Heat wave apparition?

High temperatures often cause mirages in the deserts, but this cheerful pink rabbit proved to be Brian Doughty of 224 Chester St., East Hartford, who created a bit of stir in Center Park during the recent heat wave. Why? "Why not," Doughty said. (Herald photo by Dunn)

Nine die in home fire

PROSPECT (UPI) — A mother and eight children, some of them bound and gagged, were found dead early today after a fire believed to have been set destroyed a ranch-type house in this Waterbury suburb.

Police said the dead included Mrs. Cheryl Beaudoin, 29, and seven of her children, ranging in age from 4 to 12. The other victim was a cousin who was spending the night with the family.

The father, Fred Beaudoin, was at his job at the Pratt and Whitney Co. plant in North Haven. State police said he was notified at 5:30 a.m. The bodies were found inside the home on Rte. 88 after firemen fought the blaze for half an hour. They said the doors and windows were locked.

A spokesman for the state police said they were considering the fire and deaths as "a criminal act."

Authorities indicated the blaze was set and firemen said the secluded, six room, red clapboard home — hidden by tall pine trees — was engulfed in flames when they arrived.

The Beaudoin children were identified as Fred Jr., 12, who was to begin a newspaper route today; Sharon, 10; Debbie, 9; Paul, 8; Rod, 6; Holly, 5; Marilyn, 4. Also dead were their 6-year-old cousin, Jennifer Santoro.

The victims were pronounced dead at the scene by Connecticut Chief Medical Examiner Dr. Elliott Gross. State Police Commissioner Edward Leonard was on hand.

Police declined to say how many of the children were bound and gagged and the bodies were sent to the University of Connecticut Medical Center at Farmington for autopsies. Neighbors said they smelled smoke about 4 a.m. but said because Beaudoin was in the habit of burning rubbish, they first thought it might be just that.

Screams from the 15-year-old hillside house, however, alerted neighbors who phoned authorities. A neighbor, Mrs. Joseph Paolino, reported the fire to the state police barracks at Bethany at 4:13 a.m.

The Prospect Fire Department rushed to the scene along with several state troopers. Bethany firemen were also summoned.

A neighbor, Frank Bainer, was asleep when his wife woke him up saying she smelled smoke. "It was blowing through the bedroom window and at first I thought it was our house on fire."

Referring to fire fighters, Bainer said the blaze had too much headway for them to do much about it. "They just couldn't do anything. There was too much smoke."

The couple lived at the home for 11 years and were well liked by neighbors. The Beaudoin children were described as very popular in the neighborhood. "They were all good kids," Bainer said.

The father bought some of the younger kids a small pool on Thursday because of the heat wave and Mrs. Bainer said the family was all looking forward to going to Maine in the next couple of days. "It was the first time they had a camper and could go away for a vacation."

Mrs. Beaudoin acted as a babysitter for Linda Peterson and cared for her two children on Thursday as usual. "She was very loving to the kids. She was always doing things for others. She was really a wonderful person," said Mrs. Peterson.

Thunderstorm causes outages

A Thursday evening thunderstorm, accompanied by high winds, resulted in a break in the weather as well as the loss of power for over 1,500 Manchester residents.

The Hartford Electric Light Co. reported 18 outages in its central area resulting in the loss of power to 1,822 customers. George Nelson of HELCO said:

But, most of the loss of service was caused by one outage in Manchester, he said. A total of 1,570 Manchester customers lost service because of the one outage.

The affected area included Hawthorne St., Broad St., and Center St., he said. The first power outage was reported at 5:30 p.m. and all service was restored by 9 p.m., Nelson said.

Three other small outages occurred in Manchester and one was reported in Bolton, Nelson said. All of these affected only a few customers, he said.

The Eighth Utilities District Fire Department reported one problem with a tree branch that fell on a power line on W. Middle Tpk. and caused a power outage for some area residents.

A spokesman for the Southern New England Telephone Co. said that there were few problems in Manchester, but 45 customers in Rockville reported service troubles.

Greater Hartford CATV had one of its lines on New State Rd. blown down. The problem was quickly repaired, a company spokesman said. The firm also had a power supply at Main and Middle Tpk. knocked out because of the loss of electrical service. The company used a gas generator to return its service about 25 minutes after the power was lost.

The National Weather Service at Bradley Field in Windsor Locks reported a drop in temperature from 101 degrees at 5 p.m. to 75 degrees at 5:45 p.m.

One-inch hail was reported in Middletown, and the winds uprooted a 75-foot tall tree in Mansfield.

The Connecticut Valley Power Exchange said it had had an all-time high demand Thursday for electricity.

The demand for air conditioning and dehumidifying should drop off this weekend, The National Weather Service said that a cold front moving in from the west along with high pressure and refreshing Canadian air will bring pleasant weather through the weekend.

Carter visits offshore oil rig

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — President Carter, buoyed by an affectionate outpouring in his native South, flew by helicopter today to an oil rig off the shore of Louisiana to underscore efforts to ease the energy shortage.

Carter arrived at New Orleans International Airport at 9 a.m. EDT after spending the night in Yazoo City, Miss., where he answered questions for 90 minutes at the sweltering town meeting on subjects ranging from abortion to the Panama Canal.

The President was greeted by Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards, who invited him to Louisiana, and a host of other state political leaders, including New Orleans Mayor Moon Landreth.

The helicopter carried Carter to the Zapala Yorktown oil rig about 10 miles off the coast, winding up his two-day swing through the South that began Thursday afternoon with a major foreign policy speech in Charleston, S.C.

Carter spent Thursday night at the home of retired Baptist leader Owen Cooper, an old friend and former board chairman of the Mississippi Chemical Co.

Press Secretary Jody Powell explained Carter wanted to illustrate the fact that "contrary to all the full-page ads the oil companies have placed in the newspapers, there is a considerable interest in new production in the national energy plan."

Hence the visit to the oil rig 88 miles into the Gulf of Mexico off the Louisiana coast.

Carter flew to Charleston, S.C., Thursday and hit the deck running. It was as if he were back on the campaign trail. He shook hands with hundreds of fans at airports in both Charleston and Jackson, Miss., before traveling to Yazoo City.

Babies were kissed, mothers were hugged and Carter seemed propelled by a momentum of good will in meeting with the folks he felt had put him in the White House.

But it all wasn't folksy. He delivered a major address on U.S.-Soviet policy to the Southern Legislative Conference in Charleston. He said he picked the audience deliberately because Southerners did not only want to hear "about highway programs and revenue sharing," but foreign policy as well.

In the address, Carter showed the Soviet Union both the carrot and stick.

He said the United States seeks a "genuine accommodation" with the Soviets, and some of the Soviet press attacks appeared to be based on "a misconception of our motives (so) we will redouble our efforts to make them clear."

Washington (UPI) — Congress, facing pressure to satisfy the nation's energy appetite with coal, has acted on behalf of the biggest victims of coal mining — men and mountains.

Legislation requiring strip mining operations to restore gouged landscapes "in an environmentally acceptable fashion" was passed by the House Thursday and sent to President Carter. Carter promised to sign the measure, which would require mining companies to return landscapes to approximate original contours once mining ceases.

The legislation was handed out on Capitol Hill for seven years and similar measures twice were vetoed by Gerald Ford.

The Senate, meanwhile, acted on legislation affecting benefits for underground miners afflicted with black lung disease. In a reversal, the

New strip mining bill is passed

Senate decided to continue permitting the government to review X-rays submitted by coal miners seeking federal benefits — a technical provision denying miners automatic benefits.

The House Rules Committee cleared its own version of the measure which allows automatic federal benefits without government experts second guessing miners who claim they have the disease.

President Carter opposes automatic benefits and moves were expected on the House floor to delete the provision.

In a related energy development, the ad hoc House Energy Committee agreed to give Carter more leeway in applying a tax on crude oil. The legislation, when it emerged from the House Ways and Means Committee, specifically exempted some new wells from the federal tax.

CINCINNATI — The Kroger Co. grocery chain disputes a Federal Trade Commission charge that it is conducting a deceptive and misleading advertising campaign called the "Kroger Price Patrol."

Judge Simon S. Cohen scheduled a hearing in Waterbury Superior Court to hear prosecutor Francis McDonald argue for permission to appeal the acquittal.

Cohen, calling himself the "13th juror," said Wednesday there was not enough evidence to support the jury's verdict that Avcolle was guilty of intentional murder in the death of his wife of 21 years, Mrs. Wanda Avcolle. She died Oct. 30, 1975.

Connecticut law requires a judge to give his permission before the state can appeal a ruling.

Cohen Thursday said he was misunderstood in court the day before when he said "motion is denied" in apparent response to prosecutor Francis McDonald's request for permission to file an appeal.

Cohen said what he meant was that McDonald would have to wait for a decision on the permission request. McDonald Thursday said he

Building permit total $9.2 million

Building in Manchester during the 1976-77 fiscal year dropped from the year before, according to a report issued by the Building Department. The total estimated cost of projects issued permits during the 1976-77 year was $9,216,419. The figure for 1975-76 was $10,464,371.

An increase in receipts from electrical heating and plumbing permits, however, raised the total report value for 1976-77 to $10,053,441, about $800,000 less than the $10,873,227 total for 1975-76.

The number of single-family dwellings dropped from 160 in 1975-76 to 92 in 1976-77. Alterations and additions, always the largest category, increased slightly last year. The 1976-77 report listed 701 such permits, while the 1975-76 list had 676.

During 1976-77, the department issued 631 electrical permits, 236 heating permits, and 306 plumbing permits.

Other permits issued included: 68 swimming pools, 66 fences, 69 signs, 15 garages, and ten two-family dwellings. The largest single permit was for the 40-units of elderly housing on Spencer St. The estimated cost is $688,000.

North-south connector road needed

William R. Johnson, president of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, announced that the chamber board of directors, at a recent meeting, expressed concern about the need for a north-south connector road through Manchester. The chamber has written Manchester Town Manager Robert Weiss informing him of its willingness to provide a forum for the examination of alternative north-south routes and to volunteer such expertise as its members could offer in selecting a route.

Johnson said when he made his announcement, "It now appears that I-84 will soon become a reality and this coupled with I-86 gives us an excellent east-west highway system. We now hope that federal and state funds might be available to study the possibility of a north-south connector to facilitate travel across town in this direction."

The chamber made clear that it would take a long time to achieve any improvement, but it felt that initial discussions and planning should at least begin.

Continuity needed, too

We are becoming more than a bit concerned over the number of veteran members of the town directors and town school board who have indicated they will not seek re-election.

valuable adjunct to good government. While we do not suggest it be done immediately, we think the students of town government might do well to consider a staggered-term type of system for the Board of Directors so that there is some continuity on the board by design, rather than leaving it to chance.

The $6,000 gesture

President Carter's insistence that he pay $6,000 in 1976 income taxes even though, technically, he owed nothing at all was a laudable gesture.

Had he not been in politics, Carter probably would have done as would the rest of us — paid no income tax. And rightfully so. For his entire tax liability for the year ($11,675) was more than offset by a $20,865 investment tax credit on new equipment for the family

Thought

From the very first, to speak out as a Christian was not always the most safe thing to do. St. Peter and St. Paul were severely punished for preaching their faith. From those apostolic times, to the present, men and women have continued to tell what it means to believe, and think, and live as a Christian. And that is not always popular.

of opinion which can be so painful. Unfortunately this is dangerously like the attitude of the priest and the Levite in the story of the Good Samaritan. The Samaritan way — and of course Jesus' way — was to be with the man in his suffering and do what was necessary. Jesus did not avoid issues — He went to Jerusalem to speak the truth, knowing the Cross awaited Him there.

Andrew Young doesn't think — he sociologizes

WASHINGTON — Of Andrew Young's comments on the one billion dollars worth of pillage during New York City's blackout one can only say that he seems determined to make a fool of himself as spokesman for black lawbreakers.

Our United Nations Ambassador lives in a world of his own. To blame the looting and violence on unemployed and hungry, as Young did during a stopover in Geneva, is like saying Josef Stalin turned monster because he wasn't pledged to a college fraternity.

Blames hunger "If you turn the lights out, folks will steal," Young said. "But they'll do that especially if they are hungry, and you've got to realize that in New York you're probably running at unemployment levels of about 30 to 40 per cent among young adults."

Indeed, one is tempted to conclude that Young is one of the reasons such vicious outrages can occur in a supposedly civilized city. With Young on their side, young hoods everywhere can run amok with little fear that society will punish them for their deeds.

GOP drive paying off

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The Republican Party's fledgling campaign to loosen the traditional Democratic stranglehold on the loyalty of black voters could receive a significant test next month in Louisiana's hotly contested special congressional election.

Black vote Blacks comprise just over 30 per cent of the electorate in the state's First District, where Republican Robert Livingston is making his second try in less than a year to capture a congressional seat that has been in Democratic hands since time immemorial.

Both national political parties are throwing massive amounts of money and manpower into the Louisiana contest, the fourth special election for Congress to be held this year.

Minimum wage increase: Good or bad?

WASHINGTON — President Carter, hoping to make peace with George Meany, has agreed to an increase in the minimum wage from $2.30 to $2.65 an hour as of Jan. 1, 1978 with automatic annual increases to follow.

"The minimum wage law is a classic example of a well-intentioned law meant to help people which actually wound up making it more difficult for some of our more mature workers who lack skills or education, to get into the labor force," explained Jones.

Majority of autograph seekers are honest, decent youngsters

By MILT RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI)—"Ninety per cent of the kids who come around here all the time are honest and decent, the kind who admire and respect the ballplayers. They really want their autographs. The other 10 per cent are animals."

The man making the statement is a New York City policeman assigned to the area at Yankee Stadium where the players park their cars. For obvious reasons, he asks that his name not be used.

In this parking lot area that Reggie Jackson ran into trouble the night of the All-Star game.

The Yankee outfielder was accused of stomping on the hand of a 13-year-old boy after hearing insulting remarks made about his mother and the girl he was with, while he was signing autographs. Jackson admits he chased after one boy but denies touching him. No formal charges were pressed against him because the boy who did suffer injuries to his hand they were minor ones anyway.

In his first official statement since the incident, Yankee owner George Steinbrenner said that after eliciting as many facts as he could, he wouldn't blame Jackson if he never signed another autograph. Maybe that's a bit of over-reaction, but he does have a point.

First of all, Jackson did not provoke the trouble. Indeed, he was doing all he could to sign as many autographs as he could. Jackson is highly accommodating that way, more so in some respects than even the usually gracious Babe Ruth was.

I asked Ruth once how many autographs he estimated he gave out in a lifetime and he said, "more than a million." I believe that. The kids never gave him a rest, nor did many groupings, and it reached a point where he had to develop some ploy in pure self defense.

When he'd come out to the ballpark before the game, he sometimes took one look at the huge gang of kids bearing down on him and he'd hold up two big hands of his and say: "Now wait a minute, fellas. I'll sign for all of you—AFTER the ball game."

Naturally, they'd be there waiting for him with their papers and pencils as reported to have run after the youth who had started it all.

One fan said later, "For all the money they're paying him, he should be able to take it."

I don't buy that at all. Merely because a man is earning a great deal of money, as Jackson is, doesn't give anyone the right to vilify him in public.

Some of these "autograph seekers" aren't really looking for a ballplayer's signature at all. What they're looking for is blood.

Joe DiMaggio was practically pinned against the wall by autograph seekers at Shea Stadium following the Mets' Old Timers' reunion last weekend. They pushed him, jostled him and nearly knocked him down.

"They asked me to sign," he said, "but they never let me do it."

Mickey Mantle says his wife, Merrill, cured him of asking for autographs. She was his girlfriend then and she asked Mickey to get the signature of Harry James, the band leader, after a dance in Oklahoma. Mantle waited in line a long time for the autograph.

"That did it," he says. "I never asked for another one again."

Atkinson wanted retraction

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Oakland Raider defensive back George Atkinson says his $2 million slander suit could have been avoided.

"All of this could have been avoided," Atkinson told UPI Thursday on the ninth day of the trial. "All I wanted was a retraction. I wanted my name cleared."

Instead, Noll's statement suggesting that Atkinson was part of a "criminal element" in the National Football League became the focus of a U.S. District Court trial.

Judge Samuel Conti said he would deliver his instructions to the jury today before the six members begin deliberations.

In Thursday's concluding arguments, Willie Brown said in Atkinson's behalf it was clear Noll wanted to eliminate Atkinson's ability to earn a living in football when he made his "criminal element" statement.

In the last minutes of the game, Atkinson delivered a "hit" to Pittsburgh wide-receiver Lynn Swann, who suffered a concussion.

"Let them attach the label 'Dirty player' to him, let them attach the label 'Cheap shot' to him," Brown told the jury. "He'll take care of that on the football field ... But only you can remove the label 'Criminal element' from him."

James Martin MacInnis, the coach's lawyer, countered that Atkinson brought all the trouble on himself by striking Swann.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 14 years. I love my husband but I'm thinking seriously of having an affair. It's been years now since he's said, "I love you." He can go to bed without making love to me, then it's three or four weeks without making love to me, then it's only because I've suggested it, and I don't really enjoy it when I have to beg for it.

He gets off work at 4 p.m., goes to a bar with his buddies and doesn't come home until 6 or 7. He eats, and then falls asleep in front of the TV before 8. Then he gets up around 10 p.m. and goes to bed.

He's a good father and a good provider, but he can't take it anymore. I need love and attention.

A friend of ours asked me to have an affair with him. I had never even thought of anything like that. Now I can't think of anything else. I haven't made up my mind yet, but I've tried to get him to a doctor but he refuses. He says he's only 35 and there's nothing wrong with him. Well, I'm 31 and I need love.

I don't really want to have an affair, but I'm slipping.

HUNGRY FOR LOVE

DEAR HUNGRY: Here's your letter. I hope your husband (and other men who can identify with the above reader) see this and wake up before it's too late.

DEAR ABBY: Our dog will be going to doggy heaven any day now. Frisky is 90 in human years and he's in a wheelchair. He's really blind and he's so weak he keeps falling down.

Can't bear the thought of putting him to sleep, but want to know where to bury him when the time comes. We can't afford a plot in the pet cemetery, and he's meant too much to our family to just put him out with the trash. The children want to bury him in our backyard, but I hear there's a law against that. Can you help us?

spades to set spades as the spot for the final contract. Peter just bids four spades. He has no reason to go past game since his opening is in the minimum range.

On the other hand, Alan is interested in a slam and bids five clubs to show the tops in that suit. Peter, who has already signed off at four spades, can afford to show his second-round diamond control and now Alan can be sure of the grand slam if his partner holds the ace and queen of trumps. Alan's five notrump is the old Culbertson grand slam force and Peter bids seven spades because he does hold two of the top three honors.

Peter makes seven by ruffing his two little hearts with two of Alan's three trumps.

MHA defers action on housing rules

The Manchester Housing Authority postponed taking a stand Wednesday night on proposed regulations which would permit housing for the elderly and handicapped in most zones after hearing comments from the South Methodist Property Interest Group. Wesley Retirement Center, or support of any nonprofit organization which may build housing.

Richard Schwolsky, member of the Housing Authority, urged other members to attend the Planning and Zoning hearing next Monday, but he stressed that the attendance and support of the new regulations "has no connection with endorsement of the Wesley Retirement Center."

Robert Samuelson of the property group indicated Wednesday that the group's attorney, David Call, will propose clarifications of the new regulations at a Planning and Zoning Commission hearing next Monday night.

Samuelson would not specify what the changes would be. Authority Counsel Dominic Squatrito asked Samuelson for copies of the new regulations at a Planning and Zoning Commission hearing next Monday night.

Samuelson told the authority members he was not asking for an endorsement or a rejection of the regulations but asked that the authority approach the matter "with an open mind."

At the time Leonard was serving as chaplain to the Twentieth Regiment of the Army. After the church extended his leave, he became chaplain of Knox's Regiment Continental Artillery.

Atty. Martin Burke ruled that the construction is in violation of zoning regulations. Burke was asked to rule on the matter by Town Councilor Victor I. Moses, who has acted as the Jacksons private attorney.

Atty. Leon Padrove, who represented the Jacksons at Monday night's ZBA hearing, challenged Burke's ruling.

The ZBA is not now seeking a third legal opinion, Johnson said. It is simply seeking clarification of legal questions involved in the case.

Johnson said that he expects that any questions of clarification from the board will be asked of Burke.

GOP leadership is optimistic

Leaders of the Manchester Republican party spoke optimistically about the upcoming town election at a meeting Thursday of the party's town committee.

"I think public opinion is in favor of the Republicans this year," Vivian Ferguson, a member of the Town Board of Directors, said.

Thomas Ferguson, chairman of the committee, said, "I think you will be most surprised and most pleased with the names we will have."

The committee will meet again on Thursday, Aug. 4 to endorse a slate of candidates for the 1977 election.

Manchester residents will elect candidates for Board of Directors, Board of Education, town clerk and town treasurer.

Wallace J. Irish also said that the party should not close the door on candidates who might still be interested in running in November.

Ferguson said that prospective candidates who have not yet contacted the party should do so.

The committee elected Barry Botivello to the town committee. He replaces former member Ed Syde, who moved out of town. Irish was elected to fill a justice of the peace position that was also left vacant by Syde.

Irish had previously served in the position but had resigned from it when he ran for the State House of Representatives in 1974.

Atty. Nicholas Lange, of West Hartford, spoke to the committee about the First Congressional District organization, which was recently formed to strengthen party candidates for the district seat.

The First Congressional seat has been held by the Democratic party for many years.

"If we cannot support a candidate who does run, we are weakening the Republican ticket from the top to the bottom," Lange said.

"When a candidate at the top of the ticket makes a strong run, it can make the difference between winning and losing," he said.

The organization will be holding a fund-raiser dinner-dance at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Newington on Sept. 9.

Robert Weiss, a recent graduate of Manchester High School who participated in an intern program in Washington D.C. last summer, also spoke to the committee.

Weiss' week-long trip with about 40 other Connecticut high school students included sight-seeing in the city and sessions with Congressmen, government officials, and media representatives.

Weiss said that his group met with Jack Anderson, the syndicated columnist.

"We questioned him a lot. We tried to give him a taste of his own medicine," he said.

He said that he was most impressed with U.S. Sen. Lowell Weicker, whom he answered questions from the group.

Weiss said that the local GOP should try to send as many students as it can on the intern program.

"The future of the Republican party is in the youth. This is an excellent way to generate interest," he said.

Girl Scouts at Camp Merril-Wood got together this week to celebrate the 30th anniversary of the camp on Gardner St. This year the camp served 250 campers from Manchester and surrounding towns. Health officer lifts ban on Bolton Lake swimming

The ban on swimming in Bolton Lake has been lifted, said Dr. C. Wendall Wickersham, director of the Department of Health Laboratory.

Results of a second set of water samples taken from the lake July 18 tested safe for bathing. The first set of samples from 12 locations around the lake to get a cross-section of the lake.

The samples were tested at the State Department of Health Laboratory. Hutchinson said he learned this morning all 12 samples tested at the safe for bathing level.

The mgn per cent bacterium (ml) was 150, 35, 460, 150, 240, 75, 3, 43, 240, 21, 240, and 15, respectively. Hutchinson said the 12 reports will be available at his office in a few days.

John Gorgoglione, manager of the Alpha Omega Inn, at the lake, said the results of water samples taken from the inn area July 18 tested suitable and acceptable for swimming. They were taken and tested by the Coe private laboratory in Storrs, operated by Dr. Benjamin Cozenza.

Hutchinson said Dr. Cozenza is a registered sanitarian, certified by the state to do water analysis.

Gorgoglione said the water samples taken from the center of the bathing area was mpm 43 per hundred.

Manchester Police have arrested a 15-year-old youth in connection with two house breaks and the theft of a motor vehicle.

Scott H. Phaneuf, 16, of 87D Hachel Dr., was charged with third-degree burglary, second-degree larceny, fourth-degree larceny, and risk of injury to a minor, police said.

The committee was formed after charges of reckless driving and unauthorized use of blue lights. Court date is Aug. 2.

Police also made a total of 21 motor vehicle arrests Thursday. Most were for speeding.

Two thefts were reported Thursday at Globe Hollow Pool, police said. In one incident, a wallet, which included a credit card and a small amount of money, was taken. Also, a theft from an automobile at the pool resulted in the loss of a stop watch and a wallet, police said.

Police reported the theft of swim wear from a clothesline at a home on N. Main St. The missing items were valued at $90, police said.

Historical group buys letter for $1,200

WOODSTOCK (UPI) — A 1776 letter from George Washington and John Putnam to the Woodstock Congregational Church has been bought by the Woodstock Historical Society for $1,200.

In the letter written in April 1776 in Newkirk and Whitney Funeral Home, 318 Burnside Ave., Putnam asked the church to allow its pastor, the Rev. Abel Leonard, to remain with the Continental Army by extending his leave of absence from the church.

At the time Leonard was serving as chaplain to the Twentieth Regiment of the Army. After the church extended his leave, he became chaplain of Knox's Regiment Continental Artillery.

Johnstown flood toll now at 47

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — Notes pinned to message boards in a dozen evacuation centers indicated the full horror of the latest Johnstown flood was anticipated, but not yet known.

"Anybody who knows the whereabouts of Connie, Maria, and Roxanne Helman please call Ron Helman."

That was one of the pleas Thursday on the wall of a National Guard army converted into a refuge center near the Johnstown airport.

Cold figures from the state police said 47 bodies already had been recovered from the mud and debris left by the worst flood in the Conemaugh Valley since 1889.

Were Connie and Maria and Roxanne among them? Helman, like so many others, could only wait and wonder.

Correction: In Thursday's story about the Manchester Board of Directors meeting, it was incorrectly reported that the board accepted live streetlights from the Manchester West subdivision. The board actually tabled action on acceptance of the streets.

The East Hartford church, founded in 1952 and now with about 250 active adult members, decided it would try to reach out to Hartford people.

"From those first meetings has blossomed many joint efforts. And from those efforts has blossomed kinds of friendships shared by Terry and Nadean.

Bonds of friendships form at Bible school

The friendship of two girls, one white and one black, symbolize the bond formed between an East Hartford church and a Hartford church. Terry Labbe, 9, of 48 Suffolk Dr., East Hartford, said she has known Nadean Storey, 9, of Hartford "all the time."

She can't remember not knowing Nadean, and vice versa. The girls never would have met but for the unique ties formed between members of the Faith Lutheran Church on Silver Lane and the Union Baptist Church on Main St. in Hartford's North End.

The Rev. Paul E. Henry Jr., new to Farm this spring, told how it came about. The church is part of the Lutheran Church in America. In the late 1960s, national church leaders felt its members were growing more and more concerned with themselves and less concerned with others.

"We were not witnesses of our faith," he said. A Parish Priority Program team traveled to Lutheran churches "to help make them more aware of community needs," he said. Today the churches held the last session of a two-week Bible Vacation School. The school began nine summers ago. It was during the summer school sessions six years ago that the two girls met.

This summer the first week's sessions were held at the Lutheran church here. This week the sessions were held at Union Baptist. Despite the terrible heat, the sessions attracted about 80 children each morning.

Mrs. Gloria Nelson of 87 Wood Dr., East Hartford, and Mrs. Ora Ware of Hartford were team teachers for the second year in a row. They said the Bible school has worked out well and they enjoy it.

"What one can't do, the other supplies," said Mrs. Nelson, who has taught in the school for the nine years. "We have a good time."

The curriculum for the school is picked at meetings of the teachers of both churches. "It's basic Bible," said the Rev. Mr. Henry. "It's not church doctrine."

Mrs. Ware said they concentrated this summer on the 10 Commandments. Thursday they met outside the Hartford church due to the heat and due to renovations to the old church's interior, she said. As the temperature approached 100, they concentrated on the commandment not to steal.

"We got the children's attention," Mrs. Ware said. "We involve them, ask them what they know about stealing."

Mrs. Nelson said, "When we bring it to their level, then they start understanding things."

Terry and Nadean said the things they remember most about the Bible schools are not the classes. They remember singing, painting, playing together, and just talking. They both giggle a lot at each other's jokes and share secrets.

Besides the Bible school, the churches formed the House Action Committee (HAC) which sponsors housing for poor families in Hartford. HAC oversees six apartment buildings with 55 units, said the Rev. Mr. Henry.

The federal Housing and Urban Development (HUD) department renovated the buildings and has taken over the mortgage payments. But HAC still runs them. Six men of each church meet monthly to deal with them.

"HAC is a success as far as being able to provide good housing," the pastor said. "Financial success has not been the churches' goal."

He said, "The homes are really well kept. The families really seem to appreciate them."

The churches also share choirs through the year. The pastors have also exchanged pulpits on Sundays.

The Rev. Mr. Williams said, "I don't change my sermon. I do try to think in terms of the congregation I'm addressing. But the message is the same—the Eternal Gospel."

He said the bond formed by his church and Emanuel Lutheran has been very creative and meaningful.

The churches will hold a potluck supper tonight at 6 at the Union Baptist in Hartford to mark the close of the Bible school.

The last words of the closing hymn will be, "Christ is Lord of all."

Terry Labbe, right, and Nadean Storey can't stop giggling over a private joke as they pose in the sanctuary of the Faith Lutheran Church after Bible school Thursday. (Herald photo by Barlow)
