Rabin says Carter undercuts Israel's negotiating position

TEL-AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Former Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin says President Carter's public statements on Middle East issues have undermined Israel's negotiating position and will lead to a deadlock in Geneva.

Rabin's remarks, in an exclusive interview in his modest Tel Aviv office, came on the eve of Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's Middle East tour in search of a consensus to reconvene the Geneva peace conference. Vance arrives in Cairo today on his first stop.

"I consider it to be a Geneva conference with prior conditions because Israel will have very limited room for maneuverability," the 55-year-old Rabin said.

Rabin said Carter's position calling for an Israeli withdrawal to the positions it held before the 1967 Middle East war and the creation of a Palestinian homeland "bring from the very beginning a Geneva peace conference that is bound to bring about a deadlock."

"If you create very high expectations that this peace conference will do something, it again is bound to bring about big disappointment, frustration and who knows what will follow it," Rabin said.

George L. Lewis — HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut today stopped paying for elective abortions for women on welfare.

State officials say the new policy could mean a loss of up to $200,000 a year in federal reimbursements to the state.

The U.S. Supreme Court in a Connecticut case ruled earlier this summer that states are not obligated to underwrite elective welfare abortions, but may if they choose.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso, a Roman Catholic who adamantly opposes abortion, announced shortly after the decision that the state would cease paying for elective abortions under Medicaid effective Aug. 1.

Sunday, about 100 men and women protested the governor's decision outside the state Capitol and pledged to work to reverse the order, which they say discriminates against poor women.

They estimate the state could lose up to $200,000 a year in federal reimbursements as a result.

VAII, Colo. (UPI) — Former President Gerald R. Ford said today that he would support the American economy by reappointing Arthur Burns as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

"Quite frankly, I've been meaning to say this — and I don't know whether it will be helpful or harmful but one of the things that would, in my opinion, be very helpful in the restoration of business confidence would be the reappointment of Arthur Burns," Ford said in an exclusive interview with UPI.

In perhaps his most direct comments on his successor since leaving the White House on Jan. 20, Ford also said Carter has been masterful in keeping the press "sympathetic and cooperative."

The former President said it is too early to judge Carter's foreign policy. But he said, "The administration really hasn't done much except send Secretary (of State) Cyrus Vance all over the world."

Ford said he probably will campaign for Republican gubernatorial candidates in New Jersey and Virginia this fall and aid the GOP candidates in 1978 congressional races.

He did not say if he would seek the Republican Presidential nomination in 1980. But Ford was spending several hours a day on the telephone with GOP congressmen, handling requests for speaking engagements around the country, working on his memoirs and preparing a television documentary for December.

Talking of Carter and the economy, Ford said "What worries me is that there is still a lack of confidence in the business community. It's reflected in the fact that capital investment has not risen as rapidly as I think is necessary."

Of Burns, Ford said "I think his reappointment would be constructive in the restoration of public support."

"I think I've been restrained," Ford said before any public criticism of Carter. The former president said he has an urge to speak out.

During the 1977-78 Board of Directors budget hearings, Moses requested an increased staff and budget for the town counsel's office. He pointed out that the office has increased responsibilities, including liability claims, the Backlund (jurisdiction case and legal proceedings involving the proposed industrial park.

A change in the town counsel's office, which will include a full-time counsel and part-time assistant, was approved by the directors as part of the 1977-78 budget.

The town counsel appointment is made by the party that wins the November election. Moses said that he would continue to serve until a replacement is selected.

He said that he will remain available to assist the new counsel in becoming acquainted with the position and its responsibilities.

"It will be extremely difficult for me to leave the office after four rewarding years of serving the town and its citizens," Moses wrote. He also praised "our dedicated public servants."

"I sincerely hope that my judgments and advice were helpful to them and in some small way made the discharge of their many duties and obligations a little easier," he wrote.

there will be real and free negotiations at the Geneva peace conference and that the United States should not come out with any substantive positions, I don't see how the Geneva peace conference can bring about a real movement (toward peace)," Rabin said.

Rabin said that since Carter's public statements on the Middle East, the prospects for Geneva "are not as bright as they could have been."

Asked about Begin's decision to sanction officially three Israeli settlements on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan, Rabin said the settlements would not hamper peace efforts.

"I don't believe that once we'll arrive at Geneva anyone will seriously use these questions as the arguments as an excuse for not having peace," Rabin said.

"I warned him (Carter) that unless he reached agreement with Carter on peace boundaries and the Palestinian issue, he would not have peace," Rabin said.

Vance pushes quest for Mideast peace

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance met today with Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy for detailed discussions on how to get a Middle East peace conference reconvened in Geneva.

Vance and Fahmy met alone in Fahmy's suite overlooking the Mediterranean in the Palestine hotel.

Vance was to meet with Syrian President Hafez Assad and his top advisers and President Anwar Sadat and the Egyptian negotiating team.

"I'm more than optimistic," Sadat told newsmen Monday. "I was just telling Mr. Vance how deeply we appreciate his coming here."

Vance was to meet with Sadat tonight at the Presidential beach house. The meeting will be followed by a televised news conference with the two men scheduled for 3 p.m. EDT.

The chief stumbling block is how the Palestinians should be represented at a Geneva conference. The Palestine Liberation Organization, designated by the Arabs to represent all Palestinians, has been rejected by Israel as a terrorist organization.

In Beirut today, the PLO called for a unified Arab approach to the Middle East conflict and said peace efforts will fail unless the Palestinians are taken into consideration.

"A just settlement cannot be fulfilled in isolation of the Palestinian people as represented by the PLO," said a statement published after a two-day meeting of the Executive Council.

U.S. officials abroad Vance's plane said the Egyptians are very flexible on the issue, and raised the possibility that even Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin might be prepared to show some flexibility when he sees that the Arab side is willing to make concessions.

"I'll bet you that the Congress won't pass a version — whether it's Carter's or others — of an energy program before December of this year," despite the President's call for action five months ago.

He said it would not be in the best interest of Americans, Russians or the world at large if "we go back to the Cold War."

—Energy: "I fully agree that in the energy area we really have to make it (in Carter's words) a moral equivalent of war. For some reason, the Congress and the American people do not seem to respond."

what we can do to speed this process and to move toward a just and lasting peace."

Vance and Sadat originally were scheduled to meet for about two hours with their staffs, at Sadat's summer home on the Mediterranean. But the meeting lasted 80 minutes.

Then, in an unexpected session, Vance and Sadat met alone for one hour and 40 minutes Monday night.

Vance was due to leave Egypt Wednesday for a brief stopover in Lebanon and then to Damascus for talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad. He also has scheduled stops in Jordan, Saudi Arabia and Israel.

Reporters aboard Vance's plane were told he planned to focus on the procedures of the peace-making process and that the most crucial issue is the representation of the Palestinians at a Geneva conference.

U.S. officials described the Egyptian president as extremely flexible on this critical question.

Egyptian officials said Sadat would prefer an independent Palestine Liberation Organization delegation at Geneva, but if that proves impossible, as it almost certainly will, he would accept PLO inclusion in a single all-Arab delegation.

In a related case involving a $47.7 million increase granted the utility in 1974, a judge threw out the increase and ordered the PUCA to reconsider the decision that allowed the rate hike.

But before any decision could be made, consumer groups agreed to settle a series of lawsuits over it and the utility agreed to give customers $6 million in credits on their bills.

In addition the firm agreed to refund about $3 million in loans for excess street lighting charges.

Northest is Connecticut's largest utility serving 850,000 customers and 75 percent of the state's power. It is a public utility except the Bridgeport-New Haven area, which gets its power from United Illuminating.

The hearings are expected to go through September with a PUCA decision on the request scheduled to be handed down on Oct. 27.

Betty's notebook

By Betty Ryder

Chatted with some interesting people during the week and we'll be carrying stories on their activities soon.

Among them was End Lynn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morton Rosenthal of 38 Lawton Rd. End is director of the Hartford Ballet Co. and she and Diane Fleming of West Hartford, a teacher at the Hartford Ballet, recently returned from viewing the Moscow dance competitions in Russia.

Another very interesting man is Frank Findlay of 151 Hartford Rd., an antique car buff, who really puts his heart into his work. His story will be appearing in Wednesday's People page.

Honestly, meeting nice people makes working almost fun.

Food Stamps

Had a letter from the State of Connecticut, Department of Social Services regarding a statewide promotional campaign for the Food Stamp Program.

The object of the forthcoming campaign is to reach as many potential Food Stamp participants as possible with the ultimate objectives — enrollment in the program.

The program will concentrate on promoting a statewide toll free number that interested citizens can call and receive basic information about the availability of Food Stamps. "Hotline" operators will also be taking callers' names and addresses for the purpose of mailing applications to expedite the time needed to process and determine an applicant's eligibility.

As soon as the telephone number is available, I'll pass it on to you.

Pitter, patter

I've heard the pitter, patter of little feet at my house for so many years, that it really took me by surprise when I realized they weren't human feet — but mouse feet.

Yes, there's a mouse in the house — and a mother who's constantly flying out the door or hiding behind the pantry door.

Now, I know it's silly — they're so tiny and all — but I must confess, I'm scared to death.

Well, this particular little critter may not remain so little 'cause he's managed to nibble a hole in the bag of dog food. Instead, the dogs may start shrinking 'cause I'll be darned if I'm going to let that cupboard door.

The kids are getting a great kick out of my antics. One set a trap with cheese and they laughed the next morning when the little rascal got the cheese but we didn't get the mouse. Somehow, I don't think they're on my side.

I've suggested such ridiculous things, like "let's drill a hole in the side of the house and maybe he'll take the hint and leave," or "how about nailing that door shut and just not use that cupboard again," but the kids just won't take me seriously.

I suppose I'm foolish; I used to love Mickey Mouse, but, of course, then I only saw him on TV.

It may be a long, long week. This morning the mousetrap set it this morn'g then left for a week's camping vacation to Maine.

I suppose that little critter will be happy as a mouse with a diet of crunchy dog food and cheese, 'cause I'm sure not going to check the trap. Who knows, I may even put an emergency call into Maine before the week's over.

As soon as the telephone number is available, I'll pass it on to you.

Black and White Ball

Hope you ladies are planning your mark for the "Black and White Masked Ball" slated for Nov. 19 at The Colony.

The event, sponsored by the Ball Committee of Manchester Memorial Hospital, sounds like great fun with the ladies wearing black or white or a combination thereof.

Lil Hunter, an active committee member, says dress is optional and people can wear different color gowns if they so desire. Also, if the ladies would like to make a mask of some type, that would add to the evening's fun.

Lil says there will be a contest for the most original, prettiest, etc. mask. That is optional.

Reserve the date and polish up your dancing shoes 'cause the Main St. Band will play your favorite tunes.

Help! Will Donald Ward's sister, Ruby of East Hartford, please call me again. I'm sorry, I misplaced your phone number.

Three named to panel on ethics

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso has named three new members to the new State Ethics Commission.

Appointed Monday were: —Robert W. McGrew of West Hartford, former state Capitol bureau chief at the Hartford Times, who retired last year.

—Marilyn P. Seichter of Glastonbury, an attorney and member of the Governor's Ad Hoc Committee to Review Judicial Nominations.

—Richard B. Salomon of Stamford, president of the New York Public Library and a member of the Board of Trustees for Public Television in New York City.

Two of the other four members of the panel have already been appointed by legislative leaders. They are Oloft Smith, former chairman of Aetna Life & Casualty and John Lupton, a state senator from Weston.

The commission, set up by the legislature this year, is the cornerstone of a new ethics law for state officials and lobbyists.

It is empowered to investigate complaints of alleged violations and will be able to initiate its own investigations.

The commission is empowered to impose fines of up to $1,000-a-day and refer its findings to the chief state attorney for criminal prosecution.

Mennillo-Hamilton

Kimberly Ann Hamilton of Belpre, Ohio and Thomas Joseph Mennillo of East Hartford were married June 4 at the Belpre (Ohio) Congregational United Church of Christ.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hamilton of Belpre. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benedict Mennillo of East Hartford.

The Rev. Emmett Harrell and the Rev. Louis A. Phillips officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Mrs. Kathleen Reed of Parkersburg, W.Va. was organist. Raymond Lowther of Belpre was pianist and David Legg, also of Belpre, was guitarist. Vocalists were Alice Greathouse of Marietta, Ohio and Martha Oman of Oxford, Maine.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a gown of organza and venise lace with fitted V-neck bodice and a wide waistband trimmed and outlined with lace medallions and scallops of venise lace, long tapered sleeves, and an A-line skirt with attached train. Her chapel-length veil was attached to a Juliet cap. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations tipped in pink, baby's breath, and white orchids on a Bible.

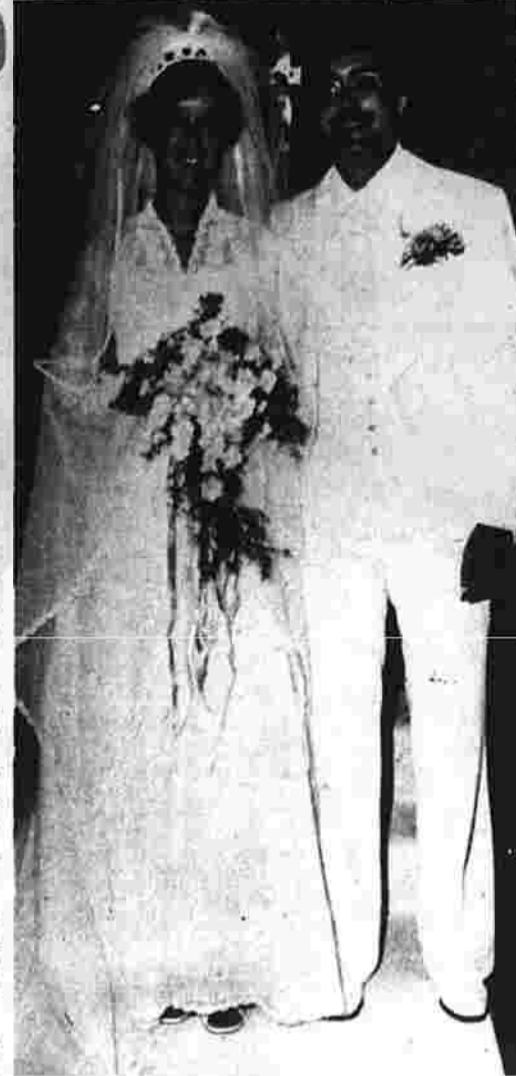

Carey Hamilton of Belpre was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Carla Bumgardner of Parkersburg, W.Va.; Martha Oman of Oxford, Maine; Robin Jones of Vermilion, Ohio; Marilyn Holby of Canton, Ohio; and Lynn Mennillo of East Hartford, the bridegroom's sister. Amy Jones of Belpre was flower girl.

Ray Bilodeau of West Hartford served as his cousin's best man. Ushers were Jeff Hamilton of Belpre, brother of the bride; Dale Bugaj of Cleveland, Ohio; Walter Herrera, of Springfield, Mass.; Lou Ragno of Paramus, N.Y.; and Charles King, Jr. of East Hartford. Benjamin Cross of Belpre was ring bearer.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Dene Maerker of East Hartford; Mrs. Joyce Maerker of West Hartford; and Mrs. Sue Bedillon of Wethersfield; and the women's Service Class of the church.

Mrs. Mennillo is a 1977 graduate of Heidelberg College, Tiffin, Ohio with B.A. degree in music and religion. Mr. Mennillo is employed as a reporter for The Marietta Times in Marietta, Ohio.

The couple is residing in Marietta.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Mennillo

In the service

Airman Albert R. Cole II, son of Mrs. Margaret B. Cole of 354 Main St., has been assigned to Lowry AFB, Colo., after completing Air Force basic training.

He will now receive specialized training in the supply field. He was graduated from Holyoke (Mass.) High School in 1976.

James C. Curtis of 102 Diane Dr., Northeastern University, has been assigned to the Army Corps of Engineers.

He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the U. S. Army on July 21 at Ft. Bragg N.C. Lt. Curtis, a graduate of East Catholic High School and Northeastern University, has been assigned to the Army Corps of Engineers.

SAM Theater starts tour of playgrounds Friday

SAM (Summer Activities in Manchester) Summer Theater will be touring Manchester playgrounds, starting Friday, with a play called, "A Most Special Dragon."

The cast will include Lance Tatro as the Wizard, Ann Kibbe as the Dragon, John Fry as Redford, Rander Trabbit as the Evil Sorcerer, Robert Kamahl as King, Mary Sinnamon as Queen, Sandy Bellone as Gorianna and Becky Bourdais as Erica.

Others working on the play are Bill Brindart, director; Brent Hazard, technical director and John Gibault and Bob Lenhardt. The schedule for the play is as follows: Friday, Nathan Hale School, 9:30 a.m.; Camp Kennedy, 10:15 a.m.; West Side Oval, 11 a.m.; Monday, Keeney School, 9:30 a.m.; Verplanck School, 10:30 a.m.; Tuesday, Green School, 9:30 a.m.; Buckley School, 10:30 a.m.; Thursday, Bowers School, 9:30 a.m.; and Valley St. playground, 10:30 a.m.

Any group which would like the play presented should contact the Manchester Recreation Department.

FALL SCHEDULE

BIOMEDICAL ENGINEERING
ELECTRICAL ASPECTS OF BIOLOGICAL SIGNALS deals with basic principles of neurophysiology including properties of excitable membranes, generation and propagation of the nerve impulse, evoked potentials and the electroencephalogram as well as other electrical signals of biological origin such as the electromyogram and electrocardiogram.

BIOPHYSICS: PHYSICS IN BIOLOGY
covers the development and application of some concepts of contemporary physics with examples from biology — topics include energy, entropy, equilibrium in closed and open systems, order and structure, atomic and quantum phenomena.

SPECIAL TOPICS IN BIO-ENVIRONMENTAL ENGINEERING — ANATOMY AND PHYSIOLOGY
reviews the anatomy and physiological processes of the respiratory, cardiovascular, urogenital, endocrinal, musculoskeletal, circulatory, renal and nervous systems.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING
ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING PROJECT is an individual study coordinated with instructor on such topics as automatic control, filtering, circuit design and simulation. By appointment only.

MICROPROCESSOR PROJECT is an individual study coordinated with instructor on hardware or software aspects of microprocessors and peripheral interfacing. By appointment only.

NETWORK THEORY II
studies Fourier transform single-port synthesis, Brune and Bott-Duffin cycles, two-port synthesis of lattices, Butterworth, Tchebyschev and delay filters.

NONLINEAR CONTROL SYSTEMS studies nonlinear phenomena — applications of relay, effects of saturation deadband and hysteresis in control systems; describing function; phase plane analysis; Liapunov's direct method; random processes; the Wiener filter.

SYSTEMS ANALYSIS TECHNIQUES studies the time domain analysis of linear systems — state space, controllability, observability and redundancy; state transition matrix, Euler's equation and variational techniques; feed and free endpoint optimization.

DIGITAL SIGNAL PROCESSING studies sampling analog signals, sampled Laplace Transform; discrete signals; Z-transform; the discrete Fourier Series and Transform; Fast Fourier Transform; digital filters; data reconstruction. At New London.

ELECTROMECHANICAL DEVICES AND APPLICATIONS studies industrial motion control — sensors, actuators, power supplies, gearing and compensation; AC, DC and stepper motors; system interactions.

OPERATIONAL CALCULUS is a math refresher of techniques used in electrical engineering, automatic control and dynamic analysis — Fourier Series, Integral and Transform Pair; Z-transform, complex variables and mapping. At New London.

ENGINEERING PHYSICS
MODERN PHYSICS I includes wave mechanics; Schrodinger equation and its solutions for hydrogen; particle current density; angular momentum and magnetic moment; atoms with arbitrary quantum numbers; Zeeman effect; Pauli rule; relativistic Hamiltonian; Klein-Gordon equation; Dirac equation; electron diffraction, reflection, transmission and refraction.

INTRODUCTION TO THEORETICAL PHYSICS for non-Physics majors studies the application of theoretical methods to the solution of physical problems; emphasis is on single-particle and rigid bodies dynamics in various force fields and accelerating reference frames; electro-magnetic field theory in free space.

INTRODUCTION TO THEORETICAL PHYSICS II
includes the kinetic theory of heat and Boltzmann distribution function, the Michelson-Morley experiment, Einstein's postulates, the Schrodinger equation and energy-angular momentum quantization.

ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY
ENVIRONMENTAL ECONOMICS AND COST ANALYSIS examines the relationship between economic growth and the deterioration of the environment — the role of the free market in causing environmental problems; analysis of proposed means such as effluent charges; the application of cost-benefit analysis to selected issues.

WATER RESOURCES
deals with elements of meteorology and hydrology — precipitation, runoff, stream flow, watershed losses, with hydrograph and ground water problems; distribution and reclamation.

ATMOSPHERIC PHYSICS AND CHEMISTRY
examines the application of thermodynamics to atmospheric processes; the physics and chemistry of moist air; the fundamentals of radiation; the impact on solar energy systems; and photochemical processes near the surface and in the atmosphere.

MATHEMATICS OF ENGINEERING AND SCIENCE I
is a course in numerical methods, emphasizing numerical solution of ordinary and partial differential equations — the pertinent matrix theory is developed and applied.

MATHEMATICS OF ENGINEERING AND SCIENCE II
is a course in partial differential equations — classical separation of variables techniques leading to solutions in terms of Fourier series, Bessel functions and Legendre polynomials.

MECHANICAL ENGINEERING AND MECHANICS
ADVANCED STRENGTH OF MATERIALS studies elastic and plastic behavior of engineering materials subjected to axial load, bending and torsion — Neurnark and finite difference methods applied to elastic and buckling problems; theories of stress and failure.

BOUNDARY LAYERS AND HEAT TRANSFER
studies the Navier-Stokes equations and the boundary layer approximation — exact solutions and integral methods for incompressible boundary layers; transition; turbulence; convective heat transfer in laminar and turbulent flow; special problems at high temperature.

COMPUTER METHODS IN SOLID MECHANICS
studies the methods used for the analysis of hyperstatic structures — computer solutions by matrix formulations using stiffness and flexibility concepts.

ELASTICITY II
deals with problems in isotropic linear elasticity — torsion and flexure of bars; plane stress and strain; the Bousinesq-Papkovich potentials and their application; stress concentration and contact of elastic bodies; dynamic potentials and wave equations; propagation, reflection and refraction of elastic waves; vibrations of elastic bodies.

MACHINE DESIGN
studies the design of machine parts and their integration into machines.

GAS DYNAMICS I
covers one-dimensional isentropic compressible flow — normal studies of supersonic and subsonic flow; design of inlet and ducted diffusers, steady flow wind tunnels and shock tubes; flow in ducts with friction and heat transfer; jet propulsion.

ADVANCED POWER SYSTEMS
studies application of thermodynamic cycle and force-momentum principles to power plant performance — development of operating performance characteristics of gas turbine components from engineering fundamentals; comparison and evaluation of integrated systems with emphasis on jet propulsion.

INTERNAL COMBUSTION ENGINES
studies performance characteristics with primary emphasis on mobile applications; analysis of spark ignition, diesel, gas turbine, Rankine and Brayton engines; pollution emission characteristics, involving some laboratory work.

METALLURGY
INTRODUCTION TO BIOMATERIALS surveys the physical, mechanical and chemical properties of metallic biomaterials and their applications — ceramics, glass, polymers, together with bone and soft tissue; dental restoration, surgical implants, pacemakers and other internal devices.

METALLURGICAL THERMODYNAMICS
is a math refresher of techniques used in metallurgy — quantitative evaluation of thermodynamic properties; thermodynamics of the reduction, oxidation and desulfurization of metals and alloys; calculation of phase diagrams; carburizing and solid state transformations.

DISLOCATION THEORY
studies the theory of plastic flow in crystals — elastic, anelastic and plastic behavior; elastic properties of dislocations; dislocation locations of crystal growth and boundaries; dislocation theory as applied to yield point, precipitation hardening, strain aging, work hardening, annealing, creep and anelasticity.

MATERIALS ENGINEERING I
for non-materials engineers studies the properties and behavior of materials — x-ray diffraction, phase diagrams, casting and solidification, iron casting, metal treatment fundamentals, hardenability and steel selection, ceramic materials.

NUCLEAR MATERIALS
studies correlation of materials with reactor concepts with emphasis on radiation damage effects — analysis of reactor design as affected by materials performance; fuels, cladding, moderators, control rods and boron poisons, coils, and structural alloys; the framework of boiling, pressurized and liquid metal cooled and fast breeder reactors.

NUCLEAR ENGINEERING
NUMERICAL METHODS IN NUCLEAR REACTOR ANALYSIS includes study of linear equations, matrix algebra, difference equations — numerical solution of hyperbolic, parabolic and elliptic differential equations; formulation and numerical solution of static and time dependent multigroup diffusion equations in one, two and three dimensions; neutron spatial stability.

REACTOR PHYSICS I
studies classical and quantum mechanics relative to neutron interactions — properties of neutrons and nuclei that influence their interaction; kinematics of elastic and inelastic scattering; radiation capture, charged particle emission and fission.

NUCLEAR ENERGY CONVERSION SYSTEMS I
reviews principal reactor concepts affecting engineering design of nuclear power stations — including PWR, BWR, HTGR and LMFR conversion systems; the physics analysis of core design relating the selection and optimization of lattice parameters and fuel enrichment to reactivity/inventory, burnup and conversion.

NUCLEAR POWER PLANT INSTRUMENTATION AND CONTROL SYSTEMS
contains description of LWR systems, fundamentals of classical control theory, reactivity control system for PWR and BWR systems, EX-core and in-core instrumentation, reactor protection and emergency core cooling systems — term project is the design and analysis of a PWR reactivity control system using DSMF.

COMPUTER AND INFORMATION SCIENCE
QUEUEING MODELS OF REAL-TIME SYSTEMS (A) studies the queueing model and its applications to — design and analysis of — real-time systems, teleprocessing and performance; case studies in system planning and design.

TELEPROCESSING: HARDWARE AND SOFTWARE (A) studies interfacing and data concentration, multiplexing systems; data models, multi-drop lines organizations, BTAM, TCAM.

ADAPTIVE SYSTEMS AND PATTERN RECOGNITION (D) centers around the methods of artificial intelligence, heuristic programming and pattern recognition — linear and nonlinear discriminant functions; Perceptrons, tree searching, spectral analysis; applications to automatic theorem proving, problem solving, game playing and natural language communication with computers.

LARGE-SCALE DATA MANAGEMENT SYSTEMS (E) studies data base concepts, design and management — common data base accessible by terminals; data organization, structure types, accessing techniques, update and security; comparisons of various large-scale commercial data management systems.

MODELING AND SIMULATION IN GPSS (F) teaches modeling techniques by General Purpose Simulation System language — presents the series of simulation models of increasing complexity, along with complete coding and outputs.

SPECIAL TOPICS IN MATHEMATICS studies Boolean algebra, matrices, vectors, linear systems, calculus, series, finite difference, differential-difference equations.

ASSEMBLY LANGUAGE OS 360/370 (C) teaches machine language, assembler language, structure of assemblers, macro-instructions and sub-routines, program check-out, user operating system, structure of an operating system; exercises using computers.

COMPUTER OPERATING SYSTEMS (C) teaches operating systems concepts — models of operating systems, macro-instructions and sub-routines, program check-out, user operating system, structure of an operating system; data base concepts and relation to operation systems.

SOFTWARE ENGINEERING AND STRUCTURED PROGRAMMING (C) teaches the fundamental concepts in structured programming and their theoretical basis, the actions of Floyd, Hoare and Jackson, flow chart models and the theorems of Boole and Jacopini, proofs of program correctness using various serial and concurrent programming constructs, name management, semantic and information structure models, top-down and bottom-up approaches to software design, chief programmer team and other program development organizations.

MINI-COMPUTER SYSTEMS (PDP-11) (C) studies organization and structure, programming techniques, data structures, I/O programming, system software, operating systems, and an application program, the same problems will be programmed in different languages.

APPLIED STATISTICS FOR ENGINEERS (D) is an introduction to the application of probability and statistics in empirical frequency distributions useful in fitting data, drawing conclusions about system performance from component data, and evaluating the adequacy of a selected statistical purpose digital systems.

DIGITAL SYSTEMS AND COMPUTER DESIGN (B) deals with design of hardware and software for digital systems — number and information representation, switching algebra, logic circuits, minimization, memory and storage devices, computer architecture, I/O techniques; functional design of a complete computer stressing arithmetic-logic unit and control unit; integration and computer control of various special purpose digital systems.

THEORY OF COMPILER DESIGN (C) teaches the use of language and automata theory in the design of interpreters, compilers, text editors, monitors, etc. — lexical analysis, finite-state recognizers, syntax analysis, code generation, and optimization; topics include top-down vs bottom-up parsing algorithms, precedence grammars, production language, translator writing systems, and resource allocation.

WORKSHOPS IN COMPUTER SCIENCE studies computer science through hands-on programming experience and self-study. Comprises separate workshops in BASIC, FORTRAN, APL, PL/I, SNOBOL, COBOL, Programming.

MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATIVE SCIENCES
CORPORATION FINANCE examines the financial aspects of managing institutions, especially corporations. How institutions should (a) finance themselves using stocks, bonds, bank loans, etc. (b) allocate funds among existing types of current and fixed assets, and (c) allocate funds among alternative investment projects. Financial management is considered in the context of the general organization of the firm.

ORGANIZATION AND MANAGEMENT OF MARKETING deals with the procedures and policies involved in the determination and administration of a marketing program — analysis of forces shaping the marketing mix. At Storton only.

INTRODUCTION TO ECONOMIC THEORY
examines basic concepts and techniques of economic analysis and applications to economic problems. The topics include: theory of product and factor pricing, national income and employment theory, monetary and fiscal theories, economic growth and fluctuations. Also at Storton.

CURRENT PROBLEMS IN AMERICAN INDUSTRY
analyzes current problems confronting major American industries, regulated and unregulated. Recent changes in growth patterns, market structure, and pricing policies are examined. Emphasis is placed on emerging trends in technology and public policy which are likely to affect significantly the future of the industry. Attention is given to contributions of the law and procedure involved in civil suits, including the law of torts.

LAW IN MANAGEMENT AND ENGINEERING gives special attention to the writing of engineering specifications; the law of agency and partnership; the law of governing liabilities; the law of conveyance and of mortgages; the law of trademark; the law of patent; the law of the law and procedure involved in civil suits, including the law of torts.

MANAGEMENT SEMINAR
applies principles and techniques of management to problems of operating systems of industrial, business, service and public enterprises. Analysis of contemporary social issues in the field of management.

FINANCIAL ACCOUNTING studies the financial system, including money and capital markets, financial institutions and instruments; accounting for financial activities, and pertinent aspects of financial analyses and operations. Also at Storton.

INDUSTRIAL MARKETING AND STRATEGY offers advanced study of topics associated with recent developments in the area of marketing.

ORGANIZATIONAL BEHAVIOR
studies the concepts and operational problems of modern organizations. Includes both classical and modern organization theory, as well as research findings and theory of human relations in industry. Attention is given to contributions of the behavioral sciences to management.

SPECIAL TOPICS IN MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATIVE SCIENCE studies selected subjects in any field of management, and recent and current developments in theory and practice.

STRATEGY AND ORGANIZATION
studies general administration of strategy and organization. Student projects cover analyses of corporate situations in several New England.

FORMATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF NEW ENTERPRISES studies the planning and management of corporate opportunities: expansion of existing businesses or formation of new ventures.

COMPUTER SYSTEMS ADMINISTRATION studies the management of the data processing function and performance in computer systems, productivity and performance analysis.

PUBLIC POLICY — Legal Aspects for Management analyzes policy determination in the public sector, including the government's role in controlling American decision processes; the organizational and political context of public sector decisions; governmental responses to major social problems with changes in the structure of government itself.

ENGINEERING MANAGEMENT
studies the major management functions with special emphasis on engineering and research — organization, planning, coordination, decision-making, human relations, cost analysis, product development, asset utilization.

PRODUCTION OPERATIONS MANAGEMENT deals with transition of the data processing function into facilities, procedures and selection of production alternatives of effective methods and operation of production alternatives, plant layouts, buildings and locations, numerical methods and operations research.

INTRODUCTION TO STATISTICAL METHODS deals with basic concepts of probability and statistical inference — Bayesian methods and their role in decision analysis; common use of probability distributions; hypothesis testing, point estimation, contingency tables; programming computers for statistical purposes; basic models in analysis of variance and regression. Also at Storton.

HEALTH CARE MANAGEMENT
HEALTH CARE INFORMATION SYSTEMS provides an introduction to the processes by which information is collected, stored, processed and disseminated — computer systems in operation are discussed and computer packaged systems are reviewed and evaluated

'Citizen's mail' catch

If the independent Postal Rate Commission seconds the motion of the board of governors of the U.S. Postal Service, the ordinary person will get at least a little relief from the continually rising cost of everything.

This would be in the form of a special 13-cent "citizens' rate" stamp for personal, non-business communications.

The board, acting on a recommendation of President Carter, approved creation of the new category as part of an overall 22 per cent increase in all mail rates.

Regular first class mail, now 13 cents for the first ounce, would go up to 16 cents, for example, Citizens' mail would be a kind of subcategory of first class with lower priority.

(But postal officials say citizens' rate users wouldn't notice any difference in service.)

Don't start counting your pennies just yet, however. The commission has 10 months to act on the proposal, so it would not go into effect before May of 1978.

Progress on privacy

After two years and $1.75 million, yet another government study commission has plunked down yet another hefty report on the desks of the nation's lawmakers.

For a change, it was time and money well spent—or will be if the report meets with a better fate than the usual file and forget.

The report of the Privacy Protection Study Commission deals with a subject which, thanks to the computer and computer systems, is becoming of increasing concern to Americans: Simply the protection of their individual privacy.

To give an indication of the scope of the problem, last year 97 agencies of the federal government maintained 6,753 "personal data systems" containing nearly four billion individual records.

That's equivalent of nearly 20 items of data on every man, woman and child in the country.

Untold billions of other records have been accumulated in the private sector, chiefly in the areas of Pennies are important, of course, to those who stand to be the major beneficiaries of the citizens' rate—older people on restricted incomes, many of whom depend heavily on the Postal Service for contact with the world.

But aside from them—and the greeting card industry—it's difficult to see reason for anyone getting wildly enthusiastic over the prospect of citizens' mail.

For one thing, it perpetuates the myth that when a company's cost of doing business rises, the company pays the cost. The proposed three-cent hike for first class business mail, from 13 to 16 cents, will inevitably be passed on to the citizen-consumer.

It is also another example of tinkering with details while the Postal Service's fundamental problem—an inefficient, oversized and highly unionized work force—remains unchanged.

In short, citizens' rate mail is a nice gesture, but that's about all it amounts to.

credit, employment, medical and insurance information.

The 650-page report of the privacy commission contains no less than 162 recommendations for new federal and state laws and voluntary actions to assure the right of an individual to know what information is being kept on him to give him some control over it and some recourse in case it is misused.

It would be nice if the entire issue would be wrapped up in one single piece of legislation, but the elements involved are so complex and many-layered that they can only be attacked by law.

A questionable point is the commission's urging that an independent federal agency be created to oversee privacy rule-making and enforcement.

Let's try the specific law approach first before adding yet another bureaucratic tier to the federal establishment.

The privacy commission report has certainly given Congress enough specifics to chew on for a long time to come.

Sounding the alarm

It has always been a mystery why the FBI issues quarterly statistics on larcenies and auto thefts but says nothing about the growing army of pyromaniacs who burn down buildings in the United States.

The number of deliberately set fires has more than tripled since 1965. As many as 1,000 people (including up to 45 firemen) are killed and 10,000 injured in such fires each year.

Yet arson never has been listed along with murder, robbery and rape as serious crime in the quarterly reports.

That may change, however, if Congress approved a bill by Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, to require the FBI to issue arson statistics. It also would offer federal aid to states and cities that conduct anti-firebug campaigns.

Feminizing Republic's great war machine

WASHINGTON — A study by the prestigious Brookings Institution offers a peek into the future which suggests that we might some day discover a nursing home manning a machine gun nest in a war against Outer Baldhead.

Such a conclusion seems inescapable after perusing the words of the authors, Martin Binkin and Shirley J. Bach. They claim that legislation and court decisions against discrimination by sex assures that women would be drafted if the U.S. returns to the conscription route.

Sample combat units
Now that our ruling lords are determined to provide equal opportunity for females, the study recommends that the armed services forthwith install women (ugh!) "service persons" in sample combat units to find out how they'd perform under simulated battle conditions.

I am not comfortable among most femlibbers because they tend to talk too loud, but I am forced to admit that they would make good combat troops. For one thing, most seem actually to enjoy the act of giving birth, despite the pain and inconvenience involved. No male I have encountered would have a baby for a million bucks, after taxes.

Also enjoy a good fight
As all husbands can confirm, members of the sometimes gentler sex also enjoy a good fight, and are very good at the sport. Among other things, they've got staying power, which is what every general wants in a trooper. I could name at least a dozen females who would be boxing champions and middle linebackers if they chose to stop harrasing male chauvinist pigs at mass meetings to be athletic for dough.

Moreover, women usually are in better shape than men. They take better care of themselves, rarely sitting up all night at the poker table, or

MCC Summer Winds is community band

Dear sir:
In a recent "Reflections" column, Hal Turkington laments the lack of a community band. Reminiscing about the band formed by Bob Vater in 1959, he concludes that "it may be too late this year, but perhaps next year things can begin in the spring for a community band. We now have the bandshell over at Manchester Community College and why not give it some use?"

But we already have a community band! Obviously it needs more publicity. For the past two years the MCC Summer Winds has given summer concerts right on the campus at MCC. It is a true community band, open to any and all area residents. There are no auditions; just come and play. Conductor Phil Streifer leads a varied program from standard marches through show tunes to contemporary wind music. The Summer Winds concert will be presented in the bandshell, Hal, on Sunday, Aug. 7, 8:30 p.m. Admission is free. Bring a blanket or lawn chair.

Not only do we have a community band; we have a community symphonics orchestra. The MCC Summer Pops is also open to all area residents. Its eighth annual concert, conducted by Bob Richardson will be given in the bandshell on Saturday, Aug. 20, at 8:30 p.m. Again, admission is free. See you there, Hal.

Humphrey-Hawkins bill forgotten by Carter

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Remember the Humphrey-Hawkins bill, that ultimate Democratic Party solution to the economic woes of then nation? Sure you do. Who could forget a program so bold in conception and sweeping in reach?

Jimmy Carter could, that's who. Or to be more accurate, he would like to forget it—once and for all. But there are those on Capitol Hill and elsewhere who keep reminding him of his campaign endorsement of the most comprehensive economic planning measure since the New Deal.

Summary impossible
The Humphrey-Hawkins bill is impossible to summarize in a single sentence or two. It is a complex and all-encompassing prescription for government guidance of the economy which is designed to achieve and maintain full employment, even if that means making the government itself the employer of last resort.

Every Democratic candidate for president in 1976 endorsed the controversial measure, although Carter did so only belatedly after the bill had been substantially modified to place greater emphasis on the importance of the private sector.

First plank
The goals and concepts of the legislation were written into the very first plank of the Democratic Party platform by the national convention. And Carter's own compilation of campaign pledges, the "Promises, Promises" document released by the White House early this year, last support of the bill as a key element of his economic package.

Yet in the first six months of his administration, the president has done his level best to ignore the Humphrey-Hawkins bill.

Only repeated inquiries from the congressional Black Caucus and from House Democratic leaders persuaded Carter to open negotiations on the subject.

July meeting
In mid-July, key White House officials—economics adviser Charles Schultz, domestic adviser Stuart Eizenstat and Labor Secretary Ray Marshall—met with Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., a staff aide to Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., and economist Leon Keyserling, who wrote much of the bill.

The meeting did not provide much encouragement to advocates of the legislation. "They prefer not to have a bill," Hawkins acknowledged in an interview. "They think they're doing pretty well on their own and that we ought to rely on their efforts."

Finally talking
"We're glad they are finally talking with us, but obviously we feel strongly that the legislation is still needed," he said.

Advocates of the Humphrey-Hawkins bill feel none of Carter's economic measures can make a dent in the disastrous levels of unemployment among blacks and, to a lesser degree, women.

While the overall unemployment rate has been dropping gradually, joblessness among blacks has actually increased during the past year—and Labor Department figures indicate a continuation of the pattern for the future.

Blacks and their allies in organized labor, the churches and liberal groups like Americans for Democratic Action are furious at Carter's resistance to the Humphrey-Hawkins bill, which they see as the only effective means of attacking hard-core unemployment.

Mobilization planned
A coalition of 32 national organizations now plans to hold a "mobilization" in Washington this September to put pressure on the president to support the legislation.

In the meantime, Hawkins and other congressmen involved in the struggle concede there is no hope for pushing the bill through Congress without administration backing. "It's resting quietly," said a staff aide on the Senate Human Resources Committee.

Labor Secretary Marshall is the only member of the administration who actively supports the Humphrey-Hawkins bill. So far, there is little sign that he can overcome the unified hostility of Schultz, Budget Director Bert Lance and other advisers.

Thought

"A still more excellent way"
"If I have prophetic powers, and understand all mysteries and have all knowledge, and if I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing."

Why? What's the reason?
If Love, like God's Love for us, does not provide our motivation, then not only are we just noise makers, but everything we do is really only an external display of gross, selfish power.

Love is still the "more excellent way."

Successful move

First home Sunday attraction for Moriarty's in the Twilight Baseball League resulted in both the largest crowd and the best collection. The MB's made it a big day last Sunday with an 8-0 decision over Hartford Insurance. Jeff Koelich, who holds the title as a vice president in the Two loop in charge of collections, reports the biggest money totals are still recorded at Moriarty Field. First place will be a stake tonight when Moriarty's entertain Jai-Alai at Moriarty Field at 5:45. The Flyers hold a half-game advantage with the regular schedule ending this week... Surprise team in the American League has to be the Western Division leading Chicago White Sox. "The team looked terrible in spring training," Lefty Bray reports. He saw the team in a number of exhibitions at Sarasota, Fla., in March. Jack Holik, in his fourth full year as head coach of the Manchester Legion baseball team, has turned the record around from a year ago when the squad at a dismaying 13-21. The locals are now 22-10-1 going into tonight's game against Windsor at Eagle Field. Dick Cobb, new director of athletics at Manchester High, coached the Legion squad two seasons, 1963-64.

Notes off the cuff

Photos of championship Little League baseball teams will be published when received to answer several questions. From readers... Also, this department is seeking the name of the Carter Chevrolet National Farm League champs. Tennis trivia: Jack Redmond, tennis pro at the Manchester Racquet Club, reports there are 2,100 nats in the lines of a Har-Tru tennis court, each must be manually applied. Redmond has this type court at his South Windsor residence... Did you notice the figure of major league baseball attendance on the weekend, especially for American League cities? The U.S. Pro Tennis Championships at Longwood will offer $125,000 in prize money and is second only to Forest Hills in attracting the world's best male players. Jimmy Connors leads the list for the Chestnut Hill, Mass., event... The recent junket to California to play in tennis tournaments for several local area young girls really opened the eyes of Cherie Dow, the top local player. Despite having an abundance of talent, Dow found the West Coast players a step or two better. Far from downhearted, Dow came back home and is working harder than ever to improve and conditioning includes running. Last weekend's win was a big one for Dow in the Keds Invitational in the 16 and under division.

For the record

For the record, the Manchester Twilight Baseball League folded after the 1952 season - 25 years ago. Pratt & Whitney Aircraft copped the '32 crown. Tom Rodden and Larry Auer were among a group of young men who motored to Montreal last week and then bicycled home. No breakdowns were reported. Both men are fine tennis players at the Racquet Club. After a slow start, Coach Joe Camposso has his Crispino Supreme entry in the Colt Intertown Baseball League traveling on the victory road. The club clinched a playoff berth and is now eyeing the previous year honor. Jim Russer of Minnechaug led to second place, one stroke behind leader Jim Becker in the Connecticut State Golf Association Open championship qualifying yesterday at Orange. Becker fired a 68. Ralph DeNicolo, Manchester Country Club pro, had a 74 to qualify for the 36-hole test today.

DUSTY
Coming from behind with a five-run fifth inning, Belton triumphed Suburban Floors last night at Robertson, 9-7.

Big stickers were Ed Moriconi, Steve Keshi, Chuck Barnes and Bob Post for the winners with two hits each and Henry O'Brian with a single, double and triple, Barry Bernstein with three singles and Bill DiYeno with two singles for the Flyers.

Baseball

COLT
Training 2-1, Crispino's rallied for four runs in the sixth inning and pasted a 5-2 defeat on Mansfield last night at Nebo in a Colt Intertown League game. Each side collected only three hits as Bob Walters won the match decision. He fanned 10 batters. Kevin Shaffer homered for the Supremes. Wayne Parker and Bob Cloughsey added doubles. The locals are now 12-7 for the year and face the top champion Manchester Merchants Wednesday night at 6 o'clock at Nebo.

Legion hosts Windsor

Final regular season home game for Manchester's Legion baseball team is scheduled tonight at Eagle Field. Postal Employees outscored Second Congo last night at Nebo, 11-7.

Moriarty's win squeaker

Looking ahead to tonight's big battle for first place against East Hartford, Moriarty's had a close call last night in Glastonbury. The upset-minded, last place Arrows gave the MB's all they could handle before losing 2-1 at Glastonbury High.

Springboard for discussion

What do you think should be done to improve the organized recreation programs, including baseball, in Manchester? That's the topic The Herald would like to hear from readers about in its Springboard for Discussion feature. Deadline for letters to The Editor is Monday, Aug. 8. Responses will appear in the Aug. 10 issue. Letter writers are asked to keep their opinions and "So on" words to 250 words. Letters must be signed and carry an address.

Pro grid players to receive 'bonus'

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Earl Larson, who kicked out the controversial Rozelle Rule of the National Football League, finalized a $15.8 million settlement Monday that will give more than 2,000 football players anywhere from $160 to more than $10,000. "It's a great day," said Ed Glenn, attorney for the National Football League Players Association. "I hope the matter is settled once and for all." In a case brought by John Mackey, Larson awarded the plaintiffs $2.2 million and in the Kermit Alexander case, a class-action suit that benefits some 2,000 players and former players, he awarded $10,675,000. A 36-day football players' strike in July and August, 1974, led to the two lawsuits. Larson had issued a tentative settlement March 29 but 14 non-union players disputed the ruling and made their appeals before the judge. They also disagreed with Larson's handling of the Rozelle Rule case. He denied their requests. The controversial Rozelle Rule was used by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle to set compensation to a club that lost a free agent. Under Larson's ruling, which has been upheld by the U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals, the compensation is graduated and tied to the experience and salary levels of the veteran players. According to the ruling, a player received points for each year he played football in 1972, 1973, 1974 and 1975, plus points for being a free agent. Each point was worth $2,353.89. "Some players, who played all four years, will get four or more points or in excess of $10,000," Glenn said. A 13th-round draft pick in 1974 will get $160 even though the man never made a club, he said. The judge said the money would be paid over a 10-year period through July, 1986. Defendants in the Alexander suit who were to pay the money were 28 NFL member clubs, the National Football League and Rozelle.

Mets won respect whipping Dodgers

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Mets won more than just a ballgame Monday night — they won some self-respect. Lopez' 11th-inning homer gave Los Angeles the lead again but Ed Kranepool's RBI single knotted the score in the bottom of the 12th inning. Lenny Randle led off the Mets' 12th with a double off loser Mike Garman and Pete Millan was walked intentionally. Garman struck out rookie Steve Henderson but Youngblood batting for winning pitcher Skip Lockwood,uffed Garman's first pitch into left-center to score Randle. Afterwards, Youngblood discussed the special significance of the comeback victory over Los Angeles — a team with the best record in baseball. "It's an important game for a team as young as we are because we proved to ourselves we can play with a team like the Dodgers. Coming from behind like we did tonight proved to our guys that we are just as good as them. We're proving to ourselves we're not a last-place ballclub," Youngblood said. Lockwood, who pitched 5 2/3 innings of sparkling relief allowing only two hits, saw some light at the end of a dark tunnel which kept them in last place in the National League East for much of the season. "It was a good win because we came back against a good team — but we have to do more of that," Lockwood said. "It takes everybody to win in this game and this was an indication of that. The way we've been playing lately, we've been staying in the ballgame and that's a good feeling and a good win." After Los Angeles jumped out to a 3-1 lead, New York tied it up with single runs in the third and fourth innings. The Dodgers came back with three runs in the fifth — two on Ron Cey's 21st homer — to grab a 6-3 lead but the Mets tied it again in the sixth when Steve Henderson capped a three-run rally with his seventh homer, a two-run shot.

First place on line in Twi tilt tonight

Three of the top seven batters in the Hartford Twilight League, including pace-setter Sal Brancato, will be with East Hartford Jai-Alai tonight against Moriarty's at Moriarty Field at 5:45.

Brancato is hitting .400, Bill Hickey .389 and John Zadrozny .381 with the American Division leading Flyers. Manager Gene Johnson of the MB's, the designated hitter, will bank on Dave Bidwell to halt the rampaging Flyers, who dropped four of their first five games and have been on a tear ever since. The big righthander has been pitching effectively ball. A Moriarty win would vault the home team into first place in the standings. The Flyers hold a half-game edge.

Record crowds

NEW YORK (UPI) — Almost 4 million paying fans attended National League games in July, establishing a new attendance record for the month, with the official count at 3,962,531, the league office disclosed Monday.

Pats to fine Hunt for reporting late

SMITHFIELD, R.I. (UPI) — New England Patriots Coach-General Manager Chuck Fairbanks says linebacker Sam Hunt will be fined for showing up 10 days late for training camp. "He had a personal problem that is his own business," Fairbanks said Monday after Hunt suited up for his first practice session. "He will pay the club fines for reporting late, no more, no less." Hunt, a four-year veteran, was three pounds overweight when he arrived at the Bryant College training camp. Fairbanks said Hunt will dress for Saturday's preseason opener against the New York Giants but will play only if necessary.

Ron Fairly joins club with 200th home run

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ron Fairly joined the Hall of Fame plaque club Monday night by belting a three-run homer to help the Toronto Blue Jays defeat the Milwaukee Brewers, 3-2.

The homer, Fairly's 14th this year, was his 200th lifetime. Nearly 100 players have hit 200 or more homers in a career, but all of them are enshrined on a plaque in Cooperstown. "That's the special meaning of this homer — the fact that it puts me on a plaque in the Hall of Fame," said Fairly, who connected in the sixth inning to give 21-year-old rookie right-hander Jim Clancy his first major league victory. "Clancy spaced seven hits, struck out four and walked just one in pitching the expansion Jays to their second win after nine straight losses. "It was a helluva performance for Clancy," said Fairly, "especially since it was only his second game. I don't know if we're out of our slump, but I can tell you the attitude here is as good as any club I've been with." George Foster threat to break Wilson mark

NEW YORK (UPI) — Let's take a moment for a look at the all-around season being enjoyed by George Foster of the Cincinnati Reds.

Foster, 28, is the most productive hitter in baseball this season with a .317 batting average, 24 homers and 102 runs batted in. He is a threat to equal or break Hack Wilson's National League record of 56 homers in a season and could challenge Wilson's major league mark of 190 RBIs.

Foster continued on the track Monday night by driving in four runs with two homers Monday night in the Reds' 7-6 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

"Last year I got to thinking too much about winning the triple crown and that loused me up," said Foster when asked about his fine season. "So this year, I'm just swinging the bat and letting them fall where they may."

Foster, who had homered in his two previous at bats, walked with one out in the seventh inning and scored the tie-breaking run on a triple by Dan Driessens, who scored the second run of the inning on Johnny Bench's single.

The rally enabled Pedro Borbon to win his sixth game of the season and tagged Paul Reuschel with his fourth loss. Bench also homered for the Dodgers while Steve Henderson connected for New York.

Jerry Mumphy doubled in the tie-breaking run in the sixth inning as Tom Underwood won his sixth game and Atlanta's Max Leon suffered his fourth loss. Garry Templeton homered for St. Louis and Jeff Burroughs hit No. 26 and Cito Gaston No. 3 for the Braves.

Willie McCovey belted a grand-slam home run and a solo homer to lead the Giants' 11th hit attack. John Montefusco allowed 10 hits but struck out 10 in raising his record to 4-9. Wayne Twitchell fell to 2-7.

Astro-4, Pirates-3
Jose Cruz led off the bottom of the 11th inning with a homer to win for Houston. Mark Lemongello went the distance for the Astros, despite allowing 14 hits, and raised his record to 4-12. Rich Gossett took the loss.

Two previous at bats, walked with one out in the seventh inning and scored the tie-breaking run on a triple by Dan Driessens, who scored the second run of the inning on Johnny Bench's single.

Jose Cruz led off the bottom of the 11th inning with a homer to win for Houston. Mark Lemongello went the distance for the Astros, despite allowing 14 hits, and raised his record to 4-12. Rich Gossett took the loss.

Two previous at bats, walked with one out in the seventh inning and scored the tie-breaking run on a triple by Dan Driessens, who scored the second run of the inning on Johnny Bench's single.

The rally enabled Pedro Borbon to win his sixth game of the season and tagged Paul Reuschel with his fourth loss. Bench also homered for the Dodgers while Steve Henderson connected for New York.

Jerry Mumphy doubled in the tie-breaking run in the sixth inning as Tom Underwood won his sixth game and Atlanta's Max Leon suffered his fourth loss. Garry Templeton homered for St. Louis and Jeff Burroughs hit No. 26 and Cito Gaston No. 3 for the Braves.

Willie McCovey belted a grand-slam home run and a solo homer to lead the Giants' 11th hit attack. John Montefusco allowed 10 hits but struck out 10 in raising his record to 4-9. Wayne Twitchell fell to 2-7.

Sports briefs

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Giants All-Pro linebacker Brad Van Pelt, who had not reported to training camp July 21 because of a contract dispute, reported Monday and said he was close to signing.

The Giants also released eight rookies and first-year defensive tackle Bill Rice, first-year defensive back Bob Mitch, rookie defensive back Don Brundridge, first-year linebacker Jerry Brown, first-year wide receiver Walter Talia, rookie guard John Jacquot, first-year tackle Dan Smith and rookie place-kicker Jose Martinez.

Seattle, Pa. (UPI) — Right-handed pitcher Stan Thomas has been traded to the New York Yankees for a player to be named later or for cash, the Seattle Mariners announced Monday.

Thomas' contract has been assigned to Syracuse of the International League, a Mariners' spokesman said.

New Orleans Saints' quarterback Archie Manning said Monday he was throwing the ball without pain.

Manning, who had to sit out most of last season, said his arm was tired but a day off from practice Sunday helped.

Cleveland Indians' relief pitcher Tom Buskey was sent down to Cleveland's Toledo farm club Monday.

The Indians called up reliever Larry Anderson, 24, who leads the International League with 10 saves and has appeared in the most games at 45.

Most of the talk in the Philadelphia Eagles training camp has centered on the quarterback competition between Ron Jaworski and Roman Gabriel, but third unit signal caller John Walton has been quietly enjoying a fine camp.

"I've been very, very pleased with John's play," head coach Dick Vermeil said Monday.

Steve Henderson of the New York Mets was named Monday the National League Player of the Week for his batting exploits, which led the Mets to five victories in six games.

The 24-year-old rookie outfielder, acquired from Cincinnati in the Tom Seaver trade, batted .391, scored seven runs and batted in eight rallies.

Don Aase of the New York Yankees was named Monday the American League Player of the Week.

Aase, 22, was brought up from Pawtucket, Boston's top minor league affiliate, and he has won both his starts. He led the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3 and blanked the California Angels 4-0 on three hits.

Guards Henry Bibby of the Philadelphia 76ers, Al Skinner of the Indianapolis Racers and Al Skinner of the New York Nets have agreed to play in the 19th annual Maurice Stokes Game, to be held on Tuesday August 9 at Kauter's Country Club here.

Green Bay Packers said Monday guard-center Bob Hyland was placed on waivers at his own request and reserve quarterback Don Milan announced his retirement.

The Packers earlier Monday had announced the signing of Tom Lyons who started for Denver the last six seasons. Lyons, 29, signed as a free agent after being placed on waivers three weeks ago.

St. Charles, Mo. (UPI) — Linebacker Ray White Monday signed a series of one-year contracts with the St. Louis Cardinals and reported to training camp.

White, who played out his option with the team last year, failed to show up when the football camp opened for veterans July 25 because he said he was unhappy with the Cardinals' contract offer.

Acquin's lawyer seeks dismissal

HARTFORD (UPI) — The attorney for Lorne J. Acquin, the 37-year-old drifter accused of committing the largest mass murder in Connecticut history, says his client is being held illegally and the case against him should be dismissed.

Atty. John R. Williams said he will ask Judge Robert A. Wall to throw the case out today because Acquin's detention on the charge of murder violates the state's constitution.

Acquin, being held on $200,000 bond at the New Haven Correctional Center, will appear in Waterbury Superior Court today for a pre-trial hearing. Acquin has already been arraigned, but has yet to enter a plea.

"My client will not plea to an illegal charge," Williams said Monday.

Williams said contrary to press reports Acquin is being held on one confession and all other motions at all compulsory evidence.

LOST—The person who picked up the tag and white dog on July 28, in the vicinity of Spring and Gardner Streets in Manchester, please return him. Love him and miss him very much. Substantial reward. No questions asked. Please call 643-2711.

He said Acquin is also being held on one confession and all other motions at all compulsory evidence. But Williams said so-called compulsory evidence and scientific reports will not be held on that count either.

Williams said he will ask Judge Wall to let him accompany Acquin in any grand jury proceedings, a practice that is rarely allowed attorneys in Connecticut.

The New Haven attorney said he will file several other motions at the hearing, including one to require state prosecutors to turn over Acquin's alleged confession and all compulsory evidence.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am concerned about my husband's health. He eats everything on his plate as fast as he can, then he starts eating off the children's plates. He is 37 and admits to having put on "about 40" pounds in the last year, but I think it's more. He is a physician, so he must be aware of the damage he's doing to his health. When I mention it to him he becomes irritable and accuses me of nagging him. He's always looking for candy or something to snack between meals, and I'm sure he must be eating at the office, too. How can I help him without nagging him?

CONCERNED WIFE

DEAR CONCERNED: His overeating could be a symptom of a deeper emotional problem. Persuade him to see a physician even though he is one. It's said that a doctor who treats himself has a fool for a patient. And if you have to nag him, nag him. An irritable husband is better than a dead one.

DEAR ABBY: It's almost time for my mom to tell me about sex. How can I tell her I already know everything?

KNOW IT ALL

DEAR KNOW: Wait until after she tells you what she thinks you ought to know. You may not know EVERYTHING.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for setting the record straight with regard to the Equal Rights Amendment and the draft. I hope this letter can provide similar enlightenment regarding ERA and community property. My wife and I are joint owners of property with their husbands in community property states, namely, California, Texas, Washington, Arizona, Louisiana, Idaho, Nevada and New Mexico. (Women in all other states do not have such protection.) Another justification for the ERA, even in some community property states, concerns the control and management of the joint property. In some community property states such as Louisiana, even though the wife may have joint legal ownership of the community property, the management of the property remains solely in the hands of the husband. This means that a husband could liquidate the joint property without his wife's consent or even her knowledge.

BIRCH BAYH UNITED STATES SENATOR

DEAR SEN. BAYH: Thank you for a very illuminating letter.

tract two tricks, he had hoped that by passing he would not encourage East and West to bid game.

That reasoning is fallacious at best. If East and West have a game they are looking at their own cards, they will have enough to bid beyond two spades they will stop there and make a part score with a partner make a part score of his own.

This time if North had bid three diamonds. East would still have bid four spades and West might well have doubled. Otherwise, he would pass and set them one trick up. If East and West don't bid not to go berserk and bid five diamonds after having bid three diamonds earlier.

By Oswald and James Jacoby

One of the worst jobs in bridge is what we call the "Ostrich" bid. Traditionally, the ostrich bids that if he sticks his head in the sand no one can see him and nothing bad can happen to him.

North's pass to West's two spades is an example of this type bid at its worst. You planned after his opponents had chased up 300 points by setting the five-diamond con-

S.J. Turkington Jr. dies, was former town clerk

Samuel J. (Jack) Turkington Jr., 52, of 127 Henry St., a former Manchester town clerk, died Monday at the West Haven Veterans Hospital. He was the husband of Mrs. Maryann Balch Turkington. Mr. Turkington served as assistant town clerk under his father, the late Samuel J. Turkington Sr., in 1954 and was appointed town clerk in 1955. He was a teacher in the Eastford elementary school system before his retirement four years ago. Previously, he had been employed in the income tax department of the Hartford National Bank. Mr. Turkington was born May 12, 1925 in Manchester and had lived here all his life. He was a 1942 graduate of Manchester High School and a 1950 graduate of Trinity College, Hartford. He was an organizer and charter member of the Manchester Junior Chamber of Commerce, now the Manchester Jaycees, and was chairman of the 1955 local Red Cross Fund Drive. During World War II, he served with the 15th Army Air Force in Italy as a radar navigator bombardier and was discharged in 1945 with the rank of first lieutenant. He was recalled to service with the Air Force during the Korean Conflict. He completed 55 missions in Korea, bringing to 87 the total missions flown by him in the two wars. He received a presidential citation for meritorious achievement while participating in hazardous combat missions in Korea. He was also the holder of the Air Medal with

Lawrence Bousquet

Lawrence Bousquet, 75, of 127 Belmont St., died this morning at Manchester Memorial Hospital after being stricken at his home. He was the husband of Mrs. Delphine Sequin Bousquet. Mr. Bousquet was born April 1, 1903 in Winooski, Vt., and lived in that area until coming to Manchester in 1955. He had been employed as overseer for the America's Woolen Mills in Winooski for more than 35 years. After coming to Manchester, he was employed by the Slocum Mfg. Co. of Glastonbury and later, at the Amco Mfg. Co. of Manchester for 10 years. He was a communicant of St. Bridget Church. Other survivors are three daughters, Mrs. Dennis L. Longest of Manchester, Mrs. Lucille A. Biondi of South Windsor and Mrs. Theresa B. Canas of Cheshire; three brothers, William Bousquet of Manchester, Eugene Bousquet of Bristol and Homer Bousquet Jr. of Winooski; three sisters, Mrs. Helen Braddock of Winooski, Mrs. Aurea of Burlington, Vt., and Mrs. Florence Galusa of Columbus, Ohio; and eight grandchildren. The funeral is Thursday at 9:30 a.m. from Fitzgerald Funeral Home, 225 Main St., with a Mass at St. Bridget Church at 10. Burial will be in East Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Wednesday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. Friends may call at Watkins Funeral Home, 142 E. Center St., Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m. Masonic service will be conducted Wednesday at 7:15 p.m. at the funeral home. The family suggests that any memorial gifts may be made to the Home Haven Hospice at the West Haven Veterans Administration Hospital.

K. M. Twombly, 62, dies, was restaurant manager

Kenneth M. Twombly, 62, of Wilshire Rd., Vernon, manager of Howard Johnson's restaurant in Manchester for 11 years, died Sunday at his home. He was the husband of Mrs. Mary Porter Twombly. Mr. Twombly was born in Beebe, Que., and had lived in Middletown for 23 years before coming to Vernon five and a half years ago. He lived in Vermont before working in Connecticut in 1937 to come to the Howard Johnson restaurant chain. He had also managed restaurants in Fairfield, Darien, and Meriden, totaling more than 40 years with the chain. He was an Army veteran of World War II, retiring with the rank of captain in 1953. He commanded an infantry unit in the Ardennes and was taken a prisoner by the Germans during the Battle of the Bulge in France. He was held prisoner until the end of the war and spent 10 months recovering at Cushing Hospital, Framingham, Mass. He received the European-African-Middle Eastern Theater Medal for the Ardennes and Rhineland campaigns, the American Theater of War Medal, the Victory Medal and a Combat Infantryman Badge. Other survivors are two sons, Kenneth C. Twombly, at home, and Michael P. Twombly of Hemet, Calif.; a daughter, Tara J. Twombly, at home; a brother, Leon C. Twombly of Saxtons River, Vt.; and a grandson. The funeral is Thursday at 2 p.m. at Doolittle Funeral Home, 14 Church St., Middletown. The Rev. Michael Gajewski, pastor of St. Colman Church, Middletown, will officiate. Burial will be in Middletown Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m. The family suggests that any memorial gifts may be made to the Heart Fund.

Anti-recession funds allocated to towns

The State of Connecticut has announced the distribution of $3,028,897 in anti-recession funds, including $29,327 to Manchester and $64,099 to East Hartford. The payment represents the first anti-recession installment of the 1977-78 fiscal year. The state will distribute approximately $12 million in the funds during the year. Besides Manchester and East

About town

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Anderson-Shea Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will visit patients at the Veterans' Hospital in Newton on Wednesday. Members planning to participate should meet at the post home at 6:15 p.m. The meeting of the Young Republicans Club of Greater Manchester scheduled for tonight has been postponed until Sept. 6. Manchester Grange will meet Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Grange Hall. The public is invited to hear Miss Ellen Faine of Simsbury, a member of the Grange-sponsored International Foreign Youth Exchange program, tell of her recent experiences in Costa Rica. The newly elected Grange officers will be installed at its Sept. 7 meeting.

Herbert E. Heim

Aides deny LBJ participated in 1948 ballot box stuffing

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — For the first few days after the 1948 Democratic primary runoff, Lyndon Johnson stayed home reviewing tally sheets, according to three former aides who say he was not in South Texas and did not plot to steal the U.S. Senate election. Aide Walter Jenkins, secretary Mary Rather, and campaign worker Charles Herring held a news conference Monday to deny the confession of Lyndon Johnson to stuffing a ballot box with enough Johnson votes to give him the election. "I didn't come here to tell you what went on in Jim Wells County, because I do not know. I'm here to tell you that whatever went on, Lyndon Johnson was not a part of it," the three said. Johnson hardly left his West Austin residence for the week following the runoff. "There were all the time, and I can say with certainty that Congressman Johnson was there also," Miss Rather said. "He hardly left the house for three or four days after the election. He absolutely did not leave Austin and go to Alice, Tex." Salas, 76, said Monday he was sure Johnson participated in the decision to steal the election. "I don't recollect the day or the date, but I know he was there," Salas said. "It was a nighttime meeting in San Diego. The election was on the 24th. It was after the election." "They were tabulating the votes between the two candidates, Stevenson and Johnson, and they showed Stevenson was ahead of Johnson more than 100 votes. When Lyndon Johnson saw that, and being a friend of George B. Parr, he called to San Diego, and he and Parr came to come to San Diego." "When we got to San Diego George B. was there and Lyndon Johnson said, 'If I had 200 more votes, I won the election.'" "Parr said, 'oh, that's easy.'"

President expected to propose decriminalization of marijuana

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is expected to propose decriminalization of marijuana use as part of a comprehensive drug abuse program he is forwarding to Congress. Administration officials said the package would review "current successes, particularly relating to the control" of heroin smuggling, mainly from Mexico. Carter also plans to send his welfare reform message to Capitol Hill this week before the month-long recess, and was reviewing final recommendations on it today with Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee. The President scheduled a private lunch with Terence Cardinal Cooke of New York, and arranged to meet later with Defense Secretary Harold Brown on Brown's recent trip to South Korea to arrange for American troop withdrawal over the next five years. Of the drug abuse program, officials said: "There will be some new initiatives in a number of new areas. It will be a fairly broad program, covering treatment, regulatory control and international activities. The program, they said, would demonstrate Carter's "personal commitment." They gave no details of the marijuana proposal, but noted that Carter's wish to have the drug decriminalized is not new.

Local 991 hearing is postponed

A labor hearing before a state board has been postponed pending the outcome of a suit filed by the Town of Manchester that seeks an injunction against the hearing. Thomas Prior, assistant town counsel, said. The state Board of Mediation and Arbitration had scheduled the hearing for Thursday to hear a complaint from Robert Taylor. Taylor is a member of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 991, which represents members of the Public Works Department. Taylor filed a grievance last October after he was denied a promotion in the town Water and Sewer Department. The town, however, filed suit last week in Tolland County Superior Court asking for a temporary and permanent injunction against the scheduled hearing. Charles F. McCarthy Jr., assistant town manager, said that the town feels such promotions are made under the merit system and not according to collective bargaining agreement. The town feels that such matters are not subject to state arbitration, he said. Prior said that the state hearing will be rescheduled pending the outcome of the town's action in the matter. No date has yet been set for the hearing, he said.

Mayor expected to win the cash

By MAL BARLOW East Hartford Reporter "I'm not really surprised," said East Hartford Mayor Richard Blackstone today about his getting $5.6 million in public works aid. The Senate victory put Johnson on the way to the political power which eventually led to the presidency. "It would have been absolutely impossible for Mr. Johnson to have been outside Austin for the length of time it would have taken for him to go to Alice," said Jenkins, who was Johnson's administrative assistant in 1948. "I didn't come here to tell you what went on in Jim Wells County, because I do not know. I'm here to tell you that whatever went on, Lyndon Johnson was not a part of it," the three said. Johnson hardly left his West Austin residence for the week following the runoff. "There were all the time, and I can say with certainty that Congressman Johnson was there also," Miss Rather said. The act was designed to give public works funds to towns in the country where unemployment was high. At the time East Hartford applied, the rate for the whole town was 9.4 per cent, well above the 8.5 per cent minimum required under the act. A key problem now for East Hartford is figuring out how to spend the money. The funds go far beyond the projects in the town's applications. Also, some of the projects applied for may no longer be eligible. For example, the town asked for $400,000 to help pay for the $800,000 science wing nearly ready for work at East Hartford High School. The science wing may no longer qualify as it may be considered a project under way. Other projects the money may pay for include: • Drainage improvements on Tolland St. to cost $228,232. • Repavement of Tolland St., $273,602. • Building a swimming pool at the Hoeknum School, $881,475. • Eight tennis courts at Penney High School, $358,023. • Improvements at the East Hartford Golf Course on Long Hill St., $240,474. Other projects to make sure the town uses all the funds may include drainage work at the Forbes St. culvert and the School St. culvert, rebuilding streets in the North Meadows, and resurfacing town streets where they are in worst shape, the mayor said. The mayor said he has not yet received official word on the funds. But he has already begun to fill out the final application forms. The new paperwork should be done by the end of August, he said. First funds spent may be on paving the work must be done in warm weather and the money is not as complicated as other projects. "I anticipate no problems," the mayor said. Carter's district aide, Dave McQuade in Hartford, said today East Hartford did well partly because it was passed over twice before.

Summer allows time to plan for the future

By SHEILA TULLER Herald Correspondent The East Hartford Board of Education took time during a relatively slow summer meeting Monday night to discuss its objectives for 1977-78. At the request of School Supt. Eugene Diggs, board members privately worked their ideas on objectives before the meeting. Monday night, members studied the randomly listed objectives compiled by Dr. Diggs from their ideas. They voted to decide which of the 17 were most important. Top priority was given two objectives by unanimous agreement. Only board secretary Robert Bamson was absent. To develop a five-year plan for consolidation of facilities and programs and to adopt a policy on reduction of personnel are No. 1 on all board members' minds. The board majority wants to measure performance of all personnel against some objective measurement which can be monitored easily by administration and the board. As in many area towns, the board wants to adopt a policy setting minimum levels of competency in language arts and arithmetic for the typical student. With all this work ahead, the board still decided the fifth objective is to revise Board of Education procedures to shorten meetings to three hours and to cut executive sessions to one hour. Two summers ago, at the suggestion of former board member Walter Miles, the board voted to set an 11 o'clock deadline. After a few short meetings, the deadline was forgotten and the board was back to late night meetings. After Monday night's discussion and vote on the rough draft, all objectives will be refined to be more specific, according to Dr. Diggs. Dr. Diggs said the administration could add a paragraph on the status of each of the objectives. "Though some of the 17 haven't been touched on some of the objectives have had previous input by the board and administration. As recently as June, board members discussed a reduction of personnel policy which is being developed by Asst. Supt. Jerry Marcus. Woodland School was one of several proposals offered by the administration in its five-year plan. "My only hope is that we will set aside time in each one or two (objectives) a night." Daily suggested using part of the fall curriculum meetings for this discussion.

'The pay is too low'

Paul J. Costello, director of finance for the East Hartford Board of Education, said Monday his pay is not too high but too low. "I feel I'm still playing catchup football," he said. Costello joined the school system in 1972 as a staff assistant in the finance department. His pay then was about $11,000. In June, 1973 Costello took over the director's job. The previous director had been getting $27,000 per year. Costello got $15,000. Costello's pay rose steadily to $20,300 in the past school year. Last week, the board voted to approve a $3,200-a-year raise, to $23,500, for Costello. Board members Richard Daley and Emery C. Daly were the only ones opposed. The raise and the striking difference between his 1972 and 1977 pay prompted some criticism. Costello is now making $500 more than Richard Harvey, director of finance for the town. Costello said he is now doing all the work of the past school director but is still far from that man's pay. Also he is handling added burdens put on his office since 1972. His office is responsible for the school's near $20 million budget. He handles the data processing department, transportation program, maintenance, communications, and purchasing also. The added job of working with the custodial staff has been added recently. The only areas of the system Costello does not deal with are curriculum and personnel negotiations. Dr. Jerry Marcus, assistant superintendent in charge of personnel, made a study of Costello's job. He compared it to similar jobs in 12 surrounding towns where the average school budget was $10 million. The average pay was $22,000 with a low of $17,000 and a high of $33,000. Costello is a business graduate from Boston University.

Police report

Regina C. Miller, 62, of 229 Burnside Ave., East Hartford was arrested at the Stop & Shop store on Silver Lane Monday morning and charged with fourth-degree larceny (shoplifting). She was released on her promise to appear in Common Pleas Court 12 Aug. 16. Gary Crandall, 16, of 96 Tolland St., East Hartford, was charged with driving without a license in connection with an accident involving five pedestrians Saturday night, police said. Crandall allegedly backed a vehicle in the parking lot at the St. Rose Church near the end of the St. Rose Carnival at 10:11 p.m. The vehicle ran into a crowd. Injured were Patricia Lincoln, 46, and Joanne Lincoln, 8, both of 476 Middle Rd., Tolland; Ruthann Brown, 28, David Brown, 4, and Michael Brown, 7, all of 98 Apple Rd., Tolland. They were treated by paramedics at the scene and taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital. The five were treated for abrasions. Mrs. Brown and her youngest son and Mrs. Lincoln were all treated for minor head injuries. All were released that night. A shooting incident at 428 Goodwin St. Monday at 10:15 a.m. involving a 16-year-old girl is still under investigation, police said.

Now a lease?

HARTFORD (UPI) — State officials are apparently considering leasing land once offered to the state for free, according to a published report today. The Hartford Courant says the land, including an old mansion and a 200-car parking lot, consists of more than five acres next to the Woodland Street college in Hartford. "Hartford developer Allan Schaefer and Harry Gampel offered the land to the state free of charge in December for a large federal tax shelter."

Fire calls increasing

East Hartford Fire Chief Michael Fitzgerald reported his 131-man department answered many more calls during the fiscal year ended June 30. Biggest increase came in the number of building fires. There were 357 in the past year, up 34 per cent over the same period of the previous year. Truck and car fires were up 33 per cent to 450. False alarms were up an alarming 22 per cent to 196. Again this past year, the most numerous calls were for emergencies and first aid. The total calls were 2,285, up 21 per cent. Other figures are: Grass and rub-

Betty's notebook

By Betty Ryder

Chatted with some interesting people during the week and we'll be carrying stories on their activities soon.

Among them was Enid Lynn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morton Rosenthal of 38 Lawton Rd. Enid is director of the Hartford Ballet Co. and she and Diane Fleming of West Hartford, a teacher at the Hartford Ballet recently returned from viewing the Moscow dance competitions in Russia.

Also a busy young man, Don Embro, 16, of 39 Judith Dr. Don, along with nine companions, recently completed a 400-mile bicycle trip in England, Scotland and Wales.

Another very interesting man is Frank Findlay of 151 Hartford Rd., an antique car buff, who really puts his heart into his work. His story will be appearing in Wednesday's People page.

Honestly, meeting nice people makes working almost fun.

Pitter, patter

I've heard the pitter, patter of little feet at my house for so many years, that it really took me by surprise when I realized they weren't human feet—but mouse feet.

Yes, there's a mouse in the house—and a mother who's constantly flying out the door or hiding behind the pantry door.

Now, I know it's silly—they're so tiny and all—but I must confess, I'm scared to death.

Well, this particular little critter may not be so little 'cause he's managed to nibble a hole in the bag of dog food. Instead, the dogs may start drinking 'cause I'll be darned if I'm going to open that cupboard door.

The kids are getting a great kick out of my antics. One set a trap with cheese and they laughed the next morning when we didn't get the mouse. Somehow, I don't think they're on my side.

I've suggested such ridiculous things, like "let's drill a hole in the side of the house and maybe he'll take the hint and leave," or "how about nailing that door shut and just not use that cupboard again," but the kids just won't take me seriously.

I suppose I'm foolish; I used to love Mickey Mouse, but, of course, then I only saw him on TV.

It may be a long, long week. The keeper of the mousetrap set it this morning then left for a week's camping vacation to Maine.

I suppose that little critter will be happy as a mouse with a diet of crunchy dog food and cheese, 'cause I'm sure not going to check the trap. Who knows, I may even put an emergency call into Maine before the week's over.

Black and White Ball

Hope you ladies are planning your outfit for the "Black and White Masked Ball" slated for Nov. 19 at The Colony.

The event, sponsored by the Ball Committee of Manchester Memorial Hospital, sounds like great fun with the ladies wearing black or white or a combination thereof.

Lil Hunter, an active committee member, says dress is optional and people can wear different color gowns if they so desire. Also, if the ladies would like to make a mask of some type, that would add to the evening's fun.

Lil says there will be a contest for the most original, prettiest, etc. mask. That too, is optional.

Reserve the date and polish up your dancing shoes 'cause the Main St. Band will play your favorite tunes.

Help!

Will Donald Ward's sister, Ruby of East Hartford, please call me again. I'm sorry, I misplaced your phone number.

Three named to panel on ethics

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso has named three members to the new State Ethics Commission.

Appointed Monday were:

—Robert W. McGreggor of West Hartford, former state Capitol building chief for the Hartford Times, who resigned last year.

—Marilyn P. Seichter of Glastonbury, an attorney and member of the Governor's Ad Hoc Committee to Revisit Judicial Nominations.

—Richard B. Salomon of Stamford, president of the New York Public Library and a member of the Board of Trustees for Public Television in New York City.

Two of the other four members of the panel have already been appointed by legislative leaders. They are Oleo Smith, former chairman of Aetna Life & Casualty and John Lupton, a state senator from Weston.

The commission, set up by the legislature this year, is the cornerstone of a new ethics law for state officials and lobbyists.

It is empowered to investigate complaints of alleged violations and will be able to initiate its own investigations.

The commission is empowered to impose fines of up to $1,000-a-day and refer its findings to the chief state's attorney for criminal prosecution.

HARTFORD (UPI) — The State of Connecticut is suing Brink's Inc. and Wells Fargo Armored Service Corp. for allegedly conspiring to restrain trade and fix prices.

The suit claims that violations caused artificially high and non-competitive prices for armored car services for communities, universities, hospitals and penal institutions.

Mennillo-Hamilton

Kimberly Ann Hamilton of Belroe, Ohio and Thomas Joseph Mennillo of East Hartford were married June 4 at the Belroe (Ohio) Congregational United Church of Christ.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hamilton of Belroe. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benedetto Mennillo of East Hartford.

The Rev. Emmett Harrell and the Rev. Louis A. Phillips officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Mrs. Kathleen Reel of Parkersburg, W. Va., was organist. Raymond Lowther of Belroe was pianist and David Legg, also of Belroe, was guitarist. Vocalists were Alice Greathouse of Marietta, Ohio and Martha Oman of Oxford, Maine.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a gown of organza and venise lace with fitted V-neck bodice and a wide waistband trimmed and outlined with lace medallions and scallops of venise lace, long tapered sleeves, and an A-line skirt with attached train. Her chapel-length veil was attached to a Juliet cap. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations tipped in pink, baby's breath, and white orchids on a Bible.

Carey Hamilton of Belroe was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Carla Bumgardner of Parkersburg, W. Va.; Martha Oman of Oxford, Maine; Robin Jones of Vermillion, Ohio; Marilyn Holy of Canton, Ohio; and Lynn Mennillo of East Hartford, the bridegroom's sister. Amy Jones of Belroe was flower girl.

Ray Blodeau of West Hartford served as his cousin's best man. Ushers were Jeff Hamilton of Belroe, brother of the bride; Dale Bagal of Cleveland, Ohio; Walter Herrera, of Springfield Mass.; Lou Ragno of Paramus, N.J.; and Charles King Jr. of East Hartford. Benjamin Cross of Belroe was ring bearer.

The wedding was held in the fellowship hall of the church. Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Dene Maerker of East Hartford; Mrs. Jayne Maerker of West Hartford; and Mrs. Sue Bedillion of Waterfield; and the women's Service Class of the church.

Mrs. Mennillo is a 1977 graduate of Heidelberg College, Tiffin, Ohio with B.A. degree in music and religion. Mr. Mennillo is employed as a reporter for The Marietta Times in Marietta, Ohio.

The couple is residing in Marietta.

Courses Leading to a Master of Science Degree

FALL SCHEDULE

- BIOMEDICAL ENGINEERING
ELECTRICAL ASPECTS OF BIOLOGICAL SIGNALS deals with basic principles of neurophysiology including properties of excitable membranes, generation and propagation of the nerve impulse, evoked potentials and the electroencephalogram as well as other electrical signals of biological origin such as the electromyogram and electrocardiogram.
- BIOPHYSICS: PHYSICS IN BIOLOGY
deals with the application and use of concepts of contemporary physics with examples from biology — topics include energy, entropy, equilibrium in closed and open systems, order and structure, atomic and quantum phenomena.
- SPECIAL TOPICS IN BIO-ENVIRONMENTAL ENGINEERING — ANATOMY AND PHYSIOLOGY
reviews the anatomy and physiological processes of the respiratory, cardiovascular, endocrine, muscular, skeletal, circulatory, renal and nervous systems.
- MATHEMATICS OF ENGINEERING AND SCIENCE II
is a course in partial differential equations — classical separation of variables techniques leading to solutions in terms of Fourier series, Bessel functions and Legendre polynomials.
- MECHANICAL ENGINEERING AND MECHANICS
ADVANCED STRENGTH OF MATERIALS studies elastic and plastic behavior of engineering materials subjected to axial load, bending and torsion — Neumark and finite difference methods applied to elastic and buckling problems, theories of strength and failure.
- BOUNDARY LAYERS AND HEAT TRANSFER
studies the Navier-Stokes equations and the boundary layer approximation — exact solutions and integral methods for incompressible boundary layers; transition; turbulence; convective heat transfer in laminar and turbulent flow; special problems at high temperature.
- COMPUTER METHODS IN SOLID MECHANICS
surveys the methods used for the analysis of superelastic structures — computer solutions by matrix formulations using stiffness and flexibility concepts.
- ELASTICITY II
deals with problems in isotropic linear elasticity — torsion and flexure of bars; plane stress and strain; the Bousinesq-Papkovich potentials and their application; stress concentration and contact of elastic bodies; dynamic potentials and wave equations; propagation, reflection and refraction of elastic waves; vibrations of elastic bodies.
- MACHINE DESIGN
studies the design of machine parts and their integration into machines.
- GAS DYNAMICS I
studies one dimensional isentropic compressible flow — normal stationary and moving shock waves; design of inlet and ducted diffusers; steady flow thin tubes and shock tubes; flow in ducts with friction and heat transfer; jet propulsion.
- ADVANCED POWER SYSTEMS
studies application of thermodynamic cycle and force-momentum principles to power plant performance — development of operating performance characteristics of gas turbine components from engineering fundamentals; analysis of power plants as integrated systems with emphasis on jet propulsion.
- INTERNAL COMBUSTION ENGINES
studies performance characteristics with primary emphasis on mobile applications — analyses of spark ignition, compression ignition, Rankine and Otto engines; pollution emission characteristics, involving some laboratory work.
- METALLURGY
INTRODUCTION TO BIOMATERIALS surveys the physical, mechanical and chemical properties of materials used in biomedical applications — ceramic, glass, polymers, and metals with bone and soft tissue; dental restoration, surgical implants, pacemakers and other internal devices.
- METALLURGICAL THERMODYNAMICS
reviews the laws of thermodynamics as applied to metallurgy — quantitative evaluation of thermal properties; thermodynamics of the reduction, oxidation and deoxidation of metals and alloys; calculation of flame temperatures; carburizing and solid state transformations.
- DISLOCATION THEORY
studies the theory of plastic flow in crystals — elastic, anelastic and plastic behavior; elastic properties of dislocations; dislocations of crystal growth and boundaries; dislocation theory as applied to yield point, precipitation hardening, strain aging, work hardening, annealing, creep and anelasticity.
- MATERIALS ENGINEERING I
for non-metals engineers studies the properties and behavior of materials — x-ray diffraction, phase diagrams, casting and solidification, iron carbon diagram, heat treatment fundamentals, hardenability and steel selection, ceramic materials.
- NUCLEAR MATERIALS
studies correlation of materials with reactor concepts with emphasis on radiation damage effects — analysis of reactor materials as affected by materials performance, fuels, cladding, moderators, control rods and burnable poisons, coolants, and structural materials within the framework of boiling, pressurized and liquid metal cooled and fast breeder reactors.
- NUCLEAR ENGINEERING
NUMERICAL METHODS IN NUCLEAR REACTOR ANALYSIS
includes study of linear equations, matrix algebra, difference equations — numerical solution of hyperbolic, parabolic and elliptical differential equations, formulation and numerical solution of static and time dependent multigroup diffusion equations in one, two and three dimensions; neutron spatial stability.
- REACTOR PHYSICS I
studies classical and quantum mechanics relative to neutron interactions — properties of neutrons and nuclei that influence their interaction; kinematics of elastic and inelastic scattering, radiation capture, charged particle emission and fission.
- NUCLEAR ENERGY CONVERSION SYSTEMS I
reviews principal reactor concepts affecting engineering design of nuclear power stations — including PWR, BWR, HTGR and LMFBR conversion systems; the physics analysis of core design relating the selection and optimization of lattice parameters and enrichment to reactivity inventory, burn up and conversion.
- NUCLEAR POWER PLANT INSTRUMENTATION AND CONTROL SYSTEMS
contains description of LWR systems, fundamentals of classical control theory, reactivity control system for PWR and BWR systems, 2X-core and IV-core instrumentation, reactor protection and emergency core cooling systems — term project is the design and analysis of a PWR reactivity control system using CSDP.
- ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY
ENVIRONMENTAL ECONOMICS AND COST ANALYSIS examines the relationship between economic growth and the deterioration of the environment — the role of the free market in causing environmental problems; analysis of proposed means such as effluent charges; the application of cost-benefit analysis to selected issues.
- WATER RESOURCES
deals with elements of meteorology and hydrology — precipitation, runoff, stream flow, watershed losses, unit hydrograph and ground water problems; distribution and reclamation.
- ATMOSPHERIC PHYSICS AND CHEMISTRY
examines the application of thermodynamics to atmospheric processes; the physics and chemistry of moist air; the fundamentals of radiation; the impact on solar energy systems; and photochemical processes near the surface and in the atmosphere.
- MATHEMATICS
MATHEMATICS OF ENGINEERING AND SCIENCE I
is a course in numerical methods, emphasizing numerical solution of ordinary and partial differential equations — the pertinent matrix theory is developed and applied.

Opinion

'Citizen's mail' catch

If the independent Postal Rate Commission seconds the motion of the board of governors of the U.S. Postal Service, the ordinary person will get at least a little relief from the continually rising cost of everything.

This would be in the form of a special 13-cent "citizens' rate" stamp for personal, non-business communications.

The board, acting on a recommendation of President Carter, approved creation of the new category as part of an overall 22 per cent increase in all mail rates.

Regular first class mail, now 13 cents for the first ounce, would go up to 16 cents, for example, Citizens' mail would be a kind of subcategory of first class with lower priority. (But postal officials say citizens' rate users wouldn't notice any difference in service.)

Don't start counting your pennies just yet, however. The commission has 10 months to act on the proposal, so it would not go into effect before May of 1978.

Progress on privacy

After two years and $1.75 million, yet another government study commission has plunked down yet another hefty report on the desks of the nation's lawmakers.

For a change, it was time and money well spent — or will be if the report meets with a better fate than the usual file and forget.

The report of the Privacy Protection Study Commission deals with a subject which, thanks to the computer and computer systems, is becoming of increasing concern to Americans: Simply the protection of their individual privacy.

To give an indication of the scope of the problem, last year 97 agencies of the federal government maintained 6,753 "personal data systems" containing nearly four billion individual records. That's the equivalent of nearly 20 items of data on every man, woman and child in the country.

Untold billions of other records have been accumulated in the private sector, chiefly in the areas of credit, employment, medical and insurance information. The 650-page report of the privacy commission contains no less than 162 recommendations of new federal and state laws and voluntary actions to assure the right of an individual to know what information is being kept on him to give him some control over it and some recourse in case it is misused.

It would be nice if the entire issue would be wrapped up in one single piece of legislation, but the elements involved are so complex and many-layered that they can only be attacked by law.

A questionable point is the commission's urging that an independent federal agency be created to oversee privacy rule-making and enforcement. Let's try the specific law versus specific abuse approach first before adding yet another bureaucratic tier to the federal establishment.

The privacy commission report has certainly given Congress enough specifics to chew on for a long time to come.

Moreover, women usually are in better shape than men. They take better care of themselves, rarely sitting up all night at the poker table, or counting a night wasted when they don't close up Fred's Place at 3 a.m. There are notorious exceptions, including a female reporter in my youth who drank a fifth of bourbon a day, but women don't drink or smoke as much as men. They eat more lettuce than the combined male population of England and France. They eat beans. Most males approach physical exercise with fear and loathing. Women work and play to keep themselves healthier than a National Football League running back. There is a beautiful doll in this house who plays tennis four or five times a week, jumps horses over fences, swim like a barracuda, and does 100 yards in 10 seconds. For girls like that, basic training would be a rest cure.

Yet I do not believe such females are exceptional in the sound body department. Women have always been the energetic sex, and tough. They go 24 hours without sleep nursing Junior's carache and turn up at the Belles Arts Ball looking like Farrah Fawcett-Majors. They transport carloads of kids to assorted routes without taking a deep breath.

They can manage. Only repeated inquiries from the congressional Black Caucus and from House Democratic leaders persuaded Carter to open negotiations on the subject.

True, dolls like Molly dislike getting up in the morning, but I expect they could manage. Top sergeants are pragmatic souls, and they would be disinclined to split hairs with a late-rising female corporal whose specialty was destroying enemy tanks with one bazooka shot.

Finally, the average woman would not tarry long as a lowly GI. All females are of leadership material and within a few weeks of their departure for the front we husbands would be addressing food packages to generals. Lolling on our silken couches, nibbling bonbons, we could assuage our loneliness with the knowledge that the Republic's war machine was in good hands.

Feminizing Republic's great war machine

By Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON — A study by the prestigious Brookings Institution offers a peek into the future which suggests that we might some day discover a nursing mother manning a machine gun nest in a war against Outer Balderdash.

Such a conclusion seems inescapable after perusing the words of the authors, Martin Binkin and Shirley J. Bach. They claim that legislation and court decisions against discrimination by sex assures that women would be drafted if the U.S. returns to the conscription route.

Sample combat units. Now that our ruling lords are determined to provide equal opportunity for females, the study recommends that the armed services forthwith install women (ugh!) "service persons" in sample combat units to find out how they'd perform under simulated battle conditions. Its authors obviously accept what to me is a fact of life, to wit, that some women would volunteer to shoot at the enemy.

I am not comfortable among most femlibbers because they tend to talk too loud, but I am forced to admit that they would make good combat troops. For one thing, most seem actually to enjoy the act of giving birth, despite the pain and inconvenience involved. No male I have encountered would have a baby for a million bucks, after taxes.

Also enjoy a good fight. As all husbands can confirm, members of the sometimes gentler sex also enjoy a good fight, and are very good at the sport. Among other things, they've got staying power, which is what every general wants in a trooper. I could name at least a dozen females who would be boxing champions and middle linebackers if they chose to stop harrying male chauvinist pigs at mass meetings to be athletic for dough. As a moppet, I never laid a glove on my three big sisters.

Moreover, women usually are in better shape than men. They take better care of themselves, rarely sitting up all night at the poker table, or counting a night wasted when they don't close up Fred's Place at 3 a.m. There are notorious exceptions, including a female reporter in my youth who drank a fifth of bourbon a day, but women don't drink or smoke as much as men. MCC Summer Winds is community band

Dear sir: In a recent "Reflections" column, Hal Turkington laments the lack of a community band. Reminiscing about the band formed by Bob Vater in 1969, he concludes that "it may be too late this year, but perhaps next year things can begin in the spring for a community band. We now have the bandshell over at Manchester Community College and why not give it some use?"

But we already have a community band! Obviously it needs more publicity. For the past two years the MCC Summer Winds has given summer concerts right on the campus at MCC. It is a true community band, open to any and all area residents. There are no auditions; just come and play. Conductor Phil Streifer leads a varied program from standard marches through show tunes to contemporary wind music. The Summer Winds concert will be presented in the bandshell, Hal, on Sunday, Aug. 7, 6:30 p.m. Admission is free. Bring a blanket or lawn chair. Not only do we have a community band; we have a community symphonic orchestra. The MCC Summer Pops is also open to all area residents. Its eighth annual concert, conducted by Bob Richardson will be given in the bandshell on Saturday, Aug. 20, at 6:30 p.m. Again, admission is free. See you there, Hal.

Humphrey-Hawkins bill forgotten by Carter

By Martha Angle and Robert Walters

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Remember the Humphrey-Hawkins bill, that ultimate Democratic Party solution to the economic woes of the nation? Sure you do. Who could forget a program so bold in conception and sweeping in reach?

Jimmy Carter could, that's who. Or to be more accurate, he would like to forget it — once and for all. But there are those on Capitol Hill and elsewhere who keep reminding him of his campaign endorsement of the most comprehensive economic planning measure since the New Deal. Summary impossible.

The Humphrey-Hawkins bill is impossible to summarize in a single sentence or two. It is a complex and all-encompassing prescription for government guidance of the economy which is designed to achieve and maintain full employment, even if that means making the government itself the employer of last resort.

Every Democratic candidate for president in 1976 endorsed the controversial measure, although Carter did so only belatedly after the bill has been substantially modified to place greater emphasis on the importance of the private sector.

The goals and concepts of the legislation were written into the very first plank of the Democratic Party platform by the national convention. And Carter's own compilation of campaign pledges, the "Promises, Promises" document released by the White House early this year, list support of the bill as a key element of his economic program.

Yet in the first six months of his administration, the president has done his level best to ignore the Humphrey-Hawkins bill.

Only repeated inquiries from the congressional Black Caucus and from House Democratic leaders persuaded Carter to open negotiations on the subject.

Sounding the alarm

It has always been a mystery why the FBI issues quarterly statistics on larcenies and auto thefts but says nothing about the growing army of pyromaniacs who burn down buildings in the United States. The number of deliberately set fires has more than tripled since 1965. As many as 1,000 people (including up to 45 firemen) are killed and 10,000 injured in such fires each year. Yet arson never has been listed along with murder, robbery and rape as serious crime in the quarterly reports.

That may change, however, if Congress approved a bill by Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, to require the FBI to issue arson statistics. It also would order federal aid to states and cities that conduct anti-firebug campaigns.

The bill hasn't attracted much attention. And there is good reason to approach a new federal aid program with caution.

But the country should know that arson — especially in big cities — has reached epidemic proportions. And that community cooperation is needed to help bring it under control.

Side glances

By GILL FOX

"It's been nice talking to you, Mr. Recording!"

Thought

"A still more excellent way" — Why? What's the reason? "If I have prophetic powers, and understand all mysteries and have all knowledge, and if I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing." Why? What's the reason? If Love, like God's Love for us, does not provide our motivation, then not only are we just noise makers, but everything we do is really only an external display of gross, selfish power.

Love is still the "more excellent way." Submitted by Newell Curtis, Center Congregational Church

Almanac

By United Press International Today is Tuesday, Aug. 2, the 214th day of 1977 with 151 to follow. The moon is moving from its full phase to the last quarter. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mercury and Saturn. Those born on this date are under the sign of Leo. American actress Myrna Loy was born Aug. 2, 1905. On this day in history: In 1858, the first street letter boxes for mail collection were installed in Boston and New York. In 1968, a major earthquake rocked Manila, principal city of the Philippines, killing 307 persons. In 1971, The Apollo 15 astronauts blasted off the moon, ending another visit by Americans on the lunar surface. In 1974, John Dean was sentenced to one year in prison for his part in the Watergate cover-up. A thought for the day: Latin writer Syrus said, "A good reputation is more valuable than money."

To boost business confidence

Burns reappointment urged by Gerald Ford

VAIL, Colo. (UPI)—Former President Gerald R. Ford said today President Carter should keep Arthur Burns as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. "Quite frankly, I've been meaning to say this—and I don't know whether it will be helpful or harmful—but one of the things that would, in my opinion, be very helpful in the restoration of business confidence would be the reappointment of Arthur Burns," Ford said in an exclusive interview with UPI.

Moses plans to quit town council post

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter
Atty. Victor I. Moses, who has served in the Town of Manchester's town council office for four years, will not seek reappointment this fall. He announced his decision Monday in a letter to Mayor Matthew Moriarty. Moses has served as Manchester's town council since 1975 and was assistant town counsel from 1973-75.

Water switchover plans postponed

The Town of Manchester's Water Department has postponed making a final decision on whether to eliminate the Helaine Rd. pump station until after a distribution study is completed. Frank T. Jodanis, water and sewer administrator, has sent letters to the affected homeowners to inform them of the postponement.

Vance pushes quest for Mideast peace

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (UPI)—Secretary of State Cyrus Vance met today with a Geneva conference Minister Ismail Fahmi for detailed discussions on how to get a Middle East peace conference reconvened in Geneva this fall. Vance and Fahmi met alone in Fahmi's suite overlooking the Mediterranean in the Palestine hotel. The meeting followed a session Monday night between Vance and his top advisors and President Anwar Sadat and the Egyptian negotiating team.

The chief stumbling block is how the Palestinians should be represented at a Geneva conference. The Palestine Liberation Organization, designated by the Arabs to represent all Palestinians, has been rejected by Israel as a terrorist organization.

PUCA opens rate hearings

HARTFORD (UPI)—The Public Utilities Control Authority today opened hearings on a rate increase for Northeast Utilities rate hike request. The firm claims it is needed to prevent irreparable financial harm and service cutbacks as represented by the P.U.C.A.
