such a person. Allen admitted there have been no great emergencies to date. The selectmen took no action on the matter.

Daniel Harris presented the selectmen with a copy of a noise ordinance adopted by the Town of Farmington. Harris said the people on Bolton Lake are "troubled with a noisy neighbor," the Alpha-Omega Inn.

Ryba said the board would review and consider the ordinance.

"The selectmen went into executive session to discuss appointments. After the executive session, Carl Preuss was appointed to the Board of Fire Commissioners and Linda Chamberlain to the Board of Library Directors.

The Board of Selectmen will meet tonight at 7:30 at the Community Hall to continue its business.

Moriarty's takes Little League title

Turning on the power in the third inning, National League champs Moriarty Bros. captured the 1977 Town Little League Tournament title last night with a 3-2 Duke over Army & Navy at Leber Field.

Moriarty's went through tourney play unbeaten in three starts while after two outs, John Hedlund worked out a full count base on balls and Jeff Popik, who belted a home run in the opening game of the tournament, slugged No. 2, a two-run shot over the leftfield fence for a 2-1 lead.

Tim Fessler reached on a three-base error and catcher Bob Andrea drove him home with what proved to be the winning marker.

All-Star pitching selected

NEW YORK (UPI) — Frank Tanana of the California Angels and Mark Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers were named to the American League's All-Star pitching staff today, even though Manager Billy Martin acknowledged neither may see action in the game.

Tanana, a 12-game winner, and Fidrych, the rookie sensation and American League All-Star game starting pitcher in 1976, are suffering from arm and shoulder ailments and are unlikely to pitch in Tuesday's game.

Named to the staff along with Tanana and Fidrych were Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles, Vida Blue of the Oakland A's, Bill Campbell of the Boston Red Sox, Dave LaRoche of the California Angels, Jim Kery of the Cleveland Indians and Spark Lyle of Martin's New York Yankees.

Among the prominent pitchers missing from the staff is Nolan Ryan of the Angels, who is tied for the American League lead with 12 victories and leads the circuit with 222 strikeouts.

"I want an American League win and I'm going to play in the game," said Martin, when asked about the apparent unavailability of Tanana and Fidrych.

Manager Sparky Anderson of the National League selected an eight-man pitching staff which includes All-Star veterans Tom Seaver of the Cincinnati Reds, Don Sutton of the Los Angeles Dodgers, and Steve Carlton of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Also named to the NL staff were Joaquin Andujar of the Houston Astros, John Candelaria of the Pittsburgh Pirates, Bruce Sutter and Rick Reusch of the Chicago Cubs and Gary Lavelle of the San Francisco Giants.

Hobson's roundtripper paces Red Sox victory

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Boston sportsbook says "Butch" holds one of the keys to the Red Sox' success in 1977—and he showed it Wednesday night.

Butch Hobson, the 25-year-old Boston third baseman, banged out four hits—including a three-run homer into the upper deck in left field with two out in the 10th inning, to spark the Red Sox to a 9-7 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Also supplying the long ball for the hard-hitting Red Sox, who now have hit three homers in one game on 16 occasions this season, was designated hitter Jim Rice. He drove in four runs with his 22nd and 23rd homers of the season.

"It was the first hit I ever got off Jim Kern," said Hobson. "It was a pitch down and in, but my greatest satisfaction comes from the fact that the Red Sox won the game.

"If the pitch was a little higher, I wouldn't have hit it," added Hobson, who is hitting .326 on his current nine-game batting streak.
